

Carter must support battered dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless the dollar does a surprising about-face on world money markets, and does it quickly, it seems likely the Carter administration will be compelled to take new measures to try to support the battered greenback.

But there is considerable skepticism among monetary experts here that there is anything more the administration reasonably can do that would help the U.S. currency, which again fell to record lows Monday on world money markets.

Carter promised foreign dollar-holders an energy bill. He got that. He promised an anti-inflation program. He announced that. But neither caused more than a wiggle in the steady downward trend of the dollar.

If dollar traders took either measure into account at all, they apparently discounted them as inadequate. Markets are volatile, however, and while a reversal of the trend one day soon is not regarded here as impossible, no one seems willing to bet on it.

The latest plunge in the dollar was set off by the report last Friday that consumer prices increased 0.8 percent in September alone, pointing to a possible worsening inflation rate, which appears to be the chief worry of foreign dollar-holders at the present time.

Lloyd Atkinson, chief staff economist for the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, said foreign dollar-holders apparently now want the administration to bring on a recession to try to slow inflation, although they don't come right out and say so.

"They clearly are calling for much tighter fiscal and monetary policies than the Carter administration or the Federal Reserve Board are willing to pursue," he said in an interview Monday.

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said Monday in New York that if progress isn't made against inflation within six months to a year, a worse recession than the 1975 economic collapse could result. "And that, in turn, was the worst recession of the post-war period," he said.

The slide in the dollar in the past week has shown foreign dollar-holders do not believe Carter's new anti-inflation program can be successful in significantly slowing the inflation that undermines the purchasing power of the dollar and therefore makes it less attractive to hold.

It also could be further indication that foreigners are skeptical that Carter's energy program will achieve its goal of encouraging fuel conservation so as to cut purchases of foreign oil and help reduce the U.S. trade deficit that is now pushing more dollars into foreign hands.

So now there's pressure to look at new choices or adjust old ones. The administration is considering some of them and some are just ideas being attributed to anonymous foreign dollar-holders:

—Buy back billions of dollars on world money markets in an attempt to counter momentum toward selling off dollars — a choice clearly under consideration but one that some officials say could backfire.

—Tighten the money supply by raising interest rates and using other maneuvers just enough to cause what economists refer to as a "pause" in the economy without causing it to slide into a recession — a touchy strategy already partly in force.

—Tighten the economy really tight. ALL but close it down. Bring on that recession with its staggered national economy and high unemployment, anything to halt inflation. This is what Atkinson says some foreign dollar-holders want, but there is no indication such a drastic step is even being considered by the White House.

Foreign exchange dealers in London are quoted as saying only weighty intervention by the United States to buy up dollars in world money markets can stem the slide now. They said it should borrow from the International Monetary Fund for that purpose.

The United States can unconditionally borrow up to $4 billion from the IMF, and the U.S. Federal Reserve Board has agreements with central banks of other major nations under which it could borrow up to $22 billion in foreign currencies for dollar-support operations.

However, the administration and the board have been reluctant to intervene in a major way for fear it might invite additional attacks on the dollar.

Nothing 'cut and dried' about leasing proposal

By CARLA BARANAUKAS
Pampa News Staff

Nothing has been decided by the Gray County Commissioners about leasing the county hospitals, according to J.O. McCracken, Precinct No. 3 commissioner.

McCracken made the statement at a public hearing Monday in response to a question from John Gikas asking whether the matter of leasing the county hospitals was "cut and dried."

The commissioners then proceeded to defend the leasing proposal to a standing-room-only crowd of over 100.

The public hearing was the second of two public hearings required by state law before a county can lease a hospital to a private corporation.

The commissioners' court is considering leasing Highland and McLean General Hospitals to American Medical International (AMI), a health care services corporation with an office in Houston.

The hearing was used to clear up several questions including could AMI close the hospitals and whether AMI could back out of the lease before five years elapsed.

The county cannot close a hospital unless another hospital replaces it, according to Don Hinton, county judge.

By signing a lease, AMI would be committed to running the hospitals for at least five years, Hinton said. The letter of intent signed by Hinton also provides for two additional five-year options on the hospitals.

Several persons took the opportunity to express their opinions about the proposed leasing. "I personally feel let down," said Dr. Wilber Whitsell. The county has not done the job necessary to maintain the hospital in proper condition, he said. At a time when the hospital is beginning to get back on its feet the commissioners "want to chuck it off just as fast as (they) can."

The hospitals will cost the taxpayers money whether they are leased or not, according to Whitsell. "They (AMI) are not coming up here to give you money," he said. "They're a corporation and they're going to make money."

Another member of the audience also expressed disappointment in the way the hospitals had been handled by the county commission.

"I just feel let down," John McBride said. "The county commission is refusing to replump the hospital. I think you're passing the buck to a private organization."

Most of the people quoted in survey results printed in the Pampa News said they favored leasing the hospitals, because they thought a private corporation could manage the hospitals better, according to Ross.

"If they (AMI) are losing money because of bad management, they'll get rid of the bad management," McBride said. "You're morally responsible to get rid of the management. I'm disappointed in the way it's been handled."

Responding to McBride's statement, McCracken said, "You're not the first person who has told me there are problems out there. But it's pretty hard to even change management."

AMI would be willing to wait until a referendum on the leasing issue could go before the public, according to H.D. Foitik, central region vice president.

"We can wait and we're willing to wait until the first of January," Foitik said. "But the proposal cannot be extended beyond that date."

Robert Finney, Pampa resident, asked Foitik what was "magic" about Jan. 1.

Negotiations between the county and AMI date back to January 1978 and have been "on again, off again," according to Foitik. "We cannot have an open end commitment," he said. "Is this a 'take it or leave it' proposition?" Finney asked.

"I don't know what else could be offered," Foitik said. "We have made the offer that was asked for in our discussions (with the commissioners' court)."

Finney repeated his question. "I guess you could call it that," Foitik said.

R.W. Sidwell, chairman of the Highland and McLean General Hospitals Board of Managers, said that most of the discussion was missing the most important point.

"We better do something and do it quickly," Sidwell said. "I don't know how long we can buy cold patches and bandaids (for the plumbing)."

The best solution to the hospitals' problems would be to lease McLean General Hospital and keep Highland General Hospital under the control of the county, according to Fred Dunn, Pampa resident.

Hinton asked for a show of hands of the number of persons who would be in favor of a bond issue for the hospitals.

Eight persons raised their hands.

A large percentage of the crowd raised their hands when they were asked if they were in favor of leasing the hospitals.

One person favored creating a hospital district.

FRED DUNN, standing, was one of many who voiced their opinions at Monday night's public hearing concerning the leasing of the hospital. Dunn asked that McLean hospital be leased to AMI, and Highland General Hospital remain in the hands of the county.

Dealers won't talk about ailing dollar

LONDON (AP) — Currency dealers won't say how much farther the nose-diving dollar might fall on foreign money markets. "I haven't heard of anyone talking about a recovery in the wind," said one dealer.

The dollar took one of its worst beatings ever Monday, dropping 2 percent against the West German mark and French franc and more than 1 percent against most other currencies.

In Tokyo, the dollar opened today at 176.50 yen, its fifth postwar low in seven trading days. One trader said the Japanese central bank stepped in to buy dollars and stop the slide.

Gold, the traditional refuge of speculators in times of economic uncertainty, shot up as much as $11 an ounce Monday, closing at $245.25 in London and $242.875 in Zurich, Switzerland.

The dollar dropped more than a yen Monday in Tokyo and was in trouble on European exchanges from the minute they opened.

Massive dollar sales triggered more sales, and the price plunged as buyers for the once-mighty currency were hard to find.

Lack of confidence in American economic leadership triggered the recent rush to sell dollars and buy more stable currencies or gold. The dollar's rapid slide over the past week reflects statements by foreign monetary dealers that President Carter's voluntary anti-inflation program is inadequate and unworkable.

Monday, some said reduced American oil imports, a tighter money supply in the United States and reduced government spending might help prop up the dollar.

Others suggested the U.S. Federal Reserve may have to take out billions of dollars in credits from the International Monetary Fund to buy up the unwanted dollars and bolster the rate.

Part of the IMF's function is to supervise the international exchange rate system with an eye toward maintaining stability.

Gold, which sold at $169.50 at the start of the year, has gone up in value 45 percent since then.

For Americans abroad, the dollar's decline means more expensive food, lodging and travel as dollars buy less of the local currency. But it makes the United States a cheaper place for foreigners to visit and lowers the costs of some American goods sold abroad.

Imported goods sold in the United States become more expensive. This worries some foreign nations such as Japan, which export heavily, and is one reason why the Japanese central bank has often intervened to prop up the price of the dollar.

In West Germany, about 170 Berlin-based Pan Am flight officers are demanding a higher allowance to make up for the drop of the dollar against the mark.

They receive allowances to offset the living cost in West Germany, which is higher for them than it is in the United States. But the allowances have not been readjusted since last year, when the dollar was worth more than two marks. Now it is worth 1.80 marks, and the flight officers say a new adjustment is needed.

Pampan stabbed; critical

A Pampa man was critically injured Monday night after an apparent domestic quarrel ended in the stabbing of LeRoy Morgan, 61, of 533 Naida Street.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan said that Morgan was injured after an argument arose between the victim and his common-law wife at 400 Baer St.

Jordan said the woman apparently stabbed the victim in the center of the back with a small bladed knife.

Morgan was treated at Highland General Hospital but was transferred to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo at 3 a.m. Tuesday suffering from shock.

Morgan was listed in critical condition after undergoing surgery for the wounds.

A spokesman for the sheriff's office said no charges have been filed at this time.

News in brief

CLOUDY
The forecast for Pampa and vicinity is mostly cloudy and cooler with a chance of showers today. It should become partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday. Today's high will be near 60 with the low tonight in the 30s and the high on Wednesday in the 60s. The winds will be out of the northeast at 10-15 miles per hour becoming easterly at 5-10 miles per hour tonight.

Voters may cast ballots

The Gray County Clerk's office will be open Thursday and Friday during the lunch hour for absentee voting, according to Wanda Carter, county clerk.

Absentee voting is scheduled to continue through Nov. 3, Carter said.

Persons eligible to cast absentee ballots are those who are:

— out of town on election day.

— unable to vote on election day for religious reasons.

— over the age of 65.

— ill or physically disabled.

— election clerks or poll watchers.

— confined to jail in some instances.

Absentee voting runs from 8:30 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

Thursday and Friday the hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

As of Monday Afternoon 300 absentee ballots had been cast, Carter said.

Borger resident injured in crash

SKELLYTOWN — A 36-year-old Borger man was seriously injured this morning when the car in which he was a passenger was in collision with a dump truck on Highway 152, at the intersection of a dirt road 3.4 miles east of here, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Amarillo, where he was reported in serious condition.

Highway patrolman said Jimenez was one of four occupants of an eastbound car driven by Pedro Rios, 28, also of Borger. Rios and two other passengers, unidentified by the highway patrol this morning, reportedly escaped injury.

Patrolmen said the collision occurred as the car driven by Rios was attempting to pass an eastbound dump truck, owned by K and K, Inc., of White Deer, and driven by Myron Joseph Bilgri, 30, of White Deer.

Police issue warning

Pampa child molested at knife point

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

A Pampa child was reportedly molested Thursday while walking home from school.

The child, a six-year-old female, told police she was on her way home from Travis Elementary School at approximately 3:50 p.m. when she was approached by a Caucasian male with dark hair, driving a late model light colored automobile. Unofficial reports described the automobile as white.

The male reportedly forced the child into the car and drove her to a weeded area in the north side of the city, where he then displayed a knife. The child told police the male attempted to fondle her, but did not remove any of her clothing.

According to the child, the shouts of an area resident apparently startled the male, and he drove away from the scene. The child then walked home.

Police are investigating the case and have questioned several persons, said Lt. J.J. Ryzman. Pampa elementary schools were contacted about the incident, and teachers have been alerted, he added.

Ryzman noted several precautions parents should review with their children. Children should never take candy from a stranger, enter a stranger's house or car, let a stranger touch them or join in their play, or go with a stranger if he asks them for directions.

Youngsters should go and from school, and never go to public places alone. They should avoid places like vacant houses and construction sites.

If bothered by strangers, children should try to remember descriptions and license plate numbers, and report them to trusted adults.

Medder's story continues in courtroom today

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A woman who rose from poverty in Memphis to riches in Texas on a non-existent inheritance was to appear in court today on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Margaret Medders, who with her late husband Ernest lived in luxury near Dallas on a borrowed $3 million in the early 1960s, faced a possible trial on charges of larceny and obtaining about $35,000 under false pretenses.

Mrs. Medders and her court-appointed attorney, Edwin Lenow, were to appear before Judge James Beasley of Criminal Court.

Mrs. Medders, 58, was indicted by a Shelby County grand jury in 1976, but was not extradited to Tennessee because of charges pending in Texas. She was convicted in May 1977 of not paying a $352 bill in 1976 at the Fairmont Hotel in Dallas and was sentenced to five years in the Texas Department of Corrections facility at Huntsville.

She was extradited this summer and has been at the Shelby County Jail East since Aug. 1 under $5,000 bond, awaiting trial.

The Tennessee indictment accuses Mrs. Medders of several fraudulent acts, including taking $24,800 from Nelsie Mulkins of Memphis for a third interest in Marest Publishing Co. Inc.

The indictment charges that Mrs. Medders, as part-owner, stockholder and officer of the publishing company, represented to Ms. Mulkins that the company was a "thriving and profitable business" and had sold nearly a million copies of the book, "How To Borrow $3 Million With No Collateral — The Medders Story."

The indictment also said Ms. Mulkins paid $3,000 in 1975 for land near Jellico, Tenn., which Mrs. Medders said contained coal. Later that year, Mrs. Medders sold Dr. Mary B. Davis, a semi-retired Memphis osteopath, the coal rights to the Jellico property for $4,000, the indictment said.

Mrs. Medders' late husband, Ernest, was a $65-a-week mechanic when their rags-to-riches story began in 1961, based on speculation he might be heir to the $500 million Spindletop oil fortune.

The couple borrowed $3 million — nearly $2 million from the Poor Sisters of St. Francis, an order of nuns in Indiana — against the phony inheritance. For six years they lived among the Texas elite, giving lavish parties at their 330-acre home, Colonial Acres.

They dined at Lyndon Johnson's White House and flew home aboard Air Force One.

The bubble burst in 1967 when relatives filed suit for a share of the inheritance and discovered the Medderses had never collected a penny of the fortune.

The couple was declared bankrupt, but under Texas law was allowed to keep a 185-acre ranch and house, plus a Cadillac. The couple could not afford the upkeep on the ranch and it later was sold.

Until his death in 1975 at age 75, Medders lived on proceeds from the sale of the ranch.

A bank we should think about

It now appears that the $3.19 billion of U.S. taxpayer money going to "foreign aid" this year is only the tip of the giveaway iceberg.

With the Washington, D.C., social season featuring a round of parties for the delegates of some 130 countries there for the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, Shirley Scheibla, writing recently in Barron's, reports that, "In between the parties and speeches, they'll take up the most serious piece of business confronting the Bank; to double its callable capital, now at $30 billion, with $7 billion promised by the U.S."

And this, reporter Scheibla points out quoting from a Congressional Research Service report, despite findings that "The Bank" (along with its soft loan International Development Association) "is seen as presiding over the build up of debts which will ultimately be defaulted."

"On June 30," she noted, "loans on the books totaled $47.8 billion," with U.S. taxpayers providing 37 percent of IDA funds and 25 percent of World Bank funds as a whole. And, "to make matters worse," she noted, "many of the social reforms that the Bank is funding involve fostering the spread of socialism and communism"; the IDA's recent $60 million loan to Vietnam being a case in point. Barron's Scheibla writes in part:

"The southern part of Vietnam is the agricultural heartland of the nation, and most of the land is privately owned. Barron's has obtained two confidential World Bank reports which show that one of the main purposes of the loan is to finance a scheme for the Communist government to seize land from farmers in the south and force them into cooperative (communes) of about 75 families each.

"The project involves a dam on the Saigon River and irrigation and drainage ditches. The money would go directly to the Vietnamese government, which would then levy user charges on the newly formed cooperatives. According to the Bank reports, the project also is linked to the forced resettlement of four-five million people by the end of 1980 in New Economic Zones in the South."

Some of the other uses to which your hard-earned tax dollars are being put by the World Bank, Scheibla notes, include:

- A likely salary boost for World Bank President Robert McNamara from $116,000 to $150,000 a year, with comparable pay boosts for the Bank's other top echelon directors.

- A $8.2 million loan last year to Communist Laos (Lao People's Democratic Republic) for irrigation schemes, breeding pigs and improving the quality of seeds. And currently, depicts U.S. objections on the grounds of violations of human rights by Laos the Bank is considering two additional multi-million dollar loans to the Laotian government.

- Below-market rate loans for World Bank staff members.
- And, not to forget, picking up the tab for the recent assembly in Washington, D.C., of the delegates of 130-odd countries, "flown in and booked at luxurious hostels at the two organization's (International Monetary Fund and World Bank) expense, all in the name of relieving global poverty."

Central American Cuba

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Ever since the Guatemalan crisis in the early 1950s, Central America has been a region of calm and order. Economic conditions improved year by year, and the countries in the area were closely tied to the United States. No Central American nation was a more dependable friend than Nicaragua.

Today, the situation has changed radically. The United States has decided to abandon its strategic treasure, the Panama Canal. The leftist regime in Panama is becoming even more radicalized. As a result of unwise pressure from the Carter administration, Nicaragua has been plunged into civil strife. The troubles in the area may spread to Costa Rica and Honduras.

The American Legion National Security Bulletin says that the situation in Central America "is being compared to the complete devastation of Lebanon, frictions exacerbated into factional fighting, and eventually turning the entire region into an inferno."

Costa Rica became involved when the revolutionaries used that country as a sanctuary for attacking Nicaraguan cities. Panama sent armed helicopters to Costa Rica to oppose Nicaragua.

U.S. Rep. Eldon Rudd of Arizona asserts "it is becoming clearer and clearer every day that the concerted attack against the Nicaraguan government is designed to pave the way for a communist takeover in that country - and the emergence of another Cuba in our hemisphere."

Harold K. Mills of the Arizona Republic, writing from Guatemala, described the coalition of revolutionaries led by the Sandinistas, saying "they intend to destroy President Somoza and install a Marxist socialist regime similar to that of Cuba."

The U.S. public should realize that the Carter administration isn't dismayed at the prospect of leftwing, Marxist regimes coming to power. It is supporting such a faction in Rhodesia, where it is backing the Marxist terrorists led by Joshua Nkomo, and bitterly opposes the moderate, multi-radical transitional government.

Informed observers in Latin America report heavy Carter administration pressure against every government that is anti-communist in character - Argentina, Brazil and Chile. These governments are being urged by Washington to create openings to the left. Meanwhile, the Carter administration sees no evil, hears no evil when it comes to leftist regimes in Latin America.

The American Legion National Security Bulletin reports that "Torrijos, who signed the treaties with President Carter, says he is stepping down as 'maximum leader,' is turning over the power to an alleged Marxist theoretician named Aristedes Royo, who along with Escobar Bethancourt, were extremist Panamanian spokesmen during the Canal Treaties Negotiations. Bethancourt recently participated in the large Communist Youth Festival in Havana."

The Carter administration isn't protesting Panama's drift toward marxism, but it's doing everything in its power to force President Somoza of Nicaragua to yield to left opposition.

One of the strange gaps in press coverage of the Nicaraguan conflict is the lack of information on who provides the money, weapons and training for the revolutionaries. The Sandinistas have been shown in American TV news broadcasts with modern weapons. Where did they get the weapons? Who provided the money for the arms?

It's tragic that the U.S. State Department is applying pressure on proven friends of the United States instead of using its influence to prevent the creation of a Central American communist regime.

What about human property rights?

By BERNARD H. SIEGAN

One of the byproducts of President Carter's demands for the universal observance of "human rights" is a dialogue on what is meant by this term. It is generally assumed that Carter is concerned with political and intellectual rights: those centering about the ability to speak, write, pray and petition without fear of punishment. The president seems also concerned that no one should be penalized without a fair and impartial trial based on the commission of a crime.

As far as I am aware, Carter has never referred to property and economic rights as those deserving of special protection. This should not be surprising, because (1) the socialist countries might condemn him for meddling in their social and economic systems, and (2) the Carter administration does not give the impression that its members are very interested in these rights. Like so many in the liberal establishment, they do not seem particularly troubled or anxious about the denial of material rights.

Yet countries that do not recognize property and economic rights will never be able to honor freedom of speech, press and religion. Anyone who owns property that the state can confiscate or who enters into contracts for purchase and sale of goods and services that the government can abrogate, will be exceedingly hesitant to voice any opinion or engage in any conduct not to the liking of the officials with this power.

In fact it is not possible to publish regularly any newspaper or periodical unless one has the right to own property and freely contract for goods and services. A weekly or daily publication requires the establishment and existence of a business enterprise which no one would ever invest in without being secure as to the rights of the property and freedom of contract. The risk of financial loss would otherwise be too great.

An independent newspaper cannot exist when the owner does not have liberty of contract to hire workers of his own choosing on acceptable terms, to purchase equipment and materials, to sell advertising, and to arrange for circulation and promotion. A government that can control these management functions has the power of censorship without ever using a blue pencil.

This principle is not confined to the press or totalitarian states. Anyone dependent upon or subservient to government officials for his or her livelihood, income or personal comfort is not free to exercise fundamental liberties. Because of the huge amounts of discretionary government regulations and subsidies existing today in this country, a vast number of Americans are limited in both expression and other conduct.

Freedom of contract is not only preservative of other rights, it also satisfies the very basic human need for autonomy and independence; and is essential to a free society. The relationship of punishment to property and economic rights should be apparent. People are punished by being imprisoned or fined or both. The deprivation of property or the opportunity to acquire it creates economic loss and is equivalent to imposing a fine. In this manner governments that do not observe material rights can punish people without the need for holding a trial. Unfortunately the problem is no longer confined to totalitarian states. Government regulation in our country can also have the same effect.

There was a time long ago in our country's history when state governments changed the terms of private agreements. While such conduct is not unknown today, it was a more common practice then. During the period of the confederation of states, which existed between the American Revolution and ratification of the U.S. Constitution in 1789, some state legislatures seeking to favor debtors passed laws altering the terms of existing loans. These legislatures adopted statutes extending the time for paying notes and other obligations beyond their original maturity dates and sometimes allowed payments in a currency not originally intended. Naturally, proponents proclaimed these measures to be humanitarian efforts to relieve economic misfortune.

The chaos resulting from these laws was one of the major reasons leading to the formation of a union with the power to prevent such practices. Chief Justice John Marshall explained in an 1827 case the difficult situation that had prevailed.

"The mischief has become so great, so alarming, as not only to impair commercial intercourse, and threaten the existence of credit, but to sap the morals of the people, and destroy the sanctity of private faith. To guard against the continuance of the evil was an object of deep interest with all the truly wise, as well as the virtuous of this great community, and was one of the important benefits expected from a reform of the government."

"To impose restraint on state legislation as respected this delicate and interesting subject, was thought necessary by all those patriots who could take an enlightened and comprehensive view..."

This lesson from early America reveals how critical freedom of contract is to the viability and maintenance of a free society. Perhaps President Carter may recognize one day how futile other efforts to obtain human rights would be in its absence.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Oct. 31, the 304th day of 1978. There are 61 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1517, Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses on the chapel door at Castle Church in Wittenberg, Germany.

On this date:
In 1674, Dutch forces evacuated what is now New York City.

In 1864, Nevada became the 36th state.
In 1955, Britain's Princess Margaret said in a radio broadcast: "I would like it to be known that I have decided not to marry Group Captain Peter Townsend."

In 1956, Britain and France bombed Egypt in the Suez War between Egypt and Israel.

In 1959, a former U.S. marine, Lee Harvey Oswald, told newsmen in Moscow he never would return to the United States.

In 1963, a general, Nguyen Van Thieu, was sworn in as president of South Vietnam.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson ordered a halt to all American air, naval and artillery bombardment of North Vietnam, saying he hoped the action would lead to fruitful peace negotiations.

Five years ago: Three members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army escaped from a Dublin prison in a hijacked helicopter that landed in the prison yard.

One year ago: Former CIA Director Richard Helms pleaded no contest to charges he had failed to testify fully and accurately before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Today's birthdays: U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell is 60 years old. Actress Barbara Bel Geddes is 56. Former King of Cambodia Norodom Sihanouk is 56. Broadcaster Dan Rather is 47.

Thought for today: "All things come to him who waits - provided he knows what he is waiting for." - President Woodrow Wilson, 1856-1924.

Naked newsmen

When are we newsmen going to strip ourselves naked as we strip others? I've been on all major TV talk shows and nobody ever asked the hard questions.

Why not subject news handlers to the same scrutiny to which we subject politicians where a potential conflict of interest exists?

We spotlight the drinking habits, the pill use and the sexual mores of a Rep. Hays, a Rep. Mills or a Sen. Brooke, convinced that private indiscretion subjects a public servant to potential blackmail. Why not us of the new media?

Are we not vulnerable to distorting or killing a story or embellishing a story due to some personal habit or quirk of character?

You bet we are! Chet Huntley suffered embarrassment because of a financial interest in a meatpacking business which could have influenced his editorial judgment on a related subject.

I've been guest on all the top rated TV talk shows and nobody ever asked me any of the "hard questions" which are always asked of politicians:

"Have you ever accepted from any foreign government a party, a party girl, a plane ride or a vacation?"
"Have you ever had a homosexual lover?"

"Do you have any secret bank accounts, any debts to gamblers?"
"Do you drink?"

"What are your investments, total assets, other income sources?"

"Did you ever report favorably on any person or property in which you have a vested interest?"

"You're always talking up Arizona; do you own land in Arizona?"

Yes, these questions do seem to be impolite, impertinent, an invasion of privacy. Yes, they could embarrass our families.

Yet these are questions to which we demand answers from public servants. And in some ways we are more influential than they.

Some five years ago we of the news media overthrew the U.S. government. How many of us could have stood up to the grueling grilling to which we subjected the Watergate principals in that ugly expose?

How many of us are willing to strip to the degree that we stripped them?

I certainly don't want to. But if it is a good idea - and I think it is - somebody has to go first.

Do I hear a second from anywhere in the major league media?

Who benefits from 'interest-bearing checking'?

(Second of two columns)

ITEM: When Bank of America begins to offer what are in reality interest-bearing checking accounts, starting this coming Wednesday, Nov. 1, it plans to charge $3 a month plus 10 cents a check and to require a minimum deposit of $500 for customers using this new retail banking service.

"But because of these service charges and balance requirements, the only people who can truly benefit from the new service will be the very wealthy who can afford to keep large balances. The working man and woman will benefit little, if any, from this new service," says Rep. Frank Annunzio (D. Ill.), chairman of the Banking Committee's consumer affairs subcommittee. "It appears that the customer will be earning on his checking account," Annunzio adds. "But what banks won't tell customers is that this interest will be eaten up in service charges."

ITEM: Under the First National Bank of Oregon's "Bonus II" accounts, holders will be charged a flat $5 per month unless they have a minimum balance of $2,000. Then the service is free.

ITEM: Under New York Citibank's "Interest Plus" plan customers with accounts containing $5,000 are to pay nothing while those with balances of $1,000 or less are scheduled to pay $5 a month.

ITEM: Under Des Moines National Bank's "Moneysworth Account," the required balance for free use will be much smaller - only $1,500. Customers with smaller accounts will pay 25 cents per check and a maintenance fee of 50 cents per month.

ITEM: And under Wells Fargo Bank's transfer service plan, customers with less than $2,000 in their savings accounts are scheduled to pay $3 a month plus 10 cents per check to have their funds moved from a 5 percent savings account into their checking account.

The revolution in banking services has been accelerated by this new authority to commercial banks to offer what amounts to interest-bearing checking accounts - even though the banks are merely the latest category of financial institutions to gain the right to provide the accounts. Many credit unions and savings and loan associations already offer the equivalent service by means of share draft accounts, telephone-transfer services or NOW accounts.

Banks that will offer the new automatic fund transfer service have been informed by their regulators that they must make it clear to customers that two accounts (savings and checking) are involved in the service.

For legal reasons, they also have been warned that advertising and promotions should "avoid referring to the automatic transfer service as equivalent or similar to paying interest on checking accounts," reports my Washington associate, Brooke Shearer.

But no matter what the legal distinctions, these services do amount to interest-bearing checking accounts - and that's appealing enough on its face.

The crucial question is: will you, the customer, really gain from such accounts, or will you end up earning pennies in interest while paying dollars in service charges?

So far - and competition plus reality are still to emerge - the service does appear geared toward the customer with a healthy deposit and against the small-time depositor.

Whether or not you find the new transfer or other similar services worthwhile will depend on many factors - among them your check-writing habits and the amount of money you tend to keep on deposit.

If you are accustomed to writing a lot of checks while holding low balances, for instance, you could pay more in service charges than you receive in interest.

Of course, financial institutions - along with other businesses - have the right to charge customers for services that cost the institutions money to perform. And you have the right to shop around and accept the transfer service - if you accept any! - that you find most fits with your habits and is least expensive to you.

What's more, essential regulation of electronic funds transfer services still is to be demonstrated as adequate.

Take your time. The banks still may go back to the drawing boards to review their plans and strategies. The fees may not stay at initially scheduled levels. The institutions have the privilege to fix charges - and you have the privilege to say yes or no.

Letters from readers

In my opinion, Congress passing the extension and denying the states withdrawal rights shouts out loud and clear that our government endorses passage of the ERA amendment. And what government wants, government gets, right? Or wrong? Only we, as individuals uniting, can decide.

Will you sit by, apathetically, in your warm, cozy little home this winter and hope something can be done, that someone can prevent this historical atrocity from happening?

Well, folks, it will happen unless you get out of your utopian state of affairs and fight with us who want to preserve the American "family". If it takes fear to make Americans arise and unite, then I say "be scared", for our family life style as ordained by God Almighty - Creator of all things and men (lest you have forgotten), is at stake with the passage of the ERA amendment.

For you and your family's sake, be true to your convictions - let's show we do care about morality in our great America.

Day care - The United Way

The Community Day Care Center is among the agencies supported by the United Way program. The center is licensed by the State Department of Public Welfare and accepts children from high, middle and low income families, and is under the direction of Mrs. LaVerne Coronis.

Other staff members include the assistant director, Mrs. Carnell Thompson.

The center receives donations from the Gray County Revenue Sharing Funds, Pampa Industrial Foundation, United Way, Marie Foundations and the First Christian Church. Donations are also made by various individuals and clubs. The center also receives assistance from community volunteers.

The hours at the Day Care Center are 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. The center is licensed to accommodate 109 children ranging in age from infant to 12 years.

Activities at the center include a pre-school program for ages three through five, field trips, hikes, games and a physical education program.

Strict regulations cover all areas of the centers operations to ensure a safe, nurturing environment for the children.

The center offers children an opportunity to receive an education in a variety of areas, along with various opportunities and a foundation for cultural experiences. There is also play apparatus for the child's development. The child has an opportunity to develop its habits and start fitting into social groups.

Question may be over for some EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — To most people living in the border outpost of Rio Rico, the matter of their citizenship has never been a complicated question.

And now the U.S. Board of Immigration Appeals agrees with them and has ruled that many of the residents of the now-Mexican town are U.S. citizens.

The residents have long claimed that when they were born in the river community south of Donna, Texas, it had not yet been traded to Mexico. It was American soil when they were born, they claim, and that makes them U.S. citizens.

But to U.S. Immigration officials it was a bit more complicated. There was the matter of an illegal re-routing of the Rio Grande in 1906. That left Rio Rico south of the U.S.-Mexico border.

There was also the compounding matter of Mexican rule in the community of about 300. There have long been Mexican-run schools, roads and police.

The lack of U.S. jurisdiction made the Rio Ricans citizens of Mexico, the officials argued.

But the appeals board recently ruled that it was, as the Rio Ricans claimed, a simple question with a simple answer: "From 1884 on, the Rio Rico area was clearly a part of the United States. Whatever lack of attention was paid to the small and remote area... There is little question that those persons born in it were citizens of the United States... Why then is there an issue as to their citizenship thereafter?" the ruling stated.

Before 1906, there was no question that Rio Rico was north of the river and in U.S. territory. But in that year a U.S. land firm improperly re-routed the Rio Grande and left the hamlet in a loop technically south of the river. In effect, Rio Rico was in the Mexican loop of a two-loop configuration. The U.S. was to the north and to the south.

Edinburg attorney Laurier McDonald, who represented the Rio Ricans seeking citizenship, said the area was later re-surveyed but no boundary markers were erected.

The Rio Rico area boomed in the prohibition era. Thirsty Americans flocked to the night clubs and dog track in the community.

The area remained technically in U.S. territory but the Mexican government gradually began providing a few scant services.

When the bridge from Rio Rico across the river was washed out in 1940, the town was stranded.

Immigration officials claim that there remained nothing American in Rio Rico. The residents had not fulfilled the obligations — including taxes and military service — of a citizen.

An immigration judge agreed in 1976, saying that since 1906 "no county, state or United States official exercised authority" in Rio Rico.

"There is not the allegiance and obedience to the United States element of jurisdiction," the judge ruled.

Van Zandt honored by group

Joe VanZandt of Pampa has been named an "Outstanding County Agent for 1978" by the Texas Plant Food Institute.

VanZandt was cited for his efforts to help Gray County farmers improve their incomes through better fertilization practices.

During the past year, VanZandt wrote 57 news stories, gave 47 radio programs and conducted six short courses and field days that offered agricultural producers an opportunity to obtain information about crop production and fertilization.

In addition, VanZandt carried out 13 soil fertility demonstrations to show Gray County farmers how fertilizers can be used in the area he serves as an extension agent.

Farmers produce 'gasohol'

Farmers of the American Agriculture Movement are taking steps of their own to create "The fuel of the future", gasohol, a blend of 10 percent alcohol (produced from grain) and 90 percent gasoline.

"Gasohol will give us a whole new market for our grain," said AAM spokesman Bud Bitner of Walsh Co. "It burns cleaner than gasoline and is a renewable source of fuel."

Farmers of the American Agriculture Movement are banding together all over the country to construct gasohol plants.

Plans are currently underway in Missouri to set up a facility in Rockport which would process at least 50,000 gallons of alcohol a day.

The plant which may cost anywhere from $12 to $28 million is expected to be in operation by 1980. The Missouri plant will be financed through private donations, according to one organizer, Bill Houk. A wide distribution of ownership will prevent an individual or group from buying a majority control.

Farmers in other states also considering building gasohol plants are Michigan, South Dakota and Colorado. Other states such as Nebraska, Illinois and Iowa are already marketing gasohol.

"The Energy bill just passed by Congress exempts gasohol from the four cents a gallon federal tax on gasoline for the next five years," said Bitner. "This exemption will make alcohol production economically feasible."

In addition, Bitner said, producing alcohol for gasoline, "Creates a positive energy balance, meaning more energy is derived from the alcohol than it took to produce it."

Anderson may get new trial

WHARTON, Texas (AP) — Fort Bend County's district attorney has confirmed that prosecuting attorneys will not object today to a defense motion asking a new trial for Mary Lou Anderson, the only woman on Texas' death row.
Ms. Anderson was sentenced to death after her capital murder conviction last August. District Attorney William Meitzen said Ms. Anderson will receive a lighter sentence in exchange for a guilty plea.

of capital murder and sentenced to death earlier this month for his role as the gunman in the case.
A spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections said no woman has ever been executed by the state. Two of three other women on Death Row had their sentences changed to life imprisonment and the third received a 15-year sentence when she was granted a new trial.

The hearing on the motion for a new trial was scheduled for 9 a.m. this morning in 23rd District Judge Neil Caldwell's court here.

TEENAGERS HELP WASHINGTON (AP) — The average time teenagers work around the home is about two hours a day, says the American Council of Life Insurance.

Ms. Anderson was convicted for her role in the slayings of her father and stepmother. Steve and Margie Anderson, whose bodies were found in their Sugar Land home last January 3.

The council said a recent study showed that in homes where the mother was not employed, the average household work done by teenagers ranged from one hour, 12 minutes a day in one-child families to three hours, 24 minutes in families with seven to nine children.
"The accumulated contribution of teenagers added up to a sizable amount of household work time, whether or not their mothers were employed," the council said.

The 35-year-old Lake Charles, La., woman was convicted of hiring a man to kill her father for a $5,000 life insurance policy. She has also been charged in the death of her stepmother.
Ms. Anderson testified against Faryl Granger, of Lafayette, La., who was convicted

Sheriff arrests reporter

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas Morning News reporter went to the county sheriff's office in search of a story and returned with an arrest record — his own.
Deputies arrested reporter Bruce Selcraig, 23, Monday on a criminal trespass charge after he refused to leave a waiting room outside Sheriff Carl Thomas' office. He pleaded innocent.
Thomas said Selcraig had been given the choice of leaving or being arrested. "At his (Selcraig's) request, he was placed under arrest," the sheriff said.

Tom J. Simmons, News executive editor, called the arrest "an outrage." He said the reporter was released about two hours after the arrest. Selcraig spent about half an hour in a jail cell.

Selcraig wrote a copyright story published Saturday in which two unnamed Dallas police officers said the sheriff was intoxicated and caused a disturbance in a local hotel the night before the Texas-Oklahoma football game Oct. 7.

Thomas called a news conference Saturday after the newspaper ran the article and denied the charge.

When asked if the decision to ban Selcraig from the area was related to the story, the sheriff said, "I have no comment on the story that appeared over the weekend... I just didn't want Bruce sitting in my office area."

Lawyers, officials agree on TES probe guidelines

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Electric Service Co. lawyers and Public Utility Commission officials have agreed on tentative guidelines for a sweeping investigation of the utility and its affiliates.
The parties meet Nov. 6 for another pre-hearing conference to firm what issues will be raised following the preliminary agreement reached Monday.
The commission ordered a probe last month of transactions between TESCO, Dallas Power & Light, Texas Power & Light and other companies in the Texas Utilities system.

quest. The staff recommended customer refunds, but the commission granted a temporary $37.9 million hike and ordered the investigation.
TESCO, TP&L and DP&L will defend their business transactions Dec. 18, and the commission and intervenor will present evidence at a separate hearing Jan. 8. Hearing examiner Philip Ricketts said the three-member commission might hear the case instead of relying on an examiner.
John Bell, commission general counsel, said there have been "patently illegal" deals between the affiliates over a Texas Utilities power plant.

TESCO agreed to sell electricity generated from its cheapest natural gas supply to Texas Power & Light, in return for ownership in the Martin Lake plant. Dallas Power & Light also bought an interest in the plant and lignite reserves from TP&L, but not in return for electricity.
Carter Burdette, TESCO attorney, said the company did not object to any inquiries but requested specific issues be raised.
Even if specific questions are raised, Bell replied, the company still must prove its transactions are proper.
"It's not upon the staff or upon the intervenors to prove there's something wrong," he said. "If anything improper is found, this is notice to the companies that refunds would be ordered and that's a good possibility."

Bell said he wants to look at the Martin Lake power plant agreements, lignite and uranium reserve transactions, interest rates between affiliates, and company depreciation rates.
Municipalities and consumer groups intervening in the case wanted to study all transactions affecting fuel costs. Ricketts said that would be almost impossible.

Texas forecast

By The Associated Press
Dense fog reduced visibility to near zero at Corpus Christi early today and fog was reported over much of the Texas coast.
Across the state a weak cold front, accompanied by light shower activity and only slightly cooler temperatures, moved into the Texas Panhandle.
Forecasts called for cloudy skies, slightly cooler temperatures and widely scattered showers in association with the cold front in the Panhandle and in Northwest Texas. The remainder of the state was to have clear to partly cloudy skies and continued mild temperatures. Highs were to range from the 60s in the Panhandle to the 80s along the coast with most of the state to have readings in the 70s.
Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s with extremes ranging from a chilly 45 at Dalhart and Junction to a mild, pleasant 69 reading at Galveston on the coast.

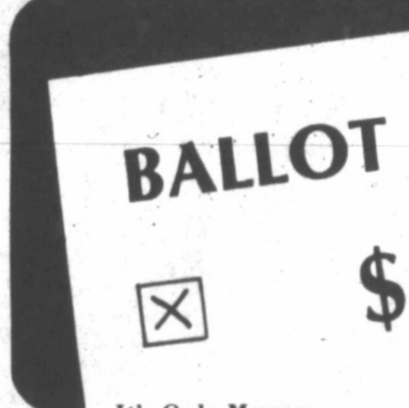

Drugs stolen in break-ins
A drugstore, a clinic and a doctor's office were burglarized Monday night by a person or persons in search of drugs.
William Hite of Heard & Jones Rexall Drug, 114 N. Cuyler, reported someone entered the store by prying open a back door. An unknown amount of drugs were stolen.
The office of Dr. Frank W. Kelley, 516 W. Kentucky, was also forcibly entered, but nothing was reported missing.
The Pampa Clinic, 1002 N. Hobart, was burglarized. Again, an unknown amount of drugs were stolen.
The incidents are being investigated by police.

Commissioner's court to meet

The Gray County Commissioners' Court is scheduled to meet Wednesday at 9 a.m. in the county courtroom of the Gray County Courthouse.
The Commissioners will consider temporary approval to Walnut Creek Estates and Milliron Track No. 1 subdivisions.
Other items on the agenda include:

- consideration of Ray Dudley as assistant election judge in Precinct No. 10.
- payment of salaries and bills as approved by the county auditor.
- consideration of time deposits and transfers as recommended by the county auditor.

FOCUS

It's Only Money

In 1860, Abraham Lincoln spent about $100,000 running for president. In 1972, Richard Nixon spent more than $60 million. While inflation accounts for some of the difference, political candidates in the 1970s are spending much more money on their campaigns than at any other time in history. Federal laws prohibit individuals from contributing more than $1,000 to a candidate during a campaign. But candidates may spend as much of their own money as they wish. Several candidates now running for state governorships or the Senate will have spent millions of dollars each by the time voters cast their ballots a week from today.

DO YOU KNOW — What government agency enforces campaign spending laws?

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter to you, a person wrote, "I am a Catholic and a Mason," stating further that Pope Paul VI issued a ruling in 1974 which gave Catholics permission to join the Masonic Order. The letter was signed, A CATHOLIC WHO IS ALSO A MASON. Your comment was simply, "Thank you. Now I know."

Abby, that Catholic is no longer a Catholic in good standing in the church if he joined the Masonic order. Pope Paul never issued such an order. And now you REALLY do know!

D.T. (A CATHOLIC),
LAS CRUCES, N.M.

DEAR CATHOLIC: Would you take the word of the Most Reverend Fulton J. Sheen, titular archbishop of Newport? Read on:

DEAR ABBY: It was a joy to hear from you and I shall try to answer the question submitted: "Can a Catholic become a Mason and maintain his standing in the Catholic Church?"

Can a Catholic be a Mason? That depends. According to a letter sent to the presidents of the various National Conferences of Catholic Bishops by Cardinal Seper, Prefect of the Vatican's Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, dated July 18, 1974, membership by lay people in Masonic groups is acceptable, provided the groups are not actively hostile to the Church.

Clerics, religious and members of Secular Institutes are still forbidden in every case to join any Masonic associations.

Although Canon 2335 of the current Code of Canon Law of the Church continues to remain on the books, it is to be interpreted in the light of the abovementioned letter.

With warmest personal regards—God Love You!

Sincerely,
Fulton J. Sheen

DEAR ABBY: I know a guy who is so conceited it's pitiful. He carries a small mirror in his pocket along with his comb, and every few minutes checks his hair and runs a comb through it.

It think it's okay for a guy to be satisfied with his looks, but don't you think he's overdoing it?

TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED: A guy (or a gal) who constantly pulls out a mirror is dissatisfied with his (or her) looks. That's insecurity—not conceit.

DEAR ABBY: My bachelor brother recently passed away. (We are five brothers and two sisters living.) Do you think it was proper for the family to buy flowers for his funeral and send the bill to his estate?

Well, that is what they did. I always thought that when you buy flowers for a loved one it should come out of your own pocketbook.

What do you make of this?

LIVING SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Buying flowers for a deceased loved one and then billing his estate for his own flowers is about as chintzy as one can get. It's a good thing your loved one wasn't alive to witness such cheapness. It might have killed him.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I had a five-hour blood sugar test and it showed at the fourth hour that my sugar was low enough to make me feel faint. It is just the opposite of a diabetic person. Would this cause ringing in my ears all the time and, once in a while, dizziness so that objects move and, when I lie down, the room goes around? This lasts for three or four days at a time. The only thing that helps me is Antivert.

I am 5-foot-4 and weigh 140 pounds. I am a 47-year-old female. I am supposed to lose weight, but I find it very hard to do. Would you be kind enough to explain this thing about not enough sugar in my blood?

DEAR READER—You have enough different problems that it would be very difficult to say specifically which problem is causing which symptom. Ringing in the ears and dizziness being treated with Antivert suggests that you have a problem in the little balance canals in the ears. If that's true, these symptoms are not caused by low blood sugar.

You have described true vertigo when you say that the room moves around you. The false sense of motion is true vertigo. It is different from the dizziness people feel when they are faint or at the onset of a fainting episode. To give you more information about this I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-10, Dizziness and Vertigo.

Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

A low blood sugar level can cause a person to feel faint and have other symptoms, but you can have a relatively low blood sugar level and have no symptoms at all. A prudent course would be to eliminate all of the sugars, concentrated sweets and the concentrated starches such as found in white bread and bakery products made with white flour.

If you shift to a diet that eliminates sweets and concentrated starches, this often helps relieve some symptoms. In your case since you want to lose weight, it would also be advisable to cut out obvious sources of fat. I am also sending you The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia, to give you more information about that particular problem.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 25-year-old male and my blood pressure is usually 20 points higher in my right arm than in my left. For example, it is usually 122/82 in my left arm and 145/98 in my right arm. Which reading should I use for my real blood pressure?

DEAR READER—There is often a slight difference in the blood pressure in the two arms, but if the readings you have given me are accurate and truly representative of a difference between the arms, you should have a more detailed medical examination. You picked the correct arm for the one which should be high, and the one which should be low for a relatively uncommon form of congenital heart disease. Actually, it's not a disease of the heart, but a malformation in the arteries.

Such a pressure difference could represent a mild constriction in the arch of the aorta (coarctation of the aorta). The anatomy of the arms is such that this means the full pressure effects from the heart beat would be transmitted to the right arm, but the arteries to the left arm would originate beyond the mild obstruction and would be lower.

I believe you should ask your doctor to refer you to a heart specialist for further examinations. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

When we painted the ceilings in our home we got some of the latex paint on the floor. We've tried to get it off but it hardened. Can you suggest a method for removing it from our oak floor? — IONA

DEAR IONA—If the latex paint has dried and hardened on your floor it is probably there to stay. Such paint should be removed while wet, so keep a damp cloth close at hand while doing such painting. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY—While taking a shower I put a face cloth over the drain, add a small piece of soap and let my feet soak. If the water fills up too much I move the cloth from the drain for a while and then cover it again. There is no wasting of water and your feet feel so good. — ROSALIND

• Shape a rich holiday pie crust by substituting light cream or sour cream for the water called for on a package of pie crust.

• Dress your holiday bird to a tee with this easy-to-do Herbed Cornbread Dressing. Cook 1 pound bulk pork sausage until crumbly. Add 1½ cups chopped onion and 1 cup chopped celery. Cook until tender. Drain fat. Add 4 teaspoons Lawry's Pinch of Herbs, 6 cups coarsely crumbled cornbread, ¼ cup dry sherry and ¼ cup light cream.

Mix lightly; pack dressing loosely in turkey cavity. Left-over dressing may be baked in a covered casserole. Makes 9 cups dressing, enough for a 14 pound turkey.

Despite prime rate hike Money cheap in U.S.

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — After 10 increases this year from a low of 7 1/2 percent the prime rate is now more than 10 percent, but "money is indeed cheap in the United States," says Henry Kaufman.

Ten percent is cheap? Why, 30 years ago it was only 2 percent. And the highest prime in modern times was 12 percent. Does this fellow Kaufman know of what he speaks?

He certainly does. When Henry Kaufman talks about interest rates everyone listens. Kaufman, partner in the Salomon Brothers securities firm, is an authority. Sometimes he is called the authority.

Money is so cheap, he believes, that despite rising rates we haven't seen anything yet. And he so informed the annual convention of the American Bankers Association in Honolulu last week.

"Credit markets are about to experience the most dramatic increase in interest rates since the cyclical rise began in late 1976," he told the bankers.

That's saying a lot, because the prime rate, the lowest rate offered to a bank's best corporate customers, was only 6 1/4 percent back in December 1976. It already has risen sharply. Now, says Kaufman, the rise might quicken.

So why does he say money is cheap at more than 10 percent?

For one thing, because a lot of it is being borrowed.

These corporate and individual borrowers haven't departed their senses, according to Kaufman. They know the after-tax rate is much lower than published rate.

The real cost of money, Kaufman said, is the difference between the inflation and interest rates. In Germany, for example, some loans cost 6 1/2 percent, inflation is 2 1/2 percent, and the real money cost is 4 percent.

It doesn't take an involved calculation, therefore, to determine that in the United States, where the inflation and lending rates nearly match each other, the cost of home mortgage, for example, is low.

Consider, he asks, the financial benefits since 1973 of purchasing and financing the average price new home. In 1973 it sold at about $37,000, but by this September the price had climbed to $65,000.

Assuming a person in the 30 percent tax bracket bought a home in January 1973, he or she would have received a one-year net benefit of $1,100, or an 11.1 percent return on equity after taxes, said Kaufman.

For the person who bought at the beginning of this year, the net benefit after taxes and interest payments was $3,800 or 21.3 percent through September.

Why? Primarily because the prices of homes rose faster than the after-tax cost of borrowed money, according to Kaufman.

So, Kaufman states, money really isn't expensive yet, despite those high interest rates, but it will become so.

Eventually, he forecasts, those interest rates are going to rise high enough to really hurt. Only then apparently will borrowing be discouraged. But by then, it seems, discouragement might be general.

National briefs

DENVER (AP) — Carol Reid and David Murphy had to wait about an hour to get married because the church caught fire.

The wedding service had just begun when firemen burst into the Grace United Methodist Church to put out flames that were licking through the roof. The wooden shingles apparently were ignited by an ember from a house that was intentionally set on fire several hundred yards away by volunteer firefighters who were training, said David Way, chief of the Skyline Volunteer Fire Department. "I don't think anybody else has had a wedding like this," the bride said later. The fire Saturday damaged a 12-by-5-foot area on the roof.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Buyers ready to till the land will find a bargain on the Baltimore-Harford county line at the Little Gunpowder River where a 557-acre farm is up for sale at $1.25 million. The will of the recently deceased owner, William Graham of Baltimore, says it should be sold, even at a lower price, "to one who is likely to farm it," according to attorney Read McCaffery, who's handling the estate, worth about $8 million. A developer familiar with area prices estimated the tract is worth more than twice the asking price, if it could be developed.

ATLANTA (AP) — Calling the United States a "merchant of death," Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., denounced American sales of weapons to other nations in a speech at the Cathedral of Christ the King.

The 58-year-old Jesuit priest said Sunday that morally conscious people are concerned about the buildup in armaments among industrialized countries. He also said Catholics had a responsibility to promote their faith by promoting worldwide justice. "We can't say we don't want to politicize this commitment," he said. "If we allow half the children in the world to die before the age of 5, can we say we are Christians?"

POMONA, N.J. (AP) — A scheduled airliner landed for the first time in about eight years at the Federal Aviation Administration testing base here with eight passengers bound for the new casino resort in Atlantic city.

Allegheny Airlines resumed scheduled weekend service Sunday between Pittsburgh and the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center, about 10 miles from the Boardwalk. Since the passage of casino gambling two years ago and the opening of Atlantic City's first casino last May, a number of other airlines have asked federal permission to resume service.

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States could correct its trade imbalance by increasing exports to the Japanese, says Mike Mansfield, the U.S. ambassador to Japan.

"What strikes me as extremely hard to understand is that in the first six months of this year our imports into Japan increased only 6.2 percent," Mansfield said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press." Mansfield, a former senator from Montana and Democratic majority leader for 14 years, said Japan was trying to do its part by reducing exports of color television sets to the United States by 40 percent and car and steel shipments by 13 and 20 percent respectively.

Stains may be blood of congressman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Are the dark and ugly blotches that stain the marble treads of a Capitol stairway the blood of a mortally wounded ex-congressman?

An 88-year-old legend says they are. In this case, legend may be right.

It was on Feb. 28, 1890 that William Preston Taulbee, 39, until recently a Democratic House member from Kentucky, turned into the dimly lit House staircase. The time was about 1:35 in the afternoon.

Halfway down, Taulbee met the man he blamed for discrediting him: Charles Kincaid, 35, a reporter for the Louisville Times.

Kincaid had a pistol in his hand. In a few seconds there was blood on the stairs.

It was the second time that day the two had met.

By most accounts their feud had begun two years before with a series of articles in which Kincaid linked Taulbee to a woman in a government office.

Kincaid claimed he had repeatedly offered Taulbee space to refute the allegations but had been ignored.

When the two Kentuckians encountered each other just outside the House chamber before noon on Feb. 28, Taulbee demanded Kincaid speak with him. Kincaid later claimed Taulbee grabbed him by the ear. Rumor said it was Kincaid's nose that was grabbed. Inquest witnesses said Taulbee, a 6-footer described as rawboned, strong and sinewy, grasped Kincaid's shoulder and the lapel of his coat.

"I am not armed," said Kincaid, according to the Washington Post. Kincaid was described as 5-foot-3, frail, nervous and ailing.

"Then you had better be," the former House member reportedly replied, and the two separated.

When they met again there was little time for words.

The House doorkeeper was on the stair with Taulbee and saw Kincaid. He later gave this account to The Washington Evening Star:

"Kincaid said, 'Mr. Taulbee, you can see me now.' As he said this he fired a pistol and shot Taulbee beneath the left eye. Taulbee cried out 'Oh' and some of the blood from his wound spurted over my left hand.

"I turned to Kincaid and said, 'For God's sake... don't shoot any more.' We walked down to the foot of the stairs and there I heard Kincaid say, 'I am the man that shot him.' Taulbee lingered for 11 days.

When brought to trial in 1891, Kincaid pleaded self-defense and was acquitted. Decades later, Taulbee's son, John, described the trial as "a farce" and claimed that witnesses were "bought off."

After 88 years no one is willing to swear that the dark stains in the porous marble steps are blood. But the Capitol architect says they are not natural and were "undoubtedly" caused by a liquid.

John Taulbee had his own unscientific explanation: "It is almost impossible to remove blood stains when they are left by a person who has been murdered."

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat wants members of Parliament from his National Democratic Party to join a new opposition party to ensure an "honest opposition," the newspaper Al-Ahram reported today.

Sadat asked for volunteers to join the Socialist Labor Party established by Mustafa Shoukry, a former Cabinet member. Any new party must have 20 members in Parliament to be recognized.

Under a law engineered by Sadat, anyone who had "poisoned" Egypt's political atmosphere is banned from political activity. This immobilizes many Sadat opponents. Sadat's party has 300 members in the 360-seat Parliament.

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A provincial judge acquitted 10 persons, including a former town mayor and seven policemen, in the killing of four policemen because he could not determine which of them was guilty, says the Philippine News Agency.

"It is better to acquit a man... even though he may in reality be guilty than to confine in the penitentiary a person who may be innocent," the agency quoted Judge Amante Alconcel of Nueva Ecija province, north of Manila, as saying.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP) — Only 22.7 percent of Spain's Basque populations speak the local language, says the Academy of the Basque Language. The survey said there are 632,301 Basque-speaking people in the three-province northern region and neighboring Navarre province, which have a combined population of 2.78 million.

There is an active Basque separatist movement in the region led by nationalists who seek independence for the area.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Truck driver Ronnie Meyer is under treatment here for an unusual drinking problem.

Meyer, 23, has cut his daily intake of his favorite beverage — water — to about 26 quarts a day during the hospital treatment.

He told newspapers his thirst increased four years ago after a car accident left him unconscious for four days.

"When I woke up I had this terrible thirst," he said. "I just drank and drank and drank.

but I couldn't quench my thirst. My consumption was between 70 and 80 liters a day, plus cool drinks and tea or coffee. The doctor said my pituitary gland wasn't producing a certain kind of hormone."

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Some 2.24 million Indians work illegally as bonded laborers trying to work off debts under conditions little better than slavery, says a government-sponsored report.

The report, based on a five-month study by the Gandhi Peace Foundation and the National Labor Institute said bonded labor flourishes in 10 of India's 22 states.

Some 40 percent of those in bondage, most of whom are farm workers, originally owed their employers less than $5, the report said. But high interest rates and low wages, often less than $10 a month, keep them trying to work their way out of debt for years.

On the light side

My Fair Cameraman
PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP) — If the Florida Supreme Court eventually rejects a permanent rule allowing cameras in the courtroom, one photographer still will have a justice's permission to click.

In a test of trial camera coverage, photographer Vern Miller's work rendered "a musical quality" to courtroom proceedings in a murder case, said Justice James Adkins.

It will be several months before the high court rules on cameras in courtrooms, but Adkins recently approved a legal name change for the Panama City News-Herald cameraman.

"As a matter of great public interest, the court is of the opinion that his unusual ability should be recognized by changing his name from Vern Miller to Vern 'Click' Miller," Adkins said.

Owl Fouled Up

SANDUSKY, Mich. (AP) — If the switch from daylight-saving time to Eastern Standard Time confused you, consider the plight of people in this Michigan town and one poor owl.

Detroit Edison officials say the owl flew into steel wiring in a main transmitter around 5:30 a.m. Sunday, knocking out power to the village of 2,100 for about two hours.

Sunday morning, people who didn't set their clocks back an hour before retiring Saturday night likely did some head-scratching to figure out just what time it really was.

There's been no word on the owl's condition, or whether anybody gives a hoot.

The Fast Fist of Justice

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A masked gunman who tried to hold up a tavern didn't have to wait out the long legal process for his punishment. A 235-pound rugby player gave it to him on the spot.

Authorities said the gunman entered Eagan's Bar in Kansas City Friday night and pointed a .38-caliber pistol at the head of 30-year-old Ray Ritchie, a 6-footer who plays rugby for the Kansas City Blues.

Instead of being intimidated, Ritchie put his fist into the gunman's jaw. Bar patrons said they had to intervene to save the assailant.

James Valiant, 36, of Columbia was charged with a string of crimes including assault with intent to kill. His bond was set at $10,000.

Consumer group looks at Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader's Congress-monitoring group gives Ohio's Democratic Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y.; and Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., high marks in its report card on the 1978 congressional session.

Public Citizen's Congress Watch, in issuing its ratings Saturday, singled out Rep. Arlan Stangeland, R-Minn., as the man with the worst voting record in what it called a "Corporate Congress." Stangeland received a score of 3 percent.

Retiring Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., had the lowest score in the Senate, 10 percent.

Metzenbaum, Drinan and Ms. Holtzman had scores of 98 percent.

The Nader group compiled its ratings on the basis of 40 votes on consumer protection legislation, government "reform," taxes, energy and "waste-subsidy."

Stangeland later accused Nader of attempting "to do a hatchet job on me." He said he voted against many consumer proposals because he considered them inflationary.

Rating members of Congress as having voted "right" or "wrong" has become an increasingly popular pastime in recent years, and Nader's group claimed credit for producing the first "major voting index" of the Congress that adjourned two weeks ago.

Spokesmen for many groups say such ratings are a useful way of stepping up pressure on House and Senate members. In addition, the spokesmen say the report cards generate favorable publicity for their own organizations.

The League of Conservation Voters also released its report card Saturday, evaluating the Senate solely on the basis of votes on environmental questions during the two years of the 95th Congress.

It gave Sen. Muriel Humphrey a 98 percent approval rating, the highest among senators. Ms. Humphrey, who succeeded her late husband, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, in office, served for only part of one year.

Sens. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., and John Tower, R-Texas, scored zero in the ratings.

The group, which said President Carter took stronger environmental stands than did the Senate, said the average score for all senators on 34 issues was 52 percent.

Had Carter been voting in the Senate, his score would have been 92 percent based on the administration's stated positions, the group said.

In addition, The League of Conservation Voters released a detailed accounting of the political donations it makes.

The 1978 report shows contributions of $72,000 to 30 candidates for the House and Senate and various gubernatorial posts.

Rep. Jim Weaver, D-Ore., a member of both the House interior and agriculture committees, received $9,500, the largest contribution. A spokesman said the money was raised through a fund-raising mailing the league distributed on Weaver's behalf.

Nader's organization said business lobbyists were successful in blocking several "consumer bills" during the congressional session.

Mark Green, director of Congress Watch, said business success could be traced to money spent on lobbying, an anti-bureaucracy mood in the Congress and Republican "cohesion."

Little Richard—gone from the road

DALLAS (AP) — It happens to him all the time now. Folks are introduced to Little Richard, they start to shake hands and miss a beat.

"Who?" they ask of the tall man in a rust-colored suit.

"Naw."

"Hi," he says, shifting his Bible and extending his hand. "God bless you."

It throws them. Where, they ask, is the glistening, nappy pompadour, the eyeliner, the silver cape that became the trademark of the 1950s piano-pounding rock 'n' roller?

Gone for three years now, he says. Gone, since he discovered Christ and went on the road to "spread His beautiful word."

As if to show he's sincere, Richard wryly admits the pompadour wasn't even his to begin with.

"I didn't grow it, I just went to the store and bought it," he hooted, his pencil-thin moustache disappearing behind the split of his mouth.

The story of Richard's mid-life turnabout (he's 45) is not unique. With no big hits since the late 1950s, he spent the 1960s and early 1970s on the road pumping out his old hits, "Tootie Fruitie," "Long Tall Sally," "Lucille," "Jenny Jenny" and "Good Golly Miss Molly."

But the price of trying to stay near the top came high for Richard Penniman, the third of 12 children.

"I was using dope, marijuana, angel dust, cocaine and heroin with pills and drinking," he said. "All I wanted to do was have orgies, get high and sing all my old hits."

Then, within the span of a year, three friends and a younger brother died suddenly. He turned to God.

But people, especially here in this stronghold of religious conservatism, remain skeptical. A few still remember Richard's "conversion" more than 20 years ago when, after a harrowing flight over Australia, he "made a deal with God." The story became more notorious when he tossed a fistful of rings off a ferry to prove his sincerity to a band member.

"I took my eyes off Jesus," he explains of the earlier, temporary conversion. "I was really young then. It wasn't the message, it was me. God has really done something for me. This is the truth."

"Rock 'n' roll doesn't glorify God. You can't drink out of God's cup and the devil's cup at the same time," he says. "I was one of the pioneers of that music, one of the builders. I know what the blocks are made of because I built them."

At age seven, he was singing on the streets of his native Macon, Ga., for coins. At 14, he was the lead singer in his church choir. He won a talent contest in 1951, quickly signed a record contract, cut two records and just as quickly, dropped from sight.

"People aren't skeptical of me because I'm not charging money for God. I go for Jesus. 'Obey God rather than man. That's Acts 5:29,'" he intoned, thumbing through the pages. "Let's make sure that text is right. I can't be quoting the wrong text."

Washington briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Charles D. Ferris of the Federal Communications Commission says public broadcasting, by setting an example for commercial broadcasters, may do more to enrich U.S. broadcasting than the FCC can or should.

"This is not only because public radio and television itself offers an alternative program choice, but also because you show the public what all broadcasting can provide," Ferris said Sunday in a keynote speech to the annual convention of the Association of Educational Broadcasters here.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Live radio coverage by National Public Radio of the House Select Committee on Assassinations hearings on the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. will continue when the hearings resume Nov. 9, NPR has announced.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arms Limitation Treaty, if an agreement can be reached with the Soviet Union.

"There are those who believe — and who believe sincerely — that you shouldn't be doing business with the devil," Warnke says. "I feel this is more emotional than rational, and I think most senators are more rational than emotional."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is deciding whether to review a ruling by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that set aside a jury award of $2.25 million against Whirlpool Corp. and Sears, Roebuck & Co. in an anti-trust action brought by Oreck Corp.

Oreck, a former distributor of Whirlpool vacuum cleaners, contended that Whirlpool and Sears had tried to exclude it from distributing Whirlpool vacuum cleaners on the American and Canadian markets.

Whirlpool sells vacuums under its own label, but it also sells more than 90 percent of its production to Sears, the world's largest retailer, for sale under the Kenmore label.

Names in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — The engagement lasted "so long I can't remember," said actress Jaclyn Smith. But it ended in seven minutes when the co-star of television's "Charlie's Angels" married actor Dennis Cole in a brief ceremony.

About 25 persons, including Kate Jackson, a "Charlie's Angels" co-star, attended the wedding Sunday in Marble Collegiate Church on Fifth Avenue. Dr. Arthur Caliendo, a pastor at the interdenominational church run by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, officiated at the service.

Cole, 38, said he considered himself a lucky man and added, "She's a beautiful woman."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The best seats went for $500, but the singer requested 1,000 tickets be priced at $5 apiece for the city's policemen and

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

November 1, 1978
Be ready to grasp unexpected chances that could give you an opportunity to advance your self-interests this coming year. Several things close to the heart are in store for you.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You need to share your day with someone who is interested in doing different and unusual things. Find a pal who also wants a change. Find out to whom you're romantically-susceptible by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're always seeking a new adventure or experience, but today you're even more attracted to exploring strange, unfamiliar things.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If an associate offers to do something for you today, stand clear. Let him do it his way. His methods and success may astonish you.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Events should take a startling turn when an elusive goal suddenly falls into your lap today. It'll happen when you're not looking.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Striking like a bolt of lightning, the missing piece of a puzzle will suddenly be presented to you. You'll recognize it when it hits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A chance to have something you didn't plan on but would love to have may be offered to you today by someone quite fond of you. Take advantage of it.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If someone asks to team up with you today, don't be reticent. This person likes you very much and will turn out to be a good cohort.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Harmony and order could be brought to a sticky situation you've been working on through a unique idea you get today. Give your brainstorm a chance to prove itself.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some of the nicest things that happen to you today occur from the least probable sources. You'll find lots to smile and laugh about.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Disruptions in your routine could give you an excuse to break away and do something for yourself. You couldn't have planned the day better.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Having a busy schedule today and going to a lot of new places will prove to be quite enjoyable. There's a strong chance you'll meet someone you'll like very much.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An unexpected shift in events could turn into something profitable if you're on your toes today. Think dollars and cents.

Bartender's boots beat Rams

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Tim Mazzetti, an unknown barkeep in a Philadelphia pub three weeks ago, can't believe what's happened to him since he turned in his apron for an Atlanta Falcons uniform.

His teammates, however, believe.

Especially after the 23-year-old placekicker booted five field goals Monday night to power the Falcons to a 15-7 National Football League victory over the Los Angeles Rams in the nationally televised game.

"Mazzetti is just super. He's the difference now," said defensive end Jeff Mellow. "He's really been a great lift for us."

Fired by a crowd of 57,250, the Atlanta defense blocked a punt, intercepted two Pat Haden passes, stopped a fourth-down Los Angeles gamble at midfield and recovered a fumble, with each big play preceding a Mazzetti field goal.

Mazzetti, signed as a free agent three weeks ago after failing with three other NFL clubs, kicked a game-winning field goal against San Francisco last week with only one second remaining.

"I don't know what I've done to deserve this," said Mazzetti, who tied a club record with his boots of 21, 37, 30, 26 and 37 yards. "It's too much. I can't believe it. It was just my day today."

"After I made the first two, I felt like I couldn't miss. Last week, I felt like I wasn't really in control of the situation. I was really nervous."

His kicks lifted the Falcons to a 5-4 record, their third triumph in a row, and sent the Rams to their second consecutive defeat after seven victories. Atlanta is now two games behind Los Angeles in the Western Division.

Mazzetti put the Falcons ahead to stay at 9-7 four seconds into the final quarter after the Rams gambled on fourth down, needing only a foot, and failed.

The Rams got their only score on the first play of the second quarter when Haden hit Ron Jessie on a 10-yard scoring pass.

FORMER ALL-PRO running back Duane Thomas sits beside an indoor pool at a Green Bay motel, where he had been staying the past week following a tryout with the Packers last Monday. The Packers are under investigation by the commissioner's office for violating the NFL's "stashing rule."

Top eight college teams retain AP poll positions

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The top eight teams, led by unbeaten Oklahoma and Penn State, have retained their positions in The Associated Press college football poll, while UCLA and Houston rounded out the Top Ten and Navy surged from 18th place to 11th.

Arizona State and Missouri were the biggest losers, dropping out of the ratings, while Arkansas slipped from ninth place to 17th and Michigan State made the Top Twenty for the first time this season.

Oklahoma, a 56-19 winner over Kansas State, received 52 of 62 first-place votes and 1,228 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. The Sooners remained No. 1 for the sixth week in a row.

Penn State was the runnerup for the third consecutive week. The Nittany Lions received the other 10 first-place votes and 1,168 points following a 49-21 trouncing of West Virginia. Last week, with 64 voters submitting their ballots, Oklahoma's lead was 1,270-1,208.

Alabama, a 35-0 victor over Virginia Tech, was third with 1,074 points, followed by Nebraska with 965 points following a 22-14 victory over Oklahoma State.

Maryland, one of the nation's four unbeaten-untied major teams — Navy is the fourth one — was fifth with 966 points for a 27-0 blanking of Duke. The Terrapins were trailed by Southern California, which downed California 42-17 and received 948 points.

Texas, which turned back Southern Methodist 22-3, received 835 points for seventh place while No. 8 Michigan earned 783 points for a 42-10 rout of Minnesota.

Arkansas' 20-9 loss to Houston enabled UCLA, which beat Arizona 24-14, to move up from 10th to ninth with 761 points, while Houston went from 11th to 10th with 759 points.

The Second Ten consists of Navy, Louisiana State, Georgia, Purdue, Notre Dame, Clemson, Arkansas, Michigan State, Pittsburgh and Washington.

Last week, it was Houston, Arizona State, Missouri, LSU, Pitt, Georgia, Purdue, Navy, Notre Dame and Clemson, but Arizona State lost to Washington 41-7 while Colorado edged Missouri 28-27. Michigan State joined the Top Twenty by blasting Wisconsin 55-2 and Washington reappeared after a five-week absence.

Redskin to return next week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins running back Mike Thomas says he intends to return to action next week against the Baltimore Colts after missing the last three games because of a foot injury.

Thomas said Monday, "The foot's a whole lot better and I'm ready to roll."

Some people in the Redskin organization had said privately that the star running back's injury — a small crack in a bone in his foot — was not as serious as Thomas contended it was.

SWC tourney goes south

DALLAS (AP) — The 1980 post-season Southwest Conference basketball classic will be held in San Antonio's 16,097 seat Convention Center Arena.

The league granted Baylor a waiver from the maximum number of baseball games allowed so that the Bears could play games with a Japanese university touring America next spring.

Arkansas will be allowed to televise road conference games live on commercial television stations in Dallas during the 1979 season.

The conference also scheduled its spring business meeting for The Woodlands near Conroe, Texas, next May 6-9.

Thomas center of storm

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Duane Thomas, described as sullen, uncooperative and unmanageable when he was a star running back with the Dallas Cowboys, is in a storm center again — this time apparently as an unwitting partner in a controversy involving the Green Bay Packers.

Thomas recently completed a tryout with the Packers, and the way the National Football League club conducted it is under investigation by NFL headquarters.

Disclosure of the investigation Monday has Packer Coach and General Manager Bart Starr livid. His team had to forfeit a fourth-round draft choice last May and, if NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle decides they have violated another rule, could lose another pick.

Starr vented his anger Monday afternoon on the four reporters who pursued the story involving Thomas and learned of the investigation.

The former Packer quarterback said rule breaking is not uncommon as clubs seek a competitive edge. He also said that while the Packers may have erred, they are not cheaters.

"There are bloodthirsty bastards out there trying to get an edge, working out guys in pads and with their teams," Starr said. "They're cheating. We don't cheat. But we're going to go to the limit within the rules and we're going to bend them within the framework."

Thomas was cut by the Cowboys before the 1976 season.

equipment and facilities only that single day.

Thomas was tested here a week ago Monday. And while he and Starr insist he has had to pay his own way for his stay here since that time and has been working out strictly on his own, Thomas was seen walking into the Packers' Lambeau Field training room Monday morning.

An angry Starr conceded the team may have erred by allowing Thomas use of facilities and equipment beyond his official trial date. He told the four reporters who pursued the story that if they printed it, they no longer would be welcome in the Packer offices or perhaps in the locker room.

"You can print what you want, but I want you to understand if you do and it costs us a draft choice, your asses will not come through this door again," he said.

The reporters are Mike O'Brien of The Associated Press Milwaukee Bureau, Cliff Christ of the Green Bay Press-Gazette, Dale Hofmann of the Milwaukee Sentinel and Dave Begel of the Milwaukee Journal.

The stashing rule means free agents such as Thomas who try out with a club may work out for one day only, their expenses can't be paid for more than the one day, and they can use club

Gridders to continue

BOWLEGS, Okla. (AP) — The 29 members of the Bowlegs High School football team have voted to play their last two games this year as a memorial to a teammate who died last week after suffering an apparently game-related injury.

A special community meeting was called Monday night after the death Friday of 16-year-old Jesse Kean. Superintendent Harold Butler said about 80 Bowlegs area residents who attended the meeting and Seminole County School Board members voted to back the decision of the players and coaches on whether to continue the season.

The coaches and players went into the high school's gym's locker room, discussed the situation and voted unanimously to continue the season.

"They felt it was what their teammate would have wanted them to do," Butler said.

The board also approved a request from the football team that the proceeds of the next Bowlegs football game go to the Kean family as a tribute to the young player. They will also seek to have the concession stand proceeds donated.

Butler said the meeting was called on two issues. He said the first was to explain the previous injury to Kean and decisions made to allow the player to return to his defensive cornerback position Friday night.

GREEN GRASS NOT ENOUGH

Cows need help. Grass cannot supply their nutrient needs. Cows must produce milk and build another calf for next year. They cannot consume enough grass to meet nutrient needs even when enough grass is available. Cows require additional source of energy ... phosphorus ... calcium ... vitamin A... and trace minerals to utilize the grass they consume.

Your cow's nutrient needs almost DOUBLE the day she calves ... she must feed her calf ... rebuild body condition ... and rebreed.

Purina Beef Cow Checkers let you help your cow produce stronger calves ready to grow ... for more return.

Group hitting trail in support of candidates

By The Associated Press
Black and Mexican-American groups will be hitting the campaign trail in support of Texas candidates before voters get to the polls in the Nov. 7 general election.

More than 20 Mexican-Americans in the Texas Legislature announced Monday a campaign tour to back Democratic gubernatorial candidate John Hill and Senate hopeful Bob Krueger. The campaigners will travel to seven cities.

The Texas Legislative Black Caucus in Austin said it was stepping up its support of Hill for governor with a "Campaign Stomp" through Texas. The six-day tour will take the caucus and supporters to 10 cities.

Meanwhile, three state representatives who are supporters of Democrat Mark White for attorney general asked Republican candidate Jim Baker of Houston to withdraw a Spanish radio advertisement.

State Reps. Hugo Berlanga and Arnold Gonzales of Corpus Christi and Irma Rangel of Kingsville said the ad incorrectly alleges that the Democratic Party formed a committee in the primary election to stop support for White.

Baker said in Sherman if anyone had doubt about differences between the two attorney general candidates they should look at the latest list of contributions.

"The bulk of my opponent's contributions have come from special interest groups," Baker said. "Many of the groups are directly affected by the attorney general's actions or powers and to me that spells a clear conflict of interest."

White said in Austin he was taking nothing for granted and would campaign as hard as he could. He said he planned to visit 47 cities during the week.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said in Waco Monday that the visit of Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Patricia Harris to Texas was "the latest in a long parade of administration officials to come to Texas and try to tell Texans how to vote in the Senate race."

"As many Texans may recall, Mrs. Harris has consistently opposed housing and urban development programs designed to help the cities of Texas," the Republican Senate candidate said. "Now she is trying to tell the people of Texas to support my opponent."

In Marlin, students and about 100 other persons listened to Tower say he favored the two-party system.

Krueger announced in Pasadena that the mayors of 76 Texas cities have endorsed his race for the Senate.

"We feel that he is a young man on the move and can best serve the interests of the state," said a statement signed by the mayors. "The bureaucratic system is creating more agencies and red tape than municipalities can bear. We feel that Bob Krueger will help us in Washington to see that this bureaucratic red tape is eliminated and by this serve the cities of Texas in a beneficial way."

NON-PRISONER CAUGHT
LEWES, England (AP)—When police captured Terry O'Neill, 46, going over the wall of the prison in this Sussex town recently they thought he was an escaping prisoner.
But O'Neill, who is homeless, was leaving after having broken into the prison the night before for somewhere to sleep.
