Iranian strikes continue

By PARVIZ RAEIN
Associated Press Writer
TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Opposition leader Karim Sanjaby declared today that crippling strikes will continue against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and ruled out any possibility of a deal with the shah or his military government to end Iran's political upheaval.

"We're not prepared to form a provisional government and we're not going to participate in any coalition until our demands are met," he told reporters at Tehran Airport after returning from two weeks of talks with exiled Moslem holy leader Ayatollah Khomeini in Paris.

Sanjaby declined to disclose what he discussed with Khomeini, but said the Moslem leader's militant stand against the shah and his 37 years of absolute rule in Iran "has not changed."

Sanjaby, head of the National Front opposition coalition, said he now plans to discuss new moves with other opposition leaders in Tehran and that "we will announce any changes in strategy later." He did not elaborate.

Sanjaby, who has proposed a national referendum to decide if Iran's monarchy should continue, stressed in a statement before leaving the French capital that the shah already "recognizes the revolutionary character" of the opposition drive.

Some 37,000 oil industry workers have joined a wave of strikes against the shah, and their two-week-old walkout has cut Iran's all-important petroleum production by two-thirds or more. Iran supplies about 10 percent of the world's needs, and the strike is costing the shah's treasury some $60 million daily in lost exports.

Between 1,000 and 2,000 persons have been killed in political violence since January. The shah declared martial law Sept. 8 and then appointed his chief of staff prime minister Monday after the civilian administration collapsed in the face of renewed rioting.

The opposition includes leftist students, Western-education liberals and other dissidents demanding more political freedoms. But the driving force is the country's Shiite Moslems, the predominant sect in this overwhelmingly Islamic nation.

Their leaders bitterly oppose the shah's Westernizing reforms and alleged tolerance of corruption.

Dozens of political figures have been arrested by the shah's police in the last few days in an effort to defuse some of the opposition charges, and on Thursday the anti-corruption drive touched the lower house of the Iranian Parliament.

The shah had the immunity of Deputy Mansur Yasini lifted so he could be prosecuted for alleged industrial profiteering.

Of Legionnaires disease Two separate forms found

ATLANTA (AP) — Medical researchers now know of two separate forms of Legionnaires disease — one of which is not fatal — says the chief investigator studying the disease.

Both forms of the disease are caused by the same as-yet unnamed bacterium, says Dr. David Fraser of the National Center for Disease Control.

So far this year, 1,054 cases of Legionnaires disease have been reported in the United States. Fraser said researchers hope a new reporting system will help determine the extent and variety of the bacterial infection.

One form of the disease is the respiratory infection with pneumonia that surfaced in Philadelphia about the time of a state American Legion convention in 1976. Twenty-nine persons died in the outbreak, and the disease got a name.

That form "has a very high death rate, about 15 percent," Fraser said, but proper treatment can cut that rate to from 3 percent to 5 percent.

The other form shows up as headache, fever and muscle ache, and is not fatal. "It looks like a case of the flu — it really does," Fraser said. The second form, which has caused no known deaths, is sometimes referred to as Pontiac fever — from a 1968 outbreak in Pontiac, Mich.

Researchers are also studying what they call the Togus strain, a disease reported in Maine this year that causes virtually the same symptoms as the Legionnaires disease found in Philadelphia. It is caused by a different bacterium, the CDC has reported.

The new national reporting system is aimed at finding other possible variations of the disease, Fraser said.

"Without any doubt we'll have a much better handle on it by the end of next year," CDC spokesman Don Berreth said. "We'll know where it tends to show up and the seasonality of the disease."

Based on reported outbreaks, it appears to be a late summer-early fall disease," he said. Fraser and Berreth made their comments in interviews Thursday.

Gray County value increases for 1979

By KATHY BURR
Pampa News Staff
The 1979 budget was the primary area of concern at this morning's meeting of the Gray County Commissioners Court.

The value of Gray County has increased $7,835,960, according to Judge Don Hinton. The value placed on the county for 1979 is $131,211,490.

Hinton also told the court a total of $2,966,022.20 is left from the 1978 budget in excess revenue. Total expenditures from 1978 total $2,276,206.67.

There has been an overall increase in the 1979 budget of $120,558.39. Hinton attributed the hike to an increase in salaries and insurance premiums.

"In May we reduced the cent figures on the jury fund to one cent each bringing the total to 78 cents to the general fund," Hinton added this is a fund that is heavily leaned upon.

He also said the courthouse and jail funds are in good shape. According to Hinton at the end of 1979 the county budget should have an end balance of approximately $700,000.

He emphasized that portions of this $700,000 can only be used for specific areas, and the money cannot be spent on another project.

He also spoke of the road and bridge fund.

"Each year those funds are by statute 15 cents and 30 cents respectively — they cannot be higher — but inflation is slowly eating into that."

Approximately $26,900 has been budgeted for welfare. Hinton told the commissioners this figure may need to be amended if the hospital is leased to American Medical Inc.

Last year there was approximately $180,000 in the general revenue sharing fund. This year a total of $138,647 has been allocated towards that fund. There is a total of $279,000 in total resources and $233,000 in total expenditures in general revenue sharing.

The Pampa fire department increased their expenditures to $25,600.

The Salvation Army has $5,600 allocated to them in June. Hinton said this money goes toward the rents and fuel bills of needy people.

There is $50,000 in revenue sharing for miscellaneous expenses. Hinton told the commissioners that a requirement has been made to make provisions for handicapped people.

He added the handicapped have access to the Court House and the White Deer Land Museum, but something will have to be done about the court house annex.

The commissioners court also canvassed the election returns and accepted them as they were.

The court will meet again Wednesday at 9 a. m. to consider a referendum on leasing the hospital.

Hinton ask the court to think about a referendum and give it serious consideration. He said he would check with AMI to see if they will extend the final date.

Hinton said a referendum could be held on Dec. 15 or 16, and there are a possible four items that could go on the referendum.

Other items on the agenda include considering a $122,000 grant offer for the airport and the hiring of an assistant county extension agent in agriculture.

The board will also hold a budget hearing and will consider the Texas Association of County dues.

Ford kept engine defect from public

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ford Motor Company manufactured up to 1.8 million cars from 1974 to 1978 with a costly engine defect, then kept the problem from consumers even after learning of it, the Federal Trade Commission staff charges.

The allegation is in a document filed without public announcement this week in a case the FTC previously launched against Ford.

The staff charge that improper lubrication of the camshaft can cause premature wear to it and to the rocker arm assembly makes no allegation that the potential problem is a safety defect.

However, it said the estimated cost of repairs, if paid for by the car owner, would be $226.

The staff said the premature wear, which could lead to more serious engine problems, occurs in many of the 1.8 million Ford Motor Co.

vehicles with four-cylinder 2.3-liter engines manufactured in the five model years. This is one of Ford's most popular engines, used in such cars as the Pinto, Mustang, Capri and Bobcat.

"Vehicles have been failing as early as the first 163 miles of service" because of the camshaft-rocker arm problem, said the document, filed by lawyers for the FTC's consumer protection bureau. "The defect substantially affects the durability, reliability or performance of affected vehicles," it said.

The document urges the five-member commission to authorize a federal suit to seek an immediate injunction forcing the company to notify owners of cars that may have the alleged defect.

George Trainor, spokesman for Ford's parts and service division, said in a telephone interview. "Our position is that the whole subject of what we refer to as the company's 'good will program' is now a matter of litigation with the FTC and it would be inappropriate for us to discuss any facet at the moment."

The FTC staff alleged that Ford knew of the problem at least by 1976. It does not say what, if anything, Ford did to correct the problem after it learned of it or how many engines were manufactured after the problem became known to the company.

After realizing the problem, the company did tell Ford dealers to repair affected cars at no charge, but many dealers still did not perform the work because they spent more in doing the repairs than they could recover from the manufacturer, the staff said.

Normally, a new-car warranty extends for 12,000 miles or 12 months, but the manufacturer told dealers to do repairs on cars with the problem up to 36,000 miles or 36 months, the staff said.

The staff said the dealers were not told to inform customers of the defect, only to repair the problem free of charge.

"The program is currently disclosed only to Ford dealers, who may have little incentive to pass such information to consumers," the staff said.

The staff said it plans to produce affidavits from customers showing they are unaware of the repair program even after going to Ford dealers for camshaft service.

Carter trying to overcome snag

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, trying to overcome a snag in the Mideast peace talks, says Egypt and Israel should put aside differences over how to link peace between them to future negotiations on a more-detailed settlement.

The issue is one of the few remaining obstacles to completion of a treaty.

Carter, in a Kansas City news conference Thursday, called on the two sides to end their haggling and accept the treaty preamble, which commits them to comprehensive negotiations following the treaty talks.

The president, who said the preamble language was "adequate," seemed to be coming down on the side of Egypt, although he said, "We're not trying to impose our will."

Conference sources said the negotiations were continuing but that no sessions were scheduled in advance for today.

And Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Thursday at a state dinner in Toronto that although he remains confident an agreement can be reached, it may take additional days or even weeks of negotiation.

Carter said there was "never any doubt" that the Camp David agreement looked toward reaching "a comprehensive peace settlement that includes not just an isolated treaty between Israel and Egypt but a continuation of a solution for the West Bank and Gaza Strip and ultimately for the Golan Heights as well."

Israeli negotiators, in a meeting Wednesday with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, proposed that the provision linking the two sets of negotiations be removed, or at least softened.

Egyptian negotiators, meanwhile, called on Vance after Carter's news conference. According to Egyptian sources, they told him they agreed with Carter that the language was acceptable, but that they prefer it to be strengthened.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is insisting on a strong link to negotiations over the West Bank and Gaza because it would show he is protecting the 1.1 million Palestinian Arabs who live in the Israeli-occupied territories.

Sadat also is sensitive to any impression that he has abandoned the other Arab countries in coming to terms with Israel.

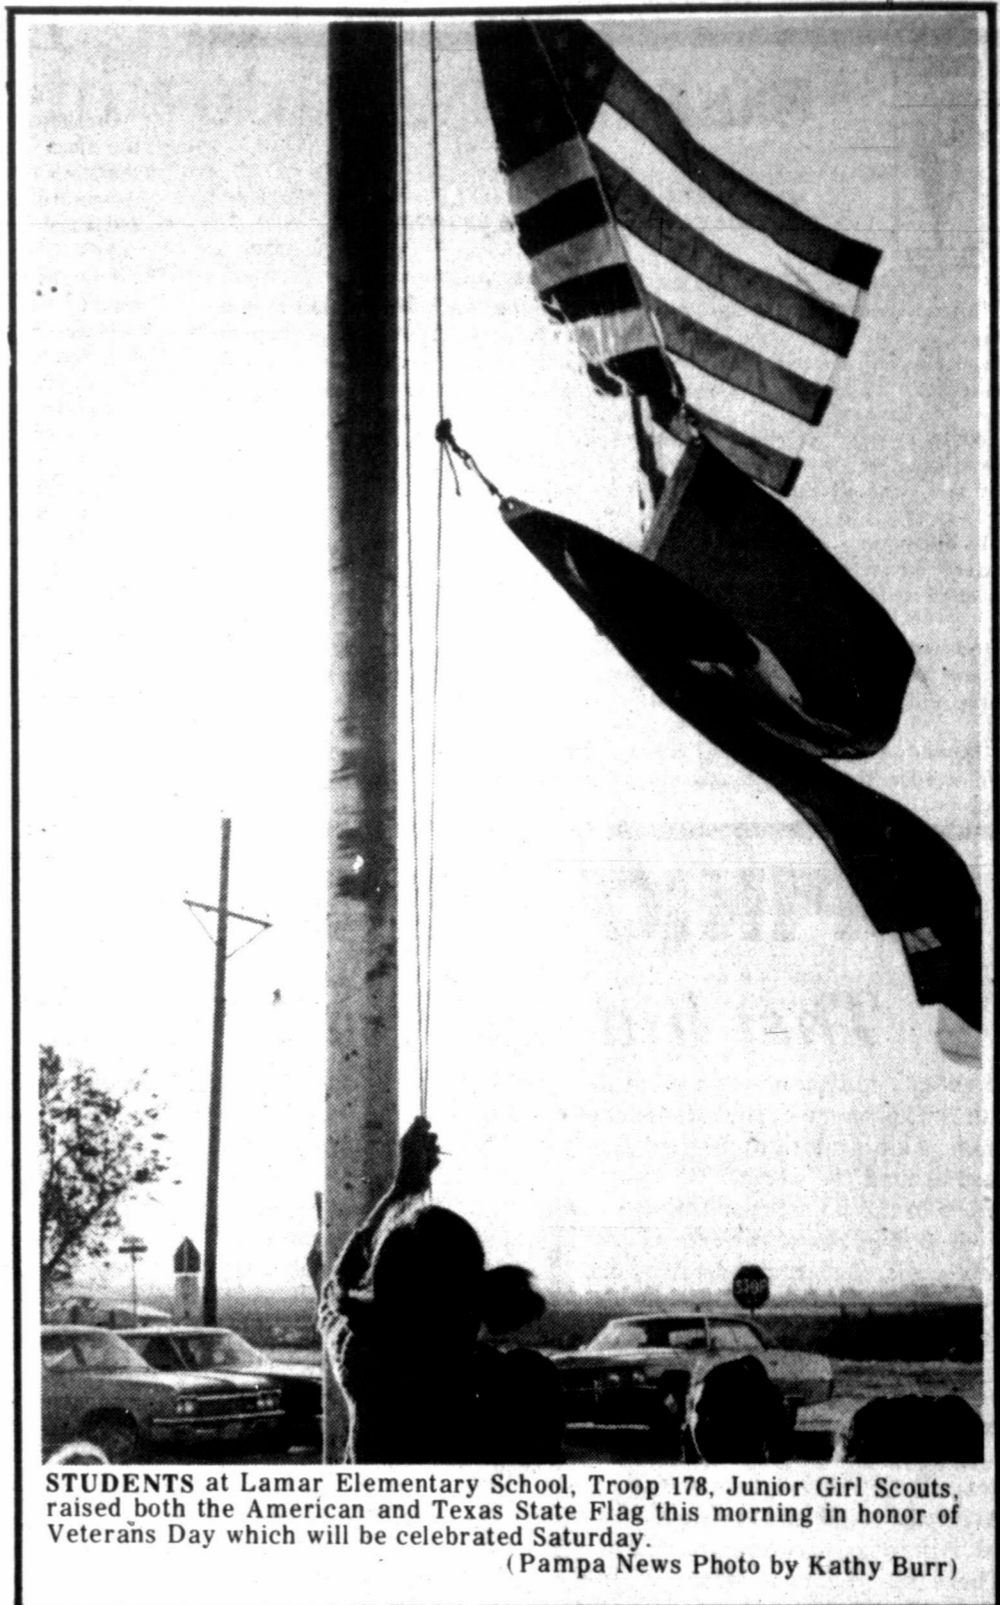

For Israel, the matter represents a political issue within the Begin government as hard-liners oppose a strong link to West Bank negotiations.

UNITED WAY EXCEEDS GOAL BY $43,000 announced Vic Raymond, general campaign chairman at this morning's wind-up breakfast. He and David Fatheree, president of the United Fund, are shown with the total figure of $201,184; their goal was $158,000. Raymond gave special recognition to the key leaders of the campaign: W.L. Loving, chairman of major gifts; Jerry Noles, co-chairman of special gifts; Les Howard, chairman and Don Bigham co-chairman of employee gifts; Darville Orr and Reed Echols, chairman and co-chairman of general gifts. He extended special thanks to Phil Turek, publicity chairman; Kirk Duncan, prospects chairman and Don Fellers and Wes Simpson, auditors.

Good afternoon

News in brief

The forecast for Pampa is generally fair today with increasing cloudiness and colder tonight. There is a chance of rain on Saturday. The high today will be in the 70s with the low tonight in the 30s and the high on Saturday in the 50s. The winds will be out of the west at 15-20 miles per hour today, becoming northerly at 10-15 miles per hour tonight.

Carter has found saying true

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Carter has found the old saying true: It is hard and lonely at the top.

Ridicule and scorn are the risk of failure, and continued criticism is the reward for progress. Hard work and tenacity are the keys.

Leadership would be easier if the nation were in crisis, or if he could satisfy himself with half-baked decisions.

Life used to be a lot simpler back on the farm. For the first time since his political popularity was reborn in the Camp David summit, Carter spoke publicly at length Thursday about his thoughts on himself and the presidency.

For 27 minutes he delivered his soliloquy to a rapt audience of several thousand rural youths, delegates to the national convention of Future Farmers of America.

It was a sort of homecoming. As a boy, Carter was secretary of the FFA chapter in Plains, Ga. when the organization was but seven years old. Now he was congratulating the national group in its 50th year.

"The first thing I joined in my life was the Baptist Church," he recalled. "The second thing I joined in my life was the FFA."

Carter is the first FFA member to become president, and the delegates gave him a loud ovation when he arrived at the 12,000-seat Municipal Auditorium, which was jammed with youths wearing the gold-lettered blue windbreakers which are the FFA uniform.

In the balconies, hundreds of flash cameras popped in a brilliant staccato as the president spoke, using no notes, and sometimes clutching both fists in his emotional intensity.

He spoke of his youth, of the problems of leadership and of his occasional loneliness and frustration.

Generators damaged by vandals

GRAND COULEE, Wash. (AP) — Some $500,000 in damage to three giant electrical generators has indefinitely delayed completion of the Grand Coulee Dam hydroelectric project, planned as the largest power plant of its type in the world.

The FBI has joined Okanogan County authorities in investigating the damage, which plant officials say could only have been done by someone who was familiar with the huge electric plant.

Robert Mueller, superintendent of the area housing the damaged generators, said the gouging of the coil bars in the generators could have been done with a small crowbar or chisel.

"He has access," said Mueller. "It has to be an inside job."

Managers to meet Tuesday

The Board of Managers for Highland and McLean General Hospitals will meet Tuesday in the Conference Room of Highland General Hospital.

Items on the agenda include a progress report on the leasing of the hospital, the chief of staff's report and consideration on medical staff appointments. The board will also look at the accounts payable and the November payroll.

Another item on the agenda is the administrators report. The report will deal with the renewal of the LVN program at Frank Phillips College and the consideration of revised governing body and medical staff bylaws.

The board will also review the remodeling progress and look at the consideration of necessary capital expenditures.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coving Commandment.

That hidden cost

If every American received an itemized statement demanding payment for his share of the total cost of government regulations, the tax revolt would go into high gear overnight. The hue and cry would be heard around the world.

More to the point, resulting tax reduction efforts then would be directed to the crux of the excess governmental spending problem. The direct costs of misguided intrusions into the orderly management of private enterprise would be cut off as government agencies were reduced to a sane level.

In addition to this direct tax saving, the taxpayer as a consumer would soon find many goods and services reduced in price as the hidden cost of over-regulation was eliminated.

Last but not least, more funds would be left in the private sector for investment by individuals and expansion by industry.

All of this could lead to a more healthy economy and an opportunity to deal with the overriding problem of inflation.

There is no means to hit the taxpayer between the eyes with this type statement of the cost. The costs and their ramifications are spread out so far and hidden so completely that the real impact may never come until it is too late to prevent economic chaos.

As this is being written, thousands of federal regulators are working on hundreds of new ideas to expand regulations and enhance careers in the bureaucracy.

On the surface, politicians, especially the ones up for voter selection, are seemingly going along with the prevailing attitude toward tax and spending reduction. Even though candidates carry their promises into office and work toward cutting spending, busy bureaucrats will carry on and elected office holders will find the giant bureaucracy almost impossible to be brought to heel.

Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, says that planned regulations could cost business and its consumers as much as $35 billion more per year. In addition, the controls could impose capital expenditures of $60 billion for equipment and construction.

The final costs to taxpayers-consumers will never show up as an itemized bill to be paid in a lump sum. Such costs will only be revealed in millions of price increases as they filter down to the only ones who eventually pay the total bill: the producer who is also a taxpayer and consumer.

Political privilege breeds tax abuses

Political privilege granted to one individual in a seemingly isolated case, can become the seedbed for innumerable future tax abuses. At a time when our nation was young, the taking of a bit from everybody for the benefit of a few was not a popular notion.

A "special" case was brought to the attention of Congress. The plight of a war widow was given attention and some of Congress advocated giving her a grant. Col. David Crockett made a historic speech drawing attention to the fact that Congress did not have a constitutional right to become a collector of taxes for dispensing charity.

When chided by a member - advocate of the bill, he quoted an honored member of his community who had taken him to task for voting for a grant to victims of a bar fire. Crockett said the man convinced him that such action would open wide the door for fraud, corruption and favoritism, on one hand, and for robbing the people on the other. That relief grant had also met with defeat.

We don't know when the first grant of political privilege established a precedent in its passage. We can see how well Davey Crockett and his peers in Congress predicted eventual proliferation of the welfare state.

In 1972 a man was killed by a grizzly bear in Yellowstone National Park. There is now a bill before Congress to award the man's estate $99,000.

Sen. Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming, is concerned over the precedent this bill might establish. He says, "If we are obliged to indemnify all who suffer accidents, who are injured in their contacts with nature then we must begin to fence off all the national values.

"If there are only to be parks for the safety of people, we can accomplish the same thing in handy metropolitan areas with padded rooms and vinyl scenic photos. My underlying concern is whether we, as a society, are willing to accept national parks and wilderness areas under terms set forth by nature."

With the ease with which Congress takes from everyone to dispense at will, it would be foolish to believe that his measure will fail. The estate may get its pound of flesh while all taxpayers bleed just a mite more for now.

However, another door will be opened wide for future plundering of taxpayers, most of whom will never have the opportunity to partake of wilderness areas.

At a time when a relatively small, but extremely vocal, segment of the population clamors for millions more acres of wilderness areas, the measure to pay injury or death claims from funds taken from taxpayers should be considered a clear sign of a dangerous precedent.

The "elitist" backpackers and hikers want these exclusive areas. But, when one of these finds nature rougher than he can cope with, should all the rest of us be expected to pay damages?

Asking Congress to indemnify this man's estate for his death makes no sense to us. Those who seek the wilderness should be aware of the calculated risks involved.

If taxpayers are to be liable in these cases, then it is high time to reduce, not enlarge the wilderness areas.

Run for the money

Running is good business, so business thinks. As masses of exercise - and recreation - minded individuals have taken a fancy to footwork, so have business firms. But for a different reason.

For a relatively minor expenditure, notes The Physician and Sportsmedicine, a McGraw-Hill publication, companies can sponsor marathons and other events which attract considerable public participation and attention, yielding the firms considerable beneficial publicity.

It also works to the advantage of runners, who a few years ago ran for nothing more than a love but today can find bankable rewards as the finish line.

There are drawbacks, however. Outside investment also means some outside control over events. This can involve selecting locations and times, such as in the midday sun, to the advantage of media exposure but not necessarily to that of the runners.

There's also the question of questionable sponsorship. Sporting goods and health-oriented businesses are naturals. Cosmetics and even beer are into the act and considered acceptable. But, according to the Road Runners Club of America, the runners themselves draw the line at liquor and cigarettes.

That, it is considered, would represent a conflict of interest.

Excessive federal spending causes market drop

By OSCAR W. COOLEY

On Sunday, October 15, Congress passed the much-heralded tax cut. On Monday, the stock market nose-dived. It kept on downward, and in five days the Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped a record 60 points.

I find it hard to conclude there was no connection. The market plummeted because the investing public, which is a broader cross-section of the American public than is supposed was unhappy over what Congress had done, or had not done.

Stock investors could hardly help being pleased over the cuts in the capital gains tax, which will enable at least some of them to keep more of their profits, so they must have been more than a little disappointed at other features of the bill.

The fact that the measure as a whole did not actually reduce the tax burden but, on the contrary, as even Ted Kennedy admitted, increased it, may well have dismayed some. The actual increase is due to the boost in Social Security taxes, legislated earlier and due to take effect January 1, plus the sad fact that inflation is raising many people into higher income tax brackets, so that they are taxed at higher rates and on higher dollars but not real incomes. The tax bill could have, but did not, correct either of these hikes.

Even if the bill had really cut the tax burden, it is doubtful if the people would have cheered very loudly. For neither the tax nor any other measure passed by Congress struck at the problem which even our Jimmy now avers is the nation's major headache, inflation.

And the people are worried about this monster that rages through the markets, unscathed, stealing their dollars. An AP-NABC poll taken the day after Congress adjourned revealed inflation to be the American people's chief worry. The government does nothing effective to stop it. The people are getting sore, cynical and suspicious that, as hinted in this column some weeks ago, the Washington controllers do not, in fact, intend to check inflation but on the contrary are perpetuating it for their own benefit.

Why did Congress do nothing? Why does the president merely issue "guidelines," which even if they guide will only be compromises? And why does the Federal Reserve continue the insane policy, now a year or more old, of increasing the money in circulation by more than twice the non-inflationary rate? (In the week after congress adjourned, M1 soared by over $4 billion). The conclusion is inescapable that there is no sincere desire to cure the headache.

Nor is it a partisan policy. The Republicans are just as guilty as the Democrats. Republican strategy at the moment is to stress tax reduction (Perhaps to get votes November 7?) We'll yearn for lower taxes, but tax cutting will not cut inflation. Indeed it is likely to have the opposite effect!

When government takes less money in taxes but does not reduce its spending, obviously it must borrow, for this is its only other way to get spending money. And government borrowing, as often stated in this column, increases the money supply. Result: more inflation.

For this reason a really effective tax cut at the present time would probably be just what the doctor did not order. It would shift the government from taxing to borrowing and this would only exacerbate the inflation a couple of years hence. (Increasing inflation during 1979 is sure; it has already been insured by the fiscal and monetary policies of 1978).

I return to the original question: why did the stock market take a bath in the third week of October? (Don't let me scare you out of your wits, but the crash of 1929, which ushered in the Great Depression, also occurred in the third week of October.)

The Wall Street posters' look wise and matter, "Interest rates." True, interest rates have risen in recent weeks but not steeply. Interest is the price of borrowed money. All other prices are rising; why shouldn't interest rates? Considering what they were in 1974, present interest rates are nothing to get alarmed about, hardly a sufficient cause for stocks to drop more precipitately than ever before in history.

The inflation prospect is far more threatening.

More likely, the tax cut, the only bill passed in the closing moments of Congress that will sharply and quickly affect investors, signaled the plunge. And the market was on the brink of falling because of the pessimistic mood which is spreading across the land, a mood that the persistent and growing inflation will eat up the family savings, and a lack of confidence in the ability - and maybe the will - of the front office to curb it. For those who have to pay the 10 percent interest rates, these may be contributing to this mood of depression.

The above-mentioned poll corroborates this theory. Assuming the people poll are representative, the people are not fooled. They sense what must be done. When asked how to fight inflation, 31 percent said flatly, "Cut the federal budget."

Your money's worth

Productivity: The key answer

Sylvia Porter

If you, a typical U.S. worker, could — because you have new machinery to help you, a modern plant, a generally more congenial atmosphere — turn out ten instead of eight widgets per hour, could you get a hefty pay increase of as much as 25 percent without cutting one penny of your corporation's net profits?

You bet you could! Your higher productivity (efficiency per worker, per workhour) would be THE KEY ANSWER to an ever-rising standard of living for you and your fellow workers, an ever-improving profit position for your employer — and stable prices for our nation and all of us, as consumers.

A return to a satisfactorily rising rate of productivity in the U.S., an area in which until, oh, so recently, we were the world's undisputed leader: that is indeed the fundamental solution to our destructive inflation.

Gains in productivity would permit each of us to grab a larger share of the "economic pie" without hurting the other.

The gains "would reconcile conflicting objectives," declared the National Center for Productivity and Quality of Working Life in its final report to the president and Congress just a few weeks ago. And it went on to identify the conflicting aims as:

"Higher wages and profits without higher prices, more government services without higher prices, more government services without higher taxes, and economic growth without sacrificing consumption and environmental standards."

As I wrote the above, I had the eerie feeling that I was describing an "economic heaven." Yet, I repeat, once we led the entire world in our rate of productivity.

In the 20 postwar years between 1947 and 1967, for instance, productivity in U.S. private enterprise rose at an average annual rate of 3.2 percent. But between 1967 and 1977, the rate fell to 1.6 percent a year — far behind the rates of our major trading partners. Just study this 1962-1977 performance record in productivity:

NATION PCT. RISE PER YEAR: Japan 8.4 pct., France 5.7, Netherlands 6.9, Belgium 6.9, Germany 5.5, United States 2.7.

Clearly, something has gone terribly wrong! We no longer can assume that productivity will take care of itself. We must focus policies on spurring business investment in new plants and equipment (as the new tax law begins to do via capital gains tax cuts and investment incentives).

We must support all efforts that encourage technological innovations (as we formerly did so successfully). We must vigorously encourage cooperation toward these desirable ends between management and labor, between business and government. And, as the Center for Productivity suggests, in addition:

— Industry and labor must be consulted in the development of new government regulations and the elimination of outworn, unnecessary rules in order to slash unneeded barriers to growth in productivity from regulation alone.

— A network of regional and local productivity centers must be supported to "constitute a truly national movement" to assist private sector initiatives to improve productivity.

— Public managers and elected officials must be held accountable for improvement in productivity of government services. Through intergovernmental grants and real support of any improvement, the U.S. government can do plenty to encourage better management.

— And there must be greater planning for technological changes and innovation; more active support for increased business investment through government fiscal (tax and budget) policies; improvement in the measurement of nationwide productivity; and an aggressive drive to compel more awareness among all of you of the importance of higher productivity to your very survival.

The president's own Council of Economic Advisers called the decline in productivity growth "one of the most significant economic problems of recent years."

But is anyone in the White House listening? Who among you are our policymakers? Where is that so-called federal commitment to increased efficiency in production?

Tomorrow: A packet of proposals.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Nov. 10, the 314th day of 1978. There are 51 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1483, the leader of the Protestant Reformation, Martin Luther, was born in Eisleben, Germany.

On this date:

In 1775, the U.S. Marine corps was authorized by the Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

In 1871, explorer Henry Stanley located missing Scottish missionary David Livingston in central Africa.

In 1928, Hirohito was enthroned as emperor of Japan.

In 1942, in World War II, American troops captured the Algerian city of Oran.

In 1944, it was disclosed that a new German weapon — the V-2 rocket bomb — was being used against England.

In 1975, Angola gained independence from Portugal as civil war raged in the African country.

Ten years ago: A Soviet friendship rally in Prague, Czechoslovakia, ended in fist-fights and heckling.

Five years ago: U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived in Peking and assured Chinese Communist leaders the United States was determined to normalize relations with China as rapidly as possible.

One year ago: Arab countries were urged by President Carter to follow Egypt's example and agree to an immediate Geneva peace conference with Israel.

Today's birthdays: Actor Richard Burton is 53 years old. The former head of the U.S. space agency, Thomas Paine, is 57.

The futility of reforming other people things the way we do things, everything would be so much better. It would be nice if everyone had a basic education: fine, let's force children to go to school until they are sixteen years of age. It would be nice if we could reduce tooth decay: fine, let's introduce fluoride into the water system and make everyone ingest this chemical. It would be nice if people didn't discriminate against other people on the basis of their race, religion, or sex; fine, let us pass laws to punish those who do not share our level of civility. It would be nice not to have a lot of urban sprawl; fine, let's get some zoning restrictions passed so that we can look out at mountains, forests, rivers and oceans, instead of acres of new subdivisions.

The problem with trying to change other people - or even just trying to control their behavior - is that we neither understand nor are we prepared to take responsibility for the consequences of our interventions. We assume that we can isolate our little pet project for "people - pushing" and impose our preferences upon others without having to be concerned about side-effects. But the literature today is replete with economic studies showing the consequences of trying to regulate other people.

Many life-saving drugs have been kept off the market because it has been too costly for drug producers to work their way through the maze of FDA regulations enacted by those who thought "it would be nice if..." Traffic deaths have actually increased as a consequence of auto safety standards enacted at the behest of well-meaning people who believed that "it would be nice if everyone wore a seat-belt." And just this past week, a lot

California Commission - an agency born out of a vision that "it would be nice if we could keep ocean-front property in an undeveloped condition" - told the owners of ocean-front homes (which had just burned down the day before as a result of extensive brush fires) that they would not be allowed to rebuild unless they transferred title to a portion of their land to the State of California! The action of the Coastal Commission is not unlike that of a doctor in a hospital emergency room telling you "yes, I can operate to save your son's life, but only if you convey title to your home to me."

A bureaucratic shakedown? Governmental gangsterism? Administrative Al-Capornism? We can all take turns - as California Gov. Jerry Brown did - chirping at this sort of insensitive hoodlumism, but how many of us are willing to absorb some of the responsibility for having advocated the creation of an agency that could do such things to people? And how many of the burned-out homeowners themselves once looked out of their picturesque windows at the beautiful ocean beneath them and said, "It would be nice if we had a law that would prevent any more development of ocean property."

Witness to return to stand in trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A key witness in the murder-for-hire trial of millionaire Cullen Davis returns to the witness stand today to answer a question which earlier triggered a defense motion for mistrial.

Prosecutors intended to rephrase and repose the question to Fort Worth Judge Joe Eidson, 60, the alleged death target and the jurist who presided over the defendant's divorce case until Aug. 29.

"Prior to that time, your honor, has any attempt been made by the respondent (Davis) to remove you from the case?" Prosecutor Tolly Wilson asked the judge.

"Excuse me, counsel, may we approach the bench?" Defense Lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes interrupted.

Wilson wanted Eidson to tell the jury of an attempt by Davis' lawyers last February to have a multimillion-dollar divorce case moved from Eidson's court.

Haynes contended the wording of Wilson's question "tainted" the jury. Haynes argued that it was the attorneys, not Davis, who requested a different judge and they did not technically seek Eidson's "removal."

District Court Judge Wallace Moore routinely overruled the motion for mistrial and prosecutors dismissed the episode as a tempest in a teapot.

Said Wilson with a grin, "There seems to be a dispute over phraseology."

Wilson planned to reword the question slightly Friday, he added.

Eidson presided over the stormy 4-year-old divorce case until Aug. 29, nine days after Davis was arrested and charged with trying to hire a hit man to kill him.

Before Thursday's disruption, Eidson testified about a number of rulings he'd rendered in the divorce case, including one on July 30, 1976.

At that time, he increased the monthly support payments to Davis' estranged wife Priscilla from $3,500 to $5,000 and granted a postponement in the trial.

Within hours after the ruling was announced, a "man in black" invaded the $6 million Davis mansion and gunned down four persons, killing two of them, including Priscilla's daughter Andrea.

An Amarillo jury last November acquitted Davis of killing the 12-year-old, Priscilla's daughter by the second of three marriages.

Eidson was a prosecution witness in the Amarillo trial.

Methodist building consecrated

DALLAS (AP) — A new building housing the Texas Methodist-United Methodist Reporter, the largest circulated religious newspaper in the country, has been consecrated here.

Bishop W. Kenneth Pope officiated at the Tuesday afternoon ceremonies and had words of praise for the newspaper and its management personnel.

"I'd have been pleased if this paper had gotten along pretty well...but to see it get along so well, it's almost unmethodistic," Pope told about 100 persons attending the consecration.

He said Spurgeon M. Dunnam III, the newspaper's editor and general manager, has refrained from being a "cliche editor."

"He doesn't always say it the way people want to hear it, but they want to read it anyway," Pope said.

The Texas Methodist-United Methodist Recorder has a weekly national circulation of 464,854.

Board to vote on textbooks

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — There's no energy shortage, the pesticide DDT doesn't kill people and America's founding fathers never believed in astrology.

Drusilla Bearden of the Daughters of the American Revolution offered those opinions Thursday to the State Board of Education.

The San Angelo resident appeared with 16 other textbook reviewers as the board heard appeals from the State Textbook Committee's September recommendations. Some 44 individuals and groups protested books during the committee's August hearings.

Board members will vote on final adoptions Saturday.

The eighth grade American history text, "The Call of Freedom" by Rand McNally & Co., "promulgates the extreme ecology viewpoint," Mrs. Bearden said.

"There are 71 lines on DDT and only 12 lines on Pearl Harbor," she said. "DDT has never killed a human being and it has saved many lives."

During her allotted 45 minutes, the three-year veteran of textbook hearings clashed briefly with board chairman Joe Kelley Butler.

He told her not to mention anything not included in her original written complaint.

She protested, "But the rules I got..."

"Mrs. Bearden, you're getting the rules now," he interrupted.

The exchange upset her so much that she took up one text out of turn, she said.

"Mr. Butler, you just shake me up," the former teacher said.

"Mrs. Bearden, you don't realize what you do to me," he said as the board room erupted in laughter.

"Keys to Reading" by Economy Co. includes a story that implies America's founders accepted astrology and numerology as sciences, she continued.

And "Readability" by J.B. Lippincott includes a discussion question that concludes offshore oil wells are necessary because of a shortage of energy sources.

"This answer is not correct," she said, adding there are abundant oil, gas and coal reserves.

Other critics included a Methodist minister, who criticized "gaps" in two high school American history texts.

"Neil Armstrong is on the cover of this book, but there's nothing inside on him or the moon walk," Robert Bohmfalk of Dilley said of "The Promise of Democracy" by Rand McNally & Co.

Officials work on recount

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — State officials worked on an informal election recount today while dazed Democratic campaign officials still tried to figure out what happened in Tuesday's general election.

Latest unofficial results from the Texas Election Bureau gave close decisions to Republican Bill Clements in the governor's race and Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, seeking re-election.

Secretary of State Steve Oaks, a Democrat and the state's chief elections officer, instructed his staff to gather election results from the 6,600 precincts by phone. He hoped to have the informal canvass complete this afternoon, before the formal canvass of returns is due Monday the commissioners courts in each of the 254 counties.

Oaks said the survey is authorized by the election code and was requested by Democrat Bob Krueger, currently a 14,000 vote loser to Tower.

Also interested in the survey will be the gleeful supporters Republican Bill Clements who posted a 16,000 vote win over Democrat John Hill.

Clements and his headquarters staff gave much of their victory credit to a statewide organization of 25,000 volunteers, particularly those manning telephone banks.

The Clements volunteers made more than 2 million telephone calls to remind their voters to get out and vote.

Clements also made wide use of direct mailings to voters.

The new Republican governor told reporters that he believes Texas is not as Democratic as some candidates would have voters believe.

"Most of the voters out there are really independents," Clements argued. "They are not really Democratic. That's the reason they supported me. There are about 45 percent at least."

Clements didn't need to add that many of those "independents" apparently supported Gov. Dolph Briscoe when he was narrowly defeated by Hill in the Democratic primary.

Take a sizeable chunk of former Briscoe voters and add them to the new voters in the general election and it's easy to get Clements winning margin.

About 1.8 million voted in the Democratic May 6 primary with Hill winning with 51.4 percent.

Latest returns on Tuesday's general election show more than 2.3 million voters for governor.

Votes for two mostly unknown candidates, Raza Unida's Mario Compean and Sara Jean Johnston of the Socialist Workers, added up to 19,000 votes — more than the difference between Hill and Clements.

Clements carried Harris, Dallas, Ector, Midland, Gregg, Smith, and Tarrant counties. Hill had Bexar, Travis, El Paso, Nueces, Jefferson, Orange, Cameron, Willacy, Hidalgo, Galveston, Bell, McLennan and Wichita Falls.

Hill's says much of the difference came when they did not get the vote they expected in Bexar, Midland, Ector, Tarrant and Wichita counties. Clements got a surprising 48 percent in Bexar.

Tower, who ran mostly on his record of 17 years in Washington, said he might write a book to analyze his narrow victory.

Krueger's campaign heads said the reason Krueger did not win by the 52 percent his poll predicted was because of the low voter turnout.

Thank You!

I want to thank all voters who went to the polls and voted, especially those who voted for me. I sincerely thank those individuals that contributed to my financial support. My thanks to my former students who campaigned for me, even though some were too young to vote. I want to thank those who took their time to distribute advertising. My appreciation to the news media; The Pampa News, KPND, and KGRO.

Sincerely,
Otto Mangold

Police notes

Russell L. Penrod, 612 Bradley Dr., reported the theft of some tools from the rear of his vehicle.

Jack Hulsey, 724 Sloan, reported the theft of a box containing television repair items valued at $600 from his van while it was parked behind Lowrey Music Center, Coronado Center.

David McCormick and Robert Douglass were arrested for passing a forged instrument after McCormick reportedly attempted to fill a forged prescription at Gibson's Prescription Pharmacy, 2211 Perryton Pkwy. Douglass was also charged with investigation of theft.

Steve Elston, 316 N. Ward, reported a person known to him attempted to steal a hat from his vehicle while it was parked at Sissy's Lounge, 535 W. Brown.

Shirley Mathis, 541 Harlem, reported a wall heater was stolen and a porcelain sink was removed from the bathroom by a person known to her. The heater is valued at $90, and damage to the bathroom was estimated at $90.

James Vaughn, 1453 Dogwood, reported a person known to him removed a garden hose valued at $25 from his yard.

John Perdue, Box 1495, reported witnesses saw John E. Parker stealing lumber from a construction site at 2424 Fir. Perdue advised he would file charges, and Parker was arrested for theft under $200 and was placed in jail. Perdue then advised he had changed his mind and would not file, and Parker was released.

Ronnie Garland reported two males in a car pulled a gun on him at Allsup's on Highway 60 and then left the scene.

An employee of 7-11, 400 N. Ballard, reported a male walked out of the store with a bottle of beer after she refused to sell him any. Police arrested Warren D. Tracey of Skellytown and charged him with theft under $5 and public intoxication. His companion, James Stuart Robinson, was arrested for driving while intoxicated, no Texas driver's license and no valid inspection sticker.

The department responded to 32 calls in a 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

Two boys charged in deaths

NEW YORK (AP) — Two 14-year-old boys were arrested early today and charged with murder, burglary and arson in connection with a South Bronx house fire that killed six people, including four children.

Police said the youths, whose names were not immediately released, were charged with second-degree murder, first-degree burglary and arson and will be treated as adults.

They were to be arraigned later in Bronx Criminal Court.

The fatal fire occurred Wednesday in a two-story frame house where 13 people were sleeping. Immediately after the fire, officials at the scene said they believed the cause to be accidental but would not rule out arson because of the number of deaths.

The smoky blaze spread quickly up the stairs, trapping most of the occupants. Two ran out the front and firefighters rescued five others, but six panicked and ran into a back room where they died of smoke inhalation, fire officials said.

Firemen were at the scene within minutes of the first call at 4:30 a.m. and had the fire under control in five minutes. They said that if the victims had stayed at the front of the house, all could have been rescued.

The dead were identified as Josephine Rodriguez, 50; John Rodriguez, 18; Lydia Rodriguez, 16; Eddie Johnson, 15, a cousin visiting from across the street; Kim Lucas, 6; and Michael Rodriguez, 5.

Deaths

IVA M. FICK BORGER — Graveside services for Mrs. Iva M. Fick, 50, will be at 3 p.m., Saturday, in Memory Gardens Cemetery. The Rev. Harold French, pastor of the Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Perryton, will officiate.

Burial will follow by Alexander - Simpson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Fick died Wednesday. She had been a resident of Goodwell, Okla., prior to moving to Borger in 1948. She was a member of Trinity Lutheran Church and was a school teacher.

Survivors include: her husband, Harold; five sons, Harold Jr. of Borger, Wesley of Canyon, and John, Chris, Leo all of the home; two daughters, Miss Sally Fick of Denver and Miss Lydia Fick of Texline; one brother, Frank Haynes of Pampa; and two sisters, Mrs. Evelyn Fick of Perryton and Mrs. Jo Anna Ruby of Dullingham, Alaska.

J.D. WRIGHT

Funeral arrangements are pending at Carmichael - Whitley Funeral Directors for Mr. J.D. Wright, 63, of 115 S. Starkweather. He died at his home at 5:50 a.m. today.

Born May 19, 1915, in Gray County, he attended Pampa schools. Wright married Mary Crouch June 28, 1939, at Sarry, Okla.

He was the owner of the J.D. Wright and Sons Trucking Co. until it dissolved in 1960; now associated with M.D. Snider Trucking Co.

He is survived by his wife of the home; two sons, Dee of Dimmitt and Jerry of Canyon; three daughters, Mrs. Mary Ann Shockey of Cordelle, Okla., Mrs. Shirley Greene of White Deer and Mrs. Linda O'Neal of Goodrich; and eight grandchildren.

ALMA WADLEY

Mrs. Alma Wadley, 70, of Norman, Ark., died at 12:01 p.m., Wednesday, at Mount Ida, Ark.

Graveside services will be at 2 p.m., Monday, at Arlington Memorial Gardens in Oklahoma City, with the Rev. Lauren Messenger, director of Missions at Pryor, Okla., officiating.

Born Nov. 16, 1907, at Skiatook, Okla.

She was a member of the Baptist Church, lived in Oklahoma City many years prior to moving to California in 1967. In 1975, she moved to Fort Worth and has lived in Norman since October of 1978.

She is survived by three sons, the Rev. Rick Wadley, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lefors, Nathan Moyer of Norman, Ark., and John Moyer of Carson, Calif.; one daughter, Mrs. Hope Overton of Norman, Ark.; and one sister, Mrs. Maudie Anthony of Great Bend, Kan.; five grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Services are under the direction of the Capitol Hill Funeral Home at Oklahoma City, Okla.

The British took Philadelphia in 1777, occupying it for one year.

Texas forecast

By The Associated Press

A developing low pressure storm system over the Texas Panhandle sent howling wind gusts of up to 50 mph through Guadalupe Pass in Southwest Texas early today.

Forecasters said the wind would remain strong and gusty in West Texas, stirring up clouds of occasionally blinding dust. The remainder of the state was to have mostly clear skies and mild temperatures. Highs were to be mostly in the 80s with readings to reach only into the 60s in the Panhandle.

Skies were clear to partly cloudy early today and temperature readings were mostly in the 50s. Extremes ranged from 42 at Dalhart in the Panhandle to 63 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Some early morning readings included 55 at Amarillo, 57 at Wichita Falls and Dallas-Fort Worth, 55 at Austin, 47 at Lufkin, 51 at Houston, 62 at Corpus Christi, 55 at Del Rio, 56 at San Angelo, 63 at Del Rio and El Paso and 52 at Lubbock.

Investigators search for motive

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators, searching for a motive for the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., point to an accusation that James Earl Ray once threatened to kill several black people just because they were black.

The House Assassinations Committee investigators reported to release at a public hearing today a tape-recorded account of the purported incident.

Committee sources would not identify the person giving the account. However, a Justice Department report released last year quotes a woman as saying Ray made such a threat in a Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, bar in 1967.

The Justice Department investigators reported that the woman, Irma Morales, told them Ray taunted four black people and then went to his car and came back with a pistol in his pocket.

She is quoted as saying Ray told her he wanted to kill the black people but that she ended the incident by warning him police would be arriving any minute to check the bar.

Pampan injured in shooting

An argument led to the shooting of a Pampa man Thursday night.

Jackie Lee Young, 19, was reportedly wounded in the leg by Jessie Earl Washington, 410 Oklahoma. Young was taken by Metropolitan Ambulance to Highland General Hospital, where he was admitted. He was listed in satisfactory condition this morning.

According to police, Young entered Washington's restaurant, located in the 400 block of Elm, and threatened Washington after being told to leave. Washington reported the incident at 10 p.m. and said he would file charges.

At 10:57 p.m., police were dispatched to the restaurant after being notified of a shooting. There they found Young, who had apparently returned to the scene. Washington reportedly told an officer that he had shot Young.

Washington was arrested for investigation of aggravated assault, and was placed in the city jail. He was later released on personal recognizance pending further investigation.

Oil executives say tax would be too much

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Oil and gas executives claim a refinery tax would force their industry to carry far too much of the state's tax burden.

They said Thursday the oil and gas industry already pays more than $1 billion a year in taxes — twice as much as all other Texas businesses and industries combined.

Fred Dennstedt, vice president of Exxon Co., U.S.A., told a Senate committee the proposed 5 percent tax would have cost a single plant — Exxon's Baytown refinery — more than $115 million in 1978.

This is more than the plant payroll. Dennstedt said, and "over six times" the total that the refinery will pay this year in franchise, property, sales and use taxes, he said.

Dennstedt said the tax could chase refineries out of the state, cause the industry "to bear an abnormally large share" of state taxes and damage Texas' image as a state with a "favorable business climate."

He acknowledged under questioning, however, that because of the high cost of moving a refinery "in the short run, nothing would change." Still, he said, over the years "there would be real question marks about where an investment went."

Dennstedt and other executives presented a solid front against the tax, which the committee is considering as a possible replacement for the $2 billion-a-year property tax.

Chairman Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, said the committee report would be completed by January 3.

Frank Wood Jr., president of Pride Refining, Inc., Abilene, said a study of 51 small refineries showed only 42 made a profit in the first six months of 1978. If the refinery tax had been in effect, he said, 18 more would have been unprofitable.

"Passage of a refinery tax would be a step backwards in the future development of Texas. That's our basic position," said William Abington, executive vice president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association.

Michael Moeller, executive director of Texans for Equitable Taxation, said his organization supports a refinery tax and sales tax revenue to "offset school tax increases."

He said some 200 replies from a survey of 1,000 members of his organization showed 92.3 percent considered the state sales tax as the "fairest tax" when compared to the federal income tax, local property taxes and other taxes.

He said when the members were asked what would be the "fairest" way to raise money for public schools — in addition to property taxes — 79 percent favored a sales tax increase but 13.9 percent favored new or increased taxes on natural resources.

A committee staffer noted that it would take an 8 percent sales tax — the highest in the nation is 7 1/2 percent — to replace the $2 billion in property tax revenue.

"Most people would pay up to 2 percent over" the current 4 percent tax, Moeller said.

"The most palatable tax is one someone else pays," said McKnight, grinning.

"That's right," replied Moeller.

'Great Air Rush' to give choice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Great Air Rush of 1978 soon will give American travelers a wider choice of flights as airlines begin serving 248 new routes awarded in one fell swoop by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The routes involve every major city in the nation and scores of smaller ones.

The awards, all for roundtrip service, were made Thursday to 22 airlines whose representatives had waited for six days and six nights outside the CAB to apply on a first-come, first-served basis for routes classified as unused or dormant under the airline deregulation law President Carter signed last month.

Previously, the airlines would have had to spend millions of dollars and years of time to win the routes from the CAB.

A route is considered dormant if an airline with the authority to fly it does not provide at least five roundtrips a week for at least 13 weeks in a specified 26-week period.

The carrier representatives laid claim to a total of 1,295 routes when their long vigils ended Oct. 25, but dropped hundreds of these when they saw what their competitors had selected.

The CAB action extended several carriers into distant areas where they have never flown.

The prize in this category went to Hawaiian Airlines, an inter-island carrier, which now can fly to New York, Baltimore, Portland, Seattle, Minneapolis, San Diego and Washington, D.C.

Braniff, which had filed for 626 routes, picked up the lion's share of 60 around the country.

The Texas-based carrier was followed by Hughes AirWest with 27; Air California with 22; North Central, 20; Trans World, 18; Allegheny, 15; and American, Northwest and Ozark with 11 each.

That action, which also subjects the lines to board federal regulation, affects Altair, Air California, Air Florida, Golden West, Pacific Southwest and Swift Aire.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: If a doctor is not stable in his personal life, would you lose confidence in him as a physician?
I think my doctor is the best for miles around, but now that he is in the process of getting his fourth divorce, I wonder if it's possible for his judgment to be so bad in one department but not in another.

His first wife was a fine, attractive woman. He simply tired of her and found a new love. It was the same story with the other three. He made generous settlements on all of them.

How would you feel, Abby? Would you still have confidence in him as a doctor?

WONDERING IN TEXAS

DEAR WONDERING: I know it's possible for some people to be brilliant in their own fields, but inept, inexperienced and hopelessly naive in other matters. Personally, as long as my physician provides me with competent professional care, how he handles his personal life is his own business.

DEAR ABBY: I am 42 and very much in love with a beautiful, 27-year-old model. Her divorce (for which I am paying) is now pending. She has three children.

I bought her a new car, and have spent more than $15,000 on clothes for her and her children in the last six months. She says she loves me, but I don't see much of her. I see her only on Monday nights because on Tuesdays she sees an old boyfriend she says she has to "let down easy." On Wednesday night she goes out with her boss. On Thursday night she goes out with the girls. On Friday night she stays home and does her laundry, and she lets her husband come over on weekends because he misses the kids.

My friends say I am being taken for a ride. Am I?
SAMMY IN MIAMI

DEAR SAMMY: Not only are you being taken for a ride, you'll be lucky if you aren't killed in the traffic.

DEAR ABBY: My conscience is bothering me and I have other problems, too. I'm a 15-year-old who everybody thinks is a "very nice girl." But I'm not as nice as they think.

My girlfriend and I went to a movie one Saturday and let ourselves be picked up by a couple of guys. They had a car so we went for a ride afterwards. We parked and made out (only light necking—nothing serious). We really aren't pickups and don't know what made us act like that.

Well, I've seen this guy a couple of times on the sneak since then, but he never wants to come in and meet my parents. All he ever wants is to park and make out. I really like him, Abby. How can I make this a respectable relationship? I feel ashamed and dirty.

AIRES

DEAR AIRES: Even nice girls sometimes act on an impulse, so don't be so quick to put yourself down. You can make your relationship respectable by telling the boy that you (a) are through sneaking around to meet him, (b) insisting that he meet your parents. If he doesn't agree, lose him. He's only interested in using you.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if you have any information about the drug insulin? What diseases is this drug used for? What are the aftereffects of insulin and what happens if you have an overdose?

DEAR READER — Insulin is not a drug. It is a hormone. It is a protein. The insulin protein is made up of a combination of many different amino acids. Its chemical structure is relatively complex.

The islets of Langerhans in your pancreas form insulin. The insulin is a major factor in controlling the level of your blood glucose (sugar). If you don't produce enough insulin, that is one cause of diabetes, meaning a high blood glucose level. This is the main reason for giving insulin to anybody.

In the past, small amounts have been used in an effort to try to stimulate people's appetites, or larger amounts have been used to induce insulin shock in psychiatric therapy. But, in general, the main purpose of insulin is in individuals who don't produce enough insulin hormones themselves, and that means in the treatment of diabetes.

Too much insulin can cause you to develop a low blood sugar. You can have mild symptoms of this with sweating and tremulousness, or the symptoms can progress to the point of being in shock. To give you a better understanding of insulin's role in diabetes, I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention and Management.

Other readers who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — About two years ago I was cutting grass with a gas lawnmower. In order to start it I would have to wind up the arm of the mower. It was not easy to do and I had to do this several times a day with my right arm.

That summer I noticed that the right side of my chest was larger than the left side. I also noted that the left side went in, especially at the top, under the collar bone to the left of my breast bone. My pediatrician said I have a pigeon chest. Could this have been caused by the excessive development from starting the lawnmower? I am 14 years old, 5-feet-8 and weigh 110 pounds.

DEAR READER — A deformity of the breast bone (sternum) and chest area is not uncommon. This can be with the breast bone bowed forward causing the chest cage to be in the shape of a chicken's breast, which is the source of the term pigeon chest. Or, the breast bone could be depressed inward, called pectus excavatum. Then it is quite common for one side of the body to be a bit larger than the other side.

As long as these are minor variations, they usually cause no disorder in body function. But they can cause a person to be concerned about his physical appearance, usually more concerned than the condition warrants.

If they are simply minor deformities, you are probably better off not to worry about them, or to do anything about them. If there is a major distortion, particularly a depression of the sternum, the deformity can dislocate the normal position of the heart, and perhaps cause changes in the normal dynamics of breathing. These sometimes need surgical correction.

I don't believe your condition was caused by running the lawnmower. The fact that you are able to do that amount of physical exertion suggests to me that the deformity you have does not limit your physical capacity. You will probably always have a disproportion in the size of your chest and some deformity.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know how to get mildew stains out of colorfast cotton. I have tried everything I know of and nothing has worked. — JULIE

DEAR JULIE — Mildew stains should be treated as soon as possible. Try pre-treating the stains with detergent and then launder. If they remain sponge with hydrogen peroxide. (Test first.) Next launder with a bleach that is safe for the fabric in question. The above is suggested by a leading washing machine manufacturer. — POLLY

Stuffed hog maw

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
DEAR CECILY: Have you ever seen in print or published a recipe for stuffed hog maw? I have a friend in Texas who has never heard of it, and she thinks I am pulling her leg when I tell her I occasionally prepare it for a meal. I've looked in all my own cookbooks and have even asked nearby friends to look in their locally published cookbooks, but we have been unable to find a recipe for it in print. Hog maw, in case you are unfamiliar with it, is a hog's stomach — a skinlike sack we stuff and bake. My family has passed down the recipe from generation to generation and I suppose other families in my area have, too. If you know of anything in print, I'd appreciate learning of it. I could send a copy to my Texas friend. Then she'll stop thinking I'm kidding her. — MARYLAND

DEAR MARYLAND: Until your letter came, stuffed hog maw had escaped my notice. Then I found recipes for it in only three cookbooks. I decided to try the one in Nancy Albright's "Naturally Great Foods Cookbook," published in 1977 by Rodale Press. The dish was as new to my tasters as it was to me. I presented it to them without saying what it was. They enjoyed it and had fun trying to guess what they were eating.

Nancy Albright comes from St. Louis, Mo., and studied music at the Peabody Institute in Baltimore. For many years she directed choruses and sang solo. Through an international organization, she traveled widely in Europe and became involved in cooking for large groups, working with well-trained chefs. "Cooking is so interesting," she said.

DUTCH HOG MAW
1 fresh pig's stomach
Salt and freshly ground pepper
1 pound fresh pork sausage links, cut in 1/2-inch lengths
4 to 6 cups diced pared potatoes
1 onion, chopped
1/2 cup chopped celery with tops
2 tablespoons minced parsley
Wash the stomach thoroughly, removing any remaining membranes and excess fat. Rub inside and outside with salt and pepper. Mix the remaining ingredients — the amount of potato used will depend on the size of the stomach. Stuff this mixture into the stomach as tightly as possible; sew up. Place in a Dutch oven with 2 cups water; cover and bake in a preheated 325-degree oven about 3 hours. With a wide spatula, scraping the bottom in case of sticking, turn over the stuffed stomach. Continue baking uncovered about 30 minutes. To serve, cut into 1 1/2 to 2-inch thick slices, removing string. Makes 6 to 8 servings. Adapted from "Naturally Great Foods Cookbook" by Nancy Albright (Rodale Press).

Ingredients for a party

An axiom for a successful cocktail party is that one should have twice as many people as chairs and at a dinner party, just the reverse, so people can be comfortable.

Acknowledging that the cocktail party has slipped into some disrepute, he observes:

"Some say it's a lot of people who have nothing to say but bright and silly things. "But, after all, there are some people I don't have any more to say to than bright and silly things."

Back-to-back parties also are favored by Watkins. He recently hosted three parties on consecutive nights.

"One was for business reasons," he recalls. "Another was a small party for my dearest and oldest friends, and then there was a large party for lots of people.

"That way I used the same flowers and even the same type food. That way you have the maximum use of your time and energy, and you don't have to start out from zero. It takes a minimum of cleaning before each party."

A big part of partyphobia, he believes, is panic over making a mistake.

"If you have 12 people over and it's a disaster," he says, "10 won't care and you can do without the two who do. It's only one evening. The more cautious — less adventurous — you are, the less distinctive will be anything you produce."

Watkins apparently carries this spirit into his profession.

Among organizations commissioning him to design table-top accessories was a historical group from Charleston, S.C., wanting placemats, trivets and napkin rings.

"I thought they were adventurous to come to me," he says.

"The South has a traditional approach but in the 18th century there were no placemats or napkins.

"Perhaps they expected a theme of Colonial ladies twirling umbrellas, but I worked out a magnolia theme on clear Lucite — a good design for right now, yet still compatible with the 18th century."

Wilson named as president

Washington, D.C. — Neal C. Wilson, currently vice president of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, has been elected president of the world church. He succeeds President Robert H. Pierson, who announced his retirement for health reasons Monday (Oct. 16).

The 58-year-old Wilson was named to the church's highest post October 17 by the Annual Council, a gathering of top administrators in Washington. After his nomination by a select 66-member committee, he was chosen unanimously by the council.

Wilson has served as vice president of the church for North America since 1966, a post that brought him wide administrative experience. He is chairman of the board of Loma Linda University, a major medical-educational complex near San Bernardino, California.

Wilson has extensive overseas experience, having served as president of the Adventist church in Egypt and other Arab lands from 1950 and 1958. While there he negotiated the opening of the church's work in Libya, the Sudan and Aden. He was also advisor to the governor of Cairo for religious liberty affairs.

In his acceptance speech to the delegates, Wilson said God had allowed him to have a "varied world experience" in preparation for his duties as head of the 3-million-member church. He said he had spent half his life outside the United States, as the son of missionaries and as one himself.

"I am very conscious of deficiencies, very conscious of limitations," he told his listeners, and then asked for their prayers for his leadership.

The retirement date announced by President Pierson is January 3, 1979. Wilson is set to take office at that time.

The special nominating committee set up to fill the vacant presidential office was chaired by Cree Sandefur, president of the Pacific Union Conference, one of 10 such districts in North America. Sandefur reported that nine names were considered. Wilson was then nominated, "nearly unanimously," according to Sandefur, on the first ballot of the committee.

Wilson was born in Lodi, California, on July 5, 1920. He and his wife, Elinor, has two children. Norman C. ("Ted") is director of the Adventist church's Metro Ministry in New York City, and a daughter, Shirley J. Anderson, is a nurse in Birmingham, Alabama.

The Pampa Seventh-day Adventist Church is located at 425 N. Ward. The pastor, Franklin Horne invites the public to the services this sabbath (Saturday) at 9:30 for bible school and 11 a.m. for the worship hour.

Religion in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — A veteran fighter for victims of religious oppression in communist-ruled Eastern Europe, the Rev. Blahoslav Hruby, has pushed through another punch, despite procedural efforts to deflect it.

"Not in a form suitable for action," a committee of the National Council of Churches demurred in suggesting that Hruby's proposed appeal be shelved.

But Hruby, 67, a Czech-born Presbyterian minister with wide contacts in the Soviet orbit, put the matter before the council's governing board of 250 denominational representatives from across the country.

An investment in Your Future ...ATTEND CHURCH

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

Putting forth a Real effort

A child's first attempts at printing require deep concentration and great effort. However, with patience and practice he becomes more adept and lettering is easier. Then he is ready for the next step, learning to write.

The Lord expects us to put forth an effort to improve ourselves.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Ogaden-the deadly little war

By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Writer
SHILABO, Ethiopia (AP) — Mohammed Abduh Aden is only 12 years old.
He stood in a clearing in the bush with a French-made automatic rifle slung over his shoulders.
The rifle was almost as big as he was, but he carried it proudly, as a warrior should.
"I am a member of the Western Somali Liberation Front army," he announced.
"And I am fighting for my land."
Bloodied but still defiant, ethnic Somalis living in Ethiopia's eastern Ogaden region are continuing a war stretching back 15 years.
Aimed at freeing them from Ethiopian rule, the war is waged against an opposition that includes thousands of Cuban troops, tens of thousands of Ethiopian soldiers and sophisticated Soviet-supplied equipment.

Since the Cubans and Soviet military advisers spearheaded an Ethiopian offensive eight months ago, sweeping through the region to recapture it from the guerrillas and regular Somali troops, the Ogaden war has slipped from public view.
But a three-day trip through part of the Ogaden — the first made by foreign journalists since the March offensive — found that the ethnic Somalis who populate the area have lost none of their fighting spirit. They are determined to press forward with their "war of liberation" — one they consider no different from others that have ended colonial rule in Africa.
The mostly nomadic Ogaden Somalis — numbering between 2 million and 4 million and of the same ethnic stock as the people of neighboring Somalia — are intensely nationalistic. The region has been part of Ethiopia since its conquest in the late 19th century.

But the Somalis consider themselves to be colonized and complain that the world fails to recognize this because the colonization was by black Ethiopians rather than by white settlers from beyond Africa's shores.
When the full-scale war ended and the regular Somali troops pulled back across the border, WSLF officials say, the guerrillas were left with no option but to pull back from their positions, disperse into the countryside and regroup for what they anticipate will be a protracted hit-and-run war.
They are now concentrating on isolating the Ethiopians and Cubans in the towns and cutting their supply lines. In this objective at least, they appear to be successful.
Shilabo is one of the few towns still held by the guerrillas, although it has been deserted for three months after a series of bombing raids by Ethiopian planes. Many of the population of 6,000 are hiding out in the bush fearing further raids. But others have regrouped nearby, building themselves a temporary village of thatched huts and loosely woven shelters of branches.

They hope the village is difficult for Ethiopian fighter planes to spot from the air. So far the village has escaped unscathed.
It is the headquarters for a WSLF committee that oversees a region embracing 100,000 people, says Hussain Mohammed Hassan, the committee's chairman. The committee is responsible for mobilizing the entire area for the war effort. Other regional committees carry on the same work throughout the Ogaden and are the keystones of the WSLF structure, say guerrilla officials.
Each regional committee is divided into sections responsible for political, economic and defense affairs. The most important is defense, said Hassan.

That section picks recruits for the regular WSLF guerrilla army fighting at the fronts, gives universal military training to civilians to enable them to protect themselves, advises on the best way to disperse camels, goats and other livestock from water wells during an air attack and provides manpower to remove the wounded from the battlefields.
"We have no problem recruiting people to fight," Hassan said. "Everybody volunteers, men and women, but the committee keeps back those like the younger children and the elderly."
Not everybody gets a gun. In the town of Jidale, a middle-aged Somali was seen haranguing senior WSLF officials. They explained that he was complaining that the regional committee was refusing to arm him.

John Mahalchik, born loser

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — If you had voted for a loser in all 10 general elections since 1960, would you be dismayed? Shoot, Mahalchik has not just voted for a loser, he's been a loser, in all 10.
Correction: Nine. He missed losing one election, in 1970, but it wasn't Mahalchik's fault. He was in jail and couldn't run.
He has lost races for the presidency and the Senate. On Tuesday, he lost his ninth election, running for the House. He got 1,135 votes out of 118,718 cast, but he is not dismayed.
"I am the alternative," Mahalchik orated. "Better to vote for me than for the pre-picked bums and lice the two-party system puts up. I am for the people. The royal blood of peasants — I mean royal — flows in my veins. I will bow to no tyrant."
If the name Mahalchik is unfamiliar, then you are a stranger to the stretch of Route 206 that passes "Mahalchik's Fabulous Fifty Acres" just north of Mount Holly.
His residence, a teepee, stands next to his white locomotive in front of his seven dirigible hulls alongside his fleet of rusting Army trucks near his airplane carcasses behind his billboard showing the faces of Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger on the bodies of big red rats. Mahalchik is not one for understatement.

"I once had 141 signs out front," Mahalchik said. "Not many are left. They destroyed most of them when they burned down my house."
Mahalchik's signs tell some of the things he is against. He is against the two-party system, of course, and the court system, and taxation. He is against politicians. "They are so crooked that when they die they should screw them into the ground."
He's rather down on communists. A sign recommends: "Drag 'em from their rat holes, hang 'em, stab 'em, burn 'em, bomb 'em, gas, choke, strangle, drown, shoot, but kill 'em all."
Has Mahalchik mellowed? Some think, at 60, he has. After all, he didn't bother to make a single speech during the campaign.
Then he got into a row with some people who wanted to buy up his Fabulous Fifty Acres and he wound up before a judge.
The judge asked if Mahalchik was contemptuous of his court. Mahalchik said damn right. The judge tossed him in the cooler. While languishing there,

Mahalchik's house burned. "Next thing they did was pull out some zoning law that said I couldn't rebuild my house or live in a trailer, a bus, anything I had. Is that America? Is that freedom?"
"I checked. The law didn't mention a teepee, so I live in a teepee. Not by choice. I'm not some kind of kook."
Mahalchik trades in horses now. A few chickens peck around the teepee and provide fresh eggs for sale.

Mainly, though, he remains Mahalchik, just Mahalchik, the name emblazoned on his teepee and on his fading signs. Mahalchik, one of the angriest of the angry men.
Does he have a full name?
"Yes. Remember it. I am John Valjean Mahalchik. The royal blood of peasants."

John Mahalchik

Statisticians putting estimates on corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government statisticians are putting the final touches on what will be their last estimates this year of 1978 corn and soybean production.
A month ago, based on surveys taken Oct. 1, the Agriculture Department estimated this fall's corn harvest at a record 6.82 billion bushels, up 7 percent from the previous high of 6.37 billion bushels in 1977.
The October soybean estimate was a record of 1.79 billion bushels, up 2 percent from 1.76 billion last year, the previous record.
New estimates for corn, soybeans and some other crops were to be released later today by the department's Crop Reporting Board.
Some private forecasters say the new corn and soybean estimates will be slightly higher than the records USDA announced a month ago, and there is some evidence this may happen.
For example, farmers generally have had good weather for this fall's harvest. As of Nov. 5, the department said earlier this week, about 86 percent of the corn acreage and 85 percent of the soybeans were harvested, well ahead of the pace a year ago.
Thus, with little happening to damage the crops extensively since the Oct. 1 surveys, the logic seems to be that the Nov. 1 surveys will indicate prospects for production of corn and soybeans at least held steady or improved since then.
The department estimated the 1977 corn crop at a then-record of almost 6.37 billion bushels, based on Nov. 1 surveys. That was up 1 percent from the October forecast of 6.3 billion bushels.
Soybean output a year ago was put at about 1.68 billion bushels as of Nov. 1, up 2 percent from the 1977-crop forecast of 1.65 billion bushels made as of Oct. 1.
The revised 1977 figures for corn and soybeans closely followed those announced last November, with corn turning out at 6.37 billion bushels and soybeans at slightly more than 1.76 billion bushels.

The November report will not include new 1978 production estimates for wheat, barley, oats and some other crops already harvested.
Although another production report will be issued next month based on Dec. 1 indications, it will not include new figures for 1978 corn and soybeans. Those will be included in a summary of 1978 crop production scheduled for release on Jan. 16.
Thus, the November production report — if recent years are indicative — will provide a close estimate of final corn and soybean production this year.
It also will include updated estimates, based on Nov. 1 indications, of this year's production of cotton, sorghum, rice, potatoes, tobacco, sugarbeets and sugarcane.
Despite the huge corn crop, market prices have held fairly even because of good export demand and decisions by farmers to put grain into the reserve program, where it will be locked off the market for three years or until prices rise enough to trigger its release.
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has delayed putting out details on a major conservation program for 1979 but still hopes to have it ready for farmers by Jan. 1.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

November 11, 1978
 Opportunities that could result in a rise in your status and position are forthcoming in the months before next year's birthday. Plant the seeds and gather your harvest while the getting is good.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 You'll be luckier than usual in bringing in realization material goals you're pursuing. Don't let yourself get sidetracked. Find out to whom you're suited by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 468, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 Social situations are extremely fortunate for you today. Something quite beneficial could come from one of them. Avoid those persons with sour outlooks, however.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Those you behave generously toward today will treat you in a like manner. Persons you split hairs with, however, won't be willing to share anything with you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 Don't waste your time arguing today with someone who has a closed mind. There are so many others eager to go along with your ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 Put aside any involvements taking you away from attending to personal goals. Luck is on your side so long as you pay attention to what you're doing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Proceed with your plans. Don't let self-doubts deprive you of what should be a fortunate day. You're the one who could walk away with the prize.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Breaks coming your way aren't completely visible to you, but you'll have to take advantage of them yourself. Don't ask another to do your job.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 This should be a fun day, provided you don't make too late a night of it. If you overindulge in the good things you'll have to pay the price.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Certain advantages to be gained today can be lost or diluted if you exert too much pressure. Know when to stop pushing.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Situations you direct today will turn out to be fortunate, so don't let a pessimistic friend dissuade you from doing what you feel is right.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 You'll get better terms today if you allow the other party to make the offer. You'll be treated more generously than you expected.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 As long as everyone is making concessions you'll remain jovial and easy to get along with. You won't respond congenially, however, to one who is contradictory.

Pampa guns for upset of Palo Duro

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor
 Pampa will try to extend its winning streak over Palo Duro to four games tonight at Dick Bivins Stadium, while the Dons will be gunning for their first playoff spot in four years.

The Dons have lost three straight times to the Harvesters, but this could be the year Palo Duro gets its revenge. The Dons have looked little short of awesome while beating Tascosa and Amarillo High and compiling a 2-0 district mark. The Harvesters, meanwhile, are hoping to break a three-game losing streak and avoid a second consecutive 2-8 season. The Dons could actually lose tonight's contest and still grab the district crown by beating Caprock next week. That, says Pampa Coach John Welborn, could give the Harvesters a little edge.

"That's about what we have to hope for," he said of a possible Palo Duro letdown. "They have good talent, good size and speed. They have about 16 back who played for them last year. But we feel if we play well we've got a chance."

PD Coach Ken Ozee, meanwhile, isn't about to have his team slip against the Harvesters, 0-2 in district warfare after losses to Caprock and Tascosa.

"We need this win," he said Thursday. "Winning tomorrow night would give us a co-championship for sure. We just can't make any mistakes. We'll have to play with the same intensity we have the last two games."

To beat Palo Duro, the Harvesters will have to move the ball against the stingiest defense in District 3-AAAA. PD has allowed just 199 yards and 7.2 points per game, while Pampa has struck for an average of 235 yards per game and boasts the top two receivers in the loop.

Steve McDougall leads the district's receivers with 13 catches for 243 yards and a pair of touchdowns. Rudy Roland, who also leads Pampa's ground gainers with 400 yards on just 42 carries, is second with 12 catches for 191 yards.

But Palo Duro has the top passing attack around with 712 yards on the season. Quarterbacks Jack Turner and Doug Craven have 31 completions and six touchdown passes between them, which could cause trouble for Pampa's defense.

The Harvesters have given up an average of 268 yards per game, which is fourth in the five-team league. Palo Duro's offense has accounted for 274 yards per game, but is just beginning to come around, according to Ozee.

"Our defense has played well all year," he said. "The offense has just started to come on and I don't think we've peaked off yet. That's the way we wanted it, too — to get it going around district time."

Ozee said his team was regarding this as its most important game of the season.

"Last week was our most important game and next week Caprock will be our most important game," he said. "Regardless of whether we won last week, that's the attitude we've got to take. We'll come ready to play and I'm sure Pampa will, too."

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30. In other district action, Amarillo High and Tascosa will meet at 2 Saturday afternoon in Dick Bivins stadium.

Thursday sports in brief

By The Associated Press
TENNIS
STOCKHOLM — Bjorn Borg routed Bernie Mitton 6-2, 6-4 and defending champion Sandy Mayer edged Ivan Lendl 7-5, 7-6, to move into the third round of the $175,000 Stockholm Open tennis tournament.

Also advancing were two-time champions Stan Smith and Arthur Ashe, plus Brian Gottfried.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The Indiana Loves became the fifth World Team Tennis franchise to fold when General Manager Bill Beremen announced that the team had suspended operations.

The announcement came one day after the San Diego Friars had dissolved. The Los Angeles Strings, New York Apples, and Boston Lobsters have also folded.

GOLF
RABAT, MOROCCO — Spain's Angel Gallardo held a 5-stroke lead after the second round of the $75,000 King Hassan II Golf Trophy Tournament.

Gallardo posted a second-round 73 for a two-day total of 140.

Another Spaniard, Jesus Maria Canizares, added a 73 to his first-round 72 to tie for second place at 145 with Americans Gil Morgan and Billy Casper.

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. — Jerry Steelsmith fired a 6-under-par 64 to take a 1-stroke lead in the $120,000 PGA National Club Professional Championship at Callaway Gardens.

But George Shortridge, playing a tougher course, Gardens View, shot a 66, also 6-under par.

Shockers top Caprock

AMARILLO — Pampa jumped to a 14-0 lead in the second quarter and led by as much as 30 points in the second half as the Shockers mauled Caprock's junior varsity 30-8 here Thursday afternoon.

Clifford Anderson got the scoring started with a one-yard plunge in the second quarter. Leroy Kuhn followed with a three-yard dive and Derrick Young passed to Andy Richardson for the two-point conversion and a 14-point Pampa lead at the midway point.

Clay Coffee returned an intercepted pass 48 yards for a score to open the third quarter and the Young-to-Richardson combo clicked again as Pampa took a 22-0 lead.

Young's 57-yard sprint to the end zone closed Pampa's touchdown scoring for the game, but he passed to Richardson for their third two-point play of the game and a 30-0 Shocker lead.

Scott Murdock caught a 33-yard pass from James Lozano to get Caprock on the board in the fourth quarter.

Now 8-1 on the year and 3-0 against district opponents, the Shockers host Tascosa Thursday night to close their 1978 season.

Harvester spikers upend Amarillo to force playoff

AMARILLO — Pampa and Amarillo High went down to the wire here Thursday afternoon before the Harvester Spikers came out with a victory and the second half championship in District 3-AAAA volleyball.

Getting big plays from everyone on the roster, Pampa scratched its way to a 14-12, 12-10 decision and forced a playoff for the district crown by completing the second half of league play with a 4-0 record. Officials from the two schools were to meet in Pampa this morning to determine the date and site of the winner-take-all match.

"I don't believe we were hitting the ball as much as they were, so we had to have more defense," Coach Lynn Wolfe said after the match. "Amarillo had a few more errors spiking and on the net. They looked tighter in the second game.

"We learned that you don't let up against Amarillo High. That's what happened at Pampa the first time. The last time the first game didn't mean a thing."

Pampa jumped to an early lead in the first game but the Sandies battled back to tie it at seven and took an 8-7 lead on a Kim Wagner spike. But Mary Skoog got a pair of service points on Amarillo errors to regain the lead for the Harvesters — at least for the time being.

Cindy Hunt's spike and a net violation put Amarillo back on top 10-9 and the serve exchanged hands six times before Rosie Santa Cruz served up four straight points. Three of those came on errors by the Sandies. The Sandies had one challenge left in them as they closed the gap to 13-12 with the aid of a Carol McDaniel spike. But a carrying violation gave Pampa the serve with 11 seconds left.

Mary Skoog and Mia Dacus combined for a great save on the final point before Amarillo lost control of the ball and the game as time ran out.

The second game was every bit as close. The two-point difference at the finish was as large as any lead during the game.

Amarillo had a four-point stretch that gave it a 7-5 lead, but a Sharon King spike, two Amarillo miscues and Demetria Simmons' well-placed spike gave Pampa a 9-7 margin with 2:12 won the clock.

Amarillo tied the score less than a minute later as King was called for a carry and Staus's block fell wide. But Mamie Laycock and Staus double blocked a Wagner spike to return the serve to the Harvesters.

Teresa Stafford's spike put Pampa back in command at 10-9, but that was all the scoring for either team in five service exchanges. Wagner answered with a spike to tie it at 10 with 20 seconds left, but after Pampa regained the serve, Shanna Kelly's spike found nothing but the net. Another spike by Wagner was wide as time ran out to give Pampa its 12-10 win.

Borchardt blocked a Borger punt and Randy Slaybaugh recovered and ran the ball in for the score. Coleman kicked the extra point.

Borger got a touchdown and a two-point conversion in the third quarter to lead 14-7 going into the final period.

Pampa travels to Plainview next week to close out its 1978 freshman season.

Freshmen clip Borger

Pampa's freshman football team scored the winning touchdown and two-point conversion with just 30 seconds left in the game to hand Borger a 15-14 loss Thursday afternoon at Shocker Field.

Following a 40-yard gallop by Cavin Coleman, Mark Kotara banged his way over from the 12 for the touchdown that narrowed the gap to 14-13 and carried on the successful two-point conversion.

Borger grabbed a 6-0 lead in the second quarter, but Pampa came back to take a one-point lead at halftime. James BOSTON RED SOX Named Ed Kennedy vice president in charge of player development. Bill Crowley vice president in charge of public relations, marketing and promotions. Tommy Hascall publicity director in charge of press relations, statistics and publications. Jim Healey director of marketing at Boston. Pursuant to Commission order that the Plan and Agreement of Merger is equitable to the members of the association, has been adopted by the Board of Directors and does not impair the usefulness and success of other properly conducted associations, that the Plan and Agreement of Merger has been approved by a majority of the total vote of the members of each of the associations and that no other association authorized to do business in this state has the same similar, nor is the proposed name so similar to any other as to be calculated to deceive.

Anyone desiring to oppose this application may do so by appearing at the scheduled hearing, however, it is requested that you notify the Commissioner in writing at P.O. Box 1888, Austin, Texas 78767 prior to the hearing. If no opposition is received prior to the time this application comes on for hearing, hearing may be dispensed with by the Commissioner. Issued this 8th day of November, 1978, at Austin, Texas.

NOTICE OF APPLICATIONS TO MERGE. Notice of Applications to merge, change of name and of hearing scheduled thereon. Notice is hereby given that applications have been made to the Savings and Loan Commissioner of Texas by three associations, being: (1) Beaumont Savings and Loan Association, Beaumont, Texas; (2) Panhandle Savings and Loan Association, Amarillo, Texas; (3) Temple Savings Association, Temple, Texas. All applications to merge and for change of name to Prudential Savings Association with the resulting or surviving association to be Beaumont Savings and Loan Association (Prudential Savings Association) and with the home office and branch offices of Panhandle Savings Association and Temple Savings Association becoming branch offices of Beaumont Savings and Loan Association (Prudential Savings Association). A Plan and Agreement of Merger and related documents have been filed with the Commissioner.

Notice is further given that a hearing on this application has been set for December 1, 1978, at 9:30 a.m., in the Hearing Room of the Savings and Loan Department of Texas, 1004 Lavaca, Austin, Texas. Pursuant to authorities and jurisdiction granted by Article 852a TEX. REV. CIV. STAT. ANN. The particular section of the statute involved are 2.12, 2.13, 10.03, and 11.11. The particular rules involved are 056, 10, 00, 001 thru 069.

Such rules are on file with the Secretary of State, Texas Registrar Division or may be seen at the Department's offices.

The applicants assert that the Plan and Agreement of Merger is equitable to the members of the associations, has been adopted by the Board of Directors and does not impair the usefulness and success of other properly conducted associations, that the Plan and Agreement of Merger has been approved by a majority of the total vote of the members of each of the associations and that no other association authorized to do business in this state has the same similar, nor is the proposed name so similar to any other as to be calculated to deceive.

Hightower to attend symposium

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The House of Representatives Committee on Agriculture announced today that Congressman Jack Hightower of Texas is one of eight members of the committee invited to participate in an Interparliamentary Symposium in Tokyo, Japan starting November 14.

Hightower will be the principal speaker for the United States delegation on concerns in trade with Japan in the area of wheat, feed grains and beef. Citrus, cotton and soybeans will be among the other commodity areas discussed in the agricultural sector of the symposium.

The United States delegation will go from Tokyo to Peking in the Peoples Republic of China November 20th. The China meetings will focus on cotton with the official hosts being ChinaTex and the China Council for the Promotion of International Trade. ChinaTex is the official organization for purchasing imported fibers and for the sale of exporting fibers for the country.

In the Japan meeting Hightower is expected to address the problems of access to Japanese markets and the overall trade deficit problems existing with Japan.

In response to questions about trade with the two countries, Hightower stated, "While Japan is the United States best customer of agricultural commodities with the dollar level reaching over $4 billion this year, there still exists a very distressing overall trade deficit between the countries. This deficit has played no small part in the problems the United States dollar has had this year in overseas valuation."

"China, on the other hand is a sleeping giant in potential as a customer for our farm products. They now rank fifth as a buyer of our cotton and can very well become a leading customer of the short staple cotton that we grow in my area of Texas," Hightower emphasized.

The delegation will be back in the United States the first week in December.

SCULPTURES
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A retrospective exhibit of sculptures by George Segal will be on display at Walker Art Center through next Jan. 7. The center says the show "of more than 50 sculptures presents the full range of Segal's work: major environmental pieces such as 'Cinema' and 'The Gas Station' from the 1960s which brought the artist international prominence; wall reliefs reminiscent of classical themes based on the female nude, and vibrant-color, figure sculptures in surreal environments."

FOCUS

Veterans Day

Veterans Day, which will be observed tomorrow, November 11, honors the men and women who have served in America's armed forces. President Woodrow Wilson originally proclaimed November 11 Armistice Day, for it was at 11 a.m. on the 11th day of the 11th month in 1918 that the fighting stopped and World War I ended. In 1954, Congress changed the name to Veterans Day, to recognize the contributions of all American veterans. A presidential proclamation moved Veterans Day to the fourth Monday in October, beginning in 1971, so that Americans might enjoy a three-day weekend. But this year Veterans Day returns to the traditional November 11 observance.
