Wholesale prices leap again

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices leaped by 0.8 percent in November as the cost of gasoline, tires and alcoholic beverages posted big increases while the advance of food prices slowed, the Labor Department said today.

The 0.8 percent wholesale price increase, if it continued all year, means an annual rate of about 10 percent, which is about the average this year for the cost of living. The November rise followed consecutive increases of 0.9 percent in September and October.

President Carter announced his anti-inflation program Oct. 24. However, the administration says it may take six months for results of the program to be reflected in prices.

On Wednesday, Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, acknowledged there is "tension between the inflation problem" and spiraling energy costs, but he said prices may have to rise to assure adequate fuel supplies.

The department said prices declined for beef, veal and fresh fruit and increases were smaller for pork. Prices of fresh and dried vegetables, chicken, eggs and sugar were higher.

Elsewhere, prices were higher for passenger cars, silverware, tires and tubes and alcoholic beverages.

measure of wholesale prices stood at 200.6. That meant the average wholesale product that cost $100 in the base period of 1967 cost $200.60 last month.

He said the longer U.S. petroleum prices are held artificially low, the sharper will be the increase when controls are lifted.

It's a real small world

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, the adage, "It's a small world," took on a real meaning earlier this month during a visit to Red China.

While touring the docks at Shanghai, Hightower noticed some cotton bales being off loaded. Markings on the bales indicated the cotton had been grown and ginned in West Texas.

"I learned a lot and had a good trip but I certainly wouldn't recommend anybody going to Red China for a vacation," said Hightower during a recent interview after returning from a two-week tour of Red China with six other members of the House Agriculture Committee.

Prior to visiting Red China, Hightower participated in an Interparliamentary Symposium in Tokyo. He and three members of the agriculture committee spent a week in Japan.

U.S. government. In two symposium speeches, Hightower urged Japanese officials to increase their importation of American beef, wheat and feed grains.

Cotton dominated his meetings with officials in Red China. "We're hoping to expand our export market to China. They produce quite a bit of cotton but they also import a lot of China, with 800 million people, is a vast potential of all consumer goods you can imagine."

Hightower also noted that the political atmosphere appears to be changing in China which should create "more opportunities for American goods and raw materials."

Hightower said the congressional delegation visited several agriculture communities and "a good many gardens which is interesting if you're a connoisseur of oriental gardens."

Garbage collection survey: Container preferred

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff
In the waste collection game, the latest score is: containers-79, garbage cans-9.

These figures reflect the outcome of the city's month-long experiment with a containerized waste collection system, conducted in October.

Of the 130 questionnaires, 88 have been returned to Wofford's office. Satisfaction with the containers was expressed by 79 respondents, while nine favored the garbage cans.

The questionnaire asked respondents to list the best and least satisfactory features of the containerized system, along with general comments.

opposed the system were quite vocal in their criticism. "I do not like the containers at all!" one person wrote. "I recently moved here from Amarillo -- the containers there are not maintained by any of the neighbors."

"People I know in Amarillo do not like this waste system," another person exclaimed. "I can't think of a single good feature," a resident complained.

containerized system at once, the city could lease-purchase the containers, issue general obligation bonds (which require a city referendum) or issue certificates of obligation (no vote necessary).

The city could gradually introduce the new system by phasing out the present system over a five or six year period. If the city went this route, "It appears there would be a significant reduction in labor costs -- enough to amortize container costs in 5-7 years," Wofford said.

West Texas farmers in dry area Water imports favored by Clements

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — West Texas farmers need more water and need it badly. Governor-elect Bill Clements said Wednesday, giving full support to a plan by House Speaker Bill Clayton to import water to the area from Arkansas.

"The well-being of the people of a vast area of West Texas, as well as its economic base and agriculture production, is at stake," said Clements, dismissing a question about what such a plan would cost.

Clements addressed West Texas-area legislators and others at the annual conference of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

West Texans have been actively seeking new water resources for the past 15 years because of dwindling underground water, being used up by irrigation that has made the basically dry area one of the most productive agricultural areas in the United States.

inches of annual rainfall. Clements said the cost and benefits of a water-importation program should be projected over a 35-year period and said the resources for the importation plan should be available "if the plan makes any economic sense."

No one has suggested to him a constitutional amendment will be necessary, Clements said, but if it is, he said he will support one.

Clements also spoke extensively of his determination to reduce taxes after he takes office.

be the final budget. The budget board's plan — which Clements called "a letter to Santa Claus" — would provide a minimal surplus beyond that earmarked for tax relief under the just-passed tax relief amendment.

Clements declined to propose specific ways the billion dollars should be returned to voters, except to say several possibilities exist.

business, and I'm sure they'll address it in due course," he said.

There is no obvious method for this. But all elected officials of Texas need to work together to devise a way to implement such a tax on out-of-state customers," he told his audience.

Witness denies conspiracy role

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — A reluctant witness vehemently denied the stand today any involvement in an alleged conspiracy to frame Fort Worth industrial czar Cullen Davis.

"Did you plan with, conspire with or talk with David McCrory to frame or set up Cullen Davis on any of the events we are talking about?" prosecutor Jack Strickland asked.

"Absolutely not," responded Pat Bursleson, a lean, moptopped karate instructor.

admitted making three visits to the Davis mansion to talk with Priscilla during the critical five days preceding Davis' arrest Aug. 20.

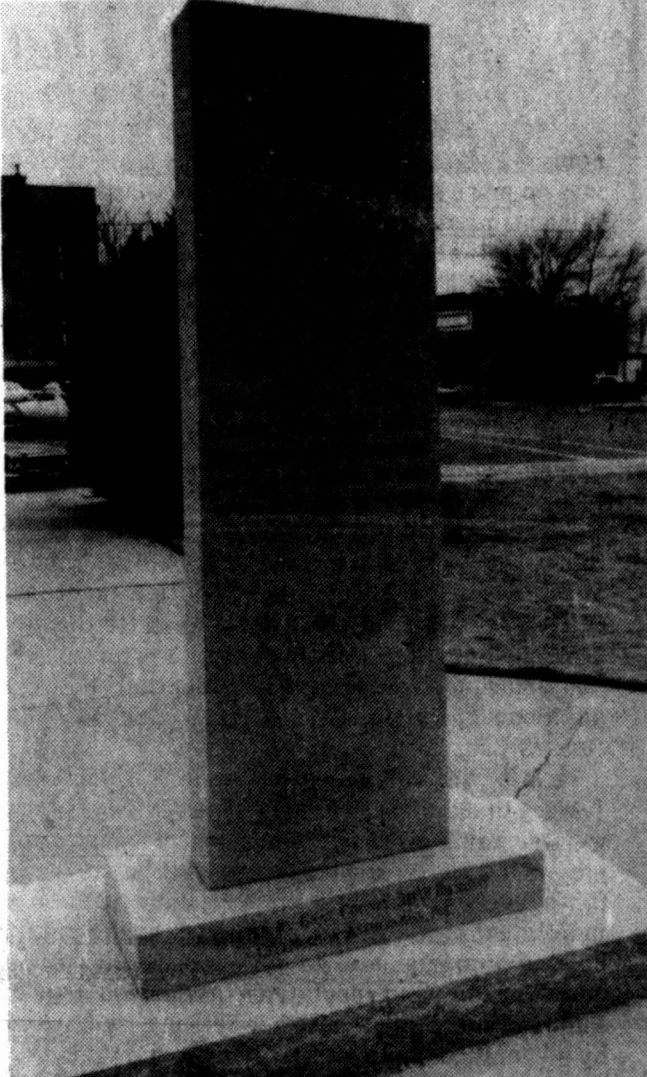

He said he also met daily with McCrory after his friend telephoned him at home early in the morning of Aug. 16 and arranged their pivotal meeting.

He said McCrory was "scared totally to death" and there was a "pallor on his face, a rash on his hand and he was shaking."

He related to me that he was in a lot of trouble, that he was working for a company owned by Davis and that his problems were related to Cullen Davis," Bursleson testified.

Bursleson said he told McCrory he did not want to know the nature of the involvement "because I was sick and tired of his problems with Cullen Davis."

Bursleson said it was at McCrory's request that he put McCrory in touch with an acquaintance of his own, FBI agent Ron Jannings. Bursleson testified that he telephoned Jannings and "told him a man would like to talk to him that evening ... he said he would."

OPINION PAGE

Halfway House

Reform of the nation's tangled and increasingly costly welfare programs was one of President Carter's domestic hopes this year. But he was no more successful in straightening out this particular mess than were his predecessors going back to President Kennedy.

Every plan to overhaul the patch-work welfare system during the last decade and a half has been sunk without trace by Congress. Unfortunately, the welfare constituency has grown so powerful and there are so many tradeoffs between competing factions that even a simple reorganization of public assistance programs has become all but impossible.

The administration's latest effort is a case in point: The Carter plan to extend and streamline coverage left the White House with a price tag of $2.8 billion added to the current $44.5 billion cost of conglomerated welfare. By the time Congress got through tinkering and trading off, this figure had zoomed to more than $20 billion — far too much for passage. With Proposition 13 chilling the political landscape, House Speaker Tip O'Neill declared welfare reform dead for the session.

Meanwhile, the same fate appears to have overtaken a more modest "no-frills" plan of blocking federal grants to states and cities costing an additional $5 billion, which was introduced by Senators Alan Cranston, Russell Long and Daniel Moynihan.

Thus the biggest rogue elephant in Washington continues to run amok. More than one out of every 10 Americans now receive some form of welfare payment. The temporary emergency relief prescribed for the jobless during the depression has become a way of life for second and third generations. This problem is not with the occasionally sensational indictment of welfare chislers, such as the California woman who embezzled a quarter million dollars in welfare payments; the real arises out of the laws and regulations that punish work and reward indolence. For example, in some states, a person on welfare could lose $1,249 a year by switching from a part-time job to a fulltime job; the loss could be $3,000 if the person is on Medicaid. Two-parent families in Michigan, for instance, can increase their income by 33% if the father leaves and the mother goes on welfare.

So welfare programs as now not only discourage work but encourage dissolution of families well.

Is there any way out of this morass? What is to be done? American ingenuity is still at work. Rep. David Stockman, R-Mich., is advancing an innovative plan that is commanding unusual attention. Congressman Stockman would abolish welfare payments for all but the non-working — the aged, blind and disabled — whose eligibility would be based strictly on physical affliction. He assumes the merit of simplified transfer payments for those with inadequate incomes; he would provide this through child allowances to all families in the nation. The net cost of universal child benefits could be less than existing programs, according to Stockman, because it would eliminate the vast welfare bureaucracy. And, moreover, it would restore pride to multitudes long burdened with the welfare stigma.

A second alternative being proposed by Stockman would be a tax credit of perhaps 20 percent of gross wages for low-income workers through a negative withholding tax which would also permit a freeze on the minimum wage in order to expand opportunities for younger, unskilled workers.

To be sure, the Stockman proposals have some pitfalls. They appear to be somewhat simplistic and there are valid arguments about universal child benefits. But at least they offer a fresh perspective on a very stale and in this new season of tax and spending limits, such an approach might just work — a half-way house for withdrawing from welfare addiction.

Postal fairy tale

The 15-cent stamp for first-class mail, initiated this year, may resist the pressures of inflation for another two years or so, according to Postmaster General William Bolger.

But Bolger, in a recent address to the Postal Customers Council of Greater Boston, acknowledged the contradictory pressures of the free enterprise system in which his listeners participate.

The Postal Service goal, he said, is to reduce parcel rates to make shipping by mail more appealing to commercial users. The postmaster general conceded that parcel post volume has been decreasing in the face of competition from private parcel-delivery firms.

"We want to be fully competitive with United Parcel Service," he said. (UPS, of course, is the private enterprise parcel carrier that is giving the bureaucratic carrier fits.)

If the effort is to be successful, it must embody not only the lure of lower rates, but application of the cost-cutting competitive methods of the private sector of all classes of mail. If you believe that will happen in the government-run mail system, you will believe about anything.

Simplifying customs

In the great paperwork war, the Customs Procedural Reform and Simplification Act, which became effective recently, may be only a minor victory.

But it promises benefits to the many travelers who return to the United States each year from tourist havens abroad.

The first custom reform in two decades should also help businessmen by speeding delivery and reducing the paperwork burden.

Under the new procedures, the duty-free exemption on merchandise purchased abroad is raised from $100 to $500 in purchases over $300. Travelers returning from U.S. territories will be exempted from duty on the first $600 in purchases and assessed a flat 5 percent duty on the next $600 worth of goods.

The new regulations wipe out dozens of duty categories and tedious calculations that have clogged port-of-entry inspection lines at various entry points.

The simplifications ought to be welcome on both sides of the customs counter.

Short of wiping out custom duties altogether, which would be even better, the change is encouraging.

United Parcel Service is soon scheduled to begin presenting evidence to the Texas Railroad Commission on an application for authority to pick up and deliver packages between all addresses within the state of Texas.

It will be the second time the UPS has appeared before the commission in a quest for such operating authority. The company filed its initial application in 1966, and the proceedings were not concluded for a decade.

The Commission at that time denied the UPS application, asserting that it had no jurisdiction to grant an application that proposed service from and to all points in the state. The commission held that a carrier must identify the roads over which it would travel, and then must travel all of those roads every service day, whether or not there were any packages to be picked up or to be delivered on those highways. In UPS's type of operation, UPS must be free to use any highway in the state, since sooner or later it will have a pickup or delivery at virtually every location in the state. However, it would be economically impossible for UPS drivers to travel every road every day for no purpose.

Commission Holding Overruled

This Commission holding was overruled by a Texas court on appeal, the court finding that the Commission could properly grant such authority to United Parcel Service. Under Texas law at the time, the court said that it lacked authority to send the decision back to the Commission. Judge Charles D. Mathews of the District Court in Travis County said: "If the court had the jurisdiction and statutory authority to remand as of this time, this case would be remanded to the Commission for further hearing and consideration."

The court found that United Parcel Service's application was in compliance with the Texas Transportation Law in all respects, and that the Commission had made several incorrect evidentiary rulings. For example, the Commission did not allow the public witnesses to mention the name "parcel post," even though that was the method of shipping that they were using, and even though they wished to replace it with UPS.

The commission refused to allow the public to testify as to its experience with other carriers on shipments heavier than those that UPS proposed to handle, on the theory that that experience would be no indication as to how the carriers handled lighter shipments. On these and other such evidentiary rulings, the court held that the Commission was in error and should have allowed the public to testify.

UPS Provides Interstate Service

Since the initial Texas application, UPS has opened service throughout the state on authority from the Interstate Commerce Commission. Under this authority, however, UPS can only carry packages into and out of Texas to other states; it cannot move packages between points within the state, except for certain exempt commercial zones.

Since 1972 this interstate service has been available to all addresses within the state. As a consequence of customers' growing familiarity with the service, the demand for point-to-point service within Texas has become increasingly vocal.

Should the Railroad Commission approve the UPS application, package pickup and delivery service would be available at the doorstep of every Texan at rates competitive with those for parcel post.

Dependable Transit Times

In addition to competitive rates, the UPS delivery network is designed to provide specific and dependable transit times over given distances. Next-day delivery is provided up to a minimum of 150 miles from origin point; second-day delivery is made to at least 450 miles from origin; third-day delivery is made to a minimum of 900 miles, and fourth-day delivery to at least 1,500 miles.

Editors Note: Only through free enterprise and competition will the best service be offered at a reasonable cost to the consumer.

Great dental conspiracy

You never saw anything like it! Twenty-five thousand dentists converged on Anaheim, Calif., conspiring to put themselves out of business.

I would not have missed it: The 119th annual session of the American Dental Assn., conferring on how to improve the teeth of the next generation so that it will need the dentist LESS.

One good example is worth a thousand remonstrances.

The profession of dentistry is one good example.

In the first place, a baby born today has a better than ever chance of keeping his natural teeth from here to hereafter.

Dentists, agitating for fluoridation, diet awareness, and oral hygiene, have already insured for half of our nation's population 65 percent fewer cavities than their parents have.

That has been accomplished in one lifetime!

America has the most efficient dental education system and the most productive dental professionals in the world. They are better than they know. A recent Harris poll gave dentists a higher public vote of confidence than dentists gave themselves.

Among our nation's most esteemed professionals, dentists are third from the top.

Our nation's most serious economic illness is inflation — the higher costs of almost everything.

By increasing their own productivity with four hands, more patients and high-speed technology, dentists have throttled their own costs and their own fees. The cost of dentistry has increased less than the overall cost of living.

The dental profession has been applauded by inflation's most concerned critics: President Carter, Barry Bosworth.

And that's not all.

Government spoofervision of dentistry is almost nil because these professionals have disciplined themselves.

With peer review — dentists watching over the shoulders of dentists — promoting good dental service, ostracizing anything less, the profession polices itself so that government won't have to.

In dental education, only those programs which meet exacting standards are accredited.

Advertising claims for dentistry-related products are examined and evaluated by the dental profession as strictly as any government agency would.

When the Occupational Safety and Health Administration began to scrutinize the dentist's office for health hazards such as radiation leakage, mercury vapor, sanitation, the government's watchdogs discovered that the professionals within the profession had already been there — testing, evaluating, correcting, improving — so that government and insurers and the courts wouldn't have to.

Government surveillance of this profession is measured in direct proportion to how willing and how effective it is in disciplining itself.

Of all the ills that flesh is heir to, tooth problems used to be the most common and the most painful. Today they are the least painful.

And because today's dentists are altogether as committed to prevention as to cure, our children will be forever in their debt.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Dec. 7, the 341st day of 1978. There are 24 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, the Pacific War began with Japan's strike against Pearl Harbor, the Philippines, Singapore, Guam, Wake Island, Thailand and Malaya.

On this date: In 1787, Delaware became the first state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1803, James Madison was chosen by the Electoral College as the fourth American president.

In 1836, Martin Van Buren was elected the eighth president.

In 1944, the United States announced that all six of the Japanese aircraft carriers that launched air attacks on Pearl Harbor three years earlier had been sunk.

In 1953, David Ben-Gurion resigned as premier of Israel.

In 1970, the ranking black in the Nixon administration, James Farmer, resigned as assistant secretary of health, education and welfare.

Ten years ago: American destroyers were maneuvering near the Black Sea in an operation that angered the Soviets and raised misgivings in Turkey.

Five years ago: Gerald Ford, holding his first news conference as vice president, predicted that President Richard Nixon would be exonerated of all wrongdoing when the facts were known.

One year ago: Egypt closed several of its cultural centers in the Soviet Union, East Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia to retaliate against Communist critics of Egyptian Mideast peace initiatives.

Today's birthdays: Actor Eli Wallach is 63. Actress Ellen Burstyn is 46.

Thought for today: Being a woman is a terribly difficult task since it consists principally in dealing with men — novelist Joseph Conrad, 1857-1924.

We dont get the facts

By D.R. SEGAL

I am not much of a jock but I enjoy a limited diet of television football and baseball, especially when there is a bob or two on the line. And I wonder why some sports writer hasn't pointed out the essential difference between a broadcaster and writer.

It is fashionable for the announcers of televised football and baseball habitually to accuse the writers of misrepresenting the expressed sentiments of professional athletes. A locker room fist fight, they would have us believe, was just a friendly little shoving match. When the first base star calls his manager a bum, the TV commentators assure us that he didn't really say that at all because he is too nice a fellow to use that kind of language.

Having lunch
Now, the TV commentator never claims to have been an eyewitness to any of this. He does, as a matter of fact, not associate with the jocks themselves very much. No, he goes to great pains to tell us he was having lunch with the owner of the club, far from the sweaty precincts of the locker room. But he knows the writers were dead wrong.

Often their authority is the player himself who simply denies the remark or the fight, even though there were abundant witnesses to it.

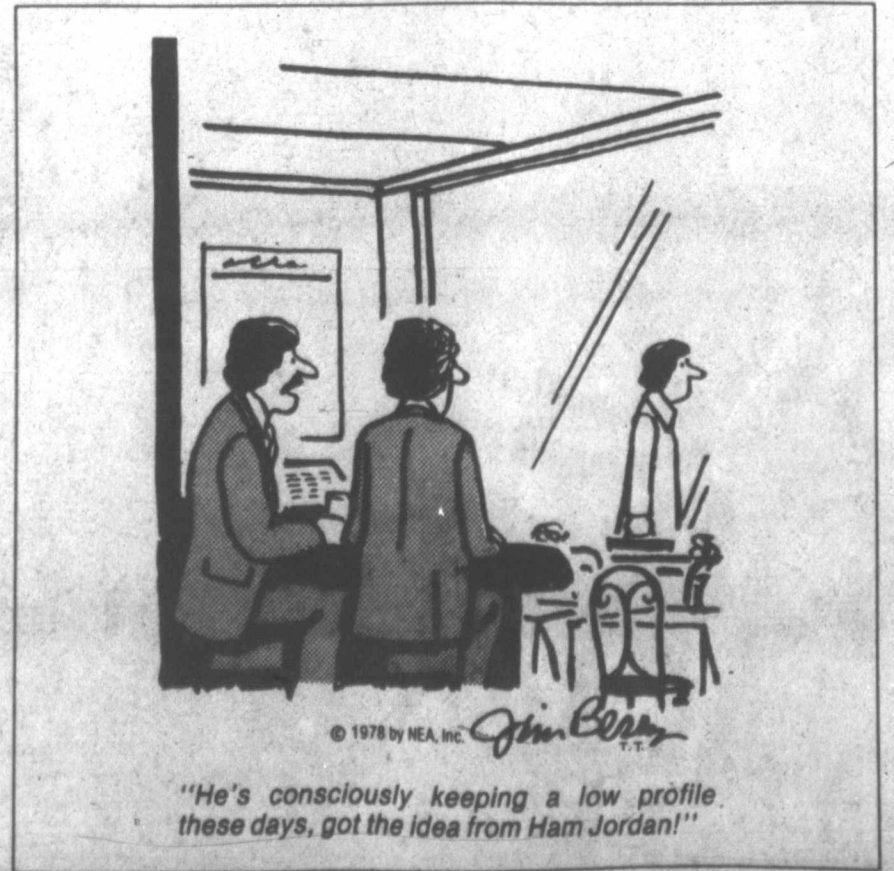

The point here is that the commentator generally is a former jock himself. He is not a journalist at all. He is an athlete, a performer, even a sort of publicist. He is a buddy of the athletes, maybe a member of their union or a participant in their retirement plan. In the case of the two guys who announce Atlanta Braves baseball games, they are employees of the owners of the club.

The television sports commentator very often is a part of the sports Establishment, either by direct employment or by professional association. None of them could cover a traffic accident or write a story about the city council. They are special pleaders, in a sense, defending their profession.

I have no objection to all of this, but I wonder that it hasn't been pointed out to the listener whom he's listening to. They may have been great athletes, good showmen, excellent technicians — but reporters they are not. And you really can't pay much serious attention to what they say outside a description of what you're watching along with them.

New law governing commuter airlines 'Cutthroat competition' possible

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A new federal law might trigger "cutthroat competition" for commuter airline routes in Texas, but the airlines at least should be safe and financially sound, says the Texas Aeronautics Commission.

The commission has adopted emergency rules to maintain at least minimal state control over intrastate airlines in the face of deregulation mandated by the new act.

Airline routes, service and ticket prices no longer are subject to commission control — except those of Southwest Airlines — under terms of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 that President Carter signed in October.

If Southwest receives federal authority to fly its first out-of-state route, from Dallas to New Orleans, it, too, will leave the commission's jurisdiction.

Rules approved by the commission Tuesday are designed to "keep out the fly-by-nights what have been drooling over the Texas market," one staff member said.

The rules require all intrastate air carriers to have minimum capitalization of $50,000, prove they meet Federal Aviation Agency safety requirements, post a performance bond of $100,000 and carry liability insurance.

Mrs. Whitworth said all intrastate airlines must apply for a commission certificate of operating authority, "which is our seal of approval that they are somebody the Texas public can rely on."

All the airlines also must file quarterly and yearly reports with the commission.

Commission chairman David Wits of Dallas issued a statement saying the emergency regulations were designed to "offset any possible negative effects" of the airline deregulation law.

"The passage of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 by our esteemed Congress will probably bring to a close a great era in Texas transportation history," Wits said.

He called the emergency rules the commission's "first step to prevent chaos from engulfing our transportation system."

The commission said the rules were endorsed by two commuter airlines, Rio of Killen and Tejas of San Antonio.

Analysis of national summit: U.S. farmers can't agree

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The farmers of America proved one thing during a three-day conference on agricultural problems — they can't agree.

Spokesmen for that organization said the solutions to farm problems offered at the conference were "hogwash and the opinions of egghead experts and pointed-headed intellectuals."

The AAM demonstrations

John Kramer, associate dean of Georgetown University School of Law, recognized the influence of the militant farmers by saying, "The old-line, established farm organizations are going to have to be willing to work with the new groups, however brash their tactics may be."

A National Farm Summit that ended Wednesday on the campus of Texas A&M University brought more dissension than it did decisions.

The conference was called to discuss the major problems facing American farmers, such as rising production costs, low farm income, and governmental regulations.

During the conference, the AAM supporters staged one rally and brought some 75 vehicles onto the campus of the university. The vehicles included several tractors, which have become a symbol of the farmer protest movement, and 25 trucks loaded with grain from Colorado and Wyoming.

The sessions produced no final solutions, only a few suggestions, and disruptions by the American Agricultural Movement, a group of militant farmers demanding what they believe to be fair prices for their products.

The grain later was hauled to the Port of Houston and stored in public facilities for sale to farm markets. Port officials said the grain was of high quality and of the type that could be sold easily to foreign markets.

Spokesmen for the Agricultural Council of America, sponsors of the meeting, said if all the farm movements could be united progress might be made in the years ahead.

Some of the best things we heard have come from the AAM and may have dramatized our problems. But I think it can be overcome."

Medical course set

MEMPHIS - Clarendon College has scheduled an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) class in Memphis. Registration for the class is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Hall County Hospital in Memphis. The course, scheduled for 7-10 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, carries a $12 registration fee plus book costs. Marshall Peters, certified as an EMT instructor by the Texas Education Agency, will be the instructor.

The class is designed to train ambulance drivers, volunteer firemen and others confronted with emergency medical situations which result from accidents, drownings, fires, acute illnesses and heart attacks.

Students are taught needed skills in the classroom, practice them and observe medical situations in the hospital. Upon satisfactory completion of the course, students will be certified Emergency Medical Technicians by the Texas State Department of Health.

Abolish Regulatory Agencies

by John F. McManus
Belmont, Massachusetts — Federal regulation is becoming everyone's concern. Candidates for federal offices know that any denunciation of the regulators will strike a responsive chord. Back in 1976, both presidential candidates told the nation that something had to be done about strangulation by bureaucracy. Predictably, nothing but additional regulation has resulted.

Recently, the world famous Polaroid Corporation had to go to court to protect its highly secret picture-producing chemical process. The EPA has demanded all of the details of the process in order to determine if the environment, or the employees, are being damaged. Whether Polaroid will be able to hold off Big Brother remains to be seen.

Register. The EPA, the most far-reaching of all the bureaucracy's agencies, was itself created by a Nixon Executive Order published in 1970.

The Constitution, of course, grants no such law-making authority to the President or to his staff. Laws are supposed to be made by Congress — the Legislative branch — not by Executive Orders. But now, the Federal Register bulges with 60,000 pages of this "administrative law" yearly. Even though Presidents since George Washington have issued Executive Orders, they were never supposed to cover anything beyond housekeeping directives and administrative rulings for smooth functioning within the Executive branch.

Starting in 1887
The first federal regulatory agency — the Interstate Commerce Commission — was created in 1887. Its existence was justified by reference to the Constitutional grant of federal power to regulate interstate commerce. But that clause in the Constitution was intended to keep states from erecting tariffs and other barriers to domestic trade. No power to meddle in private business was given. The ICC was unconstitutional right from its inception and, when it was not so declared, the door was opened for hundreds of similar federal agencies.

Abolish Them
All across America, businessmen and consumers are screaming as the government assumes more of the power of life and death over free enterprise. Paperwork alone now costs $46 billion per year according to Congressman John Roussetot (R-Cal.). Additional costs to satisfy the huge and growing army of bureaucrats reach additional hundreds of billions of dollars. Beyond these costs, the regulatory burden has destroyed some businesses, cut into planned expansion of others, and thrown — or kept — workers out of jobs and on welfare rolls. The solution can only be abolition of these federal monstrosities. Along with that much-needed move, any assumption of law-making power by the Executive branch must be terminated.

Today, America's productive sector is hobbled by OSHA, EPA, FTC, FCC, FDA, FEA, EEOC, and so many federal agencies that, a few years ago, no one in the Office of Management and Budget could even say how many there were. Today, the General Accounting Office estimates that more than 1,250 federal advisory boards, committees, commissions, and councils are regulating America's businesses.

When our Founding Fathers had their fill of oppression by King George III, one of the charges made against him was that he had "... sent hither Swarms of Officers to harass our People, and eat out their Substance." History repeats! The "Swarms of Officers" are on the loose again. Whether we succeed in getting government off our backs, or whether government continues toward total domination remains to be seen.

Executive Decrees
Practically all of these regulations become law, not through any action by Congress, but simply through being published in the Federal Register. The EPA, the most far-reaching of all the bureaucracy's agencies, was itself created by a Nixon Executive Order published in 1970.

Fire out of control

MONTREAL (AP) — A five-alarm fire burned out of control at Notre Dame Cathedral today, threatening the historic Montreal landmark.

First reports said the fire that began around 7 a. m. EST was destroying an annex at the rear, while the cathedral itself was filled with smoke.

Flames shot high into the sky and firemen had difficulty setting up eight aerial ladders because of the narrow streets around the block-sized cathedral.

Notre Dame, built more than a century ago, faces Place d'Armes in the city's old financial district.

Carter to go to meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will attend a four-nation summit meeting next month on the Caribbean island of Guadalupe to discuss arms limitations and other issues, it was announced today.

Carter said the Jan. 5-6 meeting on the French island, called by French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, will be "a somewhat social affair, but we'll also be discussing issues and meeting privately to discuss questions that affect us all."

A simultaneous announcement of the summit was made in Paris, where a government spokesman said discussions will focus on "the state of the world at the end of 1978."

Besides Carter and Giscard d'Estaing, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and British Prime Minister James Callaghan will attend.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
A winter storm roared out of New Mexico into northwestern sections of the Texas Panhandle early today, bringing with it snow, freezing rain and sleet.

About two inches of snow had accumulated at Dalhart in the Panhandle by the pre-dawn hours and the mercury at Dalhart dipped to a bone-chilling nine degrees. That temperature contrasted sharply with the 77-degree reading at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley at the same hour.

Potter County deputies called for crews to dump salt on rapidly icing overpasses in the Amarillo area early today as driving conditions became hazardous.

A winter storm watch was posted for the Panhandle and South Plains for late today and tonight and a travelers advisory was posted for the northwestern portion of the Texas Panhandle and the northern one-third of Northeast Texas today.

Only South Texas had any sort of good weather early today. Snow was falling in the Panhandle, freezing drizzle and rain was falling in West Texas, fog cut visibility to near zero at Longview in East Texas and dense fog was also reported at Lufkin and along the Texas coast between Houston and Victoria.

Forecasts called for scattered snow in the Panhandle and mountains of Southwest Texas with accumulations of 2-4 inches. Freezing drizzle was forecast across the South Plains eastward into the Red River Valley. And South and Southeast Texas expected rain and drizzle. Highs were expected to range from about 20 in the Panhandle to the upper 80s in far South Texas.

Some early morning temperatures included 16 at Amarillo, 27 at Wichita Falls, 64 at Texarkana, 34 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 57 at Austin, 56 at Lufkin, 55 at Houston, 68 at Corpus Christi, 45 at Del Rio, 32 at San Angelo, 36 at El Paso and 24 at Lubbock.

Amarillo reported light snow. Freezing drizzle was reported at Abilene and Midland-Odessa. Fog was reported at Austin, College Station, Cotulla, Houston, Longview, Lufkin, Palacios, San Antonio, Texarkana, Victoria and Waco.

7 killed as jet crashes in dike

By ELLEN HADDOW
Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A Mexican air force DC-6 which exploded in a "red ball of fire" and crashed into a dike on the Missouri River, killing all seven persons aboard, had spent three days under repair and was leaking oil shortly before takeoff, airport witnesses said.

The bodies of five men and two women, identified as crew members, were recovered from the burned wreckage, acting Douglas County Coroner James Keenan said.

Witnesses said the four-engine plane exploded about 50 feet above the ground, slammed into the dike, flipped over and landed in flames just after taking off from Epley Airfield about 5:25 p. m. Wednesday.

Mike Steiner, an employee of a commercial charter company, said the plane did not appear to be in trouble when he "heard a loud boom and saw a huge red ball of fire."

Lt. Col. Sanchez Ortiz of Mexico City said he spoke with members of the crew by telephone Monday and they told him cold weather had caused condensation in the engines. He said workmen apparently had been unable to dry the engines out.

An airport employee, who was not further identified, told reporters the crew worked for several hours Wednesday before they could get the engines started. He said oil was leaking from at least one engine.

Omaha Public Safety Director Bill McDonnell confirmed the crew made a last-minute repair on one engine before the craft took off for San Antonio, Texas.

Snow, ice and temperatures hovering near zero hampered efforts by firefighters to extinguish the burning aircraft until three hours after the crash.

Ortiz, a Mexican air force spokesman, identified the dead as Capt. Luis Jauregui Ramos, Lt. Samuel Pedroza Cardenas, Sgt. Luis Barbarosa, Sgt. Sergio Ojeda, Sgt. Luis Domingos and flight attendants Esther Romo Soto and Blanca Silva.

Ortiz said the seven were members of the Mexican air force.

FORMER PRESIDENTS can always take to the classroom after the Oval office. Gerald R. Ford has lectured at nearly 40 college campuses in the past 20 months. (AP Laserphoto)

Ford goes to college

PROVO, Utah (AP) — The professor flies from campus to campus in a chartered jet surrounded by bodyguards and his personal staff. He is treated better than a college president, and gives the same lectures over and over.

Gerald R. Ford has made a comfortable transition from the Oval Office to the classroom.

As a Distinguished Fellow of the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative alternative to the Brookings Institute, Ford has shared his views on the workings of government with students at nearly 40 college campuses in the past 20 months.

The president-turned-professor didn't have to worry about students coming late to classes this week at Brigham Young University; most students were in their seats before he arrived, and latecomers had to watch on closed-circuit television.

With Secret Service agents flanking the podium, the professor needn't have worried about classroom discipline.

Ford was his own visual aid.

His classroom demeanor was unmarred except for one incident in which his clip-on microphone cord nearly knocked a glass of water off the lectern.

"I nearly cracked up," said a first-year law student later. But there wasn't a sound from students until Ford picked up his commentary where he left off.

Bill Orton, a third-year law student from Portland, Ore., observed it has been a long time since Ford practiced law, but he said the former president's appearance was valuable because it gave insight to the workings of government and to those who write the laws.

When a student asked Ford a lengthy, involved question, the former president quipped, "I haven't kept abreast of that case as well as you obviously have..." That brought laughter and applause.

"You can tell he's a politician," said one student afterward. "He's a quick thinker."

Ford said he's never been asked a question yet he couldn't answer.

James Schuman, who worked in the White House press office before joining several Ford administration employees at the institute in 1977, said the classes are intended to "further understanding of public policy."

They also provide Ford with public exposure while he decides whether to run for the presidency in 1980. He is frequently asked if he has made up his mind.

At political gatherings, Ford said, he is a politician. But on campus, the ex-president sees himself as an educator.

"Only when there is a news conference are those barriers crossed," Ford said, explaining that he has sometimes been questioned by the press on college campuses.

His pattern is to briefly address a college class — usually in political science, law or economics — leaving the rest of the hour for questions from students.

The questions usually relate to politics, specifically his views on the Carter administration and his experience with Richard Nixon. He tries to avoid criticism of Nixon, but doesn't hold back his views on Carter, especially on the Democratic president's economic policies, even when the question comes from a student.

"He blew it," Ford said of Carter during a class in political science. "If they had followed the policies we started, inflation would be around 4 percent instead of double what it was 20 months ago."

Ford speaks highly of the current college generation.

Horses are galloping in warehouse district

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Horses are galloping in Austin's downtown warehouse district. A giant sunglasses peers at Dallas City Hall. And Charles Lindbergh gazes over St. Louis, Mo., traffic.

They're not hallucinations, but the visions of two St. Louis outdoor muralists out to change American cityscapes.

"Ten years ago, art outside was relegated to the statue of the hero," said Sarah Linquist of On The Wall Productions.

"There just wasn't any. Then in the mid-60s, political and social murals began," the 26-year-old artist said. "That was really the roots of it — people wanting to take over their environment in the inner city."

Ms. Linquist and business partner Bob Fishstone started splashing colors on walls five years ago. Their projects include a mural painted with more than 50 citizens of Mark Twain's Hannibal, Mo. and the recently completed two-wall mural of horses prancing into outer space in Austin.

Both Fishstone, 27, and his partner graduated from Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, where they painted several works.

They mix abstract and realistic themes and design for specific sites.

"Instead of developing one set, artistic style, we gravitated toward taking each space as a separate territory," she said.

Reactions vary to their work. Fishstone said. "When we do a mural, we realize people are going to see it different ways," he said during a break on the horses scene. "The people in their cars probably see big bursts of color. For people walking by, there's more."

As he spoke, a car slowed to admire the unexpected colorful spray amidst monotonous brick facades.

"Texas skies are incredible. Each day is a different show," he said, explaining the mural depicts horses emerging from clouds at different times of the day before they gallop off into space.

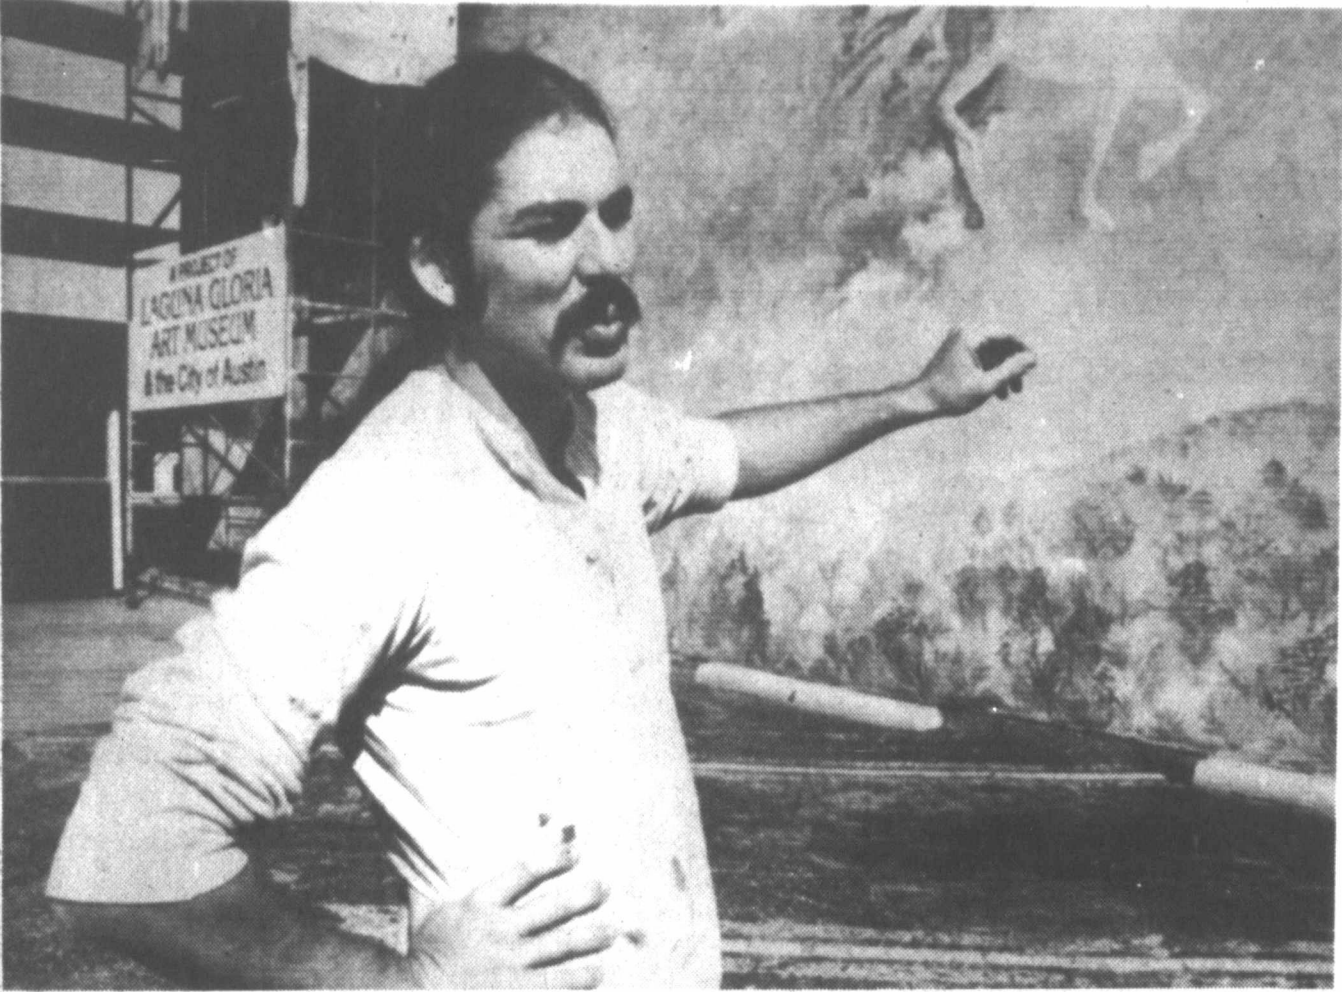

The Linquist-Fishstone team travels with an old postal delivery truck bought at a surplus sale. Unlike many muralists, their work is spread across several states and regions.

Many projects are funded through public grants, she said. Private businesses and foundations pay for others. The Austin City Council paid them $5,000.

The so-called taxpayers' revolt could threaten many muralists, who depend heavily on public funding, she said.

"Unless the general tide of the Proposition 13 mentality strangles it" Ms. Linquist said outdoor art will thrive.

"When we started doing murals in St. Louis, not many people knew what they were," she said. "Now most people have seen several of them. Now they are just a part of their visual vocabulary."

National briefs

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The CBS television network will broadcast a 90-minute news show, anchored by Charles Kuralt, each Sunday morning starting in January, says Gene Jankowski, president of CBS Broadcast Group.

"We're going to improve morning programming and break new ground on Sunday mornings," Jankowski said Tuesday. The program probably will run from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and "be like a Sunday morning newspaper, with news of the week and features," he said.

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Researchers say they have achieved a breakthrough in the battle against African sleeping sickness, rated by the World Health Organization as one of the world's 10 major diseases.

Dr. George Hill, an associate professor of pathology at Colorado State University, said Tuesday a research team has discovered how to grow the causative agent of the disease. This will enable scientists to study origins of the sickness that strikes more than 10,000 people and huge numbers of cattle annually.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A New York stamp collector has paid $72,500 for part of a stamp collection willed to Birmingham by a local stamp dealer's wife.

Henry Engel's bid for the stamps left by the widow of collector J. Hubert Scruggs topped bids of $65,400 and $61,000.

The total Scruggs collection, said archivist Marvin Whiting, includes between 500,000 and 1 million items.

CHICAGO (AP) — O'Hare International, the nation's busiest airport, by 1990 will be handling more than twice the passengers it was designed for. Federal Aviation Administration officials predict.

FAA officials projected on Tuesday that air traffic in the Chicago area will increase 138 per cent between 1975 and 1990. The airport is equipped to handle up to 35 million passengers a year and could be handling more than 75 million by 1990, they said.

This year, O'Hare is expected to handle more than 50 million passengers.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The Tulsa Audubon Society has received a $124,000 interest-free loan to purchase land now threatened by developers that serves as a winter roosting spot for about 60 bald eagles.

Richard Sherry, Tulsa Audubon Society treasurer, said Tuesday that the foundation, wishing anonymity, would agree to forgive the loan if the land is purchased within five years.

Israeli, Egypt peace pact came before Camp David

JERUSALEM (AP) — Egypt and Israel, powerful neighbors unable to vanquish each other, decided not to fight, and concluded a peace pact instead. But there were no television cameras and no Nobel Prizes. The date was 970 B.C.

Before Menachem Begin and Anwar Sadat came along, the only recorded instance of a formal peace agreement between Israel and Egypt occurred nearly 3,000 years ago, according to Avraham Malamat, professor of biblical history at Hebrew University.

King Solomon clinched the pact in his usual way: by taking a daughter of the pharaoh as one of his 1,000 wives.

Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin, discussing the ancient agreement at a recent conference of scholars, wryly assured them that "there is no secret provision in the Camp David accords which calls for parallel action by the prime minister."

The Old Testament Book of Kings mentions in five places Solomon's marriage to a daughter of the pharaoh, adding that the fabled Jewish king received the area of Gezer, 20 miles west of Jerusalem on the coastal plain, as a dowry.

But there are no details of Egyptian-Israeli relations during the period, so Malamat applied historical records and modern concepts to sketch an account of the story.

"We have to speculate," he said in an interview. "The biblical historians couldn't understand external factors or evaluate the events in global terms. But the human mind worked the same way and the geopolitical setting was the same as today."

King David, Solomon's father, extended the Israelite empire southward, presenting Egypt with a powerful adversary on its border for the first time. After David died, Egyptian forces moved north and defeated the Canaanites at Gezer, a fortress city on the road to Jerusalem.

According to Egyptian records, the pharaoh at the time was Siamun of the 21st dynasty, which ruled during a relatively weak period of ancient Egyptian history.

"We can speculate pretty certainly that the pharaoh's target was Jerusalem, the capital of Israel," Malamat said. "It's inconceivable that the pharaoh would start a campaign hundreds of miles across Sinai, capture the major fortification on the way to Jerusalem, and then give it as a gift."

The historian reasoned that Siamun sought to exploit the weakness that usually occurred at the beginning of a reign to regain control of an area Egypt had ruled 200 years before.

"But he made a mistake. Solomon was so strong that he could compel the pharaoh to give up his dream of conquering Israel and force him to enter a political arrangement. The pharaoh was forced to give up Gezer in the guise of a dowry," Malamat said.

No other pharaoh ever gave his daughter to a foreign ruler, which indicated Solomon's strong position, Malamat said. But for the king, "diplomatic marriages were common, instead of military conquest."

"A political marriage was like ratification of a treaty," he said. "It's like a signature on a document, the last step in an agreement. If there was a marriage, then there was an agreement."

The story's end was not so rosy. No further records exist of the pharaoh's daughter, indicating she was not one of Solomon's important wives. Nor is there any record of contact or commerce between the countries, but Israel and Egypt coexisted peacefully until midway through Solomon's 40-year reign. Then the 21st dynasty collapsed in Egypt, and its successor founded unrest in Solomon's empire, then invaded it after his death about 933 B.C.

Washington briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury has announced its first sales of securities in foreign denominations under measures unveiled Nov. 1 to protect the dollar on foreign money markets.

The government said Tuesday it will sell up to $1.5 billion in securities in German marks on Dec. 12. The securities will be sold only to residents of West Germany and the offering will be made through the German Central Bank. Interest rates will be determined Dec. 12. Sales of securities in Swiss francs are planned in January and possibly in Japanese yen later next year, the Treasury said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration says it is checking a suspected safety defect in the steering systems of Ford E series Econoline vans and F series light trucks produced from 1974 through 1977.

The agency said Tuesday the vehicles may suffer a steering loss when the steering gear box separates from the frame. There are about 1.3 million of the vehicles in use. The agency said it has received 26 reports of steering failures, including two concerning alleged accidents and two alleged injuries.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the U.S. Metric Board says the panel "has no mandate to cram anything down anyone's throat and it has no intention to do so."

Chairman Louis Polk told about 100 business representatives at a meeting sponsored by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce Tuesday that the nation's voluntary conversion to the metric system of measurement is expected to take many years and, even then, some industries may not go along. He added that the board intends to leave it up to each industry to decide on a conversion timetable.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The discount airline fares which have prompted the current boom in air travel will probably taper off in the next year or so "because they're so expensive for the airlines to administer," according to a California airline executive.

Paul Barkley, executive vice president of Pacific Southwest Airlines, told a group of aviation reporters Tuesday that the discounts may end because the industry has a shortage of aircraft and passenger capacity. "When a commodity is in short supply you don't price it down," he said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. says his department is considering whether to issue tougher regulations in nursing homes.

Two-thirds of the nursing homes that receive Medicare or Medicaid funds already have sprinklers, as required by the Life Safety Code of the National Fire Protection Association, but HEW is considering making all nursing homes install sprinklers at an estimated cost of $400 million to $500 million, Califano said Tuesday. He said the government will not take the action unless it is convinced that the increased costs will significantly improve fire protection.

Walking billboards aid agribusinesses

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Around the farm they're called "walking billboards" — baseball-style caps carrying company names and pictures of products such as tractors and ears of corn.

It's an advertising medium long recognized by major U.S. agribusinesses that has found popularity in cities and campuses across the country. K-Products Inc., an Orange City, Iowa, firm that is an industry leader in production of the baseball-style caps, has seen the market grow from implement and seed manufacturers to include such companies as Coca-Cola, New York Life and Kawasaki motorcycles.

"The feed and seed and agri-related businesses are what put us on the map," said Lyle Fogelman, personnel manager for K-Products, which makes 300-

000 caps a week. "They opened the eyes of other companies that this was a very good way to promote their products."

Two other top manufacturers, Louisville (Ky.) Manufacturing Co. and Swingster Wearables of Bonner Springs, Kan., have noted similar demand for the caps, which carry a company's emblem or initials on the front. "Agriculture is about 50 percent of our cap market, but our caps also promote motorcycles, sparkplugs, the auto industry, all kinds of areas," said Swingster regional sales manager Richard Gryczkowski.

Frank Lipschutz, president of Louisville Manufacturing, said, "Dollar for dollar, the amount of advertising exposure that a company gets from the caps is probably more intense than anywhere else."

New York Life got into the promotional cap business through a television commercial featuring a football coach wearing a cap with the company's emblem.

"We started getting requests from our people for caps and T-shirts," said Gus Cooper, vice president for advertising. "A farmer in the state of Washington saw our ad and wrote me saying he had to have a cap. We don't normally do this, but I sent this guy one and then told one of our best agents to go out and see him."

Coca-Cola USA is looking into making caps available to its local bottlers that would promote Coke's position as the official soft drink of the 1980 Olympic Games, said spokesman Joe Wilkinson. Coke bottlers already supply caps for such uses as Little League teams and motor sports events.

What Coca-Cola and New York Life are learning about the value of having their names on a cap has been known to such agribusinesses as DeKalb, John Deere and International Harvester for more than a decade. They've been using them as sales and purchasing incentives, in promotions and for over-the-counter sales.

The average teen-age American boy downs 5.3 pounds of food a day, or nearly a ton every 12 months.

FOCUS

Surprise Attack

Thirty-seven years ago today, at 7:55 a.m., December 7, 1941, the first Japanese bombs fell on the American naval base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Two hours later, the attack was over. The Japanese had destroyed about 170 U.S. planes, but had lost only 29 of their own. They had sunk or damaged 18 American ships. They had lost 5 midget submarines. More than 2,200 Americans died in the attack. The Japanese lost fewer than 100 men. On one American battleship alone, the Arizona, at least 1,100 persons were killed. Declaring December 7 "a date which will live in infamy," President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a declaration of war the next day.

Nielsens shakeup top spots

NEW YORK (AP) — The week was hardly one of distinction for the TV news-magazine, though a fourth-place finish for "60 Minutes" would, under normal circumstances, be quite satisfying to CBS.

But for "60 Minutes," it was a fall from first to fourth after a 10-year climb to the top that climaxed the week before. ABC's "20-20," in one of its sporadic appearances, was ranked No. 48 for the week ending Dec. 3, and the premiere installment of NBC's "Weekend" as a weekly, prime-time program, was 65th — dead last. ABC had the week's three top-rated shows, including No. 1 "Laverne and Shirley," figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed. "Laverne and Shirley" was fifth the week before, behind "60 Minutes" and two other CBS programs, "All in the Family" and "Alice."

Indeed, the shakeup at the top had little effect on the networks' ratings race, with ABC No. 1 as it has been all but twice this season.

ABC's rating was 19.7, followed by CBS at 19.5 and NBC at 18.7. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 19.7 percent of the homes in the country were tuned to ABC.

ABC's "Happy Days" and "Three's Company" trailed their Tuesday night companion in the ratings, followed by NBC's best, "Little House on the Prairie," in a tie with "60 Minutes" and two other shows.

"Alice," meanwhile, dipped to No. 9, and "All in the Family" was 13th. The two programs air Sunday.

The rating for "Laverne and Shirley" was 30, Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 30 percent saw at least part of the program.

NBC's failing was at the bottom of the ratings — three of the week's five lowest-rated programs, NBC's "The Story of Christmas" was No. 61, followed by "Good Times" on CBS, "Project U.F.O." on NBC, CBS' "Rhoda" and NBC's "Weekend."

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

"Laverne and Shirley," with a rating of 30 representing 22.4 million homes, "Happy Days," 29.2 or 21.7 million, and "Three's Company," 29.1 or 21.7 million, all ABC; "Little House on the Prairie," NBC, "60 Minutes" and "M-A-S-H," both CBS, and "Eight is Enough," ABC, all 27.6 or 20.6 million; "I Alone Survived," 27 or 20.1 million, NBC; "Alice," 25.1 or 19.1 million, and "One Day at a Time," 25 or 18.7 million, both CBS.

The next 10 shows: "Love Boat" and "Mork and Mindy," ABC; "All in the Family" and "Raggedy Ann and Andy," both CBS; "Fantasy Island" and "Taxi," ABC; "Incredible Hulk," CBS; "Centennial," NBC; "Kaz," CBS, and "Barney Miller," ABC.

Slow dancing in the Big City

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — From Mary Pickford to Genevieve Bujold, Canada has provided the screen with acting talent. From Leslie Caron to Leslie Brown, the world of dance has been equally generous.

Now comes a double gift: Anne Ditchburn, Ontario-born ballet star.

She appears opposite Paul Sorvino in the new film by John Avildsen, "Slow Dancing in the Big City." The United Artists release has opened to mixed reviews. Some critics, including this one, found it charming though flawed. Others have assailed the film as sloppily sentimental.

"I'm not surprised by the adverse reviews," says the outspoken Miss Ditchburn, who has been dancing for 21 of her 29 years.

"Not many critics are romantically minded, and I must say that I am not romantic in judging my peers in the dance world. There is a razor-fine edge between romanticism and corn, and I think 'Slow Dancing' worked against the corn. John's films hit people emotionally; he is a genius at that.

"I see no better reason for films than to affect people. When I go to the theatre, I love to laugh and cry."

"Slow Dancing in the Big City" relates the offbeat romance between a New York columnist, a pushover for the heart-tugging human interest story, and a dedicated, ailing ballerina. Avildsen, who won the Oscar for "Rocky," is comfortable with such material.

"John deals with heroes in his work," says Miss Ditchburn. "Many of us don't like to admit that we have heroes. I know I didn't. But then I realized that I had one in Rudy Nureyev, who has danced with our company, the National Ballet of Canada, for six years."

Anne Ditchburn was choreographing a ballet at the Metropolitan Opera House when director Avildsen happened to see her photograph in the New York Times. The pose showed her rehearsing a couple of dancers, and Avildsen detected a sense of energy. He called her for an audition, which began as a disaster.

"My dramatic acting on the stage had been strictly limited to dance," she says. "When I first read the scene, my inexperience showed. But John filmed me over and over again, and gradually I improved."

Nashville sound: Elvis stockpiled

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Like coal stockpiled for a long winter, songs that Elvis Presley recorded but did not release are being used to heat up his posthumous record sales.

And Presley fans, who still love him tender, can be assured that there probably will be Presley records coming out for some time.

Presley's new album, "Elvis, A Legendary Performer, Vol. 3," contains two songs never released before and new versions of six other songs.

Felton Jarvis, Presley's producer, has said there are "reams and reams" of taped songs by Presley that have never been released.

The new songs on the current album are "Danny," written and recorded for the movie "King Creole," and "Britches," recorded for the movie "Flaming Star." Both were edited out of the films.

The album also contains new versions of the songs "Fame and Fortune," "Frankfort Special," "G.I. Blues," "Guadalajara," "It Hurts Me" and "Let It Be Me."

Sim Myers, a spokesman for RCA Records in New York, said there should be different versions of most of the songs Presley recorded.

"It usually takes two or three takes to get the one they like," he said, referring to recording sessions. "I assume there might be alternate takes of everything he recorded."

He also said Presley's concerts might have been taped, which would provide another source for future records.

The new album is Presley's 64th and the eighth released or reissued since he died in August 1977. Presley albums continue to be big sellers with nine certified gold since his death.

Baseball owners to discuss restructure

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Major league baseball club owners meet today to consider the restructuring of baseball to three division leagues with double-tiered playoffs.
And, as has often been the case, the American League appears to be for the new system, while at least three National League clubs oppose giving the grand old game a brand new look.
It takes a three-quarters majority of the 14 team American League and a unanimous National League approval to adopt the system proposed by a 10 man reorganization committee.
One National executive said his league might vote to change to a majority consent, but added, "it takes a unanimous vote to make the change."
The owners held an informal discussion meeting Wednesday and listened to the report on this radical restructuring of the game. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn termed the report positive.

Frank Cashen of Baltimore and Joe L. Brown, former Pittsburgh general manager, presented the committee's findings on the revolutionary plan.
If the plan should be accepted, and the history of change in baseball would indicate the subject will be studied further, the two leagues would divide this way:
American League — EAST: New York, Boston, Baltimore and Toronto. CENTRAL: Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and Milwaukee. WEST: Kansas City, California, Seattle, Minnesota, Texas and Oakland.
National League — EAST: Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Montreal and New York. CENTRAL: Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis and Atlanta. WEST: Los Angeles, San Francisco, San Diego and Houston.

The first round of playoffs probably would be best three of five, with two division winners meeting, and a division winner against a wild card team. The two victors would vie for the league pennant and a spot in the World Series.
Kuhn said in Wednesday's preliminary meeting of owners there were some conclusions which will be placed before the league meetings today. Kuhn was evasive when asked whether there would be a vote today, however.
"They (the owners) might think it is a grand idea and adopt it for 1980. Then, they might think it interesting but needs more study," Kuhn said at a news briefing Wednesday.
"Or it might run into a veto, but I don't expect that," the Commissioner added.
A National League source indicated Los Angeles, Philadelphia and possibly Cincinnati were against the plan, unless the evidence proved it was in the best interest of baseball.

The 10-man committee believes the plan is the game's financial salvation. Ever increasing player salaries, multi-million dollar free agent contracts and inflated operating costs have forced baseball to look for new revenue.
While one National League source said the American League might go with the plan alone, Kuhn said, "it is much better if this is done, that it be done together. We've discussed this and I don't believe there is much chance of a problem of this nature."
A major factor in the three divisional plan is television and the additional money it would pay for a second tier of playoffs.
"We haven't got concrete figures," Kuhn said, "but if the enthusiasm is there (among the owners), we will look for concrete figures."
Lee MacPhail, American League president, said the sentiment in both leagues seemed positive. "I'd say a majority of our clubs are very much interested," MacPhail said.

Kuhn made it clear that interleague play was not part of the reorganization.
"The identity of the two leagues is part of the magic of baseball," the commissioner said.
Kuhn also said he felt there was a lot of interest in the plan by the three major television networks.
The reorganization plan was the major news from the annual winter baseball meetings where some minor trades and other actions were taken Wednesday.
The main trade sent reliever Victor Cruz from Toronto to Cleveland in exchange for a pair of minor league infielders, Alfredo Griffin and Phil Lannford.
"We are future-oriented," said Pat Gillick, general manager of the Toronto club.

Young closes in on leading bronc rider

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Mickey Young of Ferron, Utah, posted his second straight go-round victory Wednesday night to put an end to Bruce Ford's runaway bid for the National Finals Rodeo bareback bronc riding championship.
Ford, the runaway season money winner from Evans, Colo., held a 130-to-70 point edge over Young going into Wednesday's competition. But after placing first or second four times in the first five go-rounds, Ford finished seventh in the sixth and got no points.
The 26-year-old Young followed up Tuesday's score of 77 with an 80 Wednesday. It was the highest total in bareback riding thus far at this year's NFR.
His 40 points for first-place trimmed Ford's advantage to 130-110.
In other highlights, Willard Woody of Wynnewood, Okla., tied the all-time NFR calf roping mark of 8.5 seconds, and the father-and-son team of Dick and J.D. Yates turned in a sizzling time of 6.7 seconds in team roping to take over the lead in that championship race.

The Yates now have 105 points for the week, 10 ahead of previous leaders Julio Moreno and Dennis Walker.
A fierce two-way battle continued in barrel racing, where Lynn McKenzie of Shreveport, La., overtook previous leader Carol Goostree of Verden, Okla. McKenzie won her third go-round and pushed her point total to 160. Goostree tied for third and has 150 points.
Roy Duvall moved past Tom Puryear in the steer wrestling race by placing third and picking up 20 points. Duvall now has 110 points, five ahead of Puryear.
In the race for the all-around cowboy championship, Danny Torricellas of Eugene, Ore., padded his lead with a second-place finish in calf roping. He now has 120 points, compared with 85 for Ike Sankey and 80 each for defending champion Tom Ferguson and Dave Brock.

Mustangs win tight game over North Texas State

By The Associated Press
Sonny Allen, basketball coach at Southern Methodist, was emotionally drained after the Mustangs' 92-91 victory over North Texas State.
His son, freshman guard Billy Allen, connected on two free throws with 52 seconds to play and the Ponies threw a pesky defense at the Mean Green to preserve the victory Wednesday night.
"It was just a matter of who would have the lead when time ran out," Allen said after the battle. "I'm glad it was us who was leading at the time."
The encounter was the only close match of four involving Southwest Conference teams Wednesday.
In the other games, sophomore Rynn Wright led seven players in double figures as Texas A&M thumped Sam Houston State 107-74. Kenneth Williams led Houston past Hardin-Simmons 102-86, and Arkansas rode the scoring and rebounding of Sidney Moncrief to an 84-54 victory over West Texas State.
For North Texas State, the loss was its second heartbreaking loss in a row. After being tied 100-all with Baylor at the end of regulation, North Texas dropped a Monday night game 109-102.

Reggie Franklin was credited for much of the SMU victory. He slapped away a jump shot by NTSU's Waymond Lister with 59 seconds left. Wright v as leading scorer with 17.
Houston's press forced 16 first-half turnovers by Hardin-Simmons, which Cougar Coach Guy Lewis found encouraging.
"I felt we needed work on the presses. I think our press is going to get better. We went three weeks working on it and didn't get better, but I thought there was some progress tonight," Lewis said.
Moncrief scored 25 pounds and grabbed 16 rebounds for Arkansas, now 2-0. He hit seven field goals and missed only once in 12 tries from the foul line. Freshman Keith Peterson scored 18 points and sophomore U.S. Reed 15 for the Hogs, who used 14 players. The Razorbacks led only 23-18 in a low-scoring first half.

the victory, the fifth straight for Texas A&M, came with the Aggie starters playing less than half the game. A&M shot 68 percent from the field in taking a 60-32 halftime lead over Sam Houston State, now 0-7. Wright v as leading scorer with 17.

Rockets lose, Nissalke talks with Patterson

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets led the National Basketball Association champion Washington Bullets through the first 45 minutes of their game Wednesday night.
Then the action really got serious.
It started with the Bullets wiping out a nine-point fourth quarter Houston lead and edging to a 101-96 victory on clutch shooting in the final two minutes by Bob Dandridge and Kevin Grevey.
It continued after the game when Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke was ushered into a meeting with Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson.
Following the lengthy closed door meeting, Nissalke emerged and said he had no comment about his future as coach of the Rockets.
"I can't read anybody's mind," Nissalke said, referring to Patterson. "You'll have to ask Ray. I plan to be at practice tomorrow as usual."
Patterson declined immediate comment.
The Rockets, coming off a disappointing road trip in which they won two of six games, have struggled all season despite the addition of forward Rick Barry from the Golden State Warriors.

Blow by blow

By Joe Blobaum, sports editor

The race for wild card spots in the National Football League's playoff scheme is living up to its name — it's absolutely wild.

If you discount the eventual winners of the two divisions (East and West) in the AFC that haven't been clinched, there are still five teams in contention for the two wild card spots. In the AFC, where things are a little more settled, there are still four teams that could qualify for post-season play after someone finally wins the Central Division.

Dallas and Los Angeles are already assured of playoff berths. The Cowboys have clinched the AFC East championship for the umpteenth time and the Rams have done likewise in the West. The fun begins in calculating the odds of Minnesota, Green Bay, Washington, Philadelphia and Atlanta.

The Vikings and Packers have what some would call the clearest route to the playoffs. With identical 8-5-1 records, they can both qualify by winning their two remaining games. Green Bay is at Chicago Sunday and visits Los Angeles next week, while the Vikings are at Detroit for a game Saturday and in Oakland a week from Sunday. Obviously, neither team is a sure bet to win their remaining games, but their present records are just a little better than the 8-6 marks owned by the Redskins, Eagles and Falcons.

The possibilities for those three teams are almost endless. If Green Bay or Minnesota loses, two of them could qualify. If the Pack and Vikings go 2-0 over the last two weeks, only one team has a shot.

Washington and Atlanta will meet Sunday, and the loser is as good as home for the holidays. After that, the Redskins host Chicago and the Falcons visit St. Louis. Philadelphia, meanwhile, hosts the Cowboys, who want the home-field advantage for the playoffs. Sunday and will entertain the Giants on the final week of the season.

The AFC is a lot more complicated, although Houston and Miami have the clearest chances of a wild-card entry. Pittsburgh has clinched the Central division, Denver — on the basis of a pair of wins over the Raiders in regular-season play — will more than likely take it in the West and New England seems a sure bet to reach the playoffs.

Here are quick capsules on the teams involved in the wild card race:

New England — Now standing at 10-4, the Patriots have Buffalo at home and Miami on the road to finish up their schedule. Winning one of these games will put the Patriots into the playoffs, but New England would much rather beat the Dolphins on the final Monday night game of the season and secure at least a temporary home field advantage in the playoffs.

Miami — The Dolphins have a 9-5 record and would enter the playoffs as a wild card if we still had a 14-game season. But they've got Oakland and New England left, which means the Dolphins had best win their remaining games if they want to make the playoffs.

New York Jets and Seattle — Both are at 8-6 and need a lot of help to make the playoffs. Seattle has San Diego and Kansas City left to play, but the Jets must face Cleveland and Dallas.

Houston — If the Oilers can heal their wounds from last Sunday's game with Pittsburgh, they should make the playoffs. They've got New Orleans and San Diego left on their schedule, which is one of the easier schedules among the playoff hopefuls. If anything keeps the Oilers out of it, it will be a lack of healthy people.

Oakland — The Raiders may break a time-honored tradition and fail to make the playoffs. They've got practically no chance of winning their division and their wild card hopes hinge on beating Miami in Miami and Minnesota in Oakland. They may win one of them, but I doubt they'll win both.

If you're thoroughly confused by now, you're in the same boat I am. Your best bet lies in staying glued to your TV and letting television's computers figure out who's going to make it. But my guesses go this way: Pittsburgh, New England, Miami, Houston and Denver in the AFC and Dallas, Los Angeles, Minnesota, Green Bay and Washington in the AFC. Oakland and Philadelphia have the best outside

Pampa swimmers travel to San Angelo for meet

If good competition makes the team grow tougher, Mike Eckhart's Pampa High swimmers should be rock-hard by Saturday night.

Eckhart's crew will travel to San Angelo Friday and Saturday to take part in what the Harvester coach said would be one of its toughest meets all year.

"They didn't have a meet last year so I'm not sure which schools will be there," he said Wednesday afternoon. "But I know the competition will be tough. It's a central location and it's a good pool."

"It'll probably be our toughest meet except for regionals," he added.

Eckhart said he's looking for good placings from three relay teams and at least five individuals.

The boys 200 medley and 400 freestyle relay teams, both composed of Richard Steger, Chris Alexander, Mark Lehnick and Robbie Hill should place well, he said, as should the girls 200 medley team.

Kris Douglass, Cindy Raymond, Lisa Raymond and Cindy Quattlebaum will compose the girls team, and Eckhart said they should finish in the top 12.

"I'm taking only 15 and leaving 11," Eckhart said of the rather small contingent of Pampa swimmers making the trip. "but I'm hoping the 15 I take will score some points for me."

He said he was expecting good performances from the Raymond girls in their individual events, as well as points from Alexander in the breast stroke, Lehnick in the butterfly and Steger in the backstroke.

The meet is Pampa's first competition since a dual with Amarillo High Nov. 18. The tankers will face Amarillo in another dual Dec. 15 at the Sandie pool before taking their holiday break.

Pampa's entries for San Angelo include:

Girls 200 medley relay — Kris Douglass, Cindy Raymond, Lisa Raymond, Cindy Quattlebaum.

Boys 200 medley relay — Richard Steger, Chris Alexander, Mark Lehnick, Robbie Hill.

Boys 400 freestyle relay — Steger, Alexander, Lehnick, Hill (A team); Eugene Thompson, Scott Grayson, Gary Barnard, Darrell Kyle (B team).

Girls 200 free — Kris Douglass.

Boys 200 free — Steve Taylor, David McDonald, Scott Grayson.

Girls 200 IM — Lisa Raymond, Boys 200 IM — Eugene Thompson.

Girls 50 free — Cindy Quattlebaum.

Boys 50 free — Robbie Hill, Darrell Kyle, Gary Barnard, Don Braswell, Steve Taylor.

Girls 100 fly — Lisa Raymond, Boys 100 fly — Mark Lehnick, Girls 100 free — Cindy Quattlebaum.

Boys 100 free — Darrell Kyle, Scott Grayson, Gary Barnard, Don Braswell.

Girls 500 free — Cindy Raymond.

Girls 100 backstroke — Kris Douglass.

Boys 100 backstroke — Richard Steger, David McDonald.

Girls 100 breast — Cindy Raymond.

Boys 100 breast — Eugene Thompson, Chris Alexander.

In the fourth game of the 1929 World Series between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Cubs, George Burns of the A's made two outs in one inning as his team rallied for 10 runs.

College teams may get reprieve

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Colleges with major football teams — now under federal orders to divide most men's sports revenue with women's athletic programs — appear headed for a reprieve.

Schools with expensive men's basketball programs may also get special treatment.

The Carter administration issued proposed new guidelines Wednesday aimed at clarifying current regulations barring sex discrimination in intercollegiate athletics.

But some interested parties said special exceptions in the new guidelines make them unclear, and one critic, Lynda Weston of the Project on Equal

Education Responsibility, said, "It looks like they blew a hole right down the middle of the law."

Joseph A. Califano Jr., the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, told a news conference the proposed guidelines are to ensure that colleges provide women an equal opportunity in athletics, but he said they also take into account economic realities facing schools.

The guidelines are issued under Title IX, adopted six years ago to bar sex discrimination in educational institutions receiving federal aid.

Califano will accept comment for 60 days before deciding whether to put the proposals into effect in time for the 1979 school year.

The guidelines require that expenditures on men's and women's athletics be proportional to the number of men and women participating. But not always.

The standard of "substantially equal per capita expenditures" can be sidestepped if a school can demonstrate that spending differences are based on what Califano called "non-discriminatory factors such as the cost of a sport... the equipment required or the scope of competition."

The interpretation recognizes that intercollegiate football, in particular, is unique among sports at some institutions because of the size of its teams, the support staffs and facilities it requires and the volume of revenue it generates," said Califano.

The guidelines also suggest

Pokes set ticket sale schedule

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have announced a ticket sale schedule for a National Conference divisional playoff game at Texas Stadium Dec. 30 or 31.

The Cowboys have clinched a playoff berth and will host the late December game if they beat either Philadelphia Sunday or the New York Jets the following Sunday.

Team officials said $8 and $12 reserved tickets will go on sale Sunday after the game, assuming the Cowboys have the host playoff spot wrapped up. If not, that basketball, when involving competition at the national level, may also deserve special treatment.

The tickets would go on sale a week later.

Tickets would be sold until 7 p.m. Sunday in Moody Coliseum on the Southern Methodist campus in Dallas and at the Central Ticket Agency in Fort Worth. Ticket sales would resume at 8 a.m. Monday at the Cowboys Ticket Office in Expressway Tower and at Central Ticket Agency in Fort Worth.

Season ticket holders have been mailed their application forms, and their orders will be handled and mailed in the normal manner.

Swollen finger laughed off by Staubach

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Roger Staubach jokes about it but the swollen finger on his passing hand is starting to cause Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry some concern.

Staubach said of the swollen digit on his passing hand after Sunday's 17-10 National Football League victory over New England: "It affects my throwing some. Sometimes I can't grip the ball as well as I'd like to. It'd be nice to have it well."

Then the quip: "When I throw a bad pass, it's usually because my finger is swollen. Otherwise, I'd never throw a bad one."

Pardon Landry if he doesn't laugh at his quarterback's sense of humor.

"It (the finger) doesn't over-concern me but it could be bad if he hits it on a helmet," said Landry. "Roger won't throw a lot this week."

Landry said it hasn't reached the point where he would rest Staubach for Sunday's game in Philadelphia, but added "I'll be much quicker to substitute. We have some backup people who need work but I'm not going to substitute and jeopardize our chances of winning."

Uppermost in Landry's mind is the homefield edge in the NFL playoffs.

"Our No. 1 objective is to secure the homefield advantage," said Landry at his weekly press conference. "That's our No. 1 thought now."

"Our players ought to be motivated for the homefield advantage when they look at all the ice and snow in Minnesota last week," said Landry.

That was Landry's way of saying he didn't want to play in either Minnesota or Green Bay, the two teams still scrambling for the NFC Central title.

Staubach has usually played well against the Eagles.

He has a 12-2 career mark as the quarterback of record against Philadelphia. His longest career run of 33 yards came against the Eagles last year and has 11 touchdown passes against Philadelphia.

Staubach is now the No. 1 rated quarterback in the NFL and has thrown only one interception in his last 95 pass attempts. When he was going bad early in the season, Staubach suffered seven interceptions in his first 101 attempts.

Staubach has broken Don Meredith's record for the number of passes thrown and completed in one season and yards gained passing in one season.

He broke his right index finger in the Super Bowl.

"If it gets hit it swells," said Landry. "Just throwing doesn't bother him."

Landry said fullback Robert Newhouse would miss the Eagle game because of the fractured bone he suffered in his right leg three weeks ago.

Newhouse is definitely out, he's been slowed by soreness," said Landry. "He should improve. It's possible he will be able to go by the (New York) Jet game in two weeks."

Houston loses rookie Renfro

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler wide receiver Mike Renfro, two games away from completing an outstanding rookie season, has been lost for the rest of the year following knee surgery.

Renfro, the No. 3 receiver for the playoff contending Oilers, was injured in Sunday's 13-3 loss to Pittsburgh when he tried to make a cut after catching a pass from quarterback Dan Pastorini. He underwent knee surgery Tuesday.

Renfro set the Southwest Conference record of 162 career catches while at Texas Christian and had caught 26 passes for 339 yards and two touchdowns with the Oilers this season.

Renfro was one of several Oilers injured in the ruggedly played game.

Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips said he did not know if he would sign a replacement for the former Texas Christian receiver, who holds the Southwest Conference record of 162 career receptions.

Rookie Earl Campbell and Pastorini suffered broken ribs in the game but Phillips said both players likely would start Sunday's game against the New Orleans Saints.

Tight end Mike Barber, who suffered a shoulder injury against the Steelers, also expects to play against the Saints. Cornerback Willie Alexander suffered a broken jaw against Pittsburgh.

Houston goes into the game with a 9-5 record and still alive in the scramble for one of two wild card playoff berths in the American Football Conference. The Oilers can assure themselves of a playoff spot if they beat New Orleans Sunday and San Diego Dec. 17.

Dream of adventurous life becomes reality

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — When bosses berate them, their children raise tantrums and the chill seeps through the grimy window panes, many people dream about a blue-green cove in the South Seas with a yacht at anchor, throbbing ports of call, a life of no neckties, bill collectors and "yes, sirs."

Many people dream about it. But Harold Stephens does it.

"I had a house, a wife, children, cars, the whole catastrophe," the handsome, 50-year-old American recalls. Twenty years later Stephens has fulfilled a triad of childhood fantasies: owning a seagoing boat, being a writer and following the trails of such author-adventurers as Joseph Conrad, Somerset Maugham and Jack London.

Stephens has stalked the rare rhinoceros and met with aborigines in the jungles of Malaysia, escaped from pirates in the Sulu Sea, driven across the Soviet Union in a jeep and dived in the Solomon Islands to find the patrol boat that sank under President Kennedy in World War II.

He has written 10 books and countless articles. And for much of his material he roams Asian waters aboard his 70-foot schooner, "Third Sea," parking it in the shadows of skyscrapers mushrooming in Asian cities or off islands where one can still hunt wild pigs and goats and roast them over fires on deserted beaches.

"Adventure isn't really dead," Stephens said in an interview. "Changes come and the old timers always say: 'You should have been here 10 years ago.' They're right, but when I see a place for the first time it's always exciting."

Stephens also says the great Asian characters in the mold of Conrad and Maugham — tough, jungle-bound planters and administrators, island traders, rebel souls with a mysterious past — haven't disappeared either although they may be harder to spot these days. His latest book, "Asian Portraits," describes 15 such people.

"In other times, things moved more slowly so these people stood out," he says. "On a six-week sea voyage you got to know everyone on board. Today, you may be sitting next to the most amazing character on a jet plane but barely have a chance to exchange a few words."

Stephens' own claim to "characterdom" began in 1959 when, after a divorce from a Philadelphia socialite, he left his job as a private school English teacher in Washington, D.C., sold most of his possessions and said goodbye to his two children. He journeyed through South America and later found himself, with $24 in his pocket, in that ultimate of escapist havens — Tahiti.

He became a tour guide, a hand on island trading boats in the South Pacific and a bit actor in several Tahiti-locale movies, including "Mutiny on the Bounty" with Marlon Brando. He also wrote stories, but sometimes didn't have the money to mail them out.

By 1971, Stephens says he had enough money to start building a boat. He went into debt and got the schooner — which sleeps a dozen — at the bargain basement price of $50,000 because he spent three years building most of it himself after taking a crash course and persuading about 35 friends to help out in exchange for future free sailing on board.

On land or aboard the "Third Sea" he writes an average of four newspaper or magazine articles a week, which he sends to about a dozen publications and which together with his book royalties bring him about $1,500 each month. The yacht and its crew normally pays for itself although Stephens says he won't go out of his way to take on passengers, carry freight or undertake other money-making enterprises.

The stocky, mustachioed writer, who looks about 10 years younger than his age, has plans: to explore the mouth of the mighty Ganges River, help with wildlife conservation in Malaysia, sail through the thousand islands of the Philippine Archipelago.

British spy school closing

LONDON (AP) — Britain is pulling a storied "school for spies" out of the olive groves of Lebanon where gunmen stalk — so ending another relic of empire.

"You could say the violence in the country is making its operation somewhat difficult," a Foreign Office spokesman said of the closing down of the Middle East Center for Arabic Studies, to give it its formal title, after 33 eventful years in the Mideast.

MECAS, which is transferring to the Foreign Office Language center in London, was branded a British "school for spies" by the late Lebanese leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt, who wanted it closed way back in the early 1960s.

It was where Soviet agents Kim Philby and George Blake mixed with British, American, Commonwealth and Japanese diplomats and businessmen, studied Arabic and Mideastern politics and got acquainted with future local policymakers.

Philby, a Beirut-based journalist who ultimately fled to Moscow when his real role was established, never was an enrolled MECAS student. But he showed up at countless MECAS seminars, parties and receptions. Blake, another British diplomat-turned-spy, was at the center as a trainee.

The Foreign Office first set up MECAS in Jerusalem when Palestine was a British-run mandated territory in 1945. The aim was to train British diplomats in the Arabic language, politics and culture. Then, with the establishment of Israeli statehood in 1948, MECAS was moved to Jordan. Two years later it was relocated on the hillside village of Chemlane, near Beirut, in a setting of terraced olive groves.

Graduates from MECAS include a number of leading British ambassadors who have served with distinction in key Arab capitals. They have won for themselves a reputation for being Arab-oriented and their influence over Britain's Mideastern policies has always been strong, even though those policies have not helped much to preserve Britain's longtime dominance, among Western powers, in the region.

MECAS in its heyday used to have more than 60 enrolled students, a mix of army men, diplomats, businessmen and trusted foreigners including Americans, Japanese and old (meaning white) Commonwealth specialists.

Because of the Lebanese civil strife the number this year was about halved. In the Foreign Office view the concentration of some of their brightest young men in a place where gunmen and bombers held sway posed serious security problems.

Current director of MECAS is Julian Walker, once a member of the Foreign Office News Department, specializing in Mideastern affairs.

Kidney patients may get present

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Persons with serious kidney disease may get a Christmas present, a new and easier method for treating their ailment.

CAPD — continuous ambulatory peritoneal dialysis — was developed by Dr. Jack Moncrief, an Austin kidney specialist, and Robert Popovich, professor of biomedical engineering at the University of Texas.

The state health department is now testing the treatment, and Moncrief expects it to become generally available by Christmas.

The department said instead of removing the patient's blood and cleansing it by a large, expensive artificial kidney machine, the new method keeps the dialysis solution inside the patient's body.

A tube is permanently placed in the patient's abdominal cavity. For treatment, about two quarts of dialysis solution is drained by gravity through the tube into the cavity, and the patient then closes a valve on the tube. Four hours later, the patient allows gravity to drain the solution.

After the 20-minute draining, the solution is replaced, the tube is closed and the patient may resume routine activities.

This procedure, the department said, is performed four times during the day and once just before bed, allowing for an eight-hour dialysis period while the patient sleeps. Previously, the patient was attached to a kidney machine for four to six hours, three times a week.

"This regimen," the department said, "inevitably gave the patient a feeling of being tied to the machine."

Also, the machine requires the aid of a second person. The new method does not. "It makes the person undergoing dialysis his own person," said Moncrief.

The new process is much cheaper, too. Use of a kidney machine costs nearly $30,000 a year, the CAPD treatment about $8,500.

Besides Austin, the method is being used at the University of Missouri and Toronto, Ontario, the department said.

Foreign briefs

ROME (AP) — A 15-year-old boy has been sentenced to eight years in prison after a year-long trial on charges in the slaying of his father.

Marco Caruso, who was 14 at the time of the slaying, told the juvenile court he shot his father with a stolen pistol last December to save his mother from savage beating.

The father was reported to be a drunkard who repeatedly beat his wife and children.

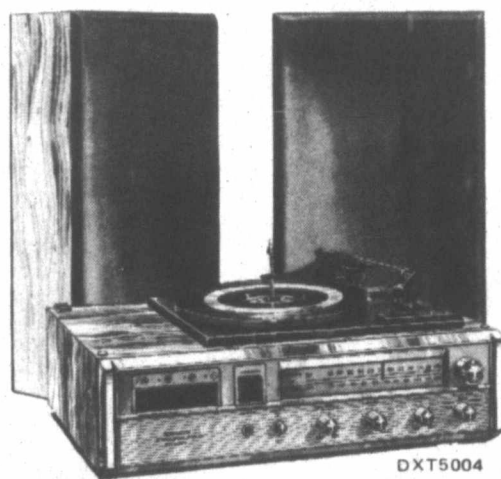

Defense lawyer Nino Marazzita said he would appeal the sentence. Officials have hinted that President Sandro Bertini might grant a special amnesty.

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Kenya on Tuesday ratified the International Convention on Trade in Endangered Species and declared it was "at total war" with Kenyan and foreign poachers.

The East African nation is renowned as a safari site for stalkers of wild life with gun and camera. It is the 49th nation to ratify the convention, which prohibits the import or export of any endangered species except for scientific purposes.

Seasons Greetings

Politics was the "Great Game" to Kipling, but if he were alive today he might just as well have used that phrase to describe the annual toy sales blitz which has become a mark of the holiday season. Each year at this time a tug-of-war between parents, children, and toy manufacturers occurs, usually resulting in frazzled tempers and empty pocketbooks, equal amounts of childish happiness and disappointment, and big profits in the department stores.

Toy makers well understand that although it is the children who "choose" the toys they want, it is their mothers and fathers who decide what is actually bought. As a result, parents and children alike are besieged by TV ads, overstocked toy store shelves, and manufacturers who make great claims about their products. Choosing a toy is no longer a matter of simply guessing what might interest a child.

Today's generation of educated, enlightened parents have come to demand quality in their children's toys in the form of "educational value." For better or worse, toys today are supposed to do more than just sit there and be fun: they have to teach Johnny to read, or help him to understand mathematics, or improve his coordination. Knowing this, manufacturers have begun to label many of their toys "educational"—an advertising buzz-word often used only to catch the eye, not inform.

There is no agreement, in fact, as to whether any toy has more educational value than the next.

or whether all toys are in some way educationally useful. Because children learn according to their own individual rates of development, there is no evidence, one authority suggests, that any particular toy will make a child smarter, more coordinated, or more aware over the long run.

Some toys help children develop their potential more quickly, however, but it is up to the parents to choose those toys which will fit the stages of a child's development. Crib toys that teach infants to distinguish between different sensations of touch, sound, and color, and even encourage early motor development are familiar items in most nurseries today. There are also toys which prepare even pre-schoolers for the modern classroom. Another innovative game, called "Keep Quiet," not only promotes silent play (for which most parents will be grateful) but teaches children the sign language used by the deaf as well.

Educators generally agree that those playthings which are non-specific (clay, building blocks, sand, finger paints, scissors and paste, etc.), rather than toys designed for a specific purpose, are more "educational" in that they require a child to put his own imagination to work. Curiously enough, the old-fashioned hardwood blocks are still recommended as the best all-around educational toy.

Safety in child toy design is something else that parents have come to demand and expect from toy manufacturers. The toymakers have been quick to respond in this area, and their self-regulating safety standards were accepted in 1976 by the National Bureau of Standards in Washington. Approximately 85 percent of the toys manufactured in the U.S. now adhere to regulations and testing procedures governing maximum levels of lead in paints and colorings, sharply-pointed metal toys and small parts, and methods of toy assembly.

Consumers concerned with toy safety should look for those products marked with the Toy Manufacturers of America, Inc., label or seal. However, only toys made by TMA members, and those of some importers, design firms, and retailers, are required to meet the safety standards, and compliance is strictly voluntary.

Some other points to look for when you shop for children's toys:

Labels marking toys as "non-toxic," fabric toys that are "flame resistant" or "flame retardant," and stuffed toys with "washable-hygenic materials."

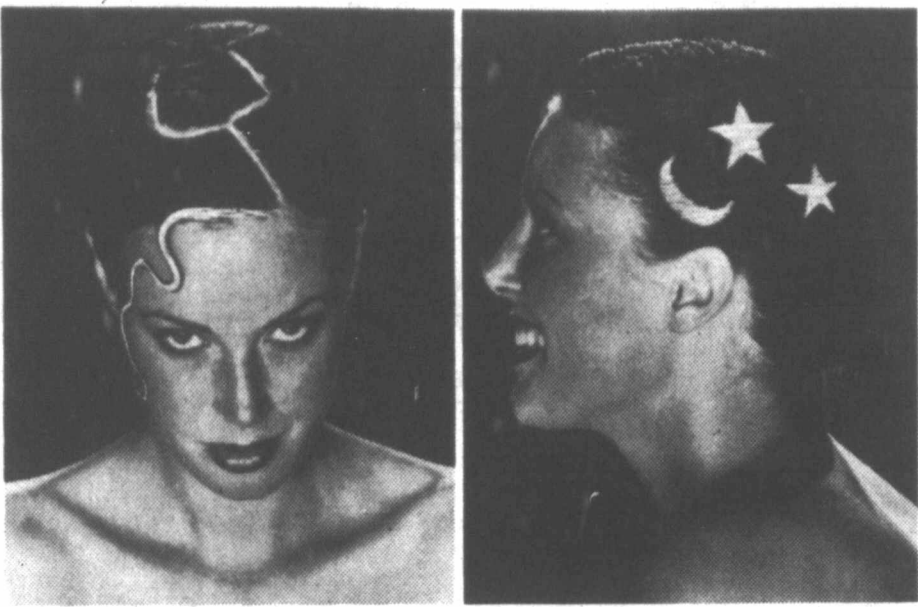

Toys suited to the age of the child. Some toys, such as chemistry and electrical playthings, should be used with supervision only.

Sturdiness and good design— toys which have no sharp points or edges and cannot be easily shattered or pulled apart.

CHRISTMAS TIME IS usually a busy time for many people, but for the United States Post Office it becomes especially busy. An official from the Pampa Post Office said that "all day long" is their busy time, but between 1:30 and 3 p.m. things begin to slack off. If you hope to avoid the long lines that have been occurring in the post office, you may try going at this time. If you are planning on mailing Christmas packages yet, you need to allow 10 days for the packages to arrive, and all packages should be mailed no later than the Dec. 15. The spokesman from the post office said that preferably everything should be mailed by Dec. 11. There is no set date for mailing Christmas cards, but you would be helping out the post office if you mailed them early. (Pampa News Photo by Kathy Burr)

TOP OFF YOUR EVENING EXCITEMENT this season with the latest rage in creative hairstyling. Dramatic stencil designs are easily applied to any coil for sensational single accents; glamorous groups of crescents, stars, butterflies and hearts, and party-perfect highlighted parts. Best of all, every woman can be as disco outrageous or delightfully demure as she wishes time after time without fear, as the creative stencil colors wash out completely in minutes.

Disco fever comes out in dazzling hair designs

With disco fever capturing the country, from every hamlet or village to the larger cities, young America is looking for new excitement and ideas to show off in discos during the holiday season ahead.

With the swing away from casual to outlandish in dress, with make-up bordering on the outrageous and hair styles going from the frizzies to the bizarre, the young are keeping an open mind as to what to do next for excitement.

Tuned in to this feeling is Nestle's Streaks 'n' Tips Spray-On Temporary Hair Color, which gives everyone a chance to be his or her own far-out hair designer. The anything goes feeling is to make every night like New Year's Eve. Since Streaks 'n' Tips can be sprayed on and washed out completely in minutes, one can design a dramatic new hair-do every night.

There is no stopping at one's creativity with the four basic designs of glittery stars, romantic hearts, dreamy half-moons and fanciful butterflies.

A person can stencil in a single design or use her own imagination and combine all four, or even create brand new fashions for a sensational new look. To start you on your way to especially-original holiday hair designing, a set of four reusable plastic stencils featuring a butterfly, a star, a heart and a crescent, is available by sending 50¢ to The Nestle-Le Mur Company, Dept. M., 529 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10017.

Because of its ease, one can utilize a number of colors from the line-up of various shades with Streaks 'n' Tips, and with a little practice the amateur designer can create her own world of fantasy while the disco lights turn the nights into a frenzy of carnival sights and sounds.

Veiled Fantasy

Masked Glamour

Festive hair happenings

Festive days of holiday cheer hold wide adventures for fashionable hair adornment. Asymmetrical poufs pull the hair to the top or side of the head to dramatically emphasize a favorite veil or even a fantasy mask; pouf rolls complement a classic veil, revived beret and a fantasy mask.

Fashion and Beauty Tips

Fragile tip

A rubber-cushion brush is advisable if you have fragile hair.

Better for buxom

Dark tops and light skirts help play down buxomness.

Securely shawled

Give a cowl neck a "shawl" look by pulling the neckline forward, then down and to the side. Secure with a pin.

Roll 'em

Get out your old roller skates — or rent new ones — and indulge in the newest way to exercise.

Eye on safety

For safety sake, never apply eye color on the inside rim of the eye. Save the lining for underneath the eye or on top of the lid.

Basic black

A simple black skirt can serve multiple duty at holiday parties with a variety of tops.

Fingernail tip

Next time you polish your nails, keep polishing inside the front tips. That helps protect from chipping.

Don't bunch

Waistlines are in, but don't cinch that belt too tightly. It will cause that jacket or blouse to bunch up.

Warding off space worries

Closet space of limited efficiency is a common apartment dweller's problem. Happily, it's also one which can be solved with a minimum of time, effort, and cost. These basic steps make it easy:

Make an overall assessment of your closet's contents. Discard unwearable, little-used items, but keep favorite, well-fitting ones or those that can be easily altered to match this year's styles.

Plan your closet around the three drill bits, a hammer and a screwdriver, you can produce gratifying results in a short time.

Consider ready made inexpensive closet systems. For under $30, you can quickly and easily redesign 30" - 120" of wasted space in at least eight different arrangements. With pre-cut shelves, a hand or power drill, three drill bits, a hammer and a screwdriver, you can produce gratifying results in a short time.

Add stackable plastic wire, or straw baskets for your sweaters, scarves, shoes, accessories, etc. A bare door is useful for mounting a pegboard which can hold a cosmetics caddy, a mirror, and hooks for bags, belts, and hats.

Vase pins on your lapel

By ELLEN APPEL
Copley News Service
Recently I met Judith at the Biarritz Cafe. "Judith," I said, "that rose in your lapel looks so real I can practically smell the aroma over my onion soup au gratin."

"Ellen," she said, "it is real." Sure enough, I took a closer look at Judith's rose and saw that it blossomed from a tiny vase. The vase was half-filled with water and pinned to her jacket lapel. The effect was devastating. My mind instantly focused on the fresh white daisies in my window box. I wanted a lapel vase, too.

"You can't buy a vase," said Judith as she sipped her Chablis and read my mind. "They stopped making them decades ago."

Frankly, before that minute, I never knew they ever made sub-pygmy size vases with pinbacks.

Apparently, however, men with panache once tucked them behind the button hole of their tuxedo lapels. That way, a fresh carnation was outside, a vase was inside, and the stem hid somewhere in between. As if by magic, the flower stayed alive long into the night, or at least past the stroke of midnight. That way, even through Cinderella's dress turned into a rag, the prince still remained charming.

I launched my search for a lapel vase almost immediately. In my quest, I went from posh men's establishments to tiny rent-a-tuxedo shops. No luck. In fact, many stores never heard of a lapel vase. "A what, lady?" they said to me. I wanted a flower in my collar. And the stores said, "A what, lady?"

Today, I suppose, men don't care whether or not their carnations wilt. But I do. If you want to wear fresh flowers, too, (or know a man with panache,) here's how to make a lapel vase:

FINDING A VASE: Since you'll probably wear the vase outside your collar or lapel look for something small and pretty. The best vases are 2.5 x 3.5 inches long and approximately one-half inch deep. Choose a container that is bulbous or cylindrical. The exact shape is unimportant. All that counts is whether or not it will hold water and look attractive with a flower inside.

The nature of the container, on the other hand, is extremely important. The vase should be glass, metal, plastic or another non-porous material. Ceramic containers are unacceptable because the water will leak through. Empty perfume bottles make particularly good vases. So do tiny test tubes from laboratory supply outlets. Another source is a custom glass blower. Many glass blowers can make a small vase at very low cost. Between the Yellow Pages, you "junk" drawers and the swap meet, you're sure to find the right vase.

OTHER SUPPLIES: Purchase a pinback and glue from the dime store. If you can't find pinbacks in your local store, check the phone directory for arts and crafts outlets. Be sure the pinback is slightly smaller than your vase. Choose a strong glue like Krazy Glue or epoxy.

ASSEMBLING THE VASE: 1. Glue the pinback to the vase lengthwise (a). 2. Let glue dry. 3. Half-fill the vase with water, slip in a flower and pin it on.

P.S. If you'd prefer to send for the materials, send $4 to Ellen Appel, P.O. Box 249, Balboa Island, Calif. 92662.

STITCHIN' TIME

It's party time

By Joanne Schreiber

Party time calls for some special outfits and preferably, those of beautiful fabrics that fit your budget.

One of the prettiest fabrics around this year is a cotton velveteen in a magnolia pattern — a black-background floral printed in luminous tones of blues, wines and grays. Make it up in the simplest possible design — a skirt gathered onto a band and trimmed with a flounce, plus a triangular shawl edged with black silk fringe.

With a dressy ready-to-wear blouse, this outfit is ready for the dressiest bash. For an intimate evening at home, leave off the shawl and add a black cashmere sweater, cut down to there.

You won't even need a pattern: just four yards of velveteen, a zipper, a little interfacing for the waistband and the fringe.

Allow 1 1/4 yards of the 45-inch fabric for the shawl. Just cut a right triangle that's 45 inches on two sides. Hem all around and trim the two shortest sides with fringe.

To make the skirt, measure your full-skirt length less eight inches. Cut a nine-inch strip from the long side of your fabric. Cut two skirt sections, each 36 inches wide from the remaining fabric. You will have enough left for your waistband.

Join the two side seams of the skirt sections, leaving an opening for the zipper. Be sure the nap runs the same way on both sections. For the richest, deepest color, the nap should run up. Insert the zipper.

When making a gathered skirt construct the waistband to fit your waist and then gather the skirt to fit the waistband. Back waistband with a sew-in interfacing (a fusible interfacing should not be used on velveteen because the fusing process mats down the nap). Gather skirt and join skirt and waistband. Attach waistband fasteners.

The nine-inch strip you have cut should equal approximately 1 1/2 times the circumference of the skirt at the raw edge. Hem one side of ruffle strip. Join short ends. Gather to fit lower skirt edge and sew in place.

To finish raw seam edges, simply run a line of stitching one-quarter inch from edges and pink the edges.

An outfit such as this can see you through all sorts of holiday and winter occasions. And for the rest of your winter wardrobe, send for the brand-new winter edition of Basic Fashion, with its new Sew-Easy fashions, its Grace Cole collection, its Gift Boutique and its free-pattern coupon. To get your copy, just send $2 plus your name, address and zip to Stitchin' Time, c/o this newspaper, Box 503, Radi City Station, New York N.Y. 10019.

STEAMED BANANA pudding adds to the holiday feasting tradition.

Tiny Tim's pudding has new updated version

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Christmas is a time for tradition. So what could be more fitting than to take a leaf from Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" and serve a glorious steamed pudding? As you may recall, the climax of the Cratchit family's Christmas meal was such a pudding, a symbol of opulence and good will.

This updated version is lighter in texture than the English classic. But it is just as rich in flavor. Serve the pudding with a hot brandy sauce, another Christmas tradition.

Simpler but equally suitable for holiday feasting is a special banana bread pudding, chock-full of raisins and honey.

BANANA-APRICOT
STEAMED PUDDING

- 2 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 1/2 cups sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 cup cut, dried apricots
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 cup molasses
- 2 cups mashed ripe bananas (6 medium)

Sift together dry ingredients. Add apricots and nuts. Mix to coat. Stir in milk, molasses and mashed bananas. Pour into a well-greased, floured 8-cup mold. Cover tightly and place on rack in kettle. Add water to come 3/4-way up the side of the mold. Cover kettle and simmer for 3 1/2 hours over medium heat, until cake tester inserted in pudding comes out clean. Remove top of mold and let stand for 5 minutes. Turn out onto platter and serve warm with Hot Brandy Sauce. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

- Hot Brandy Sauce
- 1 cup butter or margarine, softened
  - 2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
  - 2 eggs
  - 1 teaspoon lemon juice
  - 2 tablespoons brandy

With electric mixer, beat butter until creamy. Gradually add sugar and beat until fluffy. Add eggs and beat until smooth. Refrigerate overnight or for several hours.

To serve, place mixture in top of double boiler over simmering water. Add lemon juice and brandy. Stir occasionally until hot.

American gingerbread

BERNARD CLAYTON'S
PAIN D'EPICE

- 1 cup hot tap water (120 to 130 degrees)
- 1 cup honey
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 pinch salt
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 cup rum or water
- 1 1/2 teaspoons ground anise seeds
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 2 cups rye flour
- 1 1/2 cups unbleached white flour
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 2-3rds cup chopped almonds
- 1/2 cup raisins (finely chopped) or currants

In a large bowl, pour hot water over honey. Add sugar, salt, baking soda and baking powder; stir to dissolve. Add rum, spices, 1 cup of rye and 1 cup of white flour and stir to blend. Stir in the remaining rye and white flour to make a thick smooth batter. Add orange rind, almonds and raisins; stir about 25 strokes to mix thoroughly, but don't overbeat. Set aside while preparing pans.

Grease two small (7 1/2 by 3 1/2) loaf pans. Line each with a sheet of wax paper that overlaps the long sides (but not the ends) by 1 inch. With large spoon and rubber scraper (dipping scraper in water if dough sticks to it), fill pans 3/4 full.

Bake on the middle shelf of preheated 400-degree oven for 10 minutes; reduce heat to 350 degrees and continue baking until a cake tester thrust into the center comes out clean and tops are a deep brown—50 minutes. A large crevice will probably run the length of each loaf. Place pans on their sides on wire racks; using the overlapping paper to help you, gently tug the loaves free of the pans. Cool completely. Wrap tightly and age for several days before slicing thin.

For weight loss-diet slowly, steadily

By Gaynor Maddox

Some people will follow a reducing diet only if it requires no sacrifices.

These no-hardship dieters can find a "brand new" diet every month in countless publications. Certainly the new diet will work—maybe for a month, maybe for two.

But then the dieter becomes unhappy, looks worn and goes off the diet. All at once, it seems, those vanished pounds come right back where they started from.

Fad diets can reduce weight quickly. But the results are only temporary. All scientific experts in weight control know that disappointing fact.

Only when you have retrained your appetite and learned to find satisfaction in different foods or smaller portions can you reasonably hope to lose pounds and keep them off.

Lose weight slowly but steadily, remembering that this is not to be a shotgun wedding. Fear, fashion and fads are not enough to spark a continuing program. This diet is for keeps. It is for permanent weight control for the rest of your life—in fact, for a happier, more vital and longer life.

For a lasting program, limit your weekly loss to between one and three pounds, researchers advise. The faster you lose weight, the quicker you are liable to regain it.

The reason why slow weight loss is recommended by physicians and dietitians with experience in obesity is that the dieter then will be less likely to go off the diet and put on weight again. Crash and fad dieters lose with drastic speed but almost invariably, after a short period of self-imposed starvation, regain their excess weight.

These on-again, off-again dieters may induce high blood pressure by repeated gains after repeated losses. According to Dr. Fredrick J. Stare of Harvard University, researchers have found that blood vessels, particularly those of the heart, are damaged in the process of growing fat.

To limit your weight loss to between one and three pounds a week, figure that one pound of fat has the fuel value of 3,500 calories.

To lose one pound a week, cut calories by 500 a day. To lose two pounds a week, cut calories by 1,000 a day. And to lose three pounds a week, cut calories by 1,500 a day.

The average sedentary man requires about 2,400 calories a day for maintenance. A physically active man needs about 3,000, and a strenuously active man even more.

For a sedentary man to lose weight, therefore, he should reduce his calorie intake to between 1,400 and 2,000 a day. The average woman needs about 2,000 calories a day and can lose weight on a 1,200- to 1,500-calorie-a-day diet.

In general, weight control experts recommend 1,500 calories as the safe daily minimum for most dieters. Almost anyone will lose weight on that.

If you stick to losing one pound a week, you will lose 52 pounds in a year. And you probably will not regain that weight.

Special meals for Chanukah

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

The Jewish festival of lights, called Chanukah, begins with the lighting of the first taper in the menorah at sundown on Dec. 24. Another candle is lighted each night during the eight-day celebration as family and friends gather around the table.

Chanukah is a joyous time because it in part celebrates the deliverance of the Jews from their enemies, the Hellenistic kings of Syria. For the young, it means fun and presents. For older people, it is a time to share and pass on the ancient Judaic teachings to their children and grandchildren as their parents and grandparents did through the centuries during the Kindling of Lights.

This year begin the festivities with a feast of chicken livers with mushrooms, roast capon, walnut-olive stuffing, mushroom ratatouille and doughnuts with your favorite homemade jelly. The serving of jelly doughnuts and other foods fried in oil is a Chanukah tradition.

desired, serve over rice. Makes 6 portions.

ROAST STUFFED CAPON

- 1 (4 to 6 pound) capon
- 1 tablespoon corn oil

If capon is frozen, thaw in wrapper either in refrigerator for about 36 hours or in cool tap water for about 3 hours, changing water frequently. Remove wrapper, neck and giblets. Wash, drain and wipe dry.

Season to taste. Stir in chopped giblets, if desired. Makes 2 cups.

WALNUT-OLIVE STUFFING

- 1/4 cup corn oil
- 1/2 medium onion, chopped
- 4 cups bread cubes
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped pimiento-stuffed or black olives
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

canned mushrooms. Set aside.

Cut eggplant into 3/4- to 1-inch cubes. (Make about 7 cups.) Cut zucchini into slices 1/2-inch thick. (Make about 3 1/2 cups.) Cut peppers into 1-inch cubes. (Make about 2 1/2 cups.)

Heat oil in a Dutch oven or large, heavy saucepan. Add onions and saute for 2 minutes. Add mushrooms. Saute for 2 minutes. Add eggplant, zucchini, green pepper, tomatoes, oregano, salt and black pepper. Mix well.

Bring to a boil. Reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are tender. Serve hot or cold, with grated Parmesan cheese, if desired. Makes 8 portions.

BASIC DOUGHNUT

- 2 1/2 cups unsifted flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 quart (or so) corn oil
- 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1/2 cup milk
- Flour
- Confectioners' sugar (optional)

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon together twice. Mix together egg, sugar, 1 tablespoon corn oil and lemon rind. Beat until light and fluffy. Gradually add flour mixture, alternating with milk, beginning and ending with flour mixture, until a soft but not sticky dough forms.

Sprinkle about 1 tablespoon flour onto surface area and about 1 tablespoon flour over dough. Roll dough 1/4-inch thick. Cut out with a 2 1/2-inch doughnut cutter.

Pour corn oil into heavy, sturdy, flat-bottomed 3-quart saucepan or deep fryer, filling utensil no more than 1/3 full. Heat over medium heat to 375 degrees. Carefully add doughnuts, a few at a time. Fry, turning occasionally, 1 to 2 minutes or until browned on both sides.

Drain on absorbent paper. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar, if desired, and serve with jelly. Makes about 18 doughnuts.

CHICKEN LIVERS WITH MUSHROOMS

- 1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 ounces each) whole mushrooms
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- 1/2 cup sliced onions
- 1/2 pounds chicken livers, halved
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sage leaves, crumbled
- 1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons dry Marsala or dry sherry (optional)

Rinse, pat dry and halve fresh mushrooms (make about 5 cups) or drain canned mushrooms. Set aside.

In a large skillet, melt 4 tablespoons of the butter. Add mushrooms. Saute for 5 minutes. Remove and set aside.

In the same skillet, melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Add onion. Saute for 1 minute. Add livers, salt, sage and black pepper. Cook and stir until livers are cooked as desired, about 8 minutes.

Stir in Marsala and reserved mushrooms. Cook and stir for 2 minutes. If Fill neck cavity loosely with stuffing. Fold neck skin back and fasten to back with poultry pin, small skewer or toothpick. Close opening by placing poultry pin across opening and lacing with string, crisscrossing as for shoes.

Place bird breast side up in a shallow roasting pan. Brush with corn oil. Roast, uncovered, in 325-degree oven until leg joints move easily, about 40 minutes per pound or 2 3/4 to 4 hours. Baste once with drippings in pan about 5 minutes before bird is done.

Remove bird from pan. Let stand 10 to 15 minutes for easier carving. Meanwhile prepare gravy.

Gravy: Pour off fat from roasting pan. Return 2 tablespoons to pan. Add 2 cups water or giblet or vegetable stock. Stir and cook over medium heat, scraping pan to loosen brown bits. Remove from heat. Blend 1/4 cup water into 2 tablespoons corn starch. Stir into liquid. Stirring constantly, cook over medium heat until gravy boils. Boil 1 minute.

Heat corn oil in large skillet or saucepot. Add onion. Cook until tender. Add bread cubes, walnuts, celery, olives, parsley, salt and pepper. Toss to mix well. Makes about 4 cups, enough for a 4- to 6-pound bird.

MUSHROOM RATATOUILLE

- 1 pound medium-sized fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 ounces each) whole mushrooms
- 1 medium-sized eggplant (about 1 1/2 pounds)
- 3 medium-sized zucchini squash (about 1 1/4 pounds)
- 2 medium-sized green peppers (about 1 pound)
- 1/2 cup olive or salad oil
- 1 cup coarsely chopped onions
- 1 can (28 ounces) tomatoes, drained and broken up
- 1 tablespoon oregano leaves
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

Rinse, pat dry and trim fresh mushrooms or drain

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm 22 and my boss is 55. What started out as friendly business lunches has gradually turned into steady dating.

Last week, out of the blue, he proposed marriage, saying I was the girl he's been waiting for all his life.

He's wonderful, charming, considerate, generous and easy to get along with. And he's wealthy. The trouble is that I am not passionately in love with him. Also, I have the feeling that he is more in love with my youth than he is with me.

Is there any way I can turn him down gently and keep the path open for a platonic friendship? Do you think I'm being overly romantic for wanting to be passionately in love with the man I marry? And am I foolish for not grabbing him?

WANTS LOVE

DEAR WANTS: Whether you can keep him as a friend after you turn him down will depend on him. If he does continue to date you, however, you may think of him as a friend, but you can bet he'll be in there pitching hard trying to get you to change your mind.

No, I don't think you're "overly romantic" for wanting to be "passionately in love" with the man you marry. If the chemistry is wrong, it's wrong. And that's what I'd tell him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 32 years and father of our four children told me in no uncertain terms that he wanted me to lose weight—or else. We made a deal. He said if I would get down to my normal weight, he would quit drinking.

Over the years he has gambled, drunk to excess and used street language. He has been unfaithful many times, too—always coming to me with a confession afterward so I would be sure to know what a lady-killer he was. Each time I forgave him.

Well, I went on a diet, and now I'm nearly down to the weight I was when we were married, but he hasn't stopped drinking. I told him no more sex until he stops drinking, so he says he will find a "brood" (his term) who will give him sex whenever he wants it, and he'll drink as much as he wants to and there's no way I can stop him.

Was I wrong to give him that ultimatum when his promise meant nothing? Our sex life was the best thing about our marriage and I still love him.

FOOL

DEAR FOOL: Yes. Withholding sex from him as a punishment is indeed foolish. Not only do you deprive yourself when you deprive him, but you provide him with a perfect excuse for going elsewhere.

DEAR ABBY: My sister separated from her husband a few months ago. She wants a divorce. He did not hurt or misuse her in any way.

I gave my son a graduation party and invited my sister's husband. I have a large yard and thought there would be plenty of room for both of them.

When my sister arrived and saw her husband there, she left immediately. In a few minutes she called me, crying and telling me how upset she was. She asked why I invited him if I wanted her there. I tried to tell her I thought he had the right to attend his nephew's graduation party. I tried to calm her down, but she screamed at me and hung up the phone.

Was I wrong to ask him? My sister is not talking to me. Should I try to make amends?

HAVING REGRETS

DEAR HAVING: You should not have surprised your sister by having her estranged husband there. You should have asked her in advance if she would be comfortable in his company. Try to make amends. You were in the wrong.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My son died in 1964 at 36. The death certificate states the cause of death was hemorrhage from the left adrenal due to pheochromocytoma. Now my grandson, age 24, who lives in Australia writes that he may have a pheochromocytoma. Is it hereditary? What is the prognosis? I would appreciate any information.

DEAR READER — A pheochromocytoma is a tumor of the sympathetic nervous system, that part of your autonomic (automatic) nervous system that forms adrenaline.

Most of these are in the adrenal gland, the small endocrine gland at the top of each kidney. The center of this gland is made up of the same tissue as in the autonomic nervous system. This is the major source of adrenaline for the body. The large amount of adrenaline producing cells in the gland is why so many of the tumors are located there.

The tumor can occur elsewhere in the nervous tissue. About 90 per cent of them are in the abdominal cavity. They are very interesting and somewhat rare tumors. They are one cause of high blood pressure. About 1 per cent of the people who have high blood pressure have one. The blood pressure may be persistently elevated, associated with spikes in blood pressure or it may be normal, punctuated with intermittent episodes of high blood pressure.

The high blood pressure and other symptoms that the patient has are directly related to the sudden release of excessive amounts of adrenaline. That's why the attacks of high blood pressure are often associated with sweating and tremulousness along with a consid-

DEAR POLLY — I can understand Marilyn wanting people to be friendly with her son but would like to pass on a word of warning. My daughter was also very friendly and to her no one was a stranger. When a stranger came to our door and I was giving him directions as to where he could find my husband she popped up and "I will go along and show you the way." That gave me such a jolt that I gave her a snappy "No." After the man left I had a heart-to-heart talk with her and gave her instructions never to go along with anyone she did not know. — E.M.

Arms demand equality

ALL WOOL ARM WARMERS, vest scarf and tam o' shanter in natural colors or rows of different colored stitches, cover just about any exposed area you might wish.

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Arms have rights, too, you know. Like being warm in the winter, especially if the arms' owner breezes along in hardy boots, polar pants, leg warmers, ski mask, ski hat, muffler — and quilted vest, leaving his or her arms to fend for themselves.

Arm warmers; that's what's needed. And that's what designer Laura Pearson and her company, Tijuca, are offering (among other woolen "component" parts such as sweaters, vests and "cow necks" you can "hood" into for a caterpillar effect or bunch up around your neck, or coddle a long, fat dachshund in on a bitter day.)

"Everyone was doing leg warmers, so I reversed the location because I had never seen arm warmers," Ms. Pearson says.

They're not starting to see. They're just a mitten up to your bicep with a "mouth" at the wrist so you can slip your hand in and out for a tissue when the winter makes your nose run.

They're also one of a kind, one size, all wool, in natural colors or "rows of different stitches in colors that look like Martha's Vineyard before the spring," she says happily.

What they're not is typically Indian which you'd think they would be since they're knitted for Ms. Pearson by 100 women in Ecuador. She found them three years ago when she was traveling there — persistently.

"I had heard there were wonderful knitters and I kept asking my driver about them."

He kept taking her to knitters who did schlock work, but finally, she says, "We ended up hours and hours away in the hills and we came upon a group of people who knit well."

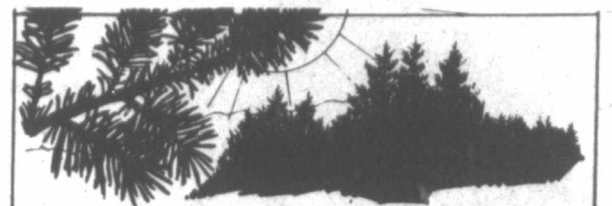

Instead of the typical South American Indian cardigan sweaters they were making, she got them to produce short Eisenhower sweaters, and ones down to here, in neutral and Vineyard shades. And vests with cap sleeves because Ms. Pearson is a science fiction fan and likes the look of the space cadet.

This year, in addition, her 94 knitters — supervised by six master knitters aged 25 to 50 — are making her arm warmers, which sell for $30 a pair at Ann Taylor, Bloomingdale's, Filene's and 125 specialty shops around the country.

Just one more thing. Ms. Pearson likes alternatives, so feel free to bunch her arm warmers at the wrist or pull them all the way up, depending on two whethers: the weather, and whether or not your neighbor's son's chilled pet reptile has wormed its way into one of them.

Gunsight sparks controversy, fear

FORT RILEY, Kan. (NEA) - As military hardware goes, the Promethium 147 gunsight seems innocuous enough. It is a puff of self-illuminating powder, encased in borosilicate glass, and when attached to the end of a rifle it may or may not insure proper aiming during times of limited visibility.

Yet despite its insignificant size and dubious efficiency, the Promethium sight is presently receiving substantial attention in the Army. The reason is that it is radioactive; it is also fragile, breaks regularly, and may thus be contaminating unsuspecting U.S. soldiers on duty around the world.

No one can tell how many GIs may have been soiled by the faulty gunsights. But the guess is in the thousands. One Army survey indicates the devices break at a rate as high as 20 percent, and, until recently, the radioactive spillage was normally cleaned up by bare-handed soldiers.

Scientists doubt that small amounts of the spilled Promethium can penetrate a soldier's hands. But there is concern that the radioactivity may be ingested by troops eating with contaminated fingers. Also, observers worry that discarded gunsights could be found and taken home by curious civilians.

In all likelihood, the radioactive sights have already found their way into at least some homes. A sergeant at Fort Riley says he knows of a case where a soldier mailed a leaking gunsight to his younger brother. The sergeant says the glow-in-the-dark vials make "pretty good Army souvenirs."

To date the military knows of no one who has been harmed by the Promethium sights. But spokesmen say there have been numerous complaints and inquiries about potential hazards. As a result, the service has quietly discontinued distribution of the attachment, and an investigation is being conducted.

The investigation comes nearly six years after the Promethium 147 sight was introduced in the Army. Researchers say the piece was created in response to post-Vietnam grumbles that Americans were not equipped to fight wars after dark. Since then, 200,000 of the gunsights have been given to units.

Troops say the sights have never been popular. Besides their fragility, they just do not work very well. Pfc. Rick Hale, of Riley's First Infantry Division, says the glow of the sight is a distraction. Soldiers elsewhere say they have purposely broken their sights, "just to get rid of them."

At present, the Army estimates there are only 100,000

On the light side

What's In a Name? Plenty
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Linda Sano's hobby is names, which she figures is reason enough to get hers changed to Linda Elizabeth Zeamygk Xylona Opaline Zerdali Drusilla Holly Clare Sakura Kim Sano.

"What the heck, I might as well have an even dozen," said Ms. Sano after filing for the name change in Hennepin District Court.

Ms. Sano said she had considered taking one name for every letter of the alphabet, but figured that would be too hard to remember. Even 12 names aren't easy.

"I've been rehearsing," she said. "I wrote it up and taped it over the fireplace and I've been memorizing it for months and months."

By acting as her own lawyer, she hopes to hold the cost of the legal name change to $24. At $2 per name, that's a bargain.

Critic Dumps on Movie
SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - A moviegoer apparently angered by projection foul-ups added some realism to a Santa Fe theater showing of the western, "Comes a Horseman."

A pile of horse manure dumped on the steps of the theater was followed Tuesday by an anonymous letter sent to the local daily newspaper, claiming responsibility for the act and warning, "The horseman will come again."

The theater manager said the projection problem would be corrected, and commented, "I think people are overreacting."

of the sights still in use. Fort Riley investigators say at least 8 percent of the sights here have shattered. "When they break," says one GI, "they spread all over. I've seen my fingers light up at night like a Broadway marquee."

Lit fingers apart, though, the Army does not believe that any soldiers have been poisoned by Promethium. The little-known element emits a low-yield beta radioactivity, with a half-life of only 2.5 years, therefore the Army's Environmental Hygiene Agency insists it presents "no biological risk to human beings."

Spokesmen admit there have been an unknown number of instances where Promethium has contaminated rifles in excess of safety limits. But a researcher in the Surgeon General's office says "there is absolutely no indication that small amounts of Promethium contamination are in any way dangerous."

Civilian scientists tend to agree with the Army's optimistic analysis of Promethium. But only to a point. MIT physicist Henry Kendall says Promethium is indeed low yield, and a comparatively mild radiation, yet he takes issue with the service opinion that the element is benign. "That," he says, "is dumb."

Kendall says there is no radioactive matter that is entirely harmless. Accordingly, he believes the Army should reassess its Promethium philosophy, and place tight restrictions on its use. At the least, Kendall adds, every GI should be thoroughly instructed on precautionary and decontamination safeguards.

Right now, very few GIs are thoroughly advised about Promethium. Some soldiers who have the gunsights are not even aware they are radioactive. Pfc. Hale says he had his sight for months before he knew its properties: "Now, let me tell you, if it breaks, I'm going to drop the rifle and run like hell."

It may be, as the Army says, that there is no reason for Hale and other GIs to run from Promethium 147. But jitters are natural when radioactivity is concerned. And so the opinion here at Riley is that, in case of attack, the troops should toss their gunsights at the enemy - and worry them to death.

Gasoline shortage; "just economics"

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - "It's just economics," says one dealer. Despite plenty of oil around, gasoline is in short supply, and that means each precious gallon will cost more next week, at least 20 cents more.

Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Newsletter, an influential industry report, says the price rise could reach three cents in some markets. The increase, he says, "won't take place in specific areas. It will take place on a national level - and especially in rural areas."

Charles Matties, a West Hartford, Conn., Exxon dealer and president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, agrees with Lundberg. "There's no question the shortage is going to bring some increase. I would expect to see a few cents upward movement," he said Tuesday.

The price rise is expected to continue as long as the tight gasoline supply persists - at least a month according to some oil companies. Other experts believe the crunch will last even longer.

Figures compiled by Lundberg show the price increase already occurring. The national average price of a gallon of gasoline rose about half a cent in November and four cents since the year began.

In Indianapolis, for example, premium gasoline containing lead rose 1.3 cents to 73.3 cents a gallon in November. In Des Moines, it was up 2 cents to 76.7 cents a gallon, Lundberg said.

Dealers are raising prices to compensate for less gas sold. "It's just economics," says Matties. "If a dealer now only has 75 percent of the product he was getting, he's going to have to increase his profit to offset his loss in sales. The overhead goes on."

Shell Oil Co., the nation's largest gasoline producer, has cut supplies of all products to service stations. Standard Oil of Indiana (Amoco) has slashed supplies of unleaded gasoline. Other major oil companies say their supplies are tight, but they haven't announced ration plans.

The tight supply results from unusually high amounts of driving in late summer and fall. Gasoline demand, which usually drops after Labor Day, persisted this year due to good autumn weather. Although oil companies had plenty of crude oil supplies, they couldn't refine gasoline fast enough to meet demand.

The companies wouldn't comment on price rises at the retail level. "The dealer sets the price and it will vary from dealer to dealer," said Norman Altstedter, a spokesman for Shell.

Teaching The Teacher
CALGARY, Alberta (AP) - A city police officer hit on a novel way to educate a teacher who made an illegal left turn on the way to school.

The unnamed educator was ordered to write 100 times: "I won't turn that illegal left again."

The completed work was mailed to the city with the following letter:

"Here are the 100 lines you asked me to write out in lieu of getting a $10 ticket for turning that illegal left. My colleagues here at school insisted I write the lines and send them. They agreed the punishment was both humorous and humane."

"Incidentally, I have found a new route for getting to school. It's five minutes longer but definitely more legal."

Ray Charles at Montreux

NEW YORK (AP) — Montreux and Newport evoke memories among jazz audiences of summer nights by the water's edge, listening to live performances.

Months afterward, records of some memorable performances from these concerts are issued. Too rarely, however, does a film or television audience have the opportunity to see jazz artists in performance.

"Ray Charles at Montreux," a two-hour PBS color special to be aired at 8 p.m. Thursday (local times may vary), remedies that lack.

Twenty years after his first appearance at the Newport Jazz Festival, then held in that New England seaside resort, Charles showed a youthful Montreux audience last July how the blues can be as much a religious experience as churchgoing.

Swaying while playing the piano, Charles sings with zest the songs he has made famous, among them, "I Got a Woman."

an. "Georgia," "Hallelujah, I Just Love Her So" and "Stormy Monday."

Although promoters in the jazz world are fond of calling a concert an all-star event, this vital performance warrants that adjective.

Dizzy Gillespie, one of the founding fathers of modern jazz, introduces Charles as "the master." Joining Gillespie on trumpet as sidemen for the concert are Hank Crawford on alto saxophone, David "Fathead" Newman on tenor saxophone, George Duvivier on bass, Micky Roker on drums and Kenny Burrell on guitar.

From time to time, Charles leans over to give some directions to his gifted sidemen. "Come on, Fathead, get in there," he encourages Newman. And to Crawford, during an eloquent solo, "Yes, baby, play your heart out." That kind of detail gives the viewer the feeling of being at the annual jazz festival on the shore of Lake Geneva in Switzerland.

Fortuitously, Esther Phillips, described in a recent book by composer-musicologist Arnold Shaw as "one of the towering females of R&B (Rhythm & Blues)," is also featured in one segment of the program. She sings a knowing "Fever" and "No More Lonely Nights."

New brochure outlines transportation system

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has issued a new 21-page brochure called "Rural Rides" that outlines in step-by-step detail how to organize and possibly finance transportation systems in small towns and rural areas.

It also urges rural people who are interested in pushing for improved transportation systems to launch vigorous lobbying campaigns with members of Congress.

Copies of the booklet were distributed Tuesday to reporters by the Agriculture Department.

The document, in its introduction, says that although 30 percent of the nation's people live in rural areas, only about 1 percent of the federal money earmarked for transportation is spent there.

It also said transportation needs of rural people "are more critical than the needs of their counterparts in urban areas" because of factors including a lack of public transportation.

"Yet, there is no federal agency for rural people to go to for such assistance," the report said. "Congress is responsible for seeing that funds are provided for both urban and rural public transportation."

"If you are concerned about rural transportation, you should write or call your representatives and senators, giving them information about your local needs and ideas on how to solve them."

But local political support also is important in this action plan, the report said. A program can be run without federal help but "no one can run a system without local support."

"Acknowledge that elected officials will benefit greatly by being associated with a successful system popular with senior citizens and other potent voting blocks," the report said.

"Press releases concerning plans and services should be issued in the name of the local political people who are sponsoring the system," the brochure said.

The report said that "as opposed to big-city transit systems that are primarily designed to shuttle people to and from work," rural systems "generally start up to provide rides to and from various social services."

"There is no question that such 'people programs' have political overtones, and that's not necessarily bad," the report said. "Except for the motivation to provide popular, needed programs to the electorate, most rural services wouldn't exist."

The brochure was prepared by the Farmers Home Administration of USDA in cooperation with the National Council for the Transportation of the Disadvantaged, it said.

Single free copies of the brochure are available from: Ira Kaye, Farmers Home Administration, Room 4131-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. William C. Wampler, R-Va., says it would be a "tragic mistake" to shift two large Agriculture Department agencies to the "recreation-minded Interior Department."

Wampler asked the Agriculture Committee chairman, Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., to join him in opposing the moves, reportedly part of a new Carter administration reorganization proposal now in the final drafting stages.

Reportedly among the proposed shifts is the transfer of the Forest Service and certain programs of the Soil Conservation Service to a new Department of Natural Resources built around the present Interior Department.

The Forest Service, in addition to aiding private landowners and the timber industry, manages 187 million acres of federal forests and grasslands.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department continues to predict that total red meat production will decline next year, largely because of cutbacks in beef output.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Albanian Communist leader Enver Hoxha says "the Albanian people prefer to live on grass than to kneel down" in a statement interpreted as a rejection of overtures from the Soviet Union and its East European allies to improve relations.

ATA, the Albanian news agency, published a statement by Hoxha Tuesday in which he said Albania's ideological fight against "the revisionists in Yugoslavia, the Soviet Union and China" was "an example for Marxist-Leninists all over the world."

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — City Councilman Vincent Manning said Dubliners live in "a lawless society" where "anti-litter laws are ignored, illegal bill-posting is rife, cars are parked on double yellow lines and some of our car parks have gone into liquidation because motorists will not use them."

As he was complaining at a council meeting Monday night, a message relayed to the council chamber said a car was blocking the entrance to Dublin Castle, the center for police communications. It was Manning's car.

CAIRO (AP) — Two Jewish doctors this week became the first Israelis to participate in an international convention in Cairo.

David Ser, head of the obstetrics department at Tel Aviv's Hashomer Hospital, and Yousef Shenkar of Jerusalem's Hadassah Hospital attended the 10th International Conference on Toxicity and Pregnancy.

About 200 gynecologists from 27 countries were invited to the four-day meeting by President Anwar Sadat's wife, Jihan. The conference ended Tuesday.

Soviets read too much

Newspaper shortage hits USSR

By SETH MYDANS
MOSCOW (AP) — The latest shortage in the Soviet Union is newspapers, with people complaining they cannot subscribe to their favorite publications and officials chiding them for trying to read too much.

When subscription lists for 1979 to the country's 8,000 nationwide and local newspapers and 6,862 magazines and journals opened recently, long lines formed early that morning at local post offices where subscriptions were taken. Already it's too late to subscribe to such favorites as Soviet Sport, Literary Gazette, the colorful morning and evening Moscow papers or almost anything besides the government newspaper Izvestia and the Communist Party daily, Pravda.

The popular magazines Health, Youth, Working Woman, Behind the Wheel, Young Technician and all the magazines of literature are out of the question.

In this nation of 250 million people, the paper with the largest circulation is Pravda, with a nationwide printing of 11 million. The two women's magazines sell just 2 million copies together. The leading youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda (or Young Communist Truth) prints 10 million copies a day and receives complaints from outlying regions that it is unobtainable.

The recent interview in the trade union newspaper Trud said it was impossible to increase press runs because of a nationwide paper shortage.

No segregation is better-Wallace

By SCOTT SHEPARD
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)

As he prepares to leave the office from which he once cried, "Segregation forever!" Alabama Gov. George Wallace says he now feels it's best segregation is gone, like the Old South from whence it sprang.

"It will be best if things are never back the way they were in the good old days. It's better like it is now," he says.

In an exclusive interview with The Associated Press, Wallace discussed a wide range of topics — from the 1960s civil rights struggle, in which he played the antagonist's role, to the 1972 assassination attempt that effectively ended his national political career.

"I feel what we did has accomplished something and has been worth something. If I didn't feel that way, I would be very sad, knowing the shape I'm in now and the price I paid," he said, referring to assassination attempt at a Laurel, Md. shopping center that left him paralyzed from the waist down.

That was "the shooting," as he calls it. And it is the point that divides his life so completely.

Before the shooting, he stood a chance of becoming president, he thinks. After that, there was no chance.

"I have weathered and conquered this matter, although I sometimes wonder why it was me," he said.

It is his paralysis that also caused him to abort a race for the U.S. Senate this year, a race he insists he "could have won."

"I decided after a long thought about the matter that to live in Washington, paralyzed was something that mentally I didn't know I could take, especially living alone," he said.

Wallace, divorced earlier this year from his second wife, Cornelia, said, "There is nothing so bad about living alone, (but) living alone paralyzed is a different thing."

"I do not feel that I have a chip on my shoulder. I am happy to be alive. God was good to me to let me live. By all rights I should be dead."

While refusing to discuss his divorce or rumors that he plans to marry again, calling such matters "personal and private," he did say he likes "to be alone at times, but I would rather be living with someone."

Insisting he lacks a "sense of history," Wallace nevertheless said he hopes history will view his career as having vindicated the South and "destroyed the myth that a southerner could not seriously run for president."

Wallace burst onto the national political scene in 1963 when, in his inaugural address as Alabama's newly elected governor, he cried, "Segregation now! Segregation tomorrow! Segregation forever!"

Six months later, he stood in the school house door to block two black students from entering the University of Alabama.

He parlayed that defiance of a federal desegregation order into an unprecedented three terms as governor and into four tumultuous presidential campaigns that, prior to 1976, were rallying points for Dixie-styled conservatism.

But as he readies himself for private life, the governor obviously is concerned about how history will view him and the policy of segregation he once espoused.

"In all my political career," he says, "no speech or book can be brought forward in which I ever made light of black people or made fun of them or cast them in an inferior or rank among whites."

"Of course, I stood for segregation at that time, and if you call that offensive to blacks, then, of course."

But, he adds, "Segregation is over. And it's better that it is over."

Industry scores victory

NEW YORK (AP) — After getting hardly a scrap of help for years, the recycling industry won from Congress this year an added 10 percent tax credit for the purchase of equipment. "A major event," it said.

Few people will be impressed by the announcement, because few people avoid the stereotypical view of recycling, which is to say they think of it as the trash or waste or scrap industry.

But times are changing. Antiinflation measures are patriotic. Conservation and environmentalism are in. Energy-saving is a survival strategy. Helping to balance foreign payments is all-American.

The recycling industry excels in all areas. Recycled metals often cost less than newly mined ore to process. Recycling limits the depletion of raw materials. It saves energy in the manufacturing process. It lessens the need for raw materials imports.

It took this combination of problems for recycling to gain the respectability it thinks it deserves. Even now, the primary industries enjoy depletion allowances and better capital gains benefits.

But, says M. J. Mighdoll, a spokesman for the recyclers, the additional 10 percent tax credit for the purchase of recycling equipment — bringing the total to 20 percent — is "a major step in the right direction."

Obviously, says Mighdoll, executive vice president of the National Association of Recycling Industries, Congress had the good sense to realize that recycling's energy conservation attributes are impressive.

By his calculations, the use of recycled lead and zinc, instead of primary ore, cuts 63 percent from the energy needed to process. The saving for paper may be 70; for copper 87; aluminum, up to 96 percent.

The cash savings are perhaps less well documented, but the fact that recycled materials offer competition, and an option, to raw materials, whose prices generally are rising fast, has the authority of logic.

The additional 10 percent tax credit, through the National Energy and Conservation Act of 1978, brings economic assistance to recyclers that might allow them to expand their operations. Now, they can receive a total of 20 percent of their equipment expenditures as a direct tax credit.

Equipment covered is all that used to process scrap nonferrous metals, paper, textiles, rubber and other materials and to convert them to ingots, fiber or products leading to further fabrication.

Martin Van Buren was the first president to be born a U.S. citizen. He was born in 1782.
