Stray bullet killed officer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A stray bullet fired by a fellow officer killed a Fort Worth police officer during a gun battle with a suspect, police officials now say.
 Police previously assumed officer Jimmy F. Chadwell, 40, was shot to death late Monday night by Richard Urias, 24, a man he was trying to arrest on a routine criminal mischief warrant.
 "The medical examiner is of the opinion at this time that the fatal wound came from officer David S. Hunt's handgun, as he was firing at the assailant while falling backward," Police A.J. Brown said.
 Police said Urias opened fire with a .25-caliber pistol on Chadwell and Hunt, 23, after they came into his house.

According to Brown, Urias shot Chadwell in the face and then fired at Hunt, who was saved by a bullet-proof vest. He aimed his revolver and shot at Urias several times, killing him, the chief added.
 An autopsy today revealed that one of the bullets from Hunt's .357-caliber magnum struck Chadwell in the back of the neck, damaging several vital organs before lodging in a part of his body.
 Brown said a bullet-proof vest would not have saved Chadwell's life, and said it is possible Chadwell would have died from the face wound, which struck him just below the left eye.
 Chadwell was married and the father of three children.

Police seek woman, car in killing

HOUSTON (AP) - Police sought today to learn more about a woman in a tan station wagon who apparently drove away from the home of a Harris County sheriff's captain just after his wife was shot to death Tuesday night.
 Anne Jones, 41, was shot once in the head about 6:30 p.m., police say. They pursued the possibility she was killed by someone unhappy at the actions of her husband, Capt. T.C. Jones, the night patrol captain of the sheriff's department.
 A neighbor said Mrs. Jones called her on the telephone and asked her to come over. A woman was at her door, claiming she was suffering from a diabetic seizure, and Mrs. Jones didn't want to open the door while she was alone, the neighbor told authorities.
 By the time the neighbor arrived, Mrs. Jones was lying dead on the porch of her home and a tan station wagon was driving away, police quoted the neighbor as saying.
 An all-points bulletin was issued for the station wagon.
 Police said a telephone directory and pencil lay on the porch beside her body, as if Mrs. Jones had been trying to find an address.
 Officers said the victim had just returned from a Christmas shopping trip.
 "Anne was very quiet, very understanding, very friendly in a quiet, reserved sort of way," said Sheriff Jack Heard. "She was as gentle a woman as you'll ever run into."

of a pickup truck, but no one in the truck was hurt.
 Irving police reported shortly after the sniper shooting that witnesses had seen an old yellow car parked on the overpass where the shooting occurred.
 However, when asked about the arrest of the three youths, Irving Police Sgt. Tom Caperton said, "Just from talking to these people about where they were Saturday night, I'm not too optimistic these are the ones. It's just something we're checking."

Ballistics tests ordered

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Police ordered ballistics tests today on a deer rifle to see if it may have been the one used in the weekend sniper shootings in which two persons were killed.
 The .30-caliber rifle, equipped with a telescopic sight, was found by Dallas police in the trunk of a car carrying three teen-agers Tuesday night.
 A Dallas patrol officer searched the car after hearing several shots in an isolated area about five miles from where the sniper fire occurred. The youths reportedly had been shooting at signs in a small park just before they were stopped.
 Two shotguns were also found in the trunk of the older-model, yellow car.
 The sniper fired at random at cars on Texas 183 near the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport Saturday night, killing a 12-year-old boy in one car and a 43-year-old man in another vehicle. Rifle fire also shot out the tires of a pickup truck, but no one in the truck was hurt.

Loan guarantees sought

DUMAS - A resolution has been introduced calling for a constitutional amendment that would provide for the guarantee of loans used in purchasing farm and ranch real estate for qualified borrowers. Sen. Bob Price announced here today.
 "This proposal," said Sen. Price, "would provide the Commissioner of Agriculture with the authority to provide for, issue, and sell general obligation bonds of the State of Texas in an amount not to exceed ten million dollars. The bonds would be executed in such form, denomination, and on such terms as prescribed by law. Interest rates on the bonds would be set by the legislature of the State of Texas.
 "The money received from the sale of the bonds would be deposited in the Farm and Ranch Loan Security Fund. The Commissioner of Agriculture would administer to the fund as prescribed by law.
 "The fund would be used to guarantee loans used in the purchase of farm and ranch real estate, in acquiring real estate mortgages or deeds of trust on lands purchased with guaranteed loans, and to advance to the borrower a percentage of the principal and interest due on those loans."

Only Cagney can play film part

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
EUR, Italy (AP) — Sergio Leone, the king of the spaghetti westerns, would do anything, pay anything, give anything if only James Cagney would come out of hiding and stage a prison break.

The prisoner to be freed is Leone himself. His captor is "Once Upon a Time in America," a film idea that the Italian director admits, almost in tears, "has kept me a prisoner for eight years."

The script, now boiled down from five to three hours, uses the film techniques of the 1930s to tell the story of an American generation from 1920 to 1968, the height of the Vietnam War. It is set in New York, and in Leone's mind only James Cagney can play the aged hero.

Luring Cagney from retirement in Martha's Vineyard or his cattle ranch in Pawling, N.Y., or wherever he hangs his dancing shoes and prop submachine gun these days has become an obsession with Leone.

"To me, Cagney is the films of the '30s," Leone puffs dreamily on his third cigar of the day in his cluttered villa on the outskirts of Rome. "I have turned the earth over to try and get him. He has told friends that if he would do it for anyone, he would do it for me, but not even his mother could coax him out of retirement. . . . He has become a recluse."

And so for that matter has Leone. Although he has produced a couple of movies to which he will not lend his name, he has not been behind a camera or shot any film as a director in more than seven years.

Rotund and bearded, he sits in his gilt throne chair like Orson Welles playing the Emperor Nero and talks compulsively about the film that holds him in thrall.

"The film traces the lives of four boys and three girls from age 14 to 60, but one of the stars is time itself. Time that changes everything. It is a mixture of fable and realism, a pretext to go back into time like Proust in search of a lost America. But I must have Cagney."

Leone admits that he is "bored to death with being a producer." The only reason he keeps RAFRAN, his production company, going, "is so I can stay solvent and get behind a camera again to start shooting 'Once Upon a Time in America.'"

In Italy, he moans, "it is impossible to become the real producer that existed once upon a time in America: the one who starts with a good idea, has a script written by good writers, calls in a leading director, casts the best actors and actresses and in the end takes full responsibility for better or for worse. In Italy, at the smallest level, every director is really the author, he has to invent everything for himself. So as a producer, either I impose my will on the director and we have a catastrophe or I withdraw into myself and leave the director to his idiotic devices. That is why in the last two films I produced, I used the name RAFRAN and not Serge Leone."

In what may have been a moment of weakness, or perhaps sudden-found strength to conquer his obsession, the imprisoned director announced he would begin shooting "Once Upon a Time in America" by the end of January "with or without Cagney. I must get on with it."

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Rising tuition, room and board — now costing $7,000 a year — declining scholarship funds and a shrinking endowment could make Harvard a school only for the rich or the very poor, w a r n s treasurer Thomas O'Brien.

In a report on Harvard's fiscal year ended June 30, O'Brien on Monday blamed inflation and falling stock prices for declines in major income sources.

The endowment dropped $63.3 million to $1.39 billion, and the amount given for scholarships dropped $400,000 to $25.2 million, he said.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is to tell you about a letter you never received. Some time ago I received a call from my son's third grade teacher asking me to stop in at school to discuss a letter my son had written in letter-writing class. It was addressed to YOU. It read:

"Dear Abby,
My dad works all the time. He is never home. He gives me money and lots of toys, but I hardly ever see him. I love him and wish he would not work all the time so I could see him more.

Jeff"
That was the entire letter. Abby, I was very poor when I was a boy. I always wanted my children to have it better than I did, so in addition to my regular job, I worked two part-time jobs—almost doubling my income. I managed to provide my wife and two sons with many luxuries, but I realized after reading Jeff's letter that I was depriving them of something far more important—myself. And my time.

For instance, I had never attended a report card conference, nor visited school. I took no part in Scouting, although both sons were Cub Scouts. I have never reprimanded my sons. This responsibility was entirely their mother's. Sometimes days would pass without my seeing the boys awake.

Because of the standard I had set for my family, I felt I couldn't lower those standards without first discussing it with them, so we held a family meeting. The result: I quit both part-time jobs and we adjusted our standard of living accordingly.

That was nearly two years ago, and now I realize what a wonderful family I have. I have earned the respect of my sons. But more important, I have learned that the greatest gift a man can give his children is himself and his time.

Today I am a happier man, and I want to thank you, Abby, because if it were not for the letter my son wrote to you, I might never have known what I was missing. Sign me...

DAD

DEAR ABBY: Would you like to know how an 83-year-old relic feels about Christmas?

I dislike exchanging gifts because most people give only in the hope that they'll get something. If I could get off everybody's Christmas list I would rejoice. I don't need anything, and everything I get is either the wrong size, not my style, or I have one already.

I can't go shopping myself, so I have to impose on others to shop for me, which is asking a lot. Also, a dollar doesn't buy nearly what it used to, and I resent spending all that money just so people won't think I'm a cheapskate.

I don't like those annual Christmas letters describing where they went last year. It's a lot of bragging and showing off.

Neither do I like Christmas cards with the sender's name printed on it. If a person can't even sign his own name in ink and add a personal "Hello," who needs it?

Also, somebody who notifies me that she has sent a contribution to HER favorite charity in MY name is somebody else I can do without. I like to pick my own charities.

Merry Christmas, Abby!

GRANDMA

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a rapid heart beat. Blood tests and chest X rays indicate that there is nothing wrong with me. I eliminated all caffeine from my diet and now I have stopped smoking. I am on Valium as needed.

When my heart starts beating fast, it is very frightening. I also experience shortness of breath. This happens at least once every week or every other week. My doctor says that if eliminating cigarettes doesn't stop the rapid heart beat, he'll put me on digitalis. This worries me.

I am only 31 years old and have never had any serious illness. Do you know anything about this condition? And, am I likely to have a heart attack?

DEAR READER — Many people who have attacks of rapid heart action have no underlying heart disease at all. Nevertheless, when the heart beats fast during such attacks, it can be uncomfortable and frightening. The shortness of breath in such instances occurs because the heart is beating so fast it doesn't have time to fill properly between beats. As a result, it becomes an inefficient pump.

There are some medical problems that will occasionally cause this. One of them is an overactive thyroid. I presume that your doctor has tested you for this possibility. You did the right thing by eliminating caffeine and stopping cigarettes. Those are two factors that we know contribute to the frequency of such attacks.

Now I used the word "attack" on purpose because the term "heart attack" is not a very precise one. Today, by common usage, it has come to mean having inadequate circulation to the heart muscle which leads to death of part of the heart muscle. These attacks are usually caused by plugging of a coronary artery with fatty-cholesterol deposits. Actually, a variety of acute heart problems are also called heart attacks, including episodes of rapid heart action such as you describe or transit chest pains which do not result in the death of heart muscle. So, in all honesty, it's not a very accurate term. But if you are worrying about the possibility of having death of heart muscle or myocardial infarction, I don't think you need to concern yourself about that at your age, particularly since you are a woman.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias, to give you more information about these problems. Other readers who want this issue may send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I should tell you alcohol sometimes precipitates such an attack in people who don't have heart disease. So, if you happen to be drinking cocktails now and then, you should try to find out if they are associated with the attacks and you would be better off not using them.

Of course, if you are drinking alcohol, you should also know that it doesn't mix well with Valium and you shouldn't use the two together. In plain language, if you are taking tranquilizers, don't drink.

Digitalis is sometimes used to control various types of rapid heart action. There are other medicines also available for this depending on what kind of episodes a person has.

I presume you have had an electrocardiogram and the nature of your rapid heart beat has been identified. That sometimes makes some difference in deciding what kind of medicine, if any, a person needs.

DEAR POLLY — What good is a Polly's Pointer if you have destroyed your clipping or the newspaper in which it appeared? de la Renta have done a series of magnificent little quilted "smokers" in suedes soft as velvet, trimmed in gold and silver kidskin.

Samuel Robert is introducing Christmas white ultra-suede, a fashion first, in "drop-dead chic" skirts, dresses and coats, combined with fabulous hand-painted shirts for glamorous "white" Christmas looks. One outstanding skirt is trimmed in Madeira embroidery, topped with a navy-blue chiffon, deep-plunge shirt with balloon sleeves.

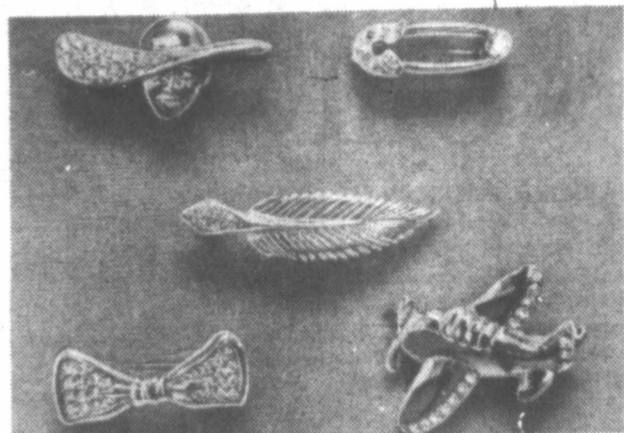

Shoes have opened up even more for winter wear — probably due to the disco fever that's flaming all over the country. Watch for high stiletto heels on bared sandals glistening with rhinestones.

Apparel designers all are showing bared shoulders and midriffs. Slit skirts that emphasize the leg let you choose from a myriad of stocking looks in textures that include lace, silk, stripes and checks. There are plenty of evening belts for the new short dresses with the lean leggy cut. Belts in all widths and sizes, for daytime into evening, also make a marvelous gift for the man or woman on your list. This year's include a new crop of blacks in satin and suede all highlighted with rhinestones for glitter.

Disco shops in stores all over the country are pulling together items such as chiffon scarves with glitter, sequined satin hats, shiny camisole tops — and all kinds of big junk jewelry — to make a fashion package easy to assemble for gift-giving. The Jewelry Industry Council says there's a need for big, bold, chunky looks in jewelry to set off knit, boucles, corduroys and other textured looks for daytime. This Christmas marks the return of the old scatter pin of the '50s, restyled in modern design for the suit look, and another echo of the '50s — the return of the "fabulous fakes" simulating royal crown jewels for evening looks.

A dressy, glittery disco theme also includes festive leotards and body suits. Add pull-on or wrap skirts that move from the gym to the disco with dangly rhinestone earrings and glitter rhinestone bracelets. Another place to put glitter into your life is in jeweled bangle bracelets worn over long black evening gloves.

ALL THAT GLITTERS — Rhinestones mark the return to Art Deco, with pins by Trifari. Airplanes, safety pins, leaves and bow ties for lapels, cuffs and collars.

Psychiatrists offer different suggestions

Suitable treatment difficult to find for teenager

By Murray Olderman (Fourth of five parts)

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) - The psychiatrist was tall, lean and serious. He knew the details of Mark's case intimately — the chaotic behavior, the recent periods in four different mental wards, the inability to find a suitable treatment program.

He also knew Mark's father socially. "I'm afraid," he volunteered over a cup of coffee, "psychiatry doesn't offer much for Mark. As you can see, it's an imperfect science."

The psychiatrist said Mark really shouldn't be in a halfway house because such places catered to schizophrenics, and Mark wasn't schizoid. (The diagnosis at Langley Porter agreed with that.)

But at Walnut Creek, Mark had been labeled a borderline schizophrenic. Mark shouldn't be in a hospital for a long term, said the psychiatrist. It could be debilitating.

But the staff at Mt. Zion and his therapist there had said long-term hospitalization, 18 months or more, was imperative.

It's obvious, said the psychiatrist, Mark needs the support of his parents. Especially now.

But the doctor at Westside Lodge had insisted that Mark be completely cut off from his parents.

It was the fall of 1977, and Mark moved home temporarily. He came under the care of another doctor who specializes in dealing with disturbed young people, with weekly visits.

Mark now said he planned to go to junior college in January and resume playing basketball. (He had received his high school diploma after special tutoring during his hospital stays.)

For three months, Mark bummed his time away. He played basketball on the playgrounds. He also got "stoned" on marijuana at least every other day with old street cronies.

During his parents' absence one weekend, he brought three buddies into their apartment, raided the liquor cabinet, threw beer bottles on an adjoining roof and ripped off the building's fire extinguishers.

They yanked a purse from a lady on the street. Mark's

"friends" also stole his mother's favorite jewelry. Mark didn't seem upset — until he found out that his electric razor had also been heisted.

On another weekend when he was left alone, he and a friend brought a black hooker into the building and had a raucous party.

He resisted attempts to move him into a residence hall, though his bills would be paid. He was fighting like hell against leaving home.

He actually enrolled at a junior college, taking a limited course of study in sociology and drama. But he complained he felt out of place, surrounded by strangers.

In late January, he was given an ultimatum: He had to move.

His older sister, an art therapy teacher for emotionally disturbed teen-agers, said she would put him up one night and help him get settled.

Three days later, he popped in on his parents at 7 a.m. He had been walking the streets all night. A policeman had stopped him. Mark carried no ID card and ran. The cop caught up with him and whacked him around the head a couple of times with a night stick before releasing him.

But Mark got the idea. He has never lived at home since.

He stopped going to junior college and lived on handouts from his parents. In late March, a job was arranged for him at an aluminum foundry in San Leandro.

He'd get $6 an hour, rent an apartment, save enough to buy a car, be his own boss.

It sounded good to him, but he was nervous and scared, and why not? His total job experience, going on 20, was two months in the summer of '76. He was fired after two weeks as a janitor in an amusement park — for being stoned on the job.

Also, he worked briefly as a stock boy in a ladies' apparel store.

Mark went to work at the foundry on a Monday, drawing the 3 p.m. to midnight shift.

At 1 a.m., he banged on the door of his parents' apartment. He was in a highly agitated state, almost incoherent.

"The union," he said, "kills people if you don't do exactly as they say. Those are bad dudes over there."

He was sent to his room in a residence hotel to clean up and get some rest. But every half hour into the early morning, he called, pleading, "You got to help me. Something's going to happen to me."

At 3:30 a.m., his father went over to get him. He was sitting on his bed, transfixed, the soot of the foundry still covering his face, still fully clothed, and he was freaked out.

"You gotta believe me," he muttered. "There are six guys from Lodi in that place, and they're killers. They murder people. I don't want 'em to get me."

His hands literally shook. His eyes seemed to recede into their sockets. He was psychotic. His father took him home, gave him a couple of valium pills and induced him to go to sleep. It was 5 a.m.

He woke up four hours later, still in a fantasy world, muttering about killing and unions, completely out of touch with reality.

He was quickly re-admitted to the Pacific Medical Center psychiatric unit, but he couldn't live at home. The tensions were impossible. And so was his behavior. His mother was afraid of him. The only recourse seemed to be a halfway house, that bridge between a hospital and the community.

In 1976, there were 232 psychiatric halfway houses in the entire United States. Region 9, which includes California, Nevada and Utah, has about 40 of them. Rosalyn Carter, the President's wife, has made a personal project of stumping for increased mental health care facilities in the community.

Trying to find one for Mark was as frustrating and denigrating as applying for membership in an exclusive country club.

Atheist celebrates in her own way

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is a Christmas story about someone who thinks Christianity is nonsense and views Jesus Christ as a "mythological creature." But that hasn't stopped atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair from her own brand of holiday celebration.

By SUSAN STOLER, Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Like other Americans this season, Madalyn Murray O'Hair will be sending out greeting cards, traveling to celebrate the holidays and possibly listening to Handel's "Messiah."

No, the atheist leader hasn't turned religious.

Neither has her sharp-tongued rhetoric against the "irrationality" of Christianity subsided.

She'll be celebrating the Winter Solstice Dec. 21. And as for church music, she exclaims, "There's nothing more inspiring than organ music."

It has been more than 15 years since Mrs. O'Hair filed suit which led to the 1963 U.S. Supreme Court ban on compulsory prayer in public school.

Since then, the now 59-year-old leader has championed various causes, including the solstice celebrations and removing "In God We Trust" from American currency.

"We want to capture those natural holidays," the animated leader said during an interview in her American Atheist Center office.

Those natural holidays (equinox and solstice) belong to all of mankind. It doesn't depend on your nationality, your sex, your race, your religion," she said.

This winter solstice has always been a pagan or natural celebration. What happened is that primitive man noticed that there was one day that was shorter than any other day," Mrs. O'Hair said.

"Along came religion. They simply had to steal the pagan holiday," she explained.

Her goal is for states to declare the vernal and autumnal equinox and the summer and winter solstice as official holidays. None have done so.

"Give us 10 or 20 years," she interjected. "The important thing is that we have so many groups celebrating the solstice. And we think it is significant that we sell out of solstice cards before we expected to."

A color photograph of an owl decorates the cards, with a poem on winter inside and a "Greetings of the Winter Solstice Season" message.

Two years ago, Mrs. O'Hair led the initial winter solstice celebration, complete with a solstice tree.

This year she will travel to Detroit, where one 32 national atheist chapters is staging a celebration.

"They wanted a celebrity, so we accommodated them because it attracts more people," she said.

Although she vigorously claims Christmas is based on a myth and that the Bible is irrational, the strident atheist disclaims any hatred for the church.

"One of the things that people think is that somehow I must hate the church," she said. "I have only fond memories of the church. I grew up in the Presbyterian Church."

FOCUS St. Lucia's Birthday. The people of St. Lucia celebrate December 13, St. Lucia Day, as the start of the Christmas holiday season. But today the citizens of a small island in the Caribbean are celebrating much more than that. For the people of St. Lucia, today is their country's birthday. St. Lucia is one of several island territories, long controlled by Great Britain, which are now becoming independent. The 238-square-mile island has about 120,000 inhabitants. But as a member of the Organization of American States (OAS), which it plans to join, St. Lucia would have a vote equal to that of much larger Western Hemisphere nations, such as the United States and Brazil.

Hispanics remain silent majority

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

Calle Veinticuatro, like many Latin American sidestreets, smells of frying bananas and throbs with music. Women in woven shawls pause to chat near gaudy murals and graffiti condemning "imperialism."
The street — officially, 24th Street — is in San Francisco. But it is no less Latin than parts of New York's "Loisaida" — Lower East Side — or sections of many major U.S. cities.
The United States is the fourth largest Spanish-speaking nation in the Americas. And, because of rapid immigration and a high birth rate, "Hispanics" may outnumber blacks within a decade.
The country has perhaps 20 million people of Hispanic descent. Eight million are Mexican-Americans, mainly in the Southwest, but there are several million Puerto Ricans, nearly a million Cubans and emigrants from a score of nations. Also, there may be 8 million illegal aliens.

And Hispanic community leaders, so far a small and disparate group, have begun in earnest to work toward building national political clout to match the numbers.
"It could take us a generation to get together," says Sal Baldenegro, a Mexican-American activist from Tucson, Ariz. "But we are trying, and we have made some real progress."
Many leaders, like Baldenegro, agitated loudly for change during the early 1970s, organizing national campaigns and regional parties.
"We found that we first had to organize our own communities locally, and most of us are now busy down at the grass roots," said Baldenegro. "We still have no real national leaders except someone like Cesar Chavez, and he is occupied with the farmworkers."

Voter registration drives and issue-oriented campaigns have made Hispanics a major force at local and state levels in the Southwest, New York and Florida. California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. courts the Mexican vote. In 16 states, ballots are in Spanish as well as English.
In Washington, five Hispanic congressmen make up a "Brown Caucus," and President Carter has appointed a number of Hispanics to key jobs. There is also a national magazine for Hispanics, Nuestro, with articles printed in Spanish and English.
In many ways, however, the Hispanics have remained a silent minority at the national level for several reasons.
Though bound by language, Roman Catholicism and a common respect for tradition, Latinos tend to keep within national and cultural groups.
When a Puerto Rican airman married a Mexican woman in Tucson, the bride's mother complained. "I just don't approve of these mixed marriages." Said a Cuban in Chicago, with its large Mexican-American enclave: "Yes, I feel good when I hear Spanish, but those aren't my people. I'm a Cuban, not a Latino."
Even within subgroups, backgrounds vary widely. Many families have roots here predating independence and, having dissolved in the melting pot of Hispanics have finished high school, compared with 46 per cent of blacks and 67 per cent of whites.

Such problems as police brutality and discrimination cut across the divisions. Cultural expressions — like music, theater and art — meld different Latin backgrounds. Sports heroes and tycoons and artists inspire new pride and set goals overlapping national backgrounds.
The National Council of La Raza — the Race — a loose grouping of Hispanic organizations, met this year with the theme: "Several Styles: One Voice."
Unity is likely to be helped by America's mobility. The various communities are rapidly dissolving their traditional boundaries, permeating every part of the country.
Miami, more than half Cuban in population, has a Hispanic mayor: a Puerto Rican. Chicago has a huge Latino population, a microcosm of the national breakdown. Even in North Carolina where Hispanics are the fewest, a tortilla factory supplies two Mexican restaurants.
The lines are hardly clear. Yankee slugger Reggie Jackson, black with a distinctly non-Hispanic name, is the son of a Philadelphia Puerto Rican.
The most diverse mixture is in San Francisco's Mission District where a neighborhood supermarket, Casa Lucas, stocks 36 kinds of pungent sauces, not counting ketchup. Owner Frank Preciado, Mexican-born but long a U.S. citizen, reflects: "My customers? Everyone. From everywhere. In a morning I will hear accents from a dozen Spanish-speaking different countries."

Sometimes, on Calle Veinticuatro, Preciado even hears English.
"Madama Butterfly," Puccini's opera, had its premier in New York in 1906.
The bitterness that helped unify blacks is less acute for Hispanics. "Latinos were persecuted terribly, but you have to be a specialist in history to know about it," says Tucson educator Lupe Castillo.
Also, there are differences on basic issues. Many Mexican-Americans and Cubans want fully bilingual programs in the schools so their children won't forget their heritage. But others say that their children already know Spanish and should concentrate on English.
At the same time, there is much to bring them together. Statistics show Hispanics are the lowest paid, poorest housed and least educated ethnic group. The latest figures show their unemployment 3 per cent over the national average — even without counting illegal aliens.
Twenty-seven per cent of Hispanic families were earning less than $7,000. For non-Hispanic families, the figure was 16.6 per cent. Only 40 per cent of Hispanics have finished high school, compared with 46 per cent of blacks and 67 per cent of whites.

Tiger 'paw' magician

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The four tigers rested benignly in their cages, looking like innocent kittens waiting to be petted.
But earlier, in rehearsal, they had reached up with their paws and effortlessly pried open the bars of a special capsule containing magician Doug Henning. "I thought they were going to eat me," Henning said.
Henning uses the four tigers — Ruffles, Snuggles, Ben, and Susie — in an illusion he created for his fourth network special, "Doug Henning's World of Magic," which NBC airs Thursday night at 8 EST.
Henning will take Brooke Shields on a magical tour of ancient Egypt, China, and medieval England. He will do five illusions never performed before.
"I find magic works best when it incorporates a plot, rather than just one illusion after another," said Henning. He was in his studio in Van Nuys, where he rehearses his illusions, keeps his collection of magic reference books, and has a crew of craftsmen who build the props he needs for his network, night club, and concert appearances.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

December 14, 1978

You will be far luckier in enterprises where you function independently than you will with partners this coming year. Avoid taking on deadweights. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though your intentions may be noble, a close companion will not appreciate your trying to run his life for him. Let him do his own things and you do yours. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you in 1979? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone to whom you are trying to lend a helping hand may attempt to maneuver things today so that responsibilities that are really his suddenly become yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) At social gatherings today don't introduce topics that are too heavy or controversial. Pleasant repartee could become heated debate.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may have a few more frustrations to contend with in the outside world than usual today. Leave them on the doorstep so you don't get the family uplift.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be doubly certain that proposals you make today can stand up under close scrutiny. Your ideas may be mercilessly picked apart, so have your answers ready.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) This is not a good time to get in over your head budgetwise. Don't assume any new long-range obligations unless they're absolutely necessary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make no decisions today under pressure. You need time to think things out. If you feel pushed it will adversely affect your judgment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Responsibilities you've been postponing are likely to clamor for instant attention today. Keep cool, but try to get matters straightened.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Make it a point to avoid the company today of a friend who tends to be arrogant and dictatorial. You could end up locking horns.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Sparks could fly at home today over who rules the roost. You'll be better off compromising than arguing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Others can't be expected to speak well of you if they hear you are saying unkind things about them. Today, make it a point not to knock one friend before another pal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Normally you're sensibly protective with your possessions and resources. However, today you could suffer a careless loss.

Cleveland mayor asks voters to save city

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich has appealed to voters to "save our city" with $38 million in new taxes, as he hears final talks with the bankers who must decide by Friday if Cleveland will default on its loans.

Kucinich said only higher taxes can get the city out of debt and avert what would be the first default by a major U.S. city since the Depression.

The alternative, the mayor said, is municipal layoffs, stripped city services and higher taxes anyway.

"I'm talking about a tax increase which will be needed to save our city," Kucinich said Tuesday night in a 30-minute televised address.

The city will attempt to sell $90 million in bonds during March if a 50 percent increase in Cleveland's 1 percent payroll tax is approved, the mayor said, and use the money to consolidate city debts, extend payments and undertake capital projects.

The mayor — long an outspoken opponent of higher taxes — softened his proposal by telling voters that suburban dwellers would pay 68 percent of the $38 million it would raise.

It was not clear what effect Kucinich's proposal would have on Cleveland bankers, who face a Friday deadline for a decision on whether they will refinance $15.5 million in short-term notes.

Attempts to raise the payroll tax have been defeated by voters three times since 1968, and state law requires voter approval for an increase.

A few hours earlier, federal marshals began tagging $3 million of city property, which Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. may seize because the city has not paid its bills.

40 killed, more than 600 wounded in continued fighting in Iran

By PHILIP DOPOULOS
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — At least 40 persons have been killed and more than 600 wounded in two days of street battles between foes and supporters of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in Isfahan, Iran's second city, medical sources there report.

Western diplomats in the city

250 miles south of Tehran reported the army used tear gas and then opened fire Monday night after demonstrators who had marched through the city peacefully went on a rampage and attacked banks, movie houses, office buildings and other symbols of the shah's Westernization campaign which Moslem religious leaders oppose.

The sources said the gunfire mowed down hundreds in the darkness, and the clashes lasted for five hours, until midnight.

On Tuesday, diplomatic sources reported, thousands of supporters of the shah went on a rampage of their own, smashing store windows displaying pictures of Ayatollah Khomeini, the religious leader of the anti-shah movement, and ripping his pictures from walls and power poles.

Later, the sources continued, troops entered the fray and attacked anti-shah mobs which had gathered, beating them with their rifle butts and batons and forcing people to shout "Long live the shah!"

"Tuesday was a day of bitter brutality rather than shooting," said one diplomat. "Most if not all of the deaths occurred in the rioting Monday night."

Helicopter gunships from a nearby air base hovered over the fighting, "but to the best of our knowledge and what eyewitnesses now report, the helicopters did not fire on the crowds," a spokesman at one Western embassy in Tehran said.

Leaders of the anti-shah movement claimed hundreds were killed.

he made his acceptance conditional on Israel's agreeing to a commitment to hold elections among the 450,000 Palestinian Arabs living in the Gaza Strip, the sources said.

So far, Begin has resisted linking Israeli-Egyptian peace in any way to the realization of Israel's offer of autonomy to the Palestinians of Gaza and the West Bank of the Jordan River. The new U.S.-Egyptian formula is designed to gain Begin's acceptance to a partial linkage, in Gaza alone.

Also by dealing with Gaza first, the sources explained, the hope is that Palestinian leaders of the West Bank might be encouraged to take part in the negotiation of autonomy for their area and its future status.

Vietnam War peace talks began in Paris in 1968.
