Cabot worker in 'good condition'

A Cabot Corp. employee was in good condition Saturday after he suffered a compound fracture over his ankle last week, says Mike Dixon, a Cabot spokesman. James D. Boland, 61, of Pampa, reportedly caught his leg on a machine when he tried to step over the conveyor belt. The machine is known to workers as a 'shrink rap unit' and is used to package plastic materials.

Boland was taken to Highland General Hospital. He was later transferred to Amarillo Hospital for orthopedic care. He is expected to be released within a few days. Boland has been with Cabot for 28 years.

Mistrial threatened; Davis jury hits snag

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Jurors voted three times Saturday but failed to break the 8-4 deadlock that threatens a mistrial in the marathon Cullen Davis murder-conspiracy case.

Trial Judge Wallace Moore told the panel of seven men and five women to return at 9 a.m. Sunday to resume its efforts to reach a verdict. A total of nine votes has been taken with no crack in the 8-4 impasse.

Moore said the jury would deliberate only until 1 p.m. Sunday and then adjourn to watch the Super Bowl with millions of other American television viewers.

With the specter of a hung jury hovering over the proceedings, defense lawyer Phil Burleson declared.

"They've now taken nine votes and they're still 8-4. They listened to all the tapes today and they're still not budging. That's encouraging because the tapes are the state's case."

Earlier, Judge Moore torpedoed a fleet of defense objections, and once again lead defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes re-entered his motion for a mistrial.

The judge denied the request.

Haynes also argued vigorously but in vain to stop Moore from permitting jurors to listen to state tapes in the privacy of the jury room.

And he suggested additionally that the sanctity of the jury room might be in jeopardy.

He said prosecutors using the bathroom in the judge's chambers can overhear the secret jury discussions.

Moore wearily asked state attorneys to use other restroom facilities.

The flurry of activity came on the heels of Friday's disclosure that the jurors appeared hopelessly deadlocked and unable to reach a verdict.

They said they were split 8-4 and that there had been no change in the vote since their first ballot Wednesday morning. Jurors got the case Tuesday night.

Moore said he did not want to see the 12 weeks of proceedings go down the drain without an additional attempt to reach a verdict.

The judge did not ask the panel to reveal whether the majority voted to convict or acquit, but the tenor of Saturday's proceedings indicated both sides believed the eight favored conviction.

Davis, 45, the Fort Worth industrialist, went on trial Oct. 30, accused of plotting the murder of the judge presiding over his bitter divorce case.

The state based its case on a tape-recorded conversation last August between Davis and FBI informant David McCrory, 40, the state's key witness.

The two met on the parking lot of a Fort Worth restaurant and discussed the contract killing of Judge Joe Eidsen and others. FBI agents secretly videotaped the Aug. 20 rendezvous and arrested Davis minutes later.

The defendant maintained he was framed.

Before retiring Friday, the jury said it wanted to hear the Aug. 18 tape again and asked permission to take notes. The defense objected to any note taking.

Moore decided, over defense objections, to allow the jurors to listen to the tape and several recorded telephone conversations in the jury room.

Because of legal technicalities, they were not given the Aug. 20 tape. But if they want to hear it again they can do so in open court.

Haynes argued futilely that the tapes are not evidence, but testimony, and that it was improper to take them into the jury room.

He complained also about the presence of Judge Eidsen in Judge Moore's chambers. He said jurors might be prejudiced by seeing Moore and Eidsen, a state witness, together.

"I don't know whether the tension is getting to the defense lawyers or if they are acting out of desperation," prosecutor Jack Strickland said of the objections.

"They're more non-issues that have been blown up by the defense into issues."

Meanwhile, Judge Moore says if there is a mistrial in the Davis case, he would immediately set a bond hearing "and I am inclined now to grant him bond, somewhere between $25,000 and $30,000."

Iranian trip to Lubbock called hoax

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Lubbock police remained on standby Saturday, but branded as a hoax unconfirmed reports that a large group of anti-shah Iranian students was headed for this West Texas city from Houston.

"At the present time we have to treat it as a hoax," said Police Col. Stuart Bartley.

Unconfirmed reports that 200 armed Iranians aboard buses and cars were on their way brought denials from the Texas Department of Public Safety. Spokesman Jim Robinson said no one from DPS intelligence at Lubbock reported that any group of armed Iranians was headed for Lubbock.

The original source for the initial report prompting additions to the Lubbock police could not be determined at once.

Iranian Crown Prince Reza Pahlavi is in jet training at nearby Reese Air Force Base. He was joined at his plush Lubbock home earlier this week by other members of the shah's family. They were identified as the shah's mother-in-law, Farideh Diva and Princess Farah Naza, 15, Prince Alireza, 12, and Princess Lavina, 8.

A report in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal said the family members were moved to Reese Air Force Base Friday night, but Air Force officers at the base and at the Pentagon declined to comment on the report.

Lubbock police called out extra officers and checked roads coming into the city. The extra officers were released from duty but remained on standby. The highway checks were continuing early Saturday afternoon.

The unconfirmed reports said the anti-shah students left Houston Friday night, but police there said they were unaware of any mass departures.

No law enforcement agency reported seeing buses carrying Iranian students, but reports persisted that the buses were trailed by officers from Houston to Abilene, where the surveillance either ended or failed. The shah's family members flew into Reese aboard an Iranian 707 aircraft from McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey.

Lubbock police said State Department officials who have been in the city since early this week remained on hand.

The crown prince's house nestles on about an acre on Lubbock's W 21st street amid other plush homes. Surrounded by a low brick wall, shrubbery and guarded by slight iron standards, the home was reportedly purchased for $250,000.

On Wednesday, some 25 Iranian students marched on the Alamo in San Antonio, shouting "Death to the shah."

At the Texas shrine, a group of residents shouted down the Iranians with a chant of "Depart radical Iranians."

About 2,000 Iranian anti-shah demonstrators staged a wild, noisy demonstration outside an estate where the shah's mother, Tadj el Moulouk, and the shah's sister, Princess Chams, lived in Beverly Hills, Calif. last month.

The women later moved to Palm Springs, Calif., and were reportedly staying at the estate of former Ambassador to Great Britain Walter Annenberg. It has been speculated that the Shah himself might take up residence at the Annenberg estate.

Cowboy fan sure of win

By JOE BLOBAUM

SKELLYTOWN — The nation's loyalties may be divided between the Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys when they square off in Miami for Super Bowl XIII this afternoon, but there's no question who the favorite is at Deano's in Skellytown.

Dressed in her Cowboy sweatshirt and cap and sipping coffee from her mug emblazoned with the Cowboy logo, Dean 'Deano' Shipley lets you know you're in Cowboy Country when you walk in the door to her cafe and general store.

Mrs. Shipley is an unabashed Cowboy fan — or fanatic if you prefer. And she takes her football very seriously.

"I don't like to lose," she said Friday morning while discussing the Cowboys' chances in professional football's biggest game. "That's why I like them so much. They don't lose very much. When you've got it, flaunt it. They've got it and I flaunt it."

"I admire the team as a whole," she said. "As far as I know, none of them have had reputations. Landry and Roger especially."

Roger, of course, is Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach, who is Mrs. Shipley's personal favorite. "He's a good father, a good husband and a good athlete," she said. "But his Christian witness is what I really admire."

As far as the rest of the Cowboys are concerned, she said, "there's not one on there I don't like. I like 'em all."

She also has no doubts as to Terry Bradshaw's fate against the Dallas Doomsday II defense. "He's going to be martinized and whitewashed," she predicted, adding that the Cowboys would "definitely" put pressure on the Steeler quarterback.

"They'll play clean but they'll play tough," she said. Her loyalties to the Cowboys run deep, and her nostrils flared slightly when she was informed her interviewer had picked Pittsburgh to win by two points.

"Why did you do that?" she asked incredulously.

"They can't be hotter than Dallas. They're not as good. Player for player, they are not as good," she said, putting emphasis on the word "not."

While she admittedly takes a lot of ribbing for her love for the Cowboys, Mrs. Shipley said there are "a lot of fans out here for Dallas, the whole city really."

But there aren't probably few other women — even for that matter — in Skellytown who have seen a Cowboy game at Texas Stadium for a holiday present. That's what Mrs. Shipley got from her husband on Oct. 8, when she saw her favorites rout the New York Giants 24-3.

She expects to see a close, hard-fought football game this afternoon, however. "I think it'll be close," she said. "I wouldn't give many points on it."

"I don't really bet," she added. "I did tell a friend of mine if Dallas got beat I'd buy him a steak dinner. I'm confident I won't have to."

Win or lose — and she doesn't even like to think about losing — Mrs. Shipley plans to offer a free cup of coffee to Cowboy fans on Monday. And she has a foolproof plan for separating the true Dallas followers from the false ones.

"I know. I know the ones that've mouthed off," she said with a smile.

New Pampa Fire Chief: No big changes planned

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

When Paul Jones, Pampa's new fire chief, was photographed for today's News, he decided against wearing his official cap.

"I don't really like it," he laughed. "It's just something to hang the badge on."

Jones, a 23-year veteran of the fire department, was appointed by the city commission last week to replace outgoing chief Finace Dyer, who is retiring. The new chief was assistant chief for six and one-half years prior to his promotion.

Jones began his career as a rookie for two and one-half years, and then spent the next five years as a driver at the North Station. He was promoted to lieutenant and transferred to the Central Station, where he first served under Dyer, who was a captain at the time.

When Dyer became chief, Jones moved up to captain. He became assistant chief when Vernon Pirkle retired.

"I sure hate to see Finace leave," Jones said Friday. "He's been an awful good fire chief."

Referring to his experience as an assistant, Jones said "I think we're on firm ground."

"I don't see that we'll make any major changes. Finace has always run a smooth operation.

The fire department has been efficient and I expect to keep it that way."

Jones was reared in Laketon, 19 miles of Pampa, but has lived here for the last 28 years. "It's really my home town," he said.

The new chief has a wife and two stepdaughters at home. Two grown sons and a daughter are married and reside in Austin.

Jones' life revolves around his job. "I've been dedicated to this fire department so long that I don't really have any hobbies," he said. "Flying is about the only outside interest I have."

Jones started flying with an uncle in Oklahoma when he was 15, and got his pilot's license in 1965. He owns a 1946 Ercoupe two-seater airplane, and is a member of Experimental Aviation Association Chapter 267 in Amarillo.

"I like just being out for an hour or two — just flying around the countryside over Pampa," Jones said.

"She flies with me if I'm going somewhere," he said of his wife, grinning. "If I'm just out playing around, she'd rather stay home."

After almost a quarter-century in a risky profession, Jones remains in good health.

"The type of job it is, of course there are times when you look back and see where you had close scrapes," he said. "But at the time, you just think about doing your job."

Jones will be 49 in March, and he figures he has about 15 years to go before retiring.

"I plan to stay here and make this my last move," he said. "I hope to retire from this job."

Gray power

A force always felt

In recent years, as sloganism in America became popular enough to give every type group some saying it could put on banners, those around 65 and older adopted the label "gray power."

While some people have gone on insisting that "old" people should be put out to pasture, but that Social Security payments should be increased, the feeling that comes across perhaps to the young still in the ivory halls of learning is that to be old is to be useless.

Don't breathe a word of that to the late Thomas Alva Edison.

Nor to Conrad Hilton, the hotel magnate whose name is known to every American traveler, who died earlier this month at the age of 91.

"He was working right up until just before Christmas," a spokesman said of the 6-foot-2, 195-pound, "lean, mustachioed and permanently suntanned" Hilton.

Hilton was not one of a kind, but a familiar American success story. Here was a so-called "senior citizen" who at 70 was 70 years young. Look around, there are plenty of people like that in the Texas Panhandle, people still ranching and working farms in Gray County, active upper years folks in Pampa and around. They continue to make an immense contribution. As a matter of possible ascertainable fact, also, it might be proven that our "elderly" include millions working, thinking, making a contribution, and running things.

Howard Jarvis, the man whose dream was California's Proposition 13, is 76 years old. The night the tax-limiting measure was approved by the voters, he stood flushed before backers and supporters in Los Angeles, and flexed some gray power muscle as he announced:

"The millions who voted for this amendment will not be trifled with. We will not put up with it! To ignore us is political suicide.

"Tonight we know how our forefathers felt as they hurled crates of tea into Boston Harbor and paved the way for freedom and liberty in the United States. The fight for Proposition 13 is the opening battle in the new American Revolution. We have a new revolution against the arrogant politicians and bureaucrats whose philosophy of tax-tax-tax, spend-spend-spend and elect-elect-elect is bankrupting the American people. And the time has come to put a stop. Our victory tonight is a taxpayers' victory and we have just begun."

Hmmm. What was that again about taking care of our elderly? Thank goodness we have them.

"I remember my youth and the feeling that will never come back any more - the feeling that I could last forever, outlast the sea, the earth, and all men."

-Joseph Conrad, English novelist.

China ready for civilization

Were you dismayed when Carter divorced Taiwan and married China? So was I. But it is just possible the peanut farmer is right — that the people of mainland China are ready to come back to the civilized world.

The Chinese are not stupid. They are smart — smart enough to see that the Taiwanese are producing a lot of sophisticated goods which they can get by trade but neither they nor anybody else can get by war.

And they are smart enough to know that the merchants of Taiwan realize what an enormous potential market — 900 million people — is at their door across a few miles of water. The Taiwanese with their skill, experience and enterprise could lead the mainlanders into the land of plenty they long for.

Further, the Chinese are smart enough to know that to open their doors to Americans will do China great good, whatever it does to America. We have many goods and much technology they positively must have if they are to get into the 20th century before it is over. Just how they will pay for our goods is dim to me, but they are shrewd — they will find ways.

For one thing, it is not lost on them that the dollar is now a glut abroad and hence cheap. It is an opportune time, Peking can see, to get dollars, the kind of money it takes to buy American goods. And they can buy from other countries, too, with dollars. Japan has just sold them a steel mill for dollars. Can the cheap dollar be the main circumstance that has prompted their current amiability?

Americans are hurting to sell more to foreigners. It would bolster the dollar in value and in international prestige. It would help to stave off recession. When we are eager to sell is a good time for others to buy.

And it's not just our farm and industrial products we want to sell. There's a lot more, including education. Our colleges and universities are overbuilt. They need more students and soon will need still more. China is teeming with potential students — young men and women who have hungry brains but little to feed them. Chinese representatives already are visiting our universities to arrange for those Chinese students to come here to study.

This is an amazing development. Have you noticed Soviet Russia exerting herself to send young Russians here for education? Communist dictators long have shivered in their boots lest their youth get hep to how the other half of the world, the capitalist half, lives. But here is a supposedly Communist regime going out of its way to get its youth into our colleges, to import education from capitalist America, as it were.

Let the Chinese students come, the more the merrier. Let them bring their ideas of how society should be organized. And let them observe how we do things here. When they return to their homeland they'll never be quite the same. And maybe they'll learn some things from them.

The Orient is opening its doors. First, it was Japan as result of World War II. Then Korea. Chiang Kai-shek being our ally in the war, we backed him in converting Formosa into Taiwan. While trying to do good in Vietnam we got our nose bloodied, but we also got thousands of Vietnamese-Americans. Now the big one, Red China, is opening up. The times are changing, East is East and West is West, but now the twin shall meet.

Some aver that Peking's change of heart indicates Chinese communism is different from that of Soviet Russia. Just how it differs is not yet clear. Is it warm to private property? There's no sign of it. Does it approve private profit-making? Not so you would notice it. Its friendly gestures may yet prove to be merely that, gesture. But there is a chance that the Mao madness is over and China is coming to its senses.

President Carter has betrayed our country's friend, Taiwan. Betrayal is a foul act. And it seemed unnecessary. Why could we not resume relations with China and continue to recognize Taiwan as an independent nation, which it actually is? We could recognize both, just as we recognize both West and East Germany, one capitalist, the other Communist.

"Recognition" of one country by another is a superficial thing. It is merely a formal name for a relationship between governments. The vital relations between countries are the economic and the cultural. Unhappily these have become entangled with the political.

If the new deal results in disruption of the thriving trade and communication between Americans and Taiwanese, it will be a tragedy. The Taiwanese share our ideals of freedom and enterprise. To what extent the men of the mainland do remains to be seen. Why alienate a good friend in order to shine up to a question mark?

But history is not always characterized by retributive justice. Good can come out of evil. If it were not so, the human race, sinful as it is, would have become extinct long ago.

It is possible that American relations with the mainland Chinese will be friendly, peaceful and mutually productive, and not at the expense of the Taiwanese. We can hope.

Journalistic muggers

"Who steals my gold steals trash, but he who filches from me my good name leaves me poor indeed."

Pat Boone has been the victim of a hit-and-run journalistic "mugging"; he is not the first and will not be the last.

Bill Buckley has apologized for that recent "mistake" in his column but how do you unring a bell?

What the column said was that Pat Boone and his wife regularly show a pornographic movie in their home. Four times in that one column Pat Boone is quoted as owning, exhibiting and approving pornographic movies.

Totally false. Absolutely and utterly untrue. The columnist blames a secretary's editing of his words. Buckley says he had intended his words to read: "a Pat Boone-type entertainer."

I know the identity of the "Pat Boone-type entertainer" to whom Buckley was referring.

But the damage to the reputation of Pat Boone and his family is irrevocable; hard as you scrub to "rub out that vile blot" inevitably some stain remains.

Ironically, Pat Boone was one of the new Hollywood luminaries — may have been the only one — who voted for the Proposition 18 anti-pornography measure when it was on ballot there in 1974.

As I say, Buckley has apologized — but Boone is still out the cost of two lawyers who sought to get many newspapers to publish corrections. If Boone wanted to sue for libel he would be required to prove both "intent" and "damages" and it is almost impossible to prove either.

Pat Boone will survive this scurrilous slander, I am more embarrassed for the corrupt, callous or careless newshandlers who sound like stray dogs barking at a freight train.

As in the Buckley incident, they are not always journalists.

And if this was an innocent "mistake," not all are.

The late Col. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, frequently found his own editorials "re-edited" in the composing room.

At least one of our nation's noisy newspapers rarely publishes any profile without some philosophical motivation. Another book is coming out on Billy Graham which will include flagrant untruths and grotesque distortions relating to his organization and his family.

The fact that despite these persistent assaults Billy Graham remains America's most admired man, and the fact that the new media rates disgracefully low on public opinion votes of confidence seem to suggest that the truth will triumph.

Not always.

Sen. Barry Goldwater could tell you about that.

Because at least once I have been the target of the muggers myself, I have firsthand acquaintance with the calculated strategy of the libelous slur and the futility of denial.

Persons of prominence eventually toughen themselves against the slings and arrows, but they never become impervious to hurt.

And, strangely, it hurts most when the victim of what you know to be an irresponsible and unjust attack — is a friend.

IN WASHINGTON

Carter takes on trade

by martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — One of the Carter administration's toughest legislative battles this year could be over before it even officially begins. In fact, it had better be if the president hopes to prevail.

Late last week, Carter formally notified Congress of his intention to enter into a new and complex series of trade agreements with most of the other major non-Communist nations of the world, agreements that have been five years in the making.

The president and his special trade representative, Robert Strauss, now have 90 days in which to persuade Congress that the end product of the so-called "Tokyo Round" of multi-lateral trade negotiations is, on balance, in the best interests of the United States.

When the 90-day consultation period has expired, Carter can send to Capitol Hill the legislation necessary to implement the U.S. end of the trade bargain. Once submitted, the trade legislation moves immediately onto a unique "fast track" in Congress where it will be immune to filibusters and other delaying tactics. It will not be subject to amendment, but must be voted up or down exactly as is.

That means, in effect, that the administration's selling job must be completed before the trade measure ever goes to Capitol Hill, because no deals can be cut, no changes made, once the legislation is formally submitted.

Bob Strauss could probably peddle Plato to the platoon of Playboy bunnies — and in the original, at that — but even his formidable talents will be sorely tested this time.

American industries hard hit by imports — from textile manufacturers to citrus growers, from steel producers to nuts — and bolts makers — have been screaming in recent years for higher trade barriers, not lower ones.

Their protectionist appeals have found a generally sympathetic audience on Capitol Hill, where House members especially tend to be hypersensitive to anything that threatens jobs in their districts.

Furthermore, Carter pollster Patrick Caddell has found that protectionist sentiment in the general public is running very high right now, which simply reinforces congressional biases.

Carter and Strauss will argue that the new trade agreements, taken as a whole, will significantly improve U.S. exports — and that increasing exports will be of greater economic benefit domestically than artificially blocking imports.

Already one of every three acres under cultivation in this country is producing for export, as is one of every eight manufacturing jobs. If the United States seeks to restrict imports from other nations, retaliatory moves could have a devastating impact on our own economy, especially in the farm sector.

American negotiators insist the new trade accords take away none of this country's existing ability to protect its industries and workers against unfair or predatory trade practices by other nations, but instead require other countries for the first time to abide by a set of clearly delineated rules.

The agreements would lower, if not eliminate, many of the non-tariff trade barriers that American exporters have found so frustrating in recent years. These take a variety of forms, depending on the country and product involved.

They range from outright government subsidies of certain industries in other countries to subtler obstacles like the absence of open bidding on government procurement contracts or government regulations that are designed to keep out imports.

While the United States likes to think of itself as the victim of these non-tariff trade barriers, we have a few of our own that will also require adjustment under the new agreements. That is where the fight on Capitol Hill is likely to get hottest.

THE GRAY County Chapter of the National Foundation of March of Dimes has selected three-year-old Deana Leshner as their poster child for the second year in a row. Deana, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Leshner of Pampa, has had epilepsy since birth and is partially blind. The chapter has been helping her parents with traveling expenses so that the child can be treated at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston. Mrs. Leshner says that as a result, Deana has had better control of her back and neck muscles. Meanwhile, the Mothers March on Birth Defects is scheduled for Monday. Fruit prices likely to increase AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A recent hard freeze killed 40 percent of Texas' citrus crop and 75 percent of its lettuce and cabbage crop, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Saturday.

"Coupled with the freeze in California and short crops in Florida, this means higher prices in the food store," Brown said.

Limb damage to crops was so severe that only a half-crop is likely for Texas citrus growers next year, Brown added.

Rio Grande Valley citrus growers shipped 17 million 40-pound cartons last year; the outlook for this season is 10 million cartons.

The harvest season usually extends into May, but the agriculture commissioner said this year's harvest probably will be all wrapped up by the end of February because of the freeze.

Texas inspectors handled 4 million cartons of lettuce and cabbage last year. Only 900,000 cartons have been inspected this year, with the harvest virtually complete.

Brown halted all shipments of oranges and grapefruit from Texas' Rio Grande Valley for 12 days, from Jan. 7 through Jan. 18, so any freeze damage would be evident to Texas inspectors.

"Our inspectors are working around the clock helping them move it out. We have 35 inspectors, and they have turned very little of the citrus crop down," Brown said.

'Legislative politics won't change'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The election of Republican Gov. Bill Clements will not drastically change Texas legislative politics, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Saturday.

"Up to now, at least, party labels have never really meant very much in state government. Republican members of the Legislature have never been handicapped in passing legislation or serving on committees," said Hobby, the Senate's presiding officer.

"In fact, partisanship has not really been a factor in the legislative process and I hope that would continue," he added.

Hobby made the comments on the radio program State Capital Dateline.

The state's highest ranking Democratic official predicted Clements will be in for some surprises — along with everyone else.

"Frequently people run for an office and find that when they're elected to it, it's a different office from the one they sought," he said. "And that's frequently true of people who get elected governor."

Hobby said he was not criticizing Clements in saying the Republican may have had an incomplete view of the government.

"Obviously he's a man of outstanding talent and ability, but sure he's in for surprises — just as I am," the lieutenant governor said.

Report: Helmets would save lives

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas motorcyclists are being bloodied, broken and killed at a drastically increased rate since the repeal of rider helmet laws two years ago, according to a Texas A&M traffic engineers' study.

"The results are irrefutable," said Dr. Myron Koehler of the Texas Transportation Institute. "As helmet usage decreased, the severity of the injuries and the number of fatalities increased."

Engineers have recommended, among other things, that the Legislature re-instate the helmet law.

One out of every four motorcycle deaths would have been prevented if the victim had worn a protective helmet at the time of the accident, the engineers reported in the study released last week through the Texas Office of Traffic Safety in Austin.

In addition, the report said a motorcycle rider without a helmet is 2.5 times more likely to die and 2.67 more times likely to sustain a fatal or incapacitating head injury.

"Our analyses indicate that the unhelmeted cyclist has a 55 percent probability of suffering more severe injuries than the helmeted cyclist," said Koehler.

Texas has an average of 224 motorcycle accidents each week, 90 percent of which require medical attention for victims, the report said. There are an average of six motorcycle-related deaths per week, researchers found.

Texas forecasts

By The Associated Press
A fast-moving cold front zipped through Texas Saturday, dumping rain and ending a string of fairly balmy days.
Rain mixed with some snow and sleet fell from Gainesville to Abilene and fog darkened much of North Texas before sunshine broke through in the early afternoon.
Most of the state was under cloudy to partly cloudy skies.

Rainfalls were generally light, but one station in Northeast Texas reported more than two inches.
Temperatures dropped behind the front, with extremes ranging from 32 at Amarillo to 68 at Brownsville.

Forecasts called for scattered snow and sleet in North Texas, with cold overnight temperatures. Somewhat milder readings were expected Sunday across the state.

WEATHER FORECAST by the National Weather Service calls for rain along the northern Pacific Coast, tapering into snow and snow flurries inland. More snow is forecast from the central Mississippi Valley through the Great Lakes Area where it will blend into rain in the Northeast. It will be cold in the north-central part of the nation. Police report

While on regular patrol, a police officer spotted a vehicle at Hobart and Alcock streets driving on the wrong side of the road. Police said the driver, Douglas Ray Thomson, 25, of 329 N. Banks, was jailed for driving while intoxicated and for possession of controlled substances.

A 1976 Ford was stolen from the home of Chuck Cofa and found a short time later by a friend. Detectives investigated. Arthur Lewis Friend reported that someone had removed the carburetor, battery, manifold and alternator from his 1968 Oldsmobile.

Two children, aged 6 and 2, were taken to Highland General Hospital by their father, Robert M. Phillips of 321 N. Banks, after John F. McDaniel Jr. of 1421 Williston reportedly hit their vehicle. McDaniels was cited for following too closely at 600 W. Foster where the accident took place. Both McDaniel and Phillips were released by police. Police said the children weren't seriously injured.

Geoffrey Terry of 1921 Coffee reported that an unknown person entered his residence and removed a Rossi 38 caliber handgun.
Police responded to 34 calls in the 24 hour period ending at 7 a.m. Saturday.

IT IS GOOD TO BE BACK AFTER A WEEK AWAY. We have been in Dallas trying to learn a little about the way things could be. We heard some interesting concepts during the six days of lectures and plan to put a few into practice.

WE WANT TO CONGRATULATE Mayor Wilkerson on his election as president of the Texas Municipal League for Region II. We might say that it usually takes a lot of work to head an organization like this and it takes quite an individual.

AS THE WEATHER CHANGES from warm to cold and then back again we are very prone to catch a cold. We want to caution everyone to take care of that common cold as you would the flu. We have noticed that there have been several major outbreaks of flu recently. Don't be caught with your defenses down — the flu can be deadly.

WE WERE REALLY GLAD TO SEE a few of our tax dollars saved recently. The closing of the Gray County School Board was great for our taxpayers. Remember that great system of checks and balances. We write the checks and they get the balance. We just wish we could cut out a lot of the programs that duplicate activities and cost taxpayers money.

THIS COLUMN WILL APPEAR on page two starting next Sunday and will change somewhat in nature. We will attempt to deal with problems facing the American economy, government and the philosophy of liberty. We hope that this column will be able to pinpoint some of the problems that we are plagued with now and we hope to offer some possible solutions. We won't deal with the national level but we will be concerned with what we can do in our own town. We hope that you will read these columns with an open mind. Some of the concepts are new but all are thought provoking. The first topic will deal with liberty and what is in it for us.

A NEW COLUMN WILL APPEAR in the pages of the News that will deal with consumer problems in Pampa. Larry Grossman will be dealing with the problems and solutions facing residents in their day-to-day lives. If you encounter a problem you think we need to know about, tell us and we will get the bottom line for you.

Economy could slow down

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Both the Texas and the national economies are in "an era of flashing yellow lights" that signal slower growth in 1979, a University of Texas business analyst says.

Lorna Monti of the UT-Austin Bureau of Business Research also said data indicate that "Texas economic activity may be constrained in 1979."

means only a slower rate of growth, not a decline.

"It is clear that the (national) economy is shifting down," said Ms. Monti, editor of the bureau's "Texas Business Review."

The United States economy has developed many characteristics that mark the end of an expansion, but it is uncertain whether a recession or simply a pause will result, she said. Data also indicate Texas employment trends might edge closer to those of the nation as a whole, Ms. Monti said.

She warned against jumping to conclusions on the basis of month-to-month changes in employment data of Texas metropolitan areas because these might run counter to basic economic patterns.

Weekly oil report

by the associated press

By MAX B. SKELTON AP Oil Writer HOUSTON (AP) — F.E. Ellis says the economics of producing "old" domestic crude oil are discouraging.

Ellis, Continental Oil's vice president for North American crude oil and natural gas production operations, says stronger incentives are needed to reduce declining production rates in old oil fields.

During the past five years, a two-tiered federal system has controlled prices for crude from old domestic fields while permitting prices for new production to approach world levels.

Continental estimates the natural production decline rate in old fields to be 18 to 20 percent a year and Ellis says other industry estimates run as high as 23 percent.

This rate of decline, he said, can be reduced somewhat by additional investment in old fields for step-out drilling, well workovers, and enhanced recovery projects.

"However, many investment projects must be deferred because either lower tier prices will not justify the project or cash flow from these fields is not sufficient to fund marginally profitable investments," he said.

Ellis outlined his views while testifying before an Economic Regulatory Administration hearing on proposed rulemaking for production incentives for marginal properties.

"I submit the subject we are addressing is not how to provide incentives for marginal properties, but, rather, how do we stimulate investment in properties producing lower tier crude oil before they become marginal and are abandoned," he said.

Ellis said Continental's domestic production from lower tiered crude properties account for about 50 percent of its total production.

"We currently allocate only 5 percent of our development capital drilling budget to investments on these properties," he said.

"A much greater amount of investment would be allocated to projects on these properties if the economics were improved and the capital was available."

Ellis said the insufficiency of lower tier prices to fund such investments is more dramatically evident if current prices are viewed in constant dollar terms relative to prices in effect during January 1974.

The 1974 lower tier price of $5.04, he said, compares with an average September 1978 price of $5.55 a barrel. "In constant dollars, deflated at the gross national product deflator, this price is equivalent to $4.02 per barrel, or some $1.02 less than the average price of $5.04 received for 'old' oil in January 1974," Ellis said.

In agriculture

by Joe Vanzandt

While protein supplementation is one of the largest out-of-pocket expenses in a cow-calf operation, it is one of the most necessary supplemental feed ingredients when other feed sources are low in protein.

Animals with low protein diets lose their appetite, develop a rough appearance, become weak, and have lowered resistance to disease. The end result is reduced growth, reproduction and calf weight.

The need for protein supplementation results as nutrient composition in forage changes with the seasons. Therefore, nutrient intake varies. Once grass stops growing and loses its green, lush appearance, it becomes coarse and fibrous. Crude protein content may fall from 12 to 4 percent or less and forage dry matter digestibility may drop from 65 to 35 percent. These nutrient compositions vary greatly over time and supply cattle completely different diets due to seasonal changes.

Spring and summer diets are usually adequate for beef cattle needs while fall and winter diets are lacking in nutrient composition.

Cattle can not eat enough poor quality forages to obtain needed nutrients. Winter grass is old and fibrous, low in nutrients, and more slowly digested. Thus, consumption is lowered and the animal receives even less nutrients as a result of lowered intake.

Added protein increases digestion of fibrous material. It not only helps balance an animal's protein needs but increases forage intake due to increased digestibility of the forage.

Since protein is required for growth and milk production, protein requirements for heifers and lactating cows are higher than for dry, pregnant cows. Lactating cows require twice as much crude protein per day as dry, pregnant cows and 26 percent more than heifers.

Ruminants such as cattle can synthesize much of their needed protein from low quality protein and NPN (Non-protein nitrogen) sources such as urea and biuret when sufficient amounts of readily available carbohydrates are present in the rumen. Other supplements include cottonseed meal, soybean meal and a wide variety of commercial dry and liquid supplements.

Protein supplements are available in many types and forms — cubes, cakes, liquids, self-limiting meal products and others to allow different feeding methods. These will vary in nutrient composition, and a producer should calculate protein cost in each. This cost figure and feeding and labor costs will help him select the most efficient supplement.

When balancing forage rations with supplementation, dry matter (energy), vitamins, minerals and protein are all considered. Most often, available protein is deficient, but sometimes energy is also lacking.

The 1979 All-America Selections in flowers were recently released. There are five Bronze Medal winners this year. That means these have proven themselves as outstanding bedding plants in test gardens throughout the United States. Be on the look out for some of these new varieties in your local nursery or garden center. Unless we try some of these new varieties there is a good chance we may miss out on a plant that would be an excellent source of color in our landscape. These 5 award winning plants are listed below:

a. Queen Sophia — A reddish gold marigold growing 10 to 12 inches in height.

b. Orange Prince — A distinctly new color in the pansy. Reported to be slightly more heat resistant.

c. Peter Pan Gold — A shorter stemmed, large flowering zinnia with a rich yellow color.

d. Nicki - Red — A deep true red dwarf day-blooming nicotiana. About 18 to 20 inches in height.

e. Sun Gold — A giant zinnia with strong stems that are excellent for cutting. Color is an intense yellow that is resistant to the summer sun.

Tax changes to be discussed

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce will feature Ed Chavez at its monthly meeting who will speak on the major changes in wage and tax reporting for 1978. The meeting will be held Tuesday at 11:45 a.m. in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

Chavez will also speak about the change of the mailing address of the Form W-2. Copy A is now to be sent to the Social Security Administration, instead of the Internal Revenue Service.

Chavez will also emphasize the correct completion of the form. The meeting is open to the public as well as members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Chavez will be answering questions from employers on Tuesday in the Chamber Conference Room.

Cleanup campaign pledged

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a cozy time as the Agriculture Department and the Environmental Protection Agency formally pledged to work together to help clean up the rural environment. A five-year "memorandum of understanding" was signed Thursday by Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and EPA Administrator Douglas M.

Costle. Bergland said the agreement itself is more symbolic than real. "If I had hostile leaders here in USDA to enforce this document, it would matter little what we said on paper," Bergland said. "That's really the big difference. The elections do wonderful things."

Replacing an earlier agreement, it calls for the two agencies to pursue "common objectives, interests and statutory requirements, and to avoid duplication of effort."

The Vocational Office Education student, who made second runner-up in the Miss Top O' Texas pageant last summer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lewis of 1828 Dwight. Ricky Lewis (below) said that he hasn't done enough yet to decide what he wants to do if he should decide to go to college. Starting out as a stockboy for Hub's Booterie two years ago, Lewis went on to be a salesman within six months. The 18-year-old senior DECA student is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Hood, owners of Hood Pharmacy in Pampa. (Pampa news photos by Elena Callen)

Cattle producers have beef

President Carter and Secretary of Agriculture Bergland's attempts to encourage beef producers to expand production are having some negative effects, wrote Dr. C.K. Allen, Executive Vice President of the American Angus Association.

"Cattle producers are extremely conscious of rising costs and the need to keep inflation under control," he wrote in a letter to the president regarding the increase in beef prices.

"Expansion of beef imports by 200 million pounds in 1978 and an additional increase of 78 million pounds in 1979, has discouraged the beef import bill. These actions say to cattlemen that the long term herd expansion may not be profitable. This encourages them to take profits now rather than to retain cows and heifers for breeding and future expansion."

"For the first time since 1973," Allen said, "beef prices have moved to a more profitable level."

Allen wrote "Instead of praising cattlemen for helping keep inflation down in previous years and pointing out to the public that the new higher prices were justified, you and your administration spokesmen started to label beef an inflation leader."

Allen said that blaming inflation on the cattle industry is irrelevant.

Defense does it for Harvesters

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor

The Pampa Harvesters celebrated their return to Harvester Field House in grand fashion Friday night with a 69-55 thumping of the Palo Duro Dons.

The Hustling Harvies had played four straight road games since a Jan. 2 loss to Lubbock Monterey at the Green Pit, and the largest, loudest and most enthusiastic home crowd of the season welcomed them home with its clamorous support.

Down 15-14 after the first quarter, Pampa outscored the Dons in every other quarter and held a 21-point lead midway through the fourth quarter to win easily.

The Harvesters applied defensive pressure — including an effective full-court press — throughout the game, forcing the Dons into numerous turnovers, and Pampa coach Gary Abercrombie saw the defensive effort as the key to the game.

"We tried to (play good defense)," he said. "We still make mental mistakes on defense, letting people get behind us. We don't get back sometimes and cover like we should."

But our defensive effort was a lot better tonight. Palo Duro didn't handle the press very well, and the press probably won the game for us. It created a lot of turnovers."

Turnovers punctuated the game and made it a ragged affair for short intervals in every quarter. But the Harvesters managed to get a basket when they needed it most, while the Dons' often undisciplined attack kept them off the scoreboard at crucial moments.

Down 21-16 early in the second period, Pampa ripped off a pair of six-point scoring bursts and never trailed again.

Joe Jeffers, Ronnie Faggins and Darryl Hughes combined for two points apiece in the first outburst to give the Harvies a 22-21 cushion, and repeated their performance after PD's Todd Loftis sank two free throws to give the Dons their final lead at 23-22.

From there, Pampa stretched its lead to 32-27 at halftime. The Harvesters got their first 10-point cushion (46-36) midway through the third quarter and entered the final period with a 52-42 lead. That's when they nailed the lid on the Dons' coffin.

Pampa outscored Palo Duro 13-2 in the first five minutes of the fourth quarter to put the game away. Hughes' layup gave the Harvesters their largest lead at 65-44 with three minutes to play, and the rest of the game turned into a run-and-shoot affair.

The Dons got seven unanswered points of their own in the final two minutes, but it was hardly enough to catch the Harvesters, who upped their season's mark to 11-12 and district record to 2-1 with the victory. The Dons fell to 7-13 and 0-2 in District 3-AAAA.

Loftis, a 6-5 junior, was the only Don who posed much of an offensive threat to the Harvesters. Scoring mostly from close range, he scored 24 points to take game honors. Toney Westmoreland (12 points) was the only other Palo Duro player to break the double figure barrier.

Steve Stout scored from nearly every spot imaginable to lead the Harvies with 20 points. Faggins had 12 and Hughes 10 for Pampa, which placed eight of its nine players in the scoring column.

The Harvesters also shot an impressive 76 percent (13-17) from the free-throw line, while the Dons hit just 11 of 18 attempts for 61 percent.

The Shockers won a foul-filled contest, 53-45. Forty-two personal fouls — and one technical on the Dons coach — were assessed in the game, which saw Pampa hold off a last-quarter charge by Palo Duro after the Shockers led 22-13 at halftime.

Vic Wallace hit 14 points to lead a balanced Pampa scoring attack. Dwayne Avery added 12. Joel Washington's 13 points topped the Dons.

The Harvesters will complete the first half of their District 3-AAAA schedule Tuesday night when they host Amarillo High, a 62-47 loser to Tascosa Friday night.

Lemley scores 42 as Phillips clips Sunray

Joe Lemley accounted for 42 of Phillips' 62 points Friday night as the Blackhaws took a 62-61 squeaker from Sunray at Phillips.

Earlier, the Phillips girls got 21 points from Debra Rankin to post a 37-24 win over Sunray, which was led by Beverly Raso's 13 points.

Groom and Hedley split their games at Groom. The Tigerettes whipped Hedley 51-20 behind Connie Crowell's 26-point performance, but Hedley used a balanced scoring attack to down the Groom boys 51-46. Randy Woodard had 14 points for the winners, while Groom's Neil Wieberg took game honors with 19.

Allison's girls got 12 points from Dawn Holbrook to take a 44-35 win over Quail, but the boys lost 51-47 in overtime. Kenneth Keys' 21 points led Allison scorers, while Ronald Alston had 23 for Quail.

In other boys games in the area, Perryton whipped River Road 87-45 and Wellington clipped Panhandle 68-45 in double overtime. In girls play, Panhandle downed Wellington 54-40 and River Road stopped Perryton 46-36.

Girls fall in final minutes

AMARILLO — The Pampa girls basketball team was overtaken at Amarillo by the Palo Duro Dons Friday night in the Harvesters first women's District 3-AAAA game, ever, 46-35.

"The score didn't tell the real story," said Pampa Coach Mary Thomas. "We are much closer teams."

The action in the fourth quarter kept Pampa within one to two points of the Dons, who wrapped up the game in the final four minutes when both teams quickened the pace.

The Pampa girls warmed up slowly, scoring 4 points to their opponent's 17 in the first quarter. Pampa controlled the second quarter and added 11 points to its first quarter total for 15 at the end of the first half. Palo Duro scored 6 points, making its total 23.

The Harvesters cut the Dons' lead to four points at the end of the third quarter, but lost their momentum in the fourth with several turnovers.

In the closing minutes, the Harvesters committed several fouls to give Tonya Folsom of Palo Duro five free throws. She led the Dons in scoring with 19 points.

Other turnovers were caused by rushed passing, said Coach Thomas, who was pleased with the overall effort of the girls. Pampa dropped to 10-11 on the season with the setback, while the Dons upped their mark to 11-7.

Pampa's scoring effort was led by Kelly Richardson with 11 points. Other leading scorers for the Pampa squad were Becky Davis, Susan Mitchell, and Teresa Adair — all with 6 points.

The Pampa junior varsity dropped a 30-27 contest to Palo Duro, despite 12 points by Karen Ladd. Mashell Hopwood lead PD with 12.

Pampa will take on Amarillo High Tuesday night at the Sandies gym for its next action. The Sandies defeated Tascosa 44-34 Friday. Pampa lost to Tascosa by one point at the Hereford Tournament earlier in the season.

However, Coach Thomas is hopeful because of the closeness of the girls' teams in District 3-AAAA.

Baylor thrashes SMU

WACO, Texas (AP) — Winnie Johnson, Wendell Mayes and Terry Teagle combined for 71 points Saturday as the Baylor Bears thrashed Southern Methodist 93-67 in a regionally televised Southwest Conference game.

Johnson led the 20-point brigade with 29 points, while senior Mayes scored 22 points and pulled down 15 rebounds.

Teagle, a freshman, score 20 points as Baylor hiked its SWC record to 3-2 and 9-6 on the year. SMU fell to 7-7 and 2-2.

SMU had control of the game only once, moving seven points ahead in the first five minutes.

Johnson, the league's leading scorer, then triggered a rally of nine straight points that propelled the Bears ahead and to a 43-38 halftime lead. SMU never got closer than four points the second half.

Squads healthy for Super Bowl XIII

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) — After a week of pregame hoopla, the buildup to Super Bowl XIII is complete and the Dallas Cowboys and Pittsburgh Steelers finally will play for the National Football League championship Sunday.

A festive party hosted by Commissioner Pete Rozelle attracted a crowd of some 3,000 to Miami International Airport Friday night with the league picking up the tab of about $100,000.

While the NFL guests spent Saturday recovering from the party, both teams completed preparations for the game.

Both teams go into the game healthy. Dallas running back Robert Newhouse, who suffered a fractured fibula in his right leg in midseason, will start in the Cowboys' backfield in place of Scott Laidlaw. Newhouse earned his first starting assignment since getting hurt with a solid week of practice.

Pittsburgh got a scare early in the week when All-Pro wide receiver Lynn Swann suffered a bruised foot in a passing drill. But he will be in the starting lineup. The Cowboys weren't as certain about the availability of running back Preston Pearson, who bruised his hand on Thursday and was listed as probable for the game.

The National Weather Service predicted temperatures in the upper 70s with the possibility of light showers for the 4 p.m. EST kickoff.

Each team will be seeking its third National Football League crown in this game, a rematch of Super Bowl X, won by the Steelers 21-17. A capacity crowd of more than 79,000 fans will jam the Orange Bowl for the game, pushing Super Bowl attendance for the 13-game series over the one million mark. Armchair football fans around the world will watch the game on NBC television or listen to it on CBS radio.

The Cowboys, defending Super Bowl champions and appearing in this game for a record fifth time, depend on the sophisticated and varied formations designed by Coach Tom Landry.

On defense, Dallas uses the complicated flex formation, a coordinated, gap-filling alignment which takes players several years of experience to perfect. On offense, the Cowboys often will shift into the shotgun formation with quarterback Roger Staubach stationed 7 yards behind the line of scrimmage in obvious passing situations.

Pittsburgh uses a zone defense that is neither complex nor esoteric. They challenge your offense to beat it," said Dallas safety Charlie Waters. "They won't change. They say to you 'Here we are, beat us if you can.'"

Solving that defense will be the job of the Dallas attack which is operated by Staubach, who carries out Landry's plays relayed from the sidelines.

Bradshaw's offensive weapons include running back Franco Harris, a perennial 1,000-yard rusher who was the MVP of Super Bowl IX when he set a record with 158 yards gained against Minnesota. He works alongside Rocky Bleier, who can block with the best.

Then there are Pittsburgh's wide receivers, Lynn Swann and John Stallworth. Swann, MVP of Super Bowl X when he set a record with 161 yards in receptions, caught 61 passes for 880 yards this season while Stallworth hauled in 41 for 798.

Longhorns rout Trojans, 87-68

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas shut off Southern California's inside shooters and Tyrone Bryan and Jim Krivacs fired in 47 points — mostly from long range — as Texas won an 87-68 intercollegiate basketball victory Saturday.

The nationally televised triumph for Texas, defending champions of the National Invitation Tournament, was the 22nd at its new basketball arena without a loss.

In defeating Southern California, Texas also avenged one of its five losses last year.

The Texas zone defense held Southern California scoring star Cliff Robinson, a 6-foot-9 sophomore, to 13 points.

Brayan, only 6-7 and once considered too slow to play major college basketball, poured in 25 points and was selected the game's outstanding player. Krivacs pitched in 22 points. Both players had been averaging about 18 points a game.

Although Southern California had a height advantage, Texas was even at halftime in rebounds and the Los Angeles visitors could not match Texas' accurate outside shooters.

Texas built its lead to 22 points before Coach Abe Lemons began substituting. The Longhorns used only one sub — Dave Shepard — a former Los Angeles school boy star, until 2:30 remained in the game.

Southern California's biggest lead was 9-6, but Texas raced to a 38-25 halftime margin and built the score in the final 20 minutes. Neither the Trojans full court pressing defense or zone seemed to bother the Texas shooters.

Last hurrah for Jethro

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Super Bowl XIII is the last hurrah for old Jethro Pugh, and the unclaimed giant of the Dallas Cowboys hopes he can bow out in style.

"Maybe Coach Landry will put me in for at least one series of plays or give me a chance to block an extra point try," said the 6-foot-6, 255-pound defensive tackle. "It would be my 24th playoff appearance, my fifth Super Bowl. That's a lot of gray and a lot of memories to live with."

No other man in the history of the game has participated in as many playoff battles. No man has persevered so long and contributed so much with so little credit.

Although his defensive contributions have been manifold, he has had to live with the taint of having yielded the touchdown that put the Packers instead of Dallas in Super Bowl II in 1968. It was the fabled "ice game," played in 13-below zero weather in Green Bay.

Jerry Kramer and Ken Bowman double-teamed Jethro, permitting quarterback Bart Starr to sneak across with only seconds remaining. Critics never let Jethro forget it. He never once qualified for the Pro Bowl. Jethro harbors no bitterness.

"There were just too many good defensive tackles around," he acknowledged. "There was Bob Lilly on our team. Sure, I would say I played in his shadow. He was one of the greatest. But there were other good ones

— Carl Eller, Merlin Olsen, Alan Page, Deacon Jones, you name 'em.

"I never in my life felt slighted." There is no assurance that Jethro will see action against the tough Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday in the Orange Bowl. He is 34 years old. He has a bum right knee. He already has had both knees operated on. He will go under the knife again after the Super Bowl.

"Coach Landry has mellowed a lot over the years," the massive, bearded 14-year veteran said. "When I first came to the Cowboys, he was very rigid, firm. Most of the guys were scared of him. I never was. I never was afraid of anybody." Pugh is the sole survivor of Dallas' original "Doomsday Defense." Mel Renfro retiring last spring, and he anchored "Doomsday II" going into the past season. He has seen the Cowboys develop into the most successful team in pro football.

"The change never was that noticeable," he said. "The old guys lay the groundwork and the young guys just meld." Jethro said the greatest hurt he ever suffered was losing to the Steelers in Super Bowl X two years ago.

"They played so rough," he added. "Mullins (Gerry Mullins) had his hands in my face mask all day long. The officials were loose. No flags were thrown. It wasn't played fairly." "I hope we can avenge that defeat and make the 1970s the 'Decade of the Cowboys' in football."

Haas leads at wet Phoenix Open

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Jay Haas reeled off a string of three consecutive birdies on the way to a 6-under-par 65 that gave him a 1-stroke lead Saturday in the first round of the twice-delayed and now abbreviated Phoenix Open golf tournament.

"After two days off, I didn't know what to expect out there," said Haas, who last year won the San Diego Open as a tour sophomore.

Play was rained out both Thursday and Friday by a storm that caused flooding in the Phoenix area. With the start of the event delayed two days, officials decided to cut the tournament from the regulation 72 holes to 54. It will conclude, weather permitting, on Monday.

The purse also was reduced, from $250,000 to $187,500.

The storm, which produced almost two inches of rain, left the flat, 6,726-yard Phoenix

Country Club course a soggy mess. It hasn't been mowed in almost a week. Pools and puddles of casual water dotted the fairways, but the greens, Haas said, were very good.

The extremely wet conditions prompted officials to allow players to lift, clean and place balls in the fairways, thus placing a premium on accuracy of the tee.

A single stroke behind him at 66 was a group composed of U.S. Open champion Andy North, Jerry Pate, long-hitting Lon Hinkle, Bruce Lietzke, Jim Colbert and Butch Baird.

Record set at Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Tom Antczak, 28, of La Crosse, Wis., ignored gusty winds and captured the Amateur Athletic Union national marathon title with a course record in the Houston Marathon Saturday.

Antczak, a fifth place finisher in the New York City Marathon, finished the race with a 2:15:28 time despite wind gusts over part of the 26 miles, 385-yard course in downtown Houston.

Antczak finished ahead of runnerup Scott Eden, 26, Durham, N.C., who hit the tape in 2:16:21, which also was better than the record of 2:17:11 set by Ron Tabb, Houston, in last year's marathon.

Dick Mahoney, Boston, was third in 2:17:25 and David Oden, a University of Houston student, was fourth in 2:19:31.

Sue Peterson, 34, of Laguna Beach, Calif., won the women's AAU championship with a time of 2:46:17.

A field of 1,700 runners, about twice the entry list from last year, competed in the event.

Tar Heels win

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Al Wood's 15-foot jumper with three seconds remaining gave a second-ranked North Carolina a 54-53 victory over 19th-ranked Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference game Saturday.

The victory left North Carolina, playing without injured starters Mike O'Koren and David Colescott, in first place in the league with a 5-1 record while Maryland dropped to third place behind Virginia with a 3-2 record.

Ernest Graham scored 25 points to lead Maryland, now 12-5, and Albert King had 14. Wood scored 16 and Virgil had 13 for the Tar Heels, now 14-2 after winning their fourth in a row.

Sun heats home

Solar energy in Pampa

This is a portion of the unfinished section of the roof awaiting the collector panels.

A Pampa couple have built the first house equipped for solar heating in this area.

Roy and Mary Braswell have been concerned about the energy problem for quite some time and when they decided to build a new house this was uppermost in their minds. Their original intention was to build an underground house. They consulted J. Swazy of Hereford, the builder who constructed the first underground home in Plainview in the late fifties as well as one for the World's Fair in New York. However, he wasn't ready to go into production yet.

The Braswells belong to 'Earth, Air and Solar Energy' (EASE) in Amarillo and at a meeting two years ago they saw a program on a solar energy home which the Department of Civil Engineering and the Department of Mechanical Drawing at Texas Tech were building with a Housing and Urban Development grant. They were later referred to Dr. Ernst W. Kiesling, Chairman of the Department of Civil Engineering at Texas Tech who, with his students, had designed and built a solar energy home in Lubbock. They liked what they saw and, as they could not build an underground house at that time, decided that solar energy was the next best thing.

The Braswells took the plans of the original Lubbock house and modified it to the needs of their family. Dr. Kiesling and his associates drew up the plans and, with the Braswells, worked out a heating and air conditioning system.

Computers at Texas Tech figured out the heat loss which takes place through the floor, exterior walls, windows, doors and the roof of a house. In this manner the size of the required heating unit was determined. It is necessary to know how much heat is lost in order to know how much to provide, regardless of what kind of system is used. The criterion was that on a zero degree day, the indoor temperature should be at 72 degrees.

The roof on a solar heated house is different because it has to be. In Pampa's latitude, the roof angle that works best is 45 degrees. Plexiglass collector panels are used to trap and store the heat from the sun and these must be within 15 degrees of true south. The number needed is in direct relation to the heat loss and the size of the house, which in this case is 4,000 sq. ft. This house requires seven collector panels each 4 feet wide and 17 feet tall. These can be made of tempered glass but the Braswells decided on plexiglass because of the threat of hail.

Backup heating is necessary for the days when there is no sun. Last winter Pampa had 22 sunless days and it is not economical to build heat storage facilities which would accommodate more than a three day supply of heat.

There are two standard ways to store heat. One is by using water and the other by using air. The Braswells chose the latter.

This requires a rock box, which is a wooden cube 6 feet by 6 feet by 6 feet filled with smooth rocks, one and one-half to two inches in diameter, with steel reinforcing rods for support. An air handler system directs the air flow and gives three choices: conventional heat, the transfer of heat from the collector plates into the living area; taking the heated air from the collector plates into the rock box where it is stored for future use. A room is necessary to house the rock box and air handlers, which are a series of dampers allowing adjustment of the flow of air.

The collector panels haven't been installed yet because of the weather. In the spring a box about 6 inches high by 4 feet by 17 feet will have to be built to support the plates and to provide an area for heating, collection and transfer between the plates and the rest of the house. Panels are built on the principal of thermopane and consist of two layers of plexiglass one inch apart. Behind them there is an area about three inches deep to trap heat. The bottom of this area has to be a dark color to absorb the heat. The plates need to have an irregular surface in order to cause turbulence in the air being forced to pass between the collector plates and the absorber plates to gain the most efficient heating transfer. Air is then blown from the bottom to the top of the panel and into the area requiring heat.

Being an innovative family, the Braswells decided that building the house would be a good learning experience for their four sons as well as for themselves so they were their own contractor, hiring help when they needed it, but doing most of the finish work themselves.

The Braswell's two younger sons, Don and Neal, were the night watchmen and would take their sleeping bags to the construction site and camp out in the back of the family station wagon. Their two dogs, a Great Dane and a German Shepherd, provided both warmth and extra security. The warmth was needed during the winter of 1977.

One cold morning the boys were having a snowball fight when a patrolman drove past and asked why they were playing around a construction site. They told him it was their house but a report was called in to the station. Dr. Braswell was told what his boys were doing and that he would be responsible for any damage. He replied that he knew they were there but they were supposed to be inside constructing and not outside destructing.

As with most people who do things by the sweat of their brow, the Braswell family is proud of its accomplishment - and their house shows it.

At 10:30 a.m. following the council business meeting, an officer training workshop will be held for all Homemaker Club officers. Officers will receive information telling their responsibilities and duties. All officers should plan to attend this short training meeting. Visitors are welcome.

LEADER TRAINING FOR HOMEMAKER CLUB PROGRAM:

A leader training meeting to present program material on "Stress" will be given January 25th at 10:00 a.m. in the Annex Meeting Room. Program materials will be given for club leaders to use for the February club meeting program. All Club Leaders should plan to attend. Visitors are welcome.

DISTRICT PLANNING MEETING:

On January 30th the Gray County Homemakers Council leaders will travel to Borger to a Texas Extension Homemakers Association planning meeting. Club leaders, including Council Chairman - Mrs. Pauline Beard; TEHA Chairman - Mrs. Marilyn Butler; and County Extension Agents will be representing Gray County in the business meeting. Featured speaker will be Miss Claudia Williams, State Agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service from College Station. Hutchinson County Homemakers will be hosting the meeting.

CONTROL WEIGHT SENSIBLY:

Start the New Year with a weight-control program that combines physical activity with eating regular meals of lower-calorie foods. Weight is lost when a person becomes more physically active or cuts down on the amount of food eaten, or both. Experts estimate that almost one-fourth of the United States population is overweight to the degree that it actually shortens their lives.

People are continually looking for a quick-weight-loss scheme to lose pounds overnight. Although many of these schemes are available on the market today, some are extremely dangerous. After these fads fail, they are soon forgotten and the chronic over-eater returns to gorging at the table. People who eat small, frequent meals are more apt to lose weight than those who eat only one meal a day. Eating only one big meal a day makes dieters tired, irritable and unable to stay with the diet. Small meals give extra energy, let dieters feel satisfied, and they stimulate muscle formation while they depress fat formation.

HINTS FOR HOMEMAKERS:

When cleaning windows, use a newspaper — it does a better job of cleaning than a cloth or paper towel.

For an easy-to-make substitute for butter milk, add one tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice to a cup of sweet milk. Then, let it stand for five minutes before use.

Use clear nail polish to repair small rips in window screens. Dab on enough to create a film around the opening.

For young children who like to draw on the walls, attach some paper to a piece of board and stand it up like a wall to draw on. They may just like to draw on a vertical surface.

Pack frozen sandwiches, cookies or cake in lunch pails or sacks. They will be thawed and still safe by lunch time.

Nearly all fats from plant sources are polyunsaturated — except coconut and palm oil, often used in non-dairy creamers and some margarines. For diets that restrict saturated fats, read nutrition information of labels carefully.

When sewing on snaps or hooks and eyes, sew on one side, rub it with tailor's chalk, and press it against the opposite side to mark.

Carpeting helps save energy because it has "built-in" insulation. Air spaces between the fibers of the pile hold the warm air and keep it from escaping.

BIRTHDAY ALMANAC

Compiled by the editors of The World Almanac

Jan. 21 — Telly Savalas (1924-), the actor who has appeared in numerous films since 1961, but has achieved his greatest fame as TV's "Kojak," the wisecracking New York City police lieutenant.

Jan. 22 — D.W. Griffith (1875-1948), the pioneer film director whose "The Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance" are considered classics of the silent era. Unable to adapt to the "talkies," he retired in 1931 and died in obscurity.

Jan. 23 — Potter Stewart (1915-), the associate justice of the United States Supreme Court. He was appointed by President Eisenhower in 1958. The appointment was confirmed by the senate, May 5, 1959.

Jan. 24 — Neil Diamond (1941-), the singer and composer. His hit songs include, "Sweet Caroline," "Girl, You'll Be a Woman Now," "Kentucky Woman" and "Song Sung Blue."

Jan. 25 — Somerset Maugham (1874-1965), the English novelist, playwright and short story writer. His most notable novels are "Of Human Bondage," "The Moon and Sixpence" and "The Razor's Edge."

In 1945 he accepted Japan's surrender, and for the next six years oversaw the reconstruction of that nation. He was commander in chief of United Nations forces in the Korean War. He was removed from command by President Truman after publicly disagreeing on the conduct of the war.

Jan. 27 — Jerome Kern (1885-1945), the composer of nearly 50 musical-comedy scores. His "Show Boat," which blended music with plot and character, was a turning point in the musical theater. Among his best known songs are "Ole Man River," "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," "The Last Time I Saw Paris" and "Look for the Silver Lining."

Roman Catholics leaving Church

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — One Roman Catholic said she stopped going to church because she was tired of being told she was evil. Others cited time demands and church stands. And some said they saw no need to go.

"Partly because I'm lazy and partly because I feel I know the difference between right and wrong," explained a Manchester man who is one of more than 100,000 persons who replied to a survey of Catholics who have left the church. "Can't I pray or speak to God during the day at any time?"

One man said he had quit because of "scientific reasons." When contacted, he said he had stopped attending church after his wife died.

Another man said, "It started off with my having to baby-sit for my son. We ended up having a lot of fun on Sunday mornings. I do not want to go back now because I just do not like the Church any more because I feel it does not help me to face everyday problems."

Three times as many people said they had left because of too few changes in the church as said they had left because of too many changes in the church, said the Rev. Edmund Nadolny, director of the Archdiocese of Hartford's Office of Radio and Television.

As part of a campaign to get people to return to church, former church-goers were reached through advertisements, personal appearances on talk shows, and through parishioners who contacted friends. Nadolny said his office and the archdiocese's evangelization office would talk to each respondent who listed a name.

About 43 percent of Connecticut's residents are Catholic, and about 350,000 of the 900,000 Catholics in the state attend church regularly, he said.

He said some of the reasons given in the survey answers were lack of belief in Christ, no need for organized religion, divorce and lifestyle. One woman said she would return when women got more responsibility. "A good number of the people have left the church because they have been hurt," Nadolny said, adding that some cited specific incidents.

One family quit the church when a priest did not visit a dying patient, and another quit when a child was refused admission to a Catholic school, he said.

"If you forgive your wife and you forgive your children for what they've done to you, why not forgive the family of the church?" Nadolny said, adding that the key to getting people to return to the church was personal contact.

And he sees that responsibility as being that of lay people.

"In the next 10 years, three-quarters of the priests are going to be over 65 and they'll be ready for retirement and not evangelization. Either the lay people take on the responsibility or the church will be closing down," Nadolny said.

BALDNESS

ATLANTA (AP) — Prolonged use of hair dyes can lead to permanent baldness, warns Algie Brown, a widely known authority on hair problems.

Brown, an Atlanta dermatologist, reported recently on the cases of 25 patients — primarily women — who had experienced permanent hair loss due to prolonged use of hair dyes.

He said he would recommend that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration investigate commercial hair dyes now on the market with the idea of warning the consumer of the harmful side effects of prolonged use of the products.

At wit's end

by Erma Bombeck

There isn't one parent reading this column who is Sanforized. We all undergo a shrinking process the day our children reach the age of 12. Our brain diminishes, our vision is stunted and we are virtually useless to society until the kid reaches the age of 20 or so.

As a parent who has just emerged from the Valley of the Ignorant, let me tell you it would have been far easier if someone had taught me how to understand "teenage."

"Awriiiiiite!" This is a term of jubilation accompanied by one of those rare teenage smiles usually directed at someone on the telephone. Worry a lot when you hear it.

"You know?" These two words are used in place of periods at the end of a sentence. They are not to be taken literally. "You know?" does not require an answer — or for that matter does it deserve one.

"Really!" One "Really!" is worth a thousand kisses. It's as close to civility as you get. It means they agree to something you have said.

"Who cares?" This is a mechanical retort that often comes out of their mouth even before you have said something.

"I hear you." Don't get your hopes built up on this one. It only means you are audible and that your request has been acknowledged. It does not mean anything will come of it.

"You going out tonight?" This phrase holds as much sentiment as Daniel when he was led out to the lion's den and asked, "You wanta go out for dinner?" It's a subtle way of asking you if the car is or is not available.

"Who used up all the hot water?" This is another rhetorical question. They know before they asked, but they are trying to make you feel guilty about rinsing your toothbrush in hot water when, in effect, had just emptied a 30-gallon tank to rinse their hair.

"When do we eat?" Teenagers do not consider this a question, but a salutation. It takes the place of "Hello, how are you?" "Was your surgery bad?" "Did anyone get hurt in the other car?" "You and Dad are getting a what?"

My favorite is "Everybody Else's Mother." A lot of parents interpret this saying as a collective group of liberal mothers who allow their kids to do as they please. Like Mary Poppins, Santa Claus, Tinkerbell and The Incredible Hulk, it's a convenient myth. If you don't believe me, ask for her phone number.

Well, parents, Hang Tough. That's Teenage for Good Luck!

The bride-elect is a 1979 graduate of Pampa High School and is employed by Malone's Pharmacy. Clothing Care ALERT!

Clothing Care Labels Can't Always Be Trusted

If the labels on your clothes leave you wondering how to clean them, you're not alone. Even professional drycleaners look at care labels with skepticism.

The International Fabricare Institute's (IFI) research center in Silver Spring, Md., takes calls daily from cleaners who receive garments labeled "dryclean only" but suspect that standard drycleaning methods won't be satisfactory.

Often the drycleaners are right. The Institute's researchers often test-clean items tagged "professionally dryclean only" and find synthetics that shrink or laminates that stiffen and peel. Or they find colors that change, fade and bleed. The problem lies not with drycleaning itself but with some clothing manufacturers who give little thought to how the fabric they use should be cared for. Some manufacturers attach care labels to their clothes without testing the cleaning method the label recommends. Still others produce clothes the IFI lab finds difficult to clean by any means.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) requires manufacturers to attach labels telling consumers how to care for clothes. The IFI has been advocating more information on the care labels, and the IFI's recommendations are a part of new FTC rules now being considered. New FTC rules, when adopted, could minimize many problems with care labels that don't tell enough.

Here are some things you can do to make sure your clothes are well cared-for:

1. Keep care labels attached to the clothes. Some may be large, but the information on them is necessary to avoid damaging the clothes. If you take a multi-piece outfit to the cleaners, take all the pieces along — not all pieces are labeled.

2. Keep the hang tags that came attached to the clothes at the time of purchase. Clothing-makers sometimes are reluctant to put complete information on the sewn-in tag, but will include the information elsewhere. Show these instructions to the cleaners.

3. If you sew your own clothes, ask for care labels when buying the fabric. The manufacturer is required to provide tags you can sew on when you've completed the outfit.

4. If after following instructions your clothes are damaged, return them with the sales receipt to the store. They should refund your money and return the outfit to the manufacturer for credit. Clothing-makers besieged with returns may in the future label their clothes more accurately.

The electric stove was invented by William S. Hadaway in 1896.

Getting oriented to buy fine rugs

By RUTH GERCHICK
The market for hand-crafted objects is on the rise. Good ones are hard to find and expensive, but none are more highly prized than oriental rugs. A fine oriental carpet will withstand years of hard wear — you can even stomp on it, though stomping is not recommended. And, even better, an oriental rug does more than please your eye and warm your floor: it will also help preserve your capital against inflation.

"Orientals are sought after today because people are tired of a 'throw-away' world," says the owner of the Doris Leslie Blau Gallery in New York. "We long to live with things that are handmade and have stood the test of time. Good orientals can last for centuries if well cared for."

Mrs. Blau sells only "used" or antique rugs in her gallery because they are usually more valuable than new ones. Nevertheless, new rugs of good quality also have some intrinsic worth. But don't be misled by a cheap machine-made copy which is chemically bathed or painted — your investment will probably go down the drain when it is washed and the colors run into each other.

Real oriental rugs or carpets (the words are interchangeable) come from the Near or Far East: Persia (Iran), Turkey, the Caucasus, Central Asia, India, or China. Persians are the best known and probably the most intricate in design. And there are literally hundreds of Persian patterns in floral, animal, and scroll designs to choose from. Most patterns have been handed down through history, and some rugs are still made in the old tradition.

Picture a roomful of women in head scarfs weaving welt over warp (horizontal over vertical threads) at a frenzied pace over enormous looms, and hand-tying as many as 10,000 knots a day to produce the rug's density (or "pile"). Or imagine an outdoor workshop in the dry desert country of a small village where nomadic tribeswomen spend the day weaving geometric, abstract patterns that have survived the centuries. Many of these provincial rugs, such as the Kilim, have flat weaves so the knotting is eliminated. Still the work is arduous and slow.

The best and oldest orientals take their coloring from nature: from the juice of berries, plants, and the shells of nuts. White comes from undyed wool, black and grey from goat hair, shades of brown from the hairs of camels. In the 19th century, aniline dyes were frequently dubbed for "natural" ones, creating harsh effects. But those dyes were later prohibited. Today some rugmakers still rely on natural dyes, but most new carpets depend on synthetic colorings, which look natural and don't fade. Serious collectors, however, still prefer the mellowness of the natural dyes.

The more you shop for your oriental, the better chance you have of choosing wisely. If you have time, go to auction houses and estate sales, inspect rugs that appeal to you, and keep a chart of the prices they brought. Also, compare carpets at various reputable shops, including department stores with good rug departments.

Price ranges of orientals are vast. A small rug costs a few hundred dollars; a carpet from the Shah's collection can run to a quarter of a million dollars and more. "A good dealer," Mrs. Blau reports, "is willing to exchange your rug and help you trade up if you wish. Buying is not a one-time thing. People become addicted to orientals." One young couple, she says, started out with an $800 rug. When they had more to spend, they traded it for one costing $3,800, and some years later bought a magnificent specimen for $10,000.

When shopping, she suggests, examine the front and reverse sides of the rug in daylight, if possible, to see that it is tightly woven and carefully worked. And keep in mind that the better the condition, the more valuable the rug. Just because a rug is an antique (over 100 years old) doesn't guarantee its value in the marketplace. If it's full of thin spots and the worse for wear, leave it where it lies. Also, the name of the rug in itself doesn't tell the quality. Knowing a carpet is a Sarouk or a Kerman only means knowing that it comes from a particular region in the Near East.

Other criteria to consider in buying your oriental are:

- Is it lustrous?
- Are the fringes in good condition?
- Are its dyes natural?
- How many hand-tied knots are there to the square inch? (A dealer can tell you.) The greater the number of knots, the higher the rug's value.

Don't forget to note the clarity of the rug's pattern: the motifs of first-class rugs are never blurred. And finally, is the rug unique? What is its history? Who did it belong to, and where did it come from?

A good oriental is a lifetime investment; if treated properly, it can also be an heirloom. To keep it in good shape, vacuum it well but not too often (once a week is enough). And clean it no more than once a year. Use non-skid rubber padding, and change the position of the rug every six months so that walking patterns remain even.

But above all, buy an oriental because you love it. "You don't need a carpet to exist," says Mrs. Blau. "You need it to live."

Mr. and Mrs. Geary Prentiss Ball

Shapley-Ball wedding

Marilyn Frances Shapley, daughter of Mary Hartley of Pampa, and Jack Shapley of Houston, became the bride of Geary Prentiss Ball at 7 p.m. on Dec. 8 in the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Claude Cone officiated.

The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Ball of Pampa. Wedding music was provided by Shelia Parr at the organ and John Glover as vocalist.

The bride's attendants were Cindy Stephens as maid of honor, Shelia Stephens as bridesmaid and Cheryl Rodgers as flower girl.

Attending the groom were David Ball as best man, Darrel Mitchell as groomsman and Mark Rodgers as ring bearer.

The bride wore a white gown trimmed with flowered lace around the neck, waist, sleeves and hemline, accented with flowers and seed pearls and falling into a long train. The three-quarter length veil was trimmed with flowers and the bride carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

The reception was in the parlor of the First Baptist Church with Mary Ola Trisler and Bernice Todd, the bride's grandmothers, and Janine Baumgardner assisting.

Mrs. Ball attended Pampa High School and the groom graduated from East Central High School in Pastagoula, Miss. and is employed by Brown and Root.

After a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev. the couple is at home at 942 Murphy, Pampa.

Terrell-Blain engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Merle W. Terrell of 1501 N. Nelson announce the engagement of their daughter Brenda Terrell to Dick Blain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Blain of Pampa. The bride-elect graduated from Pampa High School in 1977 and is employed by Mojave Petroleum Co. The prospective bridegroom graduated from Pampa High School in 1975 and is employed by Panhandle Industrial. The couple plan a February 24 wedding in the Central Baptist Church in Pampa.

DECORATING TRENDS...

by Charlie's

There are still many people who like matching sets of tables for the living room but many professional decorators today like to make each table entirely different.

Not only different styles, but different materials and finishes.

When it comes to the coffee or cocktail table, you may want to use several small tables instead of one large one. According to the size of the sofa or sectional, there is always a great variety of cocktail tables to choose from.

Wood and formica top tables are still the most popular, but tile top, glass, marble, leather and laquered colored top tables are also in great demand.

And there's never been a wider selection of shapes and sizes of tables than there is today. There are wedge, lamp, step, console, cigarette, boomerang, free-form, commode, drum, tier, and even lazy-suzan tables in great variety.

Many low lamp tables are being used with very tall lamps. Picture window tables are more popular than ever.

We invite you to come in and see our complete selection of tables of all kinds, and take advantage of the ideas we can give you on decorating your living room with the right table or tables for you.

Satirizing two of our sacred cows

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - If all goes well, and it seldom does, "Americathon" may turn out to be 1979's most controversial film.

That's because it tries very hard to offend a couple of our national sacred cows - the automobile and the oil companies. It tries to do it with satire and, as the saying goes, "satire closes Saturday night," but maybe this time it'll work.

"Americathon" is an unusual idea for a film. The premise is that by 1998, the year the movie is set, the oil has run out. Everybody uses skateboards or just jogs, and the country is deeply in debt (that, of course, is hardly unusual) and, to get even, the president (John Ritter) proposes a gigantic telethon to raise $400 billion.

Most of the film takes place during that telethon, which Harvey Korman emcees. They are shooting it at the Hollywood Palace, and, if a building can have a swan song, this is it for the Hollywood Palace.

Once the film crew leaves, the wreckers will take over, and what was once the famed Hollywood Palace will become a disco. Sic semper entertainus.

On stage is a line of patriotically garbed chorus girls. A huge Statue of Liberty (gold) and a huge American eagle (gold) dominate the background. There is a gi-the dangers as they see them. It is being done with a humorous approach because they believe that humor is often a stronger weapon than a straight sermon.

Besides, humor seems to be commercial on America's movie screens these days. Israel says it is the recent success of certain youth-oriented film comedies (like "Animal House" and "Up In Smoke") that convinced Lorimar to invest $3 million in the project. He has been trying to get it made for several years.

Korman says his part as emcee Monty Rushmore is

Art show features two guest artists

The Pampa Fine Arts Association is sponsoring a gallery show of the works of two guest artists Sunday through Tuesday at the Lovett Library. The show will be open from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. and features bronze sculptures by Andrew Wilks and watercolors by Gail Paci.

Andrew Wilks is a native of Pampa and earned his Master of Art degree at West Texas State University in 1978. His bronze pieces were originally done in wax or clay and then cast in bronze. Wilks has displayed his work in the Pampa Art Show the last two years, as well as at Hereford, Snyder, and Amarillo at the Best of The Southwest Show.

This past summer he was one of 250 applicants selected from a field of 600 to show his work at the Texas State Arts and Crafts Show in Kerrville. He was among the 50 chosen for the Award of Excellence at this show.

Gail Paci, a native of New Jersey, received the Art Achievement Award of 1972 from Bridgewater-Raritan High School West. She is a 1977 graduate of West Texas State, where she studied under Dr. Emilio Caballero. She has taught watercolor classes in the Canyon Public Schools and participated in the 1978 Arts for Arthritis Auction in Amarillo, where she received second place for her watercolor entry. Last year she had a showing at Big Spring, and has been selected for her work at the Texas State Arts and Crafts Fair in Kerrville on Memorial Day.

The public is invited to the festival.

FASHION AND BEAUTY TIPS

Apt accessories
For a tailored suede coat, try accessories in shades of dusty rose, beige or copper.

Fluff that fur
When your fur coat needs fluffing, just shake it out. Never comb or brush the fur.

Viable for veins
Don't worry about aggravating varicose veins by being active in sports. Movement is, in fact, helpful. Keeps the circulation going.

Lacy look

Now that you've got that lacy camisole, show it. Open an extra button on your blouse - the silk one you bought for evening.

What's up in golden apples?

Golden apples were recently handed out to those who had made 1978's greatest contributions to the cultural life of New York City - and, coincidentally, to that of the nation. Among the winners of the Cue magazine-sponsored awards were:

Film actress: Jill Clayburgh, for her characterization of New York singles life in "An Unmarried Woman."

Film actor: John Travolta, for establishing "an appeal that cut across generations and tastes" in "Grease" and "Saturday Night Fever."

Film director: Sidney Lumet, for turning New York into Oz for "The Wiz."

Broadway actor: Jack Lemmon, "one of the rare movie stars to have the nerve and ability to act on the stage," most recently in "Tribute."

Musical: "Ain't Misbehavin'," the new Fats Waller musical.

Playwright: Neil Simon, who "found a way to combine humor with an understanding of the human heart" in his autobiographical new play, "Chapter Two."

Television: "Saturday Night Live," the whacky comedy show now in its fourth year.

Dance: Natalia Makarova, who returned from maternity leave "more stunning than ever."

Recording artist: Donna Summer, "the queen of disco, (who) with her glitzy yet classy image, has given this faceless music a personality and style."

Recording group: The Rolling Stones, for forging "a fresh bond between punk, disco and rock."

Fashion: Halston, who took time out from designing gowns for Liza Minnelli and Elizabeth Taylor to devise new uniforms for New York's finest.

Women in engineering

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) - When they were younger, Taryn Melkus and Sylvia Acevedo were discouraged from studying engineering in college. It was suggested they might not be able to "hack it in a man's world."

Today Sylvia Acevedo and Taryn Melkus are top engineering students at New Mexico State University. And, for the first time, NMSU's major student engineering organizations are headed by women students.

Miss Acevedo, 21, of Las Cruces, is a senior industrial engineering major. She is president of the local chapter of Tau Beta Pi, a national engineering society; vice president of Alpha Pi Mu, the industrial engineering honor society; and an ex-officio student member of the NMSU Board of Regents.

Miss Melkus, 21, of Ponderosa Pines, is a senior chemical engineering student. President of the Engineers Council, a consortium of students representing student engineering groups, she is also a representative to Associated Women Students from the Society of Women Engineers and an advisory board member of the local chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers.

With overall engineering enrollments increasing annually, female enrollment is going up even more rapidly, college officials say. Out of a total of 1,870 students in the college, 235 are women.

According to Miss Melkus and Miss Acevedo, their opportunities as women in engineering are vast - and carry a responsibility to be "careful" in how they handle themselves.

"Initially, because we are minorities, our chances for jobs are better than men's these days," Miss Melkus said. "It's not really fair to the guys at all."

There is also a danger that women will be "used as tokens for display," Miss Acevedo said.

Both women say they don't want to be hired "as girls" but rather as qualified engineers. Being qualified, for them, means working in industry for a while, even though both eventually want to become college professors. More women professors are needed, they say - neither has had a woman engineering teacher.

Besides, life in academia will give them enough flexibility, they believe, to raise families as well as to have careers. Because women still have "an option of staying home to raise children," they don't seem to approach their careers with as much drive as men, both students believe.

Even though in the first couple of years of college, women are more aggressive students, the "men really make an about-face" toward the end of their education, both women agree, adding that they have observed their male counterparts becoming more ambitious recently.

"The women have done really well," Miss Melkus said. "Girls in chemical engineering have higher grades than men. But there is still the difference."

gantic Uncle Sam (red, white and blue) and a flashing sign that pleads, "GIVE!" in glorious neon.

Director and co-writer Neil Israel says that $400 billion sum wasn't chosen arbitrarily.

"That figure," he says, "is actually the current figure of the U.S. debt."

So there is a lot of truth, and more possible truth, in the plot of this movie. And all those involved hope that they are making a film that both entertains and, simultaneously, awakens.

"Our picture," Israel says, "isn't exactly going to make the auto lobby and the gasoline lobby happy. Its basic premise is that by 1998 we are out of fuel oil and everybody gets around as best they can."

One of the big scenes shows that happening - the freeway jammed with skateboarders, bicyclists and joggers. The national costume has become the jogging suit or variations thereon. In his scenes as emcee of the big telethon, Korman wears an outfit that is a hybrid cross between a jogging suit and a tuxedo.

"Behind the humor," Israel says, "we are very, very serious. We all feel that the Mideast oil bloc and the internal combustion engine are the biggest problems this country faces today."

"I am optimistic that we can overcome these problems, but the biggest problem with the problem is to get everyone to realize that it is as serious as it is."

Thus, "Americathon," which the filmmakers hope will wake the country up to "the best part I've ever had in my life."

"It's really a tour de force," he says. "I even have a spot where I break down, something like the breakdown Peter Finch had in 'Network.'"

The telethon itself, which goes on for weeks, is wild. Or so they hope. They have gotten acts which are so bad they make "The Gong Show" look like the Metropolitan Opera. Characters like the large, economy-sized rock star, Meat Loaf, and the skinny comedienne, Zane Busby, are involved.

They were shooting a scene on stage in which the chorus exhorted the home audience to give, give, give. And the message was that they should give real gold, not just paper money.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I am an ordained minister in the Presbyterian Church. I have tried in all good faith to fulfill my duties as a husband and father (we have two young children), but my efforts have been rejected by my wife.

She left me for another man. Soon after, she decided she wanted our house and children (but not me), so she petitioned the court and was awarded temporary custody of the children plus possession of our home. This meant that I, who had cared for the children after she deserted us, had to pack up and leave.

Abby, this automatic favoritism the courts have toward mothers is unjust. My wife has shown herself to be unfaithful and unfit to raise the children. Yet I am the one who is being punished.

I want my house and children back. What should I do? (P.S. Yes, I have a good lawyer.)

BACHELOR FATHER

DEAR FATHER: You say you have a good lawyer. Good. You need one. Take his advice. Be patient. The wheels of justice sometimes grind slowly. Practice what you preach: "The Lord never gives us a heavier load than we can carry."

DEAR ABBY: I borrowed $200 from a friend 14 years ago. Nothing was said about interest at the time.

I am able to pay the money back now. My friend says I owe her interest because if I had borrowed from the bank I would have had to pay interest. But, Abby, it wasn't a bank I borrowed that money from, it was from my friend.

What do you say?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Since no mention was made about the interest when you borrowed the money, pay her $200 and call it square. (P.S. I should think your friend would be glad to see any money at all after 14 years.)

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is making plans for her wedding. Her mother and I were divorced, and we have both married again.

My daughter phoned to tell me that her brother is going to give her away in marriage. Abby, I thought it was traditional for the bride's father to give her away. I told my daughter that if I could not give her away I would not attend the wedding. Was I right or wrong?

S.C. IN ALA.

DEAR S.C.: I think you were wrong. If you receive an invitation, go.

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please help me. I am a 55-year-old woman and just passed the menopause which I got through very easily. My problem is I have lost complete interest in sex. This has been happening for the last two to three years, but now it has gotten worse.

My husband is a year younger than I and he is still very active — maybe more so. My obstetrician shrugs his shoulders and says this happens when women get this age. My interest is more interested and prescribed an estrogen ointment which did help with discomfort that I was experiencing, but it didn't help improve my sex drive.

My husband is becoming more and more discouraged as am I. He is not unfaithful to me but I wouldn't blame him if he was. I am sure he feels like he's making love to a broom stick. I can't believe that at age 55 my sex drive should be completely gone. We've always enjoyed a good sex life and I want it to be that way again.

I have talked to a couple of friends of mine my age and they don't seem to be having this problem. Is there any hormone I could take that would help? At one time during my menopause I took estrogen tablets but gave them up because of the cancer scare. My husband says he is beginning to think it's all in my mind, but I can't buy this. I miss the feeling as much as he does.

Please give me some advice. I don't want to take anything that would give me cancer but, at this point, I am desperate enough to try anything that will help.

DEAR READER — I'm sure you are distressed and there are a number of women in your age group who have similar problems. When sex goes out the window, that doesn't mean people stop loving each other. There is more to love than that. Certainly after a long marriage, as you apparently have had, there are a lot of things the marriage has been built on besides just sex. I will have to tell you that the loss of interest in sex in mid-life is a symptom. The next step is finding out why. The middle years is a time when many people have a depression. If you are depressed, you may not realize it yourself. A lot of people have a misconception about depression and think it means you have to sit there in a chair almost immobile or with tears streaming down your cheeks. Depressions can masquerade in many forms. I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-10, Depression: The Ups And Downs Of Life. It will give you a better idea about this. Loss of interest in sex in both men and women is frequently a symptom of a depression.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I don't know whether you have a depression or not. It is certainly one of the possibilities that shouldn't be left out. If you do, it doesn't mean that you can control it, either. It more likely would mean that you could use some professional help to get you through this phase of life and regain your former vim and vigor.

I also don't know whether you are low on hormones or not. You need tests to find out. If you are, hormone replacement with a proper cycle of withdrawing the hormones for one week out of four might be very useful. The fact that estrogen ointments helped suggests that you might be low on hormones.

Pampa Post Script

by JUNE ALEXANDER

The Romines family of Pampa are fans of the Dallas Cowboys. They bought 10 season tickets to the games and received four tickets to the Super Bowl game. The only hotels in Miami with available space offered them a room with two beds at $100 a night with a four night reservation required. That sport fans, is $400 even if you stay only one night. So the Romines will be watching the game on TV today. They attended the games all season — then along came the big one and they couldn't afford to go. Freddie Romines, his sister Shirlene Bowles and their spouses sold their 30 yard line tickets for the legitimate price, even though the asking price in Miami was $200. Unlike some innkeepers, they don't want to take an unfair advantage of people.

Charles and Marge Brauchle of Athol, Mass. are house guests of Eban and Alice Warner while they visit their many friends in Pampa. Charles practices dentistry in Athol and Marge is still into antiques. They have lived in New England for 11 years and love it.

The burglar alarm system in a store in the Coronado Center was broken recently, so the manager and one of his young assistants camped out on the premises until it was fixed. That's what I call dedication.

Fred Glass of Pampa and Governor Bill Clements worked together in Pampa in 1942 when Clements was store manager for Oil Well Supply Co., filling contracts to build boiler plants to supply steam and hot water to hospitals. After Clements left here he was with the engineering department of the company for a time, then he and the late Bill Gray went into partnership and formed Southeastern Drilling Co. which is now known as SEDCO. Freda LeMond is Fred Glass' daughter, so she and Guy were among the Pampans in Austin for the inauguration last week.

Rex and Ann McNelly were to attend the inauguration but the mini-blizzard on the night of Jan. 12 blew down the power lines at Moody Farms. Since the water troughs are filled by electric pump it looked as though the cattle would be without water. So Rex decided it was not a good time to leave.

Some other area residents in Austin were the Jim Campbells, the Jimmy Wilkersons, the Scot Nisbets, the E.C. Sidwells, Wylene Curtis, Bit Fitzgerald, Benny Kirksey, the Tom Prices, Rex McKay and Joe Gordon. The contingent from Canadian included the Malou Abrahams, the Tom Abrahams and George Arrington; Miami was represented by the Bill Tolberts.

A very brave little lady died last week. And I do mean little. She weighed 40 pounds after a three year battle with emphysema. Yes... yes... she was a cigarette smoker.

Albertine Triplehorn thinks that gardening is the purest of human pleasures. I like that.

Families still save for offspring

Chicago (NFS) — Even though inflation is making it difficult for people to make ends meet, let alone save, many families are putting money away for their children's future, principally a college education.

And still other families, with fewer money worries, are finding it expedient to give their children gifts of up to $3,000 a year tax-free, to reduce estate taxes if the same amount were inherited.

But in doing so, parents often ask, "How can we keep control of the money until the child is ready to use it?" and "How can we avoid having to pay income taxes on the interest?"

ONE OF THE best ways to answer both questions favorably is to establish a Custodian savings account at a savings and loan association, said John L. Domeier, president of Great-American Federal Savings and Loan Association, one of the Chicago area's leading thrift institutions.

This is a special type of savings account set up under the Uniform Gift to Minors Act.

Epic artist Joe Stampley headlined a benefit concert for the victims of a tornado that nearly destroyed Bossier City, La.

Radio stations KWKH and KRMD, and the Jaycees from Bossier City and Shreveport did a fantastic job putting the show together. The producer Chet Kendrick said the concert was telecast from the Gold Dome on the Centenary College campus in nearby Shreveport.

Stampley, who is currently riding the success of his Top 10 single, "Do You Ever Fool Around," has written and recorded five No. 1 records and has performed through out the U.S. and Europe. The tornado hit last Dec. 5, killed four people and mired over 200. The damage was estimated at over $100 million. President Carter declared Bossier City a national disaster area.

A complete chapter of a book entitled Country Comedians is devoted to MCA humorist Jerry Clower. The book, written by the Nashville editor of Country Song Roundup Stacy Harris, is one of a series of nine books on country music personalities.

Two puzzle buffs often cross paths

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — Day-coaching down to D.C., U.S. capital, on the AMTRAK two crossword puzzle buffs — fans, enthusiasts — chanced to fall in — meet, cross paths — six rows down, two across in the bar car — grill, club car. The following conversation ensued — resulted, came afterward.

"How's things?"
"By the dog star, res is Serious."
"Keeping busy?"
"In a word: hectic, frantic or bustling."
"Too spacey?"
"How about mad?"
"Hols were wild around my house, too."
"Xmas saw a grate happening at our manor, pad, demense."
"Santa?"
"No, two words."
"Yule log?"
"By Dickens, you're a sketch."
"By Box."
"Getting foggy out there."
"Sherlockian peasouper."
"Or, as Holmes would put it: "Elementary."
"Train has pulled into a station — depot, platform, stop."
"Where?"
"State cap."
"Dover, Del.?"
"No, nine spaces."
"Trenton, N.J."
"Right on. Five down from New York on the schedule."
"Timetable, rail plan, notice board."
"Care for a four-letter refreshment in the bar car?"
"Soda, cola, milk?"
"Cafe, Fl."
"I'll have mine light."
"Cafe-au-lait?"
"No, nine letters, Ital."
"Cappuccino."
"Si."
"Remind me I left a sharp cutting tool beginning with 'a' in the overhead rack."
"Adze, Auger, Augerbit?"
"Nope. Three letters."
"Axe."
"Awl."
"Oh. How boring."
"Cylindrical holes or tedious, dull, repetitious?"
"Et al."
"Taking my kid, offspring, heir, bairn in Edinburgh and garcon in Nice to the Washington Zoo today."
"They got everything from A to Z there."
"Aardvarks, acaroids, addax, agouti, alligators, alpaca, antions, argali, armadillo, aug, auklets, aurochs, aye-ayes."
"He'll go ape before he gets to the azygous axoloti which as you know is amphibious."
"It'll be dark, dusk, twilight, eventide before we zero in on the zander, zebra, zebress, zebu, zibet, zori and zorilla."
"By Zeus, there's zest, zeal and zing in those zebus."
"Zounds and zowie, they got zip."
"Zany zephyrs from Zanzibar can zig-zag like a Zen zombie zonked out on zinfandel."
"That's the end, man."
"Omega, all she wrote."
"Intuitive letters tell me this train will be late, tardy, delayed."
"E.S.P.?"
"No, E.T.A."
"According to my watch, timepiece, chronometer we should be there by now."
"At the terminus, terminal, end of line?"
"Eleven letters, two words."
"Last station? Arrival base? Home platter?"
"Nope. Journey's end."

NBC throws Super Bowl

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC is getting stiffed in the ratings. It faces dismal prospects for the near future. But for one day, at least, the No. 3 network has the only show in town.

Super Bowl Sunday lands on NBC's calendar this year, and the other two networks might as well shut down operations until it's over.

This isn't a holiday. It's a national obligation.

Super Bowl parties are thrown by people who don't know what a football is. Football widows who considered divorce during the regular season suddenly start talking point spreads. Competing entertainment enterprises, such as race tracks, plan their events around it.

The game is always dull. And we always watch it.

So, you can't blame NBC for milking the thing. Ratings have revealed America's gluttonous appetite for things Super Bowl, and NBC is more than happy to cater the affair.

The feast starts Saturday with "Super Bowl Saturday Night," an inane variety-type show in which athletes and actors sing and dance and do other things people wouldn't ordinarily watch them do. This gives O. J. Simpson the opportunity to show that, as a TV star, he's still the greatest running back of all.

Then, when you're still clearing the sleep from your eyes Sunday morning, NBC is waiting in your living room, beckoning you to the tube. Dick Enberg, who should be calling the game, hosts 1½ hours of Sports World, followed by two hours of football junk. They think we'll sit and watch 3½ hours of pre-football football. We will.

You know, I've looked at past Super Bowls and wondered if it's too much," says Chet Simmons, head of NBC Sports. "But I tell you, the public is insatiable when it comes to Super Bowl Sunday. You think, 'My God, another two-hour pre-game show and a day of football,' but when the ratings come out, we find that people just watch it. It's a day that people devote to that particular event."

We never learn.

For the game itself, NBC has hauled out all its finery. John Brodie and the restrained, articulate Merlin Olsen will offer analysis, while Curt Gowdy, who should be at home watching it with the rest of us, calls the game.

When Pam Shriver was a losing finalist in the 1978 U.S. Open singles at the age of 16, she was the youngest female ever to reach the finals.
