

AN UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN was taken to Highland General Hospital for observation Monday afternoon after she was involved in a two-car collision on Highway 60. According to the highway patrol, the woman was eastbound on the highway and tried to turn north on Price Road when her Pontiac was struck by a westbound Ford driven by Markam Wadill. "He laid down about 60 feet of skid marks," said a trooper at the scene. Wadill was also taken to the hospital, where he and the woman remained this morning. (Pampa News photo by John Price)

Davis free on bond

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Millionaire Cullen Davis is out of jail today — his first day of freedom in five months — after a hopelessly deadlocked jury prompted a mistrial in his 12-week murder-for-hire trial.

"If anyone thinks I am guilty, they are wrong," a pale, thin but smiling Davis said early today after returning to his Fort Worth home. He had been charged with hiring a man to murder the judge in his bitter divorce trial.

The jury announced Monday it was "hopelessly deadlocked" after nearly 44 hours of deliberation and told District Judge Wallace Moore there could be no verdict. He reluctantly agreed, and Davis was freed on $30,000 bond.

The seven-man, five-woman jury had three choices — convict Davis of solicitation of capital murder or conspiracy to commit capital murder, or acquit him — but chose none of them.

The vote was reportedly divided 8-4, with the majority for conviction.

"I'm tickled to death that this phase is over," Davis said as he emerged from a private jet in Fort Worth. "I just hope it's the end of it."

But Davis admitted that was only a dim hope, and prosecutors have vowed to seek a new trial. "I hope there isn't another one," Davis said, "but I think there will be."

The judge's ruling ended a trial that featured some 200 pieces of evidence, testimony from about 100 witnesses and frequent angry exchanges between attorneys.

The case centered on taped conversations made between Davis and FBI informant David McCrory last August in which prosecutors said the men discussed the murder of Davis' divorce judge and 14 others.

TV franchise change okayed

By JOHN PRICE
Pampa News Staff

The transfer of Pampa's cable television franchise from Merrill Cable TV Inc. to Sammons Communications Inc. was approved by the city commission at its regular meeting this morning.

In a related move, the commission adopted an ordinance amending the franchise by limiting the city's former power to purchase the local cable company at virtually any time.

A resolution designating the Panhandle Elderly Apartments Corp. as an instrumentality, or agency, of the city was adopted by the commission. The non-profit corporation was set up by the commission to finance a low-income elderly housing project in Pampa.

The corporation will issue tax-exempt bonds to obtain funding for the project. City Manager Mack Wofford said the resolution insures that the city will be under no financial obligation for the project.

Commissioners were told that construction of the housing project is scheduled to begin around Feb. 1.

The commission set Feb. 13 and 16 as the dates for public hearings concerning the city's pre-application for federal community development block grant funds. The funds, which would be used to develop economically depressed areas in the southeastern part of Pampa, could amount to $1.5 million over the next three years if the city receives the grant. (See related story on page 3.)

"It appears that we have probably a good chance as we have ever had" of winning a grant, Wofford said. He added that a Spanish-speaking person will be at both public hearings to assist Hispanic residents in expressing their views.

Another public hearing, concerning franchise renewal between the city and Southwestern Public Service Co., was scheduled for Feb. 27. The proposed 20-year franchise contains a few changes from the old agreement, and Wofford suggested the commission either approve or deny the changes after the public hearing.

SPS had sought a 30-year agreement, Wofford said, but was limited to 20 years by the city charter.

Fire and tax service contracts with Gray County, a tax service contract with the Pampa Independent School District and fire service contracts with Carson and Roberts counties and the city of Lefors were approved by the commission. The contracts had already been approved by the counties, school district and Lefors.

The tax contracts have been increased from $5,800 to $6,400, while the fire contracts were upped from $265 to $300 per run.

Feb. 27 was also selected as the date to receive bids for the purchase of six police sedans. In addition, bids were received today for the purchase of a half-ton truck for the inspection department, a four-to-six-ton roller for the street department and an emergency vehicle for the fire department. The bids will be awarded at the next commission meeting Feb. 13.

Snow causes few delays

Blizzard conditions left drifts on streets and highways in the Pampa area this morning, but did little to slow down daily routines.

A spokesman for the Central Service Center reported that maintenance crews were hauling snow from drifts on the streets.

Drifts of 18 inches to two feet, located mostly on street corners, were reported by Jiggs Cooks, Director of Public Works.

The hauling crews could do little in the downtown area because of traffic, said Cooks, but roads can now be travelled on more safely.

The Pampa district schools began an hour later than usual because of road conditions.

The city's utilities said that weather conditions gave them no serious problems, and Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. reported an overload on the lines because many people stayed inside and used their phones.

Outside of town, the highways running west and east are being cleared of drifts, said a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety. The north and south highways have little in the way of drifts, according to the DPS spokesman.

The only serious difficulty, said the spokesman, was blowing snow in the early morning hours, which impaired visibility.

FAA grant to Pampa airport pegged at $60,000

An official from the Federal Aviation Administration in Albuquerque, N.M., has confirmed that Gray County received a $60,000 grant for improvements at Perry Lefors Airport.

The Gray County Commissioners Court approved acceptance of the $60,000 on Nov. 15 as well as the required 20 percent county matching funds of $15,000.

But some question remained as to the actual amount of the grant, according to Jack Hood, Chairman of the Gray County Airport Board.

The Board originally applied for an FAA grant of $88,000, to be approved by the court, and supplemented with 20 percent matching funds from the county. This would have brought the total to be used for improvements to $110,000.

Gary Foster, FAA Airport Program Officer, said that the grant approved was for $60,000.

Hood said the federal and matching county funds will go toward the repair of a bump in the south end of runway 1735. He said that the county would have liked to have the larger grant to resurface the runway 300 feet in either direction from the bump, and added that in the distant future there will be a need to resurface much of the runway.

According to County Auditor A.C. Malone, $20,000 has been set aside for Perry Lefors to match the FAA grant.

County Engineer Gene Barber said last week that an extra $50,000 to $100,000 would be needed over the allotted matching funds for other airport improvements, including restriping and painting numbers on the runway and preventive maintenance.

Work on the bump will not begin until spring to avoid complications of inclement weather.

Barber said he is going to recommend to the board that they apply for an additional grant from the Texas Aeronautics Commission (TAC). He said grants from the TAC entail 50 percent matching funds from the county.

Barber said immediate improvements to Perry Lefors can be considered "short term." He said long-term improvements would be new entry roads to the airport and new hangers to accommodate agricultural planes.

The Airport Board will meet Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Perry Lefors Field lounge.

Clements seeks state tax relief

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements opened the "first chapter" of his legislative program today, asking for enlarged powers for the governor, $1 billion in tax relief, a start on property tax reform and a "Taxpayer's Bill of Rights."

While requesting constitutional amendments increasing the governor's power over the budget and the state bureaucracy, Clements also recommended a two-term limit on governors, lieutenant governors and attorneys general.

The newly inaugurated Republican governor's first "State of the State Address" contained over a dozen specific recommendations and a call to restore public confidence in government.

He called it "the first chapter in an ongoing dialogue" with legislators and said its central theme was that "government should be directly accountable to the citizens."

"Where Texans have lost confidence in government, we must make them confident again. Where Texans have lost touch with government, we must put them in touch again," Clements said.

Once again — in the face of doubts by many legislative leaders — Clements said the Legislature "can and should return $1 billion to the taxpayers of Texas over the next two years."

But he did not specify the form such tax relief should take. Possibilities mentioned so far include direct state tax reductions and added state school aid that would enable school districts to reduce property taxes.

Clements said it was not up to him to defend the budget cuts that would be needed if taxes are to be reduced.

"To the contrary, those who are attempting to increase the budget by 22 percent over the budget of just two years ago must define in detail and fully justify such increases," Clements said in a reference to the "bare bones" spending bill recommended by the Legislative Budget Board.

Clements asked for these new powers for the governor, each of which would require a constitutional amendment approved by two-thirds of each legislative house and by the voters.

—Budget execution, which means the power of the governor to oversee the actual expenditure of money appropriated by the Legislature, blocking spending that seems unnecessary and shifting funds around to meet special needs.

—Authority to remove appointed members of state boards and commissions for specific reasons, with Senate approval.

In addition, Clements requested a new law giving him the authority to designate the chairmen of state boards and commissions, some of which now choose their own leaders.

Football coach hired for Pampa

By GREG HARDIN
Pampa News Staff

The Pampa Harvesters received a new head football coach while Clarendon College was granted a lease agreement during the regular meeting of the Pampa Independent School Board Monday night.

Danny Palmer of Waco was named to take the place of John Welborn, who resigned from the coaching job earlier in the year. Palmer was the coach at Waco Richfield High School.

Palmer was given a two year contract by the board of trustees.

See related story page 8

after Superintendent of Schools Bob Phillips recommended hiring him.

The board met for more than an hour in executive session, where they listened to comments from Palmer, before reaching a decision to fill the vacant slot.

Palmer will take over as coach on Feb. 1.

On the recommendation of Phillips, the board gave approval to allow Larry Gilbert of Waco to accompany Palmer to Pampa. Gilbert will act as an administrative assistant to the new coach.

Before discussing in executive session the trustees approved a lease on the old Sam Houston Middle School building to be used by Clarendon College.

The lease calls for the college to use the building for as long as first revision of policy changes and revisions but not before a major issue was challenged by board members.

The revision that met with some disapproval was that elementary students could be passed to the next grade after counseling with parents even if the child failed to make passing grades.

Board member Paul Simmons said he thinks this policy only existed in the first grade and not throughout the elementary grades.

Phillips expressed his concern over the policy but said those laws may be changed on a state level.

"There are certain bills in the legislature now that would provide for mandatory competency testing before a student could be passed," Phillips said. "It is up to the legislature to get these bills passed."

The Board of Equalization was also approved during the session with W.D. Jackson stepping down as a full member of the board to the alternate position. The board acts as a checks and balances body for the school board.

its use is beneficial to both Pampa Independent Schools and Clarendon College.

The college has occupied the school since Nov. 1, 1978 without a formal lease agreement. The board's approval will allow Board President Robert Lyle to sign the agreement with Clarendon.

The board also approved the

Mays makes Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays, who loved baseball and played it with greatness, was elected to the Hall of Fame today by an overwhelming vote.

Mays, only the fifth player ever to be enshrined in his first year of eligibility — excluding the first year of voting in 1936 — received 409 of a possible 432 votes by 10-year members of the Baseball Writers Association of America participating in the annual balloting.

GOP convention to be in Detroit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Detroit was selected today by a site committee to host the 1980 Republican National Convention. The party's national committee was expected to ratify the decision shortly.

Ody Fish, co-chairman of the site selection committee, said Detroit is "a city experiencing a genuine urban renaissance, and its facilities are ideally suited for holding a Republican National Convention."

The best insurance

With the idea that many insurance buyers have insufficient information on buying life insurance, a House subcommittee is out to correct the "situation." The House Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations reported, "States have been unduly slow and reticent in developing regulations intended to increase information about buying life insurance."

Buying life insurance is a prime factor in the budget of every American household and should receive intelligent consideration. However, compared to the amounts paid out by families for so-called governmental services, it amounts to peanuts.

The cost, in taxes, of obtaining these "services" is astronomical. And, in the protection of the consumer of such government services, this oversight committee will probably never do anything save make any investigation here a complete oversight.

Members of the committee point to the amounts spent per year by Americans for insurance as a reason for them to "protect" the public from over-expenditure.

The many and varied plans to fit the innumerable needs and wants of citizens in insurance coverage makes it almost an imperative that each individual protect himself in this area. There is just no way that governmental "oversight" can protect each and every individual, no matter how complex the regulations set up might be.

One of the most frustrating factors which presents itself to anyone buying insurance today is the consideration of the part inflation will play in the determination of the proper insurance contract.

Here again the government is in the role of the worst of offenders, since inflation has been caused by actions of the federal government. And, the proliferation of regulatory activity is one of the major causes of the government's being the spur to runaway inflation.

The House panel alleged, "Significant consumer loss occurs because many apparently do not purchase life insurance products on the basis of suitability, quality and cost." This statement belies the stance that government can offer protection. It is a sweeping generalization not supported in logic.

If the government goes gung-ho in an attempt to protect everybody in the purchase of life insurance, we predict that confusion will reign and the only discernible effect will be another expensive, zealous agency which will protect few, if any, and will be costly to all taxpayers directly. Such an agency will also add reams of red tape to already over-burdened insurance companies.

Guess who will come up with less in insurance for more money expended for premiums? It will be the very people the feds now say they are out to protect.

Competing firms in private enterprise in a relative free marketplace is the best outside protection the buyer can possibly have. It may not be perfection per se, but it will protect the most people with the fewest becoming victims of their own folly.

The very fact that too many people still believe that government can and will protect them, makes some of them sitting ducks for con artists out to take them with a faulty product. The more people look to themselves for their own protection the better off all of us will be.

Especially in the area of insurance, the only real protection will come from the individual as he takes on the responsibility of his own decisions. Government will never, can never, take the place of a good dose of common sense in the purchase of anything.

Government and electronic mail

Administration top aides are looking at the emerging multi-billion dollar electronic mail industry to determine if the Postal Service should compete in this, so far, private endeavor. President Carter has directed that a study be completed by next spring to determine whether the governmental service should set up its own mail-by-wire service.

The Postal Service is already cooperating with Western Union in the familiar "Mailgram" program which uses the private firm's transmission facilities. It is experimenting with a similar system that would allow credit card businesses and utility companies to send their mass billings directly from a central computer tape to local post offices to be delivered with other mail.

In the United States, electronic communications have been in the hands of private companies such as Western Union, IBM, Bell system and others.

Officials of postal labor unions are viewing these developments as a threat to their members and are already pushing for control by government through the postal service. They not only have the blessing of the federal postal agency but the active effort of postal bureaucrats.

At present the pitch is just for the federal postal agency to enter the field as a competing medium. We suggest that this is simply a ploy and the real goal will be to establish a monopoly in the field. Control is what the postal unions are asking now. If they get it, the step to monopoly will soon follow.

We doubt at this time the unions will get the control they seek. We hope the effort goes no further than the present cooperation with Western Union.

The electronic communication field is a potentially vast one with many ramifications which can aid the economy, the people and business. This step in progress is far too important to allow it to be stifled by a government enterprise which has a long record as a loser.

If this government-controlled agency, now captive to labor unions, cannot even operate a business where they have a monopoly in the handling of first class mail, how can anyone believe it can do anything but foul up a budding industry?

A White House statement alleged that the study group will check "the potential costs to the nation of establishing Postal Service competition in an industry which has previously been restricted to private competition, as well as what benefits might flow from such an investment."

Knowing anything about the past history of inefficiency and rate raising, at the same time that service was deteriorating, we wonder how anyone could keep a straight face and use the term "investment" in connection with another socialized venture.

The study panel says it will seek written comments from unions, businesses and the general public regarding this proposal. It is certain that there will be input from the unions. We hope people and businesses, long victims of the postal monopoly in the handling of mail, will speak out loudly and clearly before this idea gets any further.

Who should build medical colleges?

We need more medical colleges, and Congress should build them, is the opinion of Dan A. Manason, lawyer.

Is Congress a builder? Does it wear a carpenter's apron? Can it pound a nail straight?

Why this assumption that a certain job needing doing, Congress is the one to do it? One would think Congress is the only doer.

The fact is Congress does very little, except talk. Occasionally it orders other people to do, or not do, something, and at that point we wish it had continued just talking.

Manason's point, of course, is that we need more medical schools, in order to train more doctors and provide better care for sick people. That he did not merely say that but specified that "Congress" should provide the medical schools shows how automatic it has become to assign every task that arises to government.

The next step, perhaps visualized by Manason, is that some congressman will read his words and proceed to draw up a bill that would appropriate certain million, or billion, of taxpayers' money to finance construction of medical colleges. Thus, a new outlet for federal spending — a new avenue of socialization — will be opened. This is how the United Socialist States is coming into being.

Whether we need more medical colleges, and whether the government should build such colleges, are two different questions. However, their answers are intertwined.

The first can be answered only by the medical educators, that is, by those who make a business of producing and selling the knowledge and skills needed by people who aspire to practice medicine and surgery. These, the entrepreneurs in medical education, must study the market for their product and decide whether the demand for doctors and the supply of them are such as to make an increase in medical education facilities profitable.

Some of the facts to be ascertained are: how many practicing physicians per 1,000 of the U.S. population are there at present? Is this the ratio that the people want? (Desire for a larger ratio would be indicated by doctors' fees rising more steeply than prices in general. If this is taking place, it is for one reason: that doctors' services are relatively scarce.) And what of the future? Will developing technology in the field of medicine make more, or fewer, practitioners appropriate?

These are economic questions, the kind which govern in market for all kinds of services. They can be answered only by people in the field of health services, certainly not by Congressmen.

For Congress to try to answer these questions would be utterly futile. Totally irrelevant factors would be introduced. For example, every Congressman, you may be sure, would see a feather being added to his political cap if he could get a new medical college built in his district. Obviously, whether that Congressman is popular or not has no bearing on the question of building medical colleges.

Some Congressmen, influenced by the medical association lobby, might vote against more medical colleges on the ground that there is already too much competition between doctors. This is not only irrelevant but meaningless. How much competition is "too much"? Doesn't he want patients to have a choice of doctors? How wide a choice? This question applies in every walk of life and is just as unanswerable in one as in another.

As to the optimum degree of competition between medical colleges, the people who own and operate such colleges have to answer that. Assuming they are free and unsubsidized, they are continually answering that question by either adding to the facilities for medical education, closing some existing facilities, or maintaining the status quo.

Which brings me to the crux of the matter: only those people who risk their own invested capital in medical colleges are qualified to decide whether or not more should be built. Even they cannot be certain, because the future is uncertain, but they are best qualified because they have maximum urge to consider all angles and arrive at a correct decision. This urge is not possessed by anyone else, certainly not by lawmakers who by appropriating money for medical colleges would be risking other people's money, not their own. The same applies to every project for which Congress votes the taxpayers' money.

Senator Kennedy wants the government to enter the business of national health service, which would surely culminate in salaried doctors and government-run hospitals. Nothing could be more uneconomic. Congress, levying on taxpayers to finance such service, would have neither incentive nor knowledge to match supply of such services to demand and operate in the black. Faced with such a question as the need for more medical colleges, it would be all at sea. Patients, relieved of the need to pay fees, would go to doctors for every pimple and hangnail. Demand would always exceed supply — we would always need "more medical colleges."

In Great Britain, health services have been scarce ever since they were socialized. England in 1965, according to Dr. Stuard M. Butler, had 470,000 hospital beds, with 517,000 ailing people waiting to get into them. By 1976, the number of beds had shrunk to 412,000, while the number of would-be patients had increased to 644,000. This is what we may expect if we nationalize health services. Socialization is a sure road to scarcity.

Rush to lifeboats

by paul harvey

We know so much better than we do. We know what's right but we go right ahead and do what's wrong because we are not guided nearly so much by what we know as by how we feel. We know that our dollars are worth less and less every day and, history says, they could end up worthless. We know that the only way to check inflation is to stop asking for more without producing more. Three times since World War II inflation has been brought under control under Adenauer in Germany, DeGaulle in France and Eisenhower in the United States. Each time drastic cuts in government spending had to be made. Yet in Illinois politicians are demanding for themselves pay raises of as much as 60 percent. And Chicago Alderman Vito Marzullo says: "If Carter doesn't like it he can go to hell!" Whatever else it is, government should be a good example for the rest of us.

President Carter has been pleading with industry and labor to hold wage increases to no more than seven percent until our dollar can be stabilized. Nevertheless, Illinois politicians are voting 40 percent pay raises for themselves. Ohio legislators have voted a 28 percent pay increase for themselves. But the most flagrant examples of individuals thumbing their noses at the White House are federal government officials. The President has to be hurt and angry, but he is letting inflation watchdog Alfred Kahn ventilate Administration resentment. Kahn has sent a telegram to every state's legislature asking for voluntary compliance with the President's seven-percent guideline, "if only as an example for business and labor." Calling recently voted increases "irresponsible" and "outrageous," Kahn appealed to the public to keep the heat on their elected officials until these flagrant increases are rolled back.

"It is up to you to scream," he says. You elected many or most of these officials when they were talking about "your" best interests; now, having been elected, their first order of business is to stuff their own pockets with more of your money. And while heavily burdened taxpayers watch this flagrant selfishness in their city halls and state capitals, from Washington they hear of other misuses of their money. Comptroller General Elmer Staats says nobody knows how much fraud goes on inside government agencies, but the Justice Department guesstimated that one in 10 of your federal tax dollars is stolen by somebody inside government. The GAO says the grand total of your tax dollars lost to fraud may total $25 billion a year — in the Medicaid program alone, probably $750 million a year. You know, this sounds like an "economic Titanic" with insiders making a frantic rush to the lifeboats. "Women and children last!"

COMMENTARY

A lesson from Iran

by don graff

It is just possible that there is something positive to be derived from the Iranian catastrophe. Not for the country itself — at least not yet. Whatever new order emerges from the smoke and destruction of revolution, it cannot recover lives already lost or erase damage already done to a society in transition between a still powerfully influential past and an uncertain future. And it is likely to be quite some time before the economic ground lost is recovered. Oil-rich Iran has become an oil importer. In shutting down the oil fields through strikes, terrorism and sabotage, the Shah's opponents have interrupted the flow of $20-plus billions in revenues and brought fuel rationing to a country which has been the world's No. 2 oil exporter. For Iran, the consequences have been immediate. For the country's customers they will be somewhat longer term. The effect upon Western and Japanese supplies may not be apparent for some months, and will be moderated to a considerable extent by a step-up in production by other major exporters. But it will be felt, both in curtailed supplies and possible higher prices. British Petroleum, one of the big seven of world oil distribution, and which acquires 40 percent of its oil from Iranian fields, has already advised its customers of a sharp cutback in supplies. The impact upon the United States will be muted, but it will be definite. With something like half of the oil it consumes now coming from outside its own production, the United States is excruciatingly sensitive to developments in a major supplier such as Iran.

Some months down the road, the consequences of the shutdown of the Iranian oilfields may well be shortages and higher prices for American consumers. There is not much we can do about the situation in Iran itself, as the handwringing in Washington of the past several months has amply demonstrated. But there is something we can do about the situation at home, in the implementation of an effective national energy program. Iran is giving us a dramatic lesson of the consequences of dependence upon unreliable outside oil suppliers. The United States, far and away the world's leading consumer, will never be able to do without foreign oil, entirely. But it can do a great deal to lessen its slavish dependence upon a single or a particular group of suppliers by rationalizing domestic consumption patterns, accelerating exploration and exploitation of alternative energy sources and diversifying as widely as possible its overseas suppliers. Apart from the price-fixing stranglehold the OPEC cartel has on world oil supplies, twice now in this decade events largely outside our control and influence have disrupted supplies and thrown our own economy off balance. The first crisis, the 1973 embargo by Arab producers, was a political maneuver brought on by the Yom Kippur war with Israel. The current Iranian crisis is the result of revolution. Who knows at this point what may be the origins of the next. But if we know what's good for us, we will see to it that we are better prepared to deal with the consequences.

"Red China — fine! OK! But now CLEVELAND wants to be recognized!"

A TWO-STORY BUILDING in the 300 E. Francis block of Pampa received some heavy damage Monday following a fire. Pampa firemen were called to the scene at 2:10 p.m. and the blaze was put out less than 10 minutes later. Fire Captain Don Hendricks said heavy damage was done to the upstairs southwest corner, which is shown above. Fires had been started at the building two or three times in the past year. The building, which has been vacant for seven or eight years, was believed to have been a dry cleaning store at one time, Hendricks said. Walter Batman called the fire department after he looked out of the door from nearby 221 Gillespie "and saw it going pretty good." Hendricks said he thinks the fire might have been set because he saw empty buckets of kerosene. There was no insurance, Hendricks added.

City seeks housing funds

The city, attempting to increase its chances of winning a federal community development block grant, is going to apply for funds for housing rehabilitation in south Pampa.

"We have been advised by our Panhandle Regional Planning Commission staff that to get the best position for funding, it (rehabilitation) appears to be a necessity," City Manager Mack Wofford said Monday.

However, Wofford made it clear that he and other city officials are less than enthusiastic about entering into the rehabilitation business.

"I have very mixed emotions about that thing," he said. "I don't know if the headaches and nightmares outweigh the benefits."

The amount of administration required is probably the least attractive factor of the program, I would say.

If obtained, the block grant would be used to renovate and develop two target areas south of Highway 60 and east of Hobart Street. The city is also seeking funds for street and gutter pavement, demolition of dilapidated housing and replacement of inadequate water lines in the two areas. The possibility of improvements at Lion's Club Park and the Marcus Sanders Community Center building also exists.

The city completed its demographic survey of the target areas late last week, receiving 93 responses. Some of those will have to be invalidated because they are incomplete, Wofford said.

Pampa's pre-application for the grant must be submitted to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) by Feb. 26. Wofford said he's not sure how long it will take HUD to make a decision.

The city has twice before applied for block grants, only to be turned down.

"In the past we lacked points because of a low number of minorities and too many people with an above average per capita income," Wofford said.

This time, he added, it will be close.

The more people in the target areas making less than average income, the better Pampa's chances for winning a grant.

Pampans won at rodeo

The Amarillo Fat Stock Show and Rodeo was very competitive and Pampa High School students demonstrated high quality compared to most past shows, agriculture teacher Bob Skaggs said Monday.

Skaggs said that about 78 percent of all livestock entered by the 23 students won a judging place. There were between 60 to 80 animals entered in each of the classifications by Panhandle youths.

Most Pampans won in the barrow show competition, with 16 place winnings in the six breed categories among different weight divisions.

To qualify, a student must have attained the animal while they were young and have raised it themselves.

About 12 exhibitors will be making a trip Jan. 31 to the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock and Rodeo in Fort Worth with some new and some of the same livestock. They will be showing Feb. 2 and the auction will take place the following day.

Jury to be picked

Twelve residents who will make up the 31st District Grand Jury for the next six months will be selected this afternoon at the Gray County Courthouse.

Comer said he plans to present evidence toward three or four indictments. The indictments include several criminal mischief charges, a burglary, and a theft by check charge.

St. Michael's Church in Stamford, England, built in 1836, is up for sale for about $80,000. It has been closed for 16 years because of dwindling congregations.

Road seal coat will be applied

AMARILLO — A Plainview firm, High Plains Pavers Inc., has been awarded a $1,440,530 contract by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission to perform the work of the Amarillo District 1979 Seal Coat Program.

The seal coats will be applied during the summer months of 1979, or weather permitting, some time between April 15 and September 1, 1979.

- The Program includes the following work:
- Gray - SH 70, from 21st Street in Pampa 4.4 miles to the Roberts County line, $47,465.
- Gray - Loop 171, from SH 70 east 3 miles, $50,875, and from the junction of SH 273 to US 60, 2 miles, $30,855.
- Gray - FM 291, from SH 273 to US 66 in Alanreed, 15.7 miles, $116,130.
- Gray - FM 247, from SH 70 east 7.5 miles, $41,275.

Carter's budget mostly cheered

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's pitch for a $531.5 billion budget in fiscal 1980 is considered near the strike zone by most Texas congressmen, but way out in left field by a few.

Traditionally, Congress splits along party lines at budget time. The Democrats praising their president while the Republicans boo him.

Texas' 21 Democrats on Capitol Hill generally applauded Carter's Monday recommendation to keep the budget deficit below $30 billion while increasing defense spending.

But Texas' five Republicans — headed by Sen. John Tower — claimed the president wasn't even in the ballpark.

The president's budget proposal now begins its tedious journey around Capitol Hill, beginning with the House Appropriations Committee. After stops in the House Budget and Senate Finance committees, it will limp into a conference committee before being sent back to the White House for approval or veto.

Lobbyists, mayors, governors and bureaucrats will parade before the Senate and House committees, trying to get a larger slice of the federal dollar for their respective areas.

Judging from congressional reaction to Carter's self-proclaimed "lean and austere" budget, Uncle Sam is not in a generous mood.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas and a member of the finance committee, complimented the president for living "up to his pledge of reducing the budget deficit to under $30 billion" but quickly added:

"There is a growing realization that we cannot continue to have massive federal budget deficits and I think the public will back us up on that one."

Tower, Texas' recently re-elected senior senator, accused the president of playing games — especially with the proposed Defense Department budget.

The ranking minority member of the Senate Armed Services Committee said Carter's defense proposal allows for a 1.7 percent increase instead of the acclaimed 3 percent.

"I am particularly concerned that the development and modernization of our strategic forces proceed rapidly enough to overcome the expected vulnerability of our land-based ICBMs in the mid 1980's," said Tower. "In addition, the administration has again shortchanged the Navy's shipbuilding program with a request for only 15 new ships, including the smaller mid-sized aircraft carrier rather than the 90,000-ton conventional carrier the president promised after vetoing the nuclear carrier last year."

Rep. James Collins, R-Texas, said the president's message was filled with "misleading statements."

About people

Ted Givens of Cabot Corp. will be the featured speaker at tonight's meeting of the Desk and Derrick Club scheduled for 7 at the Pampa Country Club. Givens, who has held a variety of positions with Cabot, will speak on his work in the United Kingdom as manager of the firm's European operations.

Cynthia Faye Pervola of 521 Somerville is listed among the distinguished students at Purdue University.

Clovia Lopes, 1307 N. Russell, celebrated her 90th birthday on Jan. 20.

Members of the Class of '69 are invited to a meeting tonight to plan their reunion. It will be held at 7:30 p.m. at 2220 Lea St.

Donald Lee Elmore, 3044 James Ave., Fort Worth, has received an Associate of Art degree from Tarrant County Jr. College in Fort Worth. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Derral B. Hogsett of Pampa.

Scott Barrett of Pampa has been named to the Dean's List for the 1978 fall semester at Western Texas College. The Dean's List is made up of students who are enrolled for at least 12 hours of college credit work exclusive of physical education with a grade point average of 3.5 or better on a 4.0 scale.

NEW PROGRAM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Program in Community College Education, University of Texas, Austin, and the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges are conducting a new program focusing on the needs of culturally different students entering post-secondary education.

The program is supported by a grant of $518,682 from the National Institute of Education. The study, it was announced, will define problems and related developmental education, and will recommend ways to resolve them.

FOCUS

State of the Union
Among the items President Carter took with him on his recent Caribbean vacation was a draft of his 1979 State of the Union address. Tonight the president is scheduled to deliver that address to a joint session of Congress. A lot of time and work goes into these annual presidential speeches. For example, about 24 writers worked on President Lyndon Johnson's 1964 address. It took them about six weeks to write the 3,059-word speech, which they revised between 10 and 16 times. President Harry Truman sent the longest State of the Union message to Congress in 1946. It contained more than 25,000 words.

DO YOU KNOW — What document requires the president to present a State of the Union message?

Weather

Texas forecasts
By The Associated Press
Strong gusty winds pumped bitter cold air and whipped blowing snow across the Panhandle early today, reduced visibility to zero and forced the closure of some highways.
A blizzard warning was issued for the Panhandle during the night, where winds gusted in excess of 40 mph. Travelers advisories also were issued for parts of the northern plains.
Winds roared through Guadalupe Pass at more than 70 mph Monday night and were clocked in excess of 60 mph near El Paso, which also reported snow flurries.
The wind that swept across Midland at more than 50 mph stirred a choking dust storm.
Additional snow accumulations of one to two inches were expected in the Panhandle today, with considerable drifting and hazardous driving conditions.

National
By The Associated Press
A new winter storm spread snow from the Rocky Mountains into the upper Midwest today as colder temperatures advanced from eastern Colorado into parts of the Mississippi Valley.
Hardest hit was southwestern Minnesota where 6 to 8 inches of snow blanketed the area, closing more than 50 schools by midafternoon Monday. Eight inches blanketed Canby and Marshall, Minn. and wind gusts of up to 30 mph piled drifts of more than 2 feet on some highways. Four inches of snow coated the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, snarling evening rush hour traffic.

WEATHER FORECAST by the National Weather Service calls for snow from the Mississippi Valley and central Appalachians to the Great Lakes and for areas of the northern Plains. Rain and showers are forecast from South Carolina to Maryland. Milder weather is predicted for the Atlantic Coast but most areas will be cold.

Clements goes to Mexico

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Gov. Bill Clements goes to Mexico this afternoon to talk with President Jose Lopez Portillo about alien farm workers, Mexican oil and gas and the "Tortilla Curtain."
Clements carried with him a special invitation from the Texas Legislature for the Mexican president to speak to a joint session of Senate and House members, at any time he chooses.
"We just want him to know that the legislative branch also is interested in Mexico," Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg, said when the invitation was approved by the Senate.
Clements' schedule called for him to talk with Jorge Diaz

Serrano, head of PEMEX, the Mexican government oil monopoly. Tuesday night, then discuss mutual problems with Lopez Portillo Wednesday morning.
Clements, who will be accompanied by his wife and staff members, will return to Austin Wednesday afternoon.
On Monday, Clements sounded out a group of Mexican-Americans and South Texans.
"The points I have been making the last several months really represent a consensus of this group," Clements said after the private meeting. "I asked for any negative or adverse feelings of a kind in this room, and there were not any."

WE are on the right track. We are communicating with the Mexican-American community."
However, some Mexican-American legislators questioned whether the newly inaugurated Republican governor was hearing authentic spokesmen for their ethnic group.
"These are people who have been with him politically and appear to be Republicans," said Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin.
Clements said the group was unanimous in opposing the federal government's proposed "Tortilla Curtain," a steel fence barrier to illegal aliens between El Paso and Juarez, and other border points.

Late payment penalty okayed

Several local residents have contacted the News office recently, complaining about a five percent late payment penalty tacked on to their electric bills. The complaints are unwarranted, says Joe Gidden, local manager for Southwestern Public Service Co. (SPS).
The late penalty was authorized by the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) and implemented Oct. 18, Gidden said. The penalty was included in the interim rates ordered by the PUC in response to SPS' request for a rate increase.
"It (charging the penalty) is something we have to do," Gidden said.
The penalty applies to commercial accounts and guard lights on residential accounts, he said. The manager denied complaints that SPS doesn't allow customers enough time to pay their bills before they are penalized.
"They have 15 days to pay the bill before the late rate goes into effect," Gidden said.

Tax credit available

Single or married parents earning less than $8,000 in 1978 may receive an income tax break this filing season.
You are eligible for an "Earned Income Credit" (EIC) of up to $400 if you meet certain requirements. First, you must have earned some income during 1978. Earned or adjusted income must not exceed $8,000. And, you must have been responsible for contributing more than 50 percent of the expenses of maintaining a home for yourself and your child under age 19, or a disabled dependent child of any age.
Salaries, wages, tips and other forms of employee compensation classify as earned income. Married persons can apply for EIC only if they file a joint return and each earns under 18,000. The combined incomes may exceed $8,000, however.
Figure EIC due by taking 10 percent of earned income, not to exceed a maximum credit of $400. For every $10 earned over $4,000, subtract $1 from the $400 amount.
In order to receive EIC, you must file a tax return. The amount of EIC will be subtracted from the tax you owe the federal government. If EIC is in excess of your tax liability, the excess will be refunded to you by check.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been married three years. Last year my husband had an accident and injured his back, and ever since then he has been very stingy with his lovemaking. He uses his bad back as an excuse for not making love to me. (I can't remember the last time, but it's been a long, long time.)

When I try to tell him about my feelings and my needs, he says, "You should have my back for just one day!" He's seen several doctors, and they all tell him he should learn to live with it.

I keep telling him if he tried to give of himself a little more, he wouldn't suffer so much, but he won't even try. I love my husband, Abby, but I have feelings, too. What should I do?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Backache or no backache, if there's love in the heart, it somehow manages to break out and spread to other places. In other words, love will always find a way.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married only 10 months, and I am considering leaving him for what I hope you won't think is a silly reason. I just can't take his "teasing" anymore. He is always punching, pinching or squeezing the breath out of me.

I've told him I don't like such rough treatment, but he laughs and says they are only "love pats," and keeps right on hurting me. (If you saw some of the bruises I have from his "love pats" you would think we had been in a terrible fight!) I have begged and pleaded and even cried, but nothing works. Have you any words of advice? It's getting so I hate to see him come home at night.

READY TO PACK UP

DEAR READY: Your husband's "love pats" are conscious—or possibly unconscious—acts of hostility and aggression which have nothing to do with "love."

Insist that he get professional help. If he refuses, pack up and leave. If you hang around for more abuse, you're asking for it.

DEAR ABBY: I was born and raised here in this small town, so I know nearly everyone and they know me. My problem: I get an invitation to every graduation, wedding, baby shower, tea and luncheon in town. Just name the occasion that calls for a gift, and I get my notice.

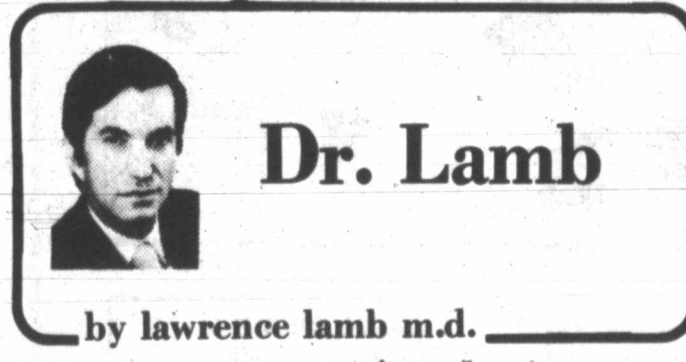

Abby, I am not cheap, and I don't mind sending gifts to my friends. But how about all these acquaintances?

Right now I am swamped with "invitations." I have a good name in town and don't want to ruin it. But I refuse to be a sucker to people I hardly know. What is your advice?

NO MILLIONAIRE

DEAR NO: Every announcement and invitation is not necessarily a big broad hint for a gift. The best rule to follow is: If you would derive real pleasure out of sending a gift, send one. If you don't feel close enough to send a gift, send a card. If you feel like a "sucker," forget it.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (25 cents) envelope to Abby, 152 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to know about the specific gravity of urine and what is the meaning of a fixed specific gravity. I have a relative with this problem and don't understand it.

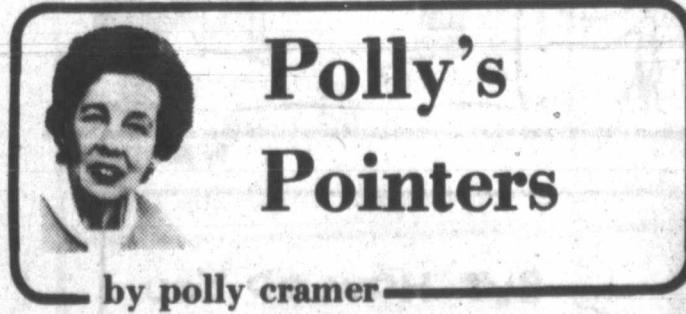

DEAR READER — Specific gravity refers to the weight per unit of volume for any substance in relation to water. Specific gravity is expressed in terms of water. The value for water is 1.000. A fixed specific gravity for urine has a value of 1.010, just a trifle heavier than water. This is the value for the plasma, the fluid portion of your blood.

The kidney filters the plasma and normally it can form concentrated urine to conserve water you need or dilute the urine to eliminate excess water you have. This means the urine may have a specific gravity of less than 1.010 if it is dilute and over 1.010 if it is concentrated.

In the presence of kidney disease, the kidneys may lose the ability to dilute or concentrate the plasma it filters to form urine. The specific gravity then is always the same as plasma, fixed at 1.010. This is an indication of a loss of kidney function and additional studies are usually needed to find out how much kidney function is lost and the cause.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-12, How Your Kidneys Work, to give you more information. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's Pointers

by polly cramer

DEAR POLLY — Can you tell me how to remove water spots and stains from these new glass fiber showers and tubs that are in so many new homes? — IRENE

DEAR IRENE — Never use harsh abrasives, steel wool, etc. on such fixtures. An ordinary household detergent should be all that is needed for daily cleaning. When minor stains appear, household ammonia or a bleach solution should remove them. Soap or hard water deposits can be removed with a dishwasher detergent solution but do wear rubber gloves. Auto wax will restore the luster but wipe it away carefully so tub or shower is not too slick. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My sister gave me a 98-year-old white christening dress for my baby to wear when she is baptized. The dress is in good condition but is yellow-looking so I wish you would tell me how to make it white again. — SUE

DEAR SUE — The fabric in your dress may be weak, so it should be handled with care and anything considered should first be tested on an inconspicuous spot. You might try a bit of cream of tartar in water. Soak and then launder carefully by hand. Color remover will whiten cotton fabrics but I would hesitate before using it on a frail fabric. — POLLY.

Post-mastectomy reconstruction: an innovative surgical technique

By DR. STEVEN HERMAN
New York Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeon

Of all the women in the United States, 7.5% will develop cancer of the breast. Most surgeons recommend treatment of the disease with surgery that involves, at minimum, the removal of the breast. This often has traumatic ramifications.

There is often a common pattern of reaction to the mastectomy. This has become obvious through discussions with my patients before and after breast reconstruction, and with psychiatrists and psychologists.

Following the removal of the breast, there is a period of depression associated with the feeling that the body is no longer complete. The depression is combined with a great anxiety over whether or not the surgery "cured" the cancer.

After a few months, there is less concern with "cure." Dr. Gloria Wolk, a well-known psychologist in Palm Springs, California, states that it is at this stage that women often become angry that they had the mastectomy instead of a lesser procedure.

A sense of rejection may come from a husband or lover.

However, due to the psychological ramifications that this operation ordinarily incurs, the greatest trauma lies in the deterioration of self image. Hopefully, a woman will become aware of the possibilities of breast reconstruction.

The idea of reconstructing the breast began in the 1930's when sporadic attempts were made to bring tissue from other areas of the body or to share tissue from the opposite breast. These operations required multiple hospitalizations and surgical procedures, with generally poor results.

It was not until the 1970's that silicon implants were used for reconstruction. These implants were used since the early 1950's for making small breasts larger, and there has been no evidence that they either caused cancer or activated resting cancer cells. (On the other hand, free silicon fluid injections in the breast were discovered to be dangerous and are illegal.)

The implants which are normally used for breast enlargements were not feasible for use in reconstruction, due to the fact that they took on the appearance of a round ball on the chest. A silicon implant with partitions internally was developed in order to better maintain the sloping shape of the breast.

Most women are candidates for reconstruction. The exceptions are those patients who have had very extensive surgery or very high doses of radiation.

If a woman is to have radiation or chemotherapy, reconstruction should be delayed until the end of treatment. This is because healing of a new wound might be affected.

As long as there is healthy skin on the chest, most women who have had radical mastectomy (breast and chest wall muscle removed) also can be reconstructed safely. Custom implants have recently been used to fill out the hollow made by the missing pectoral muscle.

The first surgical procedure requires a usual stay of two days in the hospital, when a specially designed implant is placed under the skin. Use of the arm is limited for a week and athletic activities are prohibited for three weeks.

The patient returns in four to six weeks for a nipple reconstruction (no overnight stay is necessary) or nipple reconstruction combined with enlarging or reducing the opposite breast for symmetry (which involves a two day stay).

Limitations following surgery are similar to those following the first procedure.

The ultimate risk of the operation is that it will fail the skin will break down in a small area over the implant, and this would occur in the first few days after surgery.

The implant would have to be removed, healing allowed to take place and another attempt could be made in four to six months.

With proper patient selection, this is very unusual. Infections or bleeding can occur (as in all surgery) but they are rare.

One of the more recent developments is immediate breast reconstruction (performed during the same week as the mastectomy). This requires consultation with the plastic surgeon prior to mastectomy, at which time he is present with the breast surgeon.

If considered safe (the tumor has not spread and the wound is healing well), the reconstruction is performed five to seven days later.

After the initial consultation, a woman may waiver between elation that a breast shape can be restored and concern about further surgery.

Immediately following surgery, most women experience an emotional "high." Although it is impossible to duplicate the original breast, most women are elated to be a "whole person" again. After some time, most women level off and adjust, becoming involved in life again.

If the psychological health of the patient is of concern, the importance of reconstruction cannot be overlooked. This knowledge may eventually make it easier for women to come in earlier for diagnosis.

Reconstruction is an acceptable procedure, supported by most breast surgeons of the American Cancer Society, and by most other physicians.

These procedures can only be performed by board certified plastic surgeons. Most importantly, however, a patient would be wise to find out specifically how many reconstructions a surgeon has performed.

She should, at the outset, also get all of the details of the surgery and should ask to be shown pictures which demonstrate the procedures for reconstruction.

A surgeon's fee varies between $1,500 to $3,500, depending upon the extent of surgery and whether the opposite breast is to be changed. Blue Cross/Blue Shield and numerous other insurance companies cover the hospital costs of reconstruction, and at least part of the surgeon's fee.

A list of plastic surgeons can be obtained from the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery, Chicago, Illinois.

If your birthday is in January ...

The Big Apple might better be called the Big Garnet. The Jewelry Industry Council informs us that the layers of rock under Manhattan's busy streets are loaded with small, impure garnets. Believe it or not, a ten-pound garnet was unearthed near Macy's department store in 1885.

But helping to make New York a gem of a city is only one of the garnet's many facets. As January's birthstone, it symbolizes constancy. It is also said to bring good luck, good health and protection to all its wearers, January-born or not.

Ancient soldiers wore the garnet into battle, believing that it would protect them from harm. Some warlike Asiatic tribes made the garnet bad luck for their enemies by converting the gem into deadly bullets.

The garnet even found its way into religious lore. Noah is said to have lighted his ark with the dark brilliance of the red garnet. Cleopatra and her fellow Egyptians wore garnets as talismans, and the Aztecs offered them as tribute to their gods.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

January 24, 1979

Events could take place this coming year that will bring about a fresh outlook toward things and people you've known for a long time. You are entering a happier cycle.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you have matters to discuss and work out with others, today might be a good day to do so. The sincerity and truthfulness which you show rubs off on them. Getting along with others is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your 1979 Astro-Graph Letter. Get yours by mailing $1 for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Because of the kindness of another, a task you have to repeat will go smoothly and quickly and a successful day will be yours after all.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Although people might be difficult in the morning, your philosophical outlook will gain control and you'll have a very pleasant day.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have a knack for smoothing things and winning over those who would otherwise have been against you. You'll have a most productive day.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you and another don't see eye-to-eye about something, be sure to discuss the issue openly but in a kind way. It can be resolved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Work on projects today where you consider your efforts to be labors of love. You'll save money and also enjoy yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be rewarded in more ways than one because of the thoughtfulness and consideration you show to another today. Applause, applause!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Those dear to your heart will be the objects of nice gestures from you today. You want to do things to show them how you feel!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Saying all the right things at the right time comes easy for you today. It's possible you might even be responsible for patching up a problem between friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) At first it might appear you're not appreciated, but as the day goes on those you'd least expect to come forth with admiration and credit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your charming personality and warm disposition is a welcome relief for those beset with troubled hearts. Keep those smiles going all day!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A quiet day, but one you'll relish since you prefer to be alone and do your own thing. Chances are you'll accomplish much more than first expected.

Pampa 'a great place' for Palmer clan

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor

A simple job opening wasn't the only thing that brought Danny Palmer to Pampa. The new Harvester head football coach, approved by the School Board at Monday night's meeting, said there were several factors that made him seek the job.

"My impression was that it seemed to be a great place for my family," he said during a Monday morning interview.

"You have to consider things like that," Palmer said. "That was the only thing I was intending to do when I called Coach (Athletic Director Ed) Lehnick about the job."

"I wanted to know what type of football coach they were looking for."

The former coach of Texas High School in Texarkana (and most recently the head man at Waco Richfield) said the people he talked to in Pampa helped him make up his mind about actively seeking the job.

"They have been very honest and forthright in what they feel is important in being the head football coach here," he commented.

"I like to meet people," he added, "and I think you have a better opportunity to do that in a situation where there is one high school team. I think the loyalty is greater, and I think that's important."

Personal contact will be a trademark of Palmer's coaching days in Pampa.

"I'll visit at every kid's home. You get to know their parents and get to know them personally. Football's important, but to me it's not the ultimate. It's not the last thing on earth. It just happens to be my livelihood."

"I'm looking forward to getting to know my players and I'm looking forward to meeting the teachers and the administrators besides Coach Lehnick that run the school system. And I'm real excited and anxious to meet my players."

Palmer has copies of his general coaching philosophy available for inspection. The one thing that stands out in the brochure is his section on motivation.

It is my belief that motivation is far more important than the type of formula a teacher uses or the type of offense a football team runs," it reads. "I have seen championships won by teams that employ a variety of offenses and teachers who use a variety of formulas in solving a math problem. However, no team wins the championship without special emphasis on motivation and no teacher can be successful unless he can motivate a student to learn."

Elaborating on that theme, Palmer said, "We hear so much about our children not being taught and not learning anything. I think motivation has a lot to do with that."

Fighting Harvester fans can expect a lot of emphasis on defense, Palmer said, while he's waiting to evaluate his material before deciding on his offense.

"My philosophy as far as football goes is this — we're going to play good defense first. Any time you play good defense you're going to have a chance to win. I don't care who you're playing."

"If you're playing a good defensive ballgame — and I'm talking about the total aspect of defense, I'm talking about the kicking game defensively and I'm talking about every phase of defense where you have to stop the opponent — you're going to have a chance to win. And when you play good consistent defense you're going to win some games. Of course, I also believe the best offense is a good defense and vice versa."

Palmer, a native of Tyler, graduated from John Tyler High School in 1967. He was an All-State Baseball Tournament Team member his senior year and was named team captain and Most Conscientious Football Player, as well as the school's Outstanding Athlete.

He attended college at the University of Southern Mississippi, where he was the team captain on the freshman team and started three years at quarterback on the varsity squad.

His coaching credentials include one year as a graduate assistant at Southern Mississippi, a one-year stint as offensive coordinator and first assistant coach at Natchez, Miss., high school, a three-year stint at Hattiesburg High School (including a one-year reign as interim head coach) and his two-year stays at Texas High and Waco Richfield.

His overall coaching record is 62-23-1, while his head coaching mark is 32-18-1. Palmer was associated with a state championship team at Natchez and brought his first team at Waco to a 5-5 record and second-place district finish after being placed 24th (by the Harris System) out of as many teams at the opening of the 1977 season.

Palmer said his offensive philosophy would adjust to suit the material he has at Pampa.

"At Waco Richfield we had an abundance of skill people, but we didn't have a whole lot of developed linemen," he said. "So we ran the wishbone, and it was the first time in my coaching career I adjusted my philosophy to my personnel. Usually I've adjusted my personnel to my philosophy."

"Simplicity, consistency and security are the three things I base my offensive philosophy on," he added. "I'm not going to say what I'm going to run at Pampa until I've evaluated how fast the players are and how strong we are."

"I'm a firm believer in strength. I don't know the ins and outs of weight lifting, but I do know one thing. If you lift weights, one thing's going to happen. You're going to get stronger."

It's terrible towel night at PHS

Borrowing a page from the Pittsburgh Steelers notebook, Pampa High School will have its own version of "terrible towels" at the Pampa-Amarillo High game at Harvester Field House tonight.

Students who bring a green towel to the Green Pit will be admitted for 50 cents, which is 75 cents less than the normal admission price at the door and a quarter less than advance tickets.

The idea, of course, is to let the Sandies know exactly where — and who — they are playing. Amarillo High brings a 1-1 District 3-AAAA mark into the game, while the Harvesters, 2-1 in league warfare, will close the first half of their district season with tonight's game.

The Sandies, who have beaten Caprock and lost to Tascosa, bring a 14-8 overall mark into the contest, slated to begin at 7:45. The Harvesters are 11-12.

Pampa's girls will be at Amarillo High for their second district game after falling to Palo Duro Friday night. The Sandies, who already own a district win over Tascosa, have an 11-8 record for the season, while the Harvester girls are 10-11.

Both teams will take a break from district competition Friday night, when the girls will host Plainview and the boys will travel south to face the Bulldogs in Plainview.

Sports in brief

By The Associated Press

GOLF

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Ben Crenshaw finished the final round with a par 71 for a 199 total for a 1-stroke victory in the weather-shortened, 54-hole Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

Play was rained out both Thursday and Friday and tournament officials trimmed the format from the regulation 72 holes to 54.

The purse also was cut, from $250,000 to $187,500.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

NEW YORK — Notre Dame retained the No. 1 ranking in the Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Fighting Irish, sporting an 11-1 record this season, collected 49 of 58 first-place votes and 1,150 points in balloting by a nationwide panel of sport writers and broadcasters, easily outdistancing runner-up North Carolina.

Indiana State, the only major unbeaten team in the country, moved into third place with the remaining 21 first-place votes and 933 points. The Sycamores, who were unranked in the pre-season poll, are 16-0 this season.

TENNIS

HOUSTON — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova defeated second-seeded Virginia Wade 63, 6-2 and won a $125,000 tennis tournament.

Navratilova and Janet Newberry teamed to win the doubles championship 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 over Betty Stove of The Netherlands and Pam Shriver of Lutherville, Md.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica. — South Africa captured the men's singles and doubles titles in the Coffee Tennis Cup.

Schalk Van Der Merwe won the singles championship.

Junior high cage scores

Jim Barker led a scoring rampage by the Pampa Junior High boys Red team against Plainview Monday afternoon as the Pampa ninth grade boys blitzed the visitors 78-45 at the Middle School.

Barker poured in 27 points to lead the Reds, who got a good effort by all 11 members of the team. Randy Slaybaugh added 18 points and Romero Dowdy 10 to the Pampa onslaught.

The eighth grade team got 14 points from Randy Skaggs and seven from Ferguson, but that wasn't enough to keep them from dropping a 32-26 decision to Plainview.

LEFORS-MIAMI

Miami topped Lefors three times in Monday night games at Miami. The Lefors peewee girls dropped a 46-6 decision despite four points from Sheri Stanley and two from Tammy Gee.

The junior high girls fared little better, dropping a 24-4 game to Miami. Angela Stanley scored all of Lefors points.

Miami took the junior high boys game by a 27-17 count.

Cody Allison hit eight points for Lefors, while Michael Jackson and Billy West had four apiece. Richard Kidwell's one point rounded out Lefors' scoring.

SKELLYTOWN-GROOM

Groom scored a pair of girls basketball wins over Skellytown Monday at Groom. A combined team of fifth and seventh graders downed the Pantherettes 36-6, while the Tigerettes won the sixth and eighth grade game 35-15. No individual scoring details were available.

Bowlers hit it big in Pampa

The alleys of Pampa's Harvester Lanes were the scene of some hot bowling action last week, as three men recorded significant achievements in league action.

Kervin Davis recorded a 265 Tuesday night in the Hoot Owl Mixed League by rolling eight consecutive strikes before taking a split in the ninth frame. He tossed three strikes in the tenth frame and struck up with a 698 series.

On Thursday night, Kurt Lowry missed a perfect game by one pin while bowling in the Mixed League. After rolling 11 straight strikes, his final ball in the tenth frame left the 10 pin standing.

Lowry's game was the highest bowled in Pampa in several years, and he'll receive awards from the American Bowling Congress for his effort. Lowry, who carries a 184 average, wound up with a 825 series.

Clif Westbrook used a 279 game Friday night to help himself to the first 700 series recorded by a Pampa man this year. Bowling with a 156 average, Westbrook's 704 series came in the Harvester Couples League.
