Evacuation starts

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — More than 100 Americans, one in a cowboy hat and others lugging pets and suitcases, slipped out of a hotel before dawn today at the start of a mass operation to evacuate Americans from Iran.

U.S. Embassy officials, operating behind a tight security screen, instructed the evacuees to gather at central points in the city so that quick and safe pickups could be made.

Pan American World Airways landed a Boeing 707 at Tehran's Mehrabad International Airport today and flew out with 167 passengers, including Pan Am employees and their dependents, other Americans and a handful of other foreigners.

The full-scale evacuation will begin Saturday, when at least two Pan Am jumbo jets, with a total of 800 seats, arrive. Evacuations also were scheduled for British, Canadian, New Zealand and Australian citizens Saturday.

An estimated 7,000 Americans remain in Iran — compared with some 45,000 a year ago — and embassy officials say they hope to airlift out all but 2,000.

Tax relief provisions approved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It was a taste of things to come.

The House Ways and Means Committee began work Thursday for future skirmishes about how to fit family farmers, urban households and the elderly into the voter-approved plan for $1 billion in tax cuts.

Committee members tentatively agreed on key provisions of legislation implementing the Tax Relief Amendment.

Highlights receiving informal approval include:

- Equal treatment of corporate and family farms in taxing agricultural land on its productivity, rather than its higher market value.
- Exemption of two personal cars per family from property taxes.
- A $10,000 homestead exemption only to those elderly and disabled persons with annual incomes of $7,500 or less.

After a weekend break, the panel will start work Monday on an draft of the legislation.

Rep. Stan Schlueter,

D-Salado, warned his colleagues that rural House members would amend the bill to deny any tax breaks to corporate farms.

"What if bolts down to, is do you want to help the family farmers or agriculture?" said Rep. Bennie Bock, D-New Braunfels.

"I don't care if you're a corporation and you own 20 acres or you're an individual and you own 20 acres," Bock said. "If you're doing the same thing with it, it makes no difference."

The committee told its staff not to distinguish between corporation farms and individually-owned tracts in a bill draft.

Members went along with Davis' proposal that only two cars or trucks per family be exempt from local property taxes.

Rep. Gerald Hill, D-Austin, suggesting exempting all personal cars since many tax assessor-collectors have said it would be almost impossible for them to track down a third car in a family.

Farmers talk of high food prices Excess marketing blamed

EDITORS NOTE: THIS IS THE LAST SEGMENT OF A THREE-PART SERIES. By JOHN PRICE Pampa News Staff

Why are three Pampa farmers participating in the American Agriculture Movement (AAM) protest in Washington D.C.?

"I've got a copy of an old Lubbock Avalanche-Journal that was printed in 1948," said Fred Vanderburg, who farms east of the city. "We were getting a little bit more for wheat in 1948 than we are today. I think that's a good explanation of what's wrong."

AAM protesters want farm prices raised to 90 percent parity, a level that would give farmers 90 percent of the purchasing power they had from 1910 to 1914. The Carter Administration is opposed to higher parity, contending it will increase food prices and reduce exports.

The farmers disagree. "The only means we've got with which to balance our foreign trade is with our agricultural production," said Fred Vanderburg Jr. "But we've got people in this country who say 'Keep our food cheap.'"

"In 1973, '74, '75, when raw agricultural products had reached the highest price in history, we also found that we exported more than we ever had in our history. So I don't think you can correlate the price of agricultural products with the amount you're going to sell."

"My big concern about the American people is their fear of what it's going to do to them if the farmer receives 90 percent parity. Back in 1973, during the Russian wheat deal, wheat got up in excess of $7 a bushel. That's when bread prices went up."

"Well, wheat's back down and has been to levels below $2.50 a bushel, and you didn't see the bread go down."

The men say inflated retail food prices are caused by unnecessary marketing techniques, not the cost of farm products.

"We have substituted market power for pricing competition," said Henry Harnly, who farms east of town. "The way they sell a product now is not that I've got a better price than my competitor, but that I can advertise and promote it better."

"And when you add advertising and promotion to a product, you're not adding anything to increase its value, but in effect you're increasing the cost of it. So the consumer is paying for all these things and he's being exploited, really."

"If we had pure free enterprise competition going in this country instead of monopolistic pricing, I think you'd see a big difference in the food bill of consumers."

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland has said that farmers are 40 percent better off than last year, and administration figures show that farm income reached a record high in 1978. But the farmers say the figures are misleading.

"Most of that increase went to livestock producers," Vanderburg Jr. said. "Cash receipts for the three key crops — wheat, feed grains and cotton — are down from last year, which was the worst year in history."

Parity on wheat and corn now stands at about 54 percent, Hanly said. The farmers said the government is being pressured to keep farm prices low not by consumers, but by large industries that are profiting from the present situation. Two examples cited were multinational grain companies and financial institutions.

"The biggest business in this whole country right now is debt," said Vanderburg Jr. "There's people that make money from it. Agriculture has a big debt load right now, and they don't want to see us get back into a profit structure."

The Pampa farmers feel betrayed and somewhat bewildered by the administration's refusal to increase parity. A pledge to promote 90 percent parity is "in the Democratic platform, which he (Carter) took an oath to uphold," said Harnly.

"Bergland even introduced legislation when he was serving as a congressman to get 90 percent parity," said Vanderburg Jr. "He attacked Secretary (Earl) Butz in a letter for not doing it."

"It's a very curious about-face," said Harnly, "because we had a line-up there that made it look like farmers were going to have the best administration in history."

"We had a peanut farmer as president, we had Walter Mondale, one of the best friends we ever had when he was in the Senate, we had Bob Bergland, an advocate of 90 percent parity all through his congressional years — and what do they do? They turned exactly opposite."

"Now what caused it?" The men warn that unless farm income increases enough to keep farmers from going out of business at the present rate, total corporate agriculture will soon be an unpleasant reality.

"Farming is the last stronghold of competitive industry in the country," Harnly said. "When we get the market power centralized in the agricultural corporations, then you the consumer are going to be at their mercy, just like you are with OPEC."

"They can set the price they want and people will have to pay it when the family farmer's gone," Vanderburg said.

"Whenever we run out of farmers," said Vanderburg Jr., "then people are going to know what it's like to run out of food."

Good afternoon

News in brief

COLDER

Pampans paused for a breath of balmy spring air on Wednesday, with temperatures reaching toward the 70s. But though the pause was refreshing it was all too brief. Valentine's weather was only a preview of a coming attraction called spring which is still a long way off.

It seemed downright rude that after Wednesday's nice weather we were hit Thursday by gusty winds which were northerly at 20 to 30 miles per hour and afternoon temperatures dipping to the mid-teens.

Meanwhile the weather forecast for Pampa calls for mostly cloudy and continued cold conditions today, with the chance of snow flurries through Saturday. Snow accumulations of near one inch are possible by tonight. The high today should be near 30, while the low tonight is expected to drop to the mid-teens. Northerly winds of about 15-20 mph are predicted to become easterly this afternoon and decrease to 5-10 mph tonight. The high Saturday should be in the mid-30s.

Only 1 resident showed up

A second public hearing concerning the Pampa's pre-application for a community development block grant was conducted by the city commission this morning.

Only one person, Robert Bridgeman, appeared at the hearing. Bridgeman, who attended the first hearing on the grant Tuesday, again urged the commission to aggressively seek the federal funds.

The commission will hold a special session Thursday or Friday to review and consider final approval of the pre-application. It must be submitted to the Department of Housing and Urban Development by Feb. 26.

Second term sought

Charles "Buddy" Cauthorn, city commissioner for Ward 3, has filed his candidacy for the April 7 city election. Cauthorn is seeking a second two-year term as commissioner.

Pampans is 'satisfactory'

A Pampa man is in satisfactory condition at an Amarillo hospital after part of his left leg was removed Thursday.

James D. Boland, 61, was injured Jan. 17 when the leg was caught in a machine at the Cabot Carbon Black Plant. It was amputated eight inches below the knee at St. Anthony's Hospital because of circulatory problems, according to Mike Dixon, safety manager at the plant.

"They couldn't get it to mend right," Dixon said. Boland has been a Cabot employee for 28 years.

9 deaths linked to chemical

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — Federal health authorities and officials at Union Carbide's Texas City plant have confirmed an unusually high number of workers at the plant died of brain tumors linked to the cancer-causing agent vinyl chloride, the Houston Post says in a copyright story.

The Post said it has learned that nine employees of the Texas City plant died between 1962 and 1978 of a brain tumor known as glioblastoma multiforme. Scientists associate vinyl chloride with the tumor.

Plant Manager Damon Engle said Thursday the company doesn't think there is a crisis that poses immediate exposure hazards to employees.

Carters served

President Carter and his wife appear to be enjoying their stay in Mexico even though that country's president has struck several notes of discord with the United States. See related story on page 4. Above, the president and his wife get served from all sides as they have lunch in the town square of Ixtitico El Grande Thursday. The Carters went to the town and surrounding farms as part of their State visit to Mexico. Carter appears to be part of a duet in the other picture. However, he is actually shown speaking in Ixtitico El Grande.

Price hike isn't sweet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of a 5-pound bag of sugar, forced up almost 17 cents in 13 months by government action, could rise 5.5 cents more by early next year under legislation before the House.

By raising both domestic and imported raw sugar prices, the bill would hike the retail cost of soft drinks, canned goods and bakery products as well.

But the two House committee chairmen who introduced the legislation Thursday say many sugarbeet and cane farmers and processors, unable to make ends meet, will go out of business unless they find some relief.

The bill was sponsored by Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, and Rep. Al

Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. Ullman's panel shares jurisdiction over the sugar program with the Agriculture Committee because domestic crop prices are set by the duties imposed on foreign shipments, which account for about 45 percent of U.S. consumption.

The Carter administration will soon offer legislation that top-level sources, who asked for anonymity, say is "very close" to the Foley-Ullman bill. By increasing import duties a quarter-cent per pound, the legislation would let American farmers raise their prices a like amount for the 1978 crop.

Wholesale sugar, whether foreign or domestic, would then cost 15.25 cents per pound

Watersheds considered

By DAN LACKEY Pampa News Staff

The Red Deer Creek watershed proposal, which has been on the planning board for 15 years in Gray, Hemphill, and Roberts counties, dominated discussion in the first part of today's session of the Gray County Commissioners Court.

Judges and commissioners from Hemphill and Roberts counties were present to sound out Gray County officials on the possible difficulties for securing easements for six proposed Gray County watershed sites.

The project is under the direction of the United States Department of Soil and Water Conservation. But counties are responsible for securing easements, or right of ways, for the building of the watersheds.

Lew McDonald of the U.S. Soil and Water Conservation Service office here said the department was reluctant to build watershed sites until most easements were secured.

The discussion led to the appointment of a commissioner from each county to study the future of the watershed project and the problem, if any, of securing right of way for construction. Ronnie Rice of Precinct 2 in Pampa, will represent Gray County on the committee.

Don Powell, of Hemphill County, said representatives from the surrounding counties had come "see what the situation is in Gray County and whether there was going to be difficulty in obtaining easements."

Doug Jackson, a Gray County resident who has been involved as a landowner with the proposed project since it began, said that $50,000 had been spent by the federal government to see if the situation along Red Deer Creek justified the watersheds. Jackson said it was "his opinion that the watersheds were necessary for erosion and flood control."

Jackson said some concern had been expressed about whether granting of the easements entitled the Soil and Water Conservation Service to designate watershed areas as public recreation sites. Powell said that the sites probably wouldn't make good lakes. "If you're looking for recreation this project won't do it."

OPINION PAGE

Education shell game

Officials in the Carter administration say they're making a good faith effort to run the federal government more efficiently. We think this is so, and we're happy to praise them for it. But it's going to be hard to believe they really care much about making government work if they keep up their current campaign for a Department of Education.

As we and many of our fellow journalists have said by now, the proposal to create a Department of Education is one of the most inane policy ideas to come down the pike in a long time. It would take the education part out of the present HEW, add some of the educational enterprises now run by other government departments from Defense to Interior, and put them together in a new organization with a $14 billion budget and some 16,000 employees.

The National Education Association, the country's biggest teachers' union and the chief supporter of the new department, says the consolidation would give a "clear expression, from the national viewpoint, about what we should do for education in this country." Perhaps it would; if so, it's hard to imagine a less cheering prospect than a unified national education policy set by the NEA. The thought seems to be upsetting lots of other people as well. Most of the bureaucracies and constituencies that the NEA wants to fold into the new department have been energetically lobbying to keep themselves out. And, needless to say, it would cost a bundle to carry out the changes necessary to neaten up the organization charts.

The NEA has members everywhere in the country. During the 1976 election campaign candidate Jimmy Carter promised he would support their new department. The NEA responded by endorsing Mr. Carter for the presidency. President Carter introduced a bill to create the department and now, with the re-election fight coming, has reintroduced it into this Congress. Moreover, his effort hasn't been pro forma: We hear that high administration officials have been, to put it delicately, calling in the markers. They've been meeting with educational groups that have expressed reservations about the bill, reminding them of Mr. Carter's generosity to educators, and trying to persuade them to keep quiet.

The bill as it now stands would include in the new department mainly the organizations now in HEW and overseas schools run by the Department of Defense. But once a new department is created, a President could reorganize other agencies into it without congressional approval. If the new department stays small, it will be mostly a colossal waste of money. If it grows, it will not only waste even more money but begin to present the more serious dangers inherent in educational centralization. We hope more people will begin to speak out and say so.

You can't call Connally boring

By ALDO BECKMAN
Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON — John Connally will be called lots of things as he tries to win the Republican nomination for president. But nobody will ever call him boring.

Now that the 61-year-old former Texas governor has officially proclaimed what everyone has known for months — that he is running for president — the fun in the presidential campaign is beginning.

Connally entertained reporters over bacon and eggs a few hours after his formal presidential declaration. And there is no better word than "entertainment" to describe Connally as he extolls his political views.

What about your switch from the Democrat to the Republican parties? "So did Ronald Reagan," Connally said. "And nobody seems to talk about that. He not only was a Democrat. He was a liberal Democrat."

Connally, obviously comfortable with his bigger-than-life, wheeler-dealer Texan image, thinks the size of the White House staff should grow, not diminish, as was the fashion under Gerald Ford and continues to be an interest of President Carter.

"There's lots to running this government and it takes people to do it," said Connally. He even had kind words for the federal bureaucracy, always a favorite target for politicians. "I have nothing but respect for the way the bureaucracy responds in a crisis," he said.

"If you show them you trust them to carry out your policy, they will carry out your policy."

"If you don't trust them, they won't trust you."

Connally, who was a close ally of Lyndon Johnson's and was Richard Nixon's choice to be his successor, has spent lots of time studying White House operations from close up.

And, he says, presidents make a mistake when they bring in their campaign staffs to run the White House. "Getting elected in a political campaign and running a government require totally different skills," he said.

"No," he said, responding to the obvious follow-up. "My campaign staff will not be able to count on White House jobs if I am elected."

Having been a Nixon adviser and later indicted on charges of taking bribes from milk producers, Connally's integrity — fairly or unfairly — will inevitably remain a cloud over his candidacy.

His pat answer is that a jury in Washington found him innocent. "I'm confident that people have faith in our system of justice," he replies to the endless questions about how he thinks the indictment will affect his campaign. But, Connally, being Connally, does not permit that problem to intimidate him. No, he says, he has no intention of resigning from his Houston law firm or from corporate boards on which he serves. "Why don't the other candidates who are in Congress or in the Senate resign?" he asks. "They're campaigning while being paid by public funds. I don't know why I should sever my private relations." What about financial disclosure? Perhaps some kind of disclosure similar to that now required of members of Congress might be appropriate for the two nominees in 1980, said Connally. But, he made it clear, he has no intention of leading any parade to disclose how wealthy he really is. Long an advocate of a single, six-year presidential term, Connally, the life-time politician, says the current system forces a president to gear his policies to political considerations, rather than what is good for the country. And, he argues, why is it so much worse to have a six-year "lame duck" president than the current four-year "lame duck" status for any president elected to a second term. Connally has his own ideas about vice presidential running mates, insisting a candidate shouldn't have "exclusive" rights to pick his vice president. He said if he still is a candidate by the summer of 1980, "If I don't do well in the primaries, I'd withdraw since there won't be much hope for the nomination," he says; he will pick three Republicans whom he would find "completely satisfactory" as a running mate. Then, if nominated, he said, convention delegates would choose from his trio. Connally's charisma — his presence on television, or in person — has to be his major asset.

Caesar and Herbert W. Armstrong

By ROBERT LEFEVRE
Herbert W. Armstrong is the titular head of the "Worldwide Church of God" based in Pasadena, Armstrong and his chief advisor, Stanley Rader, have been accused by the federal government of a misuse of funds. It is alleged that some of the contributions given to the church for religious purposes have found their way into the pockets of Mr. Armstrong and, conceivably, of his assistant, Mr. Rader, and possibly still others, who at the moment are unnamed.

In consequence of these and kindred allegations, the Los Angeles Superior Court and its judge, Julius M. Title, have placed the church in receivership and ordered Judge Steven Weisman to take control and act as custodian of church properties and monies.

The Worldwide Church of God has for many years enjoyed tax exemption as a religious institution. It is the contention of the government that because of this tax-exempted status the government can intervene in church business affairs and that such intervention falls short of the traditional concept of a separation of church and state.

Two things appear to me to be probable. First, it is quite likely that certain members of the Worldwide Church of God have initiated this action, although public accounts are skimpy at this end of the line. Young Armstrong, the son of his disciple father, may have himself triggered the entire imbroglio in the battle he has waged for some time to gain control of the organization. Doubtless, the scion of the founder has a following and it is likely that on cue they have claimed misuse of funds. It is also conceivable that some who are not attached to the junior faction have claimed malfeasance or misfeasance. It is a common human trait to have second thoughts after we have committed ourselves or our resources.

The numbers of times a person will do something, say something or spend something and then regret it later are legion. But in these benighted times it is popular to shift the blame. Courts have currently held that a man who imbibes too much is not at fault so much as the owner of the bar, whose hiring sold him the booze. Similarly, courts have ruled that if a man buys a gadget and later regrets that fact, it is the fault of the store owner whose salesman convinced him to purchase it.

The second probability, as I see it, stems from the tragedy at Jonestown, Guyana. Since it is now certain that some rather unhealthy maggots were inhabiting the mind of James Jones, the founder of the suicidal cult, the unrelenting thrust of the federal government in the Worldwide Church of God case, seems to me evidence of a tardy guilt on the part of certain federal officials. Could it be that Armstrong has a secret death wish? The feds don't propose to wait to find out. They have acted and propose to continue to act so as to avoid the possibility of that kind of future criticism.

The purpose of a federal receivership is, and should be if it exists at all, the holding of assets in such a way that none is lost. As reported in the press, the actions of the court have gone far beyond prudent and accountable procedures.

Like any business, the church is a living organism. To survive it depends upon a cash flow as well as the retention of assets and the return of investments wisely made. When the press reported that the court had ordered the followers of Herbert Armstrong to refrain from making further contributions to the organization, it effectively overstepped the bounds and stands now as the persecutor of the church.

making that report, it now appears certain that the purpose of the court is not to act as receiver, but rather to act as Caesar.

In confess I have only small sympathy for the theological doctrine offered by the self-styled "only" disciple of God, Mr. Armstrong. And I am revolted and disgusted by the Jones doctrine. But that is hardly the point. There are persons who follow Mr. Armstrong with all their hearts and minds. They love him and believe in him. And as of this moment, nothing has been proved against him.

Indeed, it is entirely conceivable that after years of litigation, the government might find that Armstrong and his followers are entirely innocent of wrongdoing. What then? They can say "Pardon us" and hand back the church. But at that moment, thanks to the actions taken, the church and its properties will have been destroyed. There will be nothing to hand back.

How does the federal government presume to tell private citizens where they can and cannot spend their money? It is bad enough when the feds tell us we cannot buy certain goods because they are dangerous or destructive. But is the government now prepared to order a crackdown on giving of any kind? Or is the government going to attempt to determine which theologian is to be supported and which forbidden?

At the same time these transgressions are occurring at federal hands there is another, and apparently unrelated, story in the news.

The Tennessee Valley Authority has been ordered to refrain from completing the Tellico Dam, already 95 percent finished. Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, takes note that it would require $7.22 million to complete and annually operate the huge obstruction. However, benefits to be derived from the dam annually come to only $6.5 million. Apparently the $113 million already spent on the dam was thrown away. That sum was public far more than the private donations of the members of Armstrong's church. If the court can order a receiver for the church, it seems logical that the Tennessee Valley Authority should be placed in receivership until the taxpayers find out who got the funds thus improperly tossed out the window.

There is an old adage that when one enters a court of equity he must come with clean hands. The government's hands are dirty. Indeed, one after another government agency has been found corrupt, irresponsible and wasteful. Billions have been lost and the loss is not open to question. Now it may be that Armstrong and those nearest him have pocketed some of the funds entrusted to them. That's possible. But government crookedness is for sure.

Perhaps the whole procedure should be reversed. Perhaps the government should be put into receivership and let those who voluntarily give their money for this or that cause look to their own wisdom and conscience.

IN WASHINGTON

Displaced homemakers

by martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — You must be a person of a certain age, as the euphemism goes, to properly appreciate the sting in the title of the film documentary "Who Remembers Mama?"

But that is only fitting, for it is a film about a woman of a certain age — say, 35 to 64 — who signed up for a life career as wives and mothers only to discover their "show" had been canceled as totally and permanently as the original "I Remember Mama."

These women are the casualties of a social revolution, the walking wounded of the war between the sexes. Victims of the domestic Four D's — divorce, desertion, death or disability — they have come to be labeled "displaced homemakers."

Nobody knows how many there are, although estimates range from 3 to 12 million. It is clear, in any event, that their ranks are growing both because of soaring divorce rates and because of the increased life expectancy of women over men.

Too young for Social Security, lacking skills or experience for the job market, ineligible for unemployment compensation, such women comprise an entire new social class — the "nouveau poor."

One of the most vivid moments of "Who Remembers Mama?" comes when a 48-year-old divorcee ruefully opens her pocketbook and says, "I have in here by New Mexico food-stamp book and my Junior League sustaining membership card."

The national women's division of the American Jewish Congress showed the film at a Capitol Hill conference it sponsored last week on the plight of displaced homemakers.

Like other women's groups, the organization has become deeply involved in the development of both private and government programs to aid displaced homemakers.

Men, who created the problem to begin with, have been far slower to recognize it — although Congress last year did finally amend the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) to include displaced homemakers among target groups eligible for job assistance.

That effort, however, amounts to little more than tokenism. President Carter's "austerity" budget for fiscal 1980 includes a grand total of $5 million in CETA funds for displaced homemakers — enough to help about 2,000 of the 3 to 12 million women who need assistance.

Women's groups want more — more job training and placement money, changes in Social Security to allow separate coverage for housewives, changes in state divorce laws to give financial weight to the homemaker's contribution.

They are making headway with some of these proposals, but it is a difficult, slow grind. And over the long haul, something more is needed.

The displaced homemakers of today are in dire straits for the simple reason that society changed the rules on them in the middle of the game. When they set out to be good wives and mothers, they expected the role to last a lifetime. Instead, homemaking has turned into one of America's riskiest professions.

There is no need for future generations of women to endure similar pain. Parents, teachers and guidance counselors have a responsibility to prepare girls — as well as boys — to earn a decent living, to be capable of independence.

Back at the turn of the century, women had an average work-life expectancy of only six years vs. 32 years for men. But a girl born in 1970 can expect to work almost 23 years, compared with 40 for men. And many will work even longer.

Homemaking is an honorable profession and undoubtedly deserves greater recognition as such. But with the vastly increased life expectancy of women, and with nearly one out of every two marriages ending in divorce, no women can realistically expect to spend a lifetime at it.

Taxpayer bad news

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Economic rescue operations in the so-called graybelt, the decaying industrial cities of the Northeast, may be transformed into new types of socialist economic organization — at the expense of the taxpayers.

This is the situation in Youngstown, Ohio, an old steel-manufacturing city that suffered a grievous blow in 1977 when Youngstown Sheet and Tube Inc. closed its Campbell Works mill. The community lost 4,200 jobs and a major portion of its tax base when the aging, inefficient facility was closed.

Within a short time, a coalition of church groups, New Leftists and steelworker activists was formed, under the name of the Mahoning Ecumenical Coalition, to organize a community and worker-owned corporation to purchase and operate the mill.

At first glance, the coalition appeared as an example of local initiative and self-reliance. Individuals and groups made contributions to Save Our Valley accounts. Unfortunately, it soon became apparent that the Coalition leaders had something else in mind.

Radical economist Gar Alperovitz of the National Center For Economic Alternatives became involved. The Center managed to get $300,000 from the federal government — the nation's taxpayers, that is — to fund a feasibility study. Shortly thereafter, Alperovitz called on the federal government to help the public corporation to the tune of $15 million for an Urban Action grant and $300 million in federal loan guarantees. The self-help plan disappeared from the scene. In its place was a design for a new worker-owned plant funded by the taxpayers — a socialist economic concept.

It's obvious that the radical community is shifting its aims from the direct nationalization of industries to the creation of a variety of worker-run enterprises financed through federal grants and loans. These small unit enterprises would be outside the traditional American free enterprise system.

No reason exists why this type of enterprise would be financed. It would be created out of the hide, so to speak, of private enterprise. Investor-owned companies would be taxes to establish a counter economic system in the United States.

The Youngstown proposal also involved an attempt to freeze — at taxpayer expense — a certain type of industry in an area that hasn't been a successful operating area for private enterprise. One reason operations have been unsuccessful is the domination of unions. Other, more progressive areas, which are free of union control, shouldn't be penalized by having to generate tax revenues to support socialist-type manufacturing facilities in pockets of decay.

Anyway you look at it, the Youngstown plan is bad news for America's taxpayers.

Gas rate hike approved

An ordinance establishing higher natural gas rates for Pampans was adopted at a special session of the City Commission this week.

The new rates, negotiated between the city and Pioneer Natural Gas Co., are part of an overall $11.5 million increase being implemented by Pioneer throughout its West Texas distribution system. Pampa's rates are about four percent lower than those in other cities in the system.

Ordinances lessening Pioneer's obligation to extend main lines to new customers, and setting higher fees for setting, turning on and reconnecting meters within the city, were also adopted by the commission.

College enrollment up

Clarendon College and its four branches have increased enrollment this spring semester over 34 percent compared with the fall.

There are 728 students, an all-time high for the school. The college had 536 students enrolled last spring.

Clarendon College-Pampa Center had 351 students in some 33 academic courses and a number of community service programs. Last year, the Pampa school, then located at Pampa High School, had 171 students.

The school at Clarendon has 377 students. Enrollment for other towns, where Clarendon offers courses this spring, are: Shamrock—21; Childress—30; and Memphis—24.

Additional schools and curriculum have caused a steady growth in the Clarendon College program, according to a report from the school.

"The opening of Clarendon College-Pampa Center is going to be a tremendous asset to Clarendon College," said Dean of Instruction Dr. Bob E. Riley. "However, enrollments are up in many other areas of the college."

He added that individual attention and concern of the students has payed off in the number of transfers from larger institutions.

Commissioner hospitalized

City Commissioner Coyle Ford, who recently recovered from a lengthy illness, has been hospitalized again in Amarillo.

A gall bladder infection was discovered by doctors examining Ford and the organ was removed at St. Anthony's Hospital. Ford is expected to return to Pampa early next week.

Lefors schedules elections

The Lefors School Board scheduled elections for April 7 to fill three trustee positions at a meeting last night.

The two three-year tenure positions, held by Earl Tarbet and N.A. Cates, are open, as is the spot of Carrel Roberson, who resigned as board secretary. He left two years of his term to be filled.

Fred Cody was appointed election judge and Mary Ray and Ruby Stanton were named election clerks. The board selected Virginia Archer as absentee clerk.

Elections will be held in the Lefors High School, and absentee voting, which begins March 19 and ends April 3, will be done at the school's business office.

The last day to file for a trustee position is March 7.

The board also chose an Equalization Board, comprising Bill Hesse, Ben White and Dale Garrett. These men will equalize property of the Lefors area and meet with citizens to discuss city taxes.

High School Principal Allen Jenkins and Elementary Principal Jesse Baker were given two-year contracts by the board.

Charley Sullivan, who is already part of the Lefors public school system, was named head football coach for next year's six-man team.

The board also approved the 1979-80 school year calendar, which coincides with the schedule of the Pampa schools.

THE KEYWANETTES of Pampa High School will be presenting a dance Saturday at M.K. Brown Auditorium with Wade Carter of radio station KOMA of Oklahoma City emceeing a disco and light show. There will be a dance contest and albums will be given away. Melinda Collinsworth (left) and Kelly O'Neal said that monies raised will go toward projects the club performs in the community. ## Balanced budget wanted

WASHINGTON (AP) — After studying the problem of federal deficit spending, the Democratic Research Organization has prescribed a little "preventive medicine" by suggesting Uncle Sam balance his budget.

The DRO unveiled its "humanitarian" version of a balanced federal budget resolution Thursday, noting Congress must act before the states force a constitutional convention on the question.

Rep. Richard White, D-Texas, the DRO chairman, said the House resolution he introduced for the group has 44 cosponsors.

Nine similar resolutions have already been introduced in the House but the DRO version "is the humanitarian approach... that will allow us to control inflation — the spectre haunting the American public," said Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga.

Freshman Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, and a former Texas A&M University economics professor, said a Constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget would "close a loophole created by history in our system. Each household, each businessman know they are restrained by what they can spend government deficit spending runs hardest on the poor. It's time to take preventive medicine."

The DRO resolution calls for a balanced federal budget except in time of war or if two-thirds of the House and Senate vote to depart "from budgetary balance."

White also noted that recent polls have shown the American people in favor of a balanced federal budget and "the House will follow the mandate of the general public on this issue."

White added that the judiciary committee, which will first consider the resolution, "is cognizant of the number of states calling for a constitutional convention."

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., added that unless Congress acts, "the 50 states will force a constitutional convention to consider the question and we don't want that."

Rep. Beverly B. Byron, D-Md., noted that 28 state legislatures have "gone on record favoring a balanced federal budget so a lot of groundwork has already been taken care of."

Before a constitutional convention can be held, 34 states must request it. The last constitutional convention was in 1787 when the Constitution itself was drafted. Thirty-eight states must ratify a proposed amendment before it becomes part of the Constitution.

Gramm also noted that 145 congressmen have petitioned the House Judiciary Committee to hold hearings on the subject.

Indictments sought

The district attorney's office will seek six indictments from charges of armed robbery to delivering marijuana when the 223rd District Grand Jury convenes Monday morning in the Gray County Courthouse.

Indictments sought include burglary charges against Charles Lee Ballew, Dale Glenn Collins, and Sue Finsterwald, all of Pampa, in connection with the Jan. 23 theft of a shotgun and assorted rifles from a Rosewood Street residence. A second woman allegedly involved in the theft will be tried in juvenile court.

Arrest warrants have been issued for two other persons reportedly involved in a burglary of the same residence earlier in the evening but they have not yet been apprehended, according to Pampa Police Det. R. B. Nichols.

An indictment is also sought against Donald Ray Mason, 23, of Memphis on charges of armed robbery in connection with a Jan. 28 hold up at a Pampa convenience store.

The case against a Pampa man charged in the Feb. 7 rape of a local convenience store attendant will not be ready Monday, according to District Attorney Harold Comer.

The last day for pre-registration is Feb. 28 and classes will begin March 1.

Hudson will consider holding an evening class if at least six people register. The class would be held at 7 p.m. Thursdays.

Hudson suggests that something small such as an end table or a jewelry box be selected for the first project. The piece should be made of wood and should not be covered with paint although it could have a varnish finishing.

Those who wish to attend the workshop should start saving plenty of newspaper which will be used in abundance during each class.

Refinishing course planned

Local antique collector and dealer Marcella Hudson will be holding a furniture refinishing workshop every Thursday throughout March at the Gray County Court House Annex meeting room from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The first shot of the Texas Revolution, October 2, 1835, near Gonzales, Texas, eventually resulted in the acquisition of more territory to the United States than was included in the original 13 English colonies.

Texas Highways Magazine

"Many people may have had something old they have wanted to refinish for a long time and this provides a good opportunity for them to do it," said Elaine Houston, Gray County Extension Agent.

Hudson has been refinishing antiques over 12 years and has taught several sessions at the extension department in 1976. She said that rather than being a "parasite," it is her duty to the city and county to hold the workshop.

The workshop is sponsored by the Gray County Family of Living Committee. For more information, contact the extension office at 669-7429.

'Hit' alleged in killing

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Investigators here say the shooting of a prospective witness in an upcoming kidnaping trial appears to be the result of a well-planned "hit" — complete with a specially-equipped car allegedly manned by an ex-convict.

John Hensley was getting into his car near his island apartment Thursday morning when a single high-powered gunshot tore into his skull. The 40-year-old marine mechanic was reportedly blinded. He was listed in stable condition at Brownsville's Valley Community Hospital late Thursday.

The victim is married to the former wife of Pasadena, Texas physician Dr. A.H. Burkhalter. Burkhalter was indicted in Brownsville in November for allegedly kidnaping his ex-wife here in October.

Company challenged

DALLAS (AP) — A small group of Rockwell International stockholders challenged the mammoth corporation to examine its policies and change its operations at a nuclear weapons plant in Colorado — and lost.

The mild confrontation came in a meeting here Thursday of Rockwell International's stockholders that saw a major change in command of the $6 billion corporation.

The vocal group of anti-nuclear stockholders, including former Defense Department consultant Daniel Ellsberg, sponsored a proposal to force Rockwell to fully disclose the nature of the company's nuclear arms works at the Rocky Flats Nuclear Weapons facility near Denver, Colo.

More than 96 percent of the stockholders voted against the proposal.

Disruptions feared during evacuation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Iran's new government has promised its cooperation in the planned U.S. evacuation of up to 5,000 Americans, but officials say they are worried that Iranian leftists may try to disrupt the operation.

"There are a lot of loose guns around," said a State Department official who asked not to be identified.

Plans are for at least two civilian airliners chartered from Pan American World Airways to evacuate some 800 Americans Saturday from Tehran's Mehrabad Airport which has been closed by strikes.

Meanwhile, Pan American officials said they were sending one of their Boeing 707 jetliners to Tehran today to evacuate most of the airline's 90 personnel in Iran, plus any other Americans who could get aboard the 183-seat plane.

In Tehran, the U.S. Embassy's announcement of the evacuation was terse: "We cannot protect American lives in Iran. You are allowed one suitcase per person. Evacuation planes will begin flying 17 February."

Mehdi Bazargan, prime minister of the Khomeini government, has ordered safe passage for evacuees to the Tehran airport and said the government will provide enough guards for the movement of 1,000 persons a day.

The U.S. goal is to reduce the number of Americans in Iran from the estimated 7,000 still there to 2,000. That would compare with 45,000 Americans in Iran before the turmoil began.

A State Department spokeswoman said the 2,000 who would remain behind include skeleton staffs for the U.S. embassy and various private American companies, Americans married to Iranians, journalists, and "a few who like to see adventure."

Police report

Officers were dispatched to 701 S. Cuyler St. Thursday morning where Debi Rogers reported that someone had broken out a window. Nothing was found missing.

Debra Smothermon, 516 1/2 Barnes St., reported on behalf of a juvenile that an identifiable male had struck the youth with a fist and feet while the youth was on the floor. Charges are expected to be filed.

Four males reportedly left Allsup's store at 420 E. Foster St. without paying for $5.71 worth of gas. One of the men was reportedly known as "Tony."

Police answered 25 calls in the 24 hour period ending at seven this morning.

Three arrested

A Pampa man and two local juveniles were arrested Thursday night in an investigation of theft over $20 and under $200 from the Alco store in Coronado Center.

Robin McKinney, 17, of 305 N. Dwight St., was reportedly detained by Bob Crawford, manager of Alco, about 8 p.m. for theft and possession of stolen merchandise. According to police reports the three were allegedly returning stolen merchandise to the store for a cash refund.

The two juveniles were released to adult supervisors. McKinney was held in city jail.

Weather

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

A fast-moving cold front moved into the Gulf of Mexico early today, leaving behind it extremely cold temperatures and the threat of snow, sleet and freezing rain across much of Texas.

Forecasters warned stockmen in Central Texas and in the Concho Valley to take measures to protect newly born animals and recently shorn goats and sheep. The areas expected cold temperatures and the threat of freezing rain.

Some light snow fell in western sections of the Panhandle and South Plains during the night. The snow was expected to move eastward during the day and night. South of the snow areas some rain fell during the night with El Paso receiving the most, .33 of an inch. The rain was expected to spread eastward.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the lower teens in the Panhandle to the upper 60s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Extremes ranged from 12 at Dalhart to 69 at Brownsville.

National

Snow, freezing rain, sleet and freezing drizzle stretched from Michigan into the Northeast today.

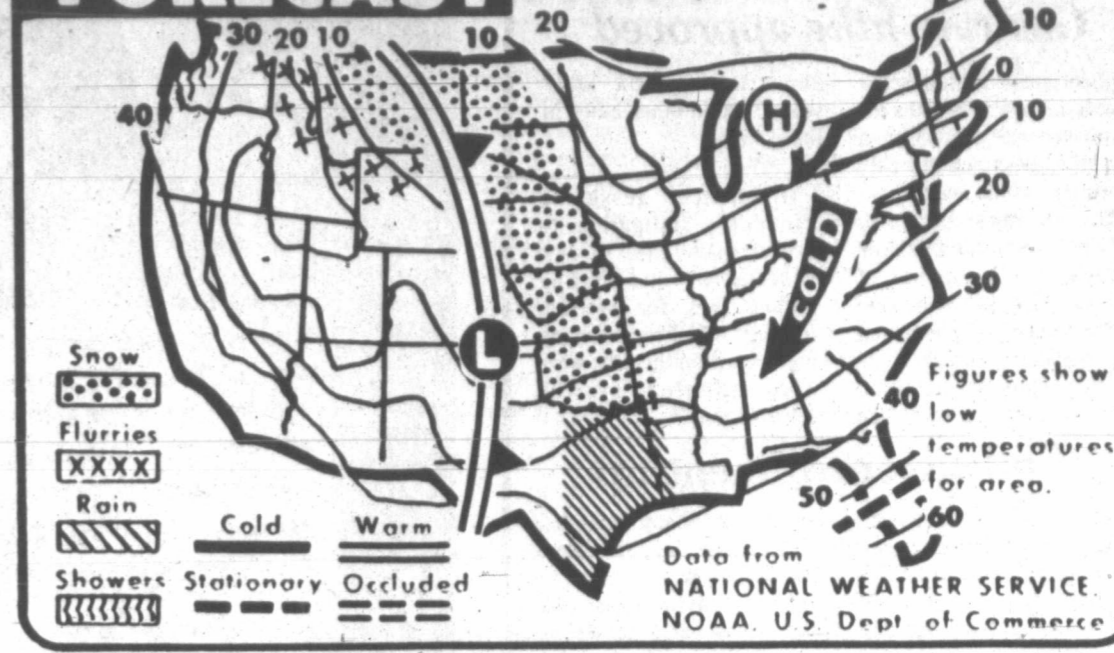

Snow was over most of the Great Lakes region while in the northern portions of the Ohio Valley, snow was mixed with freezing rain and drizzle. That weather pushed to the east, into eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey.

Winter storm warnings were posted across the northern half of Michigan, southeastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey.

A storm system pushed across Oregon today, causing some light rain and snow in higher elevations from northern California to western Washington.

FORECAST

Until Saturday

WEATHER FORECAST by the National Weather Service calls for cold to very cold temperatures for most of the country. Mild temperatures are expected in southern Georgia and Florida while rain is predicted for east Texas. Snow is forecast from Oklahoma to the northern Plains while the northern Rockies could get snow flurries.

Mexico's head renews dispute

MEXICO CITY (AP) - Mexico's President Jose Lopez Portillo has had the last word again during his summit session here with visiting President Carter, declaring that too often his poor countrymen who go to the United States "have to sell themselves."

Lopez Portillo, who surprised and irritated U.S. officials Wednesday when he in effect accused the United States of deceit and abuse, threw a fresh discordant note into the across-the-border summit early today.

Responding to a toast at a dinner given in his honor by the U.S. president, Lopez Portillo said:

"This, Mr. President, I believe, is the most serious matter of our times - the fact that there are men that can buy men and that there are men that have sell themselves. And this is what happens very frequently with our poor people that go to the United States."

Carter and his associates had thought the summit talks were back on track after the shaky start Wednesday when Carter was given a correct but cool reception and was lectured by Lopez Portillo in the first toast of the summit during a luncheon given in Carter's honor.

A high White House official who asked not to be named said Thursday night that Lopez Portillo had indicated agreement when Carter, at an unannounced private 10-minute session earlier in the day, suggested that too-strident Mexican references to disagreements between the nations could be counterproductive.

Carter's session with Lopez Portillo was followed by reports of summit progress and the scheduling of a breakfast meeting between the two leaders - actions seen as indications that the Carter visit was going well.

Then came Lopez Portillo's emotional toast, during which he told Carter, "I am deeply moved, and I shall try to be more stable."

The Mexican chief executive went on, however, to ask rhetorically, "What is happening to the free world?"

....Is it possible for the human being to be free and at the same time to be just, is it possible to conceive of an international order that can avoid the state of affairs in which a man would sell himself and another would buy another human being?"

But Lopez Portillo's also said, "Our friendship has made it possible to be frank."

U.S. sources, reporting on Thursday's talks, said progress was made on energy issues. But no progress was reported on at least one major issue, illegal immigration.

Recession called certain

WASHINGTON (AP) - A group of prominent business leaders has parted company with the Carter administration on the outlook for the economy, saying a mild recession this year is a virtual certainty.

The Business Council said overall growth of the economy will be less than 1 percent during 1979, with a slowdown beginning about midyear. Unemployment will increase by about 1 million persons to 6.8 percent of the labor force, up from 5.8 percent now, it said.

And the council said inflation, which was 9 percent last year, will decline only modestly to slightly above 7.5 percent and remain at that level through 1980.

The council's forecasts Thursday were considerably more pessimistic than those of the administration, which has maintained that a recession can and will be avoided this year.

As recently as last December, the council was agreeing with the administration estimate that the economy should grow between 2 percent and 3 percent in 1979.

The council used the word setback rather than recession, perhaps out of deference to President Carter who warned last December that recession forecasts could "become a self-fulfilling prophecy."

Carter made that statement during a speech to the Business Council, which now has done an about-face in its outlook. The council is an organization of about 200 leaders of the nation's top corporations. Its opinions and advice to the government are usually taken seriously by policymakers.

"No one foresees a deep setback, certainly nothing like 1974-1975," said Clifton C. Garvin Jr., chairman of Exxon Corp. who also is a vice chairman of the council.

Garvin told a meeting of the council Thursday that its economic consultants believe the slowdown will extend over several quarters. The common definition of a recession is negative growth in the Gross National Product for at least two consecutive quarters, or six months.

Re-election sought

Board trustee incumbents Al Smith and Curt Beck, holding Precincts 4 and 5 respectively, will run for office again in the Pampa Independent School District election on April 7.

The two men have no opposition. The filing deadline for these positions is March 7.

Candidates can file with Dwayne Walker, Business Manager and Tax Assessor-Collector, at the Carver Center Business Office, 321 W. Albert Street.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: I need your help. Or maybe one of your readers has the answer.

Where does one start in having a religious organization investigated? Can someone be deprogrammed after six years of indoctrination?

My academically gifted son became interested in different philosophies, lifestyles and religions while he was a college student. Now he has given up his goals and become a religious fanatic.

He's a slave to the head of a religious cult who lives in luxury while my son is always broke and borrowing money from me so he can give more money to the cult.

Now he spends all his time recruiting members; he's so brainwashed and blinded by "loyalty" he can't see how he has been used.

What can I do?

LOST A SON IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR LOST: Don't send him any more money, but do keep in communication with him and let him know that you love him. There are many organizations throughout the country that exist to help parents who have "lost" their children to unscrupulous religious cults.

The organization nearest you is: Individual Freedom Foundation, Box 131, Allison Park, Pa., 15101. Write to them and enclose a stamped (15 cents) self-addressed envelope for their reply. They are a non-profit group. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has been trying to lose weight for years, but she's never stayed on a diet for more than three days at a time. (If she lost about 20 pounds she'd be perfect.) Right after the first of the year, she and a guy she works with (also overweight) had a weigh-in and made a deal. Whoever loses the most weight in 90 days will have to treat the other to a steak dinner in the best restaurant in town. (Just the two of them.)

I trust my wife, but I don't like the idea of her going out to dinner with another man—bet or no bet. He's married, but I'm told his wife doesn't object because she'll do anything to get him to lose weight.

Who do you think of a deal like this?

CHUBBY'S HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: It sounds like a healthy deal for everybody. Give Chubby your blessings, and may the biggest loser win.

DEAR ABBY: Is it legal, when interviewing a person for a job, to ask if that person has ever been arrested?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: No. A person is not judged GUILTY by an arrest.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB: The doctor has told my husband he has sciatica, as he has so much pain in his right leg and hip. Do you have any information on this problem that you can give me?

DEAR READER: Sciatica is a nonspecific term. It is related to pain in the hip, down the back of the thigh, sometimes to the back and side of the calf, and to the foot. Basically, it's a symptom and you have to look beyond that to see what is causing the problem.

The pain can be caused from some irritation or inflammation of the sciatic nerve which runs to the areas I mentioned. In about 90 percent of the cases of "sciatica," the problem is related to the spine itself. This can be either because of arthritis, disease in the intervertebral disc or some disease in the sacroiliac joint.

Pain is usually the most prominent symptom. Depending upon which nerves are involved, there may be lack of sensation, tinglings and other symptoms including the sensation of "pins and needles." It's not necessary to have these symptoms, however, and still have irritation of the sciatic nerve with pain.

How should it be treated? That depends entirely upon what is causing the irritation of the sciatic nerve. If it happened to be external compression of the nerve, for any reason, some of these can be corrected. A good example here might be a ruptured disc in the lumbar spine area. Most cases are benefited by physiotherapy, others require surgery.

The next time you see your doctor ask him what's causing the sciatica and perhaps he'll have time to discuss that with you as well as what might be done in your husband's particular case.

Since sciatica is often caused by osteoarthritis, I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-10 to give you more information about this common problem. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Polly's Pointers

by polly cramer

DEAR POLLY: I have a pair of carved urn-shaped marble lamps that need cleaning badly. I have used a damp cloth but my husband is a heavy smoker and they have turned yellow. — IRENE

DEAR IRENE: If real marble surfaces are wiped with a cloth wrung out of warm water and a bit of detergent once or twice a year they should stay in good shape and only require wiping with a cloth dampened in lukewarm water in between. One dealer in Italian marble says a coat of liquid wax can be applied to avoid staining.

I have no specific treatment for removing tobacco smoke stains from marble lamps but smoke discoloration can be removed from smooth marble fireplaces by scrubbing with a fiber brush and a detergent solution. Cover with a thick paste of kitchen cleanser and water, cover to keep dampness in and leave for a day, let dry and then rinse away the dried powder. This MIGHT work on your marble lamps but I would test a small back area first as your marble may be more porous. The safest thing to do is to take the lamps to a marble company to have them cleaned and then take care of them as suggested. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY: I had the same problem as Joe — my clothes did not smell fresh after laundering. I found the solution was to wet the underarm area of a garment, rub it well with a bath deodorant soap and let it set for a few minutes. Then launder in the usual manner. — STELLA

It's okay to baby your skin, guys! Doctor builds forehead to protect girl's brain

NEW YORK (NEA) - Men who believe that skin-care products are only for women have problems. Often problems with their skin. Lined, leathery skin is masculine? No, it's wrinkled and, like a woman's, shows aging unnecessarily.

Skin covers the entire body, not just the face. A good skin-care regimen incorporates strategies to save all exposed and unprotected skin.

moisturizing hand cream sold in drug and department stores. Yes, its package shows female hands. So what? To repeat, skin doesn't know its gender.

Of course, the well-known men's grooming lines do have hand lotion creams. With prestigious price tags. Usually lightly scented with the line's cologne fragrance, these protectors also work well. Not necessarily better. But if a guy has the money and likes spreading it around, why not?

should palm dry his hands and then apply a hand lotion or cream, rubbing the product into his skin.

Of course, given the general laziness of men who claim they haven't time for proper skin care, the fellows who balk at this procedure can simply wash their hands, spend several extra seconds thoroughly rinsing them, then palm the hands dry before slathering on the cream or lotion.

Truthfully, it doesn't mat-

Since hand protection is removed with each washing, hand moisturizers, like facial moisturizers, should be reapplied whenever they are cleaned away. But moisture via water should always first be replenished.

Another form of hand protection is wearing gloves, not just for staving off the elements, but for year-round biking, gardening or any activity that puts the hands in a potentially abrasive situation. During fall and winter, hand moisturizers and gloves work hand-in-glove as two layers of protection against drying and chapping.

As any mechanic, plumber or construction man knows, it's about time to bring a little "soothing" to the hand scene. No one has ever said a man has to suffer rough, cracked, chapped hands just because he's a man.

Right? Right.

One exposed zone often overlooked by most men is the hands. Although smart fellows realize that the face requires moisturizing and consequently use after-shave balms and conditioners in place of more conventional after-shave lotions, they often ignore the fact that hands need moisturizing, too. On they make that time-old mistake and say that hand creams and/or lotions are only for women. Dried, rough hands are masculine? No, they are in an unhealthy condition. Besides, no woman wants to be caressed by callused hands.

The moisturizing principle — whether for the face or for the hands — is the same. Facial moisturizers or hand cream lotions don't themselves "moisturize," which literally means adding moisture to the skin. Only water adds moisture, since moisture is nothing more than water. Instead, what moisnew moisture is always needed.

The best way to get it, if a guy has the time, is to wash his hands with soap and water, rinse them thoroughly under running lukewarm water, blot his hands with an absorbent paper towel (this is a safety check to make sure that no drying soap residue remains on the skin), fill the sink with tepid water and then submerge both hands for two or three minutes. After the soak, he ter a lot what type of hand product is used, as long as the water is replaced and trapped. Crisco would do the job. And would leave the hands feeling greasy and looking weird. So the feel of the product, while not affecting its efficiency much, is a subjective factor. Nonbrand name or discount varieties can feel just as good as the expensive spreads. One easy-to-apply and pleasant-to-the-skin inexpensive protector is the Dorothy Gray

There is still hope for Bob

Teens may reserve their fears for the likes of Shaun Cassidy and Leif Garrett, but Bob Hope has their admiration.

The 75-year-old Hope was a surprise winner in a national poll of teen-age girls conducted by Seventeen magazine to select the Most Admired Male.

"I thought they were putting me on when they told me the results," Hope confided. "I mean, can you imagine me being more popular than John Travolta with teen-age girls? I can't even get my hips out of 'park.'"

The results of the poll were: 1. Bob Hope; 2. John Travolta; 3. Robert Redford; 4. Burt Reynolds.

Doctor builds forehead to protect girl's brain

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — For the first time in more than 10 years, 14-year-old Katrina Ooms is able to go outdoors without a helmet, thanks to special surgery that "built" a forehead to protect her brain.

"It feels great," says the ninth-grader from Bethesda, Md. "There are the little things I've never been able to do before — like wear hats and earrings. I got two wool hats for Christmas. And I'm looking forward to going horseback riding."

Late last year Katrina underwent surgery in Tampa to reconstruct a portion of her skull that had been shattered by an auto accident at age 3. The accident left only skin to protect a section of brain.

Her forehead was slightly concave and soft like a baby's. Any puncture or bad fall could easily have caused brain damage, says her mother, Theodora. So Katrina had to wear football-style headgear for protection.

"I guess I got used to the helmets. I always wore them. But they were hot, especially in summer," Katrina said in a telephone interview from her Maryland home.

The operation was performed just after Thanksgiving. Katrina was able to return to Maryland in time to celebrate Christmas at home.

The Ooms' physician in New York had known of a new surgical technique being performed by two Tampa doctors and had referred the family to them.

"The field is a completely new frontier in reconstructive plastic surgery," says Dr. Mutaz Habal, who performed the surgery with Dr. Jack Maniscalco.

"We used the latest in space-age technology and polymer biochemistry. We made a template in the shape of her forehead and placed it right under the skin," Habal explained.

"Then we coated it with a paste that we grind in a special way from her own bones. This paste will revascularize (become diffused with tiny blood vessels) from the surrounding tissue, and she will grow her own skull bone there," he said.

The plastic mesh template, which serves as a kind of tray in which the bone can form and grow, is attached to the existing bones of the skull or face with tiny screws that won't react with fluids in the central nervous system.

The bone transplanted to the template came from Katrina's ribs and hip. Katrina has a slight limp, but Habal said the "borrowed" bone will grow back completely in a year or two.

Children can teach adults too

By REV. L. B. HALL, Associate Minister
First United Methodist Church

In last week's article I suggested that purposeful learning takes place within children when they are provided with adult models which can be examined, shared and imitated. I believe this is a true perspective of one of the more important ways we learn. Yet, it is also equally true that learning flows from the opposite direction.

Children can teach, too. Jesus was serious when he said that child-like qualities are the keys to the kingdom. There is a real sense in which we are given the gift of children that we might be ministered to - that we might learn from them. Unfortunately and too frequently we, as adults, seem to believe that children are only to be taught, that we must properly impress upon the minds and hearts of the youthful generation that adults possess the only things of merit of value. I can honestly remember someone saying that children are to be seen and not heard and silent in the presence of their elders. Yet children are naturally filled with some wisdom we adults lose sight of, and I believe they need to be reminded of again and again.

Children are able to teach us a fuller meaning and perhaps more Christian understanding of freedom. Take the illustration of a small boy at play, whose spirit remains unfettered as he can instantly change from a soaring eagle to a builder of skyscrapers. His mind and spirit are able to transcend the world and gaze unshamed at the wonders of stars. He is full of questions at a glimpse of creepily crawling things in the grass. Children are born with a kinship to freedom that is often beyond our social and governmental definitions, yet closer to the freedom found in God's love. Children's and God's freedom expresses hope and expectation in the future.

Children are also able to reteach us the meaning of awe and mystery. We are imprisoned and drugged by the sophistication and coolness of the world and people around us. The various systems of society and politics force the child within each of us to hide and die. Children know how to feel and express awe and wonderment at the mystery of life. They can be genuinely excited about the potential of something. We tend to want to explain events and objects in all of their physical glory. Yet children are able to simply enjoy without the need to dissect, and even when they do split hairs there is always a sense of adventure.

Children can teach us a new sense of self-worth, by their freedom. If only we could learn to watch and share. Children can teach us awe, surprise and thirst for the unknown. Allow me to make this suggestion, instead of spending all of our energies in trying to teach our children, let us resolve to spend half of our time listening, watching, sharing and imitating them - even if it means swinging from a tree, jumping rope or fidgeting in church. Once we get past the guilt of not being "adult like" we might find we have received a valuable gift - from God through children!

The Gray County Courthouse is one of the community's most important buildings—even if you never enter it. In its vaults are stored the vital statistics of our community—the birth certificate containing the community's first recognition that a human life has joined the community; the marriage certificate stating the community's recognition that two people now live as one; the tax records, litigation records, and finally, the death certificate which is the recognition that a life has finally left the community. The funeral is also a public record—a sort of a certificate given by the entire community that a person has lived, had worth and meaning, has loved and was loved, and now has died. At Duenkel-Smith Funeral Home, the funeral—the community's death certificate for an individual—is handled with care for the same reasons valuable records are placed in carefully protected vaults.

HERE IS THE PATH

I am Thankful... for good health, and for the food that I have each day. I am thankful for those near and dear to me that I can love, and in turn love me. I am thankful for the freedom of my nation, and that I can worship as I please. I am thankful that God loved me so much, that he provided a way for my salvation. I am thankful that he is a forgiving Father. I am thankful that I can attend Church and worship my Lord

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Fighting Back
 When Ken Norton was 14, he challenged his father to a fight. "Are you sure?" Norton's father asked. "Yes, sir," Norton replied. "Then put up your hands," his father said, and as Norton raised his hands, his father hit him in the mouth. That was the end of Norton's first fight. Norton has fought 46 professional bouts since then. He has won 41 of them. Last year the World Boxing Council named Norton its heavyweight champion, but Norton lost the title in June to Larry Holmes. Norton, who takes on Earnie Shavers this Sunday, is hoping for another victory, and the chance to fight Holmes again for the title.

Marine still barking out orders

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — His name is Henry Gilmore and his title is sergeant major.
 But you can just call him "sir."
 The gravel-voiced Gilmore is undeniably a Marine drill instructor. For 31 years the Mississippi native was one of the few good men.
 Gilmore is retired now but he still proudly wears his uniform and still barks orders at his troops.
 The difference now, however, is that some of the troops are as young as 16 years old.
 "It's not that hard here," says Gilmore as a dozen errant Marine Military Academy cadets go through pre-reveille punishment pushes.
 "It's an instant reminder-based on the Marine Corps system of reward and punishment. You do it right and you get rewarded. Do it wrong and you get punished," Gilmore says.

 That, basically, is the backbone of life for the 330 young cadets at this unique South Texas military school. MMA bills itself as the only academy based on the rigorous standards of the U.S. Marine Corps. The school is not affiliated with the Marines but each year goes through the same rigid inspection as official Marine bases.
 Life at the palm tree-laden campus is simple for the cadets — who range from seventh graders through high school graduates preparing for entry to a service academy. Follow the rules and you can benefit from a staff including retired Marines and highly-qualified civilian instructors.
 Disobey and Gilmore is on your back.
 "The DI is like a house mother. Gee, I hate to use that word for a Marine," said retired Maj. Gen. Ralph Spanjer, a 36-year Marine who is superintendent here.

 "The cadets are scared of the DI. Unless they are they are not really going to jump. The DIs are awfully tough in appearance and intensity. Even the new teachers say, "Do the DIs really grab the boys?" The DIs never touch the boys but the impression the new teachers get is just what we want," Spanjer said.
 The superintendent sees the academy as a unique opportunity to mold leaders. "A military school is not a concentration camp or reform school," he says. Indeed, an admissions waiting list here allows officials to choose boys who want to be here and who want to learn — Marine-style.
 "I'd say 50 percent know what they are getting into. The other 50 percent think they know but they don't realize how tough it really is," Spanjer said.

Singer, band to appear in Pampa

"O come, let us sing unto the Lord; let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation." Psalms 95:1
 This invitation from the scripture depicts an evening with LaVerne Tripp, the Happy Hour Singers and the Song Revival Band.

"Born to write and sing" are words that best describe Tripp. Raised on a farm on the coast of North Carolina, Tripp began singing in churches when he was only 2½ years old. As Tripp grew, his love for music also grew.
 Tripp began to sing professionally after finishing Bible School in Greenville, South Carolina. He sang with several part-time gospel groups before joining the Blue Ridge Quartet. In 1975, he left the quartet to enter into full-time ministry.

 He has won many awards. In 1971, his song "I Know" was the number one song in gospel music for the whole year. His next composition, "That Day Is Almost Here," replaced "I Know" in the number one spot. This song was replaced by "After Calvary", making three songs in a row to reach number one, a record that has never been broken.

"I'm grateful for the awards," says Tripp. "But my fondest reward comes when I see lives changed. Today, people are searching. They want joy, peace and happiness. The Bible says that these things come from the Holy Spirit, and anyone can have them. That's what I sing about."

 Tripp, the band and singers will appear in a "Song Revival" on Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the Middle School Auditorium.
 Everyone is invited and admission is free.

Religious briefs

Former Pampan to appear

The Pampa Chapel of the Apostolic Faith will host Rev. Earl Pruitt at its revival services which begin tonight. They will be held until Feb. 21, beginning at 7:30 p.m. every night, except Sunday when the evangelist will speak at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. The services will include special singers.

 Rev. Pruitt was a former Pampan. His wife, Ruth, will be a guest at a ladies' luncheon 12:30 p.m. Saturday at the church. A men's prayer breakfast will be held at 8 a.m. Sunday.

Singers to perform

Jack Griffin Singers of Oklahoma City will be at the First Free Will Baptist Church, 326 N. Rider on Sunday for the 11 a.m. service

A fellowship dinner will follow. The group will also be at Leisure Lodge at 2 p.m. for a singing service. Pastor L.C. Lynch invites everyone to attend.

Family to put on show

The Singing Kacho Family will perform Sunday at the Grace Baptist Church at 824 S. Barnes during the morning and evening services at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m., respectively.

 Mr. Kacho will also preach at the evening service. Dinner will be served following the morning service. Everyone is invited.

New Mexico choir to sing

The Menaul School choir will be singing tonight at 8 p.m. at The First Presbyterian Church sanctuary at 525 N. Gray St.
 The 35-member choir from Albuquerque, N.M. will sing mostly sacred numbers. This is the 14th consecutive year in which the choir has toured this country. The director is Rev. Robert Boughton.

 Everyone is welcome to the one hour program and a nursery will be available in the educational building.

HEALTHFUL HINTS

Most often asked Questions On Nutrition BY: KATRINA BIGHAM

Q. I am a diabetic, and I heard that zinc would be good for my condition. Is this true?

A. "The Nutrition Almanac" tells me that zinc is beneficial to the diabetic due to its regulatory effect on insulin in the blood. It has been found that the addition of zinc to insulin prolongs its effect on blood sugar. A diabetic pancreas contains only about half as much zinc as does a healthy one, which may lead us to believe that a deficiency of this great little trace mineral may be a contributing factor to the disease of diabetes.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

Joint ventures appear very promising for you this coming year. One in particular, where you will be associated with someone very practical and ambitious, should pay off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have an instinctive knowledge of what is valuable to others as well as for yourself today. If you're looking to acquire something, do a little old-fashioned horse trading. Like to find out more about yourself? Send for your copy of the all-new Astro-Graph Letter for 1979 by mailing $1 for each and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be shy about accepting help when offered. Others want to lend a hand and will be hurt if you don't allow them to do so.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Starting the day in a good frame of mind helps you to tackle your work. You'll do a better job because it won't seem like drudgery.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a good friend to have around today. If you see a pal needing help with anything, you'll pitch in before you're asked.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although you're not a stay-at-home, that's where your interests lie today. You need to touch home plate once in a while to recharge yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Extra money jingling in your pocket will be the result of paying attention to small details today. Things have a way of adding up.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) By tackling priority issues first you'll reap unexpected benefits that will put you on a good track for the next couple of days.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Patience is your long suit and it'll pay off today. The clock is in your corner, giving you more time to gain control over important situations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Take the time to digest new or revolutionary ideas presented to you over the weekend. You'll then be able to put them to the proper use.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The little things you'll remember to do for people today make you popular among your peers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a world of difference between your outlook today, as opposed to yesterday. With a positive attitude you'll apply effort necessary for success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There's no pulling the wool over your eyes today and you'll let others know it. You've done your homework and know the answers.

James signs with Mustangs

HOUSTON (AP) — Southern Methodist broke out on top in the Southwest Conference football recruiting race when the Mustangs bolted from the gate to sign blue-chip running sensation Craig James.

"Obviously we are ecstatic, we are just ecstatic," said SMU Coach Ron Meyer after he inked the Houston Stratford star to a SWC letter of intent Thursday.

"I'm just glad it's over," said James, who set an all-time Class 4A rushing record of 2,411 yards and was considered one of the two most sought-after schoolboy running backs in the state.

"I am tickled to death. My parents are happy. There are a bunch of people over here and they are happy," James told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from his home in Houston.

"We think Craig adds tremendously to a great class already coming to SMU," said Meyer. "We are really excited."

That Mustang stable of new recruits includes seven athletes named in the Dallas Times Herald 1978 blue-chip list, compiled in a secret ballot by conference coaches.

James played down reports he had wavered in his commitment to play football at SMU after hearing reports the Mustangs could be in hot water with the National Collegiate Athletic Association over recruitment of another offensive wizard — running back Eric Dickerson of Sealy.

"I have tried to get Eric to come to SMU," said James. "I am not afraid of competition. I love competition and I would like to play in the same backfield with Eric. I'm not worried. I'm not going to be a blocking back."

Earlier, James declined to identify the persons who warned him of impending recruiting problems at SMU. "I don't want to do that. Let's just say some other college coaches and some members of the media," said James.

A new Pontiac Trans Am is the driving force behind the controversy swirling around the annual conference recruiting wars.

Dickerson, probably the most sought-after Texas running back, is driving the new car that he said was a gift from his grandmother.

NCAA investigators have talked to Dickerson about that car and an unidentified source at Texas A&M, which originally was thought to have the inside track on signing Dickerson, said the car is simply what the athlete said.

Houston rips Tech

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers says he knew his Red Raiders would have a tough game against the Houston Cougars—but his players apparently didn't get the message.

The underdog Cougars hit nine of their first 10 shots from the field and finished the game with their best shooting percentage of the season, 63.2 per cent, en route to a 103-89 victory in the lone Southwest Conference basketball game scheduled Thursday night.

"Instead of coming out real dedicated, we seemed to be kind of satisfied tonight," said Myers, whose Raiders suffered their worst loss of the season.

"Houston started out great, like they were ready to play."

"Our guys just didn't realize what they were getting into. This was the last home game for Houston's seniors and I knew they would have a lot of emotion."

Emotion and a hot-hand. The Cougars hit 63.9 per cent from the field in the first half when the out scored the Raiders 19-2 to start the game and led by 28 points, 54-26 at halftime.

The Red Raiders, who had their five-game winning streak snapped, joined the shooting duel in the second half by hitting 67 per cent but the Cougars didn't slow down, finishing the game with a 63.2 per cent average.

The Cougars, led by Ken Williams with 27 points, were hot on offense but Coach Guy Lewis was just as pleased with his team's defense.

"That could have been the best defense we've played all year," Lewis said. "I was really pleased with our defense the first 20 minutes."

Tech dropped to a 17-7 overall record and a 9-5 SWC standard prior to a showdown Saturday against the University of Texas in Austin.

"I don't know how this is going to affect us for the Longhorns," Myers said. "You just can't predict those things."

Geoff Huston and freshman David Little got Tech started in the second half. The pair shared scoring honors for the Raiders with 19 points each. Huston had one point at halftime and Little had six.

Houston closes out its regular season schedule Saturday against Arkansas while Tech must face Texas in Austin Saturday and then host Arkansas Tuesday.

Optimist cage results

Close games were the order of the night in Thursday's Pampa Optimist Boys League basketball games.

The Spurs had the evening's largest margin of victory in their 27-25 victory over the Rockets. Tony Santa Cruz had 12 points for the Spurs, who also got nine from Chris Comer. Tate Eldridge (10) and John Tarpley (nine) were the Rockets' scoring leaders.

Lewis Niblett tossed in 18 points for the Warriors, but it wasn't enough to keep them from dropping a 31-30 decision to the Bucks. Jeff Gaines and Gene LaRue had 10 points apiece for the winners, while Dean LaRue added six points to the Bucks' cause.

The Bullets used a balanced scoring attack to down the Celtics, 24-23. Raymond Wyant (nine), Mike Treadwell (seven) and Anthony Bolin (six) were the Bullets' scoring leaders, while Mike Cochran paced the Celtics with eight. Richard Rodgers added six in a losing effort.

Saturday morning's games will match the Lakers and Bullets at 9 and the 76ers and Celtics at 10:30.

Racquetball tourney to begin

The Fourth Annual Top O' Texas Racquetball Classic kicks off at the Amarillo YMCA today, with at least nine entries from Pampa among the contestants.

Trophies will be awarded for first and second-place finishers and consolation winners in each of seven or eight divisions.

Among those entered from Pampa are Gayle Trollinger, Bill King, George Smith, Boyd Hutcherson, Bill Smith and Tommy Lindsey. In the women's division, Candy Smith, Marilyn Trollinger and Marlene Brandt are expected to compete.

The tournament will run through Sunday night at the Amarillo YMCA, 816 S. Van Buren.

Water safety course offered

Persons interested in summer water front positions can take advantage of two Red Cross courses to be offered this month at the Pampa Youth and Community Center.

An advanced life-saving class will begin at 7 p.m. February 26 at the Youth Center. Patrick Homer will instruct the class, which will be followed by a water safety instructor's course. Jack Chisum will teach the class for those who wish to become water safety instructors.

Anyone interested in either of these classes should contact the Gray County Red Cross office, 669-7121.

View from the plains

LUBBOCK — Sportsmen will have their first chance at bagging a wild gobbler on the rolling plains of northwest Texas on two of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's wildlife management areas (WMA) starting April 20.

Four WMA will be open to the spring hunt across Texas, including the Gene Howe MA in the Panhandle, the Matador MA near Paducah, the Engling MA near Palestine and the ...

Potential hunters have until 5 p.m. March 12 to submit an application, available at the management areas and P&WD offices.

A public drawing will be held at 10 a.m. March 15 in the department's Austin headquarters. Each of the 198 hunters whose names are drawn will be charged a $10 fee to help defray the costs of conducting the hunts.

Each permit will be issued for a two-day period, beginning at noon on the first day and ending at noon on the third day.

Northwest Texas turkey hunters will find the 5,821-acre Gene Howe MA located six miles east of Canadian in Hemphill County. Thirty permits will be issued for the Howe area and the three separate hunts will be April 20-23, 27-29 and May 4-6. Ten permit holders will hunt each of the two-day periods.

The Matador MA is 11 miles north of Paducah in Cottle County, with over 28,100 acres open to turkey hunting April 20-23, 27-29 and May 4-6. Sixty permits are scheduled to be issued, with 20 permit holders allowed to hunt each of the three periods.

These public turkey hunts are not necessarily indicative of a high turkey population, but are part of a continuing management program.

Spring turkey hunting in central Texas has proven to be a sound management practice, since the hunts are set late enough in the nesting season. Most of the hens have been bred and are laying eggs or nesting by this time.

The gobblers, which can be hunted by shotgun only during the 1979 spring hunt, are still in the same general areas frequented by the hens.

Hen turkeys need to be bred only once each spring to lay fertile eggs throughout the nesting season. Even if the turkey nest is destroyed by flood, fire, predators or farm operations, the hen has the capacity to build another nest and lay more eggs.

The successful spring turkey hunter will most likely use a turkey caller to lure the wise old gobbler within shotgun range.

The open areas of both the Howe and Matador properties will test the hunters skill at turkey calling and hiding, due to the excellent sight and hearing of the Rio Grande gobbler, and should prove to be a quality hunt.

For additional entry information, write to the P&WD, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744.

Palmer stresses loyalty

Danny Palmer likes to make one thing clear whenever he starts to talk about his role as Pampa High School's football coach. He's glad to be here.

"I'm very happy and very fortunate to be the head football coach at one of the best high schools in Texas and the country," he told the Pampa Lions Club Thursday afternoon.

"The kids at Pampa High School are some of the best I've been associated with," he added.

Palmer has been visiting the homes of his players since he arrived from Waco two weeks ago, and he and assistant coach Larry Gilbert (who came with Palmer from Waco) have been making steady progress contacting the names on the Harvester roster.

"Coach Gilbert and I have visited 18 homes," he noted.

"That may not seem like a lot in two weeks, but it is when you're trying to follow directions in Pampa."

Living conditions have also been rather peculiar for Palmer, who has been staying at the football field house since his arrival. His wife Sharon and their two daughters are still living in Waco, and the former quarterback from the University of Southern Mississippi said he was looking forward to having his family join him.

Despite his claim of being a football coach and not a preacher or banquet speaker, Palmer kept the Lions' attention during his 30-minute talk by mixing anecdotes with his coaching philosophy. Loyalty enters heavily into that philosophy.

"Loyalty is very important to me," he said. "I don't care if it's coaching high school football, running a business or being a member of the Lions Club. I don't care if you're talking about two people or 2,000, loyalty to the boss or system is all important."

"In return, I'm very loyal to my players. Don't ever run down one of my kids. You can yell at me all you like, but don't go picking after one of my players."

Palmer said he asked for three things when he interviewed for the job as head Harvester. They included the right to choose a staff that could be loyal to him, a weight program and time for his philosophy to take hold in Pampa.

And he has just three basic rules for his players.

"Don't lie to me. Don't steal from me and get along with each other," will be the basic guidelines for the '79 Fighting Harvesters.

While he declined to speculate on Pampa's record this fall, Palmer said his team wouldn't falter due to lack of effort.

"Nobody's going to be prepared better or work any harder than the Pampa Harvesters," he vowed.

Palmer said Gilbert would be his defensive coordinator, and jokingly said his assistant would catch the heat if another team scored.

"If Amarillo High is moving the ball, don't yell at Coach Palmer, yell at Coach Gilbert," he said with a deadpan expression.

Play Better Golf with JACK NICKLAUS

NEW YORK (AP) — Can you close your eyes and tell whether it's a man or a woman hitting a golf ball? Peter Dobreiner, writing in Golf Digest, can.

"When it's a woman hitting the ball off a tee," Dobreiner said, "the sound is 'whoosh, plop.' When a man hits one, the sound is 'whizz, tok.' You can duplicate the sound of a woman's shot by taking a hard-boiled egg, removing the shell and hurling it against a wall."

SMU gets Dickerson

SEALY, Texas (AP) — Eric Dickerson, the Sealy running back who had been sought by about 80 colleges, signed a letter of intent today to play for Southern Methodist University.

Coach Ron Meyer of the Mustangs was on hand as Dickerson joined Houston

We are extremely happy, said Meyer, who moved on to Sealy after seeing James Thursday night as champagne flowed at the Stratford star's home.

Pampa golfers 17th

ODESSA — Pampa's golfers got some good scores here Thursday in the opening round of the Odessa Invitational Tournament, but they weren't enough to offset some terrific golfing by two individuals from Amarillo and the entire El Paso Eastern team.

The Harvesters golfers recorded a team score of 324, good for 17th place in the 21-team field. But the El Paso team ripped through the Golden Acres Country Club layout for a 285 total, just five strokes over par for a four-man squad.

Barry Terrell paced the Pampa team with a six-over-par 76. Paul Beck added an 80. Chad Darce shot an 82 and Gary Cudney 86 to round out Pampa's scoring. Bob Phillips' 87 did not count in Pampa's total.

Steve Russell of Amarillo High and Tascosa's Ben Smith mastered the par-70 course to head the individual scorers after one round. Russell fired a 66 and Smith 69, but their teams were still well down in the standings.

The Sandies were sixth at 305, while the Rebs were eighth at 308. Borger had a 309 total for tenth place.

El Paso Coronado (291) was second in the team standings, with Midland Lee (297) third.

A chronicle of the times

DALLAS (AP) — For almost 30 years, Buddy Rouch has chronicled the signs of the times. Or more precisely, chronicled the times with his signs.

Since he opened the Inwood Sign Shop, he has used a two-sided sign to point a conservative finger at topical issues and tickle the funny bones of passers-by.

"I write for the very intelligent, well-read people with a keen sense of humor. The kind of person who has to explain the signs to the other people in the car," he said.

Some signs need no explanation. "Let's not get so open minded we let our brains fall out."

Others are more obtuse and lost even on those of us who think we are intelligent, well-read, etc. Example:

"I DID have a brain, but I decorated my car with it."

Rouch lets his ideas sit on an "incubator board" for a while, "to see if they stand the test of time." Most do. And some stir a few memories worth chucking about.

"Bomb shelter signs painted out." "I'm conservative, sure," he said, his eyes wandering to the Bicentennial banners and flags draped around the shop. "They are the most intelligent with the most money."

Rarely does he take down a sign that provokes angry comments. But on Nov. 22, 1963, he wasted no time in splashing black paint over the sign heralding President Kennedy's visit. The sign, referring to a recent presidential overseas trip, read:

"Bring up lots of beads and trinkets, Jack." Rouch enjoys taking a swipe at folks now and then. One of his favorite subjects is and always has been women.

"I never try to please anybody," he said. "I only grab one minority group at a time."

Rouch says women are a boundless subject for his signs:

"Quiet woman, can't you see I'm pursuing happiness?"

"Inefficiency: Woman driver with cigarette."

Not even his family is sacred.

"My wife files Dr Pepper under 'P'."

He says: "Politics, sports, they're all fair game. The only three taboos are race, religion and you know the other. It used to be sex, but now sex is okay." Like:

"I think I'll take up high morals this year."

"True equality is two parents vs. one teen-ager."

"Appear casual, but try not to fall down."

"Shall it be Spain or Fort Worth this summer?"

His favorite is a Mark Twain-ish thought:

"My eyes puddle up when I think of my funeral."

"When my time comes, I'd like to go by air."

"If my great-grandfather had lived, he'd be 210 today."

And the all-time favorite of many of his customers:

"Fat girls can make a canoe pop wheelies."

Brutality charges bring new trial for Zimmerman

HOUSTON (AP) — Allegations of alleged Jacinto City police brutality have led to a new trial for John Charles Zimmerman, who received a death sentence in the 1977 rape and murder of a 10-year-old niece.

State District Judge Frank Price ordered the new trial Thursday after a district attorney's investigator testified he witnessed Jacinto City officers beat Zimmerman the night of his arrest.

Robert J. Bodisch testified he reported the beating to Vic Driscoll, who prosecuted the case, before the trial but defense lawyers were never told and a statement made by Zimmerman was admitted into evidence.

After Price's ruling, District Attorney Carol Vance said he plans an in-house investigation of events that preceded the 1977 trial.

Witnesses at the trial testified Zimmerman picked up his niece, Ramona Abner, at school on March 24, 1977 but failed to take her home. They testified Zimmerman appeared at the Jacinto City police station offering to help in the search for the missing girl but later in the day led police to the body on a construction site.

1978 beef imports fall slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The latest government figures show beef imports last year fell slightly below the level authorized by President Carter when he opened the door to larger shipments to help dampen retail price increases.

According to U.S. Customs Service reports, about 1.485 billion pounds of meat covered by a 1964 quota formula entered the country in 1978. That was 6.6 million pounds less than the maximum that could have been imported.

Last June, shortly after cattle prices began rising after being depressed for several years, President Carter boosted the 1978 import lid by 200 million pounds, an action that infuriated many farmers and ranchers.

Cattle prices have since recovered from a summer slump that followed Carter's action and now are at record levels.

The U.S. Customs import figures for 1978 were circulated Thursday by the Agriculture Department.

Doctor receives special valentine

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dr. Jerry Young, the only person in history to have three heart transplants, came home on Valentine's Day, with a heart pinned to his sweater and his sense of humor intact.

After greeting his family, Young opened his jacket to expose a 3-inch heart bearing the words: "My heart beats for you."

Young turned a crank on the back of the heart and it began to buzz and jump. "That's exactly how I feel," he said, laughing.

Young, a 43-year-old Cherry Hill, N.J., podiatrist, underwent his first heart transplant at Stanford University in May 1976, seven months after suffering a massive heart attack.

His body began to reject the heart in the summer of 1977 and his health declined.

Last September, he returned to Stanford and underwent a second heart transplant Oct. 3. The heart never pumped properly, however, and surgeons were forced to remove it and put in another heart Oct. 6.

Despite problems with rejection, pneumonia and depression caused by prescription drugs, Young grew stronger. On Jan. 10 he moved into an apartment a mile from the medical center.
