Carter, Sadat talk during train trip

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — President Carter is taking his Mideast peace pilgrimage aboard the oldest train in Africa for rolling talks with Egypt's Anwar Sadat on a see-and-be-seen trip among the masses who farm the verdant delta of the Nile.

Carter and the Egyptian president, said by U.S. officials to be unhappy with American proposals for a treaty with Israel, arranged to board an open car today on the special ceremonial train for the journey through blooming cotton and cheering throngs.

There were reports Carter was making the trip over objections from the Secret Service, who feared the whistle-stop trip through open country, villages and towns was an invitation to trouble in a Middle East scarred with violence.

The two leaders are taking their negotiations to ancient Alexandria, on the Mediterranean shore, where the American president and his wife, Rosalynn, will spend the night at Ras El Tin, the oldest palace in Egypt.

They will return to Cairo by helicopter Saturday for a final working lunch before Carter flies to Jerusalem for at least three days of treaty talks with Prime Minister Menachem Begin. Carter tentatively is scheduled to return home Monday.

But White House press secretary Jody Powell has told reporters the president will not leave the Middle East as long as a possibility remains that he can help forge a permanent settlement. "We'll stay as long as we have to," Powell said.

Carter's negotiations with Sadat looked a lot like a replay of his tug of war with Begin last week in Washington — with no guarantee of an ending as happy as the finale of the Begin talks.

After five days of tough negotiating, Begin left Washington with new U.S. proposals for a treaty between Israel and Egypt. The Israeli cabinet okayed the proposals Monday, and Begin said if Egypt accepted the proposals a treaty could be signed in a few weeks.

But when Carter arrived in Cairo Thursday he ran headlong into Egyptian counter-proposals. Terms were not disclosed. But one American official said 2½ hours of talks between Carter and Sadat focused "almost entirely upon the unresolved issues."

"You can assume the Egyptians are not very happy" about the U.S. suggestions for the treaty, said a top White House official who asked not to be identified.

Good afternoon

News in brief

CLOUDY

The weather forecast for Pampa today is cloudy and windy. Conditions are expected to clear and get colder tonight, and become sunny and warmer by Saturday afternoon. The high today should be in the mid 40s, with the low tonight in the mid 20s and the high Saturday in the upper 50s. Northerly winds at 25 mph and gusty are predicted to diminish tonight. Wind warnings are in effect for area lakes today

City to consider resolution

A resolution continuing the city's collection of a one percent sales tax on the utility bills of Pampa residents will be considered by the city commission during its regular meeting at 3 p.m. Monday.

Several months ago the state repealed its four percent tax on utility bills, and made repeal of the local tax voluntary for each city. According to City Manager Mack Wofford, the city commission favors keeping the tax, which raises about $65,000 each year.

Wofford called the tax "the most equitable way to raise the money," and added "Most of the cities in this area have kept it."

A request for a rate schedule change from the owner of the Yellow Cab Co. at 820 E. Frederic will be heard by the commission. Commissioners will also hear from Johnny Sanders in reference to the city's fee for a mobile home moving permit. Sanders reportedly feels the $50 fee is excessive.

Amin says Tanzanians retreating

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin said today that Tanzanian invaders were retreating and that his forces had "captured intact long-range artillery and other military hardware."

Amin was quoted over Radio Uganda as saying that "reports from the battlefield since last night were encouraging — the enemy is retreating."

Amin said the morale of his forces was fine. He asked Ugandans to carry on with normal duties. "There is nothing to fear," he was quoted as saying.

Police officials at Mpigi, the town 25 miles southwest of Kampala that previous Uganda Radio broadcasts described as the front line of the conflict, answered telephones as usual but declined to give any information about the war.

However, spokesmen in Nairobi for Ugandan exile forces fighting alongside Tanzanian regulars said it appeared that Amin's promised counter-attack had begun. The spokesmen said they had expected the push to start during the night.

Uganda Radio said Thursday that the invaders were heading toward Mpigi. Diplomatic sources in Kampala said the invaders on Tuesday resumed their northern drive past Lukaya, 25 miles south of Mpigi, and had met no resistance from government troops.

The sources said there was no alarm in the capital but Amin signaled concern by urging his officers "to be the last to leave a military objective and to fight until the last man."

Libyan tanks, fighter planes, heavy artillery and infantry weapons were reported streaming into Kampala, but sources said none has been used so far against the Tanzanians or the anti-Amin exiles allied with them.

Since Uganda invaded Tanzania four months ago, Tanzania claims to have destroyed a major part of Amin's fleet of warplanes and while the condition of his 20,000-man army was not known, about one-third were believed refusing to fight.

Diplomats and observers said the invaders include about 3,000 exile fighters and perhaps 4,000 Tanzanians. Amin is believed to have about the same number ready to defend Kampala if the invaders reach that far.

"The next week or so should show whether the military balance has shifted in favor of Uganda," one foreign observer said.

Most believe Tanzanian President Julius K. Nyerere is more interested in keeping pressure on Amin to force his regime to fall from within, rather than sweeping through Kampala.

But diplomats said if the invaders are heading for Kampala and a final assault, their heavy guns will reach it within several days.

Economists watching unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 5.7 percent in February, the lowest in 4½ years since the 1974-1975 recession, the government said today.

The jobless rate was 5.8 percent in January.

The February jobs report by the Labor Department gave no indication that President Carter's economic slowdown policies have yet begun to push people out of work. However, the department reported a rise in unemployment among blacks and other minority members, especially black teen-agers.

These are the groups that usually suffer first when the economy begins to falter.

But job losses among minority groups were more than offset by gains for white workers, whose unemployment rates fell to 4.9 percent from 5.1 percent in January.

The overall unemployment rate of 5.7 percent last month was the lowest since August 1974 when unemployment was 5.4 percent of the labor force.

The department said total employment increased in February by 345,000 jobs to a total of 96.6 million. The number of people without jobs remained the same at 5.9 million.

The Carter administration reluctantly concluded some time ago that it would have to postpone efforts to further reduce unemployment and even allow for some increase in 1979 to combat the nation's worsening inflation rate.

The Labor Department added new evidence of continuing inflation Thursday when it reported that wholesale prices rose 1 percent in February, with higher food prices again leading the way.

The news prompted the administration to announce a crackdown on businesses violating the price guidelines of the government's anti-inflation program.

Alfred Kahn, Carter's chief inflation adviser, said the Council on Wage and Price Stability plans to publicly report the names of several businesses that have violated the price guidelines, although the businesses will have 10 days advance notice in which to first try to defend their actions.

He also said the council will step up its price-monitoring functions and extend them to smaller businesses in some industries where price increases have been most severe.

"Price developments in recent months have made it apparent that many medium- and smaller-sized firms are not complying with the price standard," Kahn said.

The administration said that in the 12-month period ending in February, wholesale prices increased 10 percent. A 3.3 percent February increase in the prices of unprocessed crude goods pointed to a possible worsening of inflation in months to come.

Vietnam disputes claim

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam, disputing China's claim that it was withdrawing troops from Vietnam, said today the Chinese invaders were "worse than the French and Americans" who fought in Vietnam.

China said the Vietnamese were shelling and harassing its forces as they withdrew from northern Vietnam.

Hanoi Radio, which earlier this week confirmed the Chinese withdrawal, said in a broadcast monitored here said that China was planning to "rotate" its troops rather than withdraw them. Hanoi demanded an "immediate, complete and unconditional" pull-out.

The Hanoi broadcast reiterated Vietnam's accusation of Chinese war crimes, saying Peking's soldiers were burning homes, destroying communication lines and stealing everything in sight "even women's underwear." Hanoi promised to crush the Chinese if they were using a purported "withdrawal as a smokescreen."

Analysts admitted it was difficult to say which side was responsible for eruptions of combat.

The latest battle report from Hanoi said Chinese artillery lobbed about 1,000 rounds against Lang Son and the surrounding area Thursday. Some of the heaviest fighting in the three-week-old frontier war has been around Lang Son, a provincial capital 80 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Peking's official Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency said the Vietnamese shelled the Chinese as they withdrew toward the Dong Dang area northwest of Lang Son on Tuesday, and similar harassing incidents occurred Wednesday and Thursday in other front-line areas.

But Xinhua said after the first withdrawing units crossed the border, jubilant crowds in the Chinese city of Pinxiang (Pin Hsiang) cheered the truckloads of troops, set off firecrackers and beat welcoming gongs and drums.

The official Vietnam News Agency claimed heavy fighting continued Thursday around Lang Son, the chief city in the northeast frontier area which is on the traditional Chinese invasion route into Vietnam. It claimed more than 300 Chinese were killed.

The Chinese were shelling Lang Son "around-the-clock," the report continued, and blowing up factories and civilian houses in the area. It said the withdrawal Peking announced Monday was proceeding very slowly and in very small numbers.

Radio Hanoi said today that despite China's "partial withdrawal," the nation must go ahead with the general mobilization ordered early this week and "take up positions to be ready for the Chinese troops when they come back."

Iran's Bazargan resigns

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan resigned from the country's provisional government today, but his resignation was turned down by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, a source close to the prime minister reported.

Bazargan, 70, reportedly submitted his resignation in the holy city of Qom, 100 miles south of Tehran, during the second special meeting with the religious and political leader in 24 hours.

The ayatollah, who masterminded the overthrow of the shah and appointed Bazargan to lead a new civilian government, reportedly gave Bazargan assurances of his continued support.

He was quoted as saying orders would be issued that would bolster government authority and curb the powers of Khomeini-appointed revolutionary committees, which run a parallel government to that of the prime minister.

Bazargan told the holy man Thursday he could not remain in office if "provocations" against his government continued.

The prime minister threatened to quit a week ago because the revolutionary committees and their Islamic revolutionary courts — a parallel government to his own — were undermining his attempts to establish his government's authority.

"If this goes on," he said then, "we will have no alternative but to resign."

On Wednesday, Khomeini attacked suggestions from the Bazargan government that the people should have the opportunity of establishing a Western-style democracy if they wished instead of the theocratic Islamic republic envisioned by the ayatollah.

"You are weak, sir," Khomeini said, addressing himself to Bazargan. "You are weak, and as long as you are weak you are under the influence of the strong ones."

Bazargan has been especially critical of the wholesale arrests, secret trials and executions carried out by the revolutionary committees without any reference to the provisional government.

SAN FRANCISCO police officers examine the body of jewelry store robbery suspect after a plainclothes patrolman shot the man Thursday. The man, identified by police as Perry Hughes, 21, of San Francisco, was dead instantly after being shot at a point-blank range by the officer, Daniel Hampton, as Hughes dragged a female hostage long a crowded sidewalk.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

Uncontrollable inflation

President Carter has said in six different ways that his first priority is controlling inflation. This might be considered half the battle, if it means that redistributing wealth henceforth will have a lower priority in Washington than salvaging the value of the money Americans have saved or expect to earn in the future.

The political significance of such a commitment may not be fully appreciated in official Washington - even in the White House. Having declared war on inflation, Carter cannot afford to be perceived as losing the war, or compromising on his strategy, when the presidential primaries begin a year from now.

So Carter is embarked on a hazardous adventure. He took the first step when he proposed a budget for 1980 carrying a projected deficit of $29 billion - a figure easily large enough to invite snickers when the president described his budget as "lean" enough to be non-inflationary.

Now the Congressional Budget Office is saying his estimate is way off. A deficit of $41 billion is more likely, according to the CBO. And neither of those estimates accounts for "off-budget" borrowing by the government, which could add $20 billion or more to the inflationary push from federal deficit spending.

The CBO differs with Carter on the deficit because it does not share his optimism about the performance of the economy in the coming year, which will affect both the amount the government collects in taxes and the amount it will decide to spend. Since no one knows for sure what's going to happen, this only points to the weakness of Carter's anti-inflation program.

With the 1978 inflation rate above 9 percent, it will be all the harder for administration to hold wage increases this year to its 7 percent guidelines. Nor does the inflation outlook make much of a case for Carter's "wage insurance," which would commit the government to make up the difference, via a tax rebate, if a worker settles for a 7 percent raise and the inflation rate moves higher than that.

Critics of the wage insurance plan point out it would add a new, open ended item to the federal budget when every effort is being made, supposedly, to hold down budget growth. That's reason enough for Congress to put it aside, and it is disappointing Carter did not see the trap it represents. He should have seen it, because that is exactly the kind of "uncontrollable" federal program that has forced him to retreat from his earlier goal of balancing the budget. Instead, he is trying to justify a $29 billion deficit - if it can be held to that.

Fully 75 percent of federal spending is now based on legislation passed by earlier Congresses. This includes entitlement programs that automatically provide benefits to one group or another and tie the amount of those benefits to an economic index. As long as these commitments are regarded as uncontrollable, the size of the budget will be determined more by prevailing social and economic conditions than by what is prudent fiscal policy.

Carter barely disturbed the scope of these politically sacrosanct programs in his budget - and even proposed to add a new one. Liberals in Congress are even less inclined to question them. But unless the administration and Congress begin to think the unthinkable, which is to control the "uncontrollables," they are not going to produce a budget that gives first priority to overcoming inflation.

People to people

Wall Street Journal
One of the favorite political tactics of Communist nations is to imply that the "people" of the Western democracies are more sympathetic towards Communist goals than are the Western governments. This is intended to emphasize the egalitarian professions of communism while at the same time implying that, in capitalist societies, governments have a weak popular base.

It is gratifying when something comes along to upset so patently false a doctrine. Something of that sort did come along last week when more than 2,400 American scientists pledged to stop cooperating with Soviet scientists until the Russians release physicist Yuri Orlov and mathematician Anatoly Shcharansky from jail. The two were jailed for demanding that the Soviet Union live up to the human rights provisions of the Helsinki agreement on European security.

The American group, which calls itself "scientists for Orlov and Shcharansky" or S.O.S. will not be taken lightly by the Soviet Union. There are 13 Nobel Prize winners in the group and, overall, it includes an important cross section of the American scientific community. There are 113 members of the National Academy of Sciences and leaders or former leaders of 20 major scientific societies represented.

The Russian government, painfully aware of the weak impulse of innovation in the Communist system, has taken great pains to encourage scientific exchanges between the U.S. and U.S.S.R. While American science may have benefited from these exchanges, there can be little doubt that the U.S.S.R. has had by far the larger gains.

Some 1,700 S.O.S. members signed a statement saying they will withhold all personal cooperation with the Soviet Union until Mr. Orlov and Mr. Shcharansky are released. Others in the group, while not forswearing all contact, promised to campaign against technology transfers and the granting of most-favored-nation status to Russia.

This expression of anger by intelligent, talented and non-political people over the internal policies of the Soviet Union says more than a hundred U.S. manifestos about human rights could say. It is the kind of people-to-people exchange authoritarian governments do not welcome. The Russians will soon see that they are paying a high price for suppressing scientists who dare to criticize the regime. We don't know if that will free the Soviet scientists but it may, at the very least, make it clear to the Kremlin that it is not running the kind of regime that the people of the world admire.

Why most of mankind is poor

The earth feeds some four billion people, but many of them not very well. Poverty is man's greatest enemy.

One in 20 of the earth's people lives in the United States and lives high on the hog. We are the lucky ones and the many poor look at us with envy.

Consider the Mexicans, who recently entertained our president. There are about 60 million of them. About half do not wear shoes. I, too, used to go barefoot but not because I had to.

Mexico has a cozy climate and miles of beaches, a tourist heaven. Those who like it cooler can go up in the mountains. Why is Mexico's climate so little exploited as a natural resource?

Many, probably too many, of the Mexicans live off the land. They grow cotton, wheat, sugar cane, sisal, buy yields are low, the climate being arid, the methods primitive.

Under the ground, Mexico has wealth - silver more plentiful than in any other country, copper, iron, other minerals and quantities of petroleum and natural gas, recently discovered. But much of it is still untouched.

And that is just the point. Most if not all the so-called "less-developed countries" - Third World is another term in vogue - abound in natural resources, but their people stagnate in poverty.

Mexico and most of Central and South America were settled by Europeans long before the United States. At that time Spain was richer than England, especially after the Spaniards took shiploads of gold out of Peru. Latin America had the capital, the labor and the land, but 400 years have passed and it is poor, while Anglo-America is rich.

There's no use bemoaning history. It cannot be changed. But what of the future? Surely the people of the poorer countries will awaken to their opportunity to put their resources to work and raise themselves to higher levels of living.

P. T. Bauer, British economist, points out that it should be easier for the undeveloped areas of today to develop than it was for the U.S. and Canada because we have explored the way and proven how it can be done.

We had raw land and brawny labor. To get capital, we borrowed from a previously developed area, Northern Europe. We did not borrow from the governments of Europe, but mainly from the private capitalists and savers, repaying principal with interest. Let the people and firms of the Third World, too, borrow from the savers of the United States, Europe, Japan.

Bauer holds that capital obtained through private channels is sure to be more productively used than money given by governments as "foreign aid" because the users are held accountable. Billions of aid money has gone down the drain because no return was required.

As Americans produced, they exported, thus paying for manufactured goods they needed and for additional capital goods. The Third World has an even better opportunity to export, the world market being far larger and more accessible than a century ago.

Meanwhile, our people developed a technology - methods, that is - of growing two ears of corn where one had grown before. Our engineers fashioned better machines out of the same raw materials. With the technology we speeded ahead. The Third World need not devise a technology. It can use ours. Knowledge is cheap. One way they are getting it is by sending their young people here to study in our universities. They are importing mental capital.

Natural resources, labor, capital, technology - all these are at the hand of the Third World, ready to be used. But one more ingredient was present in the mix that made America, and that was freedom. The Third Worlders should not fool themselves. This is an essential factor of production.

Unfortunately, they lack it. Most of the underdeveloped countries are infected with the virulent notion that you can best organize society by force rather than by volition. India's attempt to check population growth by forcing men to be sterilized is an example. Tanzania herding millions into collectivized villages is another.

One wonders why the extensive resources of Mexico have not been fully exploited. Can it be because Mexico has never known real freedom? It has a one-party government today. Government-owned corporations and agencies operate key industries throughout Latin America. A government monopoly, Pemex, runs the oil industry in Mexico. This suggests why this precious resource of the Mexicans is still mostly underground, despite the fabulous demand for petroleum products in nearby United States.

But we should not blame the Mexicans alone. Our own country cradle of freedom, restricts freedom of trade and of migration. The Mexican farm worker, desperately trying to raise himself and his family, cannot go north of the Rio Grande, where work awaits him, without being hounded as an "illegal."

Portillo was angry because we would not buy Mexico's natural gas, but the reason we refused to buy was simple, the price. We could obtain gas elsewhere more cheaply. On this visit, Carter smoothed Portillo's feathers by assuring him we'll still be in the market for gas.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, March 9, the 68th day of 1979. There are 297 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1862, the first battle between ironclad ships was fought in the Civil War encounter between the Monitor and the Merrimack at Hampton Roads, Va.

On this date:
In 1451, the Italian navigator for whom America is named, Amerigo Vespucci, was born in Florence.

In 1796, Napoleon Bonaparte married Josephine.

In 1860, the first Japanese ambassador to the United States arrived in San Francisco, accompanied by a delegation of 74 men.

In 1916, Mexicans under Pancho Villa attacked Columbus, N.M., killing 15 people.

In 1942, the Japanese completed the conquest of the Dutch island of Java in World War II.

In 1970, the United States declined to recognize the new white-ruled Republic of Rhodesia and closed the U.S. consulate in that African country.

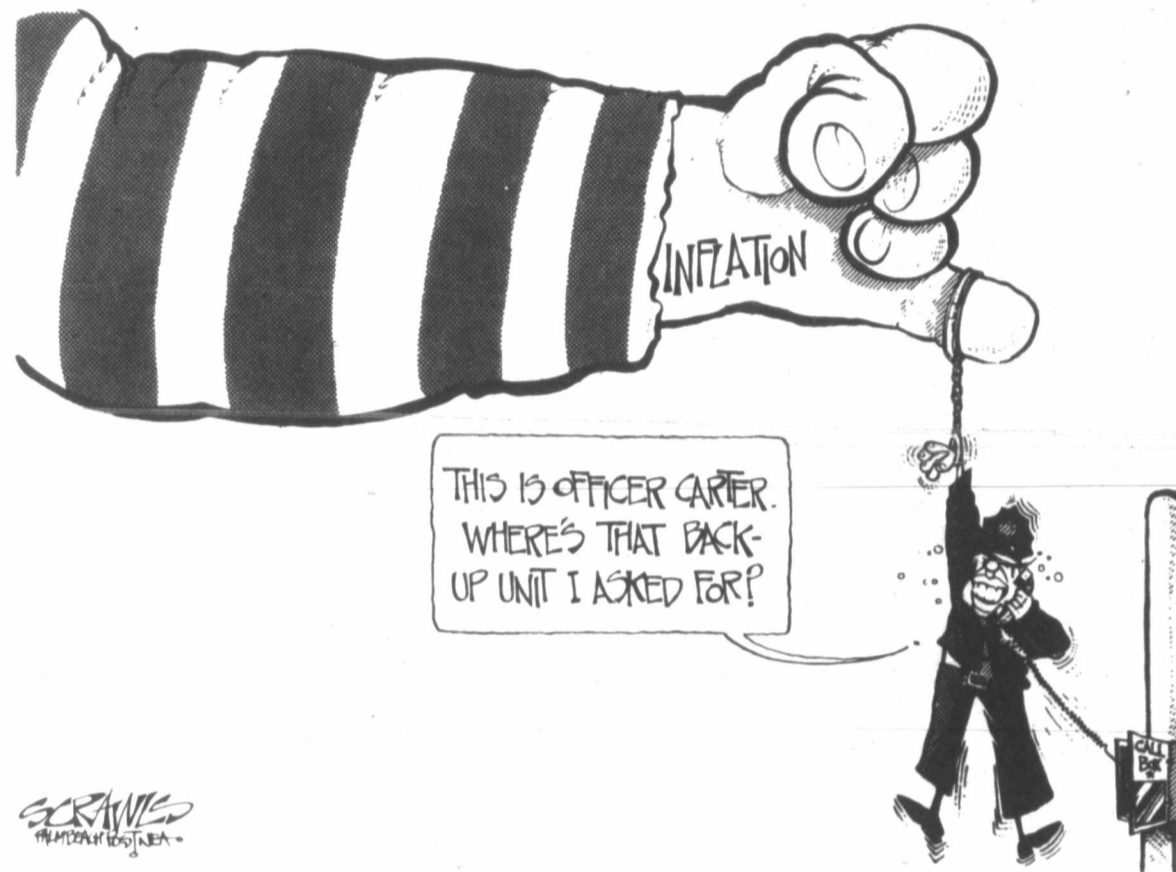

Ten years ago: The chief of staff of Egypt's armed forces, Lt. Gen. Moneim Riad, was killed during an Israeli-Egyptian gun battle across the Suez Canal.

Five years ago: Seven of President Richard Nixon's former associates pleaded not guilty to charges of covering up the Watergate burglary.

One year ago: Striking coal miners were ordered back to work under a Taft-Hartley court injunction.

Today's birthdays: Composer Samuel Barber is 69. Mystery writer Mickey Spillane is 61.

Thought for today: Love must be learned and learned again and again. There is no end to it - novelist Katherine Anne Porter.

MURPHY DOUGHERTY

COMMENTARY

The History makers

by Donald F. Graff

Whoever holds that events, not men, make history is not reckoning with the likes of Teng Hsiao-ping.

Although nominally only a deputy premier, the man who holds and is so vigorously wielding the real power in Peking these days is visibly reshaping the history not only of his own country but that of the world at large.

The cascading developments that have marked China's emergence as an active participant in that world during the past year have been, so far as observers outside can determine, largely his doing. They have now brought China and the United States to resumption of full diplomatic relations.

It may be argued that this normalization of contact is a development whose time has not only come but is past due by several years. And it may be, as Washington reports have it, that the timing was tailored to the Carter administration's convenience.

But it is questionable that this final, longest step in rapprochement since Richard Nixon's 1972 initiative could have been taken without the decisiveness of a Teng willing to agree to disagree on Taiwan - in effect, to ignore the single major difference that in both Peking and Washington had long been viewed as irreconcilable.

Having taken China so far in such a short time, Teng looms over the world scene at the beginning of the new year like an aged Alexander ready for new conquests. Like the original, he has been a man in a hurry - and for his own very good reasons.

Teng is 74. He has waited a long time to be in a position to put his pragmatism to work in taming a revolution for so long dominated by ideological wish fulfillment. He may not have too much longer to see huge, backward China firmly committed to remaking itself into the modern industrial state he foresees by the end of the century.

Which raises a question for the rest of the world in trying to foresee its relationship with a China in such a dramatic state of transformation. Shall this, too, soon pass?

History is filled with examples of revolutions that have reversed themselves, often repeatedly. People's China itself already has been a short distance down the present road, in 1957 when Mao Tse-tung briefly encouraged the blossoming of all those flowers. China's neighbor and rival, the Soviet Union, in its own lengthening experience with socialism in practice has repeatedly turned to and withdrawn from the developed nations from which flow so many technological benefits but also ideological contamination.

Teng, again so far as the outside world can determine, seems to be firmly in control of events for the present. And he has clearly touched a responsive chord in the Chinese public, at least the articulate portion of it. The younger generation appears ready for realism and turned off by the radicalism it experienced in Mao's Cultural Revolution, all that sound and fury which ended up signifying nothing for China's practical development.

But very little is known about China's next generation of leadership, the ranks behind the below Teng. He and Hua Kuo-feng, the nominal head of state and party, may see eye to eye as they profess. Or they may not. With time on his side as Teng's junior by two decades Hua could be quietly bidding his time.

Opposition there must be. Otherwise, why continue the propaganda campaign against an already discredited "Gang of Four"? Obviously, somewhere there are still those in positions of some influence who resist Teng's changing of revolutionary course.

The view from 1979

"I don't see him getting hold of this."
"He needs to convey a stronger sense there is some fire under his belly."
"Stability has to come from the top and I'm not sure he can provide it."
"He", in case you haven't already caught the drift, is Jimmy (James Earl) Carter, 39th president of the United States and, according to the large school of critics such as supplied the above quotes for a recent Wall Street Journal mini-analysis of his presidency, very likely to give way to the 40th in 1980.

To those who know their presidential politics and performances, Jimmy Carter is not viewed as promising material for a two-term presidency. He is seen as beset by seas of troubles at home and abroad and woefully short of arms - or will - to take up against them.

For just a few headline examples, the collapse of Iran has eroded the U.S. position throughout the Middle East and beyond. Israeli-Egyptian dickering may not be quite all the way back to square one, but it has certainly backed up. And it may be questioned whether there be more rabbits to be pulled out of the Camp David hat.

The United States may no longer be a party of the first part in Southeast Asia, but it is acutely concerned over a conflict there it cannot control but that could well involve it in war - and - peace consequences.

At home, inflation rages - and rages and rages - with the public not perceiving Carter as providing the leadership necessary to straighten out the economy. Big labor's George Meany, after some flipping and flopping, has declared himself off the president's team. But Carter can't have all the luck. There is still Congress, which may be willing to play, but its way-raising the possibility that a veto threat - override threat confrontation will stall progress on an anti-inflation program of any description.

Under the dismal circumstances, critics may be right that the Carter presidency at mid-first term has nowhere to go but down and out. On the other hand, it may at this point be worth remembering some very recent history.

Back in the late 1960s, when Lyndon Johnson was being war - protested into unwilling retirement so shortly after he had been riding so politically high, there was a lot of speculation that the presidency might have developed into a one-term job. It was suggested that the complexity of domestic and world problems, the pressures on an incumbent president and the potentially devastating consequences of wrong decisions, made it increasingly unlikely that an individual of less than superhuman powers could either stand the pace for more than one term or retain sufficient public popularity to be re-elected.

"No, he's not doing Tai Chi. That's just the way he always moves in the morning."

Welfare board sets targets

Gray County Child Welfare Board member Rev. Joe Turner told an audience "do your duty as citizens and report any cases of child abuse or neglect" in a program designed to increase community awareness of the problem Thursday night at the Lovett Memorial Library.

The program, called "In the Best Interests of the Child," was hosted by the county welfare board, newly formed in May 1978, and local caseworkers for the Texas Department of Human Resources.

According to figures presented at the program, DHR handled 214 cases of reported child abuse or neglect in 1978, including 137 in the second half of the year.

Turner said cases reported in the fall were three times as high as the normal rate, possibly due to media exposure of the problem.

Under state law, it is a misdemeanor to fail to report cases of child abuse.

Of the 214 cases investigated 78 were reported to be validated instances of child abuse.

Joyce Shimeck, a DHR caseworker, described the department's alternatives in dealing with parents of abused children. Every effort, Shimeck said, was made to work with the family so that the children could remain in the home. Shimeck said efforts were made to provide families with outside counseling services if necessary.

A possible second approach is the department applying to the court for protective custody of the child. The child would then be temporarily placed in a foster home.

About 20 families in Gray County are currently serving as foster parents, but the caseworker said the department could "always use more." The county currently has no "emergency" foster parents—those who have formally agree to take a child at any time—but Shimeck said the regular foster parents had responded well in emergency situations.

The caseworker said that during protective custody, the goal was to return the children to their natural parents "if at all possible." Contracts are sometimes made with parents whose children have been temporarily removed from their custody, specifying what needs of the child are to be met before his return to the home.

She estimated that more than half of the children taken into protective custody are returned to their natural parents.

Shimeck said the final alternative was a legal motion to terminate parental rights to the custody of the child.

Shimeck emphasized the need to report suspected cases of child abuse, saying strict confidentiality was maintained by law in the department.

"You can remain anonymous when you call us about a suspected case," she said. "But we like to have your name if we can so that we can ask for more information if we need it."

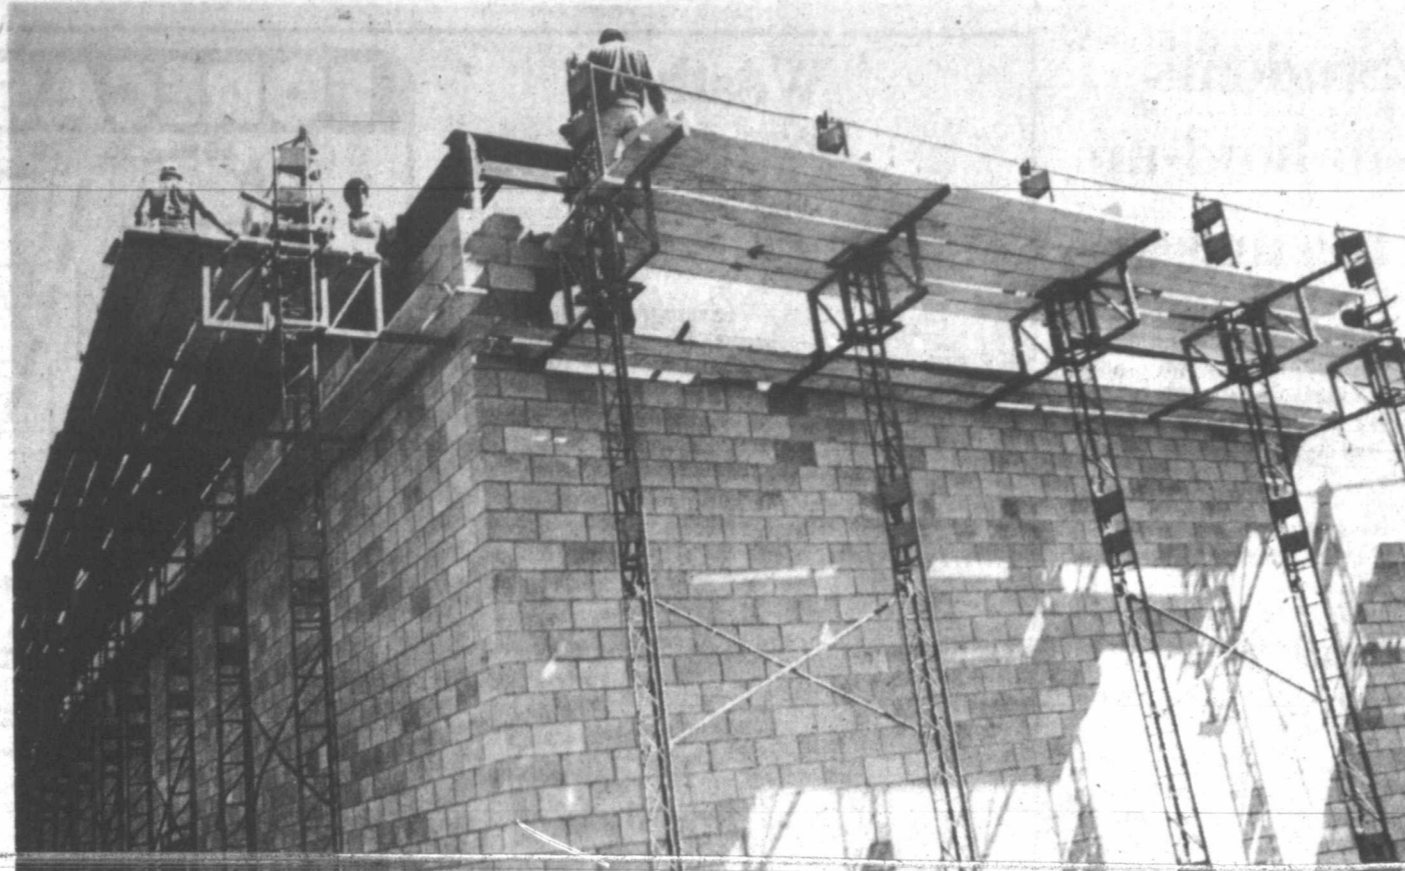

In a short address, County Attorney David Martindale described his role in prosecuting abuse and neglect cases. Martindale said he was a "buffer zone" between caseworkers, parents, and the court.

"Not too many years ago child abuse was a hushed subject," Martindale said. "Now we're able to open up and talk about it."

The county attorney said the hardest part of his job was "maintaining my objectivity in certain severe cases."

At the beginning of the program the audience was given a grim view of the physical reality of child abuse through an ABC TV film "Children in Peril."

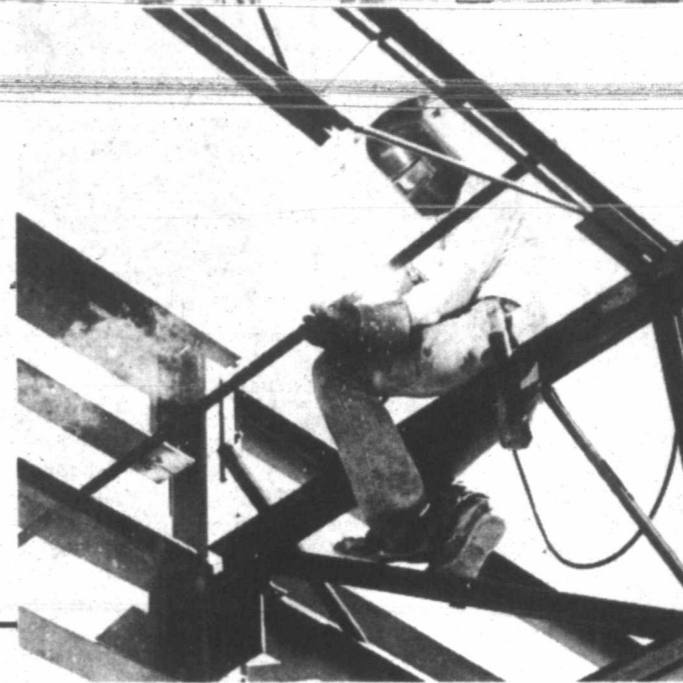

Welfare board chairman Bob Carmichael said the board hopes to be able to present a shorter version of the program to local civic clubs.

Pampa mall

PAMPA MALL CONSTRUCTION continues at a steady pace, as can be seen by these photos taken Thursday. Paving of the parking lot is about to begin. According to workers at the site, J.C. Penney Co. is already preparing to start moving in early next week. The 200,000 square-foot, air-conditioned mall is scheduled to be completed in late spring.

It sounds like a revival

MALLEN, Texas (AP) — It starts to sound like a revival—complete with a reformed sinner trying to get others to see the light—when former Texas Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr talks about tax reform.

"During my years in politics in this state I learned how to tax you when you didn't even know it. I learned how to put taxes on you and you like it because I knew how to do it," Carr told a small audience here Thursday night.

The West Texan who spent 17 years in state government is now trying to teach other Texans how to deal with their government. Carr is the president of Texas 13, an organization seeking tax relief and initiative and referendum rights for Texans.

"I don't apologize for that because I did it the best way I knew," Carr said of his years as a tax-setter. "But what I am trying to say to you is that I had a part in building this monster that's now out of control. I want to do everything I can to help you get it back under control."

Carr told the gathering of 40 persons that it is the system—not the people within the system—that offers the largest obstacle to tax relief.

Faculty members oppose selection

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Joe Bishop joins the University System of South Texas board of directors knowing that one-third of the faculty members at one system school opposed his appointment.

Despite the 77 signatures against Bishop from professors at Texas A&I University, the Senate Thursday confirmed the Fort Worth resident's appointment, 24-4.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said faculty opposition forced him to oppose Bishop.

"I will not deny the fact that he did a lot of good for the alumni association in organizing chapters and in lobbying for the university," said Truan, whose district includes the Kingsville campus.

When Bishop, 38, stepped down in 1975 as director of the Texas A&I alumni association, Truan said the organization was $12,000 more in debt than realized.

"No one says he absconded, stole or misplaced the funds," Truan said. The debt just represented mismanagement, he added.

The senator said his opposition was not based on racial or ethnic motives, as some might have thought.

"If confirmed, I think he will do the job," he said.

In addition to the alumni group, Bishop lobbied for Texas A&I at the Legislature and later was vice chancellor.

Sen. A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, D-Galveston, said those positions probably created uneasiness with the faculty.

"He might well be a better regent at some other university, but not at this one given the situation," Schwartz said.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, criticized Truan's reasons for opposing Bishop.

"Universities don't belong to senators in whose district they reside. Neither do they belong to the faculties or the students," said Parker.

"That would be a terrible thing to turn the universities over to students and faculties," he continued. "They did that in France and it resulted in the darkest hour of education in France."

Parker said testimony against Bishop during a nominations hearing smacked of McCarthyism.

"The people who came to testify against him were his political opponents on the precinct level when he lived in Kingsville," said Parker, adding he considered Bishop a personal friend.

The alumni association was in the red before Bishop took over, Parker said.

Joining Truan and Schwartz in opposing Bishop were Sens. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena and Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Hemphill County Show on slate for Saturday

CANADIAN—The Annual Hemphill County 4-H and FFA Junior Livestock Show, sponsored by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, is slated for Saturday at the Canadian High School Bus Barn.

More than $1600 in prize money will be awarded young livestock producers, according to John Wilkerson who is in charge of the show.

The prize money will be divided among winners in the swine, lamb, and steer divisions.

The Hemphill County Farm Bureau will provide trophies for champions in the lamb and steer divisions and C&H Supply of Shamrock will furnish trophies for the winners of the swine competition.

Special awards will also be given for showmanship, with the Production Credit Association of Canadian furnishing trophies for winners of the steer Competition, and John Hopkins of Amicable Life presenting trophies for showmanship winners in the swine division.

A special Topland Award Trophy will be given to the top showman in the competition by the Chamber of Commerce.

The swine exhibition will open the show at 10 a.m., with the steer show to follow at 1 p.m. The lamb exhibition will be held immediately after the steer show.

Merle Nichols, a vocational agriculture instructor from Hardesty, Okla., will judge the show.

The show will be covered live by Cable 6 radio in Canadian.

Civil war battle

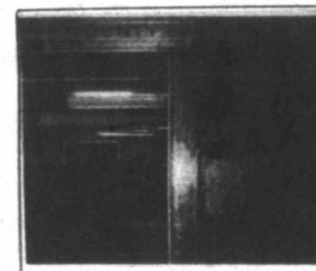

The last land engagement of the Civil War was fought at Palmito Ranch near Brownsville, Texas, and the Southern troops won!

Confederates under the command of Col. John S. Ford, unaware of Lee's surrender at Appomattox a month earlier, routed and captured a federal force in a running encounter May 12-13, 1863. It was a case of winning the battle but losing the war, because the Confederates learned of the South's capitulation from their federal prisoners. Acquiescing, Col. Ford handed over his sword, the victors then becoming captives of their former prisoners.

The Gray County Courthouse is one of the community's most important buildings—even if you never enter it. In its vaults are stored the vital statistics of our community—the birth certificate containing the community's first recognition that a human life has joined the community; the marriage certificate stating the community's recognition that two people now live as one; the tax records, litigation records, and finally, the death certificate which is the recognition that a life has finally left the community. The funeral is also a public record—sort of a certificate given by the entire community that a person has lived, had worth and meaning, has loved and was loved, and now has died. At Duenkel-Smith Funeral Home, the funeral—the community's death certificate for an individual—is handled with care for the same reasons valuable records are placed in carefully protected vaults.

Oil company to change hands

CANADIAN—The Malouf Abraham Company, a Canadian oil and gas concern, has sold a substantial portion of its production and will be liquidated by the end of the year, according to Malouf Abraham, President.

The corporation was split into a partnership in January, retaining the same ownership, but will now be known as the Moody Energy Company.

The corporation recently acquired the historical Moody Hotel in Canadian involving an extensive renovation program. Corporation offices are now located on the second floor of the former hotel.

The Moody Energy Company will continue in all phases of the oil and gas business, with no change of personnel or method of doing business.

Students to hold-up businesses

The Student Council of Pampa High School will give up farming and will put on cowboy boots, hats and six-guns March 24 to rob local businesses for Easter Seal donations.

The members will meet Saturday at their hideout at the Hughes Building, where they will discuss the day's plans. Businesses that wish to make a donation and be a part of the action can call Betty Chamberlain or Kerry Adair at Pampa High School.

The donations will be presented at a local telephone presentation March 24-25. The national Easter seals telephone can be viewed with actor Jack Klugman hosting.

The Pampa News and the local Boy Scouts will sponsor the pledge center here.

The money will be used to help handicapped people by providing them equipment and other advantages. Local donations are spent on people in the Panhandle area.

Weather

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
 A cold front moved across much of the northern half of Texas today, accompanied by showers, thunderstorms, brisk winds and some brief snow flurries.

The snow flurries were confined to the Panhandle. By dawn today, the front was moving along a line from Wichita Falls to Midland to southern New Mexico.

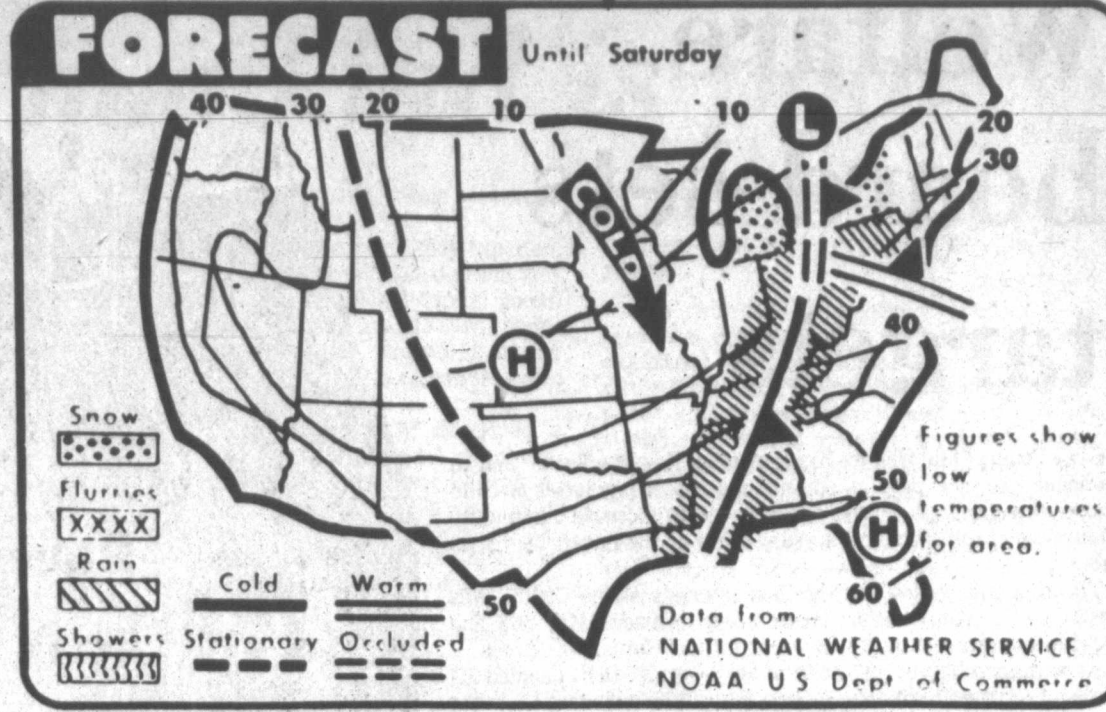

Winds gusted to about 40 mph in portions of the Panhandle early today.

Forecasts called for considerable cloudiness over northwestern sections of the state and for partly cloudy skies over the remainder of the state.

Some scattered showers and thunderstorms were to spread over portions of Central and East Texas ahead of the advancing front.

The cooler air was to spread into Central Texas by afternoon. Highs were to range from the lower 40s in the Panhandle to the middle to upper 80s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Early morning temperatures are ranged from the 30s in Northwest Texas to the 60s in the Valley. Extremes ranged from 34 at Dalhart to 64 at McAllen.

WEATHER FORECAST calls for rain in the central Gulf to the Northeast. Snow is expected in the Great Lakes with sunny and generally mild weather expected for the rest of the nation.

National

Authorities in Illinois and Indiana kept a close watch today on the Kankakee River and two large ice jams that have caused flooding and led to the evacuation of hundreds of people.

A spokesman for the Kankakee auxiliary police Civil Defense unit in Illinois said today that the situation was stable.

"To say what will happen today is unpredictable," he said. "When the ice lets loose from a jam, there's no telling what will happen. Right now the water is about 5 feet above normal, but the condition is stable. Both the jams are standing high and fluctuation of a few inches could mean trouble."

Strake takes second blow on 'slush fund'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Secretary of State George Strake, first Republican to hold the job in a century, has taken his second blow in a week from largely Democratic legislators.

The House voted Thursday to put tight limits on a fees bill that one representative said would have allowed Strake to accumulate a "slush fund."

House members then passed the bill, 115-7, and returned it to the Senate for action on an amendment that made it quite different from what senators had passed.

The Senate-passed bill, sponsored by Republican Sen. Ike Harris of Dallas, would have allowed Strake to set and collect a "reasonable fee" for expedited filing or handling of any document. It would have left the money in the secretary of state's hands for spending "as provided by legislative appropriation."

But Rep. Charles Evans, D-Fort Worth, offered an amendment putting a $10 ceiling on fees and requiring the secretary of state to deposit them in the treasury instead of using them for his office.

Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, said it appeared Strake was trying to make himself look good by cutting his budget on the one hand while enabling his office — through the fees — to spend even more.

Rep. Ben Grant, D-Marshall, the sponsor, said secretaries of state had been charging fees for many years, "and this is not going to be new money they are getting."

"This would allow the secretary of state to do what no other state official can do, set up a slush fund.... The secretary of state is asking for less money but also is asking for this slush fund so nobody can see what he is doing.... It is a complete change from anything we have ever done for a state office," Evans said.

Grant tried to table the amendment, but the House refused, 118-15, and the amendment was added to the bill.

Senate action on the amendment is required before the bill can go to Gov. Bill Clements — who appointed Strake — for signature.

Last week, a Senate committee overrode Strake's protests and approved a resolution that would seize nine of his 11 offices in the Capitol for conversion to offices for senators.

Students to participate in Lubbock meeting

Some 2,000 high school students will set up house at Lubbock today and Saturday when the Future Homemakers of America of Area 1 hold an annual meeting.

Pampa will send 28 students to participate in the activities. More than 100 chapters will be represented at the gathering, which has the theme, "Today is the Beginning of Tomorrow." Most of the events will be held at Texas Tech University.

Scheduled banquets and sessions will focus on leadership opportunities for the local chapter members.

A banquet Friday night will enable students to get to know each other while being entertained by a quartet from the Chimes Chapter of the Sweet Adelines of Lubbock. Awards will be presented to advisors and to outstanding members.

At one of the first sessions, beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday, thirty candidates will run for district officer positions.

Spark Plug Sessions will be held at 8 and 9 a.m. and will cover topics, such as Effects of Drugs, Building a Happy Marriage, Management of My Time, Nutrition and You, Rape Prevention, Careers in Home Economics, Charm - Developing Poise, and Use of Leisure Time.

Brenda Parker, a home economics freshman and national FHA president, will address the students at a general session at 10:30 a.m. Her speech is entitled "Begin Today."

FOCUS

Red Cross Month

In 1859, a young Swiss businessman named Jean Henri Dunant was touring Italy when he came upon a battlefield where 40,000 men lay dead or wounded. Dunant was appalled by the suffering he saw, and organized a group of volunteers to help the survivors. In 1862, he published a book about his experience, suggesting that each country set up its own volunteer organization to help those wounded in war, "without regard for their nationality." Dunant's idea eventually became the Red Cross, and Dunant himself was awarded the first Nobel Peace Prize in 1901. Today there are Red Cross societies in more than 100 countries. March is Red Cross Month.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the first president of the American Red Cross?
THURSDAY'S ANSWER — The New York Yankees won last year's World Series.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: Now I know why God lets the woman outlive her husband by about 10 years. She needs at least that much time to rest and recuperate. Pity the poor woman who's been married 50 years. I've been married 17 years, and if this man of mine doesn't go pretty soon, I pray to God that I will soon be laid to rest. I couldn't take another 33 years of this.

It's nag and brag! Rant and rave! Yell and cuss! All he has on his mind is eat, sleep and sex (especially sex). A poor woman goes to bed tired and wakes up tired. All a man is good for is his paycheck.

I've heard women talk about how lonely they are after their husbands pass on. Well, here is one who is looking forward to that day:

NO SIG IN GARDEN CITY

DEAR NO SIG: Too bad you didn't sign your name. A husband is entitled to know how his wife feels about him. He may want to hire a food taster.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from LIKES IT LEGAL, who complained because her boyfriend told her that the men in his family never married—they just took common-law wives. While your response was sound, you missed a good opportunity to correct a common misconception about common-law marriages.

A common-law marriage IS a legal and binding marriage, just as valid as a ceremonial marriage with a license!

A couple who live together, cohabit, and have established a reputation in their community as man and wife, are, in the eyes of the law, LEGALLY married.

Furthermore, common-law marriage cannot be ended by one spouse simply moving out. Each party has legal obligations to the other, just as husband and wife have in a so-called "legal" marriage.

Thus, common-law marriage is much more than just "shacking up" or living together, and it should be made plain that all couples who decide to live together do not necessarily establish a common-law relationship.

Abby, 20 states still recognize common-law marriage, and Ohio is one of them.

OHIO LAWYER

DEAR LAWYER: Thank you for pointing out that in those states where common-law marriages are recognized, they are as valid and binding as a marriage can be. And thank you too for letting my readers know that "shacking up" does not necessarily constitute a common-law marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I am having a problem with my 11-year-old daughter, an only child. Annie thinks she's old enough to stay by herself when my husband and I go out for a few hours in the evening. She says she is the only one in her class who still has a sitter.

My husband thinks Annie is right. She isn't a dumb child. She's in a special class with gifted children, but to me, that doesn't matter. I still think an 11-year-old should not be left at night without an adult. I would appreciate your opinion.

ANNIE'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Age is not always the most important factor. (Some 11-year-olds have more sense than their 17-year-old sitters.) I would not be influenced, however, by what the other kids in her class do. YOU must decide whether your daughter is able to stay by herself.

Dr. Lamb

by lawrence lamb m.d.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 17-year-old male and I recently lost a great amount of weight by going on a diet and improving my exercise. I lost between 40 and 50 pounds. However, this great weight loss has left an excessive amount of flab on my abdomen. Please do not suggest sit-ups. I do them three times a day and it does not help. Can you suggest anything?

DEAR READER—I am really surprised at how often this question is raised. What to do depends upon what you mean by flab. Also since I don't know how overweight you were to begin with, it's difficult for me to know whether you have still more fat to lose. You should be able to tell by feeling how much fat there is underneath your skin—if any.

Loose skin may never fully contract. That's why people shouldn't get fat in the first place, even if they're very young. If you stretch the skin too much, it will only snap back so far.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 37, Girth Control: Avoiding the Big Middle, even though I suspect you have accomplished a lot of what this issue advises. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I am going to advise sit-ups and leg lifts for you. Many people don't realize that sit-ups do not tone up all of the abdomen. They are primarily for the upper abdominal muscles, those above the navel. They have very little effect on the muscles below the navel. These must be tightened up with leg lift type exercises. I'd like to add that anyone with back problems should not try doing leg lift exercises without his doctor's approval.

Sit-ups, voluntary contraction of abdominal muscles, leg lifts and eliminating fat under the skin and fat inside the abdomen are the keys to tightening up the waist area. If you still have a lot of loose skin a year after undergoing a fat control program then if you want to get rid of it, you'll have to consider surgical removal.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY—I have just noticed that wax from Christmas candles dripped onto my tablecloths. How can I remove the wax and the color left from it from both perma-press and terry cloths? - KAREN.

DEAR KAREN—First scrape off any blobs of wax with a dull knife and then place the areas with the remaining wax between several layers of paper towels and press over the top with a hot iron. This will dissolve the wax and transfer it from the cloth to the absorbent paper. Keep shifting the paper towel as the wax is absorbed into it.

When colored candles leave spots on colored fabrics, soak stains in one part alcohol and two parts water (do not use on acetates) and then wash and rinse. Diluted bleach will remove them from white fabrics. - POLLY.

COUNTING THE VOTE—Every year Beta Sigma Phi selects a woman in the community to reign as Woman of the Year. This is a special honor, and the woman selected must possess outstanding qualities in her service to church, community and family. She must give unselfishly of her time and talents in all phases of community activities. The time is approaching for this year's Woman of the Year to be chosen. Making plans and counting the vote are, left to right, chairman Retha Jordan, Janice Snider, Pat Lee, Zindi Richardson, Pattie Skidmore and Jana Hahn.

Catalyst boosts women up ladder

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—In the 17 years since Felice Schwartz founded Catalyst, the organization's focus has shifted from counseling women re-entering the work force to expanding the career options of women already working.

But its goal has remained constant: to see women in productive careers, to the benefit of themselves, of their families, of industry and of society.

"Our goal has always been one responsive to the needs of women, whatever the period," said Ms. Schwartz, president of the national non-profit organization that helps women choose, launch and advance their careers. "The emphasis has changed by virtue of the needs of women changing."

She started Catalyst in 1962 with the help of five college presidents—"The only people who tended to be interested in careers of women then were college presidents who had educated them"—and in its early years it concentrated on persuading employers that they would get "the cream of people" if they would accept women as part-time workers.

"I happened to be in the class of '45," said Ms. Schwartz, 54, a graduate of Smith College, "the year in which the revolting concept of togetherness was discovered, the idea of going to the suburbs and doing all those terrible things we were conditioned to do."

As this isolated group of upper-middle-class women saw their children grow up and leave, they became frustrated and angry, groping for something useful to do, she adds.

"I'm not going for a minute to deprecate the experience of raising kids," says Ms. Schwartz, who has three grown children. "It's rewarding, but not as a life work. I had spent eight years with my kids exclusively and had time to think about what I wanted to do next.

"My peers were anxious about what they would do, wanting to work but also to keep a foot in the door at home. Catalyst's concern in the early years was to see whether what they wanted was possible and to try to help them get it."

As women began having fewer children, and returned to work when the youngest went to nursery school instead of after a 20-year hiatus, thus lessening the re-entry problem, the group's emphasis shifted to helping the woman already working.

"We started dealing with the socialization gap," Ms. Schwartz explained. "Woman has been a nurturer, not programmed to the qualities business needs: aggression, concern with the bottom line."

"It will take three generations to change: the first generation, the vanguard, breaking through; the second generation, they're beginning to move up the corporation ladder but haven't had a role model; the third generation, daughters of career women. By then it will be truly accepted that women will have careers."

At the start, the average age of women helped by Catalyst was 45, but now it is reaching girls as young as 14, using filmstrips and publications to make even the high-school student aware that she can have a career, and to expose her to the choices.

"Because of legislative pressure, the careers previously most closed to women are most open now, since they have the greatest deficit to make up," Ms. Schwartz points out.

Educational and career counseling, among other services, are offered by Catalyst's 200 local resource centers over the country. Its publications include manuals on resume preparation and how to conduct an interview and a series on career opportunities, a list of which can be obtained from the organization's headquarters at 14 East 60th St. New York, N.Y. 10022.

"The message has to filter out larger and stronger and further than it has to college women, who are not planning for a career as males are," Ms. Schwartz declares. "We're trying to tell them, 'the voice in the back of your head that says someone will take care of you is a deceptive one. (If you're divorced) where are you at 30 with one or two children and no career plans?'"

With married women pursuing serious careers, Ms. Schwartz sees "a greater change in society than anything since the industrial revolution. We are on the verge of a tremendous upheaval in values and modes of operation. The couple has to perceive itself as one in which the career of each is equally important, crossing boundaries of salary and status."

"They will progress their careers by taking steps that serve their aggregate need, making a move if the total package is better, regardless if one stands still and the other moves forward."

"There must be sharing up and down the line, not assuming it's the woman who is responsible for home and children. Nobody sacrifices, and the total best interest of the family is served: both have careers; both have children; the children have two parents."

Area dietitians at seminar

The Panhandle Dietetic Association is conducting its ninth annual seminar at the Quality Inn, Interstate 40 East, Amarillo.

The following personnel from the department of dietetics at Highland General Hospital will be participating in the two-day session: Wilma Hayter, R.D., Betty Osbin, D.T., Marie Cloud, HIEFFS, Oona Williamson, HIEFFS, Dorothy Shelton, HIEFFS, Karen West, HIEFFS, Coleen Carpenter, HIEFFS, and Sybil Brantley. Charlene Miller will be attending from the dietetic department at McLean

General Hospital. The topic for this year's seminar is "Methods to Improve Employee and Patient Relations."

Dennis Folds, director of management and development at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas, will present information on the power of expectation and identify its usefulness as a communication tool in the participant's personal and professional life.

Patsy Feigle will discuss how to change none-assertive behavior to assertive behavior. Changing requires a change in basic belief patterns as well as a change in behavior. Participants at the seminar will be taught new thought patterns and specific communication skills to help them toward assertiveness. Ms. Feigle has a private counseling and psychotherapy practice in Houston. She holds a master of social work degree from the University of Houston.

Principles of perception will be discussed by Laurance J. Taylor, management consultant, Hillsdale, Mich. Taylor is co-author of the book "Why Do you See it That Way."

Women's emphasis week planned

Women's Emphasis Week at Frank Phillips College will be March 12-16. Co-sponsor is the women's division of the Berger Chamber of Commerce.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. Monday and the first speakers will be Steve Cross, Gary Turner and Charles Cooke, Berger, who will discuss estate planning.

A number of topics will be covered during the week-long program, including the legal rights of women; how to talk to your children about sex; self-protection; hair styling; processing computer systems; non-traditional roles for women; flower arranging; women and alcohol; how to say no to the stork; and the metric system.

On Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. there will be a tour of Phillips Petroleum Co. plant facilities.

The program will end with a noon luncheon on Friday when the speaker will be Jean Burchett, the Erma Bombeck of the Panhandle.

Further information may be obtained from Marilyn Butler, 1237 Russell, Pampa.

Canine star goes into exile

Rather than be on the lam on Broadway, Sandy, the canine star of "Annie," has gone into exile in the suburbs.

"I still love New York, and so does Sandy," owner Bill Berloni told the New York Times, "but we had to get out of the city when the new law went into effect, making it not so nice a place for us to live."

He was referring to New York's dog clean-up law, which forced him and pet pooch to move to Glen Rock, N.J., and a house with a backyard that Sandy can befall at will without subjecting Berloni to a summons.

Music tunes up skier's rhythm

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP)—The secret to becoming a good skier, claims research scientist Walter L. Abel, is to get relaxed. The best way to do this is to get rhythm—and music can provide the body with the rhythm it needs, he adds.

Abel, vice president, research and development, for Emhart Corp. here, has spent considerable time researching and perfecting his skiing-to-music techniques. He noticed that some days he skied better than others even though he was, apparently, doing the routines the same way.

"I finally realized that those days when I was skiing well, I was also humming or singing to myself. My body was in tempo with the music, synchronizing my movements to the rhythm. That was it—the answer to better skiing," he said.

Today, with a tape recorder latched to his chest and a cassette blaring away, Abel can be seen schussing down slopes followed, like some snowbird version of a Pied Piper, by a stream of skiers eavesdropping on his tunes.

Does it work? Abel says he can transform a novice into an intermediate skier in one week-end of skiing-to-music.

The best music is something that makes you tap your toes, he says.

Joint ventures with persons who share your ideas and interests should turn out quite prosperously for you this coming year. Your outlook is very encouraging but you must maintain high standards.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You've been making a lot of points with important persons lately. Because of this, today they may provide you with a large boost in a helpful direction. Find out which signs you are most compatible with by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489 Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

ARIES (March 11-April 19) You could find yourself much in demand socially with all your pals today, but take care you don't carry things to extremes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your artistic qualities are crying for expression today, as you putter around the house, but better not attempt to make changes for another member of your family.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This may not be one of your better days for fixing things. You're a little careless. Why not lay the tools down for the day and seek other diversions?

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You know how to make money or stretch a dollar today, but you don't know how to handle it. Take care, especially if a risk is involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Because what you do is well received by your friends today, you might get a wee bit cocky with the family. Forget it; they won't let you get away with it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Several opportunities could come your way today. They won't wait for you to make up your mind, so don't hesitate to take advantage of them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There isn't anyone you fail to impress today. This, however, could be your downfall. You might unwittingly attract several freeloaders.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Concentrate on your more humanitarian projects today. This will contribute to your status as well as allow you to take pride in your accomplishments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) As long as you remain optimistic, positive people will be drawn to you. The second you turn negative you'll find yourself standing alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 10) A joint venture looks most promising for you, provided you don't try to alter its present course. Move with the flow of events.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A philosophical approach is your best way of handling situations today. There are times to get tough, but this isn't one of them.

A world worthy of children

Rev. L. B. HALL
Associate Pastor
First United Methodist Church

Why can't all the children in the world have good parents and a nice home and peace? A critical question for each of us during this Year of the Child, certainly it is not a question which will simply go away if we do not ask it!

In preceding articles I have attempted to lift up certain issues and definitions which I believe are important for our consideration and relationships as children and adults. Having said that good parents are those become a burden. No one seems to wonder whether both need to work, especially with our living standards and social pressures to keep up with the Jones' - so we pack off the children to babysitters, day care centers, nursery schools and on into public education. The impact of such straining ahead and attempts to "succeed" place enormous burdens upon everyone, but I believe especially upon our children. Where economic success and material wealth are valued very highly children are an inconvenience.

The result of this "shuttling children to a place of care" is often disastrous. I know of a situation where a family was having difficulty with a teenager. In talking with this family a year ago I discovered that the young person was not able to recall a single day when they had not felt like they were an accident which was only tolerated. The family had grown apart over the years because it sacrificed its time together for other reasons. Later in the conversation both parents revealed the same feelings the youth had expressed. All three were crying out to be recognized and to be given some value as persons. All three felt ignored!

The other day I discovered these words of Pablo Casals which seem to sum up the thrust behind this article: "We should say to each of them: 'Do you know what you are? You are a marvel. You are unique. In all of the world there is no other child exactly like you. In the millions of years that have passed, there has never been a child like you. And look at your body... what a wonder it is! Your legs, your arms, your cunning fingers, the way you move! You may become a Shakespeare, a Michelangelo, a Beethoven. You have the capacity for anything. Yes, you are a marvel. And when you grow up, can you then harm another who is, like you, a marvel? You must cherish one another. You must work - we must all work - to make this world worthy of its children.'" who offer clear, honorable and consistent models for children to imitate; and having said that a "nice home" is one built on openness, love and trust, we repeat the question - why can't all the children have peace? Yet peace is not a reality for most of us. Sometimes peace is only the brief interlude between times of stress; of suffering.

Suffering of children can be found in all societies, including the most affluent countries. In the industrialized world, children are subjected to many kinds of emotional neglect and demagogic manipulative influences. Societies geared toward production and consumption tend to develop a certain hostility toward children.

Where men and women both go out to work, children often

Irish luck working for handicapped

In the spirit of St. Patrick, many volunteers will be out in force in the Pampa area collecting the "green" to share the luck of the Irish - and all of us - with people afflicted by muscular dystrophy and related diseases.

Mr. Gary James chairman of the Pampa "Shamrocks Against Dystrophy" drive, announced that volunteers aiding the Panhandle Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association will give a lucky "Shamrocks" button picturing MDA's Leprechaun, Paddy O'Brian, to everyone contributing to the campaign. "Shamrocks, according to the Irish, are the symbol of hope, "noted Mr. James," and monies raised in this campaign give exactly that - hope, through MDA's research programs, for a healthy tomorrow as well as help today through medical service programs."

"Shamrocks Against Dystrophy" will be conducted here and nation-wide throughout March. "The purpose," stated Mr. James "is to turn this St. Patrick's Day into a real celebration of hope for hundreds of tragically afflicted children and adults.

"All volunteers in our Shamrocks Against Dystrophy drive," Mr. James added, "will be giving MDA vitally needed help in its battle against dystrophy.

HERE IS THE PATH

Likeness

The artist is capturing the physical likeness of this lovely girl on her paper. The likeness is amazing. But her inward beauty, her wonderful Christian heart and soul, can only be captured fully on God's canvas. The Bible says that "Man looketh on the outward appearance but God looketh on the heart."

How would God's painting picture you and me?

One good way to improve your heart condition is to attend church and hear God's word proclaimed from the pulpit. Learn God's plan for your life by listening to His word. We invite you to attend the church of your choice this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Abercrombie resigns

By JOE BLOBAUM
Pampa News Sports Editor

Gary Abercrombie formally announced his resignation as head basketball coach at Pampa High School Thursday night. It wasn't easy.

Abercrombie's resignation had been rumored since the early part of the season. But when it came time for him to announce his decision to the crowd gathered at M.K. Brown Auditorium for the Pampa High Basketball Banquet, the words didn't always come easily for the man who led the Hustling Harvesters to a 32-23 mark in two years.

"I've spent all this time telling my players not to quit," he said. "I've had to draw on that the last two years, because they've been rough at times. This will be my last year in Pampa. I will resign."

Abercrombie said he has not applied for another job yet, but that he planned to continue his basketball career.

"I won't quit coaching," he added. "I'll be coaching some place. I'm not a quitter and I'm not going to quit."

"I want to wish the players returning the best of luck. I think you've got a solid nucleus coming back and you'll be right in there for the district championship."

Prior to Abercrombie's announcement, seniors Steve Duke and Becky Davis took the highest awards given for Harvester basketball. Duke was voted the Hustling Harvester Award by his teammates, while Miss Davis received the Lady Harvester Award for her efforts on the girls team.

Pat Coats won the girls free throw award for her 63 percent shooting from the line, while Doug Skaggs' 69 percent mark was good enough to take the boys' free throw trophy.

Steve Stout finished the year with 251 rebounds to lead that statistical category for the boys team. Kellye Richardson, meanwhile, added the girls team's scoring and rebounding titles to her selection as District 3-AAAA's Player of the Year for 1979.

At girls state tourney

Demonettes tripped

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Officials huffed and puffed and blew their whistles — and it seemed they would never stop — in the Class 3A semifinals of girls' basketball.

Georgetown defeated Dumas, 57-49, and Sweeny raced past Athens, 76-69, in the 3A division Thursday at the state tournament.

In Class 2A, defending champion Slaton shut down Comanche, 48-32. Pflugerville, anxious to avenge a 28-point loss to Slaton last year, beat Universal City Randolph, 47-32, to set up the title game.

Nazareth opened defense of its Class B title by outshooting D'Hanis, 52-43, and Weatherford Brock gained its first tournament victory in seven tries by nipping Avinger, 64-61, in B.

Class A and 4A semifinals were scheduled today, with defending champion Dallas South Oak Cliff playing Alvin, and Victoria meeting Plainview.

The A pairings matched Rogers against Bogata Rivercrest and Wall against Hale Center.

Officials whistled 90 fouls in the two 3A semifinal games, and the four teams had a combined total of 99 turnovers.

Sweeny hit 24 of 35 free throws in its victory over Athens as Kay Groves and Terry Baugh paced Sweeny with 20 points and 18 points respectively. Jana Tidmore had 26 for Athens.

Trailing 67-64, Athens missed six straight shots from within five feet of the basket. Athens took 22 more shots than Sweeny but led in field goals only 27-26. Jan Wakefield converted 10 of 15 free throws and finished with 18 points as Georgetown gained the finals despite losing two starters to fouls.

Randolph had an incredible 47 turnovers — possibly a tournament record — and scored only one point in the third quarter in losing to Pflugerville, which lists a 37-0 record but lost a practice game to Rogers.

Pflugerville built a 42-17 lead and held off a Randolph rally that started after Pflugerville scoring star Karen Thompson, a 6-foot-2 junior, fouled out with 5 minutes 38 seconds left in the game. Thompson scored 22 points.

Eight long set shots by Linda Lewis and a pressing defense that converted 20 turnovers into 21 points were the keys to Slaton's victory over Comanche. All-stars Cynthia Robinson with 12 points and Debbie Bednarz with 10 supported Lewis' 16 points.

Doretta Ramaekers and Lori Gerber — one of four Gerber girls on the squad — each tallied 16 for Nazareth, which is seeking its third consecutive championship. Ramaekers swished eight of nine field goals from long range.

Annette Nester, the defending Class B shot put champion, poured in 28 points for D'Hanis.

High scorer the first day of the three-day tournament was Sherea Mathis, who pitched in 30 points for Avinger on its last.

Kay Hull and Tina P... each scored 16 for Brock, which made 31 points — nearly half its total — after Avinger turnovers.

Three good hitters healthy again

By The Associated Press

Rod Carew, Bobby Grich and George Scott all say they're healthy again and that they have American League pitchers saying "Ouch!"

Carew, one of baseball's newest (1) millionaires and (2) Angels, missed California's opening exhibition game with a stiff neck and an allergy. But he got into action Thursday and unloaded a two-run homer on his second try to the plate in the Angels' 6-4 loss to the Cleveland Indians.

"I'm still a little stiff, but not as bad as yesterday," he said. "I've got the power back in my right arm, and that's what is important."

Carew estimates he lost 65-70 percent of the strength in the arm around midseason of 1978 while he was in the process of winning his seventh AL batting title as a member of the Minnesota Twins.

"I had a pinched nerve in the elbow," he said. "It affected the arm from my armpit to the hand. I didn't have any feeling in the hand in one game. I usually curl 35-pound weights to strengthen my hands. It got to the point last season I had difficulty using seven or eight pounds."

Grich, who underwent surgery for a herniated disc in his back in 1977, also hit a long home run while Scott boomed a grand slam homer and two sharp singles as the Boston Red Sox outslugged the Detroit Tigers 8-6.

"That's the hardest I've hit a ball in two years," Grich said. "I didn't have very much power last season, so the shot today was encouraging. I've shortened my swing, so we'll have to wait and see how it goes. I've been lifting weights and I think that helped."

Scott, hampered by a sore back and a broken finger, played in only 120 games last year, hitting just .233 with only a dozen home runs and coming under fire from Boston's plethora of critics because of his roly-poly figure.

"I don't think I have anything to prove, but I'm healthy now and in the best shape I've been in since I was in Milwaukee in 1975," said Scott, who will turn 35 in a couple of weeks. "I'm no 230 hitter. I know what I can do and I'm going to do it."

"I lost 20, 25 or 30 pounds and I'm going to do the things I want to do, especially now that I'm healthy again. Right now, I'm down under 220. I didn't want to talk about it before, but now I'll tell you. Two years ago, on the last day of the season, I weighed nearly 250. Last year, I weighed out at 238 or 239 at the end of the season."

"Our team doctor put me on a high protein diet, but I had to work hard all winter, every day. I ran up to six miles a day, not altogether, but like three in the morning and three in the afternoon."

Aggies think they can capture NIT

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Texas A&M's Aggies made their debut in the National Invitation Tourney and liked it so much they've decided they might as well go ahead and win the thing.

"I think we might just go on and win this little tournament," said Aggie forward Vernon Smith, who had a big hand in the Aggies' 79-68 first-round NIT victory over New Mexico Thursday night.

"I'm ready to go farther. If we play like we did tonight, I don't see why we won't," he added.

And his counterpart on the other side of the floor who joined him in terrorizing the Lobos, Rynn Wright, was in total agreement.

"We can beat anybody if we play like this," said Wright, like

Smith, a sophomore forward. "We've got a pretty good shot at winning this whole thing."

While the Aggies, 23-8, were flying high at the University of New Mexico Arena, they still have a ways to go before they can wing their way back to College Station with the championship trophy. The next stop will be at Nevada-Reno where they have a date for a second round clash Monday night.

"Reno will be our 20th road game. They shouldn't be doing this to us," said Coach Shelby Metcalf, who feels his team has spent more than its share of time in airports this season and would like to give his players at least one more outing at home.

But being on the road, and playing before 18,038 rabid Lobo fans, didn't bother Metcalf's players, especially Smith and Wright.

The muscular duo pounded the middle for 46 points between them with each getting 23, and sparked a blistering shooting performance that sent the Lobos hopes for an NIT crown up in smoke.

Wright, a 6-foot-6, 200-pounder, from Dallas, paced the Aggie marksmen by hitting on 10 of 11 field goals. And he was perfect from the charity stripe with 3 of 3.

Smith, a 6-7, 205-pound ace who also hails from Dallas, was 11 of 15 from the floor and connected on one of his two attempts from the free throw line.

They were joined in double figures by 6-11 freshman center Rudy Woods, who was 5 of 7 in field goals and free throws, as the Aggies' inside trio accounted for 61 of the club's 79 points.

With Wright, Smith and Woods getting in close for their shots, Texas A&M finished with a sizzling 62 percent shooting performance from the floor — 31 of 50.

"Everybody was hitting the open man and we were getting the good shots," said Smith.

"We didn't take any bad shots," said Wright.

But for New Mexico the opposite was true. The Lobos put the ball up 76 times but found the range only 29 times for a dismal 38 percent shooting.

"You're not going to beat a good basketball team shooting like that," said New Mexico Coach Norm Ellenberger.

New Mexico, 19-10, led but once, with 9:25 to go when Larry Belin, who topped the Lobos 13 points, put his club on top 53-52.

The Wolfpack knotted the score at 54-54 seconds later on a free throw by Belin for the game's only tie.

But the Aggies rattled off 10 unanswered points for a 64-54 lead and it was time to make the reservations for Reno.

The Aggies, who normally play a man-to-man defense, used a zone and the Lobos were forced to throw up long range bombs that, more times than not, didn't fall.

Levi, Aaron tied for lead

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — A change in attitude — prompted by some stern lectures from his wife Judy — was the key factor in the turnaround of Wayne Levi's golfing fortunes.

"Attitude," he said. "That's the whole thing. It's a change in attitude, and it's all because of my wife."

"We got married last October. She's very much sports-oriented. I'd been hitting the ball pretty good for a couple of years, but I'd let myself get upset about a bad shot and then go along and miss a short putt I should have made for birdie."

"She saw it right away. And she got on my case real bad. I needed it. It was just exactly what I needed. Now I don't let a bad shot bother me. I don't give up. I keep on playing as hard as I can."

That change in attitude helped him to a share of the 1978 National Team championship and a third-place finish in Pensacola, accounting for most of the $25,000 he won last season. He's already surpassed that this year, with more than $33,000, and Thursday he found himself in a tie with veteran Tommy Aaron for the first-round lead in the $300,000 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic.

Levi and Aaron, who share the same birthday — Feb. 23, but separated by 16 years — had matching 66s Thursday and were a single shot in front of Larry Nelson.

A group of 68 was made up of British Ryder Cup player Mark James, Australian veteran Bruce Devlin and Charles Coody.

Ray Floyd, Jim Simons, Mark Hayes, U.S. Open champ Andy North and Tom Purtzer were at 69, three shots under par on the 7,127 yard Inverrary Country Club course.

Jack Nicklaus, the winner of the last three tournaments on this course, shot a 74 and must improve in the second round if he is to qualify for the weekend play.

"I just haven't got it (his golf game) sharp yet. It just needs more work," Nicklaus said. "I really didn't play all that badly. It's just that every time I made a mistake it cost me a bogey and every time I got the ball close to the hole I missed the putt."

He wasn't alone in his difficulties, however. Lon Hinkle, the season's leading money-winner, shot 76 and withdrew. Jerry Pate shot a fat 81. Andy Bean, who has been in title contention a half-dozen times this year, blew to a 78. And Tom Weiskopf withdrew before finishing his round.

Sam Snead had 74 and Lee Trevino shot 73.

Indiana whips Red Raiders

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — When fiery Indiana Coach Bobby Knight tells his team something, they had best listen. And sensational junior forward Mike Woodson was hearing him loud and clear Thursday night.

In the locker room before the first round National Invitation Basketball Tournament game against Texas Tech, Knight told the team. "Texas Tech will be the most disciplined team at both ends of the court we've played all year."

Woodson, taking his coach's lecture to heart, hit 11 of 14 shots from the field and eight of nine from the free throw line for 30 points as the Big Ten Hoosiers ran away from the Southwest Conference Red Raiders 78-59.

As a sell-out crowd of 10,000 hometown fans moaned, Indiana jumped to a 15-2 lead and never allowed the Red Raiders to recover from the early punch. Indiana will play Alcorn State Monday night in Bloomington, Ind., in the second round of the NIT.

Knight said of Woodson: "He has to be the best guy that ever played college basketball that wasn't even an honorable mention All-American."

Woodson, who scored 48 points last Saturday against Illinois, moved into second position on the Hoosier's all-time scoring list.

Woodson said, "The last few games I've really been playing good basketball. I want to thank the team for getting me open."

Indiana patiently passed the ball until they could feed Woodson for his deadly jump shot.

Indiana shot a sizzling 71.1 percent from the field, while Texas Tech, hitting only two of its first 20 field goal tries, shot 35 percent.

Tech Coach Gerald Myers said, "We played kind of like we practiced this week. It seemed like we didn't have our hearts in it. This was embarrassing for the team, Texas Tech and the Southwest Conference."

Texas, an SWC team which is in the NCAA playoffs this year, won the NIT last year.

Knight said, "I was pleased we had the opportunity to play in the NIT. It is an awful good tournament, run by awfully good people and the tourney has a good format. There are a lot of NIT teams that have beaten teams in the NCAA."

Indiana, now 19-12 for the year, has won five out of its last six games. The Hoosiers got off to a rocky start when three players were suspended for smoking marijuana and two others were injured.

It's the first post season appearance for the Hoosiers since they won the NCAA title in 1976.

Indiana, which rolled up a 39-19 halftime lead, handed Tech its worst home defeat since 1931.

Tech finished the year 19-11 with Jeff Taylor scoring 15 points and Geoff Huston scoring all 14 of his points in the second half.

Can Tarkanian cheat in Las Vegas?

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Hear ye, hear ye, the case against Jerry Tarkanian is now in session.

Is "Tark the Shark" a cheater? How strong is the NCAA evidence against him? And if he does cheat, does the punishment fit the crime? You be the judge.

Tarkanian was suspended in 1977 from coaching the University of Nevada-Las Vegas basketball team for two years, one of the worst punishments given a coach in NCAA history. Investigators say the penalty stemmed from Tarkanian's pattern of alleged past violations at Long Beach State and, more importantly, an alleged effort to interfere with the NCAA probe.

A Nevada judge found that the NCAA violated Tarkanian's due process and restored him to the sidelines. An appeal is pending in that case.

The Associated Press has gained possession of confidential documents and information pertaining to the cases against Long Beach and UNLV.

Long Beach went on NCAA probation for three years for violations allegedly committed in football and basketball. Half the charges against the basketball program involved fraudulent ACT (American College Testing) scores, enabling three athletes to enroll.

But did Tarkanian arrange for someone else to take those exams?

"No, I'm an educator. I can't mess around with that stuff."

The NCAA never connected Tarkanian with tampering, alleging that his assistant, Ivan Duncan, arranged for stand-ins to take the tests.

The only serious allegation linked to Tarkanian is that he promised Eugene Short, a high school All-American, that his family would be moved to Long Beach and that a job would be found for his mother.

Tarkanian denies the charge and says the Short did too.

Tarkanian says his NCAA problems stem from a column he wrote, blasting the punishment of Centenary College. "I wrote that the charges were Mickey Mouse. It was the biggest mistake I ever made."

The Las Vegas charges provide legs of a direct link to Tarkanian, which the NCAA attributes to "Tark the Shark" learning from mistakes and better insulating himself. The NCAA is also skeptical about the affidavits Tarkanian has produced from players which allegedly conflict with their previous testimony to investigators.

The NCAA says it never punishes anybody without proof. One coach feels otherwise in the Tarkanian case: "If you know Al Capone is killing people, you get him on income tax evasion."

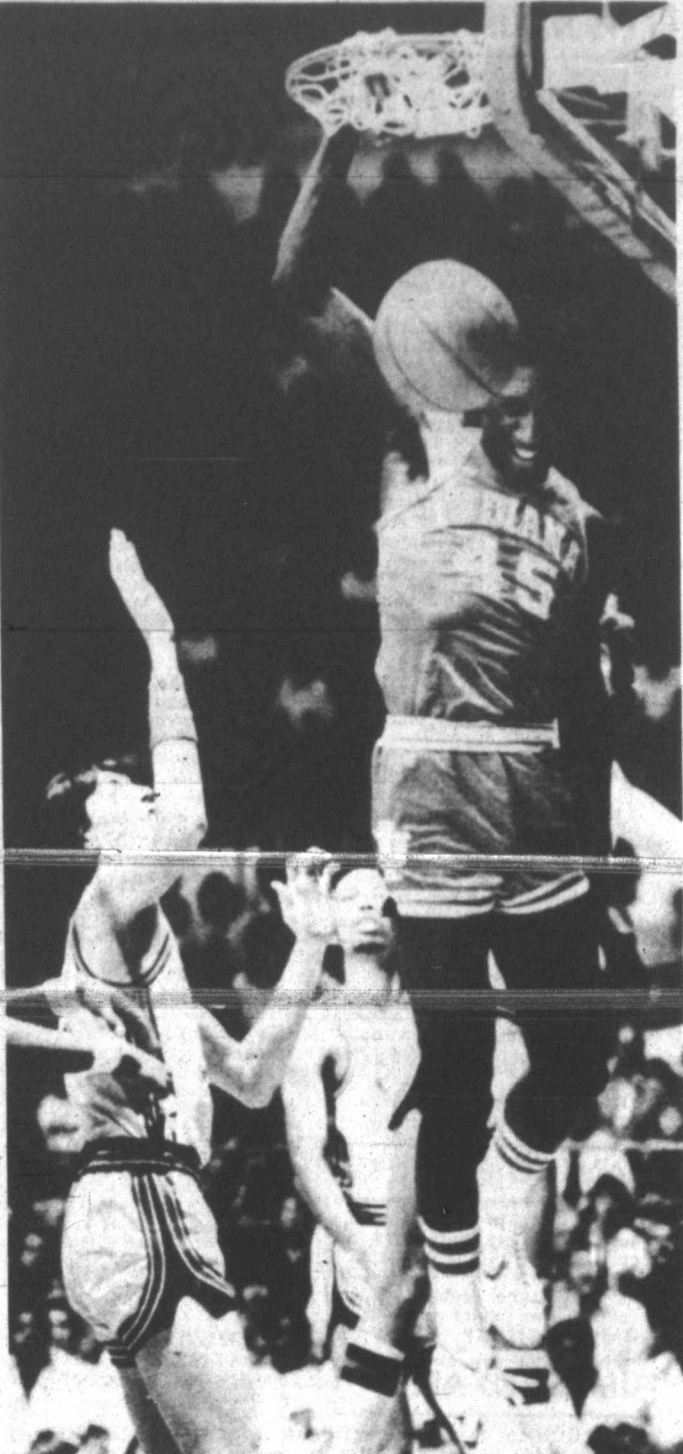

Most of the big charges against UNLV are directed against Tarkanian's predecessor, John Bayer.

The most serious allegations are that Tarkanian arranged for instructor Harvey Mumford to provide prospective student-athlete David Vaughn a "B" grade in a course without attending class and that he pressured ex-player Jeep Kelley to change his testimony to the NCAA.

Tarkanian denies both charges.

The NCAA investigators never interviewed anybody except Mumford, yet the Infractions Committee found Tarkanian and Mumford guilty of the charge, stating in its Confidential Report: "The Committee believes Mumford did, in fact, provide this information to the NCAA and is now attempting to remove himself from the case."

"Reminds me of the guy drivin' down the road doin' 60 and everybody is passin' him goin' 80. A cop stops the guy and he says, 'Why me?' And the cop says, 'Cause you're easier to catch.'"

RAY TOLBERT of Indiana University shoves one through the hoop during first-round National Invitation Tournament action in Lubbock Thursday night. The Hoosiers beat Texas Tech 78-59 to advance to the tournament's second round.

NCAA tourney begins tonight

By The Associated Press

"The season, that's the meat; this is the dessert."

The dessert, as reserve center Keith Jackson of the University of Detroit put it, is the NCAA basketball tournament, a 40-team dogfight that gets under way with eight first-round games tonight. It builds to a climax March 26 in Salt Lake City with the crowning of a successor to last year's college champion, Kentucky.

While most of the nation's powers received first-round byes and won't swing into action until Saturday or Sunday, 17th-ranked Detroit, 22-5, takes on Lamar, 22-8, in one of the Midwest Regional first-round games tonight at Murfreesboro, Tenn.

No. 20 Tennessee, 20-11 and winner of the Southeastern Conference tournament, goes against Eastern Kentucky, 21-7.

Optimist basketball

The Lakers upped their Optimist Boys Basketball League record to 9-1 Thursday night with a 36-14 drubbing of the 76ers.

Rodney Young tallied 16 points to lead the way for the Lakers, while Brent Williamsen had five for the Sixers, who dropped to 1-9 with the loss.

The Warriors upended the Spurs 20-19 behind Dean Birkes' eight points and seven by Lewis Niblett. The Spurs, who slipped to 6-3 with the setback, were led by Tony Santa Cruz's six points. The Warriors are now 3-7.

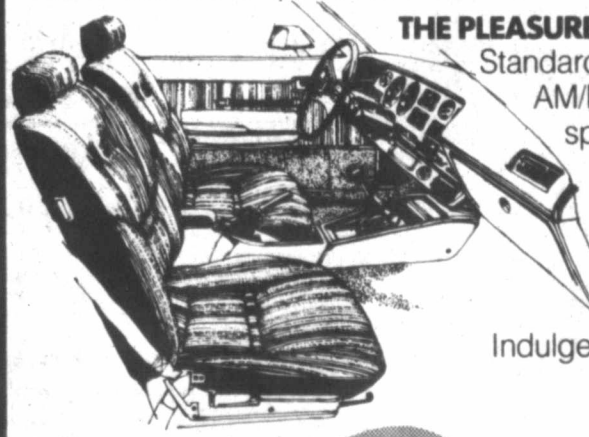

The Celtics and Bullets both own 6-4 records after the Celtics took a 30-28 win. Brent Cryer had 11 and Mark Cochran and Richard Rodgers six apiece for the winners, while Mike Treadwell (11) and Raymond Wyant (six) were the scoring leaders for the Bullets.

Saturday morning's games will match the Spurs and 76ers at 9 and the Bucks and Rockets at 10:30.

Just what the doctor ordered

ATLANTA (AP) — A World Health Organization research team, noting that women in Tibet have a relatively low fertility rate, set out to trace the cause. They found it in a green pea that is a staple of the Tibetan diet.

A chemical in the pea — m-xylhydroquinone — apparently is responsible.

That kind of discovery has caused Julian Gold, a scientist at the federal Center for Disease Control here, and researchers in more than 15 other countries to study the legitimate roles that herbal preparations, midwives and even witch doctors can play in meeting the world's health needs.

Gold's research is part of a larger study of such "traditional medicine" underway now at the World Health Organization, based in Geneva, Switzerland.

"Two-thirds of the world's population uses traditional medicine for primary health care," said Gold. "And if we can't provide health care by conventional medicine, we'll have to find another way."

Gold said a smorgasbord of purported herbal cures being tested by WHO include: —An herb called Chinese Motherwort, known for thousands of years, which is supposed to cause the uterus to contract, stopping the implantation of the egg or inducing abortion.

—Portulacca Oleracea, a Chinese plant, used to make a tea which is given to patients with diarrhea.

—A combination of Vidanga Tankana and Pippali, two plants which are ingested by an Indian sect as birth control.

But Gold said there are some problems in using herbs for medical care, including the fact that cultural factors influence an herb's effectiveness in some societies.

This re-examination of primitive medical treatments is part of a revival of interest in holistic medicine. The term "holistic" is derived from the word "whole" and refers to a medical approach that attempts to treat whole persons rather than just bodies.

The Tibetan pea is an example, Gold said. "They tried it (the pea) on Indian women and it didn't work. That's why holistic medicine is all about," he said. The pea fit a lifestyle in Tibet but could not be forced on the Indian culture.

Holistic theories began to gain credence in modern times when WHO was begun as an arm of the United Nations.

"In September 1947, the U.N. defined what they believed health was. They said good health is not merely absence of disease and infirmity but also is the physical and emotional well-being of a person," said Jack LaPatra of the Georgia Institute of Technology.

LaPatra is the author of "Healing: The Coming Revolution in Holistic Medicine" and a health systems analyst at Georgia Tech.

In a recent report, WHO reaffirmed that stand, stating, "No health service starts in a vacuum. The people, the healers and the diseases are already there, and the priority attached to health varies, depending on the communities' other problems."

"If health services are to be provided to the people of the world by the year 2000, it will be necessary to find alternative approaches to meet the basic health needs of developing countries."

Gold said those needs have intensified as the cost of health care has skyrocketed and Western drug companies have failed to find more efficient and less expensive new drugs.

For example, he said, if someone in the United States discovered a male contraceptive today, it would take 20 years and $20 million to get it on the market.

The use of midwives also is of special interest to the researchers.

"The traditional birth attendant is often an accomplished herbalist, and infusions of herbs are frequently given to improve general health during pregnancy as well as to relieve discomfort," the WHO report said.

Faith healing — which is believed to be the most potent ingredient of witch doctoring — also is being reviewed, said Gold.

At least one form of faith healing is widely accepted in American society, he said — the use of placebos, or sugar pills containing no medicine.

Plans are complete for show

Plans are complete for the annual Top O' Texas Stock Show and Sale which will held in Pampa March 10-14 at the show barns in Recreation Park, according to Jim Greene, Chairman of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and Don Vance, President of the Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders Association.
 The program will begin Saturday at 1 p.m. with the Gray County Junior Show, sponsored by the Pampa Noon Lions Club. Some 100 steers and 320 barrows have been entered in the Texas Regional Show and Sale.
 Judging of all Junior Livestock Classes will take place Monday, with Dr. John McNeil of the State Extension Service in Amarillo heading the steer judging beginning at 8:30 p.m. Jim McManigal of West Texas State University will judge the swine division at 2 p.m.
 Approximately 10 FFA Livestock

Judging teams from Area I, will compete for honors on Tuesday March 13, with registration scheduled to start at 8:30 p.m. in the stock show sales arena. Winners will be announced and presented awards at 3:30 in the Show Barn. Rex McAnelly is contest superintendent and Dr. Bob Lee of WTSU will judge the contest.
 The Frank M. Carter Scholarship award of $500 will also be presented to the outstanding F.F.A. student in Area I. The winner will be selected by a panel of three who will evaluate the applications and interview the students.
 Judging of all registered Hereford Classes, including the Junior Heifer Show will be held Tuesday afternoon beginning at 1 p.m. with Leroy Born of Follett judging.
 In conjunction with the competition, the Hereford Association will hold its Annual Banquet Tuesday night at 7:30 in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Auditorium. Humorist Edward O. Daniel will be the featured speaker, with special entertainment provided by the Pampa High School Concert Choir. Banquet reservations can be made by calling the Pampa Chamber of Commerce office at (806) 669-3241.

 Both the Junior and Registered Sales will be held Wednesday March 14, with Colonel Walter Britten from Bryan as the auctioneer. Immediately before the Junior Livestock Sale at 8:30 a.m., all participants are invited to attend a free Bidder's Breakfast to be held in the stock show dining room from 7 to 8 a.m.
 The Registered Hereford Sale is scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday, with 46 bulls from some of the top herds in the Top O' Texas area.

Texans paying too much for insurance

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texans are paying as much as $500 million a year too much for property and accident insurance, a group of state legislators say.
 The reason, they said, is the State Insurance Board doesn't plug every relevant figure into its formulas for setting rates.
 Rep. Bob Maloney, R-Dallas, and more than two dozen other House members introduced a bill Thursday they said would remedy the situation and cut insurance premiums.
 It was the latest in a series of skirmishes between trial lawyers and insurance companies over who deserves the blame for a series of insurance crises.
 "The Insurance Rate Relief and Reporting Act" is designed to save Texas insurance consumers an estimated $300 million to $500 million in property and casualty insurance premiums," Maloney said at a news conference.
 Key provisions of the bill would:

—Base insurance rates on insurance companies' actual expenses and losses in Texas. The State Insurance Board uses actual loss figures but only estimates expenses.
 —Require the board to reduce total rates by the income insurance companies receive from investing policyholders' premiums.
 The board says it considers investment income but only in testing whether the companies can make money under rates that allow only 2.5 percent of premiums for after-taxes profit.
 —Require insurance companies to fully report their reserves, investment income, expenses and losses to the board.
 Maloney said allowing companies only their actual expenses — instead of an estimate — would cut premiums for all types of property and accident insurance $223 million.
