For centuries, long before science set up the doctrine of marginal utility, the common man was accustomed to seek things and abandon things. He practiced the doctrine of marginal utility before economic theory discovered it.

Carter says he has fallen short

JERUSALEM (AP) — President Carter, his Mideast peace mission at a crucial crossroad, said today he has fallen short of an Egyptian-Israeli treaty. He told the Israeli parliament more flexibility is needed.

After hearing the results of an all-night Israeli cabinet meeting, Carter told the Knesset that leaders of the two nations are not yet ready to risk a peace treaty, although their people are now ready for peace.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin told reporters afterward, "We must all be patient." He said a new meeting had been scheduled between key members of his cabinet and U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Carter told reporters he did not know whether he would remain in Israel to make further efforts toward a treaty, or return to the United States today as originally scheduled.

Earlier, both U.S. and Israeli officials said Carter was likely to spend an extra day in Israel and return Tuesday.

The officials originally held out hope that a treaty could be initiated before the president's return, but Begin said after the Knesset speech that he doubted if all issues could be worked out within 24 hours.

Earlier, at dawn, Begin said that his cabinet had made "reasonable" decisions on Egyptian peace terms during their 6 1/2-hour session.

Israeli radio said the cabinet had accepted some parts of the latest U.S. compromise, but rejected others.

Begin said at dawn he expected Vance to fly to Cairo to brief Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Begin said he anticipated a "positive reply" from Sadat.

But U.S. officials said it was uncertain whether Vance would go to transmit the latest Israeli position, an indication that Vance would press for further changes during the afternoon.

Carter met with the Israeli cabinet over breakfast and then said in a speech to the full Knesset that "we still fall short" of a treaty.

"We have not yet fully met our challenge," Carter said. "The people of the two nations are ready now for peace," Carter said. He spoke the sentence twice, first emphasizing the word "now" and then emphasizing the word "people."

"The leaders have not yet proven that we are also ready for peace enough to take a chance," Carter added.

"We must proceed with due caution, I understand that, but we must proceed," Carter said.

The speech was followed by pandemonium in the Knesset, and one right-wing member of Begin's own party was ejected after heckling Begin as he tried to speak.

Vietnam, China tell of renewed fighting

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam and China charged each other today with new attacks in their border war, but Western intelligence officers in Bangkok reported that the slow Chinese withdrawal was continuing.

Radio Hanoi said that as of late Sunday, the Chinese were shelling, burning and plundering areas of all six Vietnamese provinces along the northern border.

Xinhua, the official Chinese news agency, said Vietnamese forces shelled parts of Guangxi Province in southeast China and attacked withdrawing Chinese troops inside Vietnam.

"Chinese forces responded with an immediate counterattack on enemy positions," said Xinhua. "In every instance Chinese troops inflicted heavy losses on the ... Vietnamese."

Hanoi had a counter-charge for the eastern end of the border. It said Chinese artillery there fired more than 3,000 rounds into an area of Vietnam's coastal Quang Ninh Province, destroying homes and a ceramics factory.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said in a dispatch from Hanoi that the Vietnamese Red Cross accused the Chinese of the "massacre of hundreds of civilians — children, women and old people."

Another Tass report from Hanoi said the Chinese were moving frontier marker posts to the south, deep into Vietnamese territory in Lang Son Province and were resettling ethnic Chinese there who had "fled" from the area earlier. It said that in one instance 1,000 ethnic Chinese had been resettled.

The Chinese government charged that Soviet and Vietnamese pressure forced the Laotian Communist government last week to expel Chinese advisers and technicians building highways in northern Laos. It accused Hanoi of tightening its grip on its northwestern neighbor in furtherance of its plans to dominate it and Cambodia, the two other Indochinese states.

"To clamp down on the Lao people's resistance and step up their control of Laos, the Vietnamese authorities deliberately spread the lie of so-called Chinese preparations for a 'war of aggression' against Laos in order to find a pretext for themselves to take action," said Chinese Vice Foreign Minister Han Nianlong.

Husband takes up fight

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — For four years, a Vietnamese woman pleaded with the Communist government in her native country to allow her four sons to join her. She knew she was dying.

Now Kim Ngoc Gonzalez, 45, is dead of kidney failure. Her sons, Thanh, Hai, Khanh and Hiep, whom she last saw after her wedding in 1973 to an American serviceman, were to have arrived at San Francisco International Airport in February. They never did.

George Gonzalez has taken up his dead wife's struggle.

"When I married my wife, she asked me to love her children and I accepted," said Gonzalez. "They are like my own to me."

"The last thing she asked me was to do all I could to get them to America. I loved Kim very much and I will do it, no matter what it takes."

Gonzalez, a cook at San Quentin state prison here, remembers how the boys' arrival was anticipated. "She was so very happy they were coming at last," he said. "No one could ever look forward to anything as much as she did to being with those boys again. Oh, she loved those boys."

A State Department official told

Gonzalez on Feb. 20 that because of red tape with the Vietnamese government the boys, aged 11 to 17, would not be arriving as expected.

It was then, he said, that his wife's condition — first diagnosed in April 1978 — began to deteriorate. Two weeks later, she died.

Gonzalez met his wife while serving in the Army in Vietnam. They married and came to the United States in 1973.

The boys, children of Mrs. Gonzalez's first marriage, were then enrolled in a Catholic boarding school and the decision was made not to interrupt their schooling.

Women march for freedoms

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ten thousand women marched through the streets of Tehran today, demonstrating for the fourth day against Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's threat to restrict the freedoms granted them by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

The turnout was much less than organizers of the demonstration expected and far less than the tens of thousands of women who marched through Tehran on Saturday. A statement from Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan's government that women would not be required to wear the chador, the heavy, full-length traditional black veil, appeared to have eased the fears of many women.

Although feminists fear that the Islamic republic the ayatollah plans will reduce the political and economic rights granted them under the shah's Westernization program, the issue of dress has become the most emotional one because it is the most visible.

Deputy Prime Minister Abbas Amir Entezam, in a government statement, said women civil servants were not required to wear the veil to work or even scarves "but they should dress with dignity and avoid appearing cheap or exposed in their offices."

Students in jeans, working women and housewives were among the marchers. A sprinkling of men was seen accompanying wives or friends.

A small group of Moslem zealots stood behind a fence as the marchers assembled at Tehran University and chanted Islamic slogans but made no attempt to attack the women. Another group passed out handbills calling on the women to conform to Islamic tradition and wear the chador.

The women carried placards saying "We want equal rights" and "No to the chador."

American feminist Kate Millett, who arrived in Tehran last week to give her support to the women's movement, was at the rally. Addressing a news conference Sunday, she lumped Pope John Paul II and Khomeini together, saying both are "male chauvinists because as leaders they are attempting to curtail women's rights," were reported.

The 44-year-old author of "Sexual Politics" said she had worked against the shah's regime as a member of the American Committee for Artistic and Intellectual Freedom in Iran.

Meanwhile, the ayatollah's revolutionary committees and courts, operating independently of Bazargan's government, executed six more men and flogged eight more men and a woman in accordance with Islamic law.

The revolutionary committees have executed at least 16 persons for sexual crimes and at least 25 for political killings and torture.

The Foreign Ministry announced that the government has decided to withdraw Iran from the Central Treaty Organization, or CENTO, because it no longer protects the rights and interests of its member states.

Good afternoon

News in brief

The weather forecast for Pampa is fair and warm today, becoming partly cloudy and a little cooler on Tuesday. The high today should be around 75, with the low tonight near 40 and the high Tuesday in the upper 60s. Winds today will be southwesterly at 10-25 m p h.

Commissioners court to meet

The possibility of using a computerized balloting system for county elections will be among items considered by the Gray County Commissioners Court, which meets in regular session Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. in the county courtroom.

Dennis King, a representative of Computer Election Systems, will describe the company's computer balloting system.

In other business, the Court will consider approval of the county delinquent tax roll. The roll is prepared every two years and lists delinquent county taxes from 1939 to 1976.

The board will also let bids on a truck for the Precinct 2, Pampa, county barn, and will approve a statement for a tractor recently purchased for the airport.

City looking for inspector

The city has been looking for a new building inspector for three months now, and as City Manager Mack Wofford puts it, "We're still back to where we were on day one."

Former Inspector David McKinney resigned in December. Since that time, the city has received quite a few applications for the job, Wofford said, but only three or four listed the necessary qualifications.

"The balance are not licensed as building, plumbing and electrical inspectors," Wofford said.

Until the right person is found, inspections will continue to be performed by Engineer Charles Smith and R.B. Cooke, director of public works.

The EPA and unemployment

Move over, IRS, or eat your heart out: EPA is fast gaining on you. We have been under the delusion that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was confined in authority to matters pertaining to pollution of the environment. Not so. EPA is now moving into the area of solving unemployment by trying to force Ohio utilities to buy coal where it will not disrupt Ohio mine employment.

EPA claims it has found that cleaner Western coal imported for Ohio utilities would cause "significant economic and employment losses." To prevent such disruption, EPA, under the clean Air Act, "could order use of locally or regionally available coal."

If our memory serves, it was EPA officials who first determined that Eastern utilities should use Western coal in order to clean the air of pollution. At the same time this was being advocated, officials from this same agency were telling utilities in the West that even though they used the cleaner coal they must put in scrubbers. In one case, the scrubbers would not work well until the utility added sulphur to the coal being used so that there would be something to scrub.

This authoritarian agency has never been timid about changing its direction no matter the cost to any industry. In its short history it has botched about everything it has had a hand in. But telling utilities where they must buy their fuel with only consideration of local employment as a reason, is taking this unit of bureaucracy far afield.

Why shouldn't Ohio utility companies be allowed to buy their coal wherever they can get the best overall deal? This vital industry has quite enough regulatory interference as it tries to comply with public utility commissions and the alphabet parade of other federal agencies. Staying in the field of pollution can be quite enough of a burden for EPA to place on an industry. It does not need to expand and compete with other agencies in order to harass a utility.

As EPA, during January, stepped up its efforts to force Ohio utilities to burn Ohio coal and spare miners' jobs, its enforcement administrator warned utilities that a refusal to negotiate on the issue would lead to one "alternative." The EPA would bar imports of low-sulphur coal from adjacent states and require use of Ohio coal "with scrubbers." This is tantamount to saying to the utilities that they must spend millions on scrubbers.

Utility officials argued that EPA's plan would greatly increase power rates. The EPA spokesman retorted that "people should not be unemployed if technology (the scrubbers) can provide use of Ohio coal and clean air." This EPA "expert" went on to state, "by voluntarily working with the utilities and the state, EPA could find a solution that would minimize the rate differential."

We are not mind readers, but it does not take great insight to see where the mentioned cooperation would lead: just coerce the state utility commission to hold back rate increases in spite of increased costs and let utility investors absorb the loss. After all, there are far less utility investors than there are utility users. Placating the greatest mass of potential voters is always the best political expedient.

Never mind that this method has brought about our present energy problem and our dependence on foreign oil: it will still delude the people and keep our world safe for the bureaucracy. It will, that is, unless the American people finally wake up to the total cost, to them, of over-extended federal agencies.

We are intrigued by the remark that EPA "could find a solution" to increased costs to consumers. Any solutions it will find will only increase its roll as an integral part of the problem: for it is the major problem.

The return of steam

Will the steam locomotive enjoy a comeback because of the rising cost of diesel fuel?

R. Riley Deem of Deem-Chapelon Locomotives Inc. based in Colorado, believes that the return of the steam locomotive is inevitable. He advances some very interesting arguments in support of his idea of a new generation of steam locomotives.

In the United States today, the only steam locomotives are those used in railroad museums and on special runs for train buffs. In a number of countries around the world - South Africa, for example - steam locomotives are in regular service, hauling heavy freight trains.

Regular train service with steam locomotives died out in the 1950s as the nation's railroads completed the switch to diesel power. The nation's oil supplies have been threatened, however, and the cost of oil continues to rise. Under the circumstances, steam may have a chance.

Perry M. Shoemaker, one of Mr. Deem's associates, cites the "steadily rising cost of diesel fuel" and the "rising cost of new diesel locomotives."

At this time, Mr. Shoemaker says, "a few farsighted mechanical engineers in Western Europe, Argentina and the United States have quietly begun using modern technology to design steam locomotives that give every promise of surpassing our newest diesels in dependability, fuel consumption, initial cost, heavy duty horsepower, operating flexibility and reasonable maintenance requirements."

Mr. Shoemaker asks: "Would it surprise you to know that a heavy duty, high pressure, steam condensing locomotive that can run 1,000 miles between coal and water stops, one that will be more economical and more fuel efficient than diesels of comparable horsepower, is now in final planning and ready to be built?"

The public will follow these developments with keen interest. America has vast supplies of coal suitable for steam locomotives.

One major stumbling block to the development of modern steam engines are the strict environmental restrictions on the burning of coal. The Clean Air Act already conflicts with the president's energy policy on the use of coal, and would threaten the innovative use of steam by the railroads. But, unlike oil, coal is a fuel in assured supply on this continent. Certainly, given America's dependence on foreign oil, it makes sense to explore the technical possibilities of constructing new types of steam locomotives, though environmental considerations may be an impediment.

The United States shouldn't miss and opportunity to utilize its domestic fuels and reduce dependence on imported fuel.

In a time when the clock of progress seems to have stopped and in some respects seems to be going backward, we tend to be blind to man's positive achievements. An example is the Wall Street Journal.

No newspaper tells me so much of what is going on in the world as a whole and the U.S. economy is particular. None is so objective as well as philosophical, sober and yet so conservative. This year the Journal celebrates its 90th birthday.

Though Wall Street, New York is the financial center of America, and the Journal was started and for half a century published primarily to tell the denizens of Wall Street how their stocks and bonds were selling, it is today a general, economic journal for all Americans, telling not only of events but of trends and promises throughout the world.

In short, it is not a newspaper of investment only but a daily (Monday through Friday) magazine for the general reader. It is for all who are curious to know what is developing in the world and what this may augur for the future.

For example, the front page of a recent Journal had articles on the Colorado River as a natural resource, how they grow truffles in France and the prospects of nuclear power. In addition, one column is given over to brief resumes of business news which is detailed on other pages, another to world events and another to the week's outlook as a Journal editor sees it.

Turning the page, I read about the putsch in Iran and how it may affect petroleum-energized America. This is followed by the dilemma which faces President Carter a the desire of American consumers of low-cost clothing made abroad clashes with that of American textile manufacturers for profitable prices.

Further on, we read of China's difficulties in financing modernization and the prospect for more hikes in the prices we must pay for foods.

The editorials, usually two in number, may be on any subject whatever. They are not the smug, Pollyanna kind but incisive comments that will delight some and enrage others.

Once - editor William H. Grimes said: "On our editorial page we make no pretense of walking down the middle of the road. Our comments and interpretations are made from a definite point of view. We believe in the individual, in his wisdom and his decency. We oppose all infringements of individual rights, whether they stem from attempts at private monopoly, labor union monopoly or from an ever-growing government. People will say we are conservative or even reactionary. We are not much interested in labels, but if we were to choose one we would say we are radical - just as radical as the Christian doctrine."

Opposite the editorial page are the "letters to the editor," which are no random outbursts but reasoned comments, as analytical as the editorials they comment on. Often they are by people in responsible positions.

The classified ads, which often fill several pages, are notable for their appeals for people at management level, who are always scarce.

Not until the last of the 32 pages does the reader come to the stock quotations and market comment, but these are as carefully edited as any part of the journal.

All in all, the paper is an example of journalistic near-perfection, impeccably written, proof-read to the last comma, legibly and strikingly printed.

In order that the Journal be available throughout the United States the same day it is published, it is printed simultaneously in 12 different printing plants in as many cities. It has four editions: the Eastern, Western, Midwest and Southwest. In the words of a former editor, Vermont Register, it is "the only real national newspaper."

Not long ago, the Journal went international with the Asian Wall Street Journal, published and printed in Hong Kong. This has a weekly as well as daily edition.

The Journal employs more than 200 reporters and editors. Except for occasional signed articles on the editorial page, it is entirely staff-written. Often a story is the product of several writers. The Journal has 22 news bureaus in the U.S.,

Canada, Europe and Asia.

What a journalistic wonder this would seem to Chaires H. Dow, the Connecticut farm boy who became a New York reporter and who, with Edward H. Jones, in 1882 began collecting news in Wall Street to be printed in a humble bulletin they paid boys to distribute in "the Street." This, on July 2, 1889, became the Wall Street Journal. It had four pages.

Dow and Jones also gave their names to the three Dow Jones "averages," industrial, transportation and utility. Each is the sum of the prices of a fixed number of stocks typical of the field. These numbers are looked upon as bell wethers of the market.

For example, as the Dow-Jones industrial average, or sum of the prices of 30 representative industrial stocks, rises and falls, so investors assume, do the prices of industrial stocks in general. These averages for each day are plotted and graphed on the Journal's next-to-last page the next morning.

Charles Dow also devised the "Dow theory" of investments. He was not only a financial journalist but at the same time a stock broker himself and a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

It is not too much to say that there is no paper in the world like the one he founded. It is one of a kind.

'Latch Key' kids need help

by martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) - You can see them every weekday afternoon, in any city in America, in any type of neighborhood. Kids - little kids - wearing a house key on a string around their necks.

They are the "latch key" children, the youngsters of working mothers who trudge home from school each day to an empty house where a television set and a telephone are the only available "child care" resources.

Nobody knows for sure how many there are, although the Census Bureau estimates at least two million children ages 7 to 13 are left alone each day without supervision.

Millions more youngsters too young to go to school are shuttled about from babysitters to group-care homes to relatives, neighbors and occasionally child care centers as women with and without husbands flood the labor market.

With the space of a single decade, the child care problem in this country has reached crisis proportions. Whatever the reasons - economic, social or a combination thereof - mothers are leaving home for the work force at an accelerating pace.

By last year, according to the U.S. Department of Labor, 60 percent of all women with school-age children were working, along with almost 44 percent of all mothers with children under 6 years of age.

They left behind them, to be cared for one way or another, close to 30 million children and in the entire United States, there were only about 1.6 million licensed child care openings.

Policy-makers at all levels of government, but especially federal, have been typically slow to recognize and respond to the obvious need for greater child care support.

Last year, the federal government spent approximately $1.5 billion directly on child care provision, almost all of which went to families on welfare or at the poverty level. Perhaps $500 million more was provided indirectly through the tax credit which working parents can claim for child care costs.

The last major federal initiative on child care came in 1971, when then-Sen. Walter F. Mondale steered a comprehensive bill through the Congress only to see it vetoed by former President Nixon.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who succeeded Mondale as chairman of the Senate subcommittee on children and youth, is now trying to put together a more modest, limited measure that would establish a system of state grants for a wide variety of child care services, from home-based care to day care centers.

The cost would be relatively small - less than $100 million in the next fiscal year, Cranston estimates. Yet in this "International Year of the Child," the only witness opposing the child care bill - of dozens who have testified so far - was the representative of the Carter administration.

The American Legion, hardly a group noted for its bleeding heart liberalism, heartily endorsed the Cranston bill. But an assistant secretary of health, Education and Welfare insisted no new child care program is needed.

It is no secret that administration is pinching pennies wherever and whenever it can, especially in regard to domestic programs. But there is such a thing as penny wise and pound foolish.

As Cranston has noted, a new General Accounting Office study shows that money invested in child care pays enormous dividends in lower welfare costs, higher worker productivity and reduced crime and delinquency. Some programs are worth spending money on - and child care, not withstanding the administration's attitude, is one of them.

Then and now

It may never happen.

The standby control authorization President Carter is requesting of Congress is, he assures us, exactly that - standby, just in case. He would not consider putting into effect any of the proposed consumption-cutting measures unless oil supplies lagged at least 15 percent behind normal U.S. needs, and even with Iran on the production sidelines we are still a long way from that critical shortage point.

But what if it did happen? What if the United States should be forced into a severe energy-conservation program, including gasoline rationing?

The nation is not exactly without experience in this area. World War II put it to a test that was met admirably. Rationing was instituted and worked, there was no interruption in public services and transportation and individual Americans remained mobile within carefully observed limits. What made it work was probably not so much the controls as such as a national willingness to exercise self-discipline for a recognized cause.

All that happened, however, in a United States in which cities were still relatively compact residential concentrations rather than commercial centers of vast suburban sprawls, streetcar and bus systems were effectively providing mass transportation and a functioning rail system rather than a network of interstate highways connected cities and towns across a continent.

It's a much different country today. Meeting a real and continuing energy shortage is likely to require considerably more self-discipline for a considerably less compelling cause. Under the circumstances, we could find ourselves looking back at the last great war as good old energy days.

Farmworkers plan to visit legislators on behalf of bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Members and supporters of the Texas Farmworkers Union planned to start visiting legislators today on behalf of a bill that would allow them to collectively bargain with their employers.

Antonio Orendain, the union's president, said Saturday at the conclusion of a 600-mile march from Muleshoe, Texas, that he would stay near the Capitol "perhaps for the rest of the session."

The Legislature winds up its work in May. Orendain said Gov. Bill Clements had agreed to meet the farmworkers Tuesday afternoon. "That's something of a positive step for us," Orendain said. "He's going to see us."

A chill and damp rally Saturday marked the end of the march that started Jan. 27 in West Texas.

About 250 started on the trip to gather support for the collective bargaining bill but snow, ice and cold quickly reduced the number to a handful.

"We walked three days in below zero conditions," Orendain said when he announced the number of marchers had dropped to 17. "Now you should have the idea that this is only the beginning," he told his supporters at the rally.

The agricultural labor bill has failed in past legislative sessions. This session it has been referred to the House Committee on Agriculture and Livestock.

The committee's chairman, Rep. Forrest Green, D-Corsicana, has said the measure has "an uphill battle to even get out of committee." Rep. Paul Moreno, D-El Paso, said not much progress has been made since the farmworkers first marched to the Capitol in 1966.

"It is a disgrace that we are still asking the state of Texas to give the farmworker what is only fair, what is only just, and that is the right to earn a decent living," said Moreno, the bill's co-sponsor.

"The middle class of the country is in a tax revolt. I wonder how the farmworkers would feel if they were so fortunate as to join a tax revolt," he said. "The farmworkers have no money. Thus they are not in a tax revolt."

Program celebrates birthday

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

For thousands of homebound Americans, the difference between hardship and happiness is a private volunteer program that provides them with low-cost meals and a friendly face.

The program is Meals-on-Wheels and it is celebrating its 25th anniversary in the United States this year.

The Meals-on-Wheels concept began in England during World War II. It was introduced to this country in 1954 by Mrs. Clarence Toy, a Pennsylvania woman who heard about the project from a British exchange student.

The programs are locally run; most are affiliated with religious or community service organizations.

Neil Scott, a political consultant who is a Meals-on-Wheels volunteer and is editor of the International Directory of Meals-on-Wheels, estimates that there are almost 2,000 programs across the country, each serving 30 to 50 persons.

(Scott's directory is available at a cost of $1.25 from Directory, 421 Seward Square SE, Washington, D.C., 20003.)

Although the programs operate independently, they are organized along similar lines. Volunteers deliver meals to participants' homes once a day, five days a week. Each delivery includes two meals — one hot, one cold. Participants pay a sum equal to the cost of the meals, usually $10 to $16 a week, according to Scott.

Most of the people receiving the meals are elderly, Scott said, but the program is open to anyone who is unable to get and prepare his or her own food and cannot afford to hire someone else to do it.

Most of the Meals-on-Wheels programs are self-sufficient. They can qualify for federal aid under the Older Americans Act of 1965. But Scott said recent amendments to the act will make it difficult for most programs to qualify unless they change their methods of operation and limit their services to people over 60. He said there is a difference between government programs and Meals-on-Wheels.

"I think there's a vital difference for the recipients between having a federal volunteer stand at their doorstep with a meal they paid for with their taxes and having a neighborhood volunteer stand there with a meal which they also paid for, but which they know is there because the volunteers in the community care about them," said Scott. "It says to them: 'You're a valued person in our community.'"

Talk of an energy shortage has Scott and others in the Meals-on-Wheels program worried. During the 1974 crisis, he said, "lots of people said they couldn't get gasoline or couldn't afford to pay." They faced long lines and closed service stations. "Lots of meals were missed," Scott said.

To avoid similar problems, Meals-on-Wheels volunteers are being urged to plan now to find alternate ways of delivery — on foot, by bicycle or by public transit.

McCrary denied new trial

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — State District Judge Keith Nelson has denied a defense motion seeking a new trial for John McCrary, sentenced to death last month for the rape and murder of a high school girl.
Nelson's ruling came Friday. Defense attorneys sought the new trial for several reasons, including an allegation that jurors were influenced by a magazine article on the trauma of rape.
Defense attorneys Bill Wood and Rusty Duncan contended the Reader's Digest article about rape prejudiced the jury. The story was found during an informal search of jurors' quarters.
Jurors questioned by Denton County District Attorney Jerry Cobb on Friday said they had not read the article or heard it discussed by any of the other jurors.
McCrary, 28, of Argyle, was convicted Feb. 6 of raping and strangling Jeana Melissa Walker of Roanoke on a rural Denton County road last summer.

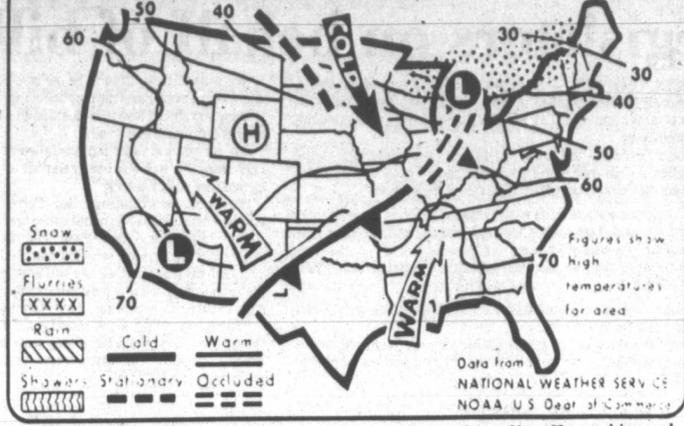

Weather Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Partly cloudy skies and warmer temperatures were in store for most of Texas today.
At dawn, cloudy skies prevailed over much of South Texas while clear skies dominated the northern and western sections of the state.
Temperatures just before daybreak were mostly in the 30s and 40s, except for 50s along the middle and lower Texas coast. The 4 a.m. readings ranged from 29 degrees at Dalhart in the upper Panhandle to 55 degrees at Galveston on the coast.
The forecast called for highs today in the 60s and 70s, with upper 80s in the Big Bend valleys.

National

By The Associated Press
Some flood-weary Midwesterners were enjoying a welcome respite today as freezing temperatures from the Dakotas through the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley slowed the melting snows that have helped drive several rivers out of their banks.
Northern Illinois, where some of the worst flooding occurred last week, took a breather, but in the southern part of the state officials urged river dwellers along the Mississippi, Rock and Illinois Rivers to continue reinforcing levees.
About 300 of the 400 Illinois families who were evacuated earlier in the week from their homes near the Kankakee River returned to start cleaning up during the weekend, officials said.
"Water level's definitely gone down thanks to the cold temperatures," said Richard Meents, Kankakee County civil defense director. "Now we're worried about it getting too cold."

WEATHER FORECAST calls for snow in an area from New Hampshire and Canada to Michigan. Clear skies are expected for the rest of the nation. (AP Laserphoto)

In OKC steakhouse slayings

Murder charges filed against drifter

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Additional murder charges were filed today against a 27-year-old fugitive wanted in last summer's mass murders of six steakhouses employees here and three members of a San Antonio, Texas family near Purcell.
Roger Dale Stafford, described by police as a drifter, was charged Sunday with first-degree murder in the death of one of the steakhouse workers, 15-year-old Terri M. Horst.
Detective Sgt. Mike Heath said eight more murder charges would be filed against Stafford today.
Meanwhile, a nationwide manhunt was continuing for Stafford, believed to be somewhere in the Midwest or South. Police said he left Decatur, Ala., Wednesday for an unknown destination.
"We don't know where he (Stafford) is right now," Heath said.

Police said she was the driver of the getaway vehicle in both sets of murders, but did not directly take part in the killings.
At this time, officers are not planning to file any charges against the woman, Heath said.
Police Chief Tom Heggy said officers believe Stafford's brother, Harold Ray Stafford, 29, also took part in the two sets of murders. The chief said Harold Stafford died in a motorcycle accident in Tulsa six days after the steakhouse killings.
The execution-style murders of six employees at a Sirloin Stockade steakhouse in Oklahoma City last July 16 was the worst mass killing in Oklahoma history.
Before the steakhouse murders made headlines, three members of a San Antonio, Texas, family were killed near Purcell.

Former supervisor expected to testify

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — James V. Smith, a former supervisor at a nuclear fuel plant, is expected to testify in a $11.5 million plutonium contamination trial that employees at the plant were forced to work in contaminated areas.
The suit was brought by survivors of Karen Silkwood, an Oklahoma City woman who died in a 1974 auto accident. The federal court suit alleges that Miss Silkwood, a lab technician, was contaminated with highly radioactive plutonium because Kerr-McGee Corp. didn't take sufficient safety precautions.
Smith, who was in charge of the liquid plutonium segment of the manufacturing process, was expected today to repeat allegations he made in a magazine interview more than a year ago.
At that time, he detailed numerous incidents in which he said Kerr-McGee workers were contaminated with the radioactive substance or forced to work in contaminated areas.
The 46-year-old Smith, of Guthrie, Okla., joined the Kerr-McGee staff in 1969 after 18 years at a nuclear weapons plant in Colorado.
Last week, atomic scientists Drs. John Gofman and Edward Martell testified about the cancer-causing properties of plutonium. They alleged that the federal government's nuclear regulatory agencies are too lax and set alarmingly low safety standards.
Both men said there was enough plutonium in Miss Silkwood's lungs at the time of her death to cause cancer.

Miss Silkwood reportedly was en route to deliver documentation of Kerr-McGee safety lapses when her Nov. 13, 1974, fatal auto accident occurred.
The Oklahoma Highway Patrol concluded Miss Silkwood fell asleep at the wheel and lost control of her auto. Some nuclear industry critics dispute that finding and claim she may have been run off the road.

Love,
Jerrie, Susan, Teresa

FOCUS

The "Veep" Goes Traveling
Jimmy Carter once said that he knew he would win the Democratic presidential nomination when he heard Walter Mondale had dropped out of the race. When Carter won the nomination in 1976, he chose Mondale as his running mate. Today, Mondale probably has more influence in Washington, D.C., than any other vice president in history. When Carter left for the Middle East summit talks at Camp David last September, he told Mondale to "run things" in his absence. This week the "veep" is on the road, representing the United States at the inaugurations of the president of Venezuela today, and the president of Brazil on Thursday.
DO YOU KNOW — What is Walter Mondale's home state?
FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Clara Barton was the first president of the American Red Cross.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR READERS: If you have never had the privacy of your home violated by burglars, skip this column.

If you have... welcome to the club. I want to share a particularly timely and enormously moving piece I recently read in the Los Angeles Times. I welcome your reactions.

AN OPEN LETTER TO BURGLARS
By Fay Cohen

Dear burglars: Having spent my childhood in a clean but poorly furnished home, I set out in marriage to make up for this by decorating our abode in an attractive and cheerful manner. My furniture is comfortable and tastefully coordinated; the wall hangings are equally eye-appealing. My housework and leisure time are made pleasant by up-to-the-minute appliances.

If you want all this, boys, you'd better bring a moving van. Pull it right up to my apartment door next time. No one will notice or question you—or will they?

You already have taken what could be carried away in a sack.

How much did you get for my string of pearls, given to me by mother more than 30 years ago? Did the love that permeated them enhance their value?

My late husband's watch was cold metal when you snatched it. He often laid it on his nightstand, and I'd feel the warmth of his body still on it, giving it momentary life.

And that gold wedding band with the Hebrew lettering—King Solomon's lovely: I am my beloved's and my beloved is mine. How much did that net you?

After the police dusted for your prints, I was left alone, by choice, to try to put myself together. I scrubbed your presence away with soap and water, angry but not afraid.

You did frighten me two years ago when you broke in and took my son's photography equipment and my color television set. It wasn't so much that you took—how can one become sentimental over things that are so easily replaced? What upset me so much was that my secure home was intruded upon. It took me a long time to return to normal and lose the fear that you might return.

And return you did, last week. This time my reaction is not one of fear, but livid anger. I'm mad at the world, at my vulnerability, at a society where even things under lock and key are not safe—and I'm very angry with you!

Did I say I'm not afraid? Yes, I am—not of you, but of myself and the way I shouted to the police—"If you were to find them now and bring them here, I'd kill them!"

Do you know what disturbs me about that threat? I really, really meant it. For one insane moment I was capable of committing a crime. If I'd had a gun, I might have used it, thereby stooping to your gutter level. No, no guns in my house, thank you.

Running gear that really works

NEW YORK (NEA) - You can get a lot from running: 1) holes in your clothes from friction; 2) holes in you from the holes in your clothes; 3) and 376th place in the marathon because the back of your racing tank top kept shifting, breaking your concentration so that you turned off at Exit 56. Alone.

With the right running clothes, says Richard Goodstein, none of that will happen. President of a new unisex "functional actionwear" company called Race Pace, Goodstein says he knows what serious runners need because he's been running seriously for the last 14 of his 38 years. In between designing mens and womenswear and textiles.

wet, like cotton velour or terry. The other beauty of manmade fiber in this case, too, is that when it is wet, it dries almost instantly."

On a dog-day day, for instance, you just wear a pair of shorts and a tank top. Maybe the one-pocket, solid color nylon shorts with split legs to let you move and lap seams which — like jeans seams — are doubly sewn, and covered so you stay that way, too. (All Race Pace seams are like that, he says. Dependable. Also, all Race Pace things come in small or medium, with some exceptions, because the woman who runs seriously has the body to show for it, he says.)

neath, Goodstein says. "You're all set for all but the most severe weather."

'Airport' stars SST Concorde

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - Up in the air! Is it a bird? Is it Superman? No, by golly — this time it's a plane.

As I watched, the crew was reacting to one phase of the attack, radioing for help. "I'm not sure," said the director David Lowell Rich, "if this attack is an explosion or a missile attack or a drone attack."

RACING SPLITS of nylon topped with a cotton tank top, white. Running pants of nylon at about $19, topped by a nylon wind jacket (about $32). All available in leaf green, tan, navy, watermelon, orange iris.

Lee Strasberg - lands on his feet

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - There were a lot of people hoping he would fall on his face.

His next is another film with Pacino, "...and Justice for All." In it, he plays Pacino's grandfather.

Well, just wait and see. But the main gimmick in the new one is that it happens on board the SST, Concorde. And so the film is being called "Airport '79 Concorde."

So there's a race against time, too, in addition to the story of the attack, and whatever else they are planning to throw into the heart-stopping hopper.

But Lee Strasberg didn't. He landed squarely on his two feet, and his big movie debut in "The Godfather: Part II" was not only a success, but it brought him an Academy Award nomination.

"I had been offered dozens of parts," he says. "I would always say, sure, I'll think about it, but I always knew that I would say no. After all, why should I do it? I had nothing to gain by doing it."

They've built a reproduction of the Concorde on the Universal lot. The only thing different about it is that the aisles are a bit wider — the Concorde's are notoriously narrow — to accommodate the passage of a film camera dolly.

Lang says he first wrote the story, feeling that to make a new "Airport" film almost cried out for a Concorde background, as that is the current queen of the skies. After his story was written, he began trying to get the necessary OKs to use the name.

"Nowadays," he says, "I like to do one or two acting things a year. It all depends on what it is and who it's for. I prefer working with my friends — Al Pacino, Robert DeNiro, Dustin Hoffman. Ellen Burstyn could ask me to do anything with her, and I would do it."

Pacino, according to Strasberg, was the one who felt that his old mentor would be just right to play the old gangster in "The Godfather: Part II." Strasberg says he had never met the director, Francis Ford Coppola, and he knew that Coppola had already spoken to Elia Kazan about playing the part.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was operated on for prostate gland trouble by a urologist. I could not urinate at all. He removed my prostate gland and operated on my male tubes. I now have a tube in my bladder to drain the urine which will be taken out in three weeks. I am 68 years old. What are the chances of complete recovery of my urinary organs?

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a problem with very dark circles under my eyes. I have had these for as long as I can remember. I get over eight hours sleep so I don't think it can be caused from lack of rest. I had an eye examination a year ago and was told that my eyesight was perfect. My doctor says it is caused from too much pollen in the air. I feel if this is true, why doesn't everyone have this problem? I am 23 years old.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I have some colored clothes with blood stains on them. I've tried everything I know of to remove them but the stains remain. Can you give me any ideas? — DOROTHY W.

DEAR DOROTHY — Hot water sets blood stains so you may have already set them. Removing will be almost impossible. Try soaking in cold water for about half an hour and then in lukewarm ammonia water — one tablespoon ammonia to one gallon of water — for another half-hour. Rub detergent in the stains and launder. Good luck to you. — POLLY

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) One with whom you usually have a difficult time getting along could cross your path again today. Use past experience to play it smart.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's up to you to put a stop to an outside influence undermining the tranquility of your home. Don't let it get a foothold.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unless you're tactful today you could find yourself on a collision course with a strongly opinionated person. Things would get heated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You might be forced today to face up to and resolve an old issue that has been smoldering for much too long between you and a friend. Preserve the friendship.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try to see things through the eyes of your competition and you could come out the victor. Otherwise, you could lose what you've already gained.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Giving someone a piece of your mind out of anger will only further complicate matters. Let your better judgment rule.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Watch your budget extremely carefully. You or another member of your family could incur a debt that would be difficult to pay off.

Ranked teams fall by NCAA's wayside

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

North Carolina has learned the power of the Penn.

On the Sunday that shocked the South, the unranked Quakers upended the third-ranked Tar Heels 72-71 before an unbelieving crowd of 12,400 at Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh, N.C. Hours later, the stunned North Carolina was hushed as Reggie Carter's six-foot jump shot with four seconds left helped St. John's, N.Y., sink sixth-ranked Duke 80-78.

Those two strong swings toppled two mighty trees from the Atlantic Coast Conference, capping a weekend that sent eight ranked teams to the sidelines of the NCAA basketball tournament.

"We absolutely fear no one," said Penn Coach Bob Weinbauer, after his Quakers practiced unfriendly persuasion on the Tar

Heels. "Other people have to prepare for us and try to stop what we do best."

What they did Sunday was take the lead 55-30 with nine minutes left, survive North Carolina's comeback within a point with 1:30 remaining, and put the game away as James Salters scored four of the Ivy League champions' next six points.

"I think the Ivy League — the so-called weak league — deserves some respect ... and we got it," said the Quakers' Tony Price, who made 12 of his 18 field goal attempts, scored 25 points, collected nine rebounds and had six assists. "I just wanted to play a team of that caliber and show that we could stay with them."

They did that, and more. So did St. John's, which won a nail biter from Duke on Carter's clutch shot.

"I wanted to redeem myself," said Carter, who missed a 1-and-1 free-throw situation with 49 seconds left but still gave the Redmen their second tournament triumph over the Blue Devils this season. St. John's had beaten Duke 69-66 in a consolation game matchup at the ECAC Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden.

"They were talking consolation and that they weren't up for it," said Rudy Wright of St. John's. "I'm glad we got another chance."

They got that chance against a Duke squad that was missing starters Kenny Dennard and Bob Bender and had Mike Gminski at less-than-full strength with a stomach virus.

Gminski gave the Redmen their final scare when his 45-foot heave at the buzzer bounced off the rim to sum up the day's frustrations for the ACC powers. North Carolina finished 23-6 and Duke ended up 22-8, while Penn improved to 23-5 and St. John's to 20-10.

Meanwhile, in other games Sunday, top-ranked Indiana State breezed past Virginia Tech 86-69; second-ranked UCLA trimmed tenacious Pepperdine 76-71; fourth-ranked Michigan State hammered Lamar 85-64, and No. 5 Notre Dame dropped 20th-ranked Tennessee 73-67.

Also, seventh-ranked Arkansas beat Weber State 74-63 and No. 8 DePaul defeated Southern Cal, 89-78.

Thus the tournament moves into regional semifinals, which will present the following matchups: EAST, at Greensboro, N.C., on Friday — St. John's against Rutgers 22-8 and Penn against No. 10 Syracuse, 28-3.

MIDWEST, at Indianapolis, Friday — Michigan State, 22-6, against ninth-ranked Louisiana State, 23-5 and Notre Dame, 23-5, against Toledo, 22-7.

WEST, at Provo, Utah, on Thursday — DePaul, 23-5, against No. 12 Marquette, 22-6, and UCLA, 24-4 against No. 19 San Francisco, 22-6.

MIDWEST, at Cincinnati, on Thursday — Arkansas, 24-4, against No. 18 Louisville, 24-7, and Indiana State, 30-0, against Oklahoma, 21-9.

Indiana State star Larry Bird easily overcame his fractured left thumb and the top-ranked Sycamores easily handled Virginia Tech. Bird scored 22 points and collected 13 rebounds and Indiana State went on a 20-0 scoring spree midway through the first half.

Carl Nicks added 22 for the unbeaten Sycamores.

"They've won 30 in a row," said Virginia Tech Coach Charles Moir. "They're for real."

Virginia Tech, 22-9, which blasted

Jacksonville 70-53 Friday night to earn its meeting with the Sycamores, got 18 points from Les Henson.

UCLA, playing on its Pauley Pavilion home court, used a 20-6 spurt in the early stages of the second half to hold off Pepperdine. The Waves, 22-10, pulled within three points with nine seconds remaining before the Bruins' Brad Holland sank two free throws for insurance.

"Pepperdine deserves a tremendous amount of credit," said UCLA Coach Gary Cunningham. "They are an outstanding team but do not get the publicity we do."

The Waves, whose campus is just 15 miles from UCLA, got 27 points from guard Ricardo Brown.

Michigan State, with Greg Kelsier scoring 31 points and four others in double figures, toyed with Lamar.

Killingsworth new coach at TCU

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Jim Killingsworth, a grizzled veteran with a reputation for shoring up sinking basketball programs, has been tapped as head basketball coach at Texas Christian University.

The 55-year-old Oklahoma native signed a 4-year contract Sunday, but TCU Athletic Director Frank Wiedgeger would not reveal terms of the agreement.

Killingsworth succeeds Tim Somerville, the 33-year-old coach who stepped down Feb. 19 after a 2-year record of 10-43.

Killingsworth comes to the Frogs off a 12-15 season at Oklahoma State University, the winningest season for the Cowboys in nine years.

Nicknamed "Killer," Killingsworth also has a reputation as a recruiter. He snared the Oklahoma "Player of the Year" for OSU two years in a row.

"We were fortunate to land a man and coach with Jim's credentials," Wiedgeger said.

"Our intention from the start was to find the best man for the job and I'm convinced we did. Our No. 1 priority was to find a proven major college head coach who was also an excellent recruiter."

Killingsworth said he felt TCU's administration voiced a "total commitment (to basketball) or I wouldn't have taken the job. We've got the budget and the facilities.

"This is the most difficult decision I've ever made in coaching," Killingsworth said. "It's a real challenge and a great opportunity. TCU has great possibilities.

"One of the main reasons I took the job is the people I'll be working with. Many of them have worked with me previously."

Foyt captures Aggieldand 250

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Sunday's Aggieldand 250 stock car race, the 13th under present ownership of Texas World Speedway, was an unlucky number for everyone but the winner — A.J. Foyt.

The legendary Texan won the pole position in a draw and survived a protest attempt following the race by runner-up Freddy Fryar of Beaumont, Texas.

While Foyt toured the 2-mile oval track as if protected by a magic charm, spectacular crashes, mechanical problems and spinouts left only 14 cars in the 34-car field running at the end.

"It was one of those days when I didn't feel I had any competition," said Foyt, winning for the seventh time here.

Optimist tourney set for weekend

The Lakers will take on the Celtics and the Bullets will battle the Spurs Friday night in the first round of the Pampa Optimist Club City Boys Basketball Championship.

The Lakers, first-place finishers in the Easter division, will play the Celtics (second in the West) at 6, while the West champion Bullets will hook up with the Spurs, second best in the East, at 7:30.

The championship game is scheduled for Saturday night at 7:30, with the third place matchup starting at 6.

In Saturday's regular-season finales, the Spurs topped the 76ers 33-26 and the Bucks nipped the Rockets 29-27.

Tony Santa Cruz had 17 points and Chris Comer nine for the Spurs in their victory. Tylor Newcomb had eight for the Sixers. Gene LaRue of the Bucks and Tate Eldridge of the Rockets tied for high point honors in their game with 11 points apiece.

"The car was running so good. Usually when you have a car running that strong, you couldn't win a race if they gave it to you."

Fryar, in fact, felt the United States Auto Club did give the race to Foyt.

"A.J. didn't win the race," Fryar said. "He was leading, went to the pits and came back on the caution flag in front of me. He should have gone to the back of the pack."

"I tried to protest but they (USAC officials) wouldn't allow me. I guess you can't beat A.J. here."

USAC chief steward Billy Saxon said only that no formal protest was filed by any driver.

TWS president R.C. Conole said Foyt's pit stop on the 101st lap was a legal maneuver.

"I guess Freddy hasn't run enough USAC races to know that you are permitted to fill in anywhere you can when you come out of the pits under the yellow flag."

"Cars were doing it all day."

Conole said Foyt was leading when he pitted and still was ahead when he came out.

Another official ruling by USAC officials gave third place to Bay Darnell, Deerfield, Ill., although Gary Bowsher, Springfield, Ohio, crossed the finish line third. Bowsher was penalized one lap and dropped one place for ignoring a black flag while he rounded the track dragging a fuel can.

Eight yellow flags during the race resulted in 39 laps being run under caution. But a red flag on the first lap, which resulted in a complete restart, was the most chilling delay of the lengthy race.

Eddie Wachs, Lake Forest, Ill., crashed through a concrete endfield wall and rolled down a 15-foot embankment leading to a tunnel.

Wachs was hospitalized for observation, but was not seriously hurt.

Foyt said the numerous yellow flags didn't bother him.

Ranked teams fall by NCAA's wayside

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

North Carolina has learned the power of the Penn.

On the Sunday that shocked the South, the unranked Quakers upended the third-ranked Tar Heels 72-71 before an unbelieving crowd of 12,400 at Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh, N.C. Hours later, the stunned throng hushed as Reggie Carter's six-foot jump shot with four seconds left helped St. John's, N.Y., sink sixth-ranked Duke 80-78.

Those two strong swings topped two mighty trees from the Atlantic Coast Conference, capping a weekend that sent eight ranked teams to the sidelines of the NCAA basketball tournament.

"We absolutely fear no one," said Penn Coach Bob Weinbauer, after his Quakers practiced unfriendly persuasion on the Tar

Heels. "Other people have to prepare for us and try to stop what we do best."

What they did Sunday was take the lead 55-50 with nine minutes left, survive North Carolina's comeback within a point with 1:26 remaining, and put the game away as James Salters scored four of the Ivy League champions' next six points.

"I think the Ivy League — the so-called weak league — deserves some respect ... and we got it," said the Quakers' Tony Price, who made 12 of his 18 field goal attempts, scored 25 points, collected nine rebounds and had six assists. "I just wanted to play a team of that caliber and show that we could stay with them."

They did that, and more. So did St. John's, which won a nail biter from Duke on Carter's clutch shot.

"I wanted to redeem myself," said Carter, who missed a 1-and-1 free-throw situation with 49 seconds left but still gave the Redmen their second tournament triumph over the Blue Devils this season. St. John's had beaten Duke 69-66 in a consolation game matchup at the ECAC Holiday Festival at Madison Square Garden.

"They were talking consolation and that they weren't up for it," said Rudy Wright of St. John's. "I'm glad we got another chance."

They got that chance against a Duke squad that was missing starters Kenny Dennard and Bob Bender and had Mike Gminski at less-than-full strength with a stomach virus.

Gminski gave the Redmen their final scare when his 45-foot heave at the buzzer bounced off the rim to sum up the day's frustrations for the ACC powers. North Carolina finished 23-6 and Duke ended up 22-8, while Penn improved to 23-5 and St. John's to 20-10.

Meanwhile, in other games Sunday, top-ranked Indiana State breezed past Virginia Tech 86-69; second-ranked UCLA trimmed tenacious Pepperdine 76-71; fourth-ranked Michigan State hammered Lamar 95-64, and No. 5 Notre Dame dropped 20th-ranked Tennessee 73-67.

Also, seventh-ranked Arkansas beat Weber State 74-63 and No. 8 DePaul defeated Southern Cal. 89-78.

Thus the tournament moves into regional semifinals, which will present the following matchups: EAST, at Greensboro, N.C., on Friday — St. John's against Rutgers 22-8 and Penn against No. 10 Syracuse, 26-3.

MIDWEST, at Indianapolis, Friday — Michigan State, 22-6, against ninth-ranked Louisiana State, 23-5 and Notre Dame, 23-5, against Toledo, 22-7.

WEST, at Provo, Utah, on Thursday — DePaul, 23-5, against No. 12 Marquette, 22-6, and UCLA, 24-4, against No. 19 San Francisco, 22-6.

MIDWEST, at Cincinnati, on Thursday — Arkansas, 24-4, against No. 18 Louisville, 24-7, and Indiana State, 30-0, against Oklahoma, 21-9.

Indiana State star Larry Bird easily overcame his fractured left thumb and the top-ranked Sycamores easily handled Virginia Tech. Bird scored 22 points and collected 13 rebounds and Indiana State went on a 20-0 scoring spree midway through the first half.

Carl Nicks added 22 for the unbeaten Sycamores.

"They've won 30 in a row," said Virginia Tech Coach Charles Moir. "They're for real." Virginia Tech, 22-9, which blasted

Jacksonville 70-53 Friday night to earn its meeting with the Sycamores, got 18 points from Les Henson.

UCLA, playing on its Pauley Pavilion home court, used a 20-6 spurt in the early stages of the second half to hold off Pepperdine. The Waves, 22-10, pulled within three points with nine seconds remaining before the Bruins' Brad Holland sank two free throws for insurance.

"Pepperdine deserves a tremendous amount of credit," said UCLA Coach Gary Cunningham. "They are an outstanding team but do not get the publicity we do."

The Waves, whose campus is just 15 miles from UCLA, got 27 points from guard Ricardo Brown.

Michigan State, with Greg Kelsey scoring 31 points and four others in double figures, toyed with Lamar.

Killingsworth new coach at TCU

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Jim Killingsworth, a grizzled veteran with a reputation for shoring up sinking basketball programs, has been tapped as head basketball coach at Texas Christian University.

The 55-year-old Oklahoma native signed a 4-year contract Sunday, but TCU Athletic Director Frank Windeger would not reveal terms of the agreement.

Killingsworth succeeds Tim Somerville, the 33-year-old coach who stepped down Feb. 19 after a 2-year record of 10-43. Killingsworth comes to the Frogs off a 12-15 season at Oklahoma State University, the winningest season for the Cowboys in nine years.

Nicknamed "Killer," Killingsworth also has a reputation as a recruiter. He snared the Oklahoma "Player of the Year" for OSU two years in a row.

"We were fortunate to land a man and coach with Jim's credentials," Windeger said. "Our intention from the start was to find the best man for the job and I'm convinced we did. Our No. 1 priority was to find a proven major college head coach who was also an excellent recruiter."

Killingsworth said he felt TCU's administration voiced a total commitment (to basketball) or I wouldn't have taken the job. We've got the budget and the facilities.

"This is the most difficult decision I've ever made in coaching," Killingsworth said. "It's a real challenge and a great opportunity. TCU has great possibilities."

"One of the main reasons I took the job is the people I'll be working with. Many of them have worked with me previously."

Foyt captures Aggieldand 250

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Sunday's Aggieldand 250 stock car race, the 13th under present ownership of Texas World Speedway, was an unlucky number for everyone but the winner — A.J. Foyt.

The legendary Texan won the pole position in a draw and survived a protest attempt following the race by runner-up Freddy Fryar of Beaumont, Texas.

While Foyt toured the 2-mile oval track as if protected by a magic charm, spectacular crashes, mechanical problems and spinouts left only 14 cars in the 34-car field running at the end.

"It was one of those days when I didn't feel I had any competition," said Foyt, winning for the seventh time here.
