Nuke vote up in air

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—The anti-nuclear forces that want Austin to give up its 16 percent interest in the South Texas Nuclear Project showed a slight but inconclusive edge in early returns Saturday night.

With 10 of 86 precincts reporting there were 1,295 voting for continued support of the project and 1,661 against.

Many of the larger boxes were unreported.

A misting rain that fell throughout the day cut down on the number of voters in many areas of the city, election officials said.

Mayor Carole McClellan, who backs continued support of the nuclear power plant, said the Pennsylvania incident "had a tremendous impact on our election."

Anti-nuclear forces reported a surge of welcome volunteer campaign workers.

The ballot listed four propositions:

—Authorize the issuance of $215.85 million in revenue bonds to continue Austin's 16 percent interest in the South Texas project.

—Authorize the sale of the 16 percent.

—Authorize issuance of $433.9 million in revenue bonds to build a new coal or lignite generating plant.

—Authorize the city council to use the proceeds from the sale of the 16 percent toward the financing of a coal or lignite plant.

The ballot also includes names of 19 candidates for mayor and six council members — who will carry out the voters' decision.

Mrs. McClellan argued that the other investors in the South Texas project will go ahead and complete the plant whether Austin remains a partner or not.

Cool down continues

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Radioactive gases that had been leaking from an auxiliary building finally were removed to the sealed nuclear reactor housing at Three Mile Island on Saturday, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission announced.

Engineers turned their attention to waste water contaminated with radioactive iodine that is on the floor of the auxiliary building, the NRC said, as efforts to cool the reactor continued.

The gases and iodine had been releasing low-level radiation into the atmosphere, prompting Gov. Dick Thornburgh to advise that pre-school children and pregnant women remain at least five miles from the plant.

Plans are being made to immobilize the radioactive iodine by adding chemicals to the waste water, NRC operations chief Harold Denton has reported.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman James Hanchett said it would take at least until the end of next week to cool the reactor's nuclear fuel.

NRC officials are delaying a cold shutdown of the core, which would eliminate the possibility of a meltdown, while they check the equipment that will be used to depressurize the reactor. "The delicate part is not the cooling, it's depressurizing," said NRC official Robert Bernero. "If gas starts bubbling out excessively, it could form pockets and slow down or stop the flow" of reactor coolant.

Meanwhile on Saturday, an anti-nuclear rally in Lancaster, Pa., drew a crowd of only 200, and only about 50 showed up at a town meeting for residents living virtually in the shadow of Three Mile Island.

Doggett fighting 'conspiracy' in Senate

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Sen. Lloyd Doggett says a "conspiracy" of special interest groups against consumers is so extensive that fighting it has become his most important legislative goal.

The battle even is worth risking his own bills, Doggett, D-Austin, said in an interview.

"Going back to the fall, people have been coming out of the woodwork. There's one thing after another," he said. "Almost all the game this time is defensive."

Tuesday, the Senate's youngest member kicked off a 15-hour filibuster against a bill he said would devastate the 1973 Consumer Protection Act.

The measure's fate is still uncertain as Doggett searches for an 11th vote to block its return to the Senate floor for final passage.

Thursday, Doggett again brought his tennis shoes to work, a sign he was ready for another filibuster. Doggett, 32, prepared to put them on for a talk against a bill that would allow automobile dealers to charge $35 on each sale to cover paperwork costs.

The threat of a filibuster caused the senators to vote a weekend recess and left the automobile bill pending.

"I'm expecting to go in there

Monday and get with it," Doggett said. "I've committed to talk again."

He said three more bills are certain to bring out the tennis shoes if compromises cannot be reached before they reach the floor or if enough votes cannot be mustered to block their consideration.

Senate rules require 21 votes for a bill to be discussed.

Two potential targets would extend the lives of the Texas Real Estate Commission and the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission under the Sunset Act.

The third bill would allow department stores to sell insurance on installment credit purchases.

Doggett said he decided "on the merit that they're bad bills, with the added justification of talking at length because they're part of a conspiracy."

He did not rule out filibusters against other bills he considers anti-consumer.

"I guess I'll sort of make that decision on a day-by-day basis," the senator said.

Doggett said he chose the filibuster as his strategy because special interest legislation has reached epic proportions.

"I have not seen a situation where there was so much lobby dominance and the only things being considered are lobby bills," he said.

The 1971 Sharpstown scandal swept in a reform era, but Doggett said enough time has elapsed for the public to lose interest.

He said the inauguration of a new governor also has helped special interests to regain their prominence.

The senator said Gov. Bill Clements is not an "active participant" but the oil drilling millionaire's conservative business philosophy has encouraged lobbyists to try anything.

"I think the feeling is that on many of these issues, no matter how bad the business lobby is, the governor's going to sign it... I hope that's not true," Doggett said.

Clements said Friday he agreed with Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, sponsor of the consumer protection amendments, that the balance had swung too far toward consumers.

Doggett is a national board member of Consumers Union, the publisher of Consumer Reports magazine. He was a consumer lobbyist in 1973 before his first Senate term in 1975.

The former University of Texas student president is in private practice as a trial lawyer, a profession opponents say stands to gain from strong consumer legislation allowing substantial damages to be awarded.

But Doggett said he was not alone among the 31 senators in his consumer views.

"We're not going to sit back and let them destroy a good piece of reform," Doggett said. "There are a number of people concerned about what's happening here."

He predicted the coalition of nine senators that shared stints during Tuesday and Wednesday's filibuster will hold firm on the issue, and a tenth has since announced his support.

The group is not solid on every issue, he said, and bills will have to be taken one at a time.

Doggett has never been a wildflower in his three terms despite his status as the Senate's youngest member, but his visibility this session is certainly the strongest yet.

"It has been a more active session for me," he observed.

"Certainly you've got to overcome the 'new kid on the block'."

The senator, slim and smooth-faced, said hearing more venerable and physically imposing colleagues rage against his proposals was "an experience you've got to get used to."

Clements in favor of nuclear plants

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Seldom one to duck controversy, Gov. Bill Clements has come out for more nuclear power plants and legislation to weaken the Texas Consumer Protection Act.

Texas has "what I would call a petroculture," based on cheap and abundant energy, and "if industry becomes energy starved, we are going to pay an awful price," he said at his weekly news conference Friday.

And avoiding energy starvation, the governor said, means nuclear production of electricity — the Harrisburg, Pa., radiation leaks from a nuclear reactor to the contrary notwithstanding.

Clements noted that four reactors are being built in Texas now and said he wished the number were six or eight.

"I favor and encourage nuclear plant construction. ... Technology is improving, and the public welfare and safety will be protected," he said.

He said Americans live in a "fool's paradise" in which they doubt there is an energy crisis while at the same time importing 51 percent of their oil and weakening their dollar in the process.

Clements held his weekly news conference Friday at a meeting of the local chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists and used the occasion to chastise national reporting on energy.

"The media carries some of the responsibility for this. ... You editorialize about everything else, why can't you about this?" he said.

When Bo Byers, the Houston Chronicle's bureau chief, responded that Capitol reporters carry virtually every pronouncement on energy he and other officials make, Clements backed down somewhat.

"The Texas press has done a good job," he said, adding his remarks were precipitated by a discussion that morning with a national network news crew.

Clements also commented, without being asked, on legislation requiring consumers to prove a businessman deliberately defrauded them before they can collect triple damages for deceptive trade practices.

"I think the bill is all right as it is presently constituted," he said of Sen. Bill Meier's legislation that provoked a filibuster Tuesday by "consumerist" senators.

Kerr-McGee on defense

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Kerr-McGee Corp. lawyers describe the defense they began this week in the $11.5 million Karen Silkwood plutonium contamination trial as "a largely circumstantial case."

The energy corporation's first witness in its attempt to prove it wasn't negligent, Wayne Norwood, 51, of Oklahoma City, had been on the stand 2½ days when court adjourned for the weekend early Friday afternoon. He will undergo redirect examination Monday.

The court reporter's official transcript of Kerr-McGee attorney Bill Paul's opening statement arrived Monday, but the issues that had caused U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis of Wichita, Kan., to order the text apparently were resolved before it arrived. Based on statements they claimed Paul made, Silkwood attorneys had attempted to enter evidence about searches of Miss Silkwood's wrecked auto the night if her death in a Nov. 13, 1974, single-vehicle crash and evidence of the source of the plutonium that contaminated her.

They now say evidence about the searches will be introduced later. On Tuesday, exhibits were introduced the Silkwood lawyers claim show the plutonium in Miss Silkwood's apartment came from a nuclear fuel pellet lot she never had access to as a Kerr-McGee lab technician.

Despite the fact the evidentiary issues concerning the opening statement apparently were resolved, Paul remained upset about what he felt were unfair interpretations of his remarks by opposing counsel. He made available copies of the transcript to prove his point.

Election results

Due to circumstances beyond its control, the News was unable to secure the results of the city elections held Saturday.

Only one school board position was in question, as all other office-holders were running unopposed.

The News regrets this situation and will run a complete election roundup in Monday's edition.

Child's education brings on lawsuit

By TIM FOUGHT
Associated Press Writer

MCHENRY, Ill. (AP)—At age 10, Thomas Irwin is brilliant, but he is "bored to death in school," his mother says. Bored enough for his parents to file a $1 million suit against the school district over the quality of his education.

With an IQ tested, his parents say, at about 170, he is bright enough to read and understand the lawsuit filed in his behalf.

"The state law says each child should be educated to the maximum extent of his ability, and they (school officials) have failed to do this," Thomas, a fifth grader at Edgebrook Elementary School, said in describing the basis of the suit.

His parents said they decided it was time to file suit when the school board reversed a decision to let Thomas attend a high school class, the only one he found stimulating.

Their suit seeks $1 million in damages and a court order directing the schools to provide a program of "academically excellent" courses for Thomas, which his mother, Janet Irwin, said should meet his interest in advanced science instruction.

School district officials have declined to comment. District lawyers are to file a formal response by the end of April.

His father Ronald, a lawyer, said Thursday he hopes arguments in Circuit Court can begin in May.

Joyce Van Tassel of the Illinois Office of Education in Springfield said the suit could give the courts an opportunity to define, for the first time, how far public school systems are obligated to go in providing extra programs and classes for bright children.

She said similar suits filed in Pennsylvania and New Mexico reached inconclusive results, although they did prompt those states to adopt or improve aid programs.

Mrs. Irwin said her son started playing chess and absorbing scientific articles from an encyclopedia when he was 4.

Thomas said school is "pretty much the same old thing over and over again."

His boredom and intelligence have caused him problems, he said, recounting a fight with a peer "who said he hated me because I use big words."

Mrs. Irwin says school officials took her son out of a program for gifted children because "he needed to be calmed down in class." The program, the Irwins claim, was heavy on instruction in photography and crafts and light on the science courses that interest Thomas.

In early March, school officials agreed to let Thomas into a high school Spanish class, which he says has been stimulating.

However, some school board members said they feared that putting a grade school pupil in a high school class would set a bad and expensive precedent. The board voted 4-3 on March 13 to remove Thomas from the Spanish class, prompting the suit.

Since then, the board has backed off and allowed Thomas to stay in the class.

Sense and strip mining

Right at the time when coal should be taking up more of the energy load to ease the effects of Iranian oil import loss, the coal industry is beset with a multitude of problems. Strip mining operations (which supply over half of the total production) are hit hardest by burgeoning hazards to recovery of this resource.

Officials of surface mining companies meeting in Washington recently complained that many of the smaller firms are near collapse and that doubling of coal production, which President Carter once insisted "must be done," cannot take place.

Inflation and the proliferation of government regulations are major factors in the problem. But probably the most damaging factor is the climate of uncertainty which is ever present when expansion plans are considered.

The cause of the greatest uncertainty rests with consideration of the new federal strip mine reclamation law. The law requires the states to administer reclamation plans which forbid mining on land that cannot be restored to its "original" condition. Pending regulations implementing the law will surely force many small operators to go out of business.

If environmental activists have their way, a strict interpretation of the law could stop all strip mining. These idealists would never settle for having the land restored to a reasonably good and pleasing condition. For too many of the most vocal of these people are anti-industry and anti-progress. They are simply using the environmental consideration as a front for their more basic desire. With their own living situation assured, they have no desire to enlarge anything to accommodate others.

The Mining and Reclamation Council, which has a membership of 211 coal companies and the firms that sell reclamation equipment, says the new law is a serious economic threat. "Some reserves have been rendered unmineable by the regulations," said George Dials, council vice-president.

At the meeting, coal company officials complained about too many inspectors, and too much paperwork. Once said, "We have state inspectors, state reclamation inspectors, federal mine inspectors and now federal reclamation inspectors. It is cutting down on productivity."

All this reminds us of a sign in an auto repair shop: "Labor charge $15 per hour if you stand around and watch, otherwise it is $12 per hour." This points to a truism which is magnified greatly with regulators underfoot in a mining production effort.

The so-called alluvial valley floor provision of the law came in for critical comment. George Robinson, environmental manager for Peabody Coal Company, says these regulations exceed the law. He argued that the regulations mean every proposed Western mine near a stream will have to have a special $790,000 study. "Basically the regulations mean all valleys in the West are covered, and that is not what the law intended," he said.

Through other agencies our government tells us it favors the small businessman and forever decry's bigness in industry. However, all of the regulatory agencies which plague the energy sector of our economy are acting to smother the small industries and make it almost impossible for them to exist.

The increased use of coal could do much to get us out of our present dependence on foreign resources for energy fuel. All forward efforts to implement the use get stymied with government bureaucracy at its officious worst.

Complete dismantling of some of our federal and state regulatory agencies would probably be the best thing we could do to solve our energy problems. Studies, seminars and summit meetings in Washington, at which our leaders pretend to be solving problems, may emit a lot of hot air, but the problem is at the level of digging the coal or drilling the coal or drilling for oil. The least amount of hindrance will assist to get the greatest amount of energy fuel.

Surviving a fortnight of non-sequiturs

By BUTLER D. SHAFER

It was, all things considered, quite a two weeks. Jimmy-the-Miraculous withstood the outbursts of a handful of Israeli legislators to perform his semi-annual saving of the world.

Meanwhile, the Ayatollah Khomeini was ferreting out those vicious enemies of God and Mankind (i.e., those persons who were known to have smiled when the shah's motorcade passed by) and executing them with the speed of Billy Carter offending other persons' sensibilities. On a more tragic note, Judge John Sirica opened the door to a return to the days of the so-called "robber barons" by ruling that (gasp!) Ralph Nader did not, in fact, represent all of mankind!

Meanwhile, in another federal court, the true representatives of man's quest for a decent and humane world, the magazine The Progressive, was fending off the efforts of the federal government to prevent them from publishing an article containing the recipe for making a hydrogen bomb. The case demonstrates, far better than most examples one could dream up, the inherent absurdity of the political process. Here, on the one hand, is one of the more vocal advocates of a State-directed society fighting for its right to inform the general public as to how one of the most destructive and violent tools of mass-murder can be put together. On the other hand, we have the federal government fighting to prevent people from communicating the products of their own thought and inquiry.

This issue has of course, come up before. Not too long ago, an undergraduate student at Princeton wrote a term-paper describing, on the basis of library research, the workings of an atomic bomb. The Nuclear Regulatory Agency stepped in, took his term paper from him, and ordered him not to discuss its contents with anyone, under threat of criminal prosecution.

In both these cases, the government has taken the posture of "protecting" its military secrets. What arrant nonsense!

Both the Princeton student and the writer of the article The Progressive seeks to publish gathered their information from public sources, such as library books. If the government can get away with prohibiting people from communicating the results of their own reading and thinking on the same spurious grounds that Richard Nixon tried to foreclose Watergate inquiries (i.e., "national security"), what will be next? I hope those who run the so-called "defense" agencies of the government are not seriously of the view that the publication of articles and papers of these sorts are likely to let the Russian and Chinese governments (or even Idi Amin) in on the "secret" of atomic weaponry.

Finally, we turn to the "pot-and-the-kettle" department. Walter Heller - who served as chief economic adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson - had the courage of his contradictions to refer to the popularity of investment conferences and seminars as the outgrowth of "economic charlatanism." Most of the people who put these programs on are, it seems to me, free-market oriented. Their approach is well - typified by Harry Browne who, in a session of his I attended, told his audience:

"Get as much information as you can and make up your own mind." Contrast that, if you will, with the position taken by the Walter Hellers and other advocates of a State-controlled and State manipulated economy: they will make the decisions for 200 million people, and they will force all of us to bear the consequences of their decisions. And when their dreary formulas fail - as witness Keynesianism with its attendant unemployment, runaway inflation, and periodic resort to wars - the State-planners simply retreat to concoct a new economic mythology, complete with new incantations, magic beads, and dance-steps to exorcise the "bad spirits" created by their previous misadventures. Talk about charlatanism!

California's governor - the Ayatollah Jerry Brown - is reaping the consequences of his own brand of State - planning. After many months of regulatory red - tape, Standard Oil of Ohio announced that it would not go ahead with its plans to build a $1 billion oil terminal and pipeline facility at Long Beach. (Sohio than about-faced again - Ed.) Those who wonder why there are market shortages of petroleum might learn a lesson from this, although I doubt it. Just as the Walter Heller - despised investment conferences prosper because people want to be able to reduce the harm caused them by government tinkering with the economy, so, too, companies like Standard Oil of Ohio are discouraged from making investments where State - intervention increases the costs (and thus reduces the profitability) of a project. Therein lies an economic truth so basic and so simple that even the Ayatollah Brown should be able to understand it!

In recent weeks there has been a lot of talk about utilities, who has control of them, who wants control of them, etc. We don't favor government doing very much, but there is one thing that I want to say about a few of the people in our local government.

Mack Wofford, city manager and our mayor R.D. Wilkerson, have really gone to bat for us in this latest utility scam and I think we should all appreciate their efforts. Even if most of us don't know what they are talking about.

Both Wofford and Wilkerson have made it clear that they want the local government to have control over the utility rates set by the large power companies (Southwestern Public Service, Pioneer Natural Gas, etc.).

We say go get 'em fellows. If you read at all then you should know that several of these companies have some of our great politicians in Austin in their hip pocket.

Government is bad enough without being corrupt. The right hand usually doesn't know what the left hand is doing but when you are dealing with corrupt bureaucrats you have really had it. The only thing worse than a corrupt politician is a dumb one. I might say there are several of those running around here, too.

I don't know all the facts or all the people involved in this great rip off of the Texas consumers but I do know enough to smell a rat in the wood pile.

The story is this: the utility companies want the control of their rates put into the hands of the State Utility Commission in Austin and taken out of the hands of the local municipal governments.

There is only one reason that comes to mind why these fellows want to get rid of the little guys. Yea, you guessed it. Higher rates will abound if we let the control of these giants slip through our fingers. We must maintain control of these companies are pay the price that they set of the precious commodity of energy.

The next time that you see Mack or R.D. on the street you might want to say a simple "thanks" to them for their insight into this matter. They have our best interest at heart in the matter of energy prices so we should all be thankful that we have the few men left in government that have integrity and courage.

It is not easy to go against the powerful men of the state, frankly, it is darn hard. Just a personal note to close with. Mack, R. D. I., if no one else, appreciates you taking this fight to a higher court. I thank you.

Can a lawsuit stop metric

by paul harvey

You do not have to convert to metric measure if you don't want to. There is no law requiring Americans to adopt metric measure—but we are being "eased into it" by degrees, law or no law.

One prominent Oklahoman has mobilized those opposed, is suing the U.S. government.

Dean Krakel is a man of "art and letters." He has written half a dozen books. He is also executive vice president of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame.

In the independent tradition of the West, Krakel is indignant over the manner in which bureaucrats and some uncaring manufacturers are "jamming metric down our throats."

Several surveys including the most recent Gallup Poll on the subject show that Americans, four-to-one, are opposed to the metric system and, in their behalf, Dean Krakel is suing the government.

He has organized a "Don't Think Metric Assn.," has collected thousands of signatures. He demands that the Metric Conversion Act be repealed and the issue put to a vote.

Not everybody supports him. The Tulsa Tribune called Krakel and his supporters

"patriotic huffenpuffers" trying to keep America "in medieval measurements."

Krakel lashes back, says, "Liberal politicians, dollar-grabbing commercial interests, teachers in the National Education Assn. and bureaucrats at all levels have joined together to force on the American people this unwanted and costly proposition — and we haven't even been given a chance to vote on it."

Some people are willing to accept metric, fearing that our world trade will be damaged if we don't.

And there is an international directive which threatens to shut the United States out of the Common Market unless our exports are marked metric. But the deadline for that directive came and went in January and we have not been shut out.

Krakel does not object to using metric measure for export products; he just does not think we should be required to adopt it at home.

Our government, however, is flooding schools with charts and booklets and films — at taxpayer expense — promoting conversion to metric.

Understand, the Metric Conversion Act, signed by President Ford in 1975, specifies that conversion is "voluntary" — yet the methodical indoctrination of schoolagers implies otherwise.

Krakel has already received a threatening telephone call from Washington — threatening to cut off federal funding for the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

He was able to laugh at that threat because the Hall of Fame has never received any federal money and does not want any.

Dean Krakel loves Western history — and so likes to say that "our pioneers built our great country inch by inch and yard by yard and mile by mile and they are not going to surrender their prerogatives meter by meter!"

Krakel's address is Cowboy Hall of Fame, Oklahoma City. (c) 1979, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

About the bar

One profession that continues to grow in popularity and employment opportunities is the law.

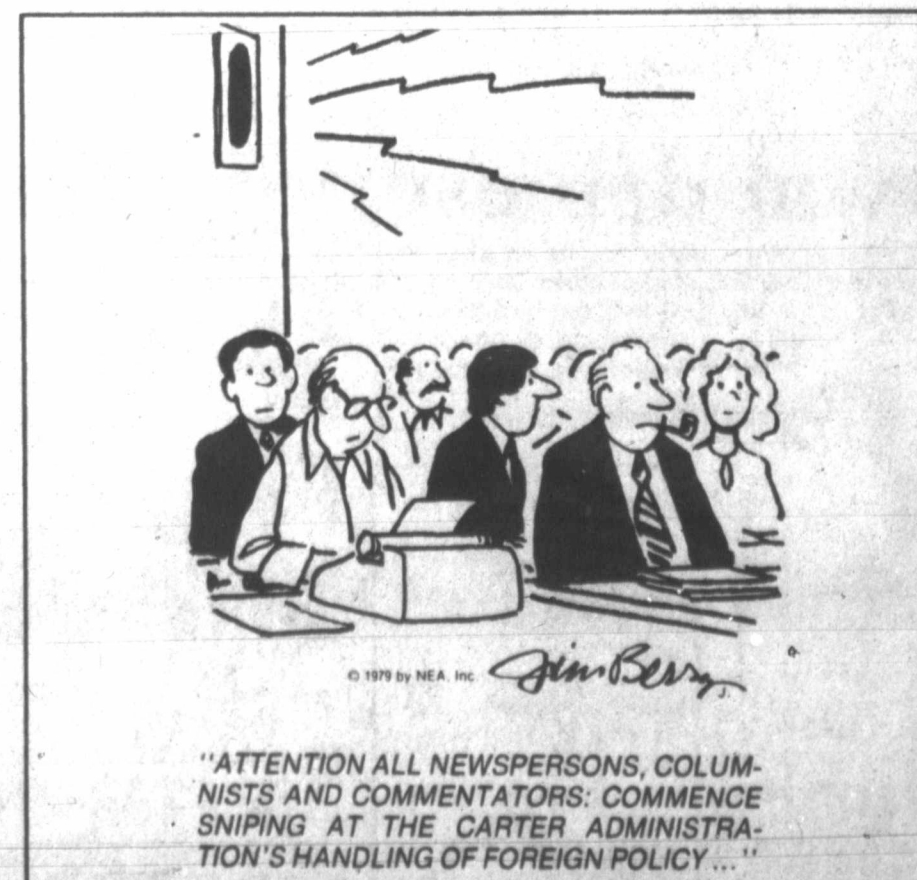

There's probably no connection, but some interesting professional statistics were reported in a recent edition of "Student Lawyer", monthly publication of the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association.

For one thing, the attraction of public-interest work has apparently passed into history with the '60s. Polled recently as to their intentions, only 15 percent of Harvard Law School students indicated any interest in devoting their professional efforts to low-paying public service. For a hefty 62 percent, the goal is established law firms with starting salaries in the $22-25,000 range and ultimately partnerships drawing six figures.

Nice work if they "can get it and most probably can."

The publication also noted that that while 10 percent of drinking Americans are estimated to be alcoholics, within the legal profession alcohol and similar dependency may afflict 20 to 35 percent.

Bids awarded for project

AMARILLO - The State of Highway and Public Transportation Commission has awarded Gilvin - Terrill Inc. of Amarillo and Washburn the contract to resurface U.S. Highway 86 from 1.1 miles west of McLean 5.1 miles to the Wheeler County Line.

Gilvin-Terrill's bid of $640,808 was the lowest of four bids received on the project by the Commission.

An asphaltic concrete overlay will be placed on both the east and westbound lanes of U.S. 86. This will include the one-way street sections through McLean.

Sissy back at it again

By MIKE HENDRICKS Associated Press Writer AURORA, N.Y. (AP) - After stirring Texas and national politics, Frances "Sissy" Farenthold is trying to whip up interest in politics among college women.

"Public life has really been an alien life to women," says Mrs. Farenthold, the first woman elected to the Texas Legislature, the first woman to have her name placed in nomination for the vice presidency and now the first woman president of Wells, a small century-old women's college.

"At Vassar, although I was a political science student, it was never broached that maybe I could run for office. It was not thought of. It was not traditional. I want to bring it to these students as a viable choice, and it will be a viable choice for them if they think of it early enough."

Wells was founded in this village on the banks of Cayuga Lake in the rural Finger Lakes region 110 years ago by Henry Wells, the man behind Wells Fargo and the American Express Co.

Today, the school enrolls about 500 women who pay $5,950 for a year of study at the school.

It is only four miles from Seneca Falls, where the suffragette movement was founded in 1848.

"I guess I relate to that now more than I ever did," Mrs. Farenthold says. "I did not know about Seneca Falls until 1973. That's how much it was ignored in the history books. I don't want that to happen to my students."

"This probably seems far removed from Texas politics, but I can see a direct relationship in what I saw in Texas and my concerns here. It's just a different level."

As president of Wells, Mrs. Farenthold says she wants to show the women students that they do not have to be limited in what they want to do with the rest of their lives.

"I feel very deeply about the role of women's colleges," she says. "We are in the midst of a revolution of change in women's role in society. It is our obligation to respond to that, and our opportunity."

"Invariably, you hear that one of the responsibilities of a liberal arts college is to educate its students for citizenship in a democracy. I want to bring that to a very practical level and relate it very specifically to young women. What a women's college should be is a way station to full integration into society."

When she arrived at Wells, Mrs. Farenthold took down the portraits of her 12 predecessors and moved out of the big, traditional office into one nearer the dorms.

Texas minister found guilty

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — A 13-member jury made up of United Methodist Church elders Friday found a Texas minister guilty of disobedience and stripped him of his credentials.

The Rev. David Whittington had served as pastor of the Minters Chapel church in Grapevine for seven years, but last February refused reassignment to a parish in Gorman. He was charged with "disobedience to order and disobedience to the United Methodist Church" and sought the jury trial as an appeal.

Whittington's refusal to accept reassignment was supported by the Grapevine congregation, which rejected any replacement and vowed not to pay a salary for a new pastor. Members also joined Whittington in holding unauthorized worship services in a community school.

After the verdict, Whittington said, "I came here today for one purpose — to sound a warning. Theological pluralism in the United Methodist Church is dying. Those of an orthodox, evangelical, Wesleyan persuasion are being killed off one by one."

Weather

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Fair skies faded into clouds and rain showers across Texas Saturday.

Rain was reported across South Texas and in the Dallas area.

Temperatures ranged from 63 at Amarillo, Austin and Del Rio to 77 at Brownsville.

Forecasts called for cloudy to partly cloudy skies statewide, with scattered showers and thunderstorms through Sunday. Cooler temperatures were expected in the Panhandle and in North Texas.

National weather

Spring-defying snow squalls swept across the lower Great Lakes region into New England on Saturday and record cold pushed the temperature below zero in some parts of the Midwest.

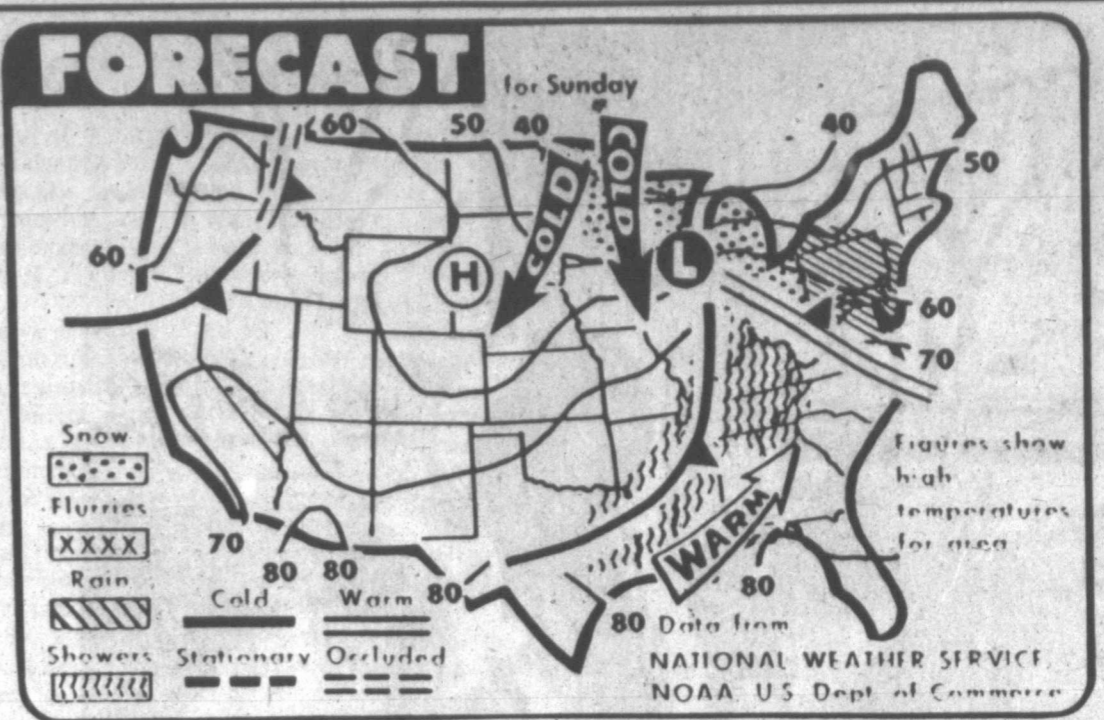

"What we're having is a little bit of March weather in April," said an official of the National Weather Service in Pennsylvania, where several hundred homes were still without electricity.

Residents of Rome, N.Y., were wading through snow 7 inches deep and the temperature at Marquette, Mich., fell to 4 below zero.

Along the shores of Lake Erie, officials were assessing the more than $5 million in damage left by Friday's storm, which unleashed 90-mph winds that tore roofs off homes and businesses and sent floating ice crashing into lakefront property.

But winds of the storm, which left at least 11 persons dead in a two-day sweep across the Great Lakes region, had slackened to about 30 mph in most areas.

Snow 6 inches deep in the Rochester area was blamed for a chain-reaction pileup involving 50 cars and trucks on Interstate 490.

A BROAD AREA of showers is due Sunday from east Texas through the central Mississippi Valley to the Lakes area, according to the National Weather Service. The precipitation will turn into rain, extending east from the Virginias through Long Island and into snow extending west to Minnesota.

Plane landing termed miracle

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — A TWA airliner carrying 87 persons survived a harrowing barrel roll and apparently exceeded the speed of sound in a nose dive before being brought under control by a freak maneuver, federal inspectors said Thursday.

They called it a "miracle" that the plane survived and no one was killed.

"I can't think of any other incident where a (commercial, passenger-carrying) plane has done a complete 360-degree rollover and survived," said Langhorne Bond, head of the Federal Aviation Administration.

"The miracle is that it held together under such extraordinary speed and circumstances."

Bond spoke with reporters at Detroit Metropolitan Airport, where the TWA Boeing 727 landed at 10 p.m. Wednesday night.

Bond said three persons were injured, none seriously.

Pampa qualifies two for regional meet

Amarillo High captures district crown

Pampa's Carmela Caldwell and Cindy Whitson will compete in the Region 1-AAAA girls track meet at Lubbock April 20-21 after their second-place performances at the District 3-AAAA Track and Field Meet at Randy Matson Track Saturday.

Caldwell threw the shot put 38-4, a distance that was short of the first-place toss of 41-8 by Amarillo High's Sandra Gilbreath.

A long jump of 17-1/2 left the footmarks of Whitson just behind the imprints of Palo Duro's Stephanie Freeman, who leaped 18-3 to take first place in the long jump.

Whitson also placed third in the 220-yard dash with a 26.2 time, and Pampa's Kellye Richardson was within a tenth of a second of being a regional competitor in the 80 yard hurdles. She completed the event with a 11.1-second clocking, good for third place.

Lady Harvester Becky Davis was close behind Richardson and crossed the finish line fourth at 11.2.

Sherry Eggleston pushed the shot put 31-11 for the Pampa girls' team for sixth place, and Shelly Thompson and Cynthia Fought were third and fourth-place winners, respectively, in the 100 yard dash.

Pampa's Jana Vaughn ran the mile in 5:57.8 to take sixth place. Pampa had a fourth place in the 440 - yard, 880 - yard and mile relays with respective times of 51.1, 1:53.2 and 4:18.5.

However, the 72 points from the combined efforts of the girls' team were not enough to place Pampa's varsity team among the top district squads of Amarillo High with 156 and Palo Duro with 141.

In the "B" or junior varsity division of the district track meet, Pampa's girls earned 106 points to be the closest competitor to Amarillo High, which had 194 points.

The only first - place performance came from Dorinda Gray, who hurled the discus 86 feet - 9 1/2 and took third in the shot put event behind teammate Penny Harbin.

Harbin's toss was measured at 30 feet - 11 1/4 to give her a better distance than the 29 feet - 4 1/2 attempt by Gray. The first place measurement was 32 feet - 3, a distance thrown by Tascosa's Tammie Barnes.

Pampa's Shan Salisbury finished second in the 880 - yard dash in front of teammate, Julie Steele. Salisbury was a tenth of a second from the first place finisher, who had a 2:42.9 time.

AHS claims girls title

The Pampa girls' golf team closed out its season Saturday at the District 3 - AAAA meet, where the Amarillo High A team won first and Tascosa took second.

The Pampa team hit a total of 945 strokes for 72 holes of play, while Amarillo had 741 to beat Tascosa's 794 shots.

The Pampa scores for team players were: Suzy Carter, 121 and 112; Liz Lawyer, 118 and 121; Jana Hill, 136 and 100; Tricia Snuggs, 133 and 129 and Penny Summers, 113.

Playing singles, Alison Payne had 123 and 120 strokes for her two rounds to come out slightly ahead of teammate Amy Wheeler with 127 and 131.

Tascosa's Jill Prince took the medalist award in the second round of district play with an 83 to give her a total of 172 strokes for two sets of 18 holes.

Runner - up for the medalist award, Tricia Harris shot an 87 this round and 88 during last week's play for Amarillo High's A team.

The Sandie ladies will compete along with Tascosa in the regional 1 - AAAA tournament in Austin April 19 - 20.

Harvester golfers sixth

Pampa made it to the second round of the Amarillo Relays Boys Golf Tournament here Saturday, but the Harvesters could not improve on their sixth-place team standing in the event.

New Mexico Military Institute overtook first-round leader Amarillo High in the race for team supremacy. In fact, the Sandies dropped behind Lubbock Monterey and finished third. Borger was fourth, Tascosa fifth and Pampa sixth.

Only the top six teams from Friday advanced to Saturday's second round. Rob Stewart of NMMI won a playoff to take the individual medalist honors.

Pampa's Paul Beck led the Harvesters with a two-day total of 158. Barry Terrell was next at 168. Chad Darce had a 171 and Gary Cudney 179. Bob Phillips' 186 did not count in the team standings, giving Pampa a total of 76 strokes for the tournament.

The Harvester golfers will be off for a week before playing their second district round in Amarillo April 20. Pampa currently is in second place, 19 strokes behind leader Amarillo High and two shot up on third-place Tascosa.

Hobart Street Park gets facelift via volunteers

Passers-by at Hobart Street Park in recent days may have noticed what appears to be an improvement project going on at the softball fields there.

What they may not realize, however, is that the renovation of the fields isn't costing the city of Pampa a penny. All the materials and machinery for the project have been donated, and the labor has been supplied by volunteers from the Pampa Church League and the city softball league teams.

Spokesman Danny Strawn said he and his volunteers, looking to improve their slow pitch softball facilities, got permission from the city to improve the fields — without any help from Pampa taxpayers.

What's more, the leagues will have to share the fields with the rest of the public, and the improved fields will still be Pampa city property. But the volunteers feel it's worth it to improve their playing facilities.

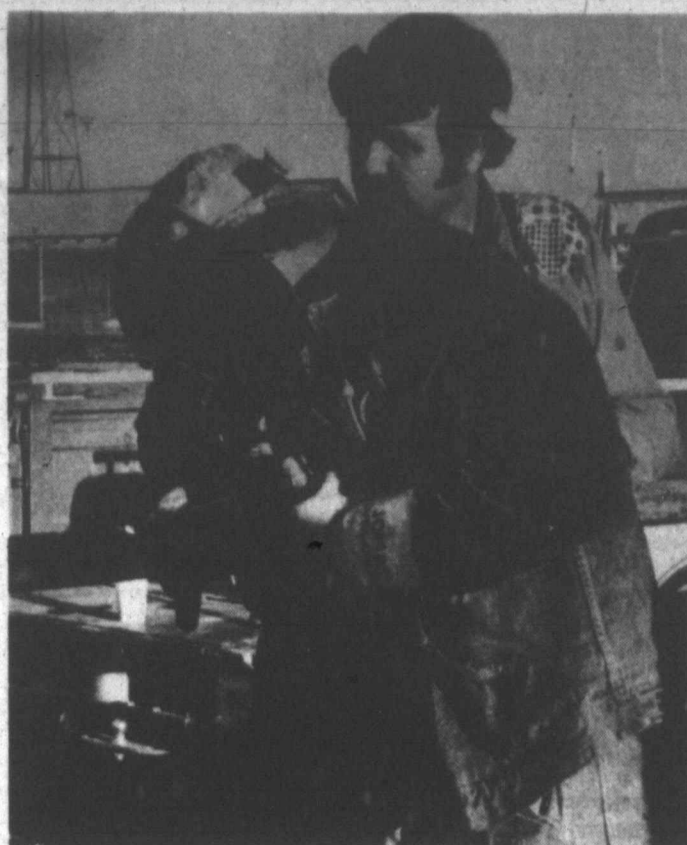

The softball season should start late in May, Strawn said, but the group hopes to have the parks completed by May 2. They have solicited donations and contributions for their effort, which will give the park two newly fenced and lighted ball parks.

Strawn said the completed parks would be the best facility Pampa has ever had for slow pitch softball.

"It'll be the first park we've had where we could have a sanctioned slow pitch tournament," he noted. "We've used the Lions Club Park and played as far away as Skellytown for league games before this."

About 10 teams are expected to play in the city's slow pitch league, Strawn said. Anyone interested in forming or playing on a team should contact Strawn (665-4430) or Kerry Ammons (665-4954) for more information on the league.

GERALD RASCO (in rear) helps Tommy Florer weld a section of fence together as part of the volunteer effort to improve the softball diamonds at Hobart Street Park. All materials, machinery and labor for the project have been volunteered, giving the city of Pampa an improved softball facility at no cost to taxpayers.

At Texas Relays

Dickey shocked in 100

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas-El Paso, led by 25-year-old freshman sensation Suleiman Nyambui of Tanzania in the distance events, set two more records Saturday in the rain-splattered Texas Relays and added a surprise in the sprints.

While Nyambui was the individual star in record-breaking efforts in the 4x1600-meter and 4x800-meter relays, sophomore Jerome Deal pulled a shocker by defeating favored Curtis Dickey in the collegiate 100-meter dash.

UTEF, which has a team with 17 foreigners from eight countries, was clearly the outstanding school in the 52nd annual event.

The Miners with Nyambui on the anchor won the distance medley relay Friday night in record time.

Nyambui, who is 6 feet tall and weighs only 140 pounds, is the NCAA indoor mile and two-mile champion.

UTEF's time in the 4x800-meter relay was 7:19.06, breaking the old mark of 7:20.14 by New Mexico in 1978. Nyambui ran the third leg in that event.

Louisiana State's Mike Quigley established a relays record in the collegiate 1500-meter run with a time of 3:46.99. The old standard was 3:47.1 by Ernie Cunliff of Stanford.

Deal ran an impressive 10.25 seconds in the unfavorable conditions thanks to an explosive start.

Dickey, the powerful Aggie footballer who won the open 100-meter race Friday night here in a duel with Olympian Johnny "Lam" Jones, was left in the blocks at the start and couldn't make up the distance.

Dickey finished third in 10.46 seconds, behind George Enchill of Southeastern Louisiana, who also had a time of 10.46.

The six-foot, 170-pound Deal, who is from Aberdeen, Md., is the Western Athletic Conference 100-meter champion. He defeated Houston McTear, Jones and Dickey in a 60-yard indoor dash at Albuquerque in February.

However, Deal was fourth to the winning Dickey in the NCAA indoor 60-yard dash in Detroit.

Texas-El Paso, well on its way to winning the most outstanding team balloting, posted its second meet record as Tanzanian Suleiman Nyambui ran an excellent anchor on the medal-winning 4x1,600-meter relay team.

UTEF, which won the distance medley relay Friday night in meet record time, clocked 16:23.70 to eclipse the old standard of 16:28.06 by Arkansas in 1978.

Nyambui, who ran a 3:57.59 mile Friday night, ran the distance in four minutes fast Saturday.

Cauthen gets fast start

SALISBURY, England (AP) — Steve Cauthen, 18-year-old American wonder jockey, made a dream start to his riding career in England when he rode Marquee Universal to victory Saturday in the Grand Foods Stakes.

Watched by his father, Tex, and a track record crowd of more than 10,000, Cauthen rode a cool and confident race on the 9-4 favorite who scored by 1 lengths.

Cauthen also had two other rides Saturday, finishing second and fourth.

The teenager from Walton, Ky., will spend the summer riding for trainer Barry Hills and millionaire owner Robert Sangster.

The track was very soft and the rain was so heavy that Cauthen's name — chalked on an English number board for the first time — was obliterated.

But Cauthen, whose mounts have won $12 million in purses, was not upset by the weather or the cameramen that followed his every move.

AIR CONDITIONING COURSE OFFERED

A Special 2-week course in Air Conditioning, Heating and Refrigeration is being offered by Lindsey School of Refrigeration in Irving, Texas. The highly concentrated course is designed to teach strictly service, not engineering to persons who are serious about getting into the service business.

The 108-hour course, approved by the Texas Education Agency, is the same course that has proven so popular with area residents for the past eight years. The course is being offered at this time because of the many requests of people outside the Dallas/Fort Worth Metropolitan area who would like to receive this training. Classes are limited to the first ten persons. Next class starts April 16, 1979.

Pampa freshmen second

BORGER — Led by Mark Kotara's two first-place sprint performances and Randy Slaybaugh's gold medal effort in the shot put, Pampa's freshman boys track team finished second at the Borger Invitational Boys Track Meet Friday.

Plainview won the meet with 142 points, followed by Pampa's 91 and Stanton (Hereford) with 65. LaPlata of Hereford was fourth with 61, Canyon fifth with 60, Dumas sixth with 40, Borger 17, Perryton 13 and Dalhart 11.

Kotara zipped to a 10.6-second 100-yard dash and a 24.2 clocking in the 220 to capture the gold medal in both events. Slaybaugh, meanwhile, uncorked a 51-5 1/2 heave in the shot put to take first place in that event.

Pampa's depth showed through in all three individual events won by Kotara and Slaybaugh. James Borchardt finished fourth in the 100 with a 10.9 performance. Slaybaugh took fifth in the 220 at 24.8 seconds and Cavin Coleman finished fourth in the shot with a 47-8 effort.

Others adding to Pampa's point total included Neal Braswell, fifth in the mile (5:20.5); Denny Combs, sixth in the mile (5:21.3) and Roy Britt, fourth in the high jump (5-8).

Bradford leads Pampa

AMARILLO — Kyle Bradford's second-place finish in the high jump led Pampa competitors at the Amarillo Relays-Boys-Track-Meet here Friday and Saturday.

Bradford jumped 6-6, but lost a jumpoff with Plainview's Kenneth Story to finish in second place. It was Bradford's best effort of the year.

Mark Hutchinson was the only other varsity cinderman from Pampa to score in the hotly-contested meet. He finished third in the 120 high hurdles with a time of 14.05 seconds.

A pair of third-place finishes were the best performances by Pampa's junior varsity squad. Brad Mathis high jumped 5-8 to place third in that event, while Jim Agan heaved the discus 128-11 for third in his specialty.

Ruben Ambriz was fifth in the junior varsity discus with his 127-4 effort, while Ricky Kupunas took sixth in the JV 880 with his 2:10 clocking.

Team results of the meet were not available at press time Saturday night. The Pampa team will be idle until April 21, when it will compete in the District 3-AAAA meet at Amarillo.

Tigers tamed

DETROIT (AP) — John Grubb, Al Oliver and rookie Pat Putnam each drove in two runs Saturday as the Texas Rangers defeated the Detroit Tigers 8-2 in their American League opener behind Ferguson Jenkins' seven-hitter.

Bump Wills opened the game with an infield single, then Grubb hit a towering homer off the roof of the third deck in right field at Tiger Stadium.

Women's discus close event

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Carol Finsrud of Texas and Betty Bogers of Texas-El Paso tied in the women's discus throw at the Texas Relays Saturday, each throwing 157 feet.

Each was given one more throw to determine the winner, and Bogers won. Her toss? Also 157 feet.

Finsrud could only manage 156.6.

Tascosa claims district tennis titles

Tascosa High School claimed the District 3-AAAA tennis crowns Friday and showed up to collect their trophies Saturday morning at Pampa High School.

The Rebels assured themselves of both titles by qualifying two players in the boys' singles championships and both of its girls' teams in doubles. That turn of events also left Amarillo High and Pampa to battle for second in the girls team standings and the Sandies versus Caprock in the boys division. The Sandies won the girls singles and boys doubles titles to claim second in both divisions.

Frank Guengerich of Tascosa downed teammate David Wright 6-2, 6-3 in the boys singles finale, while Cheryl Hall and Megan Neely downed sisters Pam and Sue Sutherland in the all-Rebel girls doubles finals.

Kim Clark of Amarillo High stopped Pampa's Kris Douglass 6-3, 6-2 in the girls singles finals, while Sandies Kelly Snook and Bill Offord whipped Caprock's Duane Stewart and Jeff Gerken 6-3, 6-4 for the boys doubles title.

The top two finishers in each event qualified for the Region

1-AAAA Tournaments in Lubbock April 20-21 (for girls) and 27-28 (for boys).

Miss Clark jumped to a 5-0 advantage in the first set of the girls singles title match, held off a pair of Douglass rallies and won six straight games in the second set to claim her third district title, but her first crown in District 3-AAAA. She was the 1-AAA champion twice while playing at Borger.

Down by five games in the first set, Miss Douglass rallied to take three straight games. But just as she seemed to have the momentum, her opponent rallied from a triple break point to capture the clinching game of the first set.

Miss Douglass won her service to open the second set and broke Miss Clark's service to grab a 2-0 lead, but that was her next-to-last stand. Miss Clark dominated the next six games, rallying from a 40-15 deficit to win the fifth game in the streak and quash Miss Douglass' final attempt at a comeback.

Pampa's Kurt Krause won his third-place game from Barry Vaughn of Caprock, but it hardly took away the sting Krause suffered after dropping a hard-fought semifinal match to Wright Friday afternoon.

Krause crushed third-seeded Roddy Youree of Caprock 6-1, 6-0 in the quarterfinals earlier Friday, prompting hopes of two Pampa representatives at the regional meets.

But Krause, who was playing his third match of the day (He downed Amarillo High's Todd Conklin in the first round of play Friday morning), didn't have enough firepower left to beat Wright, the tournament's No. 2 seed.

not make it to the boys regional, Krause will take his place as an alternate. But Pampa's other third-place entry, the girls doubles team of Cheryl Kessel and Kathy Wall, fell to Teresa Shelby and Frances Walker of Amarillo High 6-2, 7-5.

In other third-place matches, Teresa Karr of Amarillo High (Douglass' 6-3, 7-4 victim in the semifinals) downed Dianna Escoto of Caprock 6-3, 7-5 and Amarillo High's Brian McKee and Garland Turner topped Jimmy Shelton and Brian Kloos of Palo Duro 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

KURT KRAUSE was determined to win a berth in the Region 1-A Tournament April 27-28 in Lubbock, but the Pampa High senior finished one spot out of the money in the District 3-AAAA Tennis Tournament at Pampa Friday and Saturday. Krause dropped his semifinal boys singles match to Tascosa' David Wright Friday afternoon, but came back to capture third place Saturday morning, making him the district alternate in that event.

ANN HENRY learns that she has been selected by Beta Sigma Phi as Woman of the Year for 1979. She is greeted by Retha Jordan, (right)

Ann Henry named Woman of the Year

Ann Henry thinks they named the wrong one as Woman of the Year for 1979. "I haven't done anything," she says.

A lot of people in Pampa will disagree with that.

She will be honored today by members of Beta Sigma Phi at a tea at 2 p.m. in the First Christian Church.

Mrs. Henry has lived in Pampa for 42 years. She is a registered nurse and she came from Crowell to nurse the sick child of a friend. "Then I got involved in doing private nursing, and I never went home," she says.

A lot of people depend on her. "Medical care is expensive and people can't always afford to have needed things done," she comments. "I give them vitamin B - 12 shots and take their blood pressure."

Working with the Gray County Heart Association, she takes blood pressure for youngsters in the Pampa schools, and once a month she can be found at the Senior Citizens' Center doing the same thing for people there. "Sometimes I think I ought to print an excuse and put it by the telephone but up to now I haven't," she grins. "I just say 'yes' when somebody calls."

And she says she intends to go right on doing things for people as long as she can.

Ann Henry was widowed in 1975 after 38 years of marriage. "I married an Okie," she laughs. "Chet and I built this house, bought everything new, and moved in. It's the only house I've ever had and I don't intend to move."

She has seen a lot of changes during her nursing career, and she has worked for most of the doctors in town.

She talked about the first case she went on. Dr. Overton called to see if she would go to Miami to nurse a little boy. "I picked up the child at the hospital to take him home to Miami," she recalled. "As I drove down the highway I thought 'My gosh, I'm going to the end of the world.'" Ann laughed as she remembered there were only 200 people in Miami then. "Dr. Montgomery was the only doctor they had," she added. "And he still is."

Mrs. Henry went back to work during the war. "Hadn't worked for years," she says. "But they were so short of nurses." Pampa wasn't so big then. Some of the doctors were in the Combs - Worley Building, and others were in the Rose Building. "That was above the J.C. Penney store," she remarks.

Ann Henry is president of a Sunday School class at the First Methodist Church and is active in the Helping Hand Program, a service that provides hot meals for needy families.

But generally speaking she isn't a "joiner." "I do what comes naturally. There are always people who need help."

One of the doctors she worked for asked her once if she was a neighbor to everyone. "Yes, practically," Ann replied.

That's the way people think of Ann Henry. That's one reason why she is Woman of the Year.

THE WOMAN OF the Year expresses great surprise as she holds the Yellow Rose of Texas presented to her by Beta Sigma Phi.

MRS. HENRY STILL enjoys working in her kitchen. "But I don't cook as much as I used to when my family was at home," she says.

Dear Abby

by abigail van buren

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago you printed an article titled PLEASE GOD, I'M ONLY 17. Is there any way you could print it again? I'm 17 now and when I read it it caused me to do a lot of thinking. It might cause others to do a lot of thinking, too.

I would also like your permission to print the article in our high school newspaper. Thank you.

DARCI HUGHTON

DEAR DARCI: You (and anyone else who wants to print the article in his high school newspaper) has my permission to do so. Here it is:

PLEASE, GOD, I'M ONLY 17

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheeled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded, "all the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off—going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard the deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later-I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please... somebody... wake me up! Get me out of here. I can't bear to see my Mom and Dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can barely walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it, either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance.

Please, God, I'm only 17!

Irregular heart beats

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 25-year-old woman. Recently I had an operation. They did an electrocardiogram and the next day the doctor asked me if anyone had ever told me about my heart before. Well, as any normal person would, I panicked. This is the first time I ever had a cardiogram.

When I said, "No," he said, "Well, your heart doesn't beat regularly." That's all he would say and walked out of the room.

Now do you know what he meant? Or, should I go to a heart specialist? If it means anything, there's been heart trouble on both sides of my family. Am I in danger of a heart problem? I do know I am short of breath a lot.

DEAR READER—By analyzing your letter, a number of points become evident. First, you probably do not have high blood pressure because nobody mentioned that to you. Second, you must not have any murmurs (abnormal heart sounds) or things that we associate with a heart valve defect or it would be noted during your physical examination and no one said anything about that either.

Whatever you have, it's strictly something that's seen on an electrocardiogram. Since your doctor referred to your heart beat, that undoubtedly means some type of irregularity. It's also a form of irregularity that you don't even notice and that's fortunate.

Since you don't have high blood pressure and you apparently don't have valve disease of the heart, we can begin to pretty well eliminate the probability that you have any significant heart disease.

Young women in your age group seldom have fatty-cholesterol deposits in the coronary arteries. We can pretty well ignore that, too.

Many young, healthy people have occasional extra beats of the heart or beats that occur early. There are some other minor irregularities of the heart that do not produce any symptoms either. When they are seen in this setting, they have nothing at all to do with heart disease.

I am certain that's why your doctor doesn't elaborate any more on your problem. He felt you don't have any disease and any further emphasis upon the minor finding that he saw on your electrocardiogram would serve no purpose other than to alarm you.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats, Tachycardias, so you can have a better understanding of what these are. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It's important, though, since you are alarmed that you be assured. In the absence of high blood pressure and the absence of murmurs, it is extremely doubtful that someone in your age group would have any form of heart disease. This should make you feel a lot better about it.

Unless your doctor specifically told you otherwise, I think you should forget about it and go ahead and live a normal life which includes sensible amounts of physical activity which I recommend for all healthy people.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY—I would like to clean my wood paneling and wondered how much of each to use in that solution that has vinegar, olive oil and water.—MRS. R.F.

DEAR MRS. R.F.—In a quart of warm water you might add one tablespoon white vinegar, one tablespoon olive oil. Wring a cloth out of this and use it to rub down the wood paneling. Dry with another soft cloth and when thoroughly dry apply a thin coat of paste wax and buff. One tablespoon turpentine could be substituted for the vinegar.—POLLY

DORIS DAY seems to have made a new friend. He's Sam, the chimpanzee from the television series 'BJ and the Bear.' The actress, whose pet cause is animal welfare, visited Sam on the set recently to make sure he was receiving full star treatment.

Older students are enthusiastic

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — As a teacher, Jim Walter couldn't have it any better.

The students dress up for his lectures, seldom question his statements, provide him with between-class snacks and often compliment him.

At the end of the class comes the most startling gesture — applause.

"Can you believe it? Applause! It really threw me the first time it happened," Walter said.

But it happens at Trinity Retirement Home where Walter teaches an introductory course in humanities once a week. Walter, 33, is less than half the age of his youngest student. His oldest student is 95.

The class is part of Sinclair Community College's effort to serve older citizens who can attend state institutions tuition-free after they reach 60.

There are 28 students in Walter's class and attendance is high despite some of the ailments that afflict the elderly residents.

It doesn't bother Edna von Barga that her eyesight is failing. Nor does it bother her that she is beginning college at the age of 95. What matters to her is that she's learning.

Miss von Barga, who graduated from high school in 1902 and taught school for 36 years with no college training, said: "People come to visit me from my hometown and wonder why I'm going to college now."

"I'm basically a nosy person so I want to know more. I'm learning a lot in this course."

"They ask me, 'How can you go to school if you can't see?' I tell them, 'I can see through my ears.' I'm enjoying everything I've heard."

For some students, such as Elnora Dunlap, the course is a trip down memory lane. She and her husband visited Rome and Florence some years ago and saw the Renaissance paintings being talked about in her class.

"I just eat this stuff up," Mrs. Dunlap said. "It's like I'm in Italy all over again."

At wits end

by Erma Bombeck

I am absolutely fascinated by the boy King Tutankhamon, whose tomb was uncovered 56 years ago revealing treasures never imagined. The very idea of being buried in an apartment stocked with 5,000 dazzling works of art, sculptures, alabaster vases, perfumed boxes and gold chariots is beyond comprehension. This country has never been big on taking it with them, but the other night as I was pondering the possibility it occurred to me that it wasn't a bad idea. Unlike the woman who wanted to be buried with a phone "just in case she got a dial tone," I am inclined to be a little more practical. Not that I'm ready to go, but when I do, here's a list of things I want to take with me. All the warranties - Why make it easy for the second wife? Let her try to anticipate whether the toaster has three days left, the TV has 22 days, or the thermostat in the dryer is covered only if it goes out during an eclipse. The ultra - suede suit - This one holds a lot of memories for me. It took me three months to pay for it, only to board a plane and discover it had been chosen as the official uniform of Braniff Airlines. My book of rare phone numbers - This includes all the biggies ... plumbers who work Sundays, doctors who answer their own phones and cleaning women who are not allergic to excessive dust. The formula for my hair color - Through conscientious experimentation and great expense (from grants and personal funding) we finally hit upon something that will cover the roots. I have no intention of leaving it to strangers. My birth certificate - Some things you wouldn't want to fall into the wrong hands. Timex watch - Do you have any idea what a commercial that will make in 2,000 years? Searsdale Diet - This could also be reproduced on my tombstone. Charge cards - These could be displayed in six or seven urns throughout the tomb. Granted, this isn't a bullion bonanza you'd expect to find, but who is to say that in years to come my mood ring on my third finger, right hand won't be considered a "treasure"?

CONVECTION OVENS:

Convection ovens are a new development in household appliances. Although bakers have used commercial convection ovens for at least 30 years, they are late-comers to the household scene.

Two types of convection ovens are available on the market. Some convectional ranges come equipped with a convection oven. Portable convection ovens are also available. The portable ovens resemble a large toaster-oven or small microwave, but convection ovens are technologically different.

Convection ovens work on the forced-air principle. Fans circulate the air as it heats in the oven cavity. The forced-heated air moves directly to the food so the cooking process begins immediately. The forced-heated air is then recycled and recirculated throughout the oven cavity.

Convection ovens were introduced to meet the need for more energy efficient appliances. Manufacturers claim that the ovens use up to 50 percent less energy than other models because lower temperatures and shorter cooking times are needed for baking, roasting and broiling. Bakers use them because of their even heating, and because hot air circulates over the food in the oven, they can cook more items at the same time.

Consumers should ask these questions about convection ovens.

- Do I need a convection oven? What real advantages will it offer? Will the benefits outweigh the higher cost?

- Do I have space in my home to use a portable convection oven conveniently? How much space will the appliance take? How close can the appliance be placed to other items?

- How is the portable convection oven insulated? How hot will the exterior surface of the oven get?

- How much energy and time will the convection oven use? How do energy consumption and time needed compare to conventional, microwave and other small appliance cookery?

WHAT IS 20/20 VISION? What is 20/20 vision? It is normal vision. 20/20 means you can see from 20-foot distance what the "normal" vision. A person who has 20/40 vision can only see well at half the distance as the "normal" eye. He could only see clearly at 20-foot distance what the "normal" eye could see clearly at 40-foot distance. In other words, he must be closer to an object in order to see it as distinctly as a person with "normal" vision. Vision is an important sense - and it needs protection.

If you or someone in your family show any of the signs below, have your eyes checked by an optometrist or an ophthalmologist:

- Frequent blinking
- Excessive rubbing of eyes
- Watery eyes
- Inflamed or irritated eyes
- Styes or crusty eyes
- Holding books, magazines either very close of very far away
- Excessive squinting
- Frequent headaches.

STUFFED POTATOES
You can make them ahead.
4 medium russet baking potatoes, about 1 1/2 pounds
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup grated cheddar cheese
Paprika

Bake potatoes on center rack of a preheated 450-degree oven until centers are soft when pricked with a fork - about 45 minutes. Cut a thin lengthwise slice from the top of each. Scoop out flesh and put through a ricer; reserve shells and discard tops. Beat potato with the sour cream and salt until fluffy; stir in the cheese; pile back into shells. Cover each tightly with saran. Refrigerate but use within a few days. Remove wrapping and sprinkle tops with paprika. Bake on a small cookie sheet in a preheated 425-degree oven until tops are brown and crusty - 20 to 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

DECORATING TRENDS... by Charlie's

SPECIAL EFFECTS in interior decorating can often be achieved subtly by the use of just a few pieces, or by the judicious use of color and accessories.

Suppose, for instance, you like the Oriental effect which is quite popular today. You don't have to go all the way to an all-Eastern home. Gain the flavor you want by choosing an Oriental vase or an antique screen, or an authentic lacquered chest. Add a few brass accents, and pick up your Far Eastern theme with colors such as jade, soft antique gold or peacock blue.

This way you create a pleasing Oriental atmosphere, though most of your furnishings remain American contemporary. The same principle can enable you to decorate with a Spanish theme or any other you particularly like. The result will be rooms that are not overdone, that you will not grow tired of readily.

If you're one who likes to change things...and lean toward unusual effects...create them with accent pieces as we've suggested. Choose your basic furnishings, the major pieces, from our fine lines of elegant furnishings, with simplicity of line that readily adapts to many decorating moods.

Come in and let us help you create the special effects of comfort and beauty you want in your home!

Local TSTA happy at home

The Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA) said it will use collective bargaining, if made available, as a means to pursue ends.

However, Helen Warner, president of the Pampa Classroom Teachers Association (PCTA) - a branch of TSTA - said that the local situation calls for no such measure.

Another local branch of the TSTA, Pampa Association of Educators - which includes administrators, secretaries on an associate membership and teachers - works closely with the PCTA - a group of classroom teachers, said Warner.

"We have a real fine school board," said Warner, a second grade teacher at Austin, and teachers can go to them with anything.

Warner, who has been involved in teachers' associations more than 10 years, said that the organization has collective bargaining listed under other items, for which the teachers' lobby will work harder.

TSTA, a branch of the National Educators Association (NEA), is presently concerned with tax relief, equal education opportunities and teaching standards.

The national group does not call strikes, she said. State and local groups in the East do it on their own, she added.

Other priorities of this year's TSTA legislative program are the quality of teachers and education and the reduction of class sizes in the lower levels where the basics are being learned.

A TSTA legislative bulletin says that the organization believes all of the above improvements are influenced by the caliber of personnel that is attracted and obtained.

Hence, the teachers' group tries to work with the legislature to better the quality of education.

Many teachers, said Warner, are lobbying for the state - level salary increase to meet inflation in their hometowns.

She said that she would prefer raises from state monies, instead of from local sources.

The base salary for a Texas teacher with four years of education sits at $8,540 a year, to which over - scales are added. Pampa's over - scale fluctuates between $700 and $900 for bachelor and master degree holders respectively since the board's approval of an increase.

One Pampa teacher in response to a question on salaries said that educators were ranked 33rd on a salary scale with other occupations.

She said that an editorial summed up her feelings: Maybe it's time the silent majority becomes involved in this problem, by letting our legislators and governor know our feelings regarding teacher pay, before our students are also ranked 33rd in the nation.

Tax relief taken in Pampa

Many Pampans should be filling out application forms between now and April 30 for the $5000 exemption included in the state's "tax relief" amendment.

The legislation, passed in November of 1978, provided the exemption from school taxes for every residential homestead, according to a release from the Pampa Independent School District office.

"Residential homestead" includes houses and lots, country estates, farm and mobile homes, including those on rented space.

A receipt of this tax cut must own or be buying a place of residence on Jan. 1 of the year for which the application is made.

The property must be the owner's principal place of residence and only claim on homestead relief.

The forms, being distributed by the local school district, must be completed and filed at the school tax office which includes the property's location in its jurisdiction.

The Pampa School Tax Office should be contacted if applicants, who were buying their residences on Jan. 1, 1979, have not received a form by Apr. 10.

The deadline for signing and returning the form for this year's exemption, entitled Residential Homestead Exemption Affidavit, has been set for April 30.

The concern for relief measures has prompted a look at impending school reimbursements after the $5000 exemption act has been implemented.

High school calendar update

The Little Harvester newspaper and the high school year book received state - wide recognition from the Interscholastic League Press Conference in Austin.

Local DECA students earned four first places in competition at the State Career Development Conference, March 15 - 18 in Fort Worth while senior member, Terry Richardson, was designated as alternate for the Gordon Jewelry Scholarship.

DECA winners were Bud Kent, Ricky Lewis, Terry Richardson and the Chapter of the Year, headed by Ricky

Patton. The high school choirs captured sweepstakes honors at the UIL choral competition in Canyon on March 22.

The six varsity cheerleaders, chosen by the Student Body, are Sherry Hickman, Tina Robbins, Ronda Geer, Terri Eads, Jana Van Zandt and Valisa Fellers. The sophomore squad will be Sharon Baum, Julie Steel, Lindy and Nita Brown.

Ann Jeffrey converted and English assignment into an entry for the Soil and Water Conservation Contest to win second place with her essay entitled "Conservation District's Role in Tomorrow's Water."

Quill and Scroll, an honor society for high school journalists, named D - Conway as a national winner in a writing contest. She also scribbled to take first place in the UIL District Editorial Writing contest.

The Pampa team of John Nooncaster, Courtland Imel and Katrina Whitmarsh advanced to the semifinals of the KFSA Channel 10 Learn and Live program by defeating the River Road team. The Pampa High School drama department's presentation of "The Little Foxes" was runner - up at the UIL Competition in Amarillo. Ken Crossman and Glenna Wilkens were named to the All - Star cast, and Stacy Finklebinder was given an honorable mention.

Kathy Kite returned from the State Office Education Association contest with a fifth place win in the Extemporaneous Verbal I event.

Entries for the Prairie Gold magazine can be submitted until April 20.

Education eggs rest a week

Pampa students and teachers will temporarily shelf books and cap pens to rest their weary bones and brains during this coming week designated as Easter vacation.

The local schools were last let out for a long rest Dec. 23 when the Christmas spirit evoked thoughts of the birth of Christ, who came to save the world.

The school's doors were opened again January 2, as the New Year jubilation fizzled out.

After three months of studying with only short breaks from snow or one - day holidays, the spirit of Easter, representing Christ's life after death, will be touching hearts as today marks another significant event in Biblical history.

Schools will return to the daily routine April 16 to await the next long break, the summer release on May 31, when students begin to take advantage of sun and fun.

Music makers:

Rick James, the punk of funk

By YARDENA ARAR
 Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For more than 10 years, Rick James struggled vainly in a hostile Canadian music market while his friends and one-time colleagues boarded the rock-star gravy train in the United States.
 So now that he's a chart-buster himself, you can hardly blame him for choosing to act out a few fantasies. Like the cover of his second album, "Bustin' Out of L. Seven."

 In gaudy, movie-poster art endowing him with an Arnold Schwarzenegger physique, James is depicted charging through a stone wall with a guitar in one hand and three scantily clad Wonder Women in his wake.
 He's wearing a skin-tight jumpsuit decorated with lightening bolts and a winged heart. In person, James is quite a bit smaller than the album cover would lead you to expect, but he poses for publicity photos in that same costume and plans to perform in it as well.

 "The heart is the heart — there's a lot of love and a lot of sensitivity in the music as well as a lot of energy," he says.
 "The wings are flight and freedom, that kind of thing."
 Well, why not? The Captain Marvel getup does look like fun. Its comic book overtones also are probably ideally suited to the fans who made James' first album, "Come and Get It," a two million seller last year without ever having seen him and his Stone City Band tour. To hear James talk, very few of those fans could legally walk into a voting booth.

 "I don't want my age printed," pleads the self-styled king of "punk funk." He actually isn't that old. But he is old enough to have met a then-unknown Neil Young at a Toronto coffeehouse and put him in his band, the Mynah Birds.

 The Mynah Birds were offered a contract by Motown Records, but they broke up because of James' troubles with the U.S. military, which had prompted him to leave his native Buffalo, N.Y., for Canada in the first place.
 "I joined the Navy Reserves and then decided I didn't like it," he explains succinctly. He was underage at the time, and the problem was eventually worked out, but by then Young and Mynah Birds bass player Bill Palmer had long since left for Los Angeles, fame and fortune.

 James went back to some hungry years "trying to bust the Canadian music market, trying to be a black in a white industry... which was kind of ridiculous."

Star watch:

Some observations on 'The Champ'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Recently MGM gave an invitational preview for its remake of "The Champ," replete with searchlights, champagne and hoopla that recalled the studio's old glories. The guests included Cary Grant, Louise Fletcher, Rock Hudson, Jacqueline Bisset, Peter Falk, Jackie Cooper and King Vidor.
 The presence of the latter pair was significant. Vidor directed the 1931 original that starred Cooper as the boy and Wallace Beery as the down-and-out prizefighter who stages a comeback to vindicate himself in his son's eyes. Franco Zeffirelli directed the 1979 version with Jon Voight, Faye Dunaway and Ricky Schroder.
 After the preview I asked Vidor for his reaction.
 "It took a lot of courage to remake a classic," said the vigorous, 85-year-old director, who will receive a special Oscar on April 9. "I think they did a good job. To me, Wally Beery was more convincing as a derelict than Jon Voight, but Voight worked into the role."
 "I think the new picture is beautifully done," commented Cooper, himself a director as well as an actor. "Like most movies nowadays, I think it's too long. Two hours is a long time to sit through a movie; 100 minutes is a about right."
 Both Vidor and Cooper agreed that 8-year-old Ricky Schroder was terrific.

Ricky came to town for preview, traveling from his Staten Island home with his mother, teacher and sister Dawn, 10, an actress and model.
 Ricky confirmed that he enjoyed a special relationship with his screen father — "Me and Jon had a secret. We ad-libbed through the whole picture." Ricky was also greatly helped by Zeffirelli, especially in the crying scenes.
 "Franco told me to think of something real bad, then my emotions would fill up and the tears would start coming," said the boy. "It worked. What did I think about? If I told you, then it wouldn't work the next time I have to cry."
 Ricky Schroder has been performing since the age of 3 months, mostly in television commercials. Son of a telephone company vice president, he was chosen by Zeffirelli after an audition in New York and a test in Florida, where locations were filmed. The boy's charm and tow-head resemblance to Voight made him a natural.
 He will be making his second film for Walt Disney Productions this summer, co-starring with Elliot Gould and Genevieve Bujold in "The Last Flight of Noah's Ark."

At the movies

By BOB THOMAS
 Associated Press Writer

"THE CHAMP" is a frankly sentimental tale of the love between an over-the-hill boxer and his understanding son. Jon Voight plays the fallible father in good style, though he seems almost too healthy to be on the skids. Ricky Schroder is the sunny 8-year-old, and he is absolutely perfect, a throwback to the inspired child stars of the 1930s. Franco Zeffirelli, in his first American-made movie, evidences no cultural barrier, wringing the emotions with closeups of the boy's teary face. Faye Dunaway is effective as Voight's ex-wife, though the reason for their breakup is not clearly defined. The entire production is first-class, reminiscent of MGM in its heyday. Rated PG because of some mild swearing.

In 1916, the French cruiser Provence II sank in the Mediterranean, killing 3,100.

'Sound of Music' still success

Few can forget the sweet cinematic sensation the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "The Sound of Music" made when it broke all box office records in the late sixties. The film was so successful that one cynical critic dubbed the movie "The Sound of Money." But there was no question that the story of Maria Rainer, the beautiful young postulant in an Austrian abbey who fell in love with one Captain Georg Von Trapp in the throes of the WW II Nazi invasion of Europe, somehow touched a universal nerve.

 The musical, with the book by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse, is the pre-eminent family entertainment of the last 20 years. The somewhat less than devout Maria leaves the abbey to become governess to the Von Trapp family of seven motherless children. She falls in love with their widower father. But their new found happiness is threatened by the Nazi invasion of the country.

 But the new clan perseveres. And it's difficult even for the unsentimental to resist the appeal of this inspiring musical family gallantly singing its way through some of the most horrid history of the 20th century.
 Those who have or haven't seen the movie at a theater or on television, might be interested in taking in the original stage version of "The Sound of Music", which will be playing at the Country Squire Dinner Theater in Amarillo through May 12.

 The songs, if not the plot, are familiar to almost everyone. But it offers a unique pleasure to hear familiar tunes performed live and in the dramatic context for which they were written.
 The musical will be performed Tuesday through Saturday at 8 p.m. Serving for a buffet dinner begins at 6:30 p.m.

Kevin Dobson in 'Transplant'

By JERRY BUCK
 AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Hurley worked frantically for a piece of the "American Dream," but what he got was a heart attack.
 Kevin Dobson plays Hurley in the CBS movie "Transplant" with a fierce intensity, a man who thrived on pressures and problems, too many cigarettes and too many martinis. When the crisis came, he didn't want to let go.
 The two-hour movie, which airs Saturday on CBS, is in essence a docu-drama based on an actual case. It is a taut story, written for the screen by John Gay from the book by Philip Dossick, and directed by William A. Graham.
 The film also stars Melinda Dillon, Granville Van Dusen, Ronny Cox and Bibi Besch.
 Dobson, once an aspiring baseball player, most recently played Detective Bobby Crocker in "Kojak." He still sees things in sports terms.
 "I have no regrets I didn't stay in sports," he says. "I just realized that the thing I was looking for I found in acting — confidence. I thought I was a good ball player, but I realized through acting that the No. 1 thing is confidence. That's what I had missed in playing ball.

 "In acting you're constantly exposing yourself and finding new areas. It's a challenge — I was going to say battle. Obtaining the true values within a scene is like hitting a home run with the bases loaded. With Melinda Dillon it was a great team. It was a team effort."
 "I look at my career like a ballplayer looks at his," he says. "You want to get into the major leagues, then on the All Star team, and you want to play regular. It can be done with a lot of hard work, a lot of drive. The thing is to achieve goals for yourself, not to give up."
 Did he see landing a regular part on "Kojak" as the big leagues?
 "I knew I was on a winning team," he says. "I wanted to do the best I could, to prove myself. I was a supporting player. I respected that. I didn't want to go beyond it. I wasn't after Telly Savalas' job. If it had run for 20 years I would have done it. It was right for me. It was a training ground. Telly Savalas became an international star, and I was five feet away studying him."
 "I knew if I did my job the best I could I'd get an opportunity. Like 'Transplant.' If you want something bad enough you'll get it. You have to be ready. It doesn't come around that often."

'Break a Leg' concerns producer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hmm. It says here tra Levin's new comedy, "Break a Leg," concerns a theatrical producer "who concocts a wild plot to get even with a ruthless newspaper theater critic."
 Does this mean he smites the critic with a blunt instrument, such as a furled review?
 "No," Levin insists. "It's much more devious."
 He declines to elaborate until the show, directed by Charles Nelson Reilly of TV game-show fame, premieres April 29. It stars Julie Harris and Jack Weston.
 "Break a Leg" — a show-biz expression of good luck to performers — will give Levin two plays on Broadway. The other is his hit thriller, "Deathtrap," starring Stacy Keach.
 It's in its second year of regaling patrons with its tale of a playwright who thinks other folks should just be dying to save his faltering career.
 The new show, he says, "was just an idea I originally had for a book. Then I realized it had to be a play. I got started on it when I was thinking about a producer and a critic."
 He concedes the mongoose and the cobra are on better terms.
 Of course, he says, he set the play at a time "many years ago." He also put it in Middle Europe, "any place but New York because I'm denying all similarities to persons living or dead."
 He chortled when asked if the plot came to him as he sat around, figuring ways to get even with a critic who'd done him wrong.
 "I think it really did start with a book review or a play review, I forget which. But I had the feeling someone should kill him..." So I began to cook and concoct an elaborate scheme of revenge."
 Which sounds odd coming from author Levin, 49, a bearded, pleasant man of medium height and ever-present good humor. He walks about, his shoulders slightly hunched, clearly enjoying life.

It's understandable, considering he's a successful novelist as well as playwright.
 He wrote "Rosemary's Baby," the best-selling yarn about a little devil. He also wrote "The Stepford Wives" and the little-Hitler thriller, "The Boys from Brazil." All became movies.
 On the playwright front, he'd had nine shows produced on Broadway, starting with a 1955 hit comedy, an adaptation of Mac Hyman's service novel, "No Time For Sergeants."
 A graduate of New York University, he did the adaptation after graduating from the Army as a private first class. Drafted in 1953, he spent most of his two military years as a writer at the old Signal Corps studios in Astoria, in the Borough of Queens.
 As he recalls, his major work there was a training film, "The Portable Field Laundry." But he wasn't a rookie at scriptwriting.
 He did that while still in college, entering a CBS script competition restricted to seniors. He emerged a runner-up. Then he sold a drama to NBC. Then the Army whisked him away from TV's Golden Era.
 He hasn't written for the tube since. Nor has he any urge to go to Hollywood and, as they now say, take the TV money and run.
 "I really feel TV has become so difficult a medium for the writer because of all the forces you have to satisfy — the ad agencies, all the various producers and so on," he says.
 Levin, who spoke of all this during rehearsals for "Break a Leg" before its two-week tryout run in Stratford, Conn., calls himself "a very slow writer."
 His idea of slow is weird. He says he wrote "Leg" in a month. Of course, he hastens to add, "It was a very full month, no days off, seven days a week until I finished it."

Best home cooking south of border

EDITOR'S NOTE — Her name is Katherine Lee. She hails from Pomona, Calif. But to U.S. travelers to Belize City, she's just Mom, who dishes out the best home cooking south of the border.

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer
BELIZE CITY, Belize (AP) — Word is out in this Central American city — "Eat at Mom's."

Word has traveled along the hippie underground and the word-of-mouth Michelin that well-heeled travelers use. Just what is Mom's?

Mom's Triangle Inn is a little corner of Main Street USA plunked down in this city that is built on stilts against future and remembered floods. It's also a Mecca for backpackers, penniless entrepreneurs with big ideas, and bankrolled wheeler-dealers who are said to close million-dollar contracts over plastic plates piled high with Mom's roast beef and mashed potatoes smothered in brown gravy.

There is a real American mother, plump and powdered, behind the restaurant in a cavernous corner building that looks like an abandoned airplane hangar.

Not many folks in Belize City know Katherine Lee's real name — "I only use it when I sign checks." Mom likes it that way. She is, to most all who know her, a comforting senior citizen somehow at home in a strange and exotic backwater.

"My outlook about this place is simple. I'm an old woman and I cook. I put the two together and came up with a restaurant called Mom's. I've got more friends here than I ever had in the States. I've done a little bit of everything — run a grocery store, been in nursing — and I'm having more fun now than I've ever had."

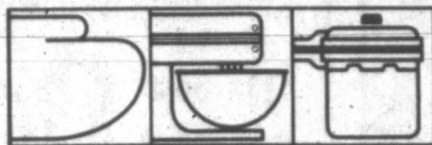

Her cheery pats on the back and good grub make strangers feel at home and old timers feel secure. At 68, Mom can relate to both.

"Ten years ago I quit my job in a hospital in Pomona, Calif., uprooted the past 30 years and went sailing with my son on his boat. We spent a year going around Central America and were headed for Florida. I never got there."

Croatia forgotten country?

"Croatia, the Forgotten Country" is the topic of a special slide program to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 19, in the conference room on Third Floor of the U.S. Postal Service Building, 2300 Ross St., Amarillo, Texas.

The philatelic program will be presented by Eck Spahich of Borger to members and guests of the Amarillo Golden Spread Stamp Club. The program will be illustrated with slides on loan from the Croatian Philatelic Society of Borger, Texas.

Croatia, once a part of Austro-Hungarian Empire, gained its independence in 1941 and 1945. At the end of the World War II, it was occupied by Communist forces.

Preceding the program, a short business meeting will be held, according to Joe Pool, club president.

Further information regarding the Croatian Philatelic Society may be obtained by writing to this executive secretary, Eck Spahich, 1512 Lancelot Rd., Borger Texas 79007.

Year of the child faces food problems

EDITOR'S NOTE — In this, the year of the child, there's a move afoot to save Third World newborns from malnutrition. Makers of baby formula say they have the solution. Critics say these companies only contribute to the problem.

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Zambia, it is customary to decorate an infant's grave with his most valuable possessions. Some graves are adorned with baby bottles and empty tins of formula.

"It is sad," says a World Health Organization handbook, "to see so many children with the feeding bottle that may well have killed them put on their graves."

The haunting cemetery scenes capture the essence of a growing dispute over the marketing of infant formula — a powdered substitute for mothers' milk — in impoverished countries by corporations of the United States and other industrialized nations.

Used properly, infant formula can sustain life and promote growth. But when used improperly in the milieu of poverty, illiteracy and contamination afflicting many in the Third World, it can lead to malnutrition, disease and death.

"Bottle feeding is a relatively safe process in the developed world, but it can become deadly in countries where social and economic conditions make proper usage virtually impossible," says Leah Margulies. She is director of the Interfaith Center for Corporate Responsibility, a New York agency of the National Council of Churches of Christ, a leader in the campaign against formula promotion.

She and other critics note three major hazards of formula feeding in the Third World:

— Powdered formula must be mixed with water, and the water supply in much of the Third World is heavily contaminated.

— Bottles and nipples often are not properly sterilized.

— Once mixed, formula must be kept in a cool place, and refrigeration often is lacking.

In addition, formula is expensive — at about $1 a day it's more than some families earn — and in an effort to stretch a meager supply, mothers often dilute it so much that babies become malnourished.

Critics ascribe the trend to years of Western-style promotion tactics in the nearly 100 so-called developing nations of Africa, Latin America and Asia by companies in search of new markets.

"They contend that with the drop in the birth rate and an increase of breast feeding in many industrialized nations these manufacturers need new outlets for formula. As a result of consumer advertising and promotion in hospitals and clinics, they say, mothers turn to formula because they think it is best for the infants or because hospitals and medical personnel don't encourage breast feeding."

Formula critics say they find this pattern in many parts of the Third World. Manufacturers give free samples of formula to hospitals and clinics; babies are started on formula from birth, and mothers are given samples as they leave the hospital. By this time, the mother's milk has dried up, so the family sacrifices other needs to spend its meager income on formula.

"I knew a mother of four children, all between the ages of 6 years to a few weeks who, when she had spent the available cash to buy baby formula, would lift up the lid (of the cooking pot) and say that the food would soon be ready. In the meantime, one by one the children would cry themselves to sleep," said Fatima Patal, a Canadian-trained nurse who has worked in Chile, Jamaica and Peru.

The companies say they support breast feeding and aim primarily for the urban, middle- and upper-class market and use of formula as a dietary supplement after three months of age.

"It does not make economic sense to go out into the rural areas where there is no market," says Henry Ciocca, a spokesman for Nestle.

Critics acknowledge that some mothers cannot breast-feed, sometimes because they are ill or severely malnourished themselves, or in some rare cases, because their babies are allergic to substances in mother's milk.

But many medical experts say that 95 percent of all mothers are physically able to nurse.

"The majority of women in developing countries, even if not as well-nourished as we would like, are able to breast-feed their infants well," says Dr. Derrick B. Jelliffe, a leading critic of the formula companies and an authority on pediatrics and nutrition in developing countries. Jelliffe is a professor and head of the division of population, family and international health at UCLA.

The four major companies targeted for criticism are Nestle of Switzerland, which has the largest share of the multi-million dollar Third World formula market, and three U.S. companies — Abbott Laboratories, maker of Similac; Bristol-Myers, whose Mead Johnson subsidiary of American Home Products Corp. and producer of the SMA, S-26 and Nursory formula brands.

In addition to Nestle, several other European firms and at least four Japanese companies market formula in the Third World.

The leaders in the campaign against formula promotion are the Interfaith Center and INFACT (for Infant Formula Action), a Minneapolis-based coalition of church activists and other groups opposed to formula marketing.

While INFACT has concentrated on Nestle, launching a boycott of all Nestle products, including candy and chocolate drink, church activists have bought stock in the U.S. companies so they can use stockholders' resolutions to push for reform of marketing practices.

While most companies say they have retrenched in their consumer advertising campaigns, they challenge the link drawn by critics between formula marketing and infant malnutrition and disease.

Nestle maintains that "there is no evidence to indicate that infant malnutrition has been increasing in Third World countries. ... What is known about Third World infant malnutrition can be summed up as follows: Lack of sufficient food after the baby's third month is a major cause of morbidity and mortality whether or not the infant is breast-fed; infants born into the higher socio-economic groups, whether bottle-fed or breast-fed, are healthier than infants in the lower socioeconomic groups; breast-fed babies appear to develop better and suffer from fewer illnesses than bottle-fed babies as long as the breast milk is available in sufficient supply; even where breast-feeding is universally practiced, as in poor traditional cultures, infant mortality is far higher than in urban areas where breast-feeding is on the decline."

Formula makers acknowledge that contamination and over-dilution occur, but they argue that this is a problem of poverty and ignorance and has little to do with their marketing practices.

They note that many impoverished Third World mothers bottle-feed a variety of fluids other than commercial formulas, such things as goat milk, flour and water paste, grael and tea.

"Even when the risk of misuse is high, it is surely preferable to start off with a supplement which has a high nutritional value like infant formula, than with thin starchy gruels of little or no food value," says a Nestle publication.

Ms. Margulies agreed that bottle-feeding doesn't always mean formula-feeding and added an example of her own: The mother "who bottle-fed her baby with water thinking that the bottle and nipple by themselves had magical qualities."

Although the companies say they no longer advertise directly to the mothers, they promote formula within the medical profession by supplying free samples, posters, and booklets on formula use to nurses, doctors and hospitals. In addition, they have sponsored banquets and conferences for doctors "and have donated air conditioners, incubators and other equipment for hospitals. Even baby bibs."

A wide range of manufacturers use similar methods to promote their products in the American medical community. But formula critics say U.S. health workers are more sophisticated about such sales pitches than their counterparts in the Third World.

A handful of Third World nations are taking steps to promote breast-feeding and restrict formula promotion. Zambia and Niger allow formula to be sold only under a government label. Jamaica is restricting formula imports. Several countries have curbed the activities of the nurses or midwives employed by the corporations to teach mothers about infant care, including the use of formula.

California Democratic Reps. Ronald Dellums and George Miller are drafting legislation to restrict the export of American-made formula to the Third World.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., focused public attention on the issue with his health subcommittee hearings but chose not to proceed with legislation after persuading the major companies to support a World Health Organization conference exploring the problems in greater depth. That conference is scheduled in October in Geneva.

WASHINGTON (AP) — World health investigators have traced an unusual epidemic of infant cholera in the Middle East to a trend among their mothers to switch from breast feeding to bottle feeding.

The finding in a Bahrain case study is expected to add fuel to a spreading controversy over the promotion and sale of infant formula in the Third World as declining birth rates and a return to breast feeding cut into traditional markets in the United States and other industrial nations.

The investigators, two American physicians working as consultants to the World Health Organization, went to the oil-rich state of Bahrain on the Persian Gulf last fall to study a cholera epidemic. The disease broke out in August and by October had infected nearly 750 people.

RADIATION AND IQ
 PERRY, Ohio (AP) — Poor scores on college entrance examinations and low IQs may be partially a result of the atomic testing after World War II and its radioactive fallout, a physicist says.

Dr. Ernest Sternglass, University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine professor of radiation physics, told a nuclear-power conference at Lakeland Community College recently that widespread atomic testing in the 1950s and early 1960s contributed to the fact that Johnny can't read now.

The Miracle
 The pain has ceased! Oh heart, somewhere
 We met the Master on the way,
 It may be that we marked Him not
 Amid the multitude today;
 But it was Jesus, for behold,
 The old, old pain is gone, and lo,
 A miracle, no less than that,
 Upon the road to Jericho!
 No less, my heart, we leapt to meet
 The joy His healing fingers hold,
 Than he who caught the glad sweet light
 Across Judea's hills of old.

LAWN AND GARDEN PEDDLERS ABOUND IN SPRING:

The spring season is prime time for fly-by-night salesmen peddling lawn and garden plants, products and often "magic" cure-all materials.

Most nurserymen and others in the lawn and garden business are honest, reliable people. But the increased interest in gardening as a hobby among homeowners has brought an influx of gypsies.

No one in Texas can sell nursery or florist plants without a salesman's certification of inspection from the State Department of Agriculture. If you have doubts of the reliability of a firm ask to see his certificate before making a purchase. Always consider doing business with local, reputable merchants with an address where they can be contacted. This will prevent any "here-today, gone-tomorrow" businesses from offering unobtainable future services. Always check with the local Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce before dealing with door-to-door operations.

When buying a service, never pay for a job in advance. Always have service agreements put in writing. Have the seller state exactly what will be done and what materials will be supplied. Do the same with pest control services, too.

As for the printed ad materials be skeptical of "sensationalism" in advertising. Read the fine print, especially concerning the size and condition of plants. A good reference book will frequently show that some so-called exotic plant name is in fact a rather common plant not suited to your area.

Pricing items at a local nursery before going to mail-order route can frequently save money as postage and handling charges can be high. Especially if you don't know the firm.

IRRIGATION EFFICIENCY:

Farmers with irrigation wells may want to check the output of their wells with a water meter available from the County Extension Office. We have rate meters installed in 6 inch and 8 inch flow line. These are relatively short pieces of pipe which can easily be connected in aluminum flow line.

If you recall, in my campaign I told the people of the 66th District that I believe a member of the state legislature should communicate with constituents on a periodic basis through the news media. I have been writing 'Capitol Comments' each week since the Legislature convened in January, and newspapers have been generous in publishing these remarks. I hope this column has been helpful to you in following legislative activity.

Over 4,000 have been introduced in the House and Senate and, of course, it's impossible for me to keep you informed on every issue. I've had to write about bills that are of particular interest to our area and those of broad, general interest. This certainly doesn't mean that bills affecting more specialized interests are any less important, so please telephone or write me regarding any matter under discussion here in Austin.

It is great help when people back home write me their views on issues. I personally read every card and letter, and a handwritten note receives as much attention as professionally typed correspondence with a printed letterhead. If you write about a particular bill, it helps a lot if you tell me the bill number or give a short caption describing the bill. Your letter is attached to the appropriate bill and later, when the bill comes before the house, I use the correspondence in guiding me in my vote.

The house is dealing with a crowded calendar now, and more and more bills will be considered in the busy days ahead. As we move from one debate to another on the House Floor, I believe even more strongly that we should pass fewer laws. Next week I'll be speaking in opposition to S.B. 356, the companion bill to H.B. 840, which I testified against before the House Committee on Higher Education. This bill concerns the use of public funds for Tuition Equalization Grants to students in private, church-related colleges and universities. There are some in the Legislature who have never thought the program was constitutional, and many more who disapprove of expanding his program at a time when we are having difficulty funding public education adequately. The state's first responsibility is to public schools and teachers.

The Tuition Equalization Program is an example of little-known legislation that can have far-reaching consequences.

If you have any question about my position on this or any other issue, I'm always accessible.

Unlikely group sails to save seals

ABOARD SEA SHEPHERD (AP) Sea Shepherd is a retired British trawler. Her mission is to go from Boston into the ice of Canada's Gulf of St. Lawrence to dye white seals red.

The radio operator is a young woman who works for a rock 'n' roll station in Vancouver; the ship's lawyer once had a dog testify in court; the radio-operator-to-be doesn't even look at television; all 32 souls aboard are soon to embark on a Moby Dick tragedy-comedy scored for rheumatic diesel and fog horn, and Ahab is a salon-vivant named Cleveland Amory who has written best sellers about society and looks like Leopold Stokowski in a high wind.

Ten on board are newsmen. Most of the rest are volunteer environmentalists of varying hues and non-aquatic.

The professional sailing captain and the first and second engineers, speak their native Yorkshire, a difficult dialect.

Amory thinks sealing is an abomination against man and animal. The seals he intends to save are a beguiling and photogenic species. This does not harm fund raising. They are baby harp seals which have white fur when newborn and helpless on the ice around Newfoundland. Three weeks after birth they learn to swim, their pelts turn color, and they put to sea. Their pelts are used for glove lining, trim, even to make toy seals. Sealers club them to death with bats.

Amory reasons that by dyeing the seals red he will eliminate their market value.

Amory is 61, tall, non-athletic looking, gravel voiced from smoking, frizzly-haired and well born — Milton Academy, Harvard '39.

Jerry Biggs likes 8501

"I like 8501's yield. Last year we planted it in mid-June; pre-watered and watered twice. It averaged 8,191 lbs./acre on 35 acres. 8501 had real good head exertion and it stood well, too."
