Dr. Cadenhead honored

Haskell physician receives 'Life Service' award

A longtime Haskell physician is recipient of the first "Life Service Award," given by the Taylor-Jones-Haskell Medical Society.

Dr. J. Frank Cadenhead, who has practiced in Haskell since 1947, received the award last Tuesday night (Jan. 8) at a banquet in his honor at the Abilene Country Club. Dr. Roy Willingham of Abilene presented Dr. Cadenhead with the award in recognition of his "commitment and service to his family, patients, church and community."

Dr. Cadenhead grew up in Weinert, the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. and Cadenhead Sr. He graduated from high school in Weinert in 1939 at the age of 15. He graduated summa cum laude from Hardin-Simmons University at the age of 18 in 1942, receiving the Friley Science medal as the outstanding science student.

At 21, he graduated from Vanderbilt University's war time accelerated medical school program and interned in San Antonio at what is now Baptist Memorial Hospital. It was there that he met and married his wife of 44 years.

He served 15 months in the Army Air Corps in 1946 and 1947 before returning home to practice medicine at the Haskell Clinic. For 16 months in 1953 and 1954, he served in the Air Force, acting as commander of the Reese Air Force Base Hospital for several months.

Dr. Cadenhead has been an active member of the First Baptist Church where he has served as a deacon since 1955. He also has served as a member of the executive board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

He is a member of the Haskell Chamber of Commerce and the Haskell Masonic Lodge. For many years he was active in the Haskell Lions Club, helping establish a foreign student exchange program and hosting exchange students from Sweden and Japan. He served 11 years on the board of trustees of the Haskell Independent School District, including three years as president.

An Eagle Scout, he has been a consistent contributor to the Boy Scout program. He served as a physician for the National Boy Scout Jamboree in Philadelphia in 1964. (As a Boy Scout in 1936, he attended the National Jamboree in Washington, D. C.)

He has maintained strong ties with Hardin-Simmons University. He served on the institution's executive board two terms. His wife and three of his four children are graduates of Hardin-Simmons (the other of Baylor). In 1974, he received the Keeter award as the outstanding alumnus of the university.

A humanitarian, Dr. Cadenhead is active in foreign missions. In 1979, he spent a month doing surgery and administering to patients at the Baptist Medical Compound in Yemen. Last year, he spent a week as a medical missionary in Venezuela, and plans to do so again this year.

Among those attending last week's banquet were Dr. Cadenhead's wife, Billie; his daughter, Helen Mary Holmes, and her husband, Bill, of Hawley; his son, Dr. Wayne Cadenhead, and his wife, Yuvi, of Haskell; and several friends from Haskell, including Elbert and Francine Johnson, George and Helen Fouts, Charles and Leatrice Swinson, Bob and Pam Aycock and Bill and Bud Comedy.

Dr. J. Frank Cadenhead, right, receives the "Life Service Award" from Dr. Roy Willingham during a banquet last Tuesday at the Abilene Country Club.

City considers calling election on sales taxes

The Haskell City Council is considering calling an election to let voters decide on two one-half-cent sales taxes.

Proceeds from one proposal would be used to reduce property taxes by a like amount and proceeds of the other would be earmarked for economic development.

State law allows city residents to vote on these proposals.

Each of the taxes, if enacted, would generate approximately $70,000 in revenue. At the same time, property taxes would be reduced by an amount equal to the amount raised by a one-half-percent sales tax. In Haskell's case, the $70,000 raised by this means would reduce the city's present $135,000 property tax receipts by about half.

The half-cent tax for economic development could be used only to promote economic development and could not be a part of the regular city budget.

Elections in several neighboring cities, including Stamford, have approved both of these taxes. In many areas, property owners like the half-cent tax to relieve their property tax burdens since it spreads the cost of city government more evenly over the general population, including non-property owners.

The economic development proposal gives cities funds to use to attract industry to their communities.

If passed, taxes would be paid only on purchases made within the City of Haskell. Likewise, only city property taxes would be reduced.

If the election is called, voters will vote on the two proposals separately. If both are approved, the total sales tax would rise to 8 1/4 cents per dollar.

If the City decides to call the election, the proposals likely will appear on the ballot at the regular city election May 4.

Driving course scheduled

Convinced that older drivers should have a training program of their own, the Association of Retired Persons decided in 1979 to create one. Data was collected from all the state departments of motor vehicles, agencies on aging, offices of highway safety and departments of transportation.

Along with this material, contributions were reviewed from many safety councils, auto associations, universities and many agencies of the federal government. Advice was sought from many of the nation's distinguished traffic safety educators about the needs of older drivers and the most effective educational approaches.

During this process, careful examination was made of the 12 driver courses for seniors which had been developed and dropped between 1961 and 1979. Many of these were short-lived, but they were examined to find the reasons for their successes and failures. The result of this major research project was the development of the first comprehensive driver education program designed to meet the needs of older motorists. It was named "55 Alive/Mature Driving."

The driving safety course "55 Alive/Mature Driving", is aimed at this target population. The next course available in Haskell will be Feb. 20-21 in the Haskell National Bank Community Room, from 1 to 5 p.m., eight hours total.

Registration blanks are available at the Experienced Citizens Center. Cost is $8. Checks, payable to AARP, along with name, address and phone number should be sent to: 55 Alive, 1410 Oak Hills Dr., Graham, TX 76046.

Indians gain share of first half title

The Haskell Indians defeated Albany, 62-54, Friday night to close out the first half of the district 7-A race in a tie with Winters for the district championship.

Haskell and Winters went through the first half with identical 6-1 records. (Haskell's lone loss was to Hamlin, while Winters' loss was at the hands of Haskell.)

Rusty Stocks scored 30 points to lead the Indians over Jim Ned.

The Indians led, 36-24, at halftime. Albany pulled to within 44-37 at the end of three quarters but was not able to get any closer.

The Maidens lost to Albany, 69-56, dropping their district mark to 4-3. For Albany, it was its seventh straight district victory and gave the Lady Lions the first-half championship.

Pacing the Maiden scoring against Albany were Amanda Diaz with 16 points and Shelia Unger with 14.

Saturday TV program to feature mysterious disappearance of Haskell woman's grandson

The disappearance of an Abilene youth, whose father is a Haskell native and whose grandmother lives in Haskell, will be featured in the television program, "Missing---Reward", Saturday night. It may be seen on KRBC-TV, beginning at 10 o'clock.

Michael Adams, who was 18 years old when he disappeared June 8, 1987, will be the subject of an eight-minute segment of the show.

By all accounts, Michael had a promising future. Just graduated from Cooper High School, he had recently bought a Datsun 280ZX he was restoring and was looking forward to attending Texas Tech University.

Then he disappeared without warning and without a trace.

"That's the hardest part, not knowing what happened," his father, Howard Adams told an Abilene Reporter-News reporter on the third anniversary of the boy's disappearance.

"If we knew he was dead we could bury him, and we would know what happened, but . . . when you don't know, everything goes through your mind," said his mother, Barbara.

About 11:30 p.m. June 8, 1987, Michael returned home after finishing closing the M-System store where he worked as a clerk. He parked his car in the driveway of the family's home in the 1200 block of Peach Street.

His sister, who was awakened by his arrival, remembered seeing him get out of the car and walk down the street where he stood talking to someone in an idling car.

Thinking he was probably talking with one of his friends, she rolled over and went back to sleep.

It was the last time Michael was ever seen.

"The next day I nearly hit his car. He never parked in the driveway," said Barbara Adams.

Whiting, Ivey exchange vows

Family and friends gathered in the sanctuary of the Oak Dale United Methodist Church on Dec. 29 to witness the vows of Shannon Rose Whiting and Robert Alan Ivey. The Rev. Darrell Feemster of Lampasas officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Susan Reyna of Bryson greeted guests at the registration table placed in the narxex of the church. The table was appointed with the bride's book and a grouping of miniature topiary trees atop a hand crocheted round cloth.

Family and friends were escorted to their seats by ushers Kent Whiting, brother of the bride from Fort Worth, and David Tidwell of Haskell. The ushers were attired in charcoal black tuxedos and wore a pink rose in their lapel.

The sanctuary of the church was transformed into a winter wonderland. A forest of fir trees bedecked with tiny white lights, pink tulle and mirrored ornaments of gold and silver graced the choir loft. Gardens of pink and white poinsettia adorned the chancel railing. Large white poinsettia trees were placed at each end of the altar area.

Family pews were designated with large bows of pink tulle and gold cord holding clutch bouquets of white poinsettia, roses and wax flower. Guest pews were appointed with clutch bouquets of wax flower and roses tied with pink tulle and gold cord.

King Lewis of Stephenville provided piano and organ music for the wedding and accompanied the vocalist, Cathey Brown, also of Stephenville.

The ceremony began as Miss Brown sang "From a Distance."

As Mr. Lewis played "Ava Maria", parents were escorted to their pew. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Whiting chose a two-piece ensemble of teal linen. Mrs. Ivey was attired in a linen suit of black and white. The mothers wore corsages of white catalpa orchids accented with gold cord.

Shannan Christian of Stephenville read a letter from the bride and groom addressed to their parents. Each parent was presented with a handwritten copy of the letter by Miss Christian. Following the presentation, Miss Brown sang "I'll Still Be Loving You."

As Pachabell's "Canon in D" was played, groomsmen and bridesmaids processed to the altar. Groomsmen were Sam Toliver of Haskell, Fred Rike of Tyler, Paul Allison of Arlington and Kerry Modawell of Granbury. Also serving as best man was Blake Bryant of Pasadena. They were attired in charcoal black tuxedos and wore pink rose boutonnieres.

Bridesmaids were Kim Norcross Winfrey of Stephenville, Johanna Pollan and Stacey Wills of Dallas and Lana Carter Patterson of Spearman. Matron of honor was Toni Johnson Christian of Dallas. The attendants wore gowns tea length of plum. The velvet princess line bodice and sweetheart neckline were fashioned with large taffeta bows over each shoulder. The full taffeta skirt ebbed from a corded basque waistline. Each attendant carried a cascade bouquet of cymbidium and dendrobium orchids, pink sweetheart roses, wax flower and was accented with gold cord and iridescent pearls.

Awaiting his bride at the altar the groom was attired in a charcoal full dress tuxedo. He wore a boutonniere of dendrobium orchids.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of blush pink taffeta. The princess line bodice was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, princess line bodice and full ball gown sleeves accented with self fabric roses at each shoulder. The entire bodice and sleeves were adorned with alecon lace appliques and embellished with pearls, bugle beads and aurora borealis sequins.

The basque waistline held a full gathered skirt and cathedral length train edged with lace, pearls and sequins. Anchored at the back waistline was a double jeweled bustle bow centered by rosettes. Pink and white procelain rosebuds accented with sprays of pearls and a double pouf held a triple tiered walking length veil of bridal illusion.

She carried a cascade bouquet of cymbidium and dendrobium orchids and pink sweetheart roses. Keeping with wedding tradition: for something old the bride tied her grandmother's wedding ring to the streamers of her bouquet; for something new she wore her wedding gown; she borrowed her mother's pearls; and her lace garter was blue. A penny minted in the year of the bride and groom's births was placed in her shoe.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Whiting hosted a reception honoring the bride and groom in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

The bride's cake, a white four tiered hexagon shaped confection, was accented with pink roses, wax flower, dendrobium orchids, and topped by white satin wedding bells. Centering the bride's table was a large white swan, which held pink roses, white poinsettia, evergreen and pink and white crystal balls. Sparkling punch, mints and nuts were served from silver appointments.

The groom's cake, a chocolate hexagon design, was accented with holly leaves and was centered by a football, depicting the groom's interest in the sport. Hot wassil and coffee were served from silver appointments.

Members of the houseparty were Holly Bryant of Pasadena, Raina Cox of Granbury, Kimberly Koch of San Antonio, Sharee Owens of Bonham, Marci Dunham of Bedford and Kelli Webb Parham of Stephenville. They wore corsages of pink rosebuds accented with gold cord. During the reception, the groom's niece and nephew, Kelly Marie and Christopher Fitzharris of Niceville, Fla., distributed potpourri filled satin roses.

The bride and groom departed for their honeymoon to San Antonio through sprays of potpourri thrown by their wedding guests. For traveling, the bride chose to wear a knit dress of periwinkle blue. Her corsage was of cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Ivey is a 1985 graduate of Stephenville High School and a December graduate of Tarleton State University with a degree in Home Economics Education. While at Tarleton, she was a member of the Xi Nu Chapter of Delta Zeta Sorority.

Mr. Ivey is a 1985 graduate of Haskell High School and a May 1990 graduate of Tarleton State University with a bachelor of science degree in Physical Education. While an undergraduate at Tarleton, he played on the Tarleton Texan football team. While pursuing his master's degree in Athletic Administration at Tarleton, he served as a graduate assistant in the Department of Physical Education and Health.

Following their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Ivey will make their home in Lubbock where he will complete his master's degree and will be a graduate assistant in the Department of Physical Education under Coach Spike Dykes.

On the eve of the wedding, family, friends and members of the wedding party enjoyed dinner at Jose's Restaurant, hosted by the groom's parents.

PROTECT YOUR RIGHTS-

RENDER YOUR PROPERTY

A rendition is a report to the appraisal district that lists all the taxable property you own or control on January 1, 1991. The form is available at your local appraisal district or you may draft a similar form.

You must file a rendition if you own tangible personal property used to produce income—such as the inventory and equipment used by a business.

The appraisal district may require any taxpayer to file a rendition by sending the taxpayer a written notice and a rendition form.

The advantages of filing a rendition:

- You give your opinion of your property's value. If the appraisal district wants a higher value for your property, it must notify you in writing of the higher value and explain how you can protest that value to the appraisal review board.

- You record your current mailing address so your tax bills will go to the right address. If you bill is mailed to the wrong address, the law still holds you responsible for paying your taxes on time or paying extra charges for late payments.

- You can also file a report of decreased value, to notify the appraisal district of significant depreciation to your property in 1990. The district will look at your property before assigning a value in 1991.

The last day for filing or postmarking 1991 renditions is Monday, April 1. You can get an extra 30 days if you ask for it in writing before the April 1 deadline.

File renditions with your local appraisal district at the address shown below.

For more information, get a free copy of the pamphlet, Taxpayers' Rights, Remedies, Responsibilities, at your appraisal district office or from the State Property Tax Board in Austin.

Cowboy comedian to appear

Richard Don Simms, "the cowboy comedian" from Fort Worth, will be a special guest at the third Saturday musical at the Opera House in Anson this week.

The country-western show begins at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free.

Simms boasts 25 years of entertaining folks with his "boyish good looks, smooth urbane charm and wealth of musical and comedic talents."

He began his career as a rose bush in a grade school play and has been pursuing applause ever since. He displays his "semi-virtuoso" musical abilities on the guitar, banjo, ukelele, mandolin, rinky-tink piano, one-string violin, cymbals, miniature harmonica, willow whistle, vocal chords and tire iron.

Other musicians scheduled to perform Saturday are Bill Comeaux and Swing Shift, the Tye Troubadours, Leona Davis of Tye, Margie Schumacher of Abilene, and Evelyn Gann and Country Gold, returning to this area after a south Texas tour.

All bands that would like to play are invited to come. Musicians volunteer their time and talents for the community entertainment event.

Mysterious disappearance...

Needing to back her car out, Mrs. Adams said she went to her son's room, but he wasn't there.

Almost immediately the family had the idea something was wrong, the father recalled.

"He never went anywhere without telling us," said Howard Adams. Michael, the second youngest of the couple's seven children, wasn't the type to stay out all night, his father said.

The family has since spent its share of time pursuing rumors about his disappearance: that he might have been kidnapped for his keys to the M-System store, that another teenager bragged about killing him and that a psychic told a family acquaintance that she knew where Michael's body was buried.

Adams said he even rented a tape of a Phil Donahue Show after being informed that someone had seen Michael at the show.

But nothing has come of the rumors.

"We feel like somebody here in Abilene knows what happened to him," Howard said.

A $10,000 reward has been offered for Michael's safe return, his name has been entered into a nationwide missing persons file, his picture has appeared on billboards in the city and on posters on both coasts. The family attempted to get the TV program, "Unsolved Mysteries" to air a story on his disappearance.

The Adamses said they have considered the possibility that their son met with foul play. The alternative that nothing happened to Michael and he just decided to leave on his own and not tell anyone, seems almost impossible, the father said.

All of his clothes were still in his room. He wore contacts but his lens solutions were untouched. There was $160 in cash he left in his room and he was due to receive a paycheck from work the next day.

And Michael appeared happy with his life, his father said. He was level-headed, stayed away from drugs, enjoyed working on his car and was looking forward to attending college, even putting down money for a room deposit.

Despite the length of time since his disappearance, Howard said, "We're not going to give up on it ever. We're going to keep hoping."

Mrs. Adams credited the family's faith in God and a core of supporters in their church and the community for helping the family cope with the difficult times since Michael's disappearance.

"We know he could be dead, but he could be alive," Howard said. "We pray every day that he's going to return home soon."

(Howard Adams, the boy's father, was born in Haskell. He was the son of W. J. Adams Sr. (1902-1982) who was a Star Route mail carrier from Haskell to Rule and Rochester for more than 40 years. Lorene Adams of 905 N. Ave. D in Haskell is the boy's grandmother.

(Aunts and uncles of Michael, who also are Haskell natives, include Marie (Adams) Willson and Louise (Adams) Hooks of Abilene, W. J. Adams Jr. of Pittsburg, Texas, Ina Mae (Adams) Altum of Garland and Gayle (Adams) Elmore of Mt. Olive, Miss.)

11th Airborne to celebrate anniversary

Veterans of the famed 11th Airborne Division, who, together with the First Cavalry Division and the 37th Infantry Division, liberated Manila in 1945, will meet in Tulsa, Okla., July 11-14, to celebrate the 48th anniversary of the division's activation at Camp Mackall, N.C., in 1943.

Commanded by Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, the 11th landed at Batangas south of Manila, while the 511th Parachute Infantry and the 457th Parachute Field Artillery RCT team dropped by parachute on Tagatay Ridge near Lake Taal on Feb. 3, 1945.

The 11th Airborne Division gained its nickname, "The Angels," from a daring raid behind the Japanese lines to liberate 2,147 internees at the Los Banos prison camp. The defending Japanese force was wiped out and the internees who suffered over three years of imprisonment declared that the paratroopers looked like "Angels" descending from heaven.

After Luzon was secured, the 11th was the first American unit to land in Japan for the surrender and occupation.

Anyone desiring information about the reunion may contact the national secretary, Jim Hembree, 20 Binks Drive, Clarksville, TN 37042, for details.

New vaccine for pneumonia being tested

Researchers at the Houston Veterans Affairs Medical Center are testing an improved pneumonia vaccine that may be effective for up to 10 years.

Pneumonia is an infection that strikes 500,000 annually and is the sixth leading cause of death in the United States. Symptoms include high fever, cough and fluid in the lungs.

The present vaccine contains 23 of the most common types of organisms that cause pneumonia; however, it has not been widely used because some less common types are not included. Researchers hope to change that.

Green Thumb

By Gladys O'Neal
Now is the time to break up garden beds for spring planting. Work in any organic matter and have the beds ready to plant when needed. The snow and winter rains will benefit these beds.

When selecting vegetable and flower seeds, select adapted varieties that will do well in Texas' unique climate. Begin seeding broccoli, cabbage, lettuce in cold frames for transplanting later. Start with good seed. A box at least three inches deep makes a suitable growing box. After germination, supply full light and adequate moisture.

Roses should be pruned after all danger of frost or freeze is over, the middle of February or the first week in March. Proper pruning makes more compact bushes and superior blooms. Prune canes of established plants about 12 to 20 inches from the ground. Prune out all dead wood and canes growing toward the center of the bush for better air circulation. When pruning, cut about one-eighth of an inch above an outside bud; this encourages growth to the outside rather than the inside. Cuts should be made on a slant, using sharp shears. Seal all cuts with rose sealer to prevent borers from entering canes.

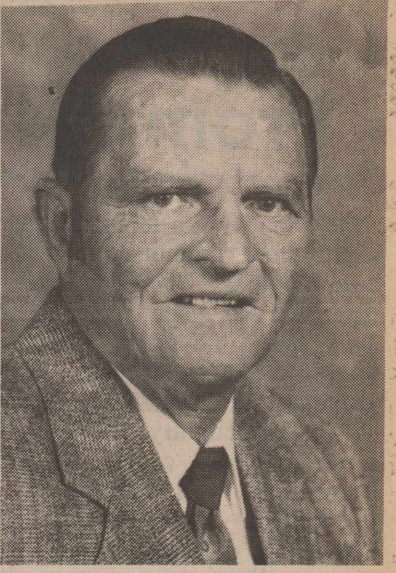

Newly planted climbing roses should be pruned very little the first year, removing only weak shoots the first spring. They should be allowed to become well established. Make sure the rose bushes receive a minimum of six hours of full sun daily.

Roses do better in elevated beds that drain rapidly. A large percentage of organic matter or good compost helps.

Haskell and surrounding areas are not the best places to grow beautiful roses, but with proper growth and care, maybe you will get beautiful blooms.

Happy New Year and better growing of your plants is my sincere wish to all of you, my gardening friends.

In the original Oxford English dictionary there is a 23-page essay on one word---"set"---written by Henry Bradley.

Mary Kaigler:

From the Inside Out

Moving from a larger city to a small rural community can be a culture-shock. This eye opener came for me when my husband, Tom, and I moved from Austin, after my reluctant retirement in the aftermath of cancer. From central Texas, hill country, capital city, university city, center for arts, recreation and commerce---population 749,612---to his hometown of rural, north West Texas, rolling plains, county seat of Haskell---population 3279---and into another world.

My expectation of it was colored by Tom's boyhood memories of the isolation and deprivation of the 1920s and '30s, and by the city dweller's subtle belief that big is better and somehow advanced.

What I learned here in this small place is a new interpretation of the definition of culture. Perhaps the real definition.

Set among irrigated and dry-land cotton and wheat farms, cattle ranches, often-dry creek beds and pastures of untamed mesquites dotted occasionally by pumps dipping, biting and sucking oil like persistent, giant mosquitoes, Haskell is typical of many small West Texas towns still struggling to keep their identity in the swallow-up world of competition and commercialism.

With a history going back before 1858, when the county was laid out, its population has remained rather stable, even during the economic straits of farming in recent years and with one third more dying than being born. Largely made up of descendants of early-day farmers, ranchers and merchants, many of its young people leave out of necessity, many older people come back out of regard for it. Proudly called the "big country", it is high of sky, wide of horizon and handsome in the eyes of its residents. They are dedicated to its welfare and proud of its heritage.

I soon began to learn much more about it. Hot, exhausted, with head in hand, I sat in the breakfast room on the July evening wondering what a tired, 60-year-old girl like me was doing in a place like this. The doorbell rang loudly in the near-emptiness of the house.

She stood on the back porch wearing a big smile and bearing a big foil-wrapped package. "Thought you might like coffee and some of my fresh apricot pound cake," she said, as she exuberantly stepped into the kitchen. Oh my gosh! We've got company and we're not even half unloaded yet, I panicked, as I scrounged up another chair from the dining room, trying to be reasonably hospitable in the obvious chaos of moving.

"We heard you bought the old Pace house," she said. "Been watching for you every day for two months. Wanted to be the first to welcome you to Haskell." Enthusiastically unwrapping the moist, golden loaf, she and the fruity fragrance invited us to have a slice, right then.

"Tom, I remember your mother," she said. "My mama paid her for my expression lessons with homemade pies and sewing. That was in, let's see, that must have been in 1934. Tom, what year was this house built? I heard that Mr. Pace personally inspected every board-foot of lumber that went into it."

I wondered to myself whether we had time for this. Our beds weren't ready for sleeping; we needed to stay busy before it got too dark.

Tom remembered that the house was built in 1926 on a half-block lot on Brick street. They both remembered that the street was paved with the durable red bricks in the early 20s.

No doubt filled the memories of those who knew it, the house, for me that day, was three empty levels waiting to be filled with 41 years of our community-property accumulation. Unfortunately, this was still solidly packed in the truck in the back driveway. All I could think of, as they continued to reminisce, was the unfinished job ahead.

"You mean to tell me your movers didn't show up to unload you?" this first welcoming harbinger of good tidings asked, as she re-wrapped the apricot cake. "Well, don't you worry---we'll fix that."

True to her word, two young men arrived the next day to help us; saving our lives, not to mention our backs. With a dolly borrowed from the appliance store, several capable, eager volunteers also came early the next morning. In a short time they got us moved in, set up and settled down into the unfamiliar busy-ness of today's small town living.

By week's end the refrigerator, and our hearts, were filled with the homemade goodness of country welcomes. Along with the culinary offerings we had invitations. All were personally delivered; in a variety of ways. We were asked to join the congregations of three churches, several weekly bridge and domino groups, women's garden and study clubs, all of the men's service organizations and a group going to Hawaii at the end of July. Unbelievably, neighbors on two sides volunteered to look after Tom's shut-in sister while we rested from the move in the islands with new friends.

Before long I realized that such gestures of thoughtfulness are not rare at all. In fact, they are the norm. The jealously guarded anonymity of city living---a defense against intrusion by the masses into one's personal space---is not apparent here in this small town where space is not at a premium.

Surrounded by the clean air and openness of the countryside, people feel free to be close to and open with one another without fear of being overrun. There are few closed doors---those of hard wood or of hard heart.

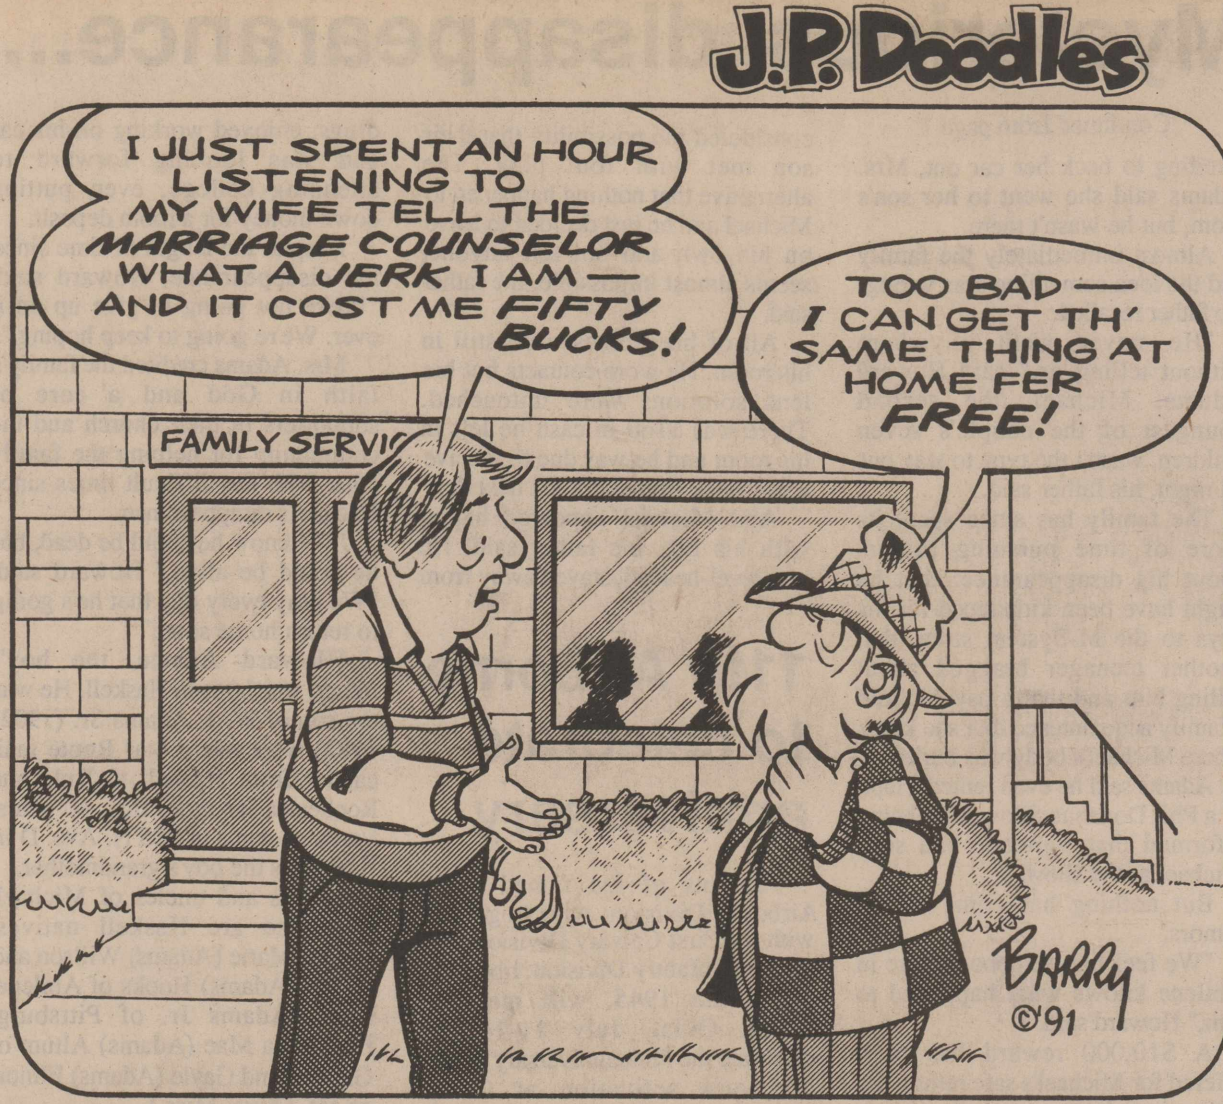

I was soon to learn that all of this was just a part of the special culture that is cultivated in the country. There was more to come.

BY WENDELL FAUGHT

Just about everyone is guessing at the number of American deaths which would result from war in the Middle East.

A group of college students interviewed on the MacNeil-Lehrer Report gave guesses ranging from 4,000 to 250,000. Politicians refer to "thousands" and the more dovish leaders speak of "tens of thousands."

Comes now J. William Brosius, a product of Harvard Business School and a World War II Army Air Corps statistician, with what he calls a reasonable estimate based on "historical fact" rather than "hysterical hyperbole."

Citing the number of deaths vs. the number of men in service in each of America's past wars and factoring in such things as experience, gains in medicine, advances in hardware technology, battlefield conditions, and commitment, he reports his findings to The Wall Street Journal in true "Harvardese":

"... this suggests a loss ratio of three-tenths of 1% in battle and one-tenth of 1% from other causes, for a total of four-tenths of 1% of all the men and women serving in all branches of the military service throughout the world, with a variation of one-tenth percent more or less from those ratios."

Gotcha! In simpler English, he explains that with 2.3 million men and women now in all branches of the armed forces, the deaths in a war with Iraq will be about 6,900 in battle and 2,300 from other causes.

A few weeks back, this column mentioned that Jack Cowan of the San Angelo Standard-Times was accumulating a list of "Texas expressions" and then went on to list some of them.

Columnist Rena Pederson of The Dallas Morning News, also commented on Cowan's project and invited readers to submit some of their favorites.

Last week, she reported that the stack of replies is now "bigger than a bread box" and the letters were still coming in from Texas, Oklahoma, New York and elsewhere.

Here are some of the selected gems:

"She ain't no bigger'n a bar o' soap after washday."

"That 'ol gal's got a beam on her about two ax handles wide."

"He's as nervous as a long-tailed cat in a room full of rocking chairs."

"I'll let you get back to your cat killing."

"I'm so mad I could chew nails and spit out the rust."

"Rough as a potato grater."

"'Crookeder than a barrel of fish hooks."

"You look rode hard and put away wet."

"Better 'n a poke in the eye with a sharp stick."

"Hear those tater wagons (thunder)."

"Busy as a feather merchant in a windstorm."

"I'm so sick I'd have to get better to die."

"Tougher than a nine-year old squirrel."

"She was so thirsty she was spitting cotton."

"He's as sure for hell as a hog is for the smokehouse."

"Busier than three windmills in a tornado."

"That's as useful as a spoon to a pig."

"Sexier than socks on a rooster."

"Wound up tighter than a $2 watch."

"Happy as a flea at a dog show."

"If wishes were fishes we'd all have a fry."

"A sandstorm so bad jack rabbits were digging 10 feet in the air."

"Hotter than a depot stove."

"Nuttier than a peach orchard boar."

"He takes to her like a hog takes to slop."

"I felt like I ironed all night with a cold iron."

"I feel like I've been pulled through a knothole."

"He only has one paddle in the water."

"He's a few bricks shy of a load."

"He could mess up an anvil."

"She's so ugly she'd have to slip up on a dipper to get a drink of water."

"He's so dumb, he don't know come here from sic 'em."

-Hobby Club-

The Rochester Hobby Club had its first meeting of 1991 on Jan. 8 with Evelyn Underwood as hostess for a delicious "stew and cornbread" meal at noon.

Happy birthday was sung to Shelly Speck and Tinnie Mae Short, who then fed the club pig-bank--a penny for each year of their ages. Last year the pig yielded almost $13 which meant some of the 24 members momentarily forgot their ages.

The 1991 club officers are Annie Marshall, president; Shelly Speck, first vice president; Helen Cox, second vice president; Mae Speck, treasurer; Evelyn Rogers, secretary; and Emily Wilson, reporter.

Trustees are Tinnie Mae Short, Mae Speck and Helen Cox. Stella Carver is to be hostess for the club's Jan. 15 meeting.

Weinert club meets

By Faye Jetton

The Weinert Extension Homemakers Club met Jan. 8 in the lovely home of Jimmie Weinert.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Weinert, the president. Ten members answered roll call by reciting "something you've done to bring cheer."

The hostess gave a reading, "They Say", then all repeated the TEHA prayer. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Alice Yates, secretary-treasurer, and approved. The treasurer's report also was given and the council report was given by Alice Yates.

Recommendations for council were read and voted on, yearbooks for 1991 were filled out and the president appointed committees.

The club voted to make another quilt for the Rehab Center in Abilene in 1991 with Cordie Cunningham and Estalynn Liles on the quilt committee. Alice Yates was elected as the club's nominee for vice chairman for TEHA.

Alta McGuire will head the club's 4-H committee and Alice Yates the calendar committee.

The club will sell brownies, cookies, pie, Rice Crispies, candy, coffee and Cokes at the Haskell County Junior Livestock Show. Each club member who will work was assigned certain hours.

Refreshments were served to Betty Sanders, Alice Yates, Faye Jetton, Myrtle Phemister, Cordie Cunningham, Agnes Winchester, Alta McGuire, Estalynn Liles, Henrietta Rueffer and the hostess. Next meeting will be Feb. 5 in the home of Faye Jetton.

Notes From The Rolling Plains

(Note: The following is one of a series of stories by noted wildlife photographer Wyman Meinzer offered by Haskell Save-A-$ for your enjoyment.)

During the recent ice storm I was out driving the roads to see what photo possibilities existed in such extreme weather conditions. Taking a route north of Benjamin I topped the so called North Hill and peered into the broken badlands that spread themselves for many miles in three directions. Though I am forty years of age I guess that I'll never tire of seeing that beautiful panorama known as the badlands. Regardless of the season of the year, this region holds a place in my heart unequalled anywhere else that I've been. In the winter I drive out to view the snows and blue northerners as they race their ageless trails across the broken land. In the springtime I have sat for long lengths watching the approach of the powerful thunderstorms, spellbound by the ghostly dance of lightning as it plays its wicked hide and seek games in the countless canyons throughout the badlands. Yes, this really is a special place and I wonder if perhaps it is not only now that it holds special meaning for a few people. Historians and archeologists believe that certain locales or regions throughout the land are so called "power points" in that the ancient people before us felt a closeness to their higher beings when visiting these places. Double Mountains in Stonewall county is one of these power points in that the Comanche and Kiowa Indians felt these hills were a sacred ground. Perhaps the perceptuous sides of Double mountains were only scaled when the Indians felt a need to be at one with the Gods they knew at the time. I wonder too if the badlands is perhaps a power point for I know too well that I can go into the area and feel a calm and peacefulness that I cannot find elsewhere. It is here that I feel a closeness to our Creator that I cannot find under any man made roof in our land.

TAX PLANNING

Written By
Richard E. Rodgers CPA

METHODS FOR REDUCING SELF EMPLOYMENT TAXES

The continued increases in the social security rate and wage base affect salaried people, but they have an even greater impact on the self-employed. This greater impact is due to the self-employed's having to pay both the employer's and the employee's share of the tax. Although self-employed get a deduction for half the tax paid, the tax is a significant burden.

Self-employed persons affected by the tax may wish to consider methods to reduce it. One method to reduce this tax is through a rental arrangement. For example, if you're married, have your spouse buy the assets (land, equipment, or furnishings) needed in your business; then have the business rent the assets from your spouse. Of course, the rent paid can't exceed a fair rental amount. While your business loses the depreciation deduction, you gain the lease expense which will usually result in a net increase in your business expenses, thus reducing your self-employment income. Your spouse will report the rental income and deduct any related expenses, such as depreciation, interest, etc. The rental arrangement should be evidenced by a formal agreement.

Another method to reduce self-employment tax is to employ your children under the age of 18 in your business. Wages earned by them are not subject to social security taxes. The wages paid to them must be commensurate with the work they perform, and payroll records should be maintained just as on any other employee. Court cases have ruled children as young as age six are capable of simple maintenance or janitorial work (sweeping, emptying wastebaskets, etc.) If you're currently giving your children an allowance, consider replacing part of it by wages earned from their work in your business.

Be aware that reducing your social security tax may result in lower benefits to be received. You should establish your own retirement plan (IRA, Keogh, SEP) to help compensate for this benefit loss.

TexPool funds

TexPool, the Texas treasury-managed investment pool for local public funds, for the first time has topped $1 billion in deposits, State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchinson reports.

In 1989, the Texas Legislature expanded local government investment authority and, at the same time, authorized the pooling of public funds for more efficient and profitable fund management. The result was TexPool, which began accepting deposits in December 1989. On Dec. 31, 1990, TexPool deposits hit $1 billion.

Church to show latest Graham film

"Caught," the newest film from Billy Graham's World Wide Pictures, will be shown Sunday evening at the First Baptist Church in Haskell.

The true-to-life dramatic story portrays the power of one person caring for another.

In the film, an 18-year-old American, Tim Devon, goes to Amsterdam in search of the father he has never known. His mother reluctantly admits he was born illegitimately out of her college romance with a Dutch exchange student.

Tim slips into the self-destructive drug culture, but is encountered by a single, caring person—a person of deep faith. The person, Rajam Prasad, found a way to share Christ's message of love, hope and forgiveness in a way that Tim could not ignore.

Vast audiences who have witnessed the film's premiere in movie theaters around the world have been gripped by its central focus on their friendship which was forged out of danger and desperation.

Deeply moved by the warmth of the film with its many moments of humor, Graham said "Caught" is the most outstanding film yet produced by World Wide Pictures.

"Caught" brings a challenge to all; in reality, one caring person can have an immeasurable impact on the life of a lonely, disillusioned, desperate person.

The Rev. Jimmy Turner, Baptist pastor, said the public is invited to attend the showing.

Club has program on estate planning

The Progressive Study Club met in regular session Jan. 20.

The program, "Visions in Perspective: Personal Economics" was on estate planning.

President Mary Kaigler welcomed members, and Jimmie Weinert, program director, introduced Lou Gilly, Haskell County agent, who has made a personal study concerning estate planning.

Each one received a packet of material to serve as a guide. Two very helpful handouts were "A Letter to Husbands," which was prepared by a wife whose husband did not talk about the business and she had to learn "the hard way" where he kept important papers, keys to safety deposit box, insurance policies (children need to know, too) and "Who Gets What? . . . If You Die Without a Will in Texas." A will made before Sept. 12, 1981, needs to be revised to take full advantage of tax laws.

A couple needs to have separate wills. Wills should be kept in the safe of the attorney's office and not in safe deposit box since a will needs to be available when death occurs.

Wills should be made early and updated, not at retirement. A family meeting with adult children and spouses should take place, and decisions should be written down.

Mrs. Gilly gave a number of "common sense" suggestions based on personal experiences since her father died when she was 14 and there is a sister. A question-answer period followed which was beneficial.

Hostesses, Jerrene Couch, Mattie English, Helen Fouts, Anita Herren, Thula Perry and Doris

Burson, served peanut butter ice box cake, cocktail sausages, crackers, olives, hot apple punch and coffee. An arrangement of red and white flowers and flags was on the serving table, and one of flags on the speaker's table.

The business session began with the reading of the constitution by Jimmie Weinert. Oleta Cornelius read the minutes of the Nov. 8 and Dec. 13 meetings.

Helen Fouts read communications from Charlie Jordan of Ben Richey Boys Ranch, thanking the club for the generous donation and for helping buy a lamb for John Henry Reynolds, and Betsy McManamon, high school librarian, thanking the club for donating Nancy Robinson's "Spirits in the Sky." Jill Druessedow requested and received a leave of absence due to conflict with civic duties. Linda King requested and was granted a change of membership, beginning in September.

A nominating committee of Sandy Forehand, Nancy Toliver, Jill Druessedow, Jane Coston and Gladys O'Neal was elected.

There was a discussion concerning transportation for the April 13 meeting when a tour of Watt Matthews' ranch will take place. The president appointed Jerrene Couch, Reatha Mullins and Franciene Johnson to investigate a change in cost of dues and chicken spaghetti supper.
