Extra school days mean earlier start for 1991-92 term

New legislation requiring five extra school days will necessitate an earlier opening for Haskell schools next year.

Superintendent Bill Stewart announced this week that the 1991-92 school term will begin Aug. 19. Teachers will have an in-service day on Friday, Aug. 16.

The 1991-92 school calendar, released this week, calls for 180 days of school, 91 during the first semester and 89 during the second.

The calendar also calls for five holidays:

Labor Day, Sept. 2; Thanksgiving, Nov. 27-29; Christmas, Dec. 23-Jan. 3; Stock

Show, Jan. 24; March 16-20; Easter, April 17-20.

In addition, there will be a spring break March 16-20, and two days have been set aside as weather days, April 10 and May 15.

The first six weeks will run from Aug. 19 to Sept. 30; the second six weeks from Oct. 1 to Nov. 11, and the third six weeks from Nov. 12 to Jan. 10.

Teacher preparation days are scheduled for Aug. 16, Jan. 11 and May 29.

Wall collapse takes life of Abilene man

A 43-year-old Abilene man was killed Sunday evening when a wall collapsed on him.

Donnie Gene Muhle was tearing down a farmhouse in the Wild Horse Knob community when the accident occurred.

A native of Haskell, Muhle was a graduate of Rochester High School. He was the son of John Eugene and Donalene Muhle of Rochester.

Driving course dates set

Tentative dates have been set for a new "55-Alive Mature Driving" course in Haskell.

Plans call for the course to be given Monday and Tuesday, June 10-11, from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Experienced Citizens Center in Haskell, the course sponsor.

Designed to help older persons improve their driving skills, this innovative and high-quality driver re-training course is open to all persons 50 years of age and older.

Classes are being taught by non-paid volunteers trained by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and material covers the effects of aging and medications on driving, basic driving rules, license renewal, local traffic hazards, adverse road conditions, energy saving procedures and accident prevention measures.

In recognition of the quality of the program, most auto insurance companies offer a 10-percent discount on the major clauses of their policies.

The fee for the course is $8, which covers the cost of the workbooks and other supplies.

For enrollment and/or other information, call the Experienced Citizens Center, 864-3875.

Blood donors needed for Benny Melton

Meeks Blood Bank of Abilene will have its mobile unit in Haskell Wednesday, June 5, so that local friends of Benny Melton may help replenish the blood supply used by the Haskell man.

Twenty-five pints of blood were used during and after Melton's recent heart surgery in Abilene.

Ordinarily, local citizens would be asked to go to Abilene to make their contributions, but Meeks has agreed to come to Haskell.

The unit will be at the Haskell National Bank community building from 3 to 5 p.m. on June 5.

Light bulb scam is reported here

A possible "light bulb" scam has been reported in Haskell County over the past few days.

At least two local women reported receiving phone calls from persons identifying themselves as representing the "Handicapped Association of Texas."

They offered to send four light bulbs, priced at $4 each. One woman became suspicious when the caller told her the total cost, including taxes and delivery, would be $21.95.

When she asked the location of the main office of the organization, she was told it was in Haskell. And when she asked for a Haskell address, the caller, after hesitation, told her it was at 4525 Main.

Becoming even more suspicious, she asked for a phone number and was given an 800-number. After hanging up, she tried to call the number and learned there is no such number.

Country school reunion attracts more than 220

By Ernestine C. Herren
Over 220 former country school pupils and teachers met May 25 for a reunion to visit and remember bygone days, a day of life that we will not see again.

Norman Nanny, 87, was there with his sister, Sybil, recalling their days in Post School. When the weather was bad, their father sent Otho and Norman on two mules to get the four sisters. That was only three pupils per mule.

Thomas Howard, 83, of Howard community---he did not say he was from Haskell County but was from Howard community---was there from Albany where he has been a barber for the past 63 years and still is.

J. W. Grifford from Brown County and Vivian Stone had a long visit with their teacher, Erma Monke Liles.

Sybil Scott recalled her days in Midway School where C. W. Williamson made history very interesting. Some days he wore his World War I uniform and they could visualize him marching through France. She also recalled seeing a big white wolf on her way to Gilliam School in 1921.

Mrs. Pearl Helton, 80, recalled her school days at Idella School and friends in Needmore community. In the early 30s, T. B. and Vivian Roberson were teaching Idella School and Pearl rented them a room for $3 per month.

Olden days were recalled of how folks made their own entertainment. Ball games on Sunday afternoons, candy pullings, dances and singing were popular. Fishing parties of several families would camp on the Brazos River and the wolf hunts were popular. Four or five families would hitch up a chuck wagon, families would pile into the wagons, gather up their hounds and drive to Double Mountain or Kiowa Peak and the men would hunt wolves for four or five days. This was popular until the late 20s.

One woman recalled that as a girl on hog killing days, that after walking home from school they would have to grind sausage until their arm would nearly fall off.

At the business meeting, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Wood were re-elected president, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ray. They received a standing ovation for their work to make the association a success.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of the 47 members who have passed away in the last two years.

Mrs. Floy Etta Mapes and Slover Bledsoe were recognized as oldest members present.

The person coming the farthest was from California, and Ed Carnes came from Salt Lake City, Utah.

Midway School had the largest attendance of 33. Other schools and the number of their representatives, included:

Ballew 10, Jud 8, Brushy 1, McConnell 5, Lake Creek 1, Cliff 1, Pleasant Valley 4, New Mid 3, Lone Star 7, Post 4, Sayles 8, Plainview 4, Rockdale 2, Mitchell 1, Gauntt 8, New Cook 2, Weaver 3, Cottonwood 1, Ericsdale 1, Idella 1.

Center Point 3, Rose 7, Howard 5, Cook Springs 2, Flatopp 3, Foster 3, Tanner Paint 6, Gilliam 4, Roberts 5, Dennis Chapel 1, Myers 6, Bunker Hill 3.

Tonk Creek 2, Powell 2, Corinth 2, Whitman 2, Pinkerton 3, Matson 8, Paint Creek 9, Carney 1 and Four Corners 1.

72 pilots attend Saturday air show

Seventy-two out-of-town pilots and their guests flew into Haskell Airport Saturday for the fourth annual Fly-In Breakfast, co-sponsored by the City of Haskell and the Haskell Chamber of Commerce. They were joined by a large crowd of local and area spectators.

Bud Lane was chairman of the event, with chamber president Conrad Roewe serving as master of ceremonies. An official greeting was made by Haskell Mayor Greg Melton and a response by pilot and journalist Nancy Masters on behalf of out-of-town pilots.

Lane presented three plaques: to L. A. Miller, 75, as the oldest pilot; to Ricky Fulton, 28, as the youngest pilot; and to David Fain of Aspen, Colo., who flew the longest distance, 600 miles. Another pilot, David Holden had travelled commercially 3,000 miles from London, and then flew 50 miles from Abilene to attend.

Roewe thanked the Haskell Fire Department and Auxiliary for cooking breakfast, which consisted of bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, jelly, coffee, milk and orange juice.

The American Legion parked cars, ham radio operators parked the incoming planes.

Local pilots, in golf carts, formed a shuttle service to escort incoming pilots to and from their planes to the Bridwell hangar where the breakfast was served. Roewe expressed appreciation to Jim Bridwell for allowing the activity to take place at his hangar all four years.

The American Legion furnished the tables and chairs, with the setup and gasoline sales by the City employees, under the direction of city administrator Bob Baker.

The Chamber of Commerce board of directors handled ticket sales and registration.

Lane expressed special thanks to the following sponsors whose donations made the air show possible:

Haskell National Bank, First National Bank, Farmers National Bank, Holden-McCauley, Richardson Truck and Tractor, Dr. Cliff Ray, Toliver Chevrolet, Bill Wilson Motor Co., West Texas Utilities, KVRP, Johnson Pharmacy, Lanco Insurance and Boggs and Johnson.

Chamber director Melissa Robison assisted Lane in the financial collections.

PHARMACY TOPICS

By Elbert Johnson, Registered Pharmacist

Tiny balloons pushed by catheters have been effective in clearing blocked fallopian tubes to combat infertility, doctors at Mount Sinai Hospital Medical Center in Chicago found.

Sleep apnea is a risk factor in heart attacks, Australian research found. Apnea is treatable; even weight loss may effect a cure.

Special cochlear implants are permitting deaf children to hear and learn to speak after training. The Food and Drug Administration has approved their use on children over two.

New imaging test uses carbon dioxide instead of contrast dyes to check out the condition of the arteries. It's safer, especially for diabetics at high risk for complications from the standard dye, say surgeons at the University of Southern California.

Patients taking certain anti-psychotic drugs may suffer powerful side effects. Researchers at the Baltimore Veterans Administration Medical Center suggest giving vitamin E with medication to cut down on problems.

Mary Kaigler:

From the Inside Out

It's an understatement to say that getting older means having things change. Those who have experienced this know already that these changes seem to fall in two categories. Some changes we make ourselves, and these are good--even the most comfortable of ruts need getting out of occasionally--if for no other reason than to exercise the option.

Then there are those changes we'd choose not to make at all, but which are made for us anyway, by such unrelenting realities as gravity and liver spots.

But with all the changes which obviously do occur I have to concede that some things about us never change. The more we change the more we stay the same. Whether this is good news or bad news depends, I suppose, on one's point of view as to the value of the things not changed.

Take the tendency to want to make ourselves a playhouse, for instance. Being born with a congenital case of this and being a "carrier" of it ever since, I still have periodic outbreaks of wanting to convert sow's-ear situations into polyester (not always silk) purses.

No memory of childhood can top the fun and exhilaration I got from creating a "place", no matter if it was only in my mind, seeing it and experiencing it down to the smallest detail. They were always sumptuous places of course--plush and ritzy--these being things most unlike the every day reality of the early '30s.

The urge was always with me to fix things up, arrange and rearrange, to gild lilies which I didn't have the depth of understanding to perceive as being lilies. Never quite content to leave the status quo of reality well enough alone, I made playhouses to fit whatever situation I was dreaming up at the time.

Later on this was a natural bent that came in handy during years as a decorating consultant when I could visualize finished rooms and "picture" results for my clients who couldn't. Through them I got to enjoy the luxury of living vicariously in some interesting, even fabulous places without having to pay for them or maintain them. A sweet job.

During the growing-up time I was as Ruben Dario wrote in his poem, constantly "seeking a form that my style cannot discover, a bud of thought that wants to be a rose." I remember delicious hours spent scraping off bare spots with the hoe in the field behind the cow shed; laying out rooms and hallways, all the while already living in them through mental images of how it was going to be eventually. As the ideas grew, the wonderful gestation period of anticipation, expectation and preparation was what I think Robert Louis Stevenson meant when he said, "To travel hopefully (as in a hopeful manner) is better than to arrive."

By supper time though, I had "arrived". My special place was fully finished, furnished and perfect in mind. I could turn it loose. By the next day the magic of the place gave way to reality; amazingly, now it was just a series of squares trampled down there in the Sudan grass where the cow was staked out for the day. But it didn't matter; the fun of "traveling full of hope" was enough.

Those of us (there must be others) who have this predisposition for planning playhouses never outgrow it. Which brings me to today.

For months I've thought about the wonders and convenience of having a special "place"; my own private studio to house the paper trail of my reading, thinking-up and writing of all those idea "buds" that want to be roses. When the garage apartment became available I began to put my dream plans into action, as dedicated as a 10-year-old dreamer chopping out Johnson grass to make a Buckingham Palace or a Myrna Loy-William Powell penthouse behind the cow lot.

While having best-seller book-shaped thoughts I cleared out, cleaned up, curtained and carpeted; getting all rigged-out with the proper trappings for a proper writer to write in, happily ever after.

Now, three weeks and a multitude of sore muscles later it is finished. My file cabinets are in order, resource material sorted, a new ream of 20-pound cotton bond paper awaits opening, yellow legal pads are stacked neatly, sharply pointed pencils and Rogets Thesaurus are within easy reach and the Smith Corona hums expectantly, waiting to process and spit out into typestyle any words I might choose to put into its electronic mouth. All is in readiness. We have "arrived."

But guess what? As William Allen White once wrote, "I'm all dressed up with no place to go."

Here I am, finally, duly ensconced in The Inside, my special writing think-tank, and I can't think of a thing to write.

Some things about us don't change--but the trip was fun.

Watching Washington

The next time you use a microwave oven, VCR or fax machine, take a look at where it is made.

Even though the technology for each of these machines was pioneered in the United States, they are all produced by foreign companies.

Last year the Department of Commerce found that the United States was trailing Japan in 11 of the 12 most important future technologies. Between 1980 and 1988 the U.S. share of the global computer chip market shrank from 75 percent to 50 percent, while Japan's share grew from 24 to 39 percent.

Sematech, an Austin-based consortium of 14 U.S. companies, is a direct response to that challenge. It is a successful example of a cooperative effort with industry leading and government helping to promote advanced research and strengthen our competitiveness without picking winners and losers among companies. Since 1987, when the federal government agreed to spend $500 million over five years in matching funds for Sematech's research and development, I have fought hard to help establish and build Sematech.

Today Sematech's member companies represent 80 percent of American semiconductor production and provide leadership in American semiconductor manufacturing. During a visit to Sematech earlier this month I saw an American-made scanning electron microscope that is an improvement over the Japanese alternative. Not too long ago, even Sematech's engineers preferred the Japanese model, but now the American microscope has become the tool of choice.

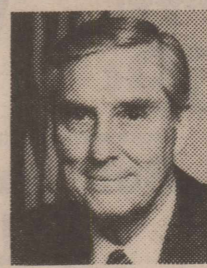

Since the semiconductor is the basic building block of computer technology, a strong semiconductor industry is key to American economic competitiveness. The American electronics industry employs more Americans than autos, aerospace and steel combined.

The success of Operation Desert Storm shows how crucial electronic technology is to our national security. The U.S. government faced a supply crisis just before the Persian Gulf war broke out when several Japanese electronics companies refused to provide U.S. defense contractors with rush orders of key components. It took firm action by the U.S. government to obtain the needed parts. In the words of one Administration official, the U.S. government "had to jump through hoops" to secure the components. As the war in the Gulf demonstrates, there are times when we cannot afford to be dependent on foreign companies.

It is also unacceptable when foreign companies refuse to sell products to American firms in order to gain a competitive edge for their country. I have requested a report from the General Accounting Office to find out the extent to which this withholding of crucial technology occurs.

I will continue to support federal funding for research and development at Sematech. I have also introduced the Bentsen-Roth IRA bill that encourages all Americans to save and makes more capital available for investment.

I have seen the future, and it is made in America. Sematech is a model for the kind of government-industry partnership that can help the United States regain its competitive edge.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - Lawmakers had a rare good week: Queen Elizabeth II of England stopped at the Capitol, and House members approved a controversial redistricting plan for their chamber.

As expected, majority party Democrats drew a map aimed to increase their strength this decade, but House Republicans plan to challenge the plan in Washington, D.C.

The Democrat's plan could increase their majority from 93 to 100, giving them a crucial two-thirds majority.

The number of Hispanic members could rise from 21 now to 30, blacks could gain two seats, and Anglos would, of course, lose seats.

Democrats have done their best to make sure that Anglos who do not return will be Republicans.

GOP Got A "Raw Deal"

The outcome was totally expected, but House Republicans, as Rep. Kent Grusendorf said, "got a raw deal."

Grusendorf, R-Arlington, said in the Dallas delegation, Republicans were stripped of a 10-7 majority to a 7-9 majority, ignoring the fact that growth took place in GOP areas of town.

"Something's wrong. We will definitely appeal," Grusendorf told reporters.

Friends Are Paired

The Houston delegation had a similar pattern. One of the tragedies of redistricting is that some friends get paired, or forced to campaign against one another for re-election.

This happened with Angleton Rep. John Willy and Pearland Rep. Jack Harris, good friends, desksmates and Republicans. Two Democratic friends were paired, Beaumont Rep. Al Price and Port Arthur Rep. Frank Collazo, pitting black against Hispanic.

But Willy said rather than go against compadre Harris, he might move into the next county and challenge Redistricting Committee chairman Tom Uher, D-Bay City.

Uher said they were his buddies, too, but the pairing couldn't be helped.

'Political Slaves' Rebel

With new census figures indicating that Hispanics will soon outnumber Anglos, the Texas Democratic Party has been bending over backwards to draw several new Hispanic districts this session, angering Houston black lawmakers.

Last week, led by state Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, blacks rebelled by aligning with Houston GOP lawmakers to protect their own redistricting goals.

Wilson accused Texas Democratic Party chairman Bob Slagle and director Ed Martin of treating blacks "as political slaves" to their own selfish ends.

"They drew this plan and slammed us to the wall. We're going to have a better plan that protects us and doesn't throw us to the wolves," Wilson said.

Martin retorted that Wilson was invited into the process, "but chose to work with Republicans." In the end, Democrats appeased Wilson by packing black districts with more minority strength.

Buy Prison Goods

Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, succeeded in getting a bill added to another measure during debate in the House.

His amendment would force state agencies to buy furniture and other products manufactured by state prison inmates. It was added to a bill that would continue the State Purchasing and General Services Commission.

Around town

Weekend visitors in the home of Leona Carter were Mr. and Mrs. Ronny Medford, Craig and Mark, Jinner Price and George from Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. Vern Sutterfield, Brandon, Sharlet and Casey from Merkel; Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Stiewert, Traci and Dustin from Merkel; Mrs. Jerry Sorrells from Breckenridge; and Frieda Carter from Abilene.

Mrs. Michael William Bergsma

Castillo, Bergsma wed in church here

Nancy Marie Castillo and Michael William Bergsma were united in holy matrimony in a double-ring ceremony on Saturday, April 27, at St. George Catholic Church in Haskell. Officiating was the Rev. Ruben Luera.

The bride is the daughter of Vera and David Castillo Sr. of Goree. Parents of the groom are Ralph and Nell Bergsma of Kentwood, Mich.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a long gown of white satin. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline overlaid in bridal lace, with puffed off-the-shoulder sleeves. The full skirt was gathered to the bodice at a shaped waistline and fell to a lace-trimmed hemline and train.

The back of the gown featured a large bow below the waist, followed by two smaller bows. Her waist-length veil of white netting was attached to a crown made of pearls and chiffon fashioned into different sized hearts. The headpiece was designed by Theresa Bergsma, the bride's sister-in-law.

White satin finger gloves accented her hands. Pearl teardrop earrings and a three-strand pearl necklace completed the ensemble.

The bride's bouquet consisted of red and white silk roses and white lilies sprinkled with black dots. Small rosebuds of red and white were added. Circles of pearls and red satin ribbon encased in double-edged lace with puffs of netting accentuated the bouquet. The cascade featured long strings of pearls and white lace. Lengths of red satin ribbon were added and tied into double knots at the end.

The groom wore his Army uniform with a white shirt and a black bow tie.

Kevin Caldwell of Kentwood, Mich., served the groom as best man. He wore a black long-tailed tuxedo with a white pleated shirt and black jeweled buttons and cuff links. The cummerbund and bow tie were of red satin. The boutonniere was a red carnation with a backing of white gathered netting.

Groomsmen were Oscar Lerma of Joshua, Jackie Escobedo and Carlos Andrada, both of Haskell, Raul Arismendez of Goree, brother-in-law of the bride, and Scott Castillo of Goree, brother of the bride. Serving as ushers were Adam Castillo of Goree and Ruben Castillo Jr. of Weinert, cousins of the bride. They all wore tuxedos identical to that of the best man.

Eloisa Sosa of Munday served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a knee-length red crepe back satin fitted dress. It had a lined princess seamed bodice with a ruffle. The bodice was overlaid in sheer red lace. The slim skirt was softly gathered to the bodice and had a hemline slit.

Bridesmaids were Gloria Lerma of Joshua, Irene Escobedo and Nora Andrada, both of Haskell, Brenda Arismendez of Goree, all sisters of the bride, and Mary Helen Castorena of Goree. They wore dresses identical to that of the matron of honor. All carried arrangements consisting of red and white silk carnations accented with ferns and tied together with red satin ribbon, double knotted at the ends.

Flower girl was Lori Lerma of Joshua, niece of the bride. She wore a below-knee-length crepe back satin red dress with a full skirt gathered to a fitted princess seamed bodice, which was overlaid in red lace. The puffed short sleeves were also overlaid in lace. It also had a lace peplum and was tied at the waist by a sash.

Matthew Arismendez, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer. He wore a black tuxedo identical to those of the groomsmen.

Amanda Sosa of Munday and Jacklyn Escobedo of Haskell, nieces of the bride, handed out scrolls and rice bags. They wore dresses identical to that of the flower girl.

Providing music for the service were Betty Yanez, organist, of Haskell and Sandra Elias, vocalist, of Abilene. Angela Castorena registered guests.

The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at Jack's Place in Haskell.

The bride's parents hosted a formal dinner reception at the Haskell Civic Center following the ceremony. The serving table featured a three-tier white wedding cake adorned with red roses and a flowing red fountain encircled with greenery. Two staircases from the top tier led to three smaller white cakes. The bride's and bridesmaids' bouquets also decorated the table. The cake was cut during intermission at the dance.

Serving the wedding cake were Lupe Estrada of Goree, cousin of the bride, Delores Castorena of Stephenville and Vivian Mateos of Goree.

The wedding dance followed the dinner reception at the Haskell Civic Center. The featured band was Sandra y Los Fantasticos of Abilene.

Special out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Espinosa of Leming, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Rey Mendez of San Antonio, aunt and uncle of the bride.

The bride is a 1988 graduate of Goree High School and a 1989 graduate of Willmar Vocational Technical Institute in Willmar, Minn., where she majored in cosmetology.

The groom graduated from East Kentwood High School in Kentwood, Mich., in 1985. He enlisted in the Army and served four years in the 3rd Armored Division, 23rd Engineer Battalion. He is now in the reserves and is employed by Lesco, Incorporated.

After their time in Texas, the couple returned to Belmont, Mich.

WTU files request to lower fuel factors

Customers of West Texas Utilities Co. could be paying less for their electric service starting in July if the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) grants the company's request to lower fuel factors. WTU filed the request May 21 as an update to the original fuel filing it made in February.

Gene Rhoads, WTU's local manager in Haskell, said "the company is asking for interim factors to be effective in July and fixed factors effective in October."

Based on the company's expected cost of fuel this summer, the interim factors produce a decrease, compared to current costs, of 7.8 percent or $4.42 a month on consumption of 660 kilowatt-hours per month. In October the fixed factors will mean a decrease from today's costs of 2.6 percent ($1.49) a month for 660 kilowatt-hours.

Although the commission still must approve the company's request, WTU is optimistic that the lower factors will be the ones used to calculate customer's July bills, Rhoads said. Other customer groups will see similar decreases in their costs as a result of the lower fuel factors.

The company made the initial filing in February because the PUC had said that fuel costs should be reconciled at least every three years either through a rate case or a fuel reconciliation case such as the present filing. WTU's fuel costs were last reconciled in a rate case which covered a period ending with March 31, 1987.

Although WTU's February request was for an increase in factors, the company said then that it intended to update the information this May to include current fuel cost information. That has allowed the company to pass along the benefits of its cost control efforts, Rhoads said.

These efforts include renegotiation of a lower cost coal transportation agreement with Burlington Northern Railroad and lower costs for spot gas. Previous efforts include construction of a gas pipeline to the Fort Phantom power station near Abilene to provide access to more suppliers, renegotiation of supply and transportation contracts for fuel and improvements in the efficiency of some plants so they burn less fuel to make electricity.

Costs to residential customers are essentially divided into two major parts, base rate and fuel factor. The fuel charge makes up about 28 percent of the total cost to customers.

Base rates cover all the other costs of providing electric service. To comply with the state's energy conservation efforts, WTU uses winter rates from November to April and summer rates from May to October. Summer rates are higher to encourage conservation when temperatures make air conditioners work long hours and help produce the greatest demand for electricity of any time during the year.

If the company's request to implement the new factors on July bills is granted, the lower cost will be in effect for most of the air conditioning season.

WTU provides electric service to 177,000 customers in 52 counties stretching from the Red River to the Rio Grande.

Outreach services opens branch here

Outreach Health Services of Seymour has opened a branch office on the east side of the square, 4 Ave. D in Haskell.

Objective of the new agency is to assist in health services for the community and to establish a local base for those persons now being served.

This also will provide for better communication between physician, patient and caregiver, therefore optimizing the level of care to those the agency serves.

The administrator for Outreach Health Services, Jean Nelson, expressed a commitment to provide this area with in-home health care under the direction of a patient's own physician, utilizing local health care professionals to better serve the local population.

At this time, Verla Price, RN, is working on a contractual basis and Florence Larned, LVN, is working on a full-time basis. The director of nurses is Jenisu Morris, RN.

An open house will be held from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Sunday (June 2). Outreach staff will be on hand to explain all services offered. The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Melissa Roberson was appointed as an alternate member and Sandy Forehand was re-appointed as an alternate.

The Council accepted the bid of M&M Construction Co. of Bangs for surfacing the walking path at the park. The winning bid was in the amount of $11,379.10. There were three bidders.

The contractor estimated the work could be completed 10 days after it is started. The City expects to give him the go-ahead within the next few days.

In other action at Thursday's Council meeting, new councilman Dickie Greenwood was appointed to the Ambulance Board and councilmen discussed and then tabled for further study a franchise agreement with West Texas Utilities.

Boot designer has seen it all

When it comes to boots, Justin Boot designer Eddie Kelly has seen it all.

She has made boots for Nolan Ryan, Michael Jackson and lion tamer Gunther Goebel-Williams. She has tried every kind of stitching pattern imaginable in every hue of the rainbow, and made boots with everything from frog hide ("they're too small") to codfish ("ooh, they smelled bad"). Eddie has seen the "lacers," which were popular when she started with Justin in 1949, make a big comeback. She has seen boots with pointed toes give way to round toes, and then pointed toes come back into style.

Now, after 42 years at Justin, she has hung up her stitching machine to retire at the age of 65. "Leaving here is the hardest thing I've ever done," she said softly. "None of my family live here in Texas, so Justin has been my family."

Ironically, her four-decades-long tenure in the boot business started with some square-dancing friends and a Justin Boot Company that didn't want to hire her. Friends at

Justin had invited Eddie to a square-dancing club that met at the bootmaking plant. "They were such nice people that I decided to work there," she recalls. "I wasn't any good at square dancing, but I hoped I would be better at making boots."

But the company wouldn't hire her. Because she had hopped around between jobs, never working anywhere longer than three months, the company was worried that the 23-year-old wouldn't stay.

She was persistent enough to finally get hired working the line, and she became a supervisor just three months later. In 1965, she became Justin's first full-time designer and the rest is boot-making history.

She has also seen much of the boot-making business turned over to highly efficient computers and stitching machines.

But at Justin, where hand-crafted boots are made, much has remained the same during Eddie Kelly's years in the business. Lemonwood pegs are still used in the sole. So is the steel shank, the stitching and the leather.

Eddie Kelly has worked to take a product, essentially made the same way it was more than a century ago, and to find fresh ideas.

"The biggest challenge is to find new exotics," she explained. "Nowadays, they're either on the endangered species list or getting too small because they're hunting them younger and younger." Some of her experiments with new exotics have included ocean bass, turkey . . . and the codfish.

She's also experimented with a multitude of different stitching patterns and colors. The patterns have ranged from a simple inlaid bucking bronco, to the intricate boot custom-made for pitching ace Nolan Ryan, with an inlaid baseball emblazoned with "300 wins" plus the logos of the four teams for which Ryan has blazed fastballs. Other creations included the simple shoe-boot made for singer Michael Jackson and the elaborate elephant and tiger-head boots made for circus animal trainer Gunther Goebel-Williams.

Those special boots were made the same as thousands of her creations--stitched into a leather pattern on her office sewing machine.

Every year, she has helped Justin put 80 to 100 new styles on the market. And for every boot idea that made it into production, another 49 never made it past her sewing machine.

A true perfectionist, Eddie said she would work a stitch over and over until she was satisfied. "If I don't do something just right, I have to do it over," she said.

Recently, her strong hands turned over the designing reins at Justin. She plans to travel extensively, spend more time at her hobby of making clothes, and "throw away my alarm clock." Still, she said it's painful to leave Justin Boot Company.

"The people here have been so good to me," she said, gazing wistfully off into the distance. "I know it's time to go, but it's still hard."

A friend is one who does not laugh when you are in a ridiculous position.

Divorce can cause children to suffer

Going through a divorce is traumatic for children as well as parents. Yet the signs and symptoms of the children's trauma may go unnoticed, according to Dr. Bill Rae, child/adolescent psychologist in the Division of Psychology at Scott and White in Temple.

Often, parents who gain custody of the children are so preoccupied with their own anger, depression and lifestyle changes that they are not aware of their children's anger, depressions and feelings of rejection and guilt, Dr. Rae said.

It is very important for parents, neighbors and other people in whom children confide to look for telltale signs that indicate that the children are having difficulty in dealing with their parents' divorce.

Two-through-five-year-olds may begin to cling to the parent who has custody. They may feel that if they don't hold onto the parent that parent may leave them as well.

"Behavioral regression is also common among pre-school children. Children who have been toilet trained may suddenly begin to wet their clothing, for example," said Dr. Rae.

In children aged six through 12 years, prolonged depression, poor academic performance, anger, headaches and stomach aches may indicate that they may need help in coping with the divorce.

Divorced parents of teenagers should be alert for misbehavior, inactivity, drug and alcohol abuse and prolonged depression.

Dr. Rae made the following suggestions to help kids cope:

- The custodial and non-custodial parent should allow the children to verbalize their dislike of and other feelings about the divorce.
- A custodial parent should not expect an older child or a teenager to become a confidante. Allow the child to act his or her age.
- Help to rebuild the child's ego. He or she may feel responsible for the divorce.
- Be consistent with the child and be fair.
- The quality of the ongoing relationship between the parents after the divorce can greatly affect the child's adjustment," Dr. Rae said. "The less turbulence and more agreement, the better."

Dr. Rae notes that the child also benefits from frequent visitations from the non-custodial parent, as long as the parent is not abusive.

Parents may seek the assistance of a pediatric psychologist or other child mental health professional to make the stress of the divorce easier for the entire family. (For more information, call 817-774-2092.)

There are several books available for both parents and children that provide information on dealing with divorce, including:

For parents: The Parents Book About Divorce by Richard Gardner and Divorce and Your Child by Goldstein and Sionit.

For children: Surviving the Breakup by Wallerstein and Kelly or Going It Alone by Robert Weiss.

Most tornados in Texas occur in May

May is tornado month in Texas. More tornados and tornado-related deaths have occurred in May than in any other month, state weather records show.

The two worst killer tornados in state history tore through Texas in May: 114 people were killed in Goliad on May 18, 1902, and the same number died in Waco on May 11, 1953.

Since 1953, when the state began keeping more reliable tornado records, twice the number of tornados have occurred in May than in April or June, the other two months in the state's tornado season.

More than 37 tornados hit Texas per year in May, compared to 19 in April and 18 in June. All other months averaged less than 10 tornados annually through 1988, according to data from the State Climatologist's office at Texas A&M University.

Texas averaged 126 tornados a year between 1953 and 1983--more than any other state, according to meteorologist George Bomar in his book, Texas Weather.

Texas has so many tornados in May because atmospheric conditions for them are most favorable that month, said Jon Zeitler, an assistant in the State Climatologist's office. The state's location between the Rocky Mountains and the gulf of Mexico also makes it prime tornado country.

In the spring, early summer and autumn, cold fronts from the north converge with warm, moist air from the gulf near the earth's surface. At the same time, warm, dry air at higher altitudes flows from the southwest out of Mexico.

Scientists have identified several characteristic behaviors of the converging airstreams that can form tornados, but they don't know precisely what causes the storms--or how to predict them, Zeitler said.

Meteorologists do know that when the airstreams converge, the forces, can create large, spinning thunderstorms, as well as violent updrafts and downdrafts, he said.

The dry air aloft can provide a "capping" effect that temporarily keeps rising, moist air from going higher. But sometimes the moist air can burst through the cap in a powerful updraft, creating thunderstorms that grow explosively upward and contribute to tornados, Zeitler said.

May tornados have killed the most people in Texas, averaging just over 6 deaths per year while April averages just under 4. All others average less than 2.

Meteorologists point out that such statistics may be somewhat misleading. The 1953 Waco disaster skews the May death total, Zeitler said, but without question the heaviest tornado activity, both in number of storms and related deaths, has been recorded between April and June.

The deadliness of tornados has much to do with wind speeds. Those can only be estimated, because wind-measuring devices usually don't survive in winds of much more than 100 miles per hour, Zeitler said.

But estimates based on Doppler radar and photogrammetry measurements, as well as special engineering studies of structures damaged by tornados, have helped scientists deduce that wind speeds can reach 300 mph or more.

Such information has been used to develop the Fujita scale of wind speeds, a 12-level scale for ranking tornados. None are expected to reach wind speeds of above 316 mph, or the F5 level, Zeitler said. F12 on the scale puts wind velocities at the speed of sound, about 750 mph.

F5 tornados are powerful enough to lift well-built frame houses off their foundations and carry them great distances before disintegrating them.

Many of Texas' most infamous twisters were estimated to be F5 tornados. Among them were those that hit Waco in 1953 and Lubbock in 1970--both by dark coincidence on May 11.

The Waco twister hit in the heart of the downtown area just before 5 on a weekday afternoon, killing 114 people and injuring almost 1,100. Of the dead, 94 were found in a two-block area that included the square around City Hall.

Damage totaled more than $51 million and included 196 buildings destroyed or damaged beyond repair, as well as 850 homes demolished in whole or part.

The Lubbock tornado plowed through some 15 square miles, nearly one-fourth of the city, from near the campus of Texas Tech to the Lubbock Municipal Airport.

Twenty-six died and at least 500 were injured. Eighty percent of downtown's plate-glass windows were shattered, and cars were smashed into 2- or 3-foot high pancakes.

The worst May tornado in recent years hit Saragosa, the tiny West Texas community that lost 30 citizens on May 22, 1987. All were in the town's community center, celebrating the accomplishments of a preschool education program, when a tornado--rare in the area-- struck the building.

Zeitler said that tornado reporting and recording has improved dramatically since World War II, but many tornados go unnoticed because they occur in rural areas.

For all their ability to do major damage, tornados have relatively little impact on agriculture, said meteorologist Rusty Billingsley of the Southwest Agricultural Weather Service, a division of the National Weather Service, at Texas A&M.

"Tornados hit in a relatively small area compared to the damage to crops caused by a heavy rain or hail," he said.

Billingsley said a tornado is capable of stripping away rich topsoil, but in most cases the path of destruction is relatively narrow and short--usually less than several hundred yards wide and no more than a few miles long.

-BIRTHS-

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bob Perkins of Houston proudly announce the birth of their third son, Eric David, born May 16 at Texas Women's Hospital in Houston. Eric arrived at 9:50 a.m. and tipped the scales at 9 pounds, 4 ounces.

Eric is also welcomed by his brothers, Adam and Travis; grandparents Joella Weinert Perkins of Houston, Robert E. Perkins of San Antonio and Mr. and Mrs. Dean J. Capp of Sugar Land; and great-grandmother Mrs. Reagan L. Perkins of San Antonio.

Art, if it is to be reckoned as one of the great values of life, must teach men humility, tolerance, wisdom and magnanimity. The value of art is not beauty, but right action.

CATARACT SURGERY CENTER
DEDICATED TO EXCELLENCE

We specialize in cataract surgery with intraocular lens implant and routinely use the small incision phacoemulsification technique. We have 2 modern, fully equipped operating rooms each with its own Zeiss operating microscope and Phacoemulsifier. We also have an observation room so that family and friends may view the surgery while it is happening. Our ambulatory surgery center is State licensed and Medicare approved. We have performed over 3,000 cataract implant operations since 1987. Our doctors accept Medicare Assignment and we think you will find our fees very competitive with most hospitals. Our friendly, dedicated staff is available to answer any of your questions. If you need transportation, we can help.

Hearing Loss Is Not A Sign Of Old Age.

Chicago, Ill. - A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest hearing aid Beltone has ever developed will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's yours for the asking, so send for it now. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. The actual aid weighs less than an eighth of an ounce, and it fits completely into the ear canal.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Although a hearing aid may not help everyone, more and more people with hearing losses are being helped. For your free sample send your name, address, and phone number today to: Department 06650, Beltone Electronics Corporation, 4201 West Victoria Street, Chicago, Illinois 60646.
