

Mrs. Donald Shelton

Sloan, Shelton marry in Abilene

On Saturday, June 5, Karomy NaShae Sloan became the bride of Donald Lynn Shelton at Chapel on the Hill on the campus of Abilene Christian University in Abilene. The groom's father, Tommy Shelton, minister of the Church of Christ in Pawnee, Okla., officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Sloan of Archer City. Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Shelton of Pawnee, Okla., are the bridegroom's parents.

The beautiful Chapel on the Hill was decorated with candlelight, fresh greenery, fuchsia glitter bows centered with white tulle, and baskets of pink impatiens. A large 29-light candle tree was decorated with large sprays of fern and springeri and heavily accented with lacy white static. Placed in the center of the raised platform, this piece was flanked on each side with a 15-light fan and seven-light cathedral candlestand.

The elegant look of candlelight and gleaming brass was completed with a pair of tall spiraling 15-light candlestands, one on each side on the floor level. Each candlestand was decorated with Swedish ivy. A unity candlestand was set in the middle of the platform, also decorated with Swedish ivy.

The candle carried out the theme of the wedding with verse, "This day I will marry my friend the one I laugh with, live for, dream with, love," inscribed on it, and white lacy candle wraparound floor-to-ceiling stained glass side panels that extended from the back to the front of the sanctuary. Baskets were also placed at the base of the candlestands. Pews were marked with fuchsia glitter bows centered with white tulle.

A white lace, floor-length cloth covered the registry table where Julie Speck of Knox City, cousin of the bride, presided. A Precious Moments bride and groom figurine, a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Paul Chambers and family, was also on the registry table and surrounded by a bridal portrait in a large crystal Mikasa picture frame.

The bride wore a designer gown by Mori Lee of white organza chiffon. The sweetheart neckline enhanced the beaded bodice and full skirt, which were encrusted with pearls and iridescent sequins. The long tapered sleeves were embellished with pearls and sequins while the shoulder pouf sleeves were enhanced with satin roses centerpieced with seed pearls.

The cathedral train featured a large bow centered with a rose of seed pearls and layers of ruffled organza chiffon embellished with pearls and sequins, and the scalloped pearl, lace sequin bottom completed the gown. She wore a double-layered waist-length veil scattered with pearls attached to a seed pearl and Austrian crystal crown headpiece with a double-looped pearl and sequin edged bow in the back.

The bridal bouquet was a traditional trailing cascade of hot pink stargazer lilies, accented with 18 bridal white open roses as well as rosebuds and stephanotis. The bouquet was completed with a very soft touch of white baby's breath. English ivy and springeri fern also trailed from the bouquet.

For something old, the bride wore pennies minted in 1972, birth year of the bride and groom, from her mother, and a Canadian dime, from her grandmother, in her shoes. For something new, she wore a tear dropped pearl and diamond necklace and earrings, given by her parents, and a 1993 penny in her shoe from Mitzi Marion; a bridal petticoat was borrowed from Kelly Hutchinson; and she wore her mother's blue wedding garter made by her grandmother, Loree Bean Hamilton.

The candles were lit by the bride's brother, Kandon Sloan, and Matthew Shelton, the groom's brother, while the instrumental of "Candle on the Water" was being played.

Mothers were escorted to the altar to light the unity candle as the instrumental to "Everything I Do, I Do for You" was played.

The bride's mother chose a teal tea-length sequined dress with a side flowerburst of white sequins and baby pearls. A cream linen tea-length skirt with a fitted bodice of pink floral design and pearl gold buttons was worn by the groom's mother. Both wore corsages of three bridal white partially open roses with stephanotis, ivy and sheer picot iridescent ribbon.

Attendants entered the sanctuary as "Canon in D" was played. Leah Rauch of Knox City was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mitzi Marion and Kim Chambers of Knox City, Tresha Phillips of Bridgeport, Rebecca McAtee of Hobart, Okla., and Cindy Harbison of Plano.

Bridal attendants were attired in tea-length gowns of crisp fuchsia taffeta which featured a slit neckline, with cuff bows gracing the large puff sleeves. A fitted bodice and basque waist opened to a full skirt and a large decorative bow complimented the V-back. They carried waterfall nosegays of hot pink larkspur, hot pink minicarnations, white larkspur and white minicarnations. Mini teal ribbons cascaded from each nosegay. They wore gold bow and pearl earrings and gold pearl clips in their hair, gifts from the bride.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and was presented by her parents and brother. "Canon in D" was played as they walked to the altar.

Serving the groom as best man was Kandon Sloan of Archer City, brother of the bride. Groomsmen were Nathan Cooper of Carrollton, Darin Shelton of Texarkana, Ryan Mullins of Bullard, Brad Amos of Abilene and Matthew Shelton of Pawnee, Okla., brother of the groom.

The groom chose a black tuxedo with tails, white pleated shirt with black studs, black bow tie and black vest. His groomsmen wore black tuxedos, white pleated shirts with black studs and fuchsia bow ties and cummerbunds. All wore boutonnieres of a single bridal white rose with ivy and the groom's rose included stephanotis.

Carolyn Sloan, mother of the bride, sang "Wind Beneath My Wings" during the wedding ceremony and the couple also lit their unity candle at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Following the ceremony, the bride and groom entered the reception given by the bride's parents, directly below the entry to the sanctuary by way of a 38-foot spiraling stairway completely entwined with greenery, fuchsia glitter bows and clusters of balloons in the bride's chosen colors.

A five-tiered traditional white wedding cake was placed on a crystal stand. The cake and stand were decorated with ming fern, English ivy and satin flowers to match the centerpiece. The centerpiece held crystal bubble candle holders with fuchsia candles surrounded by greenery, fuchsia and white stephanotis, roses, baby's breath and held the bride's mother's Bible.

The bride's table was covered with a white satin ruffled floor-length cloth with tie ups of fuchsia glitter and white tulle bows holding fuchsia and white flowers. Crystal clear punch was served from a crystal punch bowl encircled by greenery, fuchsia flowers and ribbons.

White chocolate bride mints and mixed nuts were served from silver containers. The cake top used was a gift from the bride's brother and four white doves were also used on the top, which were originally used on the bride's parents' wedding cake. Crystal and silver appointments were used on the bride's table. An engagement picture of the couple was also placed on the table.

Assisting at the bride's table were Wynell Hester, aunt of the bride of Big Lake, Stephanie Pepper of Knox City and Melissa Marts of Tyler. Nell Sloan of Munday, aunt of the bride, assisted at the gift table.

The groom's table was covered with a floor-length teal cloth and white overlay with a teal tie up. His chocolate cake was centered with the Frater Sodalitas emblem, his ACU social club. Silver appointments were used to serve crystal clear punch, mixed nuts and white chocolate groom mints.

The centerpiece was a crystal candle globe arrangement with teal candles surrounded by magnolia greenery and English ivy. Momentos of his social club were also used to accessorize his table. A picture of the couple was placed on the table.

Assisting at the groom's table were Shirley Sloan, aunt of the bride of Rochester, Sherry Speck, aunt of the bride, of Knox City, and Sue Hill of Corpus Christi.

A large ornate silver samovar coffee service was placed on a table covered with a white linen floor-length cloth. A teal candle arrangement of fuchsia, teal and white roses and mixed flowers sat upon a silver container that centered the table. There was a wedding poem in a frame, a gift from Melissa Marts, on the table. Assisting at the coffee table was Eve Petty of Fort Worth.

Kelly Hutchinson and Debbie Daniel of Archer City distributed fuchsia and teal balloons to the guests. And as the bride and groom left, large arrangements of balloons were released into the sky by the guests.

Wedding coordinators were Sequoyah Reynolds and Sandra Chambers of Knox City; hairdresser was Cindy Reynolds of Hamlin; photographer was Bill Blankenship of Haskell, uncle of the bride. The reception was catered by Receptions With New Ideas of Abilene and flowers were done by Jacqueline's Designs of Abilene and Jim Dillon of Knox City.

All members of the houseparty wore corsages that were a gardenspray of hot pink and pink larkspur, and mini pink carnations with teal and hot pink ribbon.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom at China Star in Abilene on the evening preceding the wedding.

The bride is a 1990 graduate of Knox City High School and is a senior at Abilene Christian University, majoring in elementary education/physical education and early childhood. She is employed by Cajon Cones of Abilene.

The groom a senior biology/physical education major at Abilene Christian University, is a 1990 graduate of Lindsay High School in Lindsay, Okla. He is employed by Southwest Coca-Cola Bottling Co. in Abilene.

After a wedding trip to San Antonio, the couple will reside in Abilene.

Grandparents of the bride are Mrs. Loree Bean Hamilton of Haskell, the late Wilson Bean of Rochester, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sloan of Fort Worth and the late Fychelene Sloan Norman of Rule. Great-grandmother of the bride is Mrs. Edna Adkins of Rochester.

Grandparents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Taylor of Lindsay, Okla., Mrs. Lois Shelton and the late Earl Shelton of Lindsay.

Agency conducting survey on cancer

One in every three Texans will develop cancer in his or her lifetime.

Since cancer is the second leading cause of death in Texas, the West Central Texas Council of Governments is concerned how this affects the individuals who reside in its 19-county region. Due to the minimal data that has been collected on surviving cancer-related cases, the extent to which cancer affects those in the region has been difficult to determine.

WCTCOG is conducting a survey through the region to measure needs of cancer patients, resources available for cancer patients and the awareness of these resources.

Those asked to participate will be chosen at random within the 19-county area. This study is the first of its kind in the Big Country and could mean additional funding toward cancer services in rural West Texas.

After the survey is complete and the primary needs are identified, the WCTCOG will bring together all county and city officials, resources and concerned citizens to discuss solutions that address these needs. The information gathered in the survey will be made available to the public.

Those receiving a survey form are encouraged to complete it to the best of their abilities. This is an opportunity for one's valued opinions to be heard on what is needed in cancer services in the area.

Counties which WCTCOG serves include Brown, Callahan, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland, Fisher, Haskell, Jones, Kent, Knox, Mitchell, Nolan, Runnels, Scurry, Shackelford, Stephens, Stonewall, Taylor and Throckmorton.

The study is funded by the Texas Cancer Council. For questions or information about the survey, contact Jena Allen, program coordinator, at 915-672-8544.

Boll weevil traps average 22 per trap

(The following report is by Louis D. Chedester, entomologist and Max Stapleton, Haskell County extension agent/agriculture.)

Over-wintered boll weevil traps are averaging 22 per trap this week. Newly emerged weevils can survive an average of 17 days without one-third grown (pollen).

Some of the earlier planted cotton (May 11-18) is squaring now and producers need to be prepared to apply their over-wintered weevil treatments prior to the one-third grown squares.

Most varieties tend to begin squaring from the fifth to seventh node. Don't let the one-third grown stage sneak up on you. It takes only three to four days to go from pinhead to matchhead square and three to four days to go from matchhead to one-third grown state.

The best plan of attack is to apply one or two treatments (Guthion, Sevin, Malathion, methel parathion or Vydate) if needed just prior to the one-third grown stage.

The economic threshold, using the trip index method is when more than four weevils are caught per trap between the pinhead square state to the one-third grown stage. Field inspection method is used when the pinhead size squares begin to appear.

Inspect at least 100 plants closely now and if you find one or more weevils per 100 plants checked or four weevils per 100 feet of row, apply insecticide just before the first squares reach the one-third grown stage.

If these treatments are delayed more than one or two days, effectiveness declines rapidly. If and when these pesticide treatments are applied correctly, then try to stay out of your field until mid-August. Cross your fingers.

From Wheaton, Illinois (the home of Wheaton College where Evangelist Billy Graham attended college):

We had a good trip up from Texas. The weather here is cooler, but the humidity is horrendous, being 60% one day. However, on our boat cruise on Lake Michigan proved to be chilly as did the upper deck ride on the double-decker bus in downtown Chicago. We went to the top of Sears Tower again, and the City of Chicago is still beautiful from above.

The movie actor/TV star Patrick Swayze was across the street from where we had lunch at Ed Debevic's. Patrick was presenting the potter's wheel from his movie: "Ghost" to a new place they will soon have completed called "Planet Hollywood Restaurant". The restaurant will be opened in mid July and is owned by Arnold Schwarzenegger, Sylvester Stallone, and Demi Moore's husband Bruce Willis. My granddaughter saw Patrick, but yours truly had already gone inside where it was cooler.

To back-track a little, we came to Illinois by way of Memphis, Tenn. where we toured the home of Elvis Presley, Graceland. It was humid outside the buildings there, too. On Sunday some of the group attended church where our granddaughter's husband is Youth Minister this summer. The song leader, Glen Anderson's wife is also named Vicky Anderson, although her complete name is not Victoria. Sorry to have missed meeting her as she and her son were out of town.

Before leaving Kentucky on Monday, called a distant cousin, Nina Barber, whose grandmother Belle Cook Howard, was my great-grandmother. She and the Andersons' oldest daughter have done genealogy work.

Tuesday, the 22nd, was your correspondent's 75th birthday. The daughters had a beautiful cake made in the shape of "75" plus many nice gifts. We went to nearby village of Geneva where they were having "Swedish Day Art and Crafts Show". One place visited was Kris Kringle's Christmas in June. The owner looked like Dr. Hamilton in Stamford, beard and all.

One day we went to downtown

Chicago again where we visited the Adler Planetarium. Next, we went to a shopping mall called North Pier. Last, we stopped by an enormous fest called "Taste of Chicago".

All in all, we had a great time, but it's good to be home.

Congratulations to the Tommy Robertsons and Kevin Meiers on the arrival of their son and daughter respectively.

Our sympathy is sent to the family of Orville Hamilton of Rule; and the family of H. R. Trussell of Rule and of Wayne Magnuson.

Get well wishes are sent to Lynn Pace, who recently underwent heart surgery; to Hollis Lindsey, Pete Ellison, father of Anita Weaver, Ruth Wampler.

A long and happy married life is wished the West Pierces.

Bob and Dela McLain have returned from California where they attended the funeral of Dela's brother-in-law.

Congratulations to Floyd and Tammy Starr upon the birth of a son Patrick Wayne on June 23rd.

Happy birthday is wished for Maxine Herttenberger on July 7, and Debbie Kreger on the 9th. Anniversary greets are sent to the Travis Boyds on the 4th; J. R. and Ruby Barbee on the 9th and Melvin and Lola Sharp on the 12th.

Congratulations to former Rochester resident, Ann Tibbetts, upon making the Dean's List with a 4.0 GPA.

"DECISIONS MADE EARLY"

Many people plan for what might happen—fire, burglary, injury, and accidents. Now more and more people are planning for what will inevitably happen. It simply makes good sense to prepare for that which we can not avoid.

Pre-need funeral arranging allows one to control the type of service they would prefer, select a means of financing it, freeze the prices at today's price, and save loved ones the anguish of deciding these matters at a later date. Really it is the loving thing to do for your family.

Simply come by or call and we will come by to see you.

--Letters to the Editor--

On Sam West

Editor: The enclosure was discovered by accident when a friend of mine told me about attending a "St. Louis Browns" reunion in St. Louis.

I knew they have a "Chiropractors' Association," and an organization for those interested in the "collection of butterfly legs," but it had never dawned on me that there were enough memories of the old St. Louis Browns to span a fan club.

In going along with my friend, listening to his description of the affair, I mentioned to him that I had had a friend who played for the Browns, whose name was Sam West.

My friend looked at me incredulously, shaking his head (which I later found was his way of saying, "You're pulling my leg"). He then told me that at this particular reunion, they had honored Sam West by inducting him into the St. Louis Browns' Hall of Fame.

My telling him of my acquaintance with Sam seemed to please him more than somewhat as he had been a fan of Sam's. He let me Xerox the page out of his reunion keepsake, which memorialized Sam West, and which I am including herewith.

There is no mention of Sam's having lived in the Rule community in the writeup, but I can assure you that he and his family lived there, farming for many years. In fact, Sam cut his teeth in baseball while playing for the Rule team. In those years (1926-1935, plus or minus) when we were so underprivileged in not having TV, baseball was an important part of community activities, and a good brand of baseball was played by those fellows.

A memorable event was for the House of David's bearded team to come play the locals, more times than not handily defeating the local "Stars" while putting on a real baseball exhibition for the local fans. I can still remember my father, who was in his 60s at that time, hitting a homerun against the House of David. Was I proud of him!

St. Louis Browns' Historical Society

SAMUEL FILMORE WEST
1933-1938

Born in Longview, Texas, on October 5, 1904, Sammy West came to the Browns from Washington, in a trade that involved future Hall of Famer Goose Goslin. Always a danger with the bat, West was one of the few bright spots in the Browns' most bleak period in their history.

He appeared in four All Star games, including 1933-1935 and 1937. He hit .300 or better each year in a St. Louis uniform with the sole exception of 1937 when he slumped to .278. In 1938 he was returned to the Senators.

During his career with the Browns, he had a composite batting average of .305 with 45 homeruns and 328 runs batted in.

He died in Lubbock, Texas, on November 23, 1985.

Anyway, Sam was brought up on a farm to the north and west of Rule. I never did like Sam after he married my childhood crush, Gracie Cross. Of course, the fact that Gracie was 15 years older than me didn't enter into it: Sam stole my girl.

She was a beautiful and vibrant young woman, just as Sam was a handsome and outgoing young man--an ideal couple whose marriage only lasted some 60 years until his and her deaths. The West and Cross families were a respected part of the Rule community, and the community's pride in Sam was a subject of much discussion for many years. Sam and Gracie always considered Rule as their home, even while Sam was a successful businessman, highly thought of in the community of Lubbock for many years.

Am passing the writeup along to you, hoping you will print it, reviving many nice memories in the county.

Quick bites can be nutritious

Taking the children out for a "quick bite" does not have to mean forsaking good nutrition.

Although fast-food outlets are notorious for fat, salt and empty calories, parents can steer children to more nutritious offerings.

Instead of a cheeseburger, try a grilled-chicken sandwich or broiled lean-meat hamburger. Add lettuce and tomato, but hold the bacon, mayonnaise and special sauce.

If the clan opts for pizza, try a thin-crust version topped with ground beef or mushrooms, green peppers or other vegetables rather than sausage or pepperoni.

If the choice is Mexican food, chicken fajitas, rice and green salads are healthy choices. Avoid high-fat taco salads.

Maybe it happened, but I never heard of sexual abuse of children when I was growing up.

Physical abuse? Yes. But we didn't call it that.

Which makes me wonder what ever happened to Roger Coley. His parents always called him Roger Jr.

They moved next door to us in the late 1930s. I would guess I was about 10, and Roger Jr. was a couple of years younger.

I don't remember Roger Jr. being any more of a discipline problem to his parents than the rest of us kids were to ours. But none of us paid the price for our missteps that Roger did.

His dad was manager of the gas company and I guess he didn't work too hard because he spent a lot of time at home.

I don't know how often, but it seems every afternoon, Roger Sr. would take Roger Jr's. hand and lead him to their horse corral in the backyard. In the other hand he carried a razor strop. And he didn't let loose of either hand until the youngster had been soundly thrashed.

They would go around in circles, Roger Sr. holding Roger Jr.'s right hand with his own left hand, and whacking him with the razor strop held in his right hand. It was more than a whipping. It was a beating. And the boy's yelps could be heard blocks away.

At no other time, as far as I knew, was Roger Sr. abusive to his son. In fact, he seemed to be overly fond of the boy--even to the point of overdoing things. Within 15 minutes after every beating, he would give Roger Jr. money to go to the drug store two blocks away and buy an ice cream cone. If any of us neighborhood kids were around, he would give us money too.

I never knew why the boy was being beaten. In retrospect after these many years, I'm pretty sure it was to satisfy some macho urge of the father. Perhaps the show of affection which followed was a means to atone for what he had done.

The Coleys moved away after a few months and I never saw them again. I do remember that a former employee of the senior Coley told me years later that Roger Jr. was a pilot in the Air Force. That was during the Korean War.

Perhaps he turned out all right.

Likes camp

Editor: My name is Courtney Crim. I'm a member of the Sons of Hermann Lodge, Haskell 241, and I live in Haltom City, Texas. I just returned from the Sons of Hermann youth camp near Comfort.

My Nanna and Pa Pa Koehler took me and returned to get me. I stayed from Sunday the 20th until Saturday the 26th of June.

I told Nanna and Pa Pa on the way home what a great time I had and I told them how fun the activities were. The counselors were so nice and fun. Lots of swimming too.

We got to sing for the people at the home for the aged, and went to a dance at the boys' camp. The food is great and you always have a smile on your face. You never stop having fun, and you never stop for a minute.

It came a cloud too. I had to ride a long way but it was worth it. I'm going to come back next year and the next year and the next year, cause the Sons of Hermanns is the best.

I wish next year all of the Haskell youth would go. They would have fun too. Nanna and Pa Pa are Lodge members too but they can't go to camp.

Caffeine OK for Pregnant Women: A recent study found that expectant mothers who consumed the amount of caffeine found in three cups of coffee every day had no greater risk of miscarriage or having an abnormally small baby than those who avoided caffeine. However, it is not known whether it is safe to consume more than this amount of caffeine, and caffeine can affect a fetus' breathing and heart rate. Therefore, they stressed moderation in caffeine consumption.

Teen vegeterians should use caution

Teenagers who decide to "go green" with their diets may not realize there is more to vegetarianism than simply eliminating a food group, says a nutritionist at the USDA's Children's Nutrition Research Center in Houston.

"A vegetarian diet must be well planned to be nutritionally well-balanced," said Janice Stuff, a research instructor at Baylor College of Medicine. "Haphazard eating habits could jeopardize valuable nutrients."

Vegetarians fall into one of three categories. Semi-vegetarians eat poultry, fish and dairy products but little or no red meat or pork. Ovo-lacto vegetarians (ovo meaning egg and lacto meaning milk) eat dairy products and eggs but no meat, poultry or fish. Strict vegetarians or "vegans" eat no animal products, only plant foods.

Teens need to be especially careful to get adequate amounts of protein, iron, calcium and Vitamin B12 during these body-building years.

According to Stuff, a teenager needs 1 gram of protein per 2.2 pounds of body weight. A 120-pound teen following a semi-vegetarian diet could fulfill daily protein needs with two 3-ounce servings of poultry or fish, one 8-ounce glass of milk and one egg, she said.

Additional sources of protein include peanut butter, nuts, seeds, lentils and tofu. Vegans can get protein from fortified soy milk, Stuff said.

During puberty, teens often have trouble getting enough iron. Although red meats are the prime source, young vegetarians can meet their needs with leafy green vegetables, nuts, dried beans and dried fruits, blackstrap molasses and bulgur (cracked wheat). Stuff said that foods high in Vitamin C help get the most out of vegetarian iron sources because they help the body absorb iron. Cooking in iron cookware also adds to iron intake.

To develop strong bones, teens need daily servings of calcium. In addition to dairy products, calcium can be found in dark, leafy greens such as kale, broccoli, sunflower seeds and beans. Calcium-fortified cereals and juices are also available.

Vitamin B12, essential for blood formation, is not a concern for vegetarians who consume dairy products or eggs. However, vegans may need to add Vitamin B12-fortified breakfast cereals to their diets.

Stuff notes that vegan diets present another unique challenge.

"A vegan diet, which is high fiber, may fill a teen up before he or she meets their nutrient requirements for the day," she said.

The adolescent years are a crucial period for growth and development. Stuff encourages teens to talk to a dietitian or family doctor if they have questions about their dietary needs or goals.

Families gather for reunion

The Chitwood and Graham families met June 26 at the American Legion building for a reunion with Bill and Sue Ashby of Seagoville as host and hostess.

Those attending included the three surviving children of Tom and Grace Chitwood: Mrs. Velma Jetton of Haskell, Mrs. Rena George of Blythe, Calif., and Larkin Chitwood of Coalinga, Calif.

James Jefferson Chitwood and his family homesteaded in Haskell County in 1904. He was a surveyor. He was an active member of the First Methodist Church of Haskell. He died in Haskell in 1906.

The family of Grace Greenwood Graham came to Haskell about the same time. The family came with their widowed mother, Susan C. (Landess) Graham. Some of the family returned to Alabama after a few years and some moved to different areas of Texas. The only ones remaining in Haskell were Pearl, Grace and Fauncey, who all married and raised their families here.

TAX PLANNING

HOW TO BE BETTER OFF A YEAR FROM NOW

Would you like to be financially better off a year from now? You can. It doesn't take complicated strategies or lots of time, just discipline and planning. The surest way to improve your financial situation is to save and invest on a regular basis.

A dollar saved is worth a dollar earned. Earnings are subject to taxes. You end up with substantially less than the total earned. But when you save, only the interest is subject to tax.

Review your spending to see where your income is going. Look at your expenses and think creatively of ways to cut each one. Comparison shop for the things you need: goods, services, insurance, interest rates — everything.

If your employer offers a plan in which you can set aside a part of your earnings to be used for child or health care, use it. These plans offer big savings because they are sheltered from both payroll and income taxes. Don't put too much aside, though, because you won't get back amounts you don't use.

Start investing regularly now. Sign up for a savings plan at work, or arrange with a mutual fund to invest an amount from your checking account every month. Your financial situation will improve automatically.

Tax-deferred retirement plans (IRA, 401(k), 403(b), etc.) are great places to invest. The withdrawal restrictions are often offset by tax-deferred growth. If these plans are available to you, use them.

Your ability to produce income is probably your largest financial asset. Consider disability insurance. Invest in yourself by keeping your job skills current.

With a little discipline and thought, you can establish a plan to improve your financial position regularly, every year.
