Early childhood classes offered

Half-day early childhood classes for students 3 to 5 years old will be offered again this year by the Haskell CISD and the Haskell-Knox Consortium.

To be eligible for classes, a child must be 3 years old on or before Sept. 1, and must be screened by the Haskell-Knox diagnostician. The screening will take place at the beginning of the school year.

To set up a time for a child to be screened, parents should contact the principal's office at 864-2654 between now and Aug. 14.

Pre-kindergarten registration set

All parents of children who are 4 years old or who will be 4 by Sept. 1 are encouraged to call the school (864-2654) and register their child for pre-kindergarten screening.

After screening is completed, parents will be contacted if their child is eligible to attend pre-kindergarten.

Cheerleaders to sell hot dogs

Haskell cheerleaders will have a hot dog sale Saturday at Modern Way IGA.

Hot dogs, with or without chili, will be available from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Cost will be two for $1 and includes a free Coke.

Indian Boosters to meet Monday

The Indian Booster Club will have its first meeting of the season at 7:30 Monday evening in the high school athletic complex.

All members, as well as those who wish to become members, are urged to attend to discuss plans for the new year and to meet the new athletic director, Dwayne Gray.

Band Boosters to meet today

New officers will be elected and plans for the 1994-95 school year will be discussed when the Band Boosters meet today (Thursday) in the Band Hall.

The meeting begins at 5:30 p.m. and all band parents are urged to attend.

Jarrin' Jawn honored

John Kimbrough holds the trophy he received after being inducted into the Southwest Conference Hall of Honor. In the background is a Chesterfield cigarette poster featuring the Haskell man, which appeared on billboards throughout the country in 1941-42.

Kimbrough inducted into Hall of Honor

It's been 54 years since Haskell's John Kimbrough carried the ball as an all-America fullback for Texas A&M, but he's still considered one of the greatest ever.

Kimbrough and 11 others were inducted into the Southwest Conference Hall of Honor in ceremonies Friday at the Anatole Hotel in Dallas. Kimbrough was unable to attend the ceremonies.

Joining him were Bob Lilly of TCU, E. J. Holub of Texas Tech, Dicky Maegle of Rice, Tommy Nobis of Texas, Kyle Rote of SMU, Mike Singletary of Baylor and Texas coach Darrell Royal. Honored posthumously were Texas coach Dana X. Bible, Bobby Layne of Texas, TCU coach L. R. "Dutch" Meyer and Wilson Whitley of Houston.

Kimbrough was all-America at Texas A&M in 1939 as he led the Aggies to the national championship and a victory over Tulane in the Sugar Bowl.

He repeated as all-America the following year and helped the Aggies defeat Fordham in the Cotton Bowl. That year he finished second in the Heisman Trophy race to Michigan's Tommy Harmon.

Kimbrough was the No. 1 pick in the NFL draft in 1941, being chosen by the Chicago Cardinals.

He opted, instead, to play for the New York Yankees before entering the Air Corps during World War II.

He played football on service teams while in the Air Corps and after the war he played with the Los Angeles Dons of the newly formed All-America Conference.

Kimbrough also had a brief career as an actor, appearing in a number of western movies in 1941-42.

Kimbrough's election to the Southwest Conference Hall of Honor is only the latest of numerous honors he has received and continues to receive. He was elected to the National Football Hall of Fame in 1954. He also is a member of the Texas Sportswriters' Hall of Fame.

Shot clinics scheduled here

The Texas Department of Health will hold immunization clinics in Haskell on Aug. 18 and Aug. 23.

The Aug. 18 clinic will be at the American Legion Hall, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Aug. 23 clinic will be in the courthouse from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The clinics will be open through the lunch hour.

Adult TDs (tetanus-diphtheria) also will be available. A parent or legal guardian must accompany minor children.

Shots are free until Aug. 31, regardless of income.

Mother, daughter open new business

Haskell's newest business, the Personality---Slipper Shoppe opened Monday morning on the south side of the square at 413 S. 1st Street.

The new business is located in the building formerly occupied by The Personality Shoppe.

Owned by Glenda Gayle Rutkowski and her mother, Joy Chapman, the Personality---Slipper Shoppe is a merger of Mrs. Rutkowski's new women's fashion store and her mother's shoe store. Mrs. Chapman has owned The

Crop insurance changed

The House Agriculture Committee has finalized action on the 1994 Crop Insurance Reform legislation.

The legislation merges the past ad hoc crop insurance disaster payments and multiple peril crop insurance into a single program. The new program will provide crop growers with individualized protection at reduced cost. It also reduces the cost of the previous programs for taxpayers.

Under the new program, growers will have the opportunity to insure their crops at 50, 65 or 75 percent of the yields that they prove for their crops, up to the estimated market price at harvest time. The premium costs start at only a small administrative fee.

Growers will be required to enroll in the new program at a minimum of the catastrophic (CAT) coverage in order to be eligible to receive benefits from most other USDA farm programs. The CAT coverage is 50 percent of the proven yield at 60 percent of the estimated cash market price.

The new CAT coverage provides farmers with protection against individual crop disasters and is based on the growers' own proven yield. Farmers are reminded that insurance agents who write for rain and hail will be among the first to have the details on an individual farmer basis.

Firemen plan "Fill the Boot" campaign Saturday

Haskell firemen will again be standing in the intersection of US 277-380 Saturday to collect funds for muscular dystrophy.

It's the annual "Fill the Boot" campaign.

All donations will be sent to the Labor Day Telethon in Abilene for MDA.

"Local support has been outstanding in past years," said Fire Chief E. J. Stewart, "and your continued support will be appreciated."

Eye clinic opens in Stamford

Dr. Trussell, optometrist, has announced the opening of the Jones-Haskell Eye Clinic in Stamford.

The clinic is located at 1501 Columbia, near Stamford Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Thane is board certified in the diagnosis and treatment of eye diseases. His clinic will offer complete evaluation for eyeglasses and contact lenses and will accept Medicaid and Medicare.

Dr. Thane, who is returning to Stamford from Belton, grew up in Stamford and Anson. His father, Eddie Thane, was maintenance superintendent for the State Highway Department in Haskell until he retired.

Indians begin football drills with new coach

Candidates for the 1994 Haskell Indian football team were to report Wednesday morning for the first of a series of four-hour workouts.

The Indians will practice from 8 a.m. to noon, with a 45-minute break between 9:45 and 10:30. This schedule will continue until Aug. 15 when practices will be reduced to once a day.

New coach Dwayne Gray, who came here last spring from Stratford, said coaches have been busy figuring out positions for 82 boys who have indicated they would come out for football this year.

Also new on the coaching staff are Bob Rapp, who also came here from Stratford, to be the Indians' defensive coordinator; and Jeff Howle, a recent graduate of Hardin-Simmons University who has been hired as baseball coach and will assist with the football team.

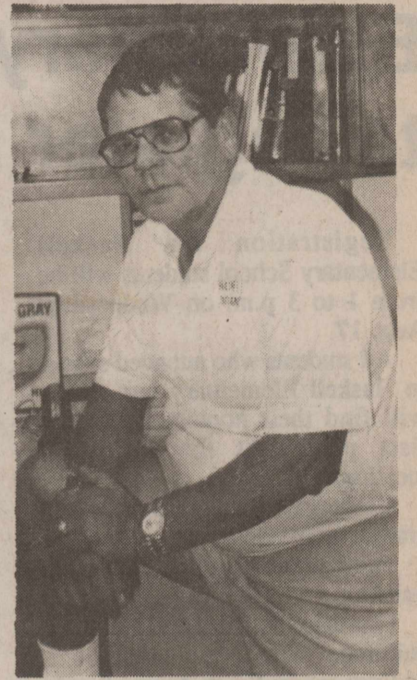

Holdover coaches are Allen Phillips, Richard Holloway and Mark Coffman.

Gray, whose Stratford teams won 27 games the past three seasons and made the playoffs each year, said he will install the wishbone offense. "I've used it for several years and it's been very good to me," he said.

The coach is counting on Cody Cybert to be his quarterback and make the wishbone work. Bucky Harvey will be moved from the line to the all-important fullback position, and other running backs will be Justin Lisle and Casey Larned.

Cybert, Harvey, Lisle and Larned are just four of 13 returning lettermen who should give the Indians' one of their most experienced teams in years. Others are Keiland Riley, Chuckie Castillo, Chris Silvas, Cody Cooley, Ryan Olson, Stacy Walker, Brandon McFadden, Martin Limones and Rudy Fuentes.

But coaches face a difficult task in finding replacements for a group of talented players who graduated-- Mart Guess, Robert Johnson, Jonathan Tatum, Jason Torres, Richard Collins, Robert Huff, Matt Perry, Blake Henshaw, Kevin Conner, Deon Walker, Marcello Rodriguez, Brian Brzozowski and Eddie Martinez.

District 7-2A will have only six teams this year, as Jim Ned and Winters have been assigned to another district. Quanah, Albany and Baird have been added to the non-district schedule, along with Munday and Knox City.

Haskell opens the 1994 season Sept. 2 against Munday in the first of four consecutive home games. The Indians will host Quanah on Sept. 9, Knox City on Sept. 16 and Albany on Sept. 23 before playing their first game away from home-- against Baird on Sept. 30.

The district schedule begins at Stamford on Oct. 7, followed by Hamlin here on Oct. 14, Anson there Oct. 21, Hawley there Oct. 28 and Rotan here Nov. 4.

Confederate Sons due here Saturday

By Ed Walling
Haskell Business Association

The Haskell Business Association is planning another big promotion this Saturday (Aug. 6) to keep "Haskell Alive" by having the "Sons of Confederate Veterans," which was founded in 1896.

Activities will be conducted by David Pilgrim, commander of the West Texas Brigade.

A campsite will be set up on the northwest side of the Haskell County Courthouse to display flags, tents, tables, metal drinking cups, lanterns, water kegs and other miscellaneous equipment.

At 10 a.m., there will be a speech on the Texas involvement of the SCV and another on the general information about the veterans. A flag and musket firing demonstration will get underway at 2 p.m.

This is a very busy group of men who go many places every weekend. All Haskell area citizens are urged to attend this informative event on the history of the Civil War era.

I want to personally thank each and every business that is a member of the Haskell Business Association for their time, support and help in keeping "Haskell Alive, Past, Present and Future."

A city-wide auction is being planned for a fund raiser for the business association in late September. Be watching the Haskell Free Press and listening on KVRP radio for future details. See you Saturday.

"Sons of Confederate Veterans" will set up a campsite similar to this Saturday on the northwest side of the Haskell County courthouse.

New business

Opera House to present 'Daughters'

Anson Opera House will present Abilene Repertory Theatre's production of "Daughters of the Lone Star State" on Saturday, Aug. 13. Gia Henshaw of Haskell will play the role of "Virgie."

This is the third play in Del Shore's West Texas comedy series. Shore is a native of Winters.

"Daughters" takes place during a meeting at the First Baptist Church in Lowake, Texas. The women pride themselves on being the "privileged helping the underprivileged."

Author Shore was present at the Paramount Theatre in Abilene for the play's first national amateur presentation July 29. The last two presentations in Abilene were before sell-out crowds. Earlier, it played to audiences in Los Angeles.

Last year the opera house hosted the theatre group's production of "Daddy's Dyin' . . . Who's Got the Will?" for one performance. This is the second play in the trilogy and was released as a movie by MGM.

The Anson Opera House will open at 7 p.m. and the show starts at 7:30. Call 915-823-3259 for information and reservations.

Haywood blasts Carriker stance

Citing an article in the Austin American Statesman of July 26, Tom Haywood, GOP candidate for Texas Senate, blasted Sen. Steve Carriker for not supporting an ethics bill in the last legislative session.

"My opponent's ethical void is exemplified by his opposition to a simple bill that would have prohibited state legislators from representing clients before the very state agencies whose budgets they control," Haywood said.

"Typical of Mr. Carriker is his response to the public that if we would only pay our legislators more money, they wouldn't have to do unethical things. He's got it backwards," Haywood said.

"What Steve doesn't understand is the fact that the public is fed up with scheming politicians who continue to thwart the will of the public and only desire honest representation."

Texas will get 6,000 refugees

State Comptroller John Sharp says that some 6,000 international refugees will be assigned to Texas this year, a 7-percent increase over 1993 but still below the number of new arrivals in 1991 and 1992.

"Concerns about immigration have once again pushed their way to the forefront of public debate," Sharp said. "But often overlooked in this important debate is the growing number of international refugees contributing to the changing face of Texas. This year's newcomers will join about 110,000 men, women and children from 40 different nations who have already sought sanctuary in our state."

The subject of international refugees is explored in the latest issue of Fiscal Notes, a monthly publication of the comptroller's research division. The Fiscal Notes article comes at a time when states from Florida to California are demanding that Washington reimburse states for the costs of federal immigration policy. Texas is expected to soon join the legal fray.

Unlike other legal immigrants, refugees are recognized as having been persecuted in their native land or of having a well-founded fear of persecution due to their race, religion or political opinion, Sharp said. Most arrive in Texas directly from abroad, although many Southeast Asian refugees migrated here from other states during the 1980s.

"But no matter what drove them from their homes, the vast majority are forging new lives in Texas' economic mainstream," Sharp said.

"They face severe hurdles in their quests to become productive citizens. The blue-collar jobs that supported earlier waves of immigration are disappearing, replaced by service and information-processing work that requires higher skills and English proficiency. Meanwhile, limited funds from Washington make it difficult for our state's non-profit groups and government agencies to keep up with the demand for training."

In 1993, Texas received $3.4 million to provide refugees with social services including job placement, vocational training and English classes. Another $5.5 million in federal grants helped provide cash and basic medical services for the neediest new arrivals. Houston received an additional $300,000 in such targeted assistance.

Sharp said international refugees now live in at least 102 of Texas' 254 counties. Vietnamese represent about 66 percent of the total, while Laotians, Cambodians, former Soviets and Ethiopians together account for another 22 percent. This year, resettlement groups are reporting greater numbers of Cubans, Haitians and Bosnians arriving in Texas than in the past.

According to a comprehensive survey by the Texas Office of Immigration and Refugee Affairs (TOIRA), refugees account for less than one percent of the state's total population. But their incomes and spending add $2 billion to the Texas economy each year.

A common belief is that refugees come here to take advantage of social service programs. The TOIRA survey suggests otherwise.

As their English skills grow, many earn above-average incomes and ultimately generate more in tax revenues that was spent assisting them when the first arrived, according to TOIRA.

"These new Texans have demonstrated their will to struggle and survive," Sharp said. "Those who come here knowing little English will work hard to learn the language."

Searing summers deadly to elderly

The searing summer temperatures in Texas can be deadly because the sweltering weather can be dangerous to the elderly.

Each year about 4,000 people--most of them elderly--die of complications due to heat stroke.

"Heat stroke is more common and more life-threatening for the elderly," said Katharine M. Jew, M.D., internal medicine physician at Scott & White Memorial Hospital and Clinic and associate professor in the Texas A&M University Health Science Center College of Medicine.

The elderly do not sweat properly, which means that their bodies do not cool down adequately. Senior citizens generally are not acclimated to the blistering weather as younger persons are. "The elderly may stay indoors for long periods of time. So when they do go out in the sun, the abrupt heat puts too much stress on their bodies," Dr. Jew said.

"Some medications such as diuretics, alcohol, sedatives and anti-depressants can also affect an elderly person's ability to sweat. These medications may also affect a person's judgement in perceiving how hot it really is," she added.

Elderly persons may not be able to protect themselves from the heat because of physical and/or mental disabilities. Heat disease, lung disease and diabetes can put them at higher risk for heat stroke. "The combination of heat stroke with these other illnesses can be fatal," Dr. Jew said.

Blistering weather can also generate three kinds of conditions: heat cramps, heat exhaustion and heat stroke. Heat cramps are often experienced by younger persons who have over-exerted themselves. The best remedy is drinking plenty of water. The symptoms of heat exhaustion include dizziness, headache, nausea and a low-grade temperature. "A person with these symptoms should seek emergency treatment," Dr. Jew said.

The most serious heat illness is heat stroke, which can be fatal if left untreated. Persons experiencing heat stroke will have the following symptoms: severe confusion, dizziness, headache, elevated body temperature, nausea, vomiting and high or low blood pressure. In advance stages, a heat stroke victim may have seizures or go into a comatose state.

Dr. Jew recommended these steps for the elderly and their caregivers when the landscape sizzles under the sun:

- Don't take in a lot of sun and heat all at once. The elderly should acclimate themselves over a one- to two-week period by slowly and gradually exposing themselves to the sun.

- Avoid going out in the heat during the middle of the day, when the sun and the temperature are at the highest peak. Plan outdoor activities in the early morning or late evening. If you walk to get your exercise, consider walking in an indoor air-conditioned mall.

- Use air conditioners or fans. Don't be afraid to turn them on because of high utility bills.

- Wear light-weight, light-colored clothing that is loose fitting.

- Be aware of the medicines you take and your medical conditions that may put you at higher risk for heat illnesses. If you have a question, call your doctor.

- Increase your rest periods during the heat of the day.

- Do not take salt tablets to replace salt lost in hot weather unless you have talked to your doctor.

Care-givers should be aware of elderly persons' lifestyles and habits. They should check on them at frequent intervals to make sure they have adequate air conditioning and fans.

If an elderly person is experiencing ill effects from the heat, care-givers should do the following:

- Call an ambulance or take the person to the emergency room immediately.

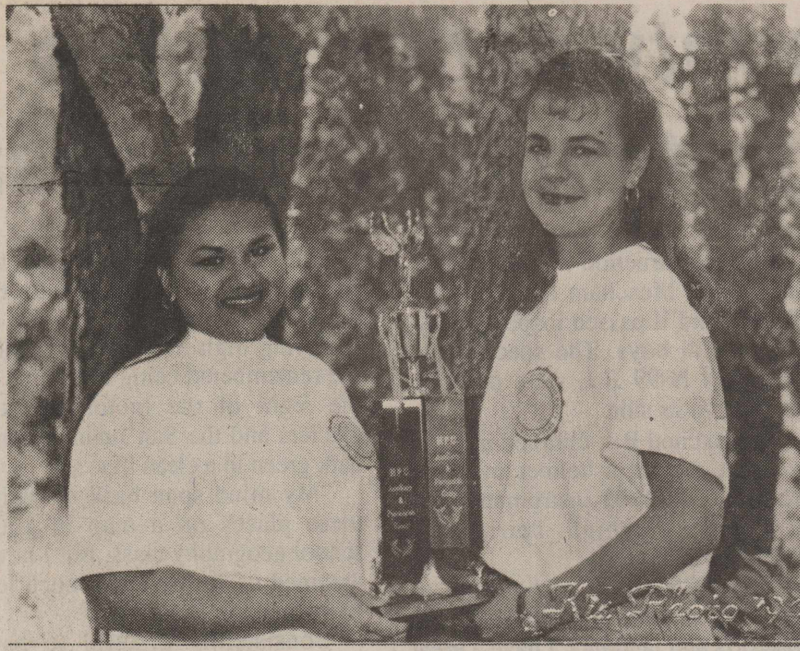

- Remove the person's clothing. Sprinkle water on the person and turn on the fans to cool him down.

Lean beef can be okay

When a cholesterol-lowering diet is prescribed, lean beef can stay on the menu.

Researchers at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston have determined that eating lean beef in a cholesterol-lowering diet produces reductions in levels of total blood cholesterol and low-density lipoprotein, the "bad" cholesterol, similar to those achieved by eating chicken.

The study was funded by the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Troopers issue safety warning

Texas Department of Public Safety state troopers are reminding drivers to begin thinking about the safety of children as the new school year approaches.

The first few weeks of school are the most dangerous, said trooper Bobby Hart of the DPS. "Many youngsters are attending school for the first time and others will be going to a different school where they are unfamiliar with local traffic conditions," Hart explained.

State law requires drivers on the same roadway as a school bus stopped to load or unload students to also stop until the bus driver has turned off the flashing red lights. This law applies unless the vehicle is separated from the bus by a divided highway with a median strip.

Human hair, if left uncut, will usually grow to a maximum of two to three feet.

Watch out for food poisoning

Hectic food preparation can increase the chances of food poisoning, especially among young children.

Children are more vulnerable because their intestinal tracts and immune systems are not fully developed, and they may have less resistance to the bacteria that cause food-borne illnesses, says Dr. Kathleen Motil of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Symptoms of food poisoning include stomach cramps, nausea, diarrhea, vomiting and, in some cases, fever. Symptoms appear from two to 36 hours after eating and last several days.

When children become ill, parents should make sure they get plenty to drink to prevent dehydration.

Tarrant County AIDS cases reported

Some 1,080 cases of AIDS have been reported in Tarrant County in the 10 years since the first case was reported in the county in 1982, according to a report in the July issue of Texas Medicine.

Tarrant County ranks fifth in the state in the number of AIDS cases, behind Harris, Dallas, Travis and Bexar counties.

Because of the high proportion of homosexual men with AIDS in Tarrant County, the ratio of males to females with the disease was 12- to 1.

Haskell County native makes annual migration to Northwest

(The following story appeared in the April issue of Fifty/Something magazine of Washington Olympic Peninsula.)

By Phyllis Miletich

Betty Jo Heitsch is a high-flyin' Texas snowbird who makes the yearly migration from her winter home in McAllen, Texas, to the good-life summers on the Peninsula.

Every April when the sun burns hot and hotter in deep-south Texas, "B.J." (as she's called) and her husband, Chester, pack their van with warm clothes and favorite necessities. They head north for their home set between Port Angeles and Sequim.

At the happy end of their 2,400-mile drive, they pull into their yard, greet the resident caretaker, jostle and pat their Northwest dog, Daisy, and wake up their sleeping home after its long winter's nap.

The Heitschs are part of a growing group of part-time "homers" who belong to us during the growing season. And, like many of the others, B. J. is unique.

First clue I had that she was not your everyday housewife was a brief shopping trip we took together. She drove fast, confident and alert. The territory might have been new to her, but she'd say things like, "If we turn southeast within the next 17 1/2 miles, won't that put us directly north for a good view of the sunset about 1900?" Right then, I knew this was not your ordinary melon thumper.

And 'tis true. She's a pilot--one of the 2,563 female pilots registered in Texas. That sounds like quite a few until you learn that there are more than 48,000 male pilots in that state. So that makes her one of an elite 5.31 percent of the Texas pilots.

An invitation to join the Ninety-Nines was another high point for B.J.; it's an exclusive club limited to women who hold active pilot licenses. (The first club president was Amelia Earheart.)

From the kitchen, how does a woman get there?

"Well," B.J. said with a smile, "as a little girl, I spent many Sunday afternoons watching aircraft take off and land, dreaming of someday being at the controls."

"Twenty-two years later, that dream became a reality for this Texas redhead. A flatlander-- imagine--I was licensed Oct. 24, 1962. A big day! Just me and that machine up in the air alone."

B.J. continued, "In the late '60s, my husband and I bought parts and pieces of a plane, the Aeronica Champ 1946, then almost extinct."

Its reconstruction was completed in 1974 at Meacham Field in Fort Worth, and it passed inspection by the federal boys. The special call letters of N-99 B.J. were proudly painted on its side.

An excited B.J. climbed into the cockpit, pulled a helmet over her red hair, checked instruments and took off in high spirits for McAllen, Texas.

"The Champ is a challenge to fly," she explained, "especially the takeoffs and landings. I have a great love for the feel of flying the ol' tail-dragger."

"But a Cessna 182 was my cross-country plane. It had a 230-horsepower continental engine compared to 65 horsepower in the

Glass of wine can be helpful

When steak is on the menu, a glass of wine may make dinner healthier for those concerned about cholesterol levels.

Moderate amounts of alcohol with a high-fat meal can increase the level of high-density lipoprotein, "good" cholesterol, without increasing the level of low-density lipoprotein, "bad" cholesterol, according to researchers at the DeBakey Heart Center of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

The alcohol boosts an enzyme that metabolizes fat, said Dr. Henry J. Pownall, and the extra amount of enzyme means more HDL is made than LDL.

Scott & White among the best

Scott & White Memorial Hospital in Temple ranked among 114 of "America's Best Hospitals" out of 1,172 hospitals nationwide.

That's according to an annual survey ranking hospitals by specialties published in the U.S. News & World Report.

Not only is Scott and White the only Central Texas hospital listed, it is one of only three Texas hospitals ranked among the top 40 in the country which provide superior gynecology services. Scott and White is one of only nine hospitals in Texas to receive a ranking in any of 12 specialties. The other eight are located in Dallas and Houston.

Champ. So in 1968, it was the Cessna that brought me to the beautiful Northwest."

Flying high over the Olympics, she remembered being overcome by the sight of the mountains, the glaciers and the San Juans floating dark green in a clean blue sea.

"My mind spun back to seeing these places on a map in grade school geography class. But I never dreamed of seeing them much less living here 16 years later."

Consistently grateful to have enjoyed nine Peninsula summers, B.J. is often seen working hard and eagerly in her flower beds, hair tied back with a bright scarf tight across her forehead.

"It's taken a while to learn the art of gardening here, compared to the subtropical climate in McAllen," she said. "Many things I grow here would die in Texas heat."

The Southern lady added, "The stunning scenery, clear air, good people, abundant flowers, wild mushrooms, and trees to hike among will keep me returning. Some day soon, I hope to spend a winter here to enjoy the tranquility of real snow."

A tireless and considerate hostess, she's a generous Southern cook par excellence who, when complimented, only says in a soft Texas accent: "Well, I'm glad you 'N-joy-ed' it." (Accent on the joy.)

Yes, there are many, many people moving to the Olympic Peninsula. Strangers; maybe. But I declare, folks, my neighbor B.J. is no stranger. She's a Southerner-- and a Northerner. She's a high-flyin' lady with plenty to give to this community.

Nice to have you aboard, Captain.

(Betty Hester Heitsch is a Haskell County native. Her parents were Joe and Jenny Hester, pioneer settlers. Her father handed over his Colt revolver as down payment on his first land--100 acres. Eventually, the Hesters spread their farm operations to over 12,000 acres. Billy W. Hester now lives on the prairie land they bought east of Rochester which has been in the family for 90 years.)

Senate approves more border agents

A key Senate panel has approved $54.5 million to hire 700 new Border Patrol agents next year, many of whom will be deployed in Texas.

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said he expects at least half of the 700 new agents will be allocated to Texas border stations.

"This is a much needed and very large first step in the direction of controlling our borders," Gramm said. "I believe the funding for these 700 new Border Patrol agents will go a long way to alleviate illegal immigration problems that plague the entire Southwest border."

The $54.5 million needed to hire the 700 new agents was contained in the Fiscal Year 1995 appropriations bills, which was approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Also included in the appropriations bill was $423 million in Byrne Grant money that funds drug task forces nationwide, including some 50 rural ones in Texas. The Clinton administration had proposed the elimination of the program, but lawmakers on Capitol Hill have been intent on restoring the funds.

--Haskell Healthcare Center--

By Betty L. Hearn
Activity Director

Haskell Healthcare Center recently hosted a homemade ice cream social for residents' family and the Gospel Singers. It was a get-acquainted social for Jana Loomis, our new administrator, and a good-bye to Rita Mooney.

The residents celebrated a watermelon party for the 4th and had questions about the 4th of July. They did an excellent job answering the questions.

Our most recent new residents are A. P. Denton from Knox City and Juana Garcia of Rochester. They are both taking advantage of our therapy department.

Lena Kubena is back from the hospital. We are happy she's back.

Willie Castillo is in the Haskell hospital. We hope he will be back soon.

Our July birthdays are Elsie McGee, resident, and employees Terri McGhee, Jovita Gonzales and Teresa Tarris. We wish them all a Happy Birthday.

June 28th was a special celebration for Linda Lloyd, who has worked 20 years for this facility. A pot luck lunch was served by all the employees and Linda was presented a gold watch with her name engraved on the back. It was also a farewell party for Rita Mooney.

They both were surprised because each brought food thinking it was the other one's party. Everyone had a good laugh.

ACU changes department name

The home economics and family studies department at Abilene Christian University is now the Department of Family and Consumer Services.

The name change is the result of a nationwide thrust by the professional associations within the field of home economics to update the name of the profession.

"Family and consumer sciences more accurately expresses what we have been teaching," said Dr. Marianna Rasco, chair of the family and consumer sciences department.

Marisol Lopez is cosmologist

--Library Notes--

By Joan Strickland

Our summer reading program has ended and everyone is getting ready for school. The program went very well this summer. We had 93 children sign up and about half that many came for story time on Wednesday mornings.

Around 48 children returned their reading logs and were eligible for a reading certificate from the Texas State Library.

Toni Abila was the winner of a $50 saving bond from the Haskell National Bank.

Ethan Frierson was the winner of a $50 savings bond from the First National Bank.

Josh Webb was the winner of two tickets to Six Flags from KTXS, channel 12.

Kristina Bittner was winner of two tickets to Six Flags from KTXS, channel 12.

I'd like to thank Paige Hagadone, Tamika Ware and Kerre Terrell of Rule for helping make this summer's program the best ever. I could never do the program without help for story time.

If you did not get to come you missed lots of fun. We had a parade with instruments, made hats and lady bugs and had a party with cookies and punch. And if you weren't here, we missed you.

Ms. Lorene Townsend of Rule made the library some really pretty book marks and everyone has enjoyed them. Thank you, Ms. Townsend.

Last week, Mary Kay Place came in to visit our library and checked out a few books. She complimented our library which made "yours truly" feel good. We don't have many celebrities stop by our building.

Moms, please check around the house and see if there are books from the county library that are due or past due from summer reading. I know there are some still out there somewhere.

Haskell Soil & Water Conservation District

A serious problem facing farmers in Haskell County is the salting out of good farmland. This salty condition is the result of natural saline seeps brought on by a high water table.

Salt seeps in the Texas Rolling Plains develop in areas with one consistent feature: The soil profile is underlain at relatively shallow depths by impermeable clays, shales and sandstones of the Permian Formation.

Under normal conditions, natural rainwater percolates through the soil profile carrying with it soluble salts dissolved from the soil matrix and the redbeds. When the percolating water comes in contact with impermeable redbeds, its downward flow is stopped.

If rainfall is continued over long periods of time and plants cannot extract the surplus water faster than it accumulates, a water table develops and expands. As the excess water comes closer to the surface, the salts move upward. This commonly occurs by capillary movement once the saline water table is within about 30 inches of the soil surface. There the water evaporates and the salts are left behind to eventually form a salty crust.

Various approaches have been tried in attempts to reverse the seep causing processes. These include agronomic and mechanical practices and changes in management techniques. The one practice that has met with some success is the installation of subsurface drainage systems. These systems intercept the down slope flow of water over the impermeable redbeds. They effectively lower the water table, keep it lowered, and allow natural leaching processes to resume.

Leaching is the only effective way to remove excess salts from the soil. To leach, enough rainfall or water must be applied to produce downward movement and outflow of drainage water from the root zone.

Results from lowering the water table and leaching have noticeable improvements occurring within one year. Normal production can return within three to four years. Clay soils or soils with slow and very slow permeability are difficult to leach and require longer periods of time to leach. Sandy soils are easier to leach.

Management of saline areas begins with never letting them form. It is essential to keep the water table well below the soil surface. Never leave areas prone to salting out in a fallow condition, especially during periods of high rainfall. This is best accomplished by growing crops that have deep root systems and use high amounts of water. These crops are needed both over the seep area and up slope to intercept the water moving to the seep areas.

Some plant species are better adapted to saline conditions than others. Crop species that are relative salt tolerant and have the ability to utilize deep moisture include alfalfa, sorghums, sunflowers and barley. Grass species that tolerate a high salt concentration include alkali sacaton and bermudagrasses.

Soil Conservation Service technicians assisting local Soil Conservation Districts provide assistance to farmers and ranchers in dealing with these problems. When assistance is requested an inventory of soil conditions is made. An analysis of the salinity levels, drainage and soil permeability forms the basis for recommendations for land use, adapted crops, and agronomic and mechanical treatment.

The technician points out the acceptable alternative uses and recommends the combinations of treatments best adapted to the particular situation. The land user makes the final decisions as to the uses and treatments applied to the land.

All programs and services of the United States Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service, are offered on a nondiscriminatory basis, without regard to race, color, national origin, age, sex, religion, marital status or handicap.

1994 PROPERTY TAX RATES FOR THE FOLLOWING SCHOOL DISTRICTS HASKELL CONSOLIDATED INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT PAINT CREEK INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT

This notice concerns 1994 property tax rates for the following school districts: Haskell C.I.S.D., Paint Creek I.S.D. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the school district used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the school district can set before it must hold a rollback election. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes and state funds by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Boone says warbler concern disregards property owners

When concern for 26,000 songbirds takes precedence over the rights of property owners in 33 Texas counties, the federal government has clearly lost perspective, Congressional candidate Phil Boone said Monday.

Boone was in Haskell as part of a swing through 11 cities in the 17th congressional District to draw attention to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's recent proposal to set aside land in 33 counties as "critical habitat" for the golden-cheeked warbler.

An estimated 13,000 breeding pairs of the warblers, a songbird named to the endangered species list in 1990, remain and breed in the mixed-cedar woodlands of Central Texas.

Designating land as critical habitat for the birds could lead to landowners in the region who receive federal funding of any kind being prohibited from clearing cedar or building roads through their land.

"Any rancher in Central Texas will tell you that if they can't control cedar, they can't survive," Boone said. "The designation could wreak havoc with not only the cattle industry in this area, but with property values and local tax bases."

Boone said the golden-cheeked warbler is just one example of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's growing disregard for the rights of property owners.

"The real endangered species is our rights and freedoms," Boone said. "They're under attack every time Congress goes into session."

Boone said he attended a meeting in Llano last week about the warbler situation and more than 900 ranchers and citizens came to voice their concerns.

"What we heard voiced over and over again was 'if it's not a spotted owl or a golden-cheeked warbler, it will be something else,'" Boone said. "People are terrified about how, regulation by regulation, government seems intent on taking away our freedoms."

Boone called regulating wise land use to Texas ranchers "preaching to the choir," saying one would be hard-pressed to find a group more committed to a balanced existence with their land.

"Our government needs to stop creating regulations that strangle our responsible and law-abiding citizens," Boone said. "We need to change our focus to punishing those who are irresponsible and break the laws."

Boone said one positive aspect to the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service's proposed ruling on the warbler's critical habitat is the way it has been a catalyst for citizens to get angry and get involved in the political process.

"The warbler has been a wake-up call for a lot of Texans," the Republican candidate said. "I think we'll see a lot of people realize from this that we have to demand changes in the way our Federal government does business."

• Take a minute to think about the tremendous investment you have in Farm Equipment: Tractors, Cultivators, Combines, Planters, and more. Then consider what it would cost to replace any one of your units at today's prices.

• If insured on a Farm Blanket, aged equipment suffers a deduction for depreciation -- unless you are protected with a Replacement Cost Provision.

• You want the broadest coverage available on your most expensive equipment -- but most policies don't offer you this protection.

• The perils of Fire, Lightning, Wind, Tornado, Collision, Upset, Overturn, Vandalism, Theft, and Flood are available -- again, most policies don't protect your equipment for all of the above perils.

Did you know?

EXERCISE IS AN ESSENTIAL KEY TO PERMANENT WEIGHT LOSS

You can count those calories until your calculator smokes, but you still have to "move it to lose it." How does exercise hasten and support weight control?

First, exercise increases the metabolic rate, literally turning up the fire to burn calories. What is the fuel for the fire? You guessed it—fat. Studies have demonstrated not only that regular exercise increases the metabolic rate during exercise, but that the person who regularly exercises sustains an increased metabolic rate even during nonexercise periods. Beginning with small steps—walking a mile a day or taking the stairs to work—we can "learn to burn" up to 2,000 calories during a week.

Second, weight loss always includes loss of both fat tissue and muscle tissue. Passive weight loss, without exercise, may even result in the loss of more muscle than fat. Exercise ensures that the proportion of muscle loss decreases as fat is burned through exercise. Muscle weighs more than fat and the scale may be deceptive—try using your clothing size or waist measurement for more accurate results. The best news is that muscle produces a higher metabolic activity, reinforcing the "hot fire" effect.

Medium intensity activities (such as 3 mph walking, dancing, and bicycling) burn about 300 calories per hour for a 150 pound person. That same person burns 500 calories per hour swimming and 700 calories per hour running. To correct these figures for your weight, divide your weight by 150 and multiply the result by the listed number of calories burned. For example, a 120 pound person burns 240 calories per hour at medium intensity activities because  $120/150 = 0.8 \times 300 = 240$ .

Once weight has been lost, the really hard part is keeping it off. No one wants to live on a diet forever. Studies show that people who exercise on a regular basis (burning 2,000 calories a week or more) are likely not to regain their weight. Why? Start rereading this article.

Keep cool: WTU gives suggestions

The long, hot days of summer are upon us. When temperatures reach the 90s, you wonder how to stay cool and save energy at the same time. West Texas Utilities Company offers these tips to help use energy wisely during this hottest part of the summer.

--Check air conditioning filters each month and replace them at least every 30 days. Dirty filters cause the equipment to work harder and use more electricity.

--For economy, set the air conditioner thermostat no lower than 78 degrees. Each degree below that adds to the cost.

--Use portable and ceiling fans whenever possible to help circulate air and reduce the amount of air conditioning required.

--Set thermostats at a higher temperature when away from home. The air conditioner won't cycle as often while you're out.

--Perform heavy housework chores in the cooler time of the day. This includes washing dishes, baking and laundry work, chores which create heat and moisture that put an extra strain on the air conditioner. Vent clothes dryers to the outside and use kitchen exhaust fans to get rid of excess heat.

--Block out direct sunlight as much as possible. Close curtains, shades and blinds to hold down the temperature inside the house. Consider light-colored roofs, outside wall material, drapes and solar screens that reflect the heat.

--Weather-strip doors and windows to prevent expensive air leaks. Make sure all windows and doors are closed when the air conditioning unit is operating.

--The attic should be properly ventilated to prevent excess heat build-up which causes a cooling system to work harder.

--Insulation is very important and can pay for itself by lowering cooling costs by as much as 20 percent.

--Air conditioning and heat pump equipment should be inspected and serviced each year to operate at maximum efficiency.

--If you have a fire place, be sure the damper is tightly closed.

--Keep furniture and draperies away from air vents inside the house. Air should be allowed to flow freely throughout the home.

--Shrubby growing against the outside walls, as well as trees that shade the roof, act as a barrier against the sun and can reduce the amount of energy required to cool a home. However, keep shrubbery trimmed away from the outdoor compressor unit so that there is ample room for good air circulation.

These tips can help the homeowner make it through the upcoming "dog days of August" while using energy wisely around the house.

TAX PLANNING

Written By James E. Rodgers, CPA

Retirement Planning: How to Start

Some tasks are easy to put off, such as planning for retirement. Those who fail to plan for retirement often live to regret it. Without timely planning, retirement pleasures can evaporate. Yet looking into the future is daunting. "It's simply too hard to plan properly," many say. Then they don't plan at all.

Suppose you recognize the need for planning. How do you start? How do you estimate your needs decades from now? How do you gather resources? These perplexing questions can be answered by systematic analysis.

• Compute annual retirement income needs. Decide now what lifestyle you will accept during retirement. For most, plan on about 75% of current living expenses.

• Estimate the amount necessary to meet those needs. Project that annual requirement forward to your expected retirement years. You must both adjust for the impact of inflation and estimate how many years you—and your spouse—will live. Don't be conservative. Too many retirees run out of resources before they run out of years.

• Compute existing resources. Include social security, company retirement benefits, IRAs, veteran's pension, and similar sources. Project these to your retirement date by adjusting for inflation, interest, and taxes.

• Compute the savings required to match your needs. Prepare for a shock; available resources rarely match needs. Worse, the gap can be wide. To bridge that gap, increase savings, invest for higher returns, or plan for a simpler retirement lifestyle.

If you start while you still have earning power, you can enjoy a comfortable, secure retirement. The key is early planning. If you need some help getting started, we can assist you. Why not call today?

1994 Property Tax Rates in Haskell County

This notice concerns 1994 property tax rates for Haskell County. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.
