Big Country Blinds, Inc. in operation in Haskell

Claude "Buddy" and Madge Reese didn't move back to Haskell with the intention of opening a business. They came back because it was home, but somewhere along the way, they decided to open a branch operation of their mini and vertical blind company. They have been in business for the past 31 years in Arlington and their two sons, Charles and Randy will continue to manage that end of the operations.

"We make the best mini and vertical blinds on the market for the money."

The company, Big Country Blinds, Inc., will manufacture aluminum mini blinds and vertical blinds. Madge said, "We make the best mini and vertical blinds on the market for the money."

Madge said that the business in Arlington services mostly the apartment industry in the metroplex, they sell to strictly commercial businesses. However, the branch location here in Haskell will sell to dealers in small businesses around the Big Country area. G and G Carpets will be the exclusive dealer for the blinds in Haskell.

The company's first day of production was July 24. They started with six employees and will have 12 to 15 employees when they are in full operation. The Thomases moved three of their employees, from the metroplex area, with them. They felt it was necessary for the business to get into operation to have some experienced employees on the payroll. The employees that moved are Efrén and Rosie Peralta who have been with the company for 15 years and Arturo Sanchez who has been with them nine years. The three new employees are Minga Cedillo, Belinda Guadalcazar and Benny Lopez.

Buddy was born in Haskell and attended schools here, but moved to Moultrie, Georgia while he was in high school and graduated there. Madge came to Haskell in 1926, at the age of four and attended schools here, but moved to El Monte, Calif. in her senior year of high school and graduated there.

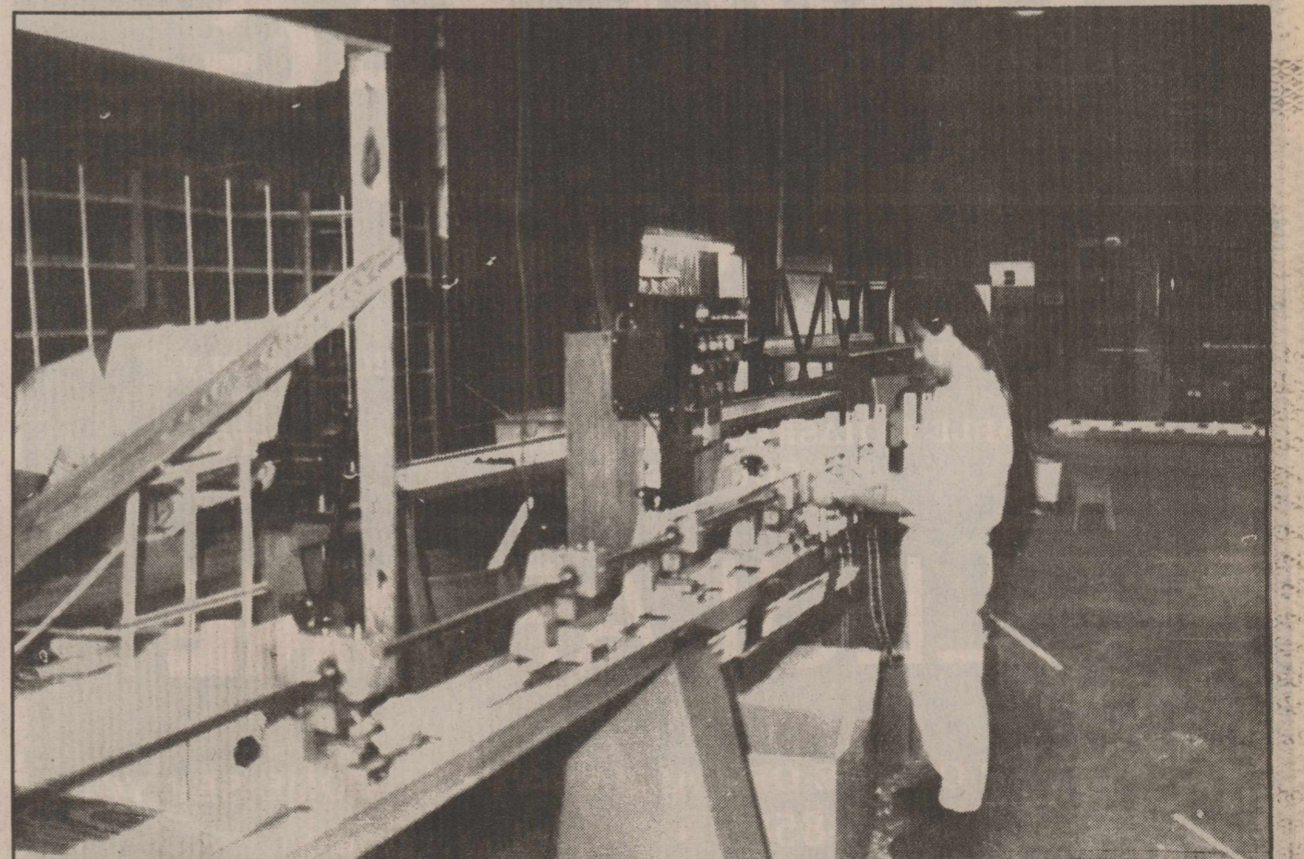

Both Buddy and Madge said that it was good to be back home. "I'm glad to be back home after all these many years. I'm here to stay," Buddy said.

Big Country Blinds is the second of two new businesses that the Economical Development Corporation of Haskell has helped to get started in business here in the community. The EDC was instrumental in helping the new company locate and acquire the building.

BACK HOME TO STAY - Buddy and Madge Thomas have moved back to Haskell, or home, to stay and have opened a branch operation of their mini and vertical blind company here.

BIG COUNTRY BLINDS - The branch location of the mini and vertical blind company began production on Monday, July 24 in Haskell. An employee is shown operating the machinery that cuts the aluminum blind material into slats.

Battle of the Bulge reunion

Veterans of World War II who served in the Battle of the Bulge, will meet in San Antonio, Sept. 3-6. The Battle of the Bulge was the greatest battle ever fought by the United States Army. This victory hastened the end of the war in Europe by inflicting a demoralizing defeat on Hitler's troops from which they never fully recovered.

The battle was fought Dec. 16, 1944 through Jan. 25, 1945, in the rugged mountains and dense forests of the Ardennes in Belgium and Luxembourg where the soldiers endured unprecedented bitter cold and snow. A sparsely spread line of American troops held firm against three powerful German armies, until reinforcements arrived. They paid a heavy price of over 81,000 casualties. Over 19,000 young Americans laid down their lives in this battle.

The Veterans of the Battle of the Bulge, Inc. (VBOB) will hold their annual reunion in conjunction with the VJ Day "End of the War Gala" and 50th anniversary of the Peace Accords which will immediately precede the VBOB observance. In addition to the social activities, the Bulge veterans will place a memorial plaque in the Admiral Nimitz Park in tribute to all who fought in the Battle of the Bulge.

VBOB is an international non-profit organization, having enrolled 14,000 members since its inception in 1981. For further information, write: P.O. Box 11129-P, Arlington, VA 22210-2129.

HEART ASSOCIATION AWARDS — Mary Rike, representing the Haskell County Heart Association, presented Haskell's awards to Kim Meredith, Development Chairperson, at the statewide Heart Association meeting in Fort Worth.

Kim Meredith receives Heart Association awards

The Texas Affiliate of the American Heart Association held its annual statewide meeting in Fort Worth on July 14 and 15. Volunteers from around the state gathered to attend training sessions, share ideas and to receive awards and recognition for their many hours of work in promoting the American Heart Association and helping in the fight against heart disease and stroke.

Mary Rike, representing the Haskell County Chapter, presented Haskell's awards to Kim Meredith, Development Chairperson, who had spent many hours organizing the local fund raisers and bringing them to completion. Haskell County received three awards as a result of the hard work of Meredith and all of the volunteers in the county. Haskell county was one of only two counties in the state of Texas that received three awards. Taylor County also received three awards.

The three awards received by Haskell County were: the Heart and Torch Award for achieving a new fund raising record and raising 13 cents per $1,000 of household income or more; the Outstanding Development Award for conducting the most outstanding development effort in Level I Divisions (50,000 or less population); and the Outstanding Division Award for achieving the most outstanding volunteer organization for Level I Divisions.

The Haskell County Chapter would again like to thank the citizens of this county for making this such a successful year. Many advances have been made and are continuing to be made in trying to eliminate American's number one killer.

Experience —
We consider it money in the bank.

A face lined by dry, hot summer days, harsh winter, and seven-day work weeks. But there is sparkle, too, remembering warm spring sun or gentle rains and acres of cotton.

Back when he started farming, a man's labor represented the majority of his investment in the farm. Over the years, when he's had to invest in land and equipment, he's turned to his Land Bank Association for competitive, long-term financing. At the Land Bank we not only place value on a man's farm, but his experience, too.

HIGHLIGHTS

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Gov. George W. Bush said last week that Texas should not duplicate the University of California's decision to discontinue programs aimed at making sure minorities get into state universities.

"I believe the Texas schools are doing everything in their power to try to recruit the best and brightest of our minority students," Bush told reporters.

The governor said he will examine Texas' affirmative action programs to see whether they are fair and inclusive for people they are designed to help.

"I think what Texas needs to do, which I intend to do, is to address what...we expect out of a program that tries to be inclusive," Bush said. "Is it an economic development device or is it a preference toward people who have already benefited from the system?"

"I don't think people in Texas like the idea of a few benefiting at the expense of others or that there be reverse discrimination. I think we ought to address that."

Bush said he would work with members of the General Services Commission, which oversees large contracts for state agencies, to look into race- and gender-based programs.

State law requires agencies to make a "good-faith effort" to spend 30 percent of public works contract budgets with businesses owned by women and minorities, known as historically underutilized businesses or HUBs.

"If the affirmative action programs are meant to be helpful to start-up companies... then we ought to design them so they're that way," Bush said.

3 Investment Firms Hired

The State Board of Education has broken with tradition by contracting with three private companies to invest $3.5 billion of the $12.2 billion Permanent School Fund this year and more next year.

The companies, Capital Guardian Trust Co. of Brea, Calif., Wellington Management Co. and Harbor Capital Management Co. Inc., both of Boston, Mass., plan to invest $1.2 billion in international markets — the first time in the history of the 141-year-old fund that investments will be made beyond U.S. borders, the Associated Press reported.

According to Texas Education Agency figures, the new "active" investment strategy could yield as much as $64.2 million more a year than a "passive" investment of $2 billion.

The trust fund is expected to provide $1.3 billion to Texas school districts in 1995-96.

Authority to contract with private investment firms was allowed by the 1995 Legislature's rewrite of the state education code, signed into law this spring by Gov. Bush.

Perry Square with EPA

Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry has not been lax in enforcing federal pesticide laws, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has concluded after conducting a three-month investigation.

Complaints against Perry's enforcement of the laws had been lodged by labor, consumer and environmental groups, who asked that the EPA usurp the Texas Agriculture Department's enforcement role.

Isolated problems the EPA found included record-keeping errors, untimely reporting and failure to document reasons when a penalty was changed from the recommendation of the department's review committee, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

"We did not find any major problems where we would even consider rescinding the agency's primary enforcement responsibility," said John Larson, life scientist with the EPA's Dallas office.

The EPA did, however, encourage Perry to beef up his department's communications and interaction with the public.

Mayors Fear Budget Cuts

Seventeen mayors attending the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Austin last week expressed fears to Vice President Al Gore that deficit-reduction efforts in Congress would devastate their cities.

The vice president agreed with the mayors and criticized Republican budget bills designed to reach a balanced budget in seven years.

"The budget resolution now being considered in the Congress would in fact be devastating to the cities of America," Gore said. "And it doesn't matter whether the mayor is a Democrat or a Republican."

Despite Gore's criticism, President Clinton appears ready to sign the measure after negotiating an easing of some cuts with congressional leaders.

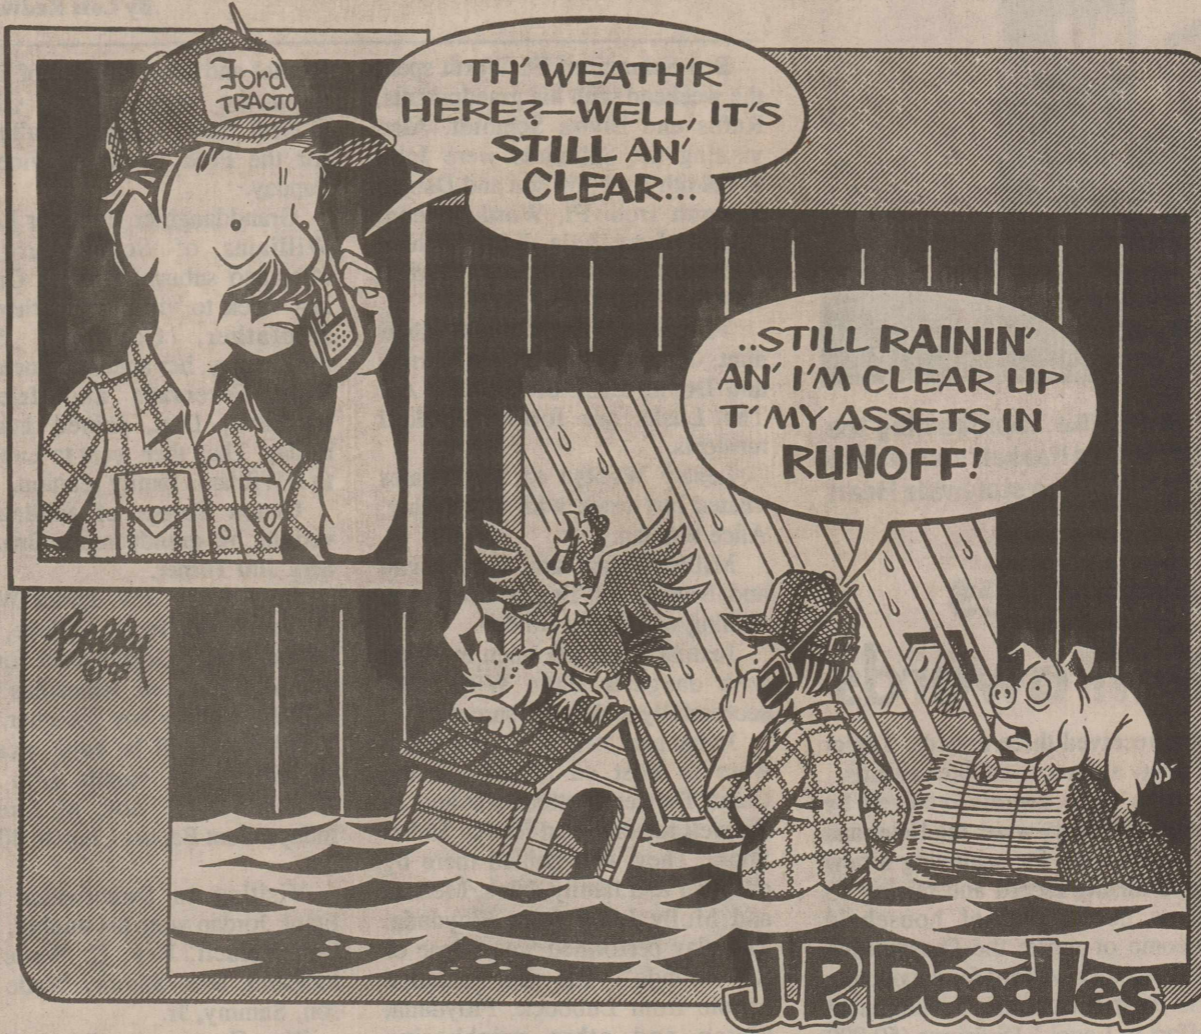

Kenedy Prison Opens

Texas' prison-building boom ended last week with the opening of a maximum-security facility in Kenedy, about 60 miles southeast of San Antonio.

The John B. Connally Unit, a 2,850 bed facility began accepting inmates on July 28 and likely will reach capacity within four weeks, Warden Dayton Poppell said.

The prison is the last of three maximum-security centers the state built under a $1.1 billion prison expansion program.

With the completion of the Connally Unit, the state now has 104 facilities representing about 132,000 prison beds, said Glen Castlebury, a spokesman for the Department of Criminal Justice.

Five young ladies from Jr. High in Haskell were participants in the 1975 Southwest Cheerleader Camp held on the campus of Cisco Junior College June 8-13. The camp was the twelfth annual workshop for high school and junior high cheerleaders held at CJC. Those attending were Tamra Parrott, Kim Lane, Cheryl Conner, Nancy Kimbrough and Cindy Everett.

The Haskell Girls Little League All-Stars romped past Fritch 22-3 Tuesday night in Childress to earn a berth in the final sectional game in Waco tonight, July 31. Kim Lane was the winning pitcher for Haskell going all the way. The final sectional game will be played in Waco and will be against the winner of the Waco district. In the first sectional game, Haskell defeated Hamlin 15-11 Monday night in Haskell.

Although rainfall for Haskell was below normal during July, with only 1.10 inches gauged by Sam Herren, "The Weatherman," the overall precipitation to date for the year is running above normal, according to figures released this week. Normal precipitation for July is 2.38. Up to Aug. 1, of this year, Haskell had received a total of Several cases of smallpox have been reported to the city and county authorities in the county and prevention is now being taken by physicians to halt any spread of the disease.

Slightly over $600,000 was poured into the pocketbooks of Haskell County farmers from various government cotton projects and through corn-hog contracts.

Following weeks of planning, an application for a government PWA grant has been made at Rochester for an addition to the present high school building by the board of trustees.

We saw an apple the other day brought by Mr. T.E. Bowman from the orchard of Mr. Mel Lowery, who resides about 16 miles north of Haskell, that measured 12 inches in circumference. The apple was well formed and appeared to be good in every way. The opinion prevails that apples will not do well in this section and there has been but little effort to grow them, but if such apples as this one from Mr. Lowery's place can be grown here, the prevailing opinion must undergo a change.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Once again American Legion Post 221, Rogers-Cox Post, has come to the aid of Scouting. A young man from Boy Scout Troop 136 went on a Canoe Trip to Canada recently. More than half of the cost of the trip was paid for by the American Legion Post 221.

Another young man was not going to attend Summer Camp this year because of finances. The American Legion Post 221 paid his way and the young man attended camp with his friends. This means a lot in the life of a young person.

We wish to express our thanks for all the support we receive from everyone in Haskell and especially to the American Legion for believing in the Scouting program and helping in so many ways.

Besides giving so much for our country in the past and for the support you give it in the present, you are giving a lot toward the development of the lives of our young people.

To begin with, we would like to express our gratitude to the Haskell National Bank for donating popcorn and the use of their popcorn machine. We would also like to thank Janie Rodriguez for all her time and efforts with our burrito fundraisers.

Finally, to everyone who supported us by purchasing popcorn, potatoes, Frito pies and burritos, we would like to offer a sincere "Thank You!" We have been successful in reaching our goals and look forward to entertaining you during the 1995 Haskell Junior High football season.

Legislative update on juvenile justice

By Att. Gen. Dan Morales
LAST SUMMER, in a report called "Fighting for Our Youth," we at the Office of the Attorney General proposed a number of reforms for our state's juvenile justice system.

Many of these recommendations were recently passed by the Texas Legislature and signed into law by Gov. Bush. I believe that these reforms go a long way toward addressing the complex problems of juvenile crime.

The law combines punishment with prevention — and harnesses the power of young people to be a part of the solution. I commend the Legislature for responding to the recent dramatic increase in juvenile violent crime by enacting tough reform measures.

For years, ever since working as a prosecutor in San Antonio, I have called for tougher sentences for violent juvenile offenders. Now, because of the new law, young criminals who once bragged about how they could commit a crime and be back on the streets in no time will be no longer bragging. They face real punishment and real prisons.

The law stiffens penalties for juveniles who commit the most serious crimes. It gives Texas Youth Commission authorities the right to transfer a juvenile offender who is at least 16 years old to state prison after an initial, specified time in a TYC facility. Before, the juvenile offender was only eligible for transfer to state prison at age 18. Also, the worst offenders who are paroled from TYC must now report to adult parole officers.

The new law also more than doubles the capacity of our juvenile corrections facilities, keeping young violent criminals in jail and off the streets. The law also increases the number of probation officers over the next four years.

I have long supported providing better information for law enforcement and less confidentiality for juvenile offenders. A new computerized database will allow law enforcement officials to share fingerprints, photographs, and other information on juveniles.

Laws that originally were written to protect youths from the "taint" of criminality have in fact been protecting repeat offenders from prosecution. The days when a juvenile could break the law and receive a slap on the wrist are over.

Once perpetrators are punished, they must be brought back into society. So in addition to tougher punishment, programs such as TYC industries, youth boot camps and Project Reintegration of Offenders (RIO) will help juvenile offenders make the transition back into society.

TYC Industries and Project RIO are public-private partnerships that provide job skills to juvenile offenders. Juveniles who participate in these programs will develop valuable job skills and use their income to pay restitution to crime victims. If necessary and applicable in their individual cases, they will also make child support payments out of their wages.

While the new laws will prove to be effective, they are only part of the answer. Some kids get into trouble because they have nothing better to do. We support programs that offer wholesome recreation and educational programs.

The problem of juvenile crime is complex. There is no magic bullet that will solve it overnight. It will take hard work and a determined effort by everyone to make these reforms work. Together, we can begin to put an end to juvenile crime. Together, we can make our state a better and safer place to live.

Local Scouts return from canoe trip

Five local Boy Scouts and Scouters returned this past weekend from Ely, Minn., where they were part of a three crew contingency of Chisholm Trail Council Scouts participating in a High Adventure canoeing experience into the Quetico Park in Ontario, Canada.

Departing from Abilene on July 18, the group stayed over night in Arlington where they enjoyed watching a Texas Ranger game before boarding a plane the next day for Deluth, Minn. They made the rest of the trip to Ely, the headquarters for the Charles L. Sommers Boy Scout Canoe Base located on Moose Lake, by bus.

The following morning, they were outfitted with canoes, food and equipment for an eight day voyage into the Canadian Wilderness. After a six-mile trip by canoe, they passed through the Canadian customs at Prairie Portage and actually entered Canadian waters.

If there was such a thing as an average day on this eight day voyage, the boys would rise at 6:30 a.m., prepare breakfast, strike camp and be on the water by 9 a.m. Using waters and portages established by the French Voyageurs in the early 1600s seeking pelts bound for Europe, the Scouts traveled an average of 10 miles a day before setting up a new camp and taking some time off for fishing, resting, visiting or simply enjoying the beautiful scenery.

The Scouts would prepare a hot evening meal, suspend their packs from ropes high in the trees away from the bears and gather at the lake's edge to watch the sun set and talk about the day's experiences. By 9 p.m., they were forced into their tents by the mosquitos, where there was always a few more stories to tell before going to sleep.

Although the crew had to learn how to fish for northern species, they managed to catch some Northern Pike, Lake Trout, small and large mouth Bass and perch. The elusive Walleye evaded them, but some of the other crews managed to catch a few. They also experienced the ever present leech which attaches to the legs while wading during portages and the biting flies who can bite through even the thickest socks.

During the voyage, the crew covered about 70 miles and made over 25 portages carrying canoes, packs of food and equipment weighing about 80 pounds each, over rugged granite terrain connecting the lakes. These portages would rise 100 feet or so and then drop into the next lake.

On some occasions, a portage would consist of following a connecting stream on foot which caused the trail to carry them through bogs and swamps.

They crossed lakes with names such as Basswood, North Bay, Isabella, Side, Sarah, Deer, Cecil, Robinson, Tuck, Sucker, New Found and Moose.

While in the park, members of the crew saw bear, loons, Bald and Golden Eagles, beaver, moose tracks on a river bottom, heron, Canadian Jays, and the normal campsite occupants, such as squirrel, chipmunk and mice.

The crew consisted of Marcus Overton, Casey Thompson and Wallar Overton (advisor) from Paint Creek; Jeffrey Dunnam (assistant advisor) from Munday; Caleb Brown from Haskell; and Jason Shackelford and John Phillips from Abilene. Two other crews from Abilene and Hamlin completed the contingency from the Chisholm Trail Council.

TAX PLANNING

Written By
James E. Rodgers, CPA

SHOULD YOU SELL OR TRADE IN YOUR BUSINESS CAR?

When you shop for a new car or truck, it is often tempting to accept the car dealer's offer to take your old vehicle as a trade-in, so that the exchange of vehicles is wrapped up on one transaction. But if you have your own business, and if you are buying or selling business vehicles, you need to consider the tax consequences before making final plans to trade in your old car or truck. First, calculate your tax basis in the vehicle by taking your original cost and subtracting all depreciation deducted. Then, check the market value of your old vehicle—would you have a profit or a loss from a sale? If you're facing a taxable gain, you are probably better off from a tax standpoint trading the vehicle in on the new one. The result: No gain is required to be reported on your tax return.

On the other hand, if your tax basis is more than the market value, consider selling the vehicle yourself. The sale of the vehicle will result in a loss which can be deducted on your tax return. A word of caution: Selling your old vehicle to the same dealer who sells you the new vehicle will be treated by the IRS as a trade-in. No loss deduction is allowed if the vehicle is traded instead of being sold.

Special rules apply if the old vehicle was used less than 100 percent for business or if the standard mileage allowance was used to figure vehicle expenses in prior years.

Calculate your tax basis before bargaining for a new business vehicle. Advance planning is the key to lowering the amount of income tax you pay.

Vesicular Stomatitis diagnosed in horse at McCaulley

On Friday, July 21, the Texas Animal Health Commission (TAHC) reported the state's first case of Vesicular Stomatitis (VS), diagnosed in a horse near McCaulley, a small town in eastern Fisher County, about 40 miles southwest of Haskell. The Vesicular Stomatitis virus outbreak began in New Mexico earlier this summer, where livestock on 127 premises now are under quarantine. Arizona has one case, and Colorado has four premises quarantined, all due to infection in horses.

"With a laboratory confirmed case in Texas, many other states will add extra health restrictions on livestock from Texas," said Dr. Max Coats, state epidemiologist for the TAHC, the state's livestock health regulatory agency. "Most states will require a certificate of veterinary inspection (health paper) for the animal, with a written statement from the veterinarian that the animals haven't been exposed to Vesicular Stomatitis, or been on or within 10 miles of an infected premise within the past 30 days."

For several weeks, TAHC inspectors have been working at inspection sites on roads in West Texas to check incoming livestock and health papers; and are assisting show, fair and rodeo officials with livestock inspection. Dr. Coats applauded New Mexico's effort to prevent the spread of the outbreak, pointing out that livestock officials there quarantined infected premises and restricted animal movement from surrounding premises within a 10-mile radius.

Vesicular Stomatitis can affect horses, cattle, sheep, goats and deer, causing blisters in and around the animals' mouths, on their tongues, hooves and teats. When the blisters break, large sections of skin slough, leaving painful open lesions. The animals become lame and unable to eat or drink until healing begins. Infection lasts about two weeks, and affected animals usually display symptoms two to eight days after exposure. To prevent the spread of infection, affected livestock must remain under quarantine until 30 days after their last lesion has healed.

"The infected horse at McCaulley apparently was exposed to the virus at an out-of-state event by an infected and contagious horse that was not yet showing symptoms," said Dr. Coats. "The infected horse in Texas, as well as two other horses exposed to the infected horse have been held in isolation and under veterinary care for the past two weeks."

"We make a preliminary diagnosis when symptoms appear and place an animal under quarantine, but an official diagnosis is dependent on laboratory results from the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture's National Veterinary Services Laboratory (NVSL) in Ames, Iowa. With the laboratory results in on the quarantined horse at McCaulley, no livestock within a 10-mile radius around the affected horse's premise are allowed to leave the area without a written permit until 30 days after the last lesion has healed and no spread is evident."

Dr. Coats noted that Vesicular Stomatitis rarely results in animal death, but it mimics foot-and-mouth disease, a foreign animal disease for which livestock officials remain on alert. Only laboratory tests run on blood and tissue samples can differentiate between the two diseases.

"Animals lose significant weight and conditioning when infected by Vesicular Stomatitis, so producers can suffer economic loss," said Dr. Coats. "During an outbreak in 1982, dairies in Colorado experienced a $253 per cow drop in production. Fortunately, so far during this year's outbreak, dairies and feedlots have been spared, but in other types of operations, similar losses can be expected if animals become debilitated."

To avoid the infection and resulting losses, many states have added restriction regarding Vesicular Stomatitis until further notice:

Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Hampshire, New York, North Dakota, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont and West Virginia.

In addition to the standard certificate of veterinary inspection on incoming livestock, these states require a written veterinary statement certifying that the livestock are not infected or exposed to the disease, and have not been on or within 10 miles of an infected premise during the past 30 days. Kentucky and Maine are prohibiting the entry of any livestock from states affected by Vesicular Stomatitis. Hawaii does not accept livestock from New Mexico, or livestock that has crossed through that state.

Until the outbreak has ended, Canada will not accept livestock that are from - or have been in - an infected state within the past 30 days. U.S. horses shipped into Canada from other states must pass through a veterinary inspection station.

Dr. Coats advised livestock owners to call other states prior to shipping animals to a destination, or just crossing a state, to determine if more restrictions have been added. He advised owners who have animals with characteristic Vesicular Stomatitis symptoms to contact their local practitioner, as well as their TAHC area office: the Austin headquarters at 512-719-0700, or the USDA at 512-482-5555. A trained disease diagnostician will be sent to the premise at no charge to assist in making the diagnosis.

WORSHIP TOGETHER

Where we love is home...home that our feet may leave, but not our hearts.
— Oliver Wendell Holmes

"...as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."
— Joshua 24:15

OUR FAMILIES SHOULD BE HELD TOGETHER BY FAITH

As our modern lifestyle becomes increasingly complex, it results in family members becoming less closely knit. Dad may travel in his work, or depending on world events, he may be serving in the military. Mom may have a job, or she may be an executive in a big corporation. The children's school day is often followed by sports, band practice, music or dancing lessons, a paper route, or a myriad other activities, and Mom may feel like a short order cook, trying to feed her family at different times. So where is the family "togetherness?" It's at the House of Worship, where they should go together as often as possible, and learn that they are all God's children, equally blessed by His love.

Green Thumb

By Gladys O'Neal

Summer, with its arrival, brings attention to shady areas adjacent to terraces, decks, and courtyards. These areas are good places for caladiums, coleus, begonias and impatiens. Our area is too hot and windy for impatiens.

Now is the time to cut hollyhocks off at the ground level, fertilize and water. Perennials can be cut back and some will bloom again. If you plan to grow pansies, the seeds should be planted now in moist soil.

Plants that show signs of red spiders should be dusted thoroughly with sulphur or malathion.

When spading the ground for fall planting, plant more seeds than you would in the spring, because germination is poorer at this season than in the spring. Keep feeding chrysanthemums with liquid manure.

If you are interested in compost and want to make some in your home, toss vegetables and produce scraps in a blender or chop them finely. Put them in a plastic bag and mix in one cup of garden soil or lawn soil. Do not use potting soil. Let the cup of garden soil be for every two cups of kitchen scraps. The soil starts the microbes working which starts the compost process.

If this material is dry, add one fourth of a cup of water. The material should be moist, but not soaking wet. Keep the bag sealed and shake once a day to keep the contents mixed. Open the bag for a few hours every three days to let air in and moisture out. If the odor is strong, the contents are too wet. In four to six weeks after the time you stop adding scraps, the compost should be finished.

Among materials that should not be used are meats and dairy wastes. The compost should be worked well into the soil in the fall. It will slowly decompose and provide a good mix of nutrients for your plants next spring. However your plants will still benefit from feedings of a balanced fertilizer.

If you notice any yellowing foliage, check for lacebugs. Black dots of excrement on the underside of leaves are a sure sign of their presence. Adult lacebugs are only 1/10 to 1/8 inch long, so you may need a magnifying glass to see their netlike transparent wings. Spray with insecticidal soap, according to label directions.

Ladybugs are garden friends. They feed on aphids, mealy bugs, and spider mites. When they reduce the pest population in one area, they move to another area for more food.

For ordering ladybugs, use this address: Gardens Alive, 5100 Schenly Pl., Lawrenceburg, Indiana 47025 or phone 812-537-8650.

Handy Hints:

To hold the soil in your pots, use a coffee filter in the bottom to hold the soil and let the water go through.

Hang an old shoe bag to your garden cart to hold hand tools.

To keep fleas off your house dogs, add one teaspoon of apple cider vinegar to one quart of their drinking water.

To keep cats out of your flower beds, combine one-half cup of crushed moth balls, two tablespoons cayenne pepper and two tablespoons black pepper. Spread over the ground.

Use large salt shakers for a handy dispenser for planting seeds in neat rows.

USDA not to require acreage reduction for '96 wheat program

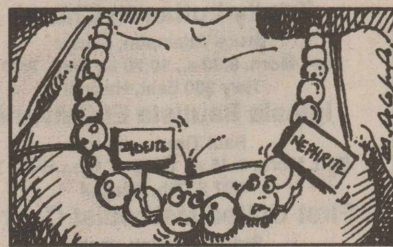

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman announced that he intends not to require wheat producers to idle land for the 1996 wheat program.

"Official announcement of the provisions of the 1996 wheat program cannot be made until new farm legislation is passed by Congress and signed into law by the President," Glickman said. "However, wheat farmers will be making 1996 planting decisions in the upcoming weeks and they need to know as much as possible about next year's program."

"Since USDA expects a continued tight supply/demand situation, both here and abroad, producers should plan that the 1996 wheat program will probably not include any acreage reduction requirements. However, this may change depending upon the outcome of the Farm bill and any major changes in market conditions."
