Haskell gears up tor Wild Horse Prairie Days

Shooting investigation continues

As of Tuesday at noon, three more arrests had been made in relation to the fatal shooting of Snyder High School senior, Marlowe Deshawn Riggins, that occurred Sunday, May 5, in Haskell.

Chris Lee Collins, 18, of Haskell was arrested Wednesday, May 8, and is being held on probation violation. Collins, who was on felony probation for burglary at the time of the shooting, admitted to firing shots in the direction of the area where Riggins was killed. Collins, who was charged with Burglary of a Building on Nov. 17, 1995, has had previous probation violations up to the date of the shooting.

Lucius Lamont Thompson, 18, of Sweetwater is the third person to be arrested in relation to the shooting. According to Sweetwater Police Chief Jim Kelly, Thompson was picked up on a warrant of arrest for deadly conduct at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, May 14, at Sweetwater High School.

The fourth person to be arrested in relation to the shooting is Donna Hoover McCulloch of Haskell. She was arrested shortly before noon on Tuesday, May 14 for violation of probation. The shooting occurred at the McCulloch house on Ave. M. McCulloch was originally arrested on Aug. 27, 1992 for Delivery of a Controlled Substance, Namely Cocaine and was given a ten year probated sentence. A 16-year-old is also being held in Taylor County Juvenile Detention Center. He was arrested the day of the shooting.

According to Haskell Police Chief Tom Bassett, the investigation of the shooting has revealed that two more shots had been fired Sunday (the day of the shooting), one at 6 a.m. and one at noon; neither was reported to police.

Casey and Sarah bring home the silver

Haskell High School juniors Casey Burgess and Sarah Cothron brought home silver medals from the State UIL academic meet in Austin. Burgess placed second in prose and Cothron took second in feature writing.

Burgess qualified for the finals with his reading of "Paul," and read "This Boy's Life" in the finals.

Cothron and other participants in the 1A-5A State feature writing competition interviewed Josh Davis, an Olympic swimmer who is ranked No. 1 in the world in the 200 meter freestyle.

"The interview with Josh was so interesting and inspiring that it alone made the trip worthwhile. Josh has a really positive message about being an athlete as well as a Christian," Cothron said.

Burgess advanced to Regional in informative speaking and prose, while Cothron advanced in five events—news, feature and editorial writing, calculator and mathematics. Cothron competed last year in the state newswriting and editorial writing contests, placing 6th in state. She also competed in calculator.

Besides their UIL activities, both students are active in school activities. Burgess is class president, an all-state basketball player, vice president of FFA, FCA and the 1996-97 NHS. He is a Student Council member and will represent the school at Boys State in the summer. Cothron is editor of the War Whoop for the second year, member of the NHS, Quill and Scroll, secondary math and science team, FCA and CSO.

Library Notes

Our summer reading program begins June 19 and ends with a party July 24. The story time for pre-K through third grade will begin at 10 a.m. on June 19. It will run 30 minutes every Wednesday morning for six weeks. Any child pre-K through fifth grade is encouraged to come in and sign up for the summer reading program. Each child needs their parent's permission and must fill out a library card with their name, parents name, address and phone number. Also one reference has become necessary. If a child has books out from the library, they must be returned and fines paid before they can sign up for summer reading.

The replacement cost of lost and damaged books has risen a great deal in the past year and it is imperative that we get our books back without this extra overhead cost. Fines for past due books is five cents per book per day. And the check out period is two weeks.

The third graders and their teachers Dianne Huff, Melody Christian and Donna Waggoner will interest you have snown proves that be visiting the library Wednesday you must agree. Again thank you morning May 22 at 10 a.m. They come each year and fill out library cards, hear about how the library works and learn about the summer reading program. They are always a delight to visit with and answer their questions.

Hartsfield, a 1971 graduate of Haskell High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hess Hartsfield of Haskell.

According to a recent news story in The Durango Herald, Prof. Hartsfield brings humor, energy and empathy to his work at the college. He also brings to the classroom an impressive commitment to teaching and scholarship that both inspires and motivates his students to explore the classic themes in literature and how those themes apply to their own lives.

It is for this passion for teaching and dedication to his students that he was chosen as the recipient of this outstanding award. Hartsfield undertakes teaching with a sense of awe and excitement. "I sometimes can't believe I'm getting paid to talk with students who are interested in ideas. To watch as they realize how ideas and literary themes impact their lives is truly an amazing experience," he says.

Hartsfield's classes explore a broad range of literature and ideas, from surveys in American Literature to Myth and Symbol in Contemporary American Film. Not only does he teach the classics of American literature, but he stretches his own wings as a scholar and learner to bring his students penetrating new looks at modern American culture as expressed in its literature and media.

Hartsfield also spends time outside the classroom with his students, advising more than 50 students each semester—roughly twice the college average. He served as advisor to the student newspaper, The Independent, from 1985 to 1995 and was a board member to the college's radio station from 1986 to 1993.

An accomplished poet and author, Hartsfield has published a half-dozen poems, 10 journal and encyclopedia articles, nine book reviews and written two books, including American Studies Association Annotated Historical Bibliography and The American Response to Professional Crime, 1870–1917.

Hartsfield received his bachelor's degree in English from Abilene Christian University in 1974, his master's degree from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale in 1976 and his doctorate in American Civilization from the University of Texas at Austin in 1982. He taught at the University of Texas for two years prior to joining Fort Lewis College in 1984.

His wife, Stephanie Tesitor-Hartsfield, teaches fifth grade in Farmington.

May is buckle up America month

May is Buckle Up America month and Campaign Safe and Sober is spreading the message about the dangers of not wearing a safety belt.

You may not realize it, but 75 percent of all crashes happen within 25 miles of home. And you don't have to get on a major roadway to get killed. The majority of crashes where someone is killed or hurt occur on roads with posted speed limits of 45 miles per hour or less.

Sue Bryant with the Texas Dept. of Transportation says buckling up can mean the difference between life and death. She says most Texans are aware of the safety belt law, but they're not as well informed about child safety.

Children up to two years old must be restrained in a child safety seat. Children ages two to four must be in a child safety seat or a safety belt.

Almost 72 percent of Texans buckle up. One of the goals of Campaign Safe and Sober is to improve compliance by enhancing enforcement and increasing education and public information.

"This conference will provide the latest information on prevention, treatment and management of health problems often associated with diabetes," said Pamela Foster, Childress County extension agent, a member of the planning committee. Professionals who are required to earn continuing education units (CEUS) will receive four credits from Vernon Regional Junior College.

AUSTIN - Attorney General Dan Morales continued to wage war on the tobacco industry last week when he suggested Texas sell more than $500 million in tobacco stocks it holds in its pension and endowment funds.

"Texas should not be in business with those who seek to do our children harm. Our state should repudiate its financial involvement in these unconscionable efforts to profiteer at the expense of our children's lives," Morales told the Dallas Morning News.

But Jack Maroney, an attorney for Philip Morris Inc., a defendant in the lawsuit, characterized Morales' plea to dump tobacco stocks as "another attack on business."

In late March, Morales filed suit against the tobacco industry on federal racketeering charges.

Last week, Morales wrote letters requesting the sell-off to the Teachers Retirement System, the Employees Retirement System, the Permanent University Fund and the Permanent School Fund, the Morning News reported.

Morales spokesman Ron Dusek said the attorney general was obligated to tell the state funds that "tobacco stock will plummet" as a result of litigation against the industry, and that his letters were made public because his advice could affect the stock market.

The largest investor in tobacco stocks of the four funds is the Teacher Retirement System, which holds $413 million.

Also last week, State Board of Education chairman Jack Christy of Houston said the 14-member panel would meet this week and discuss Morales' request to sell tobacco stock in the Permanent School Fund, which the board oversees, the Houston Chronicle reported.

Christy told the Chronicle he believes it is morally wrong for the state to invest education dollars in tobacco stocks. "On one hand we're telling the kids (smoking) is evil, and on the other hand we're taking the tobacco industry's

Ray Sullivan, a spokesman for Gov. George W. Bush, said the governor would leave the decision of whether to divest tobacco stocks with the boards that govern the four funds.

Policyholders of Allstate and Farmers have a lawsuit pending in a South Texas state court alleging the companies have overcharged customers more than $100 million over the last decade.

Spokesmen for Allstate and Farmers said the companies would comply with Bomer's order.

Bomer has acknowledged that the insurance companies were misinformed by state regulators about how to calculate premiums.

In other news, Bomer adopted a fraud-prevention policy that requires new insurance agents to be fingerprinted and submit to criminal background checks.

Bomer said that every year consumers are defrauded by a few agents who would not have been issued a license if they had disclosed their criminal records to the Texas Department of Insurance.

The policy will go into effect this summer.

Morales Gets Party Help

Victor Morales, the Democratic nominee for the seat now occupied by Republican U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, said last week he would accept help from party headquarters in Washington, D.C., but he would not take orders from a campaign coordinator.

"The bottom line is that I will still be my own man. No one is going to tell me what to do," Morales told the Austin American-Statesman.

Greg Weiner, an aide to U.S. Sen. Bob Kerry, D-Neb., and Morales' new campaign coordinator, said Morales' desire to remain the decision-maker is not a problem. "Victor has got a winning strategy. There is no need to change a single thing about that."

Morales said he could no longer do all the work that running a statewide campaign requires and will turn over the day-to-day logistics to Weiner.

■ Austin had the biggest increase in violent crime in the nation from 1994 to 1995 among the 73 cities with a population of at least 200,000, according to the FBI and U.S. census. Violent crimes reported during the period. including murder, rape, robbery and aggravated assault, increased from 3,249 to 4,050, or 24.65 percent.

Austin could become the first major city in the United States to require all bicyclists to wear protective helmets under a proposed mandatory helmet law. Thirteen states and many counties and cities have bike helmet laws. but most of those laws only require children to wear helmets, according to the Bicycle Federation of America.

Social Security For the times that count, count on Social Security

"For the times that count, count on Social Security." That's the theme for Social Security's new multimedia public service campaign. The campaign is designed to encourage people to learn more about what their Social Security tax dollars are buying, according to Ken Hargis, Social Security manager in Abilene.

"Unfortunately, many people think of Social Security as a retirement program, but Social Security actually is a program for people of all ages," Hargis said. "It pays benefits to people with disabilities and to the families of deceased workers."

"Young people who worry about whether Social Security will be there when they're ready to retire don't realize that it protects them right now," Hargis said. "For example, if they became disabled and couldn't work for a year or longer, they could get monthly benefits." More than four million people with disabilities are getting benefits today and another 1.6 million of their dependents get benefits, too.

Campaign materials encourage people to call and ask for the booklet, Basic Facts About Social Security. People who do will learn

·younger Americans face roughly a one in five chance of dying before reaching 65;

•more than seven million people get survivors benefits and two million of them are children;

•the average monthly payment to a disabled worker with a spouse and two children is $1,100. They'll also learn where they can get additional information, including a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement.. The statement gives workers an estimate of what their retirement, disability, and survivors benefits might be and can help them plan financially for their and their family's future.

Social Security was never intended to be the sole source of income. It should be supplemented with pensions, savings and other investments. "By telling people what they can expect from Social Security, we hope they'll be in a better position to secure their financial future," Hargis said.

The campaign includes television, radio and print public service announcements in English and Spanish.

Legal Matters

TO ONE WANTS to live next door to a public nuisance - especially if it's a rowdy bar where hundreds of people have been arrested for illegal alcohol violations. Other should be considered: problem locations can include crack houses, brothels, or gang headquarters. But with the help of the Attorney General's Civil Enforcement Section, local communities can hold property owners responsible if they allow their premises to be used as centers for criminal activ-

Any type of property, such as a business, apartment complex, rental property, or private residence, can be closed down by court order under laws called nuisance abatement statutes. Often, just the threat of legal action can motivate a negligent landlord to clean up his act.

What to do

When a public nuisance exists, you can organize residents and responsible property owners in your neighborhood to take action. You can request that the city, county, or district attorney hold a meeting so that you can voice your complaints. If they find that a public nuisance exists, the local prosecuting attorney, or the Attorney General, may initiate a nuisance action.

Ask: Is there a problem?

Our office has come up with a test to help law enforcement agencies determine whether a suspected site is a nuisance under Texas law. If you can answer "yes" to a majority of the following questions, then a public nuisance action

•Is the house or business habitually used for criminal activity, such as drug dealing, prostitution, gambling, discharging of a firearm, organized criminal activity, or the illegal use of alcohol?

•Is there a history of at least six arrests for these activities at that location?

•Will this activity continue indefinitely if action is not taken to prevent it? •Is there a common reputation in the surrounding area that the location is a haven for illegal activi-• Have the lives and businesses of people in the surrounding area suffered or been adversely affected by the nuisance?

•Is the house or business unsanitary?

Who's at fault?

A number of parties can be sued regarding the nuisance, including the management company, the manager of the premises, the owner of the property, the person leasing the property, or any combination of these. It is not necessary to prove that any of these parties are participants in criminal activity. The suit must only show that crimes are occurring on the prop-

If the suit goes to trial and a nuisance is found to exist, the court may close down the property for one year. It can be reopened only if the owner or operator of the property posts a $10,000 bond. (The bond is $1,000 for Texas Alcoholic Beverage Code violations). But if criminal activities resume, the court can forfeit the bond and shut down the property for one

by Atty. Gen. Dan Morales

Although it is effective, shutting down the house or business is not the only remedy available. You can have the utilities shut off or the certificate of occupancy revoked. In addition, the use of city streets and other public access may be denied as long as the nuisance persists. The owner or operator may also face fines and jail time for civil contempt.

Help is available

You are not alone; our office can help. Our Narcotics Control and Vice Interdiction Section assists local communities across the state in pursuing nuisance abatement actions. The section provides relevant legal forms to the various investigating agencies and, upon request, participates in investigations and representation of these agencies in the nuisance actions before civil courts.

Submitted by Sam Bitner.

It seems then, that Christians may forget Christ! There could be no need for this loving exhortation, if there were not a fearful supposition that our memories might prove treacherous. Nor is this a bare supposition: it is, alas! too well confirmed in our experience, not as a possibility, but as a lamentable fact.

It appears almost impossible that those who have been redeemed by the blood of the dying Lamb, and loved with an everlasting love by the eternal Son of God, should forget that gracious Savior; but, if startling to the ear, it is, alas! too apparent to the eye to allow us to deny the crime.

Forget Him who never forgot us! Forget Him who poured His blood forth for our sins! Forget Him who loved us even to the death! Can it be possible? Yet, it is not only possible, but conscience confesses that it is too sadly a fault with all of us, that we suffer Him to be as a wayfaring man tarrying but for a night. He who we should make the abiding tenant of our memories is but a visitor therein.

The cross where one would think that memory would linger, and unmindfulness would be an unknown intruder, is desecrated by the feet of forgetfulness. Does not your conscience say that this is true? Do you not find yourselves forgetful of Jesus? Some creature steals away your heart and you are unmindful of him upon whom your affection ought to be set. Some earthly business engrosses your attention when you should fix your eye steadily upon the cross.

Haskell High recipient of TxDOT grant

For the past several years TxDOT has made grants available through its Traffic Operations division to support Project Graduation. The money is divided between the state's 25 districts who then determine the amount of each grant based on the number of high schools participating in their individual district. It is one of TxDOT's most popular and wellreceived projects offered throughout the state, transportation officials

Haskell High School has again been named a recipient of a $250 mini-grant from the Texas Dept. of Transportation's Abilene district for Project Graduation 1996.

In addition to the grant, Brenda Mitchell, Abilene district traffic safety coordinator, visited the high school and presented the Project Graduation chairperson with colorful key chains and bumper stickers for each of the 51 graduates. These mementos bear the slogan, "U booze, U cruise, U lose." Several T-shirts bearing the same slogan were also donated to be used as door prizes. "The graduation keepsakes are a reminder to the students to remain alcohol-free around prom and graduation time,' Mitchell said.

"Haskell is among 23 high schools in the Abilene district receiving a $250 grant each for Project Graduation 1996," Mitchell

Project Graduation was originally developed to assist rural schools with their celebrations and began in 1984 with only two schools. In 1989, the first year the department provided mini-grants to rural schools, they had 59 recipients. The program proved so successful, it was expanded to include all high schools. This year 39 schools will participate in this

Mitchell said the mini-grants are not intended to fully fund a Project Graduation event, but to provide a small incentive for schools to start and support alcohol/drug-free, safe events for the students.

This Week's Devotional Message:

FAITH REMINDS US THAT ANIMALS ARE ALSO GOD'S CREATURES

Many people have become concerned about what they consider the abuse of animals, such as using them in unnecessarily painful experiments or killing them for fur coats. These questions may never be settled, but kindness to animals is a valid and timeless virtue. This includes the love and proper care of your pets, by you and your children. It also includes respect for our wildlife species, which are declining at an alarming rate because of the relentless march of progress and recreational activity in their habitat areas. Like us, the animals are God's creatures, and they contribute to our environment in more ways than most of us realize. At our House of Worship, we learn to love and respect all of God's creations and that animals are a vital part of it.

TAX PLANNING

Written By Richard E. Rodgers, CPA

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO KEEP THE TAX MAN FROM INHERITING YOUR ESTATE?

You've taken care of your income taxes for another year, but have you thought about estate taxes? With rates of up to 55%, estate taxes can take a far bigger bite than any year's income taxes. But it doesn't have to be that way. With proper planning you can minimize the impact of estate taxes, leaving more of your hard-earned estate to the people you choose. And estate planning doesn't just minimize taxes. It can provide for management of your affairs if you become incapacitated, specify who would take care of your children if you die prematurely, or help ensure a smooth transition of your family business.

Because the first $600,000 of your estate is exempt from taxes, you may think that estate planning need not be a concern. But don't overlook the appreciation in the value of your home, the value of any life insurance policies you own, and the value of your IRA and other retirement plans. All of these are included and can boost the amount of your estate over $600,000 and into the taxable range. There are a number of techniques available to minimize or eliminate taxes, starting with a basic will and including an annual gift program, a variety of trusts for specialized purposes, and even more sophisticated techniques for family business owners.

Surveys show that most Americans ignore estate planning, with an alarming number lacking even a simple will. But like most things, the earlier you start, the easier it is to achieve your objectives. And even if you already have a will or an estate plan, don't forget to update it as your financial and personal circumstances change and as tax law

Now is the ideal time to undertake estate planning or to review your existing plan. You have the advantage of having just assembled your tax and financial information for income tax purposes. Call if you'd like assistance or details; we're here to help.

For advantages of career families to outweigh the disadvantages four major challenges must be met.

1. Resolving personal guilt for being a working parent

2. Devoting quality time to child and spouse, while still finding time

3. Feeling happy and satisfied with their job

4. Acquiring quality child care. This also extends to the older child who may come home alone after school.

If balancing all of this is weighing heavy on you, you might be interested in finding some solutions at Partners for Children meeting Tuesday, May 21, at the Haskell Elementary School at 7

Some of the positives of having both parents working could include children learning to assume more responsibility. They develop a sense of teamwork in the family which helps them become more self-reliant. They develop a sense of teamwork in the family which helps them become more selfreliant. They often develop problem-solving skills that builds self-esteem. Parents working outside the home add to the financial security of the family and jobs often provide self-fulfillment, which in turn builds self-esteem. Working and maintaining the family provides models for a strong work ethic for children.

Philadelphian

By Oleta Cornelius Reporter

Carbon Monoxide, "What you can't see, can hurt you," was the topic of the program presented by Lou Gilly, Haskell Co. Extension Agent, at the Rule Philadelphian Club on April 18.

President Orheana Greeson welcomed members and guests. Members answered roll call with home safety tips. The tips included a variety of items and ways persons could be more safety conscience and make their home safer.

Members were reminded that it was time to pay club dues and also that the next meeting on May 16, at 11:30 a.m. would be officer installation and a salad luncheon with members each bringing a salad.

Program director for the day, Oleta Cornelius, led the group in the pledge to the United States Flag. Federation news was given by Nell Estes.

Lou Gilly was introduced by the program director and spoke on carbon monoxide poisoning and how easily it could be compared with other illnesses. She gave clues on carbon monoxide poisoning for club members to be aware of. Mrs. Gilly also recommended purchasing carbon monoxide detectors. A question and answer period followed her talk. In appreciation of her program, Mrs. Gilly was presented a gift from the club.

Bertha McQuinn led the group in reading the Club Collect in unison and the meeting was concluded for fellowship and refreshments.

The serving table, covered with an ecru cloth held an arrangement of spring flowers in a crystal vase. Fresh bluebonnet and other floral arrangements completed the decorations. Refreshments of an assortment of cookies and coffee were served by hostesses Swede Kittley and Bertha McQuinn.

FCE Council

By Dolores Medford, Reporter

On April 17, the Haskell County Family and Community Education Clubs met at the County Extension office with ten members and three guests present. Chairman Jane Smith called the meeting to order.

Myrtle Phemister from the Weinert Club gave the recitation titled "Be Thankful and Happy." Club presidents gave reports from their club meetings to council. Minutes of the last council meeting were read by secretary, Betty Sanders and approved. A treasurer's report was given by Lennie Blankenship. Report from the yearbook committee was that the yearbook would be worked on the last of August. The finance committee reported on helping some on the all-night graduating party in May and they also reported on the senior scholarship.

A report from the TAFCE was that the April 5 statewide and national response of "Tune Out Violence on TV" was very good.

Eleven members were present at the district meeting in Henrietta in April

The County Extension Agent, Lou Gilly, gave a report on several interesting things coming in April. At Weatherford on April 23, and April 27, a forum for women and a seminar for women. In San Antonio on June 4, the 70th anniversary celebration for Texas Extension Clubs. The arts and crafts show will be at Brownwood 4-H Center and not at State Meeting this year.

The Haskell County 4-H'ers did very good in the fashion show this year. Halee Walton and J.J. Comedy will be going to State in the Senior Division. Lou also reported that a very good speaker, Dr. Terry Urnosky, lecturer and professional counselor from Texas Tech in Lubbock, would be at the parenting seminar in Munday on April 18.

Thank you notes were received from 4-H'ers J.J. Comedy and Amanda Crawford, thanking the Extension Ladies for working and helping the 4-H'ers in the Haskell Co. Fashion Show.

A committee was appointed of Chairman-Betty Sanders, Vice-Chairman-Alice Yates, Secretary-Dolores Medford, to set date, time and place for information day in September.

The Haskell Young Home-makers met Monday, April 1, for the annual Tour of Homes. Eleven members carpooled first to the home of Robert Ace and Brenda Turner of Rule. Best perennials to plant in Texas

The trend is to plant perennials instead of annuals this year. Extension horticulturist, Dr. Bill Welch says many people would rather have their flowers come up year after year and not have to replant like you do with annuals.

For spring bloom, you might choose yarrow, allium, artemisia, irises or ox-eyed daisies. For summer, some of the better choices include Turks cap, lantanas and day lilies. He says the Turks cap is good for attracting hummingbirds.

Green Thumb

By Gladys O'Neal

May is a busy month for us who grow flowers. We need to be ready to work outside. The gladiolus that are about to bloom should be supported with a strong stake. To store anemone bulbs, hang them in bags in a cool dry place.

Keep pinching chrysanthemums back, and if climbing roses are finished blooming, cut them back. Prune all shrubs that have finished blooming and don't delay because this is the only time to prune early flowering shrubs.

Now is the time to fertilize the lawn with commercial plant food. To make the porch or yard both more beautiful, set the potted plants outside.

When setting out tomato plants, place on heaping tablespoon of Epsom salts in the hole, then set

If you replace your storm door, do not throw the old one away. Use it to make a greenhouse to start spring plants. Build a made-to-fit box using two hinges to open it easily during warm daylight hours.

To keep critter out of your garden, try this concoction: In a the plant. This procedure keeps the nematodes away.

three qt. jar, mix six eggs (shells and all) and a half bottle of hot sauce. Then fill the jar with water until it is three-fourths full, cap it tightly and let it ferment for five days. Hold you nose and spread around your garden. It is guaranteed to keep four-legged creatures away.

I am repeating a hint that can be used around sensitive plants. Place small piles of orange peelings around the plants. The next morning, slugs in great abundance will be feasting on the peelings. Then scoop up the creatures and drop them into a bucket of water to drown them.

If your irises look bad or do not bloom, dig the rhizomes and trim away the damaged tissue. Soak them for one-half hour in a ten percent solution of household bleach and water. Dust them with powdered sulfur and let cut surfaces air dry in a shady place for several hours before replanting. Another hint about irises is to clean around them. Remove all the old dried iris leaves and other debris to eliminate over--wintering eggs.

If you are a rose grower, now is the time to set out new rose plants. Follow instructions with the rose and water them well this summer.

It is best to water in the morning and avoid wetting the leaves. Water the rose well before fertilizing. The rose should be fertilized through August. To avoid mildew and black spots, spray weekly with Funginex or Orthenez. To rid the roses from insects, use Malathion or Diazinon and for Japanese beetles, use liquid Sevin

Roses need at least six hours of sun a day. A morning sun is best because it dries the dew off the leaves helping to prevent fungus.

I hope I have given you hints that you may be able to use in your flower growing, because it is so much fun.

May is a great month to hit the antiques trail. These places entice the confirmed collector. I fall in this group because I am looking for old washboards to shining silver. I am also looking for interesting pieces of glass, pottery, or something that will serve as a flower container.

May is certainly prime country time. It is for those with a deep respect for our natural world made with beautiful color and fragrance of

Too, we may think of butter churns and butter beans and wear our red bandanas and old blue ieans.

Mysterious illness continues to plague

Over the past year and a half, more than 600 Texas horses have been diagnosed with a mysterious disease known as Equine Infectious Anemia or EIA. Nearly all of the cases of EIA in Texas are centered in the eastern portion of the state. Reasons for this are not known yet, but it is believed by researchers that the higher concentration of horses in East Texas versus West Texas plays an important factor.

'That particular area of the state has been a problem so there must be some local situation either with the border or with horses in that part of the state," said Dr. Michael Martin with the Equine Field service of College Station. "You could make a case that there is more concentration of horses in that part of the state."

Little is know about EIA because there is an insufficient amount of research being done on horses with the disease. "Equine research money is very limited because it is not a food-producing animal," said Martin.

EIA has horse breeders and veterinarians across the state bewildered because researchers are uncertain about how the disease is transmitted from horse to horse. The horse fly has been proven to transmit the disease, but other ways of transmission are still being studied. One of these examples is non-disposable needles.

"Years ago before disposable needles were in common use if a needle was used to vaccinate a horse or to give an antibiotic, it was used in a group of horses," Martin said.

Once testing positive for EIA, the horse never rids itself of the virus. Because there is no treatment available for EIA at this time, horse owners have a limited number of options.

'The horses can either be put down, sent to a research facility or be sold immediately for slaughter," Martin said.

Even though a test is available to detect EIA, Animal Health the disease was first discovered. No cases of Mad Cow Disease have

Commission had no authority over the infected horses until last year. "There had been no regulation to quarantine and follow up and try and determine where these positive horses were being exposed," Martin

Even the test may reveal incorrect results because when EIA infects a horse it virtually conceals itself until the animal becomes stressed. A horse can be infected up to two to four weeks without the virus being detected.

"This particular virus has the ability to hide in the bone or in the cells, where the actual natural immune system cannot totally rid the body of that virus," Martin said. Once the horse is stressed, signs of the virus become visible and at this stage the virus can be detected. The problem is that stress is not easily defined.

to other diseases might affect the horse. These situations would cause it to develop a fever, or to have some kind of a stressful situation," Martin said. Because stress is an important factor in EIA horses that travel to races or shows are highly susceptible to the disease.

"If you have a horse that is limited to its own backyard or small farm, the exposure would not be very great which certainly would not put the horse at as great of risk as an animal that is traveling," said Martin. The stressful environment of traveling can activate the disease and cause it to attack the horse's system. The symptoms for EIA include fever, weight los, depression and swelling around the legs and chest.

Martin believes if EIA infects the costly race and show horses the regulations surrounding the horse industry could become more stringent. This also could prompt researchers to do more tests and even possibly work toward a
