Notify Social Security of moves promptly

If you're a Social Security beneficiary and you moved recently, be sure to notify the Social Security Administration (SSA) assoon as possible. Failure to report their new address when they move is the most frequent reason beneficiaries do not receive their Social Security checks.

If your benefits are directly deposited into your bank account, you may not have remembered to notify SSA when you moved. But Social Security needs your current address so you can receive agency notices about your benefits. And now you're approaching the time of year when it's particularly important that SSA has your correct address. For example, in January you will be mailed a Social Security Benefit Statement (Form SSA-1099). You need this form to determine whether or not you will have to pay federal income tax on any Social Security benefits you received in 1996.

To report an address change, contact your local office or call SSA's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. any business day. The lines are busiest early in the week and early in the month, so it's best to call

DPS now offers photo D card

Many airlines now require ticket holders to present governmentissued photo identification cards prior to boarding planes-and the Department of Public Safety's

that requirement. "Any Texas, any age, can get a photo ID card at any DPS Driver License Office," said Frank Elder, deputy administrator of the DPS Driver Licensing and Control Bureau. "People who don't have a driver license often find themselves in need of an official photo ID, whether for cashing checks, proof of age, air travel or other purpose."

An applicant for a card must present a birth certificate, passport or military identification card and pay a $10 fee. The card is valid for four years. Parents applying for cards for their children must bring one of the required documents for each child.

Security features on the identification cards are the same ones used to prevent forgeries of the driver licenses.

"Our relatively new digital imagery provides a nice, clear photo of the card holder," Elder said. "It's a far cry from the oldstyle driver license photo. In general, applicants have been pleased with their likenesses, but we still can't offer a selection of poses-the DPS camera operator is the authority on whether the photo is good enough for identification

Students of all ages need adequate sleep

Students of all ages may be missing a key ingredient to good grades-adequate sleep.

"Sleep is probably the most important period of the day for processing new information," said Dr. Bruce D. Perry, a child psychiatrist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. Missing sleep, Perry says, causes most of the day's experiences to be stored inefficiently in the brain. Lectures heard, chapters read, interactions with teachers are harder to remember if the brain is sleep deprived. "Rather than cramming information for a test, students are better off studying in smaller chunks and getting enough rest to process the information properly," he said. "Otherwise, you end up storing the information in shortterm memory and forgetting it in a

"Children are kept so busy with after-school and evening activities that sleep gets short-changed," he said. "This lack of adequate sleep robs children of some of their learning potential."

Perry recommends at least eight hours of sleep for adults and 10 or more hours of sleep for children.

Automatic enrollment available for Social Security direct deposits

Social Security beneficiaries who want to switch to direct deposit are now able to use a new "automatic enrollment" process. You just need to tell your bank that you want direct deposit, according to Ken Hargis, manager of the Abilene Social Security office.

"Automatic enrollment makes it possible for banks to send direct deposit enrollment information to Social Security electronically. This eliminates the need for people to call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, to provide their bank account information," Hargis stated.

The law now requires that applicants for Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) have their monthly benefit payment deposited directly into their bank account.

People who apply for Social Security and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) have the convenience of direct deposit. That policy will also apply to people who receive any federal benefit payment, federal wage, salary or retirement payment or vendor and expense reimbursement payment.

"So when you come to apply for benefits, be sure to have your bank information with you-documents that show your financial institution and your account, such as a personal check, savings passbook or an account statement," Hargis

Direct deposit works better for both the beneficiary and the government. Beneficiaries have less risk of the loss or theft of their checks through the mail, a better record of payments, and greater convenience in receiving their monthly benefits. Direct deposit saves the government 40 cents for each check deposited.

People already on the Social Security and SSI rolls who get checks will continue to be paid by check, unless they opt to change to direct deposit. Also, new beneficiaries who don't have a bank account will be paid by check.

About 61 percent of the 43 million people who get Social Security already receive their payment by direct deposit. If the 24 million Social Security and SSI beneficiaries who now receive checks changed to direct deposit, the savings to the taxpayers would be $9.6 million a month. The government saves 40 cents each time someone uses direct deposit instead of a check. It costs 42 cents to process and mail each check, compared to 2 cents for direct

Under the law, Social Security and SSI beneficiaries who receive a check by mail will be required to switch to direct deposit by January, 1999. Those who don't have a bank account at that time will have available to them special debitonly accounts at designated banks and will be paid by direct deposit.

Holiday cheer can turn into holiday blues

by Lou Gilly

Haskell Co. Ext. Agent The holiday season brings families together, friends closer and good cheer-but not for all. In fact, if the silver lining this holiday season turns blue, you may be experiencing mild depression.

Dr. Judith Warren, Gerontology Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service said many things including the recent or past loss of a loved one can trigger feeling of depression during the holiday season.

"The loss of a family member, friend, pet, or a move to a new residence can bring on 'the holiday blues' for some people," Warren said. "Memories of past special times come flooding back and overwhelm some people."

The holiday blues may also stem from feelings of disappointment due to unmet expectations.

"Some people feel the holidays just aren't what they used to be," Warren said. "Comparing this holiday to earlier times when a family member was present can result in thinking things just can't be the same."

To help get out of the holiday blues, Warren advises three things: increasing physical activity, initiating new traditions and finding a listening ear.

Physical activity such as walking can often reduce symptoms of depression such as energy loss and troubled sleeping.

Starting a new tradition instead of focusing on missing ones can help reduce a negative cast on the holidays. While it is important to remember special times with a friend or spouse, it is not realistic to expect holidays to feel like those when the family member was present.

Hanging a special ornament on the tree to symbolize a connection with a lost loved one or planting a tree to memorialize the person you have lost may help.

Seeking out the listening ear of a friend is one of the best ways to ward off the blues, Warren said. "Find someone that will listen to your concerns without giving advice or trying to convince you that everything is okay.'

This may be a friend, family member, or someone you know has had a similar loss. When the blues persist, however, seeking help from professional counselor, psychologist or your doctor may be

"Listening is the greatest gift you can give a friend who is having trouble coping with the holidays." Warren said. "When you acknowledge the emptiness your friend feels, you are validating the importance of the person she has lost. Listening to heartfelt memories can be useful in the healing process.

Legal Matters

by Dan Morales, Attorney General

Many of us are pressed for time and welcome the convenience of shopping by telephone or mail. The rewards are many, but there are a few risks as well.

The overwhelming majority of mail and phone order businesses are legitimate, but there are some unscrupulous marketers out there who are willing to take your money and send you nothing.

That is why we at the Office of the Attorney General have put together a few tips to help you avoid becoming a victim. Remember, when you shop by mail or phone, you are protected by federal and state laws.

Fair Credit Billing Act

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is charged with protecting consumers who shop by mail. Under the federal Mail Order Rule, vendors must ship ordered merchandise within the advertised time period. If no specific shipment date or delivery time is promised, the seller must send your merchandise no later than 30 days after receiving your order. For consumers paying by credit card, delivery must occur within 30 days after the account is charged. Know your rights

If the sellers are unable to fill your order within 30 days, they must send you an option notice. The notice must tell you the new shipping date and inform you of your right to cancel and request a full refund. If you choose to cancel your order, the seller must mail your refund within seven working days. If you bought on credit, the seller must adjust your account within one billing cycle. Sometimes catalog pictures can be deceiving. If what you receive is substantially different from what you expected, you have the right to cancel the contract and return the merchandise. Write the company immediately to inform it of your intention. If you have any doubts about the company's reliability or honesty, consider keeping the goods until you actually receive your refund.

If you didn't order it, don't pay for it

What if you receive something in the mail that you did not order? Mail order con artists sometimes send an item, along with a phony invoice, hoping that you will be fooled into paying for something that you did not order. In most cases, you may consider it a gift. While there are exceptions, such as agreements you might have with a book or record club, the general rule is: if you didn't order it, you don't have to pay for it. Mail order tips

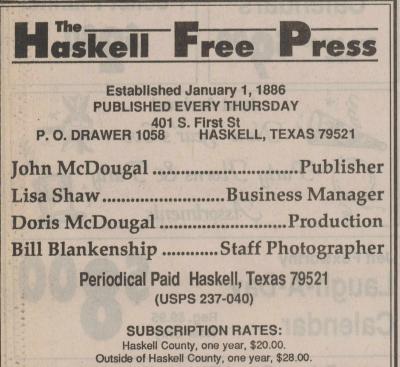

Read all advertisements carefully. Remember that pictures can be deceiving. The quality of the item may be lower than it appears in the ad. Also, the performance of the product may not match the ad's claims. In one case, we sued a mail order company advertising a cologne "guaranteed" to make men irresistible to women. Despite the guarantee, a number of consumers were disappointed and requested refunds.

It is always best, of course, to protect yourself by dealing only with reputable companies. If you have any doubts about a particular business, contact our Consumer Protection Division, the Better Business Bureau, or the U.S. Postal Inspector to see if any complaints have been filed. For more information

If you have any questions about mail order sales, please contact your nearest Attorney General's Consumer Protection Office or call us toll free at 800-621-0508. If you have Internet access, you can check out our home page at http://www.oag.state.tx.us.

Clear weather has prevailed and the farmers have been extremely busy getting the cotton out. Most of the fields will be stripped by now and plans are underway for a new year. We are thankful for the better than expected crop for this year and look forward to a bumper crop for 1997.

Protective eyewear important during athletic activities

Many people lost their lives last New Years holiday and the two major violations that caused these traffic deaths were speed and the drinking driver. Not only were lives lost but during that same period hundreds of others were injured and some crippled for life.

Most people think they can drink several beers and still be a safe driver, but even a couple of beers slows a persons ability to think and to react.

The Texas Department of Public Safety would like to go through the entire holiday period without a single injury or death. We will be utilizing all available manpower to watch for traffic violations. Speed and driving under the influence of alcohol will be the leading holiday killers that will be targeted by our Troopers.

When going to those parties this year remember to take that designated driver with you. Be smart and after a few drinks, don't let the alcohol start thinking for you and making you believe you can handle your vehicle in a safe

Are you ready for the game? Don't forget protective eyewear.

"Sports are a significant cause of eye injuries," said Dr. Bowes Hamill, an assistant professor of ophthalmology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Eye injuries are most common in basketball and baseball, where a foreign object-such as a finger or a fast ball-can come into contact with the eye.

He said most sports-related eve injuries could be prevented with protective eyewear, which costs between $15 and $25.

But do not think any old glasses

"Sunglasses and prescription lenses are not designed to be protective eyewear," said Hamill. You need to have protective glasses that are designed to withstand impact." He recommends goggle-type protection for basketball and shieldtype protection for baseball.

This Week's Devotional Message:

The leaves of autumn now are gone, While frost pervades the night: And then the land will greet the dawn, Arrayed in sparkling white. As soon as temperatures will freeze To zero and below,

The barren branches of the trees Will wear an icy glow;

And yet this frigid time of year. With Arctic wind and storm. Reminds us with a note of cheer That faith will keep us warm. So bundle up and praise the Lord For promises He'll keep: That spring will follow and reward This winter world asleep.

Texas drivers to furnish SS number beginning January 1

Safety will require drivers to furnish their Social Security number in order to process their driver license application or renewal beginning January 1, 1997, the DPS announced recently.

The Texas Transportation Code Tillinghast, Driver License

The Texas Department of Public requires the DPS to collect the Social Security number of any person who applies for a driver license in this state. "The law has been in effect since 1993 and we have been collecting the number on a voluntary basis," said Jimmy

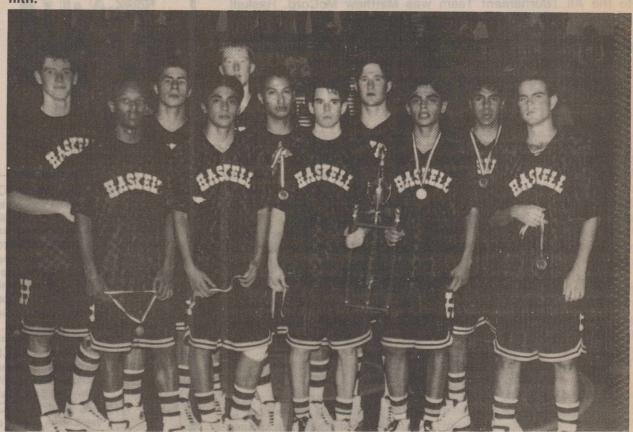

Captain, Lubbock. "However, to be in compliance with state law, we will require this information after January 1, 1997."

Tillinghast also stated that proper documentation of the number will be necessary. Acceptable documentation would include your social security card, payroll or employment records, income tax documents and certain identification cards where the Social Security number is used and proper identification can be made. Facsimiles and employer lists will not suffice. "Without proper documentation of the number, no license will be issued," Tillinghast

While state and federal law allows for the use of Social Security numbers for driver licensing purposes, driver license personnel will not require the number for department issued identification cards. They will continue to request the number on a voluntary basis in those instances. "Hopefully, by getting this information out now, the public can avoid unnecessary delays by having the proper documentation in hand when they walk through the door," Tillinghast said.

Be careful with those holiday leftovers by Lou Gilly Haskell Co. Ext. Agent Once you've put away that big holiday meal into your belly, you need to put the leftovers into the refrigerator. One of the biggest problems around the holidays is food that's left out too long.

Extension nutrition specialist, Dr. Peggy Van Laanen recommends perishable goods not be left at room temperature for more than two hours. She says failing to follow that basic rule could give your guests food poisoning. The symptoms are upset stomach, stomach cramping, vomiting, diarrhea and sometimes fever and chills. For the elderly, the very young and the chronically ill, that can be a serious medical problem.

Turkey will keep in the refrigerator for three to four daysafter that the quality diminishes. Van Laanen says cut it off the bone. The smaller pieces will cool better and keep better. And she recommends storing the dressing separate from the turkey since dressing tends to go bad faster.

Keep brewed tea from getting cloudy

Brewed ice tea becomes cloudy when it is put directly into the refrigerator after brewing. That's because steeping tea released tannins from the tea that produce a cloudiness when the tea is chilled, causing the tannins to precipitate out of solution. To avoid cloudiness, steep tea at a low temperature (never boil it). This is why "sun" tea can avoid the cloudy appearance. It never gets hot enough to extract the tannin.
