Petitions for the expanded local calling (ELC) program were delayed at the federal level because they each involved calling between an area served by Southwestern Bell (SWB) and one served by a different phone company. Now that they have FCC approval, the Texas PUC and SWB can complete the required process to make local calling available.

The FCC has allowed in an order for SWB to modify its service boundaries in order to provide ELC to these communities. According to the federal order, "Granting the modifications are necessary to meet the needs of local subscribers and will not have any significant effect on competition."

"The customers in these areas have waited a long time for this calling option," said PUC Chairman Pat Wood III. "We've worked hard with the FCC to make these approvals a reality, and now legislators, the PUC, and many aggressive community leaders whose intervention helped solve a telephone calling problem for rural communities in Texas and all over the nation. Almost every state has some cases that involve calling across telephone company boundaries, but Texas has the most according to the FCC.

"The waiting and hard work by residents of these communities and their representatives is starting to pay off," said Linda Hymans, coordinator of ELC petitions at the PUC. "Now we're anxious to get ELC going in these communities as soon as possible."

Even with FCC approval, it could take six to 12 months before ELC service is available in these communities. SWB will file a notice of FCC approval with the PUC within 10 days. Within 30 days, SWB will file cost studies and a proposed implementation schedule of the equipment and software changes which must be made for the service to begin. NEW AIRLANE-Traffic was slowed Sat. afternoon when this F-86 fighter plane took an unusual route down Hwy. 277 to its destination at an aviation museum at Webb Air Park in Big Spring.

F-86 fighter plane halts traffic

Activities at the first Giant Jackpot drawings Sat., were all but brought to a halt by the sight of a large air craft coming through town on Hwy. 277.

Enroute by truck to a museum at Webb Air Park in Big Spring, the F-86 fighter plane was donated by the Air Force to the veterans of Vietnam.

According to data on the permit sent ahead from Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, where the trip began, the plane, with wings folded and landing gear retracted, was 28 feet wide, and 16 feet tall. The maximum length of the truck and plane was 86 feet.

Earl Proctor, of the Texas Department of Transportation, said the plane's overland trip went smoothly through Haskell County, although the Highway Patrol, County Sheriff, and City Police Departments were all called in to assist if needed.

Administrator's, EDC director's salaries on Council agenda

With all members present except one, the Haskell City Council met in regular session Mon., Dec. 8.

Heading the agenda was the decision to increase the salary of City Administrator, Sam Watson, by $2,000.00, bringing it to a total of $35.000.00 per year.

Also, a cost-of-living increase was voted for the Economic Development Corporation Director, Monty Montgomery. The amount of this is to be decided later.

leaving the County paying lessee Bobby Morrison his percentage instead of Morrison paying the County.

Citing three years of having a hard time "making it", Morrison stated that he could not stay on less percentage. With Commissioners split on their opinions on this, discussion led to the setting of a special called public meeting Dec. 16, at 9:00 a.m. to settle the lease agreement. Anyone with input can attend this meeting, or send a signed letter to Judge Davis's office.

Announcement was made that the Court has changed county long distance services to U.S. Long Distance at a cost of 10.5 cents per minute for County Courthouse Extension office, etc. Any county employee will be eligible for this rate at their home. Cathey Rapp is the local representative.

From an elementary school podium in Midland, Gov. George W. Bush last week announced his re-election bid for a second term.

The 51-year-old Republican, who has reported a campaign war chest of $13 million, is expected to face Democratic Land Commissioner Garry Mauro in the November 1998 election.

"I propose that we begin the new century by putting and end to social promotion in Texas school's Bush said. "We must recognize that self-esteem in not taught but earned by teaching our children to read and write and add and subtract."

Bush outlined his campaign platform as follows:

•Require public school students to pass the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills exam in third, fifth and eighth grades before advancing to the next grade.

•Offer more advanced training for teachers.

•Exempt businesses with sales of $100,000 or less from paying the state franchise tax.

•Enact tax credits for companies doing research and development.

•Put more state money into child care. •Establish live-in facilities for pregnant, unwed teen-agers.

•Allocate more state money to encourage prosecutors to litigate statutory rape cases.

Under the proposal, discounts could be as much as 35 percent, depending on the area of the state and the type of roof purchased. Discounts would apply to asphalt composition shingles and concrete tile roofs that have been certified as impact-resistant by Underwriter's Laboratories, the Austin American-Stateman reported.

Use of Force Rules Opposed

Following Texas sheriff's opposition, proposed state guidelines on use of force against jail inmates are doomed, according to The Brazosport Facts, a daily newspaper in Brazoria County.

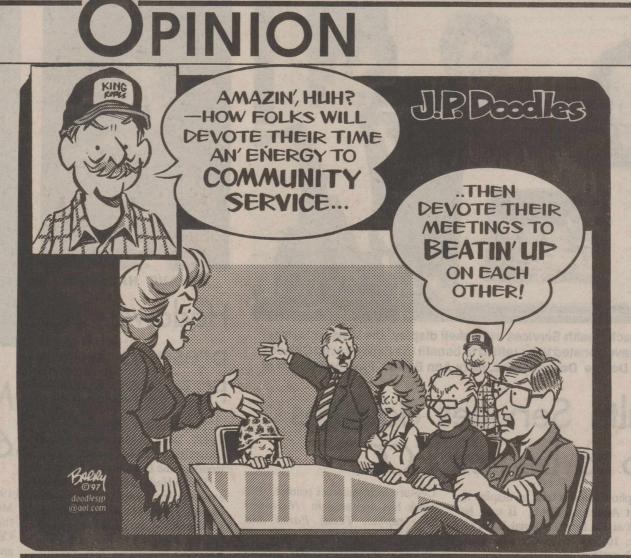

Texas Commission on Jail Standards executive director Jack Crump, who proposed the new regulations after viewing a Brazoria County videotape allegedly depicting abuse, told the newspaper he has changed his mind.

The proposal-which would require operators of county jails and for-profit prisons to submit for commission review policies on use of force against inmates-was expected to die at the panel's meeting last week.

Crump and the nine governorappointed members of the jail commission say they have been overwhelmed with negative feedback from Texas sheriffs in the months after publishing the proposal in the state register.

A videotape of a September 1996 jail shakedown showed Capital Correctional Resources Inc. guards and Brazoria County deputies using what some state officials contend was excessive force against Missouri inmates.

Last week I was a guest for lunch with the Haskell Rotarians; that group of business and professional men and women whose motto, "Service above Self", is embodied within their club's ideal of dedication to betterment.

Having a son-in-law who has long been active in Rotary in Texas and California, I've been aware of the varied and valuable contributions of service and encouragement this organization makes to education and world understanding. So, it was with pleasure that I accepted the invitation.

The Rotary International 4-way test of the things they think, say or do has always seemed to me to be a worthwhile endeavor for any group to consider before acting. After asking themselves the questions: Is it true? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build good will and better friendship? Will it be beneficial to all concerned?, they join together to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprize.

Although this week was my first time to attend a Rotary Club meeting, in 1984 I attended an International Convention of Rotary in Manchester, England. We were on a tour of the British Isles with our daughter Karen and son-in-law, Bud Walker, who was sent there as a delegate by the San Marcos Rotary Club. It turned out to be an interesting experience in international friendship and cultural exchange.

One of the Rotarians in the small city of Stoke-On-Trent, in middle England, invited the four of us one evening to his typical English home for dinner with his family. He and his wife and two teen age daughters were natives of India. Choosing to live in England, he owned and operated a small electronics manufacturing company.

Sharing their authentic East Indian cuisine, customs, thoughts and stories of families, we found we had a lot in common as human beings. Although these people were Christians, she was understandably concerned for the safety and welfare of her brothers back in India, who were Sikhs involved at that time in a bitter religious battle to recapture the Golden Temple. Early the following day, when our host and Bud went to the Rotary convention in nearby Manchester, she came by our hotel to drive us on an all-day tour of historical places. We had tea at the Wedgewood factory, stopped at a several hundred year old countryside pub, and a small village still, partially surrounded by an ancient Roman wall. That evening we were their guests for dinner at the World China Exchange. At the private club-room table, laid with the Exchange's own pattern of Wedgewood china and surrounded by 24 perfectly matched Chippendale chairs, we ate with international buyers of the fine china which is made from special clays found in that area of England. When we left to continue on to. our tour of Scotland, our new-found international Rotary friends. promised to visit us in Austin the next year. Our short encounter there left me with a good feeling. It had indeed lived up to the Object of Rotary International, which is to encourage and foster the following: The development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service; high ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of all useful ooccupations, and the dignifying by all Rotarians of their occupations as opportunities to serve society; the application of the ideal of service by all Rotarians. to their personal, business and community lives; the advancement. of international understanding, goodwill and peace through a worldfellowship of business and professional persons united in the ideal of service. With so much seen to the contrary of this 'ideal' in the business, political, religious, academic, entertainment and sports sectors of our society, it's heartening that there are those involved in all of these segments who do aspire to a higher plane of integrity and service.

Bomer Postpones Roofing Decision

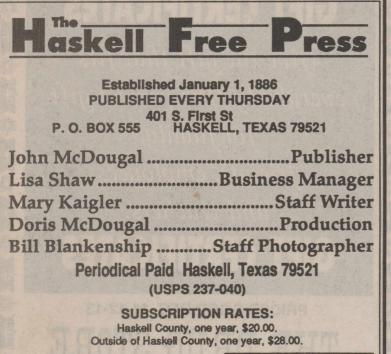

After listening to homeowners' concerns over a proposed rule that would give discounts only to those who install new hail-resistant roofs, Insurance Commissioner Elton Bomer postponed a decision, saying he would take more time to study the issue.

At a public hearing last week, a homeowner who said his house has a durable concrete tile roof, complained that he would not qualify for the proposed discounts

GTECH, the current operator, did not submit a proposal. It has filed a lawsuit challenging the rebidding of its multimillion dollar contract to operate the Texas Lottery.

•State Comptroller John Sharp, a Democrat, and Agriculture commissioner Rick Perry, a Republican, are candidates for lieutenant governor. Both are Texas A&M graduates and friends of agriculture. And both have good pitches for the endorsement of the influential Texas Farm Bureau. Social Security: One problem, many answers by Charlie Stenholm The Social Security Act requires that every four years an advisory council convene to review and make recommendations regarding the condition and long-term viability of the Social Security program. After two years of study, the most recent council (comprised of 13 experts released its final report in January 1997. While they agreed on many minor issues, the council members could not reach consensus on a single long-term solution. Their report contained the three options favored by the members. Before summarizing them, I want to discuss some of the issues on which there was agreement.

Seventh in a series of eight columns prepared about Social Security.

Three issues of particular importance were part of the council's consensus report. 1. Early action should be taken to reform Social Security. If "the nation delays making changes in Social Security for another 10 years, it would require a 25 percent reduction in benefits to rebalance the system without tax increase.' 2. Partial advance funding of Social Security. Instead of relying entirely on the payroll taxes of current workers to fund current beneficiaries, a part of the program should be funded by employees investing a portion of their payroll taxes in interest-bearing annuities or other investments. 3. Any sacrifices in bringing the system. into balance should be widely shared and not borne entirely by current of future workers or their employers. Current beneficiaries should take part in preserving the program for their grandchildren. Council members were divided on the specifics of reform. The first option, which would make the fewest changes in the current framework, supports maintenance of benefits (MB). Under this plan, the current system would be maintained much as it is now, with

With the drought over, 1997 has been a better year for most crops. That includes Christmas trees. Mike Walterscheidt is still cutting down trees he says died because of last year's drought. Like the other 400 Christmas tree growers in Texas, he hopes his business perks up from the rain received this year.

Drought recovery was a major topic at this year's Texas Christmas Tree Growers Association conference. Bob Allison grows Christmas trees in Marquez. He says the trees look better this year. His focus now shifts to marketing ... convincing people to choose and cut their own tree. Of the three million trees sold in Texas each year, only about ten percent are grown here.

Extension forester Lanny Dreesen says it takes four to five years for a tree to reach maturity. The trees are trimmed a few times each year to get them in shape. The going price for a home grown Christmas tree is three dollars and fifty cents a foot. So for a six foot tree, you'll pay $21. It is recommended you cut off another inch from your tree when you get it home, then immediately put it in water, keeping it wet to prevent it from drying out.

McMeans remembered by fellow workers

Heath McMeans, an officer with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice who died in a tragic accident in August while visiting his family in Haskell, was recently honored with a memorial ceremony at the John Montford Unit near Lubbock.

A graduate of South Plains Junior College in Levelland, Heath worked as a correctional officer at the Lubbock facility for two and a half years. Fellow officers who had become good friends with him during this time were on hand to take part in the ceremony which was overseen by Senior Warden, C. C. Keeton. Also speaking to the invited friends and family members about their professional and personal admiration of Heath, were Captain Michael Chumley and Officer Robin Bachman.

After the ceremony and brief tour led by Warden Keeton and fellow officer and close friend Monte Griffin, a plaque containing Heath's picture was placed on display in the conference room where officers of the unit meet each day. Warden Keeton stated that, in this way, Heath's contributions to the unit and the State of Texas will be remembered as long as the Joh. Montford Unit stands.

Stallman outlines aggressive TFB legislative program

The president of the Texas Farm Bureau outlined an aggressive legislative program for the state's largest farm organization in his annual address to TFB convention delegates in Arlington recently.

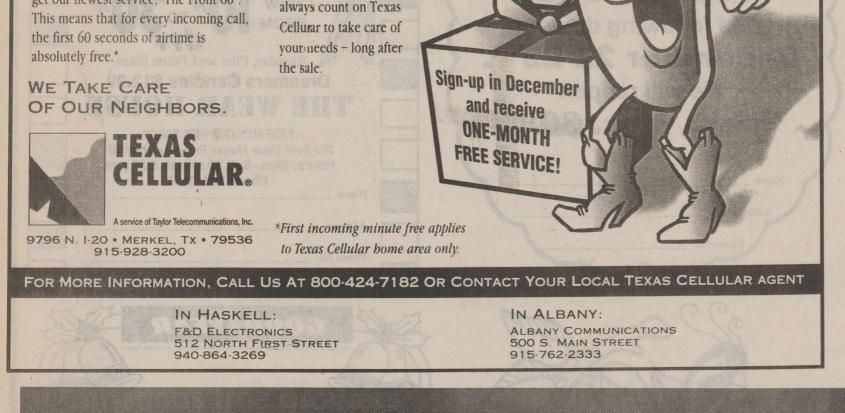

Bob Stallman, a rice producer from Columbus, focused on the need for Farm Bureau to redouble its efforts in meeting policy goals on the issues of property tax cuts, fast-track negotiating authority, estate taxes, the federal farm program, and Texas Farm Bureau Friends of Agriculture Fund (AGFUND) support for political candidates.

Stallman urged members to continue informed activism and hard work in achieving these goals. "This year, more than any year I can remember," said Stallman, "we have unfinished business."

"This issue of funding sc terms of our ability to produce foods and fiber," said Stallman. "Many young farm people have left agriculture to pursue more lucrative and less labor intensive careers."

Stallman focused on the successes of the TFB in the past year. The Boll Weevil Eradication Program was saved, in large part, by the efforts of TFB members. The TFB also helped to deny county and city governments exemption from the Property Rights Law. The Young Farmer/Rancher Committee worked to expand loan quarantees through the Texas Agricultural Finance. Authority's Young Farmer and Rancher Loan Program. A major. water bill protecting the water rights of agriculture was passed with the help of Farm Bureau. AGFUND, he said, has attracted the attention of policymakers in through property taxes has gained a lot of attention in Austin, allowing Farm Bureau another chance at reform of school funding, according to Stallman.

"Some businesses and noncapital intensive industries have been getting a free ride with respect to funding education...let's face it, the property tax is a lousy way to fund our public schools," said Stallman.

Stallman also reiterated the need to press for fast-tracking negotiating authority during next year's Congressional session. "We must have fast-track; the future of agriculture, now so dependent on international trade, hangs in the balance," he said.

Austin and Washington with an 85 percent success rate for those candidates it has endorsed.

"This year, more than ever before, Texas farmers and ranchers have an opportunity to help shape the immediate future of our state," said Stallman.

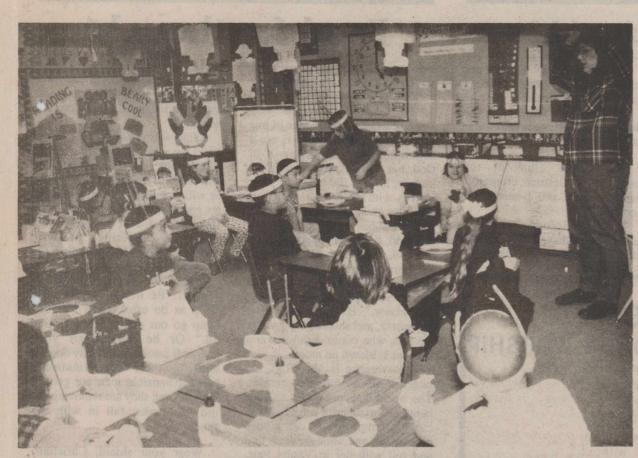

The farm leader said estate or "death taxes" are a burden to agriculture. Stallman cited this as "perhaps the most unfair tax ever devised by the federal government."

Stallman said farm policy should focus on improving net farm income, to halt further declines in the numbers of farmers and ranchers.

"This decline could hit us right square in our national security, in

by Lou Gilly Haskell Co. Extension Agent

Many of us will hit the road over the holidays to see relatives and friends, but if you're taking food with you, you need to be careful. You wouldn't want it to go bad and ruin this festive time.

Extension food safety specialist Dr. Peggy Van Laanen says leave the big items to the people hosting the meal. She says it is not a good idea to cook a turkey or dressing and then travel three and four hours with it. Items such as deviled eggs 'and potato salad are also easily spoiled.

Van Laanen says any meat or egg product needs to be properly chilled and kept in an ice chest. Van Laanen also reminds us to be careful with holiday buffets. No perishable food should sit out at room temperature for more than two hours. After that point, it enters the danger zone where bacteria thrive.

Food for thought by Charles H. Spurgeon "Continue in the faith."

Acts 14:22 Perseverance is the badge of true saints. The Christian life is not a beginning only in the ways of God, but also a continuance in the same as long as life lasts.

It is with a Christian as it was with the great Napoleon: he said, "Conquest has made you what you are, and conquest must maintain me." So, under God, dear brother in the Lord, conquest has made you what you are, and conquest must sustain you. Your motto must be, "Excelsior." He only is a true conqueror, and shall be crowned at the last, who continueth till war's trumpet is blown no more.

Perseverance is, therefore, the target of all our spiritual enemies. The world does not object to your being a Christian for a time, if she can but tempt you to cease your pilgrimage, and settle down to buy and sell with her in Vanity Fair. The flesh will seek to ensnare your, and to prevent your pressing on to glory. "It is weary work being a pilgrim; come, give it up.

Am I always to be mortified? Am I never to be indulged? Give me at least a furlough from this constant warfare."

Satan will make many a fierce attack on your perseverance; it will be the mark for all his arrows. He will strive to hinder you in service: he will insinuate that you are doing no good; and that you want rest. He will endeavor to make you weary of suffering, he will whisper,"Curse God, and die." Or he will attack your steadfastness: "What is the good of being so zealous? Be quiet like the rest sleep as do others, and let your lamp go out as the other virgins do." Or he will assail your doctrinal sentiments: "Why do you hold to these denominational creeds? Sensible men are getting more liberal; they are removing the old landmarks: fall in with the times."

Wear your shield, Christian, therefore, close upon your armour, and cry mightily unto God, that by his Spirit you may endure to the end.

Farmers and ranchers to receive 1997 Census of Agriculture report forms

Report forms for the 1997 Census of Agriculture will soon begin appearing in the mailboxes of farmers and ranchers across the nation. For the twenty-fifth time since the first Ag Census in 1840, farmers and ranchers will play the key role in providing the country with a statistical picture of U. S. agriculture at county, state, and national levels. The 1997 Census will provide a detailed picture of the changes in agriculture since the last Census, in 1992.

The focus of the current Census includes number of farms, farm size, operator characteristics, crop and livestock production, agricultural product sales, and production expenses of farmers and ranchers. Report forms will be mailed late in December to collect data for the 1997 calendar year. Farmers will be asked to return their forms by Feb. 2, 1998.

Census of Agriculture statistics make up the only national, state and local-level agriculture information database available. These statistics are used by many different organizations and individuals for a myriad of purposes, including:

•Farm machinery manufacturers use Ag Census statistics to locate their industries where they are needed by using county and state statistics, resulting in economic benefit to farm operators.

•Researchers and legislators can use county-level data to define problem areas and help farmers recover from outbreaks of disease and pests.

•Farm organizations, Congress, and state and local governments use Ag Census Statistics to plan programs to help farm operators get the most for their investments.

•Seed and fertilizer producers use Ag Census statistics to compare yields and other informations to help operators do the most effective job.

•Irrigation specialists, water resource developers, and irrigation equipment manufacturers use Ag Census information to formulate practical advice for farm operators.

•State and national lawmakers can determine where to allocate funds that will benefit agricultural producers. •Farm broadcasters and agriculture editors can convey census results to their audiences, and use the data to help focus their stories on important areas of agriculture.

Many of the questions asked in the 1997 Census will be similar to those asked in 1992. Data will be collected from all farmers and ranchers on land use and ownership, crop acreage and quantities harvested, numbers of livestock and poultry, value of crops and livestock sold, and operator characteristics. New items include area and value of cut Christmas trees harvested.

One of every four farms and ranches will receive a report form that includes additional questions on production expenses, fertilizer and chemicals, machinery and equipment, market value of land and buildings, and income from farm-related sources. All report forms are tailored by region to make them less burdensome to respondents.

Anyone who receives a census form should complete and return it. Individuals who don't operate a farm or ranch could possibly receive census questionnaires. In this situation, recipients should return the form with a note stating that the person to whom it was addressed in not involved with a farm or ranch. The cost of conducting the census can be kept down if questionnaire recipients return their completed forms promptly, so additional mailings can be avoided.

Farmers, farm organizations, agricultural universities members of the Census Advisory Committee on Agriculture Statistics, and state and federal agencies, were asked for input and advice concerning the content and development of the report forms. Farmers and ranchers represent a major sector of the U.S. economy.
