By Ed Sterling TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — The private board that manages $12.5 billion in public university money has agreed to be more open about its high-risk investments.

The University of Texas Investment Management Co. on March 30 told the House Appropriations Committee it will name all principals and disclose annual rates of return when making future investments with riskier private firms.

UTIMCO also said it will ask private firms to which public university funds already are committed for permission to disclose the information.

"That goes a long way toward addressing my concerns. This will provide some comfort as to how public funds are being managed," state Rep. Sylvester Turner, a member of the Appropriations Committee, was quoted by the Austin American-Statesman.

Turner, D-Houston, earlier had criticized UTIMCO's confidentiality policy. He was responding to a Houston Chronicle article citing alleged conflicts of interest involving UTIMCO chairman Tom Hicks, a Dallas investor who recently completed a six-year term as a UT System regent.

The article said Hicks had directed $252 million to private funds run by business associates and friends and $205 million to funds run by major Republican donors, the article said.

UT System Chancellor William Cunningham, one of UTIMCO's nine board members, said he was confident no conflicts of interest occurred.

Lawsuit-Squelching Bill OKed

Local governments would be unable to sue the sellers and makers of firearms under legislation approved last week by the Texas Senate in a 22-7 vote.

"My intent is to stop frivolous lawsuits and make sure gun control does not become a local issue in Texas," said the bill's author, Sen. Jon Lindsay, R-Houston.

Cities in other states are considering suing gun and ammunition makers and sellers to recover medical costs and other expenses related to gun violence.

Senators voting against the bill have argued against limiting the attorney general's power to file such a lawsuit, and pointed out that it was good there was no lawsuit ban shielding tobacco companies.

From The Inside Out

By Mary Kaigler

When I learned that it was going to be my pleasure to introduce the guest speaker who was going to bring a presentation of one family's history for the Progressive Study Club's "Focus on Historical People" program, I decided I needed to know something about the lady.

What I found is that the young woman is phenomenal in more ways than just being a history buff. Cheryl Lewis of Hamlin, registered nurse at Hamlin Medical Clinic since 1979, and owner of The Book Nook, could be called a multi-talented mover-and-shaker of whatever needs it.

As the director and developer of Hamlin's successful annual "Back to Rath's Trail" celebration, she could also be called a maker-of-silkpurses-from-sows-ears; one who can turn a negative event of yesterday into a into a positive, profitable event for today.

When she read in 1992 about short-lived Rath City, which came to life a few miles from Hamlin in 1876, shortly after the Texas State Legislature approved the slaughter of the great buffalo herds to cut off the livelihood of the Native Americans, thus driving them out off the land onto the Oklahoma reservations, she saw the enterprise as shameful.

Accomplished with great profit through a cruel but rational decision by the politicians, and the efficient slaughter of the buffalo hunters, the great southern herd of millions of buffalo was eradicated in only three

During that time Rath City was said to be "a stinking, bloody place populated by tough, hard drinking buffalo hunters, saloon keepers, wagon drivers, prostitutes and anybody else who had the fortitude to make money in such conditions."

Realizing that something of great historical importance had happened just a few miles from Hamlin, and believing that there are lessons to be learned from the pitiful history of Rath City, Cheryl became dedicated to seeing that they were not forgotten.

"To think that we drove a race of people into conditions that were not ideal and slaughtered the buffalo almost to extinction," she said. "But if it had not happened there would have been no westward expansion and we would not have had the cattle industry that we now have. Thank goodness for those

Last June, in its sixth year, the Rath City Festival brought 4,000 visitors to Hamlin and to the deserted little spot on the Ferguson Ranch which was once Rath City.

Always loving history, Chery spent many hours as a child absorbing the stories of times past, told by her elders.

After receiving her great-greatgrandfather's diary, written during the Civil War, and a series of letters exchanged between two distant cousin's during that period, she developed a real interest in that war.

Using the historical material and "Mary Chestnut's Civil War," she has developed a touching narrative of the war as seen through the eyes of a young girl, her cousin Nettie.

The monologue, which she often presents for schools and various organizations, is written from the perspective of Nettie, as she looks back to the events of the war after a thirty-nine year period. It is a presentation of personal information about the war that divided a nation, that is to be found in no history textbook. Her story tells of the Wilmer McLean family, whose home was on the battlefield of Bull Run, and was requested by Pierre Beauregard to be his Southern headquarters. In 1863 McLean decided he must move his family to a safer place, and took them to a community in Virginia. When Robert E. Lee was in need of a place to sign the surrender papers, the Virginia home of the McLeans was used for this purpose. Writing in his diary McLean said, "the war began in my front yard and has ended in my front parlor."

A native of Hamlin, Cheryl Lewis graduated from the Mary Meek School of Nursing-Hendrick Medical Center, and attended Hardin-Simmons University two

She was Hamlin's Woman of the Year in 1984; has served on the City Council; been president of the Chamber of Commerce; secretary of the Economic Development Corp.; vice president of the Hamlin Industrial Foundation; and chairperson of the Merchant's Association, as well as developing and co-directing the "Back to Rath's Trail" festival.

A consummate volunteer, she currently serves on numbers of boards and organizations. She has received the Community Builder's Award for her dedicated service to better her hometown. She is a member of of the Community Action Program, and the Jones

County Chapter of the American Red Cross. An accomplished musician,

Cheryl is a member of the First Baptist Church where she is Associate Director of Music, and co-teaches an adult Sunday School

Added to all of this Cheryl is a professional musician/vocalist, with one single and two vocal albums recorded with partner Marcia Moore. The duo records as "Two With Song."

Although it's hard to believe she has any spare time, Cheryl Lewis says she enjoys gourmet cooking, oil painting, researching history and, in what must surely be the understatement of the year, she adds, general volunteerism.

I've decided Cheryl Lewis is focused on LIVING, and I salute

This month I am writing about helpful hints. I've been reading and I have found many helpful things to make our lives more fruitful and interesting for those who enjoy life to its fullest.

It is very discouraging to try to have a pretty yard and a nice flower or vegetable garden. My reading has been an enjoyable undertaking and one that I dearly love. I found numerous thoughts and ideas to pass on to you that I know you will enjoy.

I hope you will want to engage in it, to have a pretty yard, one that you will enjoy and will want to April showers do bring May flowers, but we cannot rely on Mother Nature to get the job done completely.

Remember that when watering too much is never a good thing. It causes plants to loose oxygen and causes root rot. One inch of water is sufficient every week.

The time is very important when watering. The best time is between 5 a.m. and 9 a.m. Plants rest at night and are more vulnerable to disease at that time. Night time watering will stress them out and more harm will be

To give your vegetable garden a boost, give it an overspray with a mixture of one can of beer, one cup of shampoo, one cup of antiseptic mouthwash and one tsp. of instant tea granules in thirty gal. hose end sprayer filling the balance of the jar with a regular non-diet cola. Let the soil set for two days.

Do not disturb roses just yet. Let them sleep for now.

Here's handy hint to protect roses and other plants from aphids. Plant marigolds in between the roses; you will never have aphids

That's all for this month. I shall read some more interesting articles to enjoy and pass on to you, my garden friends.

Food for thought

Submit yourselves for the Lord's sake to every human institution (1 Peter 2:13).

The world system in which we were raised says that you are nothing, so compete, scheme, achieve and strive to get ahead. The Bible teaches that you are something, so be submissive. Here's how Peter said it: "You are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for God's own possession, that you may proclaim the excellencies of Him who has called you out of darkness into His marvelous light; for once you were not a people, but now you are the people of God; you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy" (1 Peter 2:9,

Only after that affirmation of us being the people of God does Peter say, "Submit yourselves for the Lord's sake to every human institution" (verse 13), and "Servants, be submissive to your masters" (verse 18). He even relates it to the home: "In the same way, you wives, be submissive to your own husbands" (1 Peter 3:1).

Submission is not a dirty word; it is a liberating word. We are all under God's protective authority and we can only be free if we seek it and submit to it. Coming under authority is your protection. Living free is your opportunity to be all that God created you to be.

There are two types of people who will never live up to their potential in Christ: those who can't do what they are told to do and those who won't do anything unless they are told. Don't wait to be told what you are already free to do. Step out in faith and live up to your potential in Christ. You can bring light into a dark world if you will allow Christ to shine through you. You don't need a greater position; bloom where you are planted. Stop waiting for the big opportunity and seize the one you have. Someone in your world of influence desperately needs what Christ can do through you.

Lord, forgive me for my rebellious spirit. Teach me to be submissive and respectful to those in authority over me.

Drought brings farm crisis by Lou Gilly Haskell Co. Extension Agent The drought of 1998 has had lasting effects on Texas farmers. Poor exports and low prices dealt Texas farmers a major setback. Farm and ranch production declined more than $2.4 billion in 1998.

Extension economist Carl Anderson says the resulting loss in agribusiness income is an 8-billion dollar blow to the state's overall economy. This analysis comes after Secretary Dan Glickman said rural America could face a social catastrophe this year as thousands of farmers in the United States could be forced out of business. Aggravating low incomes from the drought was the 1996 farm bill. which removed many of the farm programs producers used to compete in volatile foreign Warmer weather means Little League games and afternoons spent perfecting in-line skating skills. But care should be taken to avoid having to add an emergency-room visit to the day's activities.

"It is imperative that children war protective equipment, particularly helmets, when skating or playing ball sports," said Dr. Maureen Finnegan, an associate professor of orthopaedic surgery at the Center. "In many cases, protective equipment will prevent catastrophic head, eye and neck injuries."

The American Medical Association recently passed a resolution urging youth baseball and softball organizations to adopt policies requiring the use of protective equipment.

"Team sports organizers should adopt written emergency and firstresponder plans so that participants know how to act expeditiously and correctly during an emergency," said Dr. Finnegan.

Rex Pittman, who works with the Haskell Youth Baseball League, said all participants in the local program are required to use batting helmets for their protection.

Breakfast is important for good start in the morning

Something you do in the morning could help your children do better that day in school.

Mom always said breakfast is the most important meal of the day, and she appears to be right. By studying the progress of children given free breakfasts at public schools, researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital found that children who eat do better in school. They have better grades, better attendance and fewer behavior problems when they eat breakfast than when they skip it.

Busy lifestyles can make ensuring the quality of children's dicts very challenging.

Nutrition experts at UT

Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas say even if you don't have time in the morning to make a big breakfast, you can still provide something nutritious.

An ideal breakfast includes some protein, a little fat, plenty of carbohydrates and a good source of calcium.

Quick, nutritious breakfast options include peanut butter sandwiches; smoothies made with milk, yogurt and fresh fruit; and cheese toast made with whole grain bread. The traditional cereal-and-milk breakfast topped with dried or fresh fruit, along with a glass of fortified orange juice on the side, is a good choice, especially if you select a high-fiber cereal that's low in sugar. tablespoons of dry milk powder can add a nutritionist punch to breakfast.

Avoid nutrition-empty quick fixes like donuts, and junk-food snacks.

Adults shouldn't't ignore their own needs for a nutritious power boost in the morning. Skipping meals and junk-food snacking on the run can be a problem in having the day go better for them.

"While we have little choice in what happens in the pace of our lives, nutrition is a change we can make to help ourselves. Knowing what foods are nutritious not only makes life more fun, it helps us better meet the challenges of the changing world around us," said Belinda Boshell, president of the Texas Dietetic Association. She agrees that at home or on the go, breakfast can be simple and healthy.

Dairy Queen stores across the state will be promoting the sale of a special baseball commemorating the achievements of future Baseball Hall of Fame inductee Nolan Ryan. For each ball purchased, the Dairy Queen store will donate $1 to the Children's Miracle Network, to benefit the hospital for children in that area. The collectible ball includes Ryan's facsimile signature and is packaged in a full-color box featuring his career statistics. Because only a limited number of baseballs has been manufactured and will be available only at participating Dairy Queen stores for a short time, the baseball's value will most likely increase in the future.

The Children's Miracle Network is an international, non-profit organization whose mission is to generate funds and create awareness programs to benefit children and its 166 associated hospitals for children in the U. The busy lives we lead are like a solid fabric woven into a jumbled pattern of work, recreational pursuits and the personal problems inherent in our material world. Faith is too often omitted from the design; or at best, crowded into a small corner known as Sunday morning. But the message of faith received in Church can re-weave the tangle of doubt and confusion with threads of peace, harmony and order, and mend the raveled edges of trouble; if you will only carry it with you throughout the week. Faith is not confined within the walls of the Church, but that is where it begins.
