The Ozona Stockman has initiated several changes in policy subscribers and advertisers need to be aware of, with the beginning of school and club activities this fall.

The deadline for news remains anytime before noon on Tuesday. It is suggested that club and school reporters turn items in to the news office as soon as possible following the event being reported. The public is encouraged to get news items in during open hours on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Also, any news tips will be welcome, and all sources will be protected. Anonymous letters will not be used. All letters must be signed, but names will be withheld at the request of the writer. There is no charge for letters to the editor, but the Stockman staff will reserve the right to publish or not to publish any and all letters.

Purchasers of office supplies and printing will be given preferential treatment Wednesday through Friday of each week. Monday and Tuesday is reserved wholly for getting the week's edition of the newspaper out, and the office will be closed at noon each Tuesday in order that this may be accomplished.

The reporting of school sports events is entirely the responsibility of the coaching staff in that particular sport, and not the responsibility of any member of the Stockman staff. It is not feasible at present for the newspaper to hire a sports reporter.

Also, pictures will only be taken by the Stockman staff when someone at the office is available. It is almost impossible to get a photographer out of the office on Monday or Tuesday. Ozona High School has a very fine dark room, with the finest equipment and cameras. A member of the faculty oversees the team of photographers and he or she should be contacted for school-related pictures for the newspaper, which will be printed if good quality.

A change in printing procedures has occurred for the newspaper which makes it impossible to get a good print from a colored picture. Color prints come out well very few times, and they will no longer be accepted for the paper. Any black and white photo can be used.

All classified advertisements must be paid for in advance when they are to run only one time and when the advertiser does not have a running account at the Stockman. Garage sale and one-time only sale ads will not be taken over the telephone. The advertiser needs to bring the copy to the office and pay for it at that time.

Display ads need to have space reserved no later than Monday of each week, with copy due early Tuesday. No changes can be made after Tuesday noon in that week's edition.

We no longer have the facility to shrink an ad and retain the length in order to accommodate our column width, so advertisers need to keep the 9/16 pica width in mind when ordering display advertising. We can float an ad in white space, but this means paying for another column at the inch rate.

Most do not want to pay for the extra inches, so proper size is a must. Further information is available at the Stockman office between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Wednesday through Friday.

OZONANS ATTEND YAC CONFERENCE—Krystal Williams, Dennis Young and Gail Hunnicutt, along with their sponsor, Karen Childress, second from right, attended the fourth annual Youth Against Cancer Conference at the University of Dallas in Irving, August 6-7. The Ozona chapter was active last year and plans to expand activities this year.

Court meeting is routine except for brief dispute

The Crockett County Commissioners Court met Monday in regular monthly meeting which was lackluster except for the appointment or the re-appointment of a county fire marshal. Glen Rumley was on hand to give the hospital report and Garland Young gave his report on the Civic Center and Youth Center.

There was some difference of opinion over the reappointment of Steve Kenley to the post of County Fire Marshal. Apparently the dispute arose over some remodeling at the hospital last summer which did not meet state requirements under the life safety code. Commissioner B. W. Stuart blamed Kenley for the situation, which has caused a problem in securing a state license for the hospital. County Judge Johnny Jones said a state inspector told them before they did it the materials used would not meet standards, but they went ahead and used the unapproved materials anyway. When asked who was responsible, he said the hospital board.

Stuart still contended Kenley should have notified the court before filing a report, and that there were ways of getting around these regulations. Commissioner Jack Williams took exception and said he felt Kenley did his job just like he was supposed to and the only way to get around regulations would be to file a false report. He cited the years he had been a member of the court and the numerous times state inspectors had required changes in hospital structures, and the numerous times the court had complied.

Judge Jones clarified the matter saying Kenley only filed his report, and it was up to the state to approve or disapprove. At any rate, a fire retardant paint, which will cover the flammable materials has arrived at the hospital and will enable licensing of the facility. This turned out to be moot, since the court unanimously reappointed Kenley, after Williams made the motion and Jesus Castro made the second. Hospital Administrator Rumley asked the court to begin considering the possibility of adding the cost of a new X-ray machine to the 1982 hospital budget. He had a price of $101,000 less 15% from one company. The court asked him to get more bids. Rumley also reported Medicare is $88,000 behind in payments to the hospital due to a breakdown in the Blue Cross computer in Dallas.

He said the hospital board voted to raise room rates from $78 to $85 a day for semi-private rooms and from $80 to $95 a day for private rooms per day. He reported the fire retardant paint for the new office was ready to be applied and said that would clear up the licensing problem for the hospital.

His monthly report showed collections at the hospital for July to be 118% with occupancy at 42% with a total loss for the month of $24,545.

County Auditor Dick Kirby asked Rumley if anything could be done about the unusually large number of workmens compensation cases from hospital employees. He asked for investigation of persons who claimed injury on the job. Kirby said it took one person almost fulltime to process all the cases, and cited an instance where a former employee turned in an injured finger claim after she had been terminated for three months. Rumley said he knew of no way to investigate the cases.

Garland Young, civic center director, reported the air-conditioning in the building had not been repaired. He said the unit had to be turned to 60 degrees in the auditorium in order to cool the small room where most adult activities are conducted. After some discussion, the court requested that Young get in touch with Fred Deaton and get the unit fixed. The court went through the same thing in a summer meeting last year when they gave approval for the air conditioning repair at the facility.

Young said a new electronic game had been selected for the youth center and would be available to youngsters at 25c per game. He said if the new venture is successful, more games will be installed.

He reported securing a band for the back to school dance which will be held August 22, from 9 until 1:00. He was authorized by the court to hire an exterminator, overhaul the sound system, and purchase cup towels and card tables for the facility.

Young brought up the drinking of alcoholic beverages in the civic center. The court told Young this was strictly against the rules and it was up to him to enforce the rule.

Bids were presented for the sheriff's car which was in an accident with a motorcycle last week. There were three bids and the low bid of $699.00 from Custom Specialties was accepted.

Paul Shacklette gave the road department report, and said that despite equipment breakdowns and some operator trouble, summer paving was on schedule. He reported the Bailey road finished and work to begin on the Howard Draw road, then he will send a crew to the Baggett road south of town.

It was reported a property-owner on Monterey Street had built a fence around one of the 4-way stop signs. Shacklette was instructed to write a letter warning the owner the obstruction must be removed and if no action on the part of the owner, the county may go in and legally remove the fence.

Jr. high physicals

Stuart commended Shacklette on the Bailey Road before he retired from the meeting.

Judge Jones told the court J. P. Al Fields had asked for a raise in his car allowance from $200 to $300 per month. After discussion the court approved.

A request from the Womans Softball League for a ball park was considered. Stuart, who oversees the ballparks, said a woman's park could be built next to the senior league park for very little, but money was not available to light it.

The court adjourned for lunch and returned to take up the preliminary budget for 1982.

Shower brings rain

After a scorching July, during which only .03 of an inch of rain fell in Ozona, a hard shower Thursday evening brought .21 of an inch of moisture to Ozona, and up to 3 inches in the south part of the county.

Heavy spring rains brought a tremendous growth of weeds and brush to rangelands. The hot weather and dry conditions in July have greatly increased the threat of grass fires.

the day before at the field practices Monday.

The band also began practice Monday night and will practice each weekday night with the exception of Wednesday, until classes begin Monday, August 24.

Standard dope story incorrect

A report in the San Angelo Standard Tuesday morning was incorrect in both the headline and the body of the story. The headline, "Ozona man indicted on marijuana charge," was absolutely incorrect, and the statement, "indicted Thomas Glasscock from the Ozona area," was partially incorrect, unless Sonora can be considered the Ozona area.

The three men mentioned in the story were connected with a marijuana bust on a ranch in south Crockett County, in the spring of 1977.

The federal grand jury which met in Wichita Falls last week indicted Glasscock, and Barry E. McCraney and Richard Donnelly, Jr., both of Austin, according to the SAS story.

Law enforcement officers staked the location out after receiving a tip from a local rancher. They were on hand to arrest the three men when a plane landed at the Crockett County ranch loaded with 505 pounds of marijuana.

According to the Tuesday report the grand jury named the three men on charges of importing 505 pounds of marijuana with intent to distribute it, and warrants have been issued for their arrest.

YAC delegates attend meeting

Krystal Williams, Dennis Young and Gail Hunnicutt represented Ozona as delegates to the fourth annual Youth Against Cancer (YAC) Conference at the University of Dallas in Irving on August 6-7.

The Ozona delegates joined over 250 participants from throughout Texas at the conference sponsored by the Texas Division of the American Cancer Society.

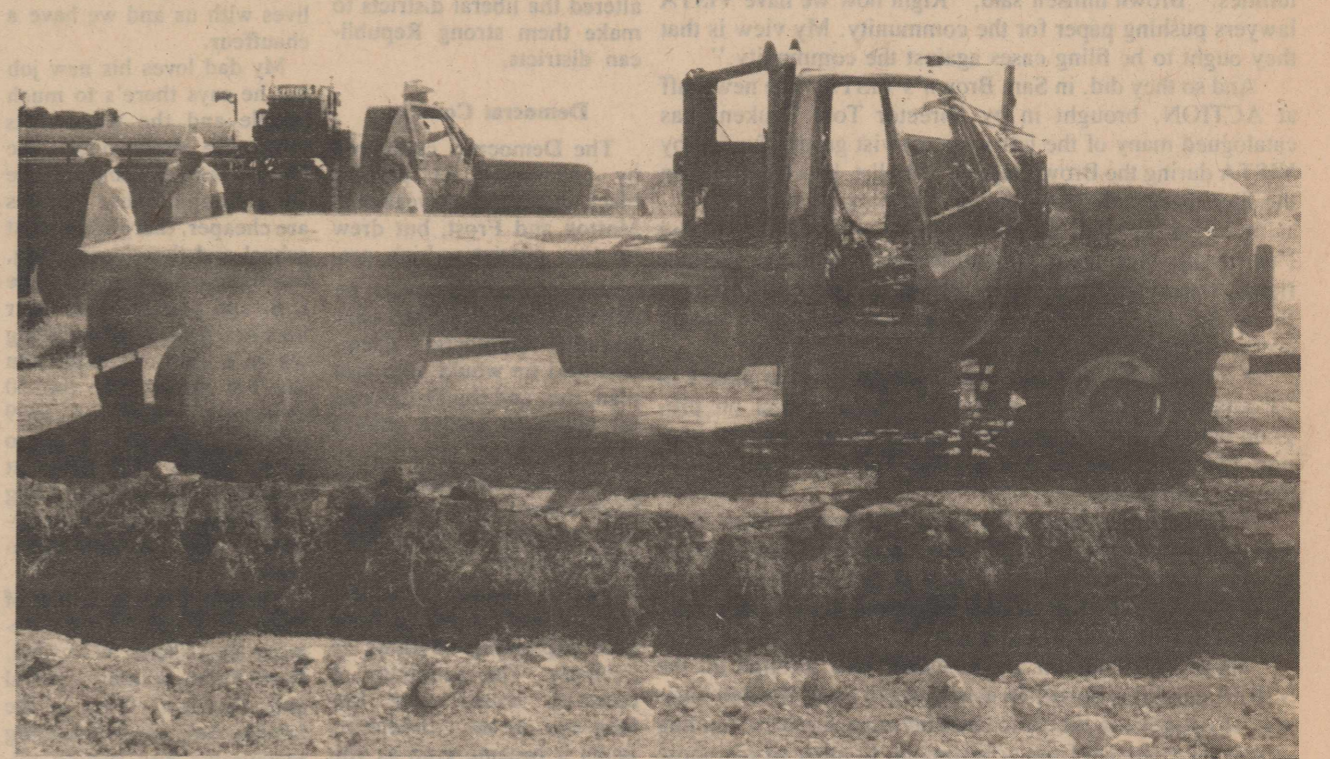

Karen Childress accompanied them as sponsor. Dorothy Hamill, ice skating star and Olympic Gold Medalist, gave the keynote address. As national chairperson for YAC, Hamill cited her personal reasons for joining the fight against the disease. After her mother was diagnosed with cancer,

Hamill said, "I became angry rather than afraid. It made me want to do something."

The conference also featured highlights of the Society's program on smokeless tobacco or "Chewing and Dipping"; plans for the 1981 Great American Smoke out in Texas; and sessions on how to organize a Youth Against Cancer program as part of local ACS units.

Youth Against Cancer is a relatively new ACS program begun in 1977 to involve high school youths in the Society's attack on cancer through research, education and service.

Today there are more than 145 YAC groups in Texas operating in conjunction with local ACS units.

FIRE DEMOLISHES TRUCK—Firemen rushed to this truck fire ten miles north of Ozona on Hwy 163 Wednesday afternoon, at the site of a pipeline construction. However, the smoldering tires were about all left of the vehicle when they arrived. According to a witness, a fuel line came loose and the truck was engulfed in flames in a matter of minutes.

PUT VISTA OUT OF ACTION?

By Edwin Feulner

In simpler times, it used to be said metaphorically that there were two ways to help a hungry man. You could give him a fish, the "quick-fix" solution; or you could teach him to fish by himself, the long term answer to his problem.

Under the Carter Administration, the bureaucrats at ACTION seem to have invented a third approach: training the hungry man to march on the fishpond, and lobby for the fish to leap onto his plate.

ACTION is the agency which was instituted in 1973 to oversee domestic volunteer programs, including VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America). VISTA was to be ACTION'S flagship anti-poverty program. Its volunteers were to help "low-income Americans build their capacity for self-improvement and self-reliance," as supporters of the program wrote in a recent report to Congress on the "Domestic Volunteer Service Act Amendments of 1981."

Perhaps that description makes you think of enthusiastic college students helping refugee children learn English, or of older volunteers sharing skills in carpentry or plumbing with the unemployed poor. Perhaps you also imagine that "volunteers" are unpaid. In other words, perhaps you do not realize what VISTA became in recent years.

VISTA, under the direction of President Carter's ACTION Director Sam Brown, became nothing less than the employer of first resort for a host of left-wing activists. In a 1978 study of the role of the "New Left" in government, Heritage Foundation policy analyst William T. Poole wrote, "Instead of being on the outside looking in, representatives of the American left are now solidly ensconced within the policy-making process. . . . This influx of political leftists has been notable in several areas, but it has probably been nowhere quite as pronounced as at ACTION, under the leadership of Sam Brown." Brown, whom Poole called "the very embodiment of the New Left activist turned establishment figure," is best known for his leadership role in the anti-Vietnam war movement; in particular, for founding and coordinating the Vietnam Moratorium in Washington, D.C., in 1969.

Brown's VISTA Director was Margy Tabankin, a veteran of the "Indochina Peace Campaign" who visited North Vietnam in 1972 under the auspices of the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, which, Poole wrote, was "cited by the House Committee on Internal Security as being . . . under the 'generally predominant influence' of the Communist Party, U.S.A." Tabankin's view of her mandate at VISTA was consistent with her background in the New Left "Movement." During her tenure at VISTA, she was quoted in press accounts as saying that "VISTA should be organizing people to act upon their rights as citizens and work toward more equitable distribution of income and opportunities." Brown himself said, "Right now we have VISTA lawyers pushing paper for the community. My view is that they ought to be filing cases against the community."

And so they did, in Sam Brown's VISTA. The new staff at ACTION, brought in by Director Tom Pauken, has catalogued many of the left-wing activist groups funded by VISTA during the Brown regime. The list, based entirely on the files these radical appointees left behind, includes:

- Legal Services of Iowa, whose 14 volunteers acted "as community legal education facilitators on welfare rights, tenant-landlord issues, Aid to Dependent Children, Social Security Insurance, Medicare and Medicaid, funeral costs, nursing homes, etc.;"

- Citizens for Better Care in Detroit, which aimed to "contact volunteer advocates . . . compile data on program activities; write grants to identified agencies for support of resident advocates; arrange for local publicity of chapter operations;"

- Community Action for Legal Services in New York City, which sought to "eliminate administrative barriers existing in the operations of food stamp and welfare programs; work on class action litigation; train community groups and anti-hunger advocates."

There is a common thread which runs through all the VISTA activities noted. In nearly every case, the emphasis was on organizing others to demand more services, funding or special treatment from government. In other words, these supposed advocates of "self-help" were in fact steering their clients into a greater reliance on welfare, of one type or another.

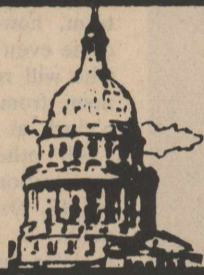

HARVEST TIME!

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Following the adjournment of the special session Tuesday night, a question now on lips in Capitol halls is when will the Governor call a special session?

Speculation has it the Legislature will have to meet again in September or October, after the federal budget is approved, to adjust state programs receiving federal revenues.

The feds will leave it up to the states to decide where some of the money is needed. Although this column went to press before the first special session was gavelled to a close, the political dynamics were already in full action for the three remaining issues: redistricting, property tax reform, and repeal of the 10-cent ad valorem tax.

Redistricting

Battle lines on redistricting were drawn between Democrats and Republicans, with the Democrats stalling action in the House most of last week.

After forming a coalition of some 78 votes and forcing the Speaker to send the bill back to committee for amendments, the Democrats chose to keep the bill in committee until the end of the week.

The delay was meant to avoid an ambush on the House floor, while backers lined up support in the Senate. Their strategy was to pass out their plan or none, forcing Gov. Bill Clements to either veto the bill or let the plan stick.

Clements had threatened to veto any plan which did not create a primarily black congressional district in Dallas, but he also stated publicly that he wanted to be rid of two liberal Dallas congressmen, Democrats Jim Mattox and Martin Frost.

The governor's plan also altered the liberal districts to make them strong Republican districts.

Democrat Counter

The Democrats countered by creating a 61 percent black district, and weakened Mattox and Frost, but drew up two districts which presumably could be won by either a Republican or a conservative Democrat. Clements said he would veto that plan, too, and the Democrats set about to give a chance to do so.

Clements, they felt, would have a hard time explaining why he vetoed a 61 percent black district.

The Governor, for his part, doesn't have a hard time explaining anything to anybody. The subtleties of cover-up issues were lost long ago on the redistricting issue: it became grab as you can for your political party and survival.

Speaker Clayton offered a compromise congressional plan which put him squarely in the middle between the Governor and the members of his party.

Also caught in the middle were the conservative Democrats, who surprised both the liberals and the GOP. For months now the conservative Democrats have been caught in a squeeze play between Republicans and liberals, with both groups expecting them to disintegrate. But it has been the conservatives who have shown the backbone, choosing to take the heat and avoid a polarization of legislators. Whether they flourish or diminish in the coming elections, of course, remains to be seen.

A non-legislator who has played a key role in forming the coalition is Texas Democrat Party chairman Bob Slagle, who, in sports jargon, was all over the field.

Property Tax Reform

The property tax reform bill sailed through the House, was amended slightly in the Senate, and was expected to pass the Legislature.

Legislator Recovers

Longview Rep. Mike Martin survived a shotgun assassination attempt last week. The freshman Republican was hit in the elbow with four pellets of 00 buckshot as he got out of his car late last Thursday night. Martin spent two days in the hospital, but was on his feet and in the Capitol, still confused about the motive of his would-be killer. Police have announced no suspects in the case.

Dear Kitty,

I knew my subscription was due June 1. I kept thinking I'd be in Ozona and stop by. You know how that goes!

Dear Editor,

Well my name is Steve Gunnell (age 10) and I used to live in Los Angeles, around 2 1/2 years ago, but my dad got transferred to Hong Kong. Well I suppose I should get underway, and I'll start with my mom. She really loves it there. She can buy an Oriental rug for the same price in Hong Kong dollars as in U. S. dollars, and the currency is 5 Hong Kong dollars to 1 U.S. dollar, so that's a good deal! She also doesn't have to do housework because our maid lives with us and we have a chauffeur.

My dad loves his new job but he says there's to much people and the weather is awful. He really misses the football and baseball. I like Hong Kong because the toys are cheaper, there's a pool at school and there's no smog, but there's more room in the U.S. and you can ride your bike to school. In Hong Kong we do a little traveling. You see I'm one of the top 50 swimmers in the U.S.A. for 9 and 10 boys, so we go to swim meets in different countries. I think Hong Kong is exciting. There's an underwater tunnel to the mainland.

There's a whole bunch of different areas. There's Re-pulse Bay, Sheko, Wan Chai, North Point, Stanley, Central and Aberdeen. Wich is the famous bay for the floating restaurants and fishing village.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By Jerry Lay

How great a football coach was Knute Rockne? Did you know that in the 13 years he coached Notre Dame, his teams lost only 12 games he averaged less than one loss per year.

Here's an oddity. In the Canadian Football League, there are 2 teams that have the same nickname. In the Canadian Football League are the Ottawa Rough Riders and the Saskatchewan Rough Riders. When they play each other, the announcers can't refer to the teams by their nicknames since they both have the same name.

Here's one that may surprise you. Of all the pitchers in baseball's Hall of Fame, which one has the best lifetime won-loss percentage? Answer is not Cy Young or Bob Feller or Walter Johnson or any pitcher many people would think of first, but it's Whitey Ford. Ford won 236 games and lost only 106 for a percentage of .690. No other Hall of Fame pitcher has a better percentage than that.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

After these prolonged dry weeks, everyone is kept busy trying to keep our plants, shrubs and trees from suffering for the want of water. I have found some of my outdoor potted plants require twice a day watering.

If you are interested in native plants, there is a free catalog "Plants of the Southwest" now available offering seeds of a wide selection of native plants. Also it includes suggestions on how to use the plants in home landscape. To order, send your name and address and zip code to 1570 Pacheco Street, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501.

August is the ideal month to do any pruning that will be necessary before winter. This will allow enough time for the new growth stimulated by pruning to harden off before cold weather arrives.

If you have trouble in transplanting impatiens try rooting your cuttings in moist sand or in equal parts sand and potting soil. Keep moist until root systems develop with new growth. This method may be easier than rooting in water.

So many of Ozona gardens have a shady setting, the plantian lillie (hostas) are striking perennials that bring interesting mounds of foliage. They are easy to grow, long lived, practically trouble free, require very little maintenance and will do well in our area. Hostas are as dependable in shade as day-lilies are in sun. They bloom, but the flowers are secondary to the foliage. They are generally divided into two groups based on clump size. Large (2 or more feet in diameter) and miniature (less than 2 feet).

Set out in spring or fall, planting in soil that is rich in organic matter. Space plants so they will barely touch when mature. Depending on the setting and seal of your garden, use hostas as a border, specimen, ground cover, or mass planting. A single miniature hosta planted with ferns, columbine or iris may be all you need in a narrow bed. Hostas grow well in outdoor planters. Be sure the container is low enough so you look down on the bush, symmetrical mound of foliage.

If you have not taken a vacation this summer, you had better get in gear before school starts. There are two weeks before school begins. Research tells us you do better work if you take a vacation each year. Taking a break from your regular work is a must. If you have missed your summer break, you may want to take a fall break.

There just aren't enough hours in the day. Sound familiar? More and more homemakers are using microwaves to save hours in meal preparation. Tasty meals can be prepared with very few pots and pans to clean. I have included some microwave recipes that may make mealtime a little easier for you.

DOUBTER

She's young, she's beautiful, but she doesn't believe in God. At least, she doesn't think she does.

Shocked? Lots of young people today and a good many older ones aren't all that sure of the "old religion." They don't want a panacea. They want something of substance, a truth to live with.

That's why the Church has risen to meet the challenge. There's a new tide in today's church, a reality as old as the centuries but as new as the future.

You owe it to yourself to investigate.

Surviving a hotel fire

If your summer vacation takes you to a high-rise hotel, make sure you give some attention to fire safety.

In other words, check on possible escape routes in case of a fire.

More than 500 hotel fires in Las Vegas and other cities the past year killed more than 100 persons and injured hundreds of others. So fire safety in hotels is a "real" concern.

Yet, there are simple precautions that can prevent most casualties in a hotel fire, says Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Surviving a hotel fire begins at check-in. Check windows to see if they open and lead to an escape. Walk out into the hall and locate fire exits and fire alarms. Doing both takes less than a minute.

Nelson suggests these steps for travelers in case a fire starts:

Grab the room key and go to the door. If there's already smoke in the room, crawl to the door.

Feel the door to see if it's hot. If it is, stay in the room where there's a better chance to survive. If the door isn't hot, open it slowly.

Check the hall. If it's clear, walk to the exit. If there is smoke, crawl to it.

Don't use the elevator. Heat tends to make machinery malfunction, including elevators.

Walk to the ground floor. If there is smoke or fire at lower levels, turn around and go to the roof—one of the best places to survive.

The two greatest dangers in a fire are smoke and panic, says Nelson. Toxic substances in smoke and foolish behavior are almost always the cause of fire deaths rather than the flame itself.

Being warmer, smoke begins to accumulate at the ceiling and work its way down. The freshest air is near the floor, so stay on your hands and knees.

Smoke also irritates the eyes, so you won't be able to keep them open after a short while. It also reduces the amount of oxygen and irritates the throat, prompting coughing.

Panic is sudden, overpowering terror often caused by confusion and the imagination running wild. Knowing what is occurring and what to do makes persons less likely to panic, hence the reason for checking out fire escapes and precautions ahead of time.

Hotel guests often have a better chance of surviving a fire by remaining in their rooms, notes Nelson. If it doesn't seem possible to make it safely to an exit, do the following:

Open a window to let smoke out, but be careful it doesn't bring it in.

Wet towels and sheets to put into cracks or vents to keep smoke out.

Turn on the bathroom fan and fill the tub with water in case it's needed to fight the fire.

Let people know you are in the room. Use the telephone if it works, or hang a sheet out the window as a signal to fire fighters.

Don't try to climb down or jump. Panic often causes individuals to jump, a frequent cause of fire deaths.

Huffman injured in accident

Vince Huffman was injured Wednesday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding was hit by a car, driven by Deputy Sheriff Aldo Gonzales.

The sheriff's vehicle was entering Hwy 290 at Ave. G when the accident occurred. Huffman was traveling west on the cycle. Gonzales did not see the motorcycle due to large vehicles parked on the highway at Ave. G, which created a blind corner.

Huffman was hospitalized with a broken arm and a bruised leg, but he has been released.

Used sewing machine could be best buy

In the market for a used sewing machine?

A "good" sewing machine can be the best buy in several cases, says Becky Saunders, a clothing specialist on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

They're a wise choice for homesewers whose budgets won't stretch to cover the cost of a new machine, Saunders says.

They're ideal for people who just do simple sewing or repairs, and they're a cautious choice for beginners or "returners" to sewing who aren't sure how much or what they'll be sewing, the specialist adds.

Used sewing machines are available at retail stores that sell reclaimed or trade-in machines as well as new ones. Household auctions, garage sales or want ads are other sources, Saunders suggests.

A reconditioned sewing machine purchased from a retail dealer should carry a warranty, she says.

On the other hand, when buying from an individual, you may pay a lower price, but usually you must take the machine "as is."

Before buying, consider a number of factors.

Answer these questions: Does the machine sew well, and is it in good condition?

If not, can it be repaired, and what will needed repairs cost?

Are parts and additional attachments available? Is the operating manual included?

Will it meet your sewing needs?

Is the price right for your pocketbook?

In order to answer some of the above questions, try out the sewing machine—with thread.

As you sew, notice how it operates—does it make even stitches? Does it run smoothly without much noise or vibration?

Check the ease of threading and adjusting controls, such as tension, pressure and stitch length.

If possible, test stitches on different weights and thicknesses of fabric.

Be sure the electrical wiring is flexible and has no bare wires showing.

If the wiring or exposed belts are worn, frayed or loose, they will need replacing.

After you've checked out the used machine, be sure you know the total purchase price.

Don't allow special offers or deals to tempt you beyond what you can—or want—to pay.

If you are not paying cash, remember the sale price does not include interest charges.

Supplemental feeding tips

Although supplemental feeding of cattle is usually considered a fall and winter chore, it actually deserves year-round attention.

"Supplemental feeding is necessary since cattle can only store protein and minerals in limited amounts," points out Dr. Dennis B. Herd, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. However, he suggests providing supplement only if the increase in performance will more than offset its cost or if it's necessary for humane treatment of cattle.

"Symptoms of protein, energy, vitamin and mineral deficiencies and symptoms of parasite and disease afflictions are practically impossible to distinguish visually," notes Herd. "So animal health is an important part of any production program."

"A systematic approach to supplemental feeding can make management decisions concerning animal health and nutrition easy and accurate," adds Herd. He offers the following general guidelines:

Feed salt and an 8-12 percent phosphorus supplement of similar calcium content free choice the year round unless the mineral is included in a complete supplement.

Inject or feed vitamin A if in doubt.

Feed enough protein to maintain at least a 6 percent ration for proper digestive functions and to increase feed intake. As a rule of thumb, one pound of 40 percent protein supplement will meet the supplemental protein needs of a dry pregnant cow, and two pounds will take care of a cow nursing a calf.

Use cow condition or fatness as a guide to additional feeding. Loss of weight or condition suggests the need for additional supplement to furnish more energy. The protein content can be decreased in proportion to the increased level of supplemental feeding.

The beef cattle specialist also has these suggestions on supplemental feeding.

Since cows graze selectively, the forage they eat will be slightly more digestible and contain more protein than the average forage in the pasture. Overstocking eliminates the potential for selective grazing and greatly increases the need for, and the expense of, supplementation. So don't overgraze pastures, emphasizes Herd.

Adequate protein is essential for normal feed or energy intake and digestion. Adding one-half to one-and-a-half pounds of a 30 to 40 percent protein supplement to rations with less than 6 percent crude protein can increase forage intake 30 to 60 percent and digestion 6 to 12 percent.

The energy in 1 to 2 pounds of high energy supplement (grain) may slightly stimulate digestibility and forage intake. However, levels above 10 to 12 percent of the diet may slightly depress forage digestibility and have a substitution rather than a supplemental effect on total energy intake. Still, a pound of grain supplies more energy than a pound of forage. In spite of the substitution effect, many situations call for greater amounts of energy supplementation.

Stay away from energy deficient situations, advises Herd. Try to feed high quality hay, and control the calving season so quality forage is available when cows and calves need it most. Use fertilization and limited supplementation to make sure cows are in good condition starting the winter. This greatly reduces the need for high levels of supplementation later in the season.

Where cows are getting too poor, feed higher levels of supplement to maintain proper condition or get ready to pay the price of reduced calf crops and weaning weights.

To stimulate cows to increase feed intake and clean up dead grass in the fall, feed 1 to 2 pounds of a high-protein, high-energy supplement. Then haul hay to cattle as the total feed in late winter when pastures are poor. Don't tease them with only a portion of the hay they need to maintain body condition.

Finally, manage your program to stay out of situations calling for high levels of supplementation—it's seldom profitable, says Herd. On the other hand,

Bitter cucumber causes

Mid-summer heat along with low moisture is starting to cause bitter tasting cucumbers in most gardens.

Aging of the plant, high temperatures, low moisture, low fertility and common foliage diseases cause plant stress which leads to a bitter flavor or off taste of garden cucumbers, explains Billy Reager, county Extension agent.

Gardeners will agree that bitter cucumbers usually come from unvigorous, unhealthy, poor yielding plants.

Planting at the right time so the cucumber will mature during ideal conditions and providing adequate fertility and moisture can delay or avoid many problems with poor flavor, advises Reager.
