Highway resurfacing scheduled

Bids to resurface 194 miles of various highways in Andrews, Crane, Crockett, Ector, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reeves, Ward and Winkler Counties are scheduled to be received November 13 by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Work will consist of seal coating the roadways with an application of asphalt and rock to promote waterproofing and help maintain pavement strength.

Odessa District Engineer William A. Lancaster said seal coating will be applied to sections of U.S. 67 in Crockett County.

The completed work will provide better riding and skid-resistant roadway surfaces for motorists.

Tom Schlegel of Pecos is the department's engineer in charge of supervising the work.

Thompson qualifies to run

Kaye is a 1981 graduate of Ozona High School. She went to state three times in her running event, winning the championship last year.

HOOPER DESCENDENTS gather to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the arrival of the William Peery Hoover family in Crockett County. A large number of family members were present along with a few hundred friends and relatives for the dedication of an historical marker, Monday night at the Civic Center. Judge Johnny Jones dedicated the marker which will be erected on the Peery Holmsley ranch southwest of Ozona.

Historical marker for Hoover family dedicated

Memories of pioneer days and pioneer people of Crockett County and West Texas were made more vivid with stories of the intrepid pioneer first family of Crockett County, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Peery Hoover, when a large gathering of surviving members of that family along with a few hundred friends dedicated an historical marker commemorating the 100th anniversary of the arrival of that family in Crockett County, at the Civic Center in Ozona Monday night.

The marker is to be erected on Hoover land at a point on the Hoover Divide Road in west Crockett County about 15 miles south of U.S. Highway 290 on the Peery Holmsley ranch. Holmsley is a grandson of the Hoovers.

The dedication program was a joint undertaking of the Crockett County Historical Commission and the Crockett County Historical Society. Opening remarks were by Mrs. R. A. Harrell, chairman of the Historical Commission, followed by recognition of members of the Hoover family presented by Ted M. White, president of the Historical Society. The roll call of family members was given by a representative of each of the nine children of W. P. and Laura Hoover who lived to adulthood—Arthur, Hattie, Rowdy, Elmer, Brock, Myrtle, Bill, Armond and Mabel. Later the entire surviving Hoover clan was assembled in the rear of the meeting room for a picture taking session.

Appropriately, the guest speaker for this historical event was Elmer Kelton of San Angelo, author of several historical novels, and student of West Texas history in particular. Mr. Kelton told the Hoover story in brief and commented on the contribution of the pioneers who carved out an empire from the untamed west through their perseverance and unremitting hard work that established the ranching industry, still thriving today.

Mr. Kelton was introduced by John (Sandy) Stokes, vice president of the Historical Society. The historical marker, prepared by the Texas Historical Commission, was unveiled by County Judge John R. Jones, who read the legend the marker carries. It will be erected on the selected site at a later date.

The legend, to "Laura and William Peery Hoover" reads as follows:

"Although Indians, Spaniards, wagon trains, and

Deer harvest good so far in season

The Crockett County white-tail deer hunting season got off with a bang Saturday morning. In spite of early morning fog and rather warm weather for deer hunting, it is estimated hunters harvested well over twice as many deer as last year during the opening weekend.

Cook's Market, the only deer-processing firm in Crockett County, reported around 200 deer brought in over the weekend, twice that of last year. However, many hunters do not use commercial processors, so the total harvest for the opening weekend could be almost double the 200 mark.

There were no game law violations reported, but one hunting accident in the south part of the county injured a hunter from Abilene. The

At annual gift bazaar—Deadline near for food orders

The deadline for placing food orders with the Womans League for delivery at the annual gift bazaar is Friday, Nov. 20. The bazaar will be held Tuesday, Nov. 24, at the Civic Center and food orders may be picked up at the food booth.

League members are busy preparing for food orders. They offer cakes, pies, breakfast rolls, and various breads. Orders may be placed by calling 392-3116, 392-3562 or 392-2423.

The bazaar will open at 4:00 p.m. Nov. 24, and will close at 6 p.m. Refreshments will be served during the open hours. An added attraction this year will be the "while-u-wait" personalizing of any gift item purchased at the bazaar. There will also be a large variety of military expeditions crossed through this area earlier, the first permanent settlers in present-day Crockett County were native Texans Laura (McNutt) (1862-1941) and

Car-masher crew here

A car-mashing crew is in town to rid the streets of abandoned autos. The firm will pick up and pay for the old cars. Anyone wishing to get rid of an automobile may call Joe Conway, who is in Room 9 at the Redwood Motel.

The crew is presently set up at Wheeler Mechanic Service. They will also be doing work at both county-owned dumpgrounds.

William Peery Hoover (1854-1922), who settled here in 1881. Traveling by way of the Devils River and Beaver Lake, they migrated to this area with two children and 200 head of longhorn cattle. Their first home, constructed of cedar pickets, was located under a bluff overlooking the Pecos river.

"The Hoovers had fourteen children, five of whom died in infancy. Isolated, the family had to be self-sufficient since supply trips to the nearest towns, over 75 miles away, took several days.

"Laura and William Hoover steadily acquired land and their holdings grew to over 100,000 acres. Their cattle were identified by the "Hoo" brand. The Hoovers later moved to present-day Ozona (50 miles NE) and became active in the development of the community. William was instrumental in the formation of Crockett County and helped organize the Ozona National Bank.

One hundred years after the Hoovers settled in this area, much of their land is still owned by descendants."

Lions smash Owls for third in Dist.

The Ozona Lions closed out their 1981 football season with a smashing victory over the visiting Reagan County Owls by a score of 28-0.

The victory clinched third place for the Lions in District 9-2A with a season record of 7-3 and a district record of 4-2. The game was a blowout for the home town Lions, from the very start.

The Lions scored the first time they had possession of the ball. Hector Leal scored from 1 yard out. Will Mason added the PAT.

The second quarter was again all Ozona as the Lions scored two more touchdowns. Hector Leal scored his second touchdown of the night as he plunged in from 1 yard out. Will Mason kicked the PAT. The Lions scored again on a 15 yard pass from Varlyn Aldridge to Robert Massey. Mason again kicked the PAT.

The Lions scored one more time in the 4th quarter as Ernie Borrego went in from 1 yard out with Mason adding the PAT.

The entire game was a big defensive effort for the Lions as they completely shut down the Owl offense. Credit for this fine defensive effort goes to the entire Lion defensive unit.

Community worship service set

Right On, Wildmon

The Rev. Donald Wildmon, a Methodist preacher who heads the National Federation for Decency, has decided the only way to clean up commercial television is by boycotting sponsors of objectionable sex and crime shows.

Wildmon began to monitor U.S. TV shows a few years back and his efforts have been joined by others concerned with the low level of U.S. commercial television. The result is the Coalition for Better Television.

The Coalition now has over 4,500 volunteers monitoring shows. Last spring Wildmon, from his Tupelo, Mississippi home, threatened to boycott sponsors of objectionable shows. This caused something of a flap and some advertisers immediately moved to clean up programs they were sponsoring.

But the networks attacked the effort, calling it censorship, which it isn't, and blasted Wildmon. The Coalition then agreed to forego its boycott campaign, to have a look at the fall season's new shows--and see if progress--as promised--had been made.

Wildmon says that move--agreeing to call off the boycott--was taken as weakness by networks and some producers and sponsors, who assume the Coalition didn't really have the clout to make a boycott felt. And, assuming the coalition was weak, advertisers and their producers are now once again doing whatever they want to do--to attract viewers--regardless of the effect on U.S. society, Wildmon says.

The boycott list--and it will contain only a few sponsors so that it can be effective--will appear later this month. Those parents and others concerned with the deluge of criminal and immoral fare going into living rooms today should support it. That is a message sponsors will hear, and probably the only way to clean up commercial TV.

Heart Disease Breakthrough

The greatest new hope in some years, concerning heart attacks, is the enzyme streptokinase--which helps dissolve blood clots in the coronary vessels. The enzyme affects the coagulation process. In both this country and Germany it has been successfully used in clinics to reduce fatalities after heart attacks.

In heart attacks, the destruction of heart muscle after blockage of a vessel is comparatively slow, except in cases of rhythm disorders which can kill instantly. Thus if oxygen-deprived areas can be supplied with blood in time, permanent damage is much less and in some cases it may mean avoiding permanent damage.

The decisive breakthrough in this form of treatment was made by Professor P. Rentrop at Gottingen University Clinic in Germany, three years ago. Inserting streptokinase directly into blocked vessels of a patient, using a catheter leading from the upper thigh to the heart, blockages were stopped within thirty minutes. If they are stopped in heart attack patients within four hours of attacks, the new therapy is highly effective.

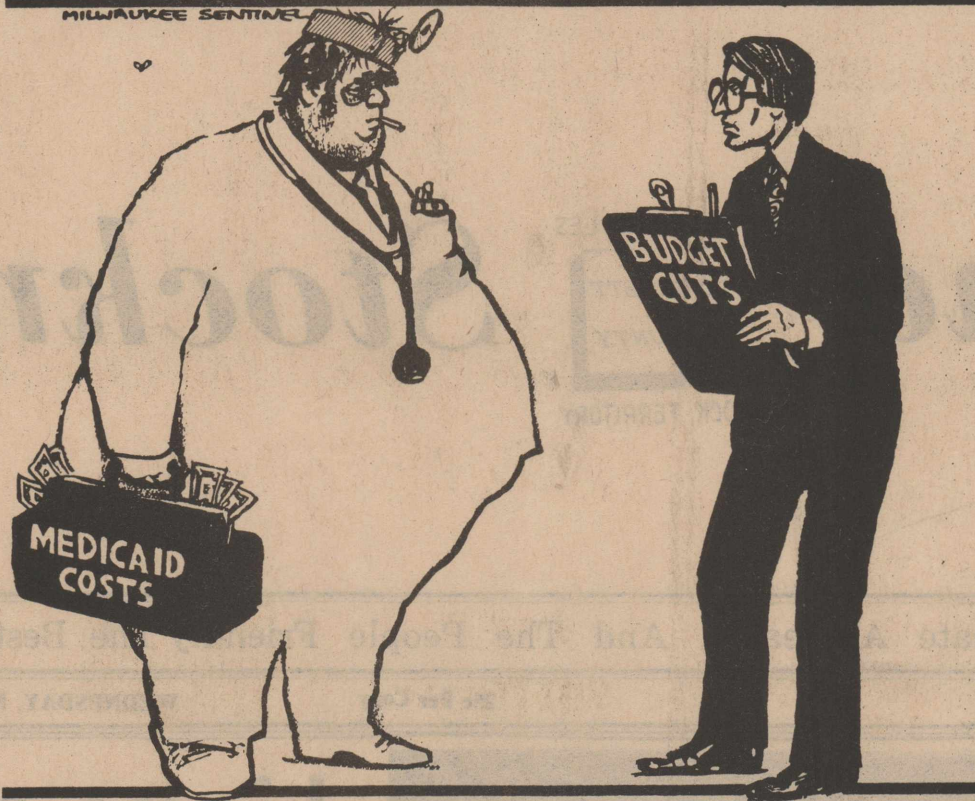

U.S. clinics quickly became interested in the process, though cardiologists have apparently been slower to appreciate its potential. Rentrop is now working at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York. Another European doctor, who also developed a new process to alleviate vessel blockages, Professor A. Gruntzig, is now teaching at Emory University Medical School in Atlanta.

Gruntzig's process also unblocks vessels after attacks; he uses a catheter also, with a balloon attached, and his method is now accepted widely as preferable to surgery if only one artery is contracted. Much heart surgery, including by-pass operations, is likely to be avoided in the future by these two new methods for unblocking vessels serving the heart.

The hope of many is that the balloon catheter method, which cannot open completely blocked vessels, can be used in case where streptokinase has succeeded in opening them. It's also hoped that streptokinase may eventually be successful taken intravenously. (there are already preliminary reports that about 65 percent success has been achieved in this way in German tests.)

Finally, these two methods allow surgery, if it should be performed, to be done earlier, within days after blocked vessels have been cleared by one of these two methods. Until now, heart surgery was usually postponed until about four weeks after a heart attack, if the patient survived. The risk of death in an operation when the patient was suffering from blocked heart vessels was too great.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN--It may be just a little more than a week since Texas voters defeated Proposition 4, the controversial amendment to create a water trust fund with surplus state revenue, but already both proponents and opponents of that proposal are calling for a new water plan to be devised.

Lubbock Mayor Pro Tem Alan Henry, the new president of the Texas Municipal League, is leading that cause, with Gov. Bill Clements and other state officials still bemoaning the projected water crisis.

Henry, in a statement released shortly after the Nov. 3 election, called on the 1983 Legislature to devise a plan to solve the state's long-term water needs.

Henry says the voters plainly "don't like the concept of a dedicated water fund," but do realize the need for a comprehensive water plan. Those voters are waiting to see the specific types of projects to be undertaken "before making a financial commitment," he says.

Clements, meanwhile, says the state has been "officially declared a water-short state" and will be in the midst of a water crisis by 2000.

Officials of the Trinity River Authority, as well as State Reps. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, and Frank Gaston, R-Dallas, also are calling for development of a new water plan.

Meanwhile, Clements and House Speaker Bill Clayton, sponsor of Proposition 4, indicated they don't think the defeat was aimed at them in any way, and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, whose opposition to dedicated funds is well known, said he will develop his own water plan in 1983.

Farm Land

While other state officials were airing their views on future water problems, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown was hosting dozens of farmers at this year's Family Land Heritage Program ceremonies.

Fifty-four farm and ranch families were honored at the ceremonies in the Capitol Rotunda for maintaining agricultural production on the same land for 100 years or more.

The Little Burke Ranch in Bee County was honored as the oldest property with constant agricultural production. The ranch, owned by Mrs. Clara E. Wilson Ray, has been in constant agricultural production since 1835.

Meanwhile, Brown's chief opponent in next year's agriculture commissioner's race was speaking out against destruction of prime farmland.

Jim Hightower, who launched his campaign for agriculture commissioner a few weeks ago from the back of a hay-filled pickup truck on the front lawn of the Capitol, said that by 2000, Texas will lead the nation in the destruction of farmland.

Hightower said Texas has lost one million acres of agricultural land to chemical dumps, urban sprawl, utility development and strip mines in the last four years.

Brown himself is scheduled to announce his reelection plans at a Capitol press conference Nov. 17.

Governor's Race

In what will probably be the most hotly contested and expensive race in 1982, State Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler says money is essential in "getting attention" in political campaigns.

McKnight, the only Democrat to get into the governor's race so far, made the comment at a meeting of the Austin chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists.

McKnight says he already has spent thousands of dollars of his own money in the campaign and probably will spend half a million dollars before the May Democratic primary is over.

McKnight, who also says he is encouraged in the victory by conservative Democrat Charles Robb in Virginia's governor's race, has predicted it will take at least $5 million to beat Clements next year.

Meanwhile, Clements is set to make his formal campaign announcement Nov. 16, and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, who has not yet made a formal announcement, let it be known that rumors he is having second thoughts about entering the governor's race are unfounded.

Redistricting

It didn't take long for opponents of the redistricting plans approved by the Legislative Redistricting Board to get to the courthouse, and now some folks are trying to get in on and out of participating in those and pending litigation on the congressional redistricting plan passed by the Legislature.

Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants, a prison reform group, has expressed interest in joining the suit filed against the Senate redistricting plan by State Republican Party Chairman Chet Upham and other Republicans.

That suit contends the Senate plan ignores the constitutional requirement that reapportionment be based on the number of qualified electors rather than total population.

Meanwhile, Gov. Clements is trying to get out of having to answer questions on his role in the remapping process.

History

A proper understanding of history is necessary if citizens in a self-governing country are to pass intelligent judgment upon the issues which present themselves daily in the modern world.

An understanding of history is not to be obtained through a passing grade on a compulsory course or a TV show. It takes personal interest and a desire to understand past conduct of human beings to make careful study productive.

Nor can one understand a past epoch in history by reading the work of a single writer or by watching television. Just as no one would expect to get a balanced picture of a political campaign from the writing of one candidate, or fervid speeches of his supporters, it's impossible to correctly appraise past events by a single work.

It's necessary to read and understand the theories expounded by a number of intelligent and fair-minded authors.

The experience of former generations can only be valuable if accurately reported in print and intelligently studied.

As to your other question, no, there is no requirement that the ticket be dismissed once the license is produced. This is again in the Judge's discretion, and in some areas it is common practice. ## Tips For Gardeners

From The Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Now that we have had another frost and freeze, fall is the season for composting. With all the leaves, grass clippings, and other garden debris available, there could be no better time to start a compost pile. The easiest composting method for vegetable gardens and other large plots is to till the fallen leaves into the soil during the fall. Then when it's time for spring planting, the leaves will be decomposed. Many gardeners make compost quickly by layering leaves, garden and kitchen throw aways, garden soil, and manure in a bin, then they turn it frequently to speed decomposition. Another simple way of composting is raking the leaves into a pile in an out-of-the-way corner of the garden and let them slowly decompose. You may want to fence the pile with poultry wire to keep leaves from blowing back into the garden.

In your compost pile, good aeration speeds decomposition, so turn the pile. If kept too dry, decomposition will stop, if too wet, an odor may develop. Regulate the moisture level by sprinkling the material as needed and turning it if it becomes too wet. Green materials are used in the compost pile to supply nitrogen, which is necessary for fast decomposition.

plant anemones this month or early Dec. Since anemones do not like loose soil, prepare the bed well in advance of planting (at least two weeks) to allow time for settling. They are deep rooted, so you'll need to work the soil to a depth of 18 inches. Work in plenty of organic matter (avoid using peat as it is too acid). Besides enriching the soil, the organic matter will promote the good drainage essential to keep the tubers from rotting. After allowing the bed to settle, plant the tubers 6 to 8 inches apart and deep enough so the tops of the tubers are 1 to 2 inches below the soil surface.

As your garden mums finish blooming remove the flower heads and cut back the plants to within 3 inches of the ground. Also, slightly pull back the mulch from around the plants for they over winter better if this is done. Keep plants watered, and they should survive the coldest areas of Texas.

Debra Says

The "Season Sampler" Christmas Program by Doris Richards will be Thursday November 19th at the Civic Center. The program will be presented two times (10:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon). The Progressive Extension Club is sponsoring a salad luncheon so working people can attend. Doris is a home economist with West Texas Utilities Company. Christmas cookbooks are available at no charge.

Lou Deaton and I worked with a group of Senior 4-Hers this week. The group prepared 4 recipes that will be appropriate for parties. The recipes are so easy, I have included them for you to enjoy during the holidays.

If you are planning to redecorate a bedroom, fabric can be your decorating tool. Recovering a headboard with fabric is a fairly simple project. It only takes fabric and a staple gun. Measure the headboard and buy enough fabric to cover, plus four inches on all sides to cover it. Padding underneath the fabric gives an upholstered look. Lay the headboard on the floor, and make a pencil outline of the headboard. Allow 4" extra fabric from the first line. Cut the fabric and staple to the headboard.

Calling All Homemakers

Brought To You By Brown Furniture

Although most people today now subscribe to the theory that bedrooms should be useful not just at night but also during the day, many people are at a loss as to what furniture to put into their bedrooms to get the maximum use from it.

So, here are just a few bedroom ideas along those lines:

How about treating yourself to relaxing, private breakfasts and other snacks in your bedroom by adding a nice snack table and chair.

Another good idea is a pretty desk to use not only to write letters but to store correspondence and other papers instead of writing on a make-shift place like a kitchen table or dresser, and then not having a good place for storage of stationery, letters, etc. With the right bedroom desk, you can make those chores a pleasure and take care of your personal business in a nicer, more convenient atmosphere.

And speaking of a nicer atmosphere, what better place than the bedroom for a comfortable chair and a good lamp for reading in peace.

Still another idea for the bedroom is an attractive piece of furniture to hold a radio, TV and magazines.

We can show you a variety of pieces, along with other furnishings and ideas to make your bedroom truly a useful place, so stop in at Brown Furniture Today!

Mystery of Balance

Why does life put such a premium on balance?

I've been trying for years to fit junk food into a balanced diet. When I succeed in anything someone says the scales were tipped in my favor. When I fail I wasn't equal to the challenge.

This emphasis we place on balance is not an accident. Man has always been aware that God built into his creation order and stability. Without solving the whole mystery, I realize that my spiritual growth has to keep pace with my physical and intellectual development.

Worshipping each week makes for a well-balanced life.

Producers must be flexible to survive

To survive in the cattle business, producers must be flexible and willing to make some changes in their operations, to take advantage of any opportunities that come along. A key part of those changes is to produce the type of beef consumers want.

That philosophy echoed loud and clear at the South Central Texas Cow-Calf Clinic Held in Brenham, Nov. 6.

"You're going to have to dare to change," said Topper Thorpe, general manager of Cattle-Fax, a cattle marketing firm based in Denver, Colo. "People who refuse to change and don't know where they are in the cattle business won't be around much longer."

"You've got to look at alternatives, to take advantage of technology, and to do better, to become more efficient," he challenged some 300 cattlemen attending the tenth annual clinic, the oldest such educational program in Texas.

"You need to recognize that producing beef is a business and not just a way of life," Thorpe emphasized.

Cattlemen have a big stake in meeting future challenges of feeding the world's population, which is expected to double in the next 30 years, noted Thorpe. The fact that people don't have as much disposable income today has hurt the cattle business. However, beef is still the preferred meat product for consumers at a particular price.

However, consumer preferences continue to change, as noted by Frank Srubar, vice president of meat merchandising for Safeway Stores, Inc., Oakland, Calif. "Consumers today want products that are easy to prepare, and they're trying to get the most value for their dollar," Srubar told the cattlemen.

He also pointed out that with more than half of the women 16 years of age and older now working outside the home, their shopping time as well as the time they have to prepare meals is limited. "This greatly affects what they buy at the supermarket," he said. "Consumers mainly want products that are easy to prepare."

Srubar pointed out that those in the 25 to 44 age bracket are projected to increase more than twice as fast as the rest of the U.S. population in the 1980s and that this is important to the beef industry since that group consumes the most food.

To maximize beef sales in the supermarket, Srubar said that he must have a product that is tender, juicy, flavorful and consistently satisfactory on a 52-week-per-year basis and that it must be advertised and promoted more aggressively.

"To make it in the cattle business you no longer can breed just any old bull to any old cow, produce any old calf, which is fed in some feedlot to some degree of finish, and then expect to maximize the merchandising of that product to today's sophisticated consumer," Srubar said.

"You just have to produce the kind of product that the consumer will readily buy."

Predation losses need remedy now

Predators continue to inflict heavy losses to livestock, poultry and other wildlife, pointing to the need for an effective remedy.

That remedy could come in the use of toxic chemicals, but use of such materials, particularly Compound 1080, is not yet sanctioned by the Environmental Protection Agency.

However, some inroads are being made toward legalizing the use of these chemicals, points out Dr. Dale Wade, a wildlife specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Information presented at recent informal hearings may warrant the EPA to open formal hearings before an administrative law judge.

"If such hearings do come about, they would include information on the use of the 1080 toxic collar to protect sheep and goats as well as possible use of 1080-treated baits," notes Wade.

While such hearings might finally lead to an effective predator control technique for ranchers, they likely would not be completed in time to allow use of toxic chemicals during the coming winter season, adds the specialist.

"Coyotes continue to cause the heaviest losses to livestock and poultry, and their populations are increasing," says Wade. "They have been a problem to sheep and goat producers for many years, but now they also are causing increased losses in cattle. And the problem is no longer confining to western states; several eastern states now report increased coyote populations and significant livestock losses."

In addition to preying on livestock and poultry, coyotes also have inflicted heavy losses in pronghorn antelope, mule deer and other wild species in recent years, adds Wade. This has led some state wildlife agencies to support the use of toxic agents against predators.

"With ranchers currently operating at low profit margins of even losses due to poor prices, livestock losses to predators are a major concern," points out Wade.

How to store sausage

Fresh sausage can be stored in refrigeration for 1 week or in the freezer at 0 degrees F. for not more than 3 months. Salt added to the meat reduces freezer storage time by about 50 percent. Before freezing, sausage should be wrapped in freezer paper, plastic freezer bags or foil. Bulk sausage can be wrapped in freezer paper, plastic freezer bags or foil and placed directly into the freezer.

Cured and smoked sausage can be held in refrigeration for 2 or 3 weeks or stored in the freezer. Protect and store cured and smoked sausage using the same method as for fresh sausage.

Firearm safety

Accidents with firearms don't just happen. They are caused by ignorance, carelessness or disregard for safety rules. Abide by the following "Ten Commandments of Firearm Safety" each time you handle a firearm. Don't let a needless hunting tragedy mar your hunting pleasure.

Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. Watch that muzzle! Be able to control the direction of the muzzle even if you should stumble.

Be sure the barrel and action are clear of obstructions and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying.

Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know identifying features of the game you hunt.

Unload guns when not in use. Take down or have actions open; guns should be carried in cases to the shooting area.

Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay with a firearm.

Never climb a fence or tree or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you by the muzzle.

Never shoot a bullet at a flat, hard surface or water; at target practice be sure your backstop is adequate.

Store guns and ammunition separately beyond the reach of children and careless adults.

Avoid alcoholic beverages before or during shooting.

Deer hunting provides food as well as fun

Deer hunting provides many hours of outdoor recreation for Texas sportsmen each year. Besides providing recreation, deer harvested also yield a huge resource in terms of table fare—venison.

The potential yield runs in the neighborhood of 11 million pounds of boneless deer meat annually, points out Dr. Milo Shult, wildlife specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Quality of venison is not determined solely by the culinary talents of the home-maker, Shult emphasizes. "The entire process of handling the carcass from field to table can add or detract from the desirability of the final product. The hunter, plays an important role in determining whether a deer steak is tender and tasty or tough and bad-flavored," says Shult.

A result demonstration conducted by a group of specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service emphasized the effects of handling on deer meat quality. Thirty-six deer were collected on a permit obtained from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. These deer were treated in several ways with each group of six deer receiving the same treatment.

"Since the hunter cannot control all factors which affect deer meat quality—for example, age of the animal harvested and the like the treatments were designed to look at only those things which the hunter can control," says the Texas A&M University specialist.

Of the tests run on the carcasses, one of the most interesting was the taste panel test. A panel, consisting of five to eight people, was trained to evaluate meat quality, then given samples of venison from the various treatment groups.

"Only ham and backstrap muscles were used for testing and each sample was cooked to uniform internal temperature. At no time did panel members know what sample or samples they were evaluating. The panel rated each sample on the basis of flavor intensity, flavor desirability, juiciness, tenderness and overall satisfaction," Shult points out.

Based on evaluations by the panel, the following general recommendations can be made for Texas conditions, says Shult.

Whenever a choice is available, select a female animal for less flavor intensity (gaminess). This does not mean that male animals provide undesirable meat, but rather that most consumers may prefer the less intense flavor of the female.

Whenever possible place the shot in the neck or head to insure a clean, rapid kill. This prevents post-shot stress and also reduces tissue damage considerably.

Field dress the animal as soon as possible. If contents of the intestine or paunch have been spilled, the carcass should be rinsed with water. A publication, L-634, entitled "Field Dressing Big Game" is available from local county Extension offices and provides more information.

When weather permits, leaving the skin on the carcass will help conserve moisture. However, a little common sense dictates that carcasses should be skinned and covered with a fly proof bag in hot weather if a cooler is not accessible. Also, a male in the rut may have a strong urine odor on the hind legs and probably should be skinned prior to storage.

If the family prefers a somewhat more intense flavor which is similar to aged beef, the carcass may be hung in a locker for about a week before final processing. Again, common sense dictates storage in a clean locker which eliminates contamination of odors from poorly handled carcasses.

These recommendations are not the only way to handle carcasses, Shult emphasizes. For the hunter who has a preferred method which differs somewhat from these recommendations, but whose family is very satisfied with the venison brought home, change is unnecessary.

OHS class reunion

Some members of Ozona High School Class of 1962 are attempting to hold a 20-year class reunion in the summer of 1982 if there is enough interest on the part of graduates of that vintage.

Class members are asked to contact Jan Kenley, 392-2439, P. O. Box 659; or Johnny Childress, 392-3634, Box 1066, if they are interested in the reunion before December 15.

Keep off the habit once you've kicked it

Everyone who cares about your health wants you to quit smoking. The Texas Medical Association (TMA) does also. But realistically speaking, quitting isn't the big problem. Staying off cigarettes is.

Out of all the people who manage to go through the trouble, or agony, of quitting, nearly half of them return to smoking within a year. Don't be one of them. Here are some ideas to help you keep off the habit once you've kicked it.

First of all, realize when it is that you really crave a smoke. Is it when you're nervous, or bored, or depressed, or relaxed, or after eating, or instead of eating? Once you realize what your smoking craving relates to, you have some hints on how to deal with those awful moments when you really want to light up.

If your primary need is to hold something, start a hobby that involves the hands, such as needlework, or writing. Or just fiddle with a toothpick. If it's the hand-to-mouth action you crave, be sure to drink loads of water or juice after you quit. And keep low-calorie nibbles such as carrot sticks and gum around.

Avoid situations where you used to smoke until you feel that you can trust yourself. Cocktail parties and coffee get-togethers can be hazardous to your smoking cessation. Spend as much free time as possible in non-smoking environments such as museums, theaters and stores. If necessary, avoid being with people who smoke for a while. Also, avoid alcohol or coffee, or any other substance that you've usually associated with smoking.

Schoenhals' mother dies in Oklahoma

Hide all traces of your former smoking self. Get rid of ashtrays, lighters and, of course, cigarettes. Enjoy the fresh smell of your smoke-free home and office.

When the desire to smoke is intense and it may be for a few months after you quit take a few deep breaths until the urge passes. If it's still there, call a friend who wants you to stay off cigarettes. You need moral support, and don't be afraid to ask for it. Tell everyone around that you have kicked the habit. That way lots of people will be rooting for you, giving you the encouragement you need when the going gets a little tougher than usual.

Reward yourself for your achievement. After all, you've exercised a lot of will-power. So do something special with the money you've saved from not buying cigarettes. Give yourself a "reward day" every month to look forward to.

If you do happen to smoke one cigarette, don't take that one transgression to mean that you have relapsed. After all, eating just one cream puff doesn't mean that you haven't lost those 20 pounds.

Pipelines... make good neighbors

America has over 220,000 miles of petroleum pipelines carrying crude oil and products to refineries and storage terminals across the United States. Each day, more than 1.5 billion ton/miles of crude oil and products move through this network. These pipelines have a safety record second to none in the transportation industry... and we want you to help us keep it that way.

- liquids on or a mist above the ground in the area of a pipeline.
- Flames originating from an opening in the ground.
- If you become aware of a pipeline leak...
- LEAVE THE LEAK AREA IMMEDIATELY.
- Avoid driving into vapor clouds.
- Avoid direct contact with the escaping liquids.

- When you see signs like those shown above, they tell you that there's a pipeline nearby. If it's underground, you can't see it, of course. But it's there, working quietly to provide energy for you and other consumers throughout this nation.
- Some of these signs list the commodity transported in the pipeline, the name of the operator, and a telephone number where the operator's representative can be reached at all times.
- Although pipelines have an exceptionally good safety record, once in a while a leak can occur. Indications of a leak might include:
- A strange or unusual odor in the vicinity of a pipeline.
  - A hissing or roaring sound (caused by petroleum or product escaping from a pipeline).
  - A dense white cloud or fog.
  - A spot of dead or discolored vegetation.
  - An accumulation of petroleum

- Avoid creating sparks or sources of heat which could cause the liquids or vapor to ignite and burn. If you find yourself in a suspected vapor area, do not light a match, start an engine or even switch on an electric light.
- Notify the pipeline operator as soon as you reach a safe area. Call collect. Give your name, a description of the leak and its location. If you do not know who the pipeline operator is, call your local fire, police or sheriff's department, or the state police. Advise them of the nature and location of the emergency.
- If you see someone digging near a pipeline or doing other construction work... or if you plan to do such work near a pipeline yourself... please call the telephone number shown on the sign and let the pipeline company know so damage can be avoided. It's in your interest... and the nation's.

LIONS PLUCK OWLS

By-Erika Lee

The J.V. team led a 34-0 victory over the Reagan County Owls for their final game of the season. "They played as a team," stated Coach Porter.

Scoring for the Lions were: Albert Borrego, Marcello Hernandez, Oscar Vargas, Larry Kirkland, and Jeno Tambunga. Robert Flores received a pass from Al Ramirez for a two point conversion. Edward Borrego kicked the extra points for the Lions.

Our defense did a fantastic job of holding the Owls for only a 100 yards rushing. Ozona had a total of 350 yards rushing, and at the end of the first half, we had 120 yards of passing. Santiago Ybarra and Ronnie Smith both recovered fumbles for the Lions.

The coaches were very pleased with the way the season ended. Coach Bradshaw stated that it was a well played ball game and Coach Porter said that if you've got to end the season, this is the way to end it. He also said that he enjoyed working with the team.

ROUND BALL SCRIMMAGES

By-Stacy Chapman

Last Tuesday night in the Ozona gym, the Ozona Lion-ettes scrimmaged the Iran Braves. Coach Debbie Deaton stated, "Both Varsity and JV teams worked very well together with lots of improvement from last week."

The two teams did not have a final score. Instead, they started over after each quarter. Over-all, the games were pretty evenly matched in the scoring.

On the Varsity team, senior Lana Cole was the high scorer with 13 points and sophomore Josie Rodriguez was the high scorer for the JV team with 8 points.

Last night, the first game of the season was held. Both the varsity girls and boys and the JV girls and boys played against Rankin.

Let's get into the spirit and go out and back the Ozona Lions and Lionettes during this season.

A CHAT WITH COACH MALDONADO

By-Leanna Kramer

Pete Maldonado was born December 11, 1955, in Baytown, Texas. He lived there until he was three years old and then moved to Ozona. He attended high school in Ozona and college at Sul Ross University in Alpine.

During his school years, Mr. Maldonado participated in most sports. His relay team went to state his Jr. year. Pete was married to his wife Grace in December of '73. He graduated from high school in 1974.

The Maldonado's have two children, Patricia age 7, and Amanda age 3, who was also born on December 11.

This year is Mr. Maldonado's fourth year as a coach at OHS. He is the girl's head track coach and his assistant this year is Coach Allen. When asked what has been the height of his coaching career, Maldonado replied, "I would have to say last year's district championship and Kaye Thompson's state victory are the highlights so far."

Coach Maldonado's favorite hobbies are cars and fishing and he likes to spend his spare time doing just that hunting, fishing and fixing cars. His favorite food is steak.

Coach Maldonado said his parents, wife and the people around him most influenced his career decisions and goals. He also added, "I hope that what I do with these kids will help them to get as much learning and excitement out of it as I do."

CUB'S FINAL GAME OF THE SEASON

By-Vicky Vargas

The seventh grade Cub's final game of the season ended in a tie with the Reagan County Owls. The Cubs were leading the game at half-time 6-0. Elias Gonzales made the touchdown for the Cubs. Other outstanding players were Valdo Gallindo on offense, and Beto Diaz on defense. The biggest mistake of the game was when the seventh graders fumbled in the third quarter. Over-all, the team played well. The final score was 6-6.

The eighth grade Cubs also played their final game Thursday night. The eighth graders were leading at the half with a score of 8-6. Steve Sanchez made about a two yard run for the touchdown, while Chuy Hernandez made a spectacular catch for the two point conversion. Outstanding eighth grade players were Pancho Vasquez, Chuy Hernandez, Steve Sanchez, David Lovell, Jody Everett, and David Adams. The final score was Reagan County 22 and Ozona 8. "The team played very well except for a couple of defensive breakdowns, overall they played very well. It was a hard hitting ball game," stated Coach Gene Hood.

Monday the Cubs began basketball workouts. Support the Ozona Junior High Cubs during their basketball season.

BAND CONTEST

By-Marilyn Wester

This past Saturday the Ozona Lion Band went to marching contest in Brady. They have been preparing for this contest all year. There were sixteen bands in class AA competing with Ozona. The judges were Norman Deisher from Mineral Wells, Wayne Maxwell from Brenham, and Don Theode from Dallas.

The band received two 2's and a 1 to make the actual rating a two. In the twirling division, the quartet of Jacinda Marley, Jana Lilly, Teresa Lee and Kathy Storms received a three. In solo twirling routines, Jacinda received a 1, Jana a 1 and Teresa a 1. Kathy received a two. Mr. Glaze was well pleased with the band's performance and is looking forward to attending concert contest in the Spring.

LIONS PLUCK OWLS

By-Jana Harris

The Ozona Lions roared over the Reagan Co. Owls Friday night with a shut-out score of 28-0. The Lions ended the season in third place in the district with a 7-3 record.

touchdowns and Will Mason kicking 4 extra points. Ozona had 425 yards rushing while Big Lake had only 117 yards.

"We had a strong momentum throughout the entire ball game. Both teams were entering the game with 6-3 records and we wanted to end the season on the right note giving them a 6-4 season ending," said Head Coach Don Sessom.

"It has been an enjoyable season. There were some heart-breaking points, times when we weren't all together, and some up-hill bat-ties like against Junction and Mason, but overall it was a very successful and rewarding season," said Sessom.

Coach Sessom would like to wish the players the best of luck in all other sports this year, to keep up their competitive spirit, representing OHS with their good character and leadership.

"Let's have a real good year the rest of the year and finish it out like it is supposed to be done. Lions!" concluded Sessom.

NEW WAY OF SELLING ANNUALS

By-Mel Spiller

This year the annual staff had a new way of selling annuals for the 1981-82 school year. An assembly was held in the high school auditorium on Tuesday, November 3, which included a slide presentation that explained some of the reasons for buying a yearbook. Also, Mr. C. L. Roy of KRCT presented part of the program explaining that this would be the only opportunity to purchase an annual for this school year.

This year the annual sales were up. The high school sold 218 books, the Jr. High sold 80, Intermediate sold 51, and the Primary school sold 72 for a total of 421. The price of a yearbook was $14 or $15 with a cover.

The Journalism class feels that the rise in sales is due to the yearbook assembly and would like to thank Mr. Roy for helping with our program.

Crockett County Care Center News

BY ANN McCARTNEY
DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

Sunday services by Rev. Jim Chaumont and seven members of the Catholic Church began our activities of the week.

Monday morning the residents played dominoes and in the afternoon they again worked with ceramics.

Tuesday afternoon we had a residents council meeting attended by Paul Cavin, Louise McWilliams, Maude Pettit, Bertha Miller, and Ola Mills. The ladies had a game of dominoes after the meeting.

Wednesday morning Dorothy Doll conducted a reading and discussion group and helped with our sing-along in the afternoon. A large group of residents played rhythm band instruments while Maude Pettit and Leona Harris played the piano. Everyone enjoyed playing and singing songs of days gone by.

Thursday morning we had our beauty shop open. Maria Vitela came to help Doris Hoffman. We really appreciate the work of both of these volunteers.

Our Bible Study Thursday afternoon had an added feature, cookies furnished by the Faith Lutheran Church.

Thursday night a group of ladies came for Spanish hour. We appreciate the service these ladies are rendering. Their leader is Maria Vitela.

Bingo was played on Tuesday and Friday mornings. We have a new sponsor with a Tuesday morning gift of a free dinner for two from the owners of El Chato's Restaurant. Our first winner was Jauna Hernandez. First place winner on Friday, with a gift certificate from the Teacher Store, was Maggie Crawford. Maude Pettit won second in a run-off with Jesus Hernandez, Juana Hernandez and Paul Cavin.

Volunteers J. McCartney and Joan Nicholas helped clean the fish bowl Friday afternoon. (You can't beat husbands and former activities directors for support!)

Remember, if you plan to bring us something special in December, now is the time to set the date.

HOOVER FAMILY MEMBERS pose with historical marker and Judge Johnny Jones at the dedication at the Civic Center Monday evening. Lisa Mitchell and Gary Buck Mitchell are the grandchildren of Myrtle Mitchell, who was a daughter of the original family.

Water shortage in Texas affects all

No Texan, hearing about our growing shortages of water, can afford to feel unaffected, according to Dr. Jack Runkles, Director of the Texas Water Resources Institute.

Shortage of water for agriculture only affects farmers and ranchers, you say? Don't fool yourself, Runkles says, that's our supply of food and fiber you're talking about.

Water for industry really isn't your concern? It could be your job that was eliminated for lack of water.

Our growing industry requires a tremendous volume of water and can only locate in areas that can supply needed quantities and qualities of water.

Our growing population has the same limitations; growth can be curtailed by water shortages.

Water to produce food and fiber amounts to about 76 percent of the total water use in the State for all purposes, Runkles says.

Since most of the water used for irrigation comes from depletable ground supplies, there is serious concern about future water supplies for crop production.

We are using supplies of ground water for cities, industries and agriculture, much faster than they are replenished, with resultant lowering of water tables and increased pumping costs.

An expanded research program called Water Use Efficiency, by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES), is directed towards helping urban centers extend limited water resources by improved methods of urban water conservation.

It will also direct major efforts to increase efficiency of water use in agriculture by developing new irrigation technology; improving plant efficiency through drought tolerance and growth regulators; and studying basic water conservation.

However, Runkles says he wants to confine his present remarks to what can be done to conserve urban water and discuss agricultural water conservation at another time.

Urban water conservation through improved lawn and ornamental irrigation can effectively stretch city water supplies, Runkles states.

It's estimated that 35 to 50 percent of the water used in the municipalities and rural communities of Texas is for the irrigation of lawns and ornamental plants.

The current municipal water requirement is 690 billion gallons per year and this is expected to more than double by the year 2000.

Since nearly half this amount of waste is used on grasses and plants, some of the technology developed for more efficient crop production can be adopted for urban conditions.

The Soil and Crop Science Department, in conjunction with TAES at Dallas, will identify and characterize water-conserving turfgrasses. The best of these will be developed for urban use.

The TAES at El Paso in conjunction with the turf research program at Dallas and the Soil and Crop Science Department will develop more drought, heat and salt-tolerant turfgrasses for arid urban areas.

Native species developed in arid environments will be screened for potential utility in urban water conservation landscaping.

In addition, a basic water conservation research program will be developed to examine a broader range of scientific options to conserve water and energy in crop production systems.

The Soil and Crop Science Department will use a research team of scientists with a diversity of training to research fundamental issues in water and energy conservation.

This group will develop new concepts for water and energy conservation through technology development and soil and water management.

Card of Thanks

November 16, 1981
 Our dear friends,
 As we are faced with this Mountain of Life to climb, it is the nicest feeling to know that we are not left alone to accomplish this task.
 Please accept our thanks for your many kind expressions of sympathy upon the loss of our "Buddy". With your love and the comforting hand of our Heavenly Father, we can be sustained. As always, God knew what He was doing when He gave us "you" for devoted friends.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

By Jerry Lay
 Surprisingly, there are seven college football stadiums in America that have more seating capacity than the biggest National Football League stadium. The biggest stadium used by the NFL team is Detroit's, which seats 80,638. Meantime, all these colleges have stadiums with larger seating capacities than that: Michigan (101,701), Southern Cal and UCLA (92,604), Tennessee (91,249), Stanford (84,292), Penn State (83,770) and Ohio State (83,112).

It's hard to believe now, but for the first 60 years or so of football, up to the 1930s, spectators at games had real trouble knowing what was going on. Until the 1930s, most players didn't wear numbers and most teams didn't have public address systems, so, oddly enough, few people knew who carried the ball or who made a tackle.
 *****

Here's an amazing fact. One team in pro sports has won the championship of its league 40% of the time the league has been in operation. When the Boston Celtics won the National Basketball Association title last season, it was their 14th title. The league is 35 years old, so the Celtics have won the championship 40% of the time.
