Drilling for gas and oil inside the city limits really gets the residents' attention, especially around 2:00 a.m. Some are violently opposed to it, others are hoping to make a buck out of it, and then there are those who worry about what affect it will have on the deep wells which supply Ozona's drinking water. Nobody is indifferent.

Those opposed don't have a leg to stand on since "this is an unincorporated town." This is a well-known excuse around these parts. Those hoping to make a buck will be lucky if they get little more than that. Those worrying about the water supply are not comforted that the Railroad Commission is keeping its watchful eye on such things. Not many of us have much faith in any governmental agency, local, state or federal.

However, we all agree that the noise is an irritant. Not many knew what was taking place when it started up. I thought a freight train was coming through my bedroom, until I was awake enough to realize we don't have a railroad track. Leota Cox went outside in her nightgown to try to locate the refrigeration truck that was making so much racket. When she couldn't find it she went around her house checking her heating system. Clemon Sniffin, also on a hilltop, thought it was a constant stream of trucks on I-10. The Perrys drove in from their skiing trip just before daylight Saturday morning, and Jerry thought the town was covered with smog. Most thought the noise was a refrigeration truck running, trying to keep produce cold, and parked outside their bedroom. Take heart, all those who moan and complain, only a couple more weeks to go. We'll probably be so used to it by then the silence will wake us.

If you are one of those who boycotted Proctor and Gamble products because you thought the Moonies had bought the company, you will be interested in our "Letters to the Editor" column on page two this week. Jane Black made some inquiries and received a letter from the company deeming this rumor.

Apparently the rumor was centered around the company's trademark, the moon and stars. They also sent an interesting history about the trademark which they were using before the birth of Rev. Moon. We have it on display here in the office for anyone who might be interested.

People do the darndest things. What kind of mind does a person have who would set fire to a public building, especially the Boy Scout house. Things like this always make me wonder what makes certain people tick. When the flags were stolen on Memorial Day, my curiosity was aroused about the perpetrator. When somebody stole our old dirty shop mop from the back of the building where it had been left to dry, I realized there are people who would steal anything, but arson is really sick. For the sake of the community and every member in it, this must be stopped in its tracks.

One has to wonder about people in California who RIG DRILLING inside the Ozona city limits has kept Ozonans on the west side of town awake at night and dusting furniture in the daylight hours. Location is behind Mayfield Construction and the objective is the large pocket of natural gas over which the city is located. As of Monday drilling was scheduled for at least two more weeks.

Boy Scout house damaged by fire

The Ozona Boy Scout house was extensively damaged early last Wednesday morning when fire all but gutted the inside of the rock building. Firemen determined the fire had been deliberately set when someone broke into the structure and poured gasoline into one of the small meeting rooms, setting it on fire.

Firemen accidentally discovered the fire in the Scout house on Rugged Road after putting out two fires in piles of leaves at two locations in town shortly after midnight. After returning to the station from the leaf fires, several firemen checked the town for additional fires and found smoke pouring from the Scout house.

Firemen were dispatched to the scene and were not back in the station until 5:00 a.m.

Shortly after 9:00 a.m. the same day, painters working on the Emerald House called the Sheriff's Department to report someone had broken out a window in one of the rear rooms, thrown gasoline in and ignited it. Fortunately, the fire extinguished itself and very little damage was done.

Officials theorize the fires were all set by the same person or persons. Investigating officers had no leads Monday, but were following up on what few clues they did have. Arson is a serious criminal offense and anyone knowing anything about the crime would be doing a public service in reporting it.

The entire community is outraged and funds are being solicited to repair the Scout house. A fund has been set up at Ozona National Bank for this purpose. The Boy Scouts have no funds available to them and must depend on the community for assistance in repairing the damage.

C of C engages Pryor

Cactus Pryor has been engaged as guest speaker for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet which will be held January 28, at 7:00 p.m. at the Civic Center.

Pryor as a toastmaster, syndicated columnist, or after-dinner speaker offers the freshest humor in America, according to The Speakers Guild, Inc.

A barbecue dinner will be served, catered by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 6109.

Tickets to the banquet will be $12 this year. They may be purchased from any chamber director or at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Nationwide decline not evident here-

Retail sales in Ozona up over last year

The three to five percent drop in retail sales which affected the nation's holiday business failed to show up in Ozona businesses. Instead, all retailers contacted in a survey by the Stockman reported sales up over last year.

Patti Jones at Maxine's Flowers said the flower shop was busier than last year and sales were up in spite of warnings of a slump in pre-holiday literature. She said if there is a slump in the floral business, it is not apparent in her operation.

Ruth Seahorn and Margaret Miller, owners and operators of the Happy Hollow, also reported business up over last year and a tremendous sales of electronic toys. They also reported expansion as they are putting a Hallmark store in with the toy business next week. The Hallmark line will feature cards, party items, bridge cards and tallies, etc.

Nick Nicholas reported no sales slump at Baker Jewelers. He said it had been a record year at the store for sales and the largest Christmas business ever. However, he said business had increased each year since the store opened.

Business also boomed at Watson's Department Store. Bill Watson said business for

Deadline near for comments

Texas has only one more week to mail their comments on the Secretary of Agriculture's preferred program for conserving soil and water resources. Comments are to be mailed to the Soil Conservation Service in Temple by January 15, reports Clitis Sinclair, district conservationist for Crockett District.

For more information on the program and to obtain a response form for mailing your comments, contact your local SCS or Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

The offices have a leaflet that summarizes the main points of the program and contains the pre-addressed, postage-paid response form.

The program is the USDA response to the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 (RCA). Details of the program are presented in the revised program report, which is available for reference at SCS and ASCS offices.

Failure to respond can result in the substitution of a Washington centered politically controlled program that destroys what ranch and farm owners and operators have worked for for over forty years.

Comments must be mailed to the SCS state conservationist, P.O. Box 648, Temple, Texas 76503, before January 15, 1982.

the year showed an increase of 20% over that of last year and that Christmas Eve business showed a 50% increase over that date in 1980.

Becky Childress said there was no recession in sales at the Teacher Store and that they were very pleased with annual sales as well as Christmas sales.

Dana Collett said holiday sales started late at Small Fashions, but business was better than ever overall.

J. D. Brown of Brown Furniture said 1981 was his best year in the 16 years he has been in business here. He said, of course, inflation had played a big part in the increase, but that sales had stayed well ahead of the inflation bite.

Overall, the Ozona economy was up over the year, and all those interviewed indicated they saw no slowing-down on the local scene, in spite of national forecasts.

County has record safe holiday period

Crockett County enjoyed one of the safest holiday periods on record in 1981, as far as traffic accidents. From the period December 23, through January 1, 1982, local troopers only worked nine accidents on county highways. Only one of these accidents involved personal injury and that was slight.

Department of Public Safety officials give much of the credit for the low count to the opening of Interstate 10 to the west of Ozona. The super highway was completed throughout the county and opened to traffic about a month ago.

The new route by-passes Lancaster Hill and several traffic hazards on U.S. 290 west of Ozona. Prior to completion of the interstate, DPS troopers were kept busy almost daily working wrecks on the hills or aiding stalled motorists on Lancaster, especially in bad weather.

4-H members prepare for livestock show

Around 93 Crockett County 4-H members are busy this week, grooming lambs and steers for the 35th Annual Livestock Show and sale which will be held Saturday at the County Show Barn.

All lambs will be sheared and weighed and in the barn Thursday. Steers will come into the barn Thursday. Judging will begin at 7:00 a.m. Saturday. Rex Stultz of Del Rio will be show judge with Pat Garner of Sheffield judging showmanship and first year feeder awards.

The fourteen classes include steers; light-weight, medium-weight, and heavy-weight fine-wool lambs; champion fine-wool lamb; pair of finewool lambs; first year feeder's light crossbred lambs, light-weight crossbred lambs, medium weight crossbred lambs; first year feeders heavy crossbred lambs, pair of first year feeder crossbreds, heavy weight crossbreds, champion crossbred, and pair of crossbred lambs.

A barbecue lunch will be served at noon by 4-H parents and Leaders Association. Tickets are now being sold by 4-H members, or they may be purchased at the door.

The awards presentation will be held at 2:00 p.m. followed by the premium auction sale.

CONGRATULATIONS IN ORDER-Jim Marks congratulates Joe Galvan on his promotion from assistant manager to manager at Jim's Foodway. Galvan has been an employee of the store for 23 years. He took on the assistant manager's duties when Marks bought the store a few years ago. His promotion was effective January 1.

JIM WATT: WITHOUT HORNS

By Edwin Feulner

"For those of you who do not read Doonesbury, I am Jim Watt."

It was in this characteristically good-humored fashion that the much maligned Secretary of the Interior introduced himself earlier in the fall to newspaper editors attending the Associated Press Managing Editors Meeting.

Much to the editors' surprise (and most others who meet Jim Watt), not only did the oft-assailed Cabinet member have, perched atop his familiar dome, horns dripping with the blood of some endangered species, but he wasn't even sporting one of the "Nuke the Whales" buttons some of his more creative critics have accused him of marketing.

In fact, after just a few minutes of hearing Jim Watt espouse the commonsense conservatism which initially attracted President-elect Reagan, the gross caricature of a disturbed man hell-bent on a mission of environmental destruction easily melts away.

"Almost one year ago, the American people gave Ronald Reagan a mandate," declared Watt, saying that this involves three elements: restore our national stature, remedy our ailing economy, and strengthen our national security. Watt views his duty as inextricably intertwined with that mandate. He reasons that "To be good stewards of our national resources - to protect the environment - we must have a strong economy. To have a strong economy, we must not only protect natural resources but make wise use of them. Failure to develop resources adequately also means that we as a nation will be lacking in national security."

The facts support Watt's contentions, and he wields them forcefully. He asserts, quite logically, that "proper management" of our resources will go far in easing our dependence on foreign nations for roughly 40 percent of our crude oil needs," not to mention our strategic mineral requirements now ominously met by the Soviets and the unstable south African countries.

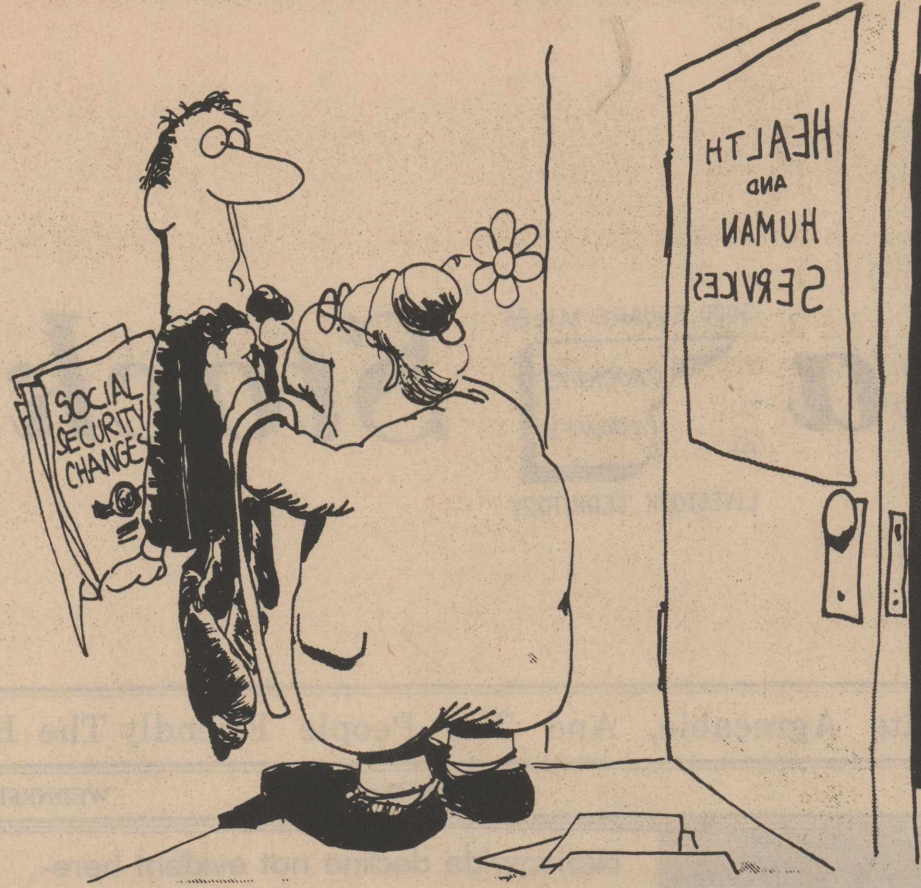

Without proper management - the ability to strike that delicate balance between extreme preservationism and negligent radical exploitation - a political and economic crisis will develop and, according to Watt, "will cause the political forces in Washington to turn to our resources without regard to ecology and quality of life. That crisis must be avoided and it can only be avoided if there is an orderly, phased program that will take into consideration environmental protection as we develop needed energy resources."

And, contrary to radical direct mail pleas from the less-rational environmentalists, Watt has sworn (as he did at his confirmation hearings) to accomplish these goals without any form of "exploitation of nature's cathedrals: our national parks."

Rarely in American history has a public figure been as unjustly victimized as Interior Secretary Watt.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

December 9, 1981

Dear Editor:

The 1981 holiday season may remind many of us that some things haven't changed. This year, once again, we feasted upon a traditional (and probably lavish) turkey dinner, watched spectacular holiday parades, gathered around the television set to watch myriad football games and fought crowds in search of the perfect gift.

Some things haven't changed in other parts of the world either. This year, as in years past, people have been forced to flee their homelands, find shelter in crowded and unsanitary refugee camps and suffer the debilitating effects of malnutrition and disease.

In the Northeast African nation of Somalia, close to a million people are living in these camps. They are alive today because international relief agencies are providing them with the food, water and medical care they need to survive. But I am concerned about the dependency this assistance tends to create.

The 1981 holiday season should remind many of us that it is time for some things to change. It is time to put an end to widespread hunger and to dependence upon daily shipments of food. Some voluntary agencies, such as Save the Children, have taken a giant step in this direction by providing the Somali refugees with the skills and resources they need and want to provide for themselves. Instead of just handing out food, Save the Children is handing out techniques for growing food and for planting seeds, trees and small-plot family gardens.

The holiday season encourages us to share our love with family and friends. This season let's share our love, caring and concern with members of the human family by helping the Somali refugees regain self-sufficiency. Any contribution, no matter how small, can help. Please mail your check today to: Save the Children, Somalia Relief Fund, Westport, CT. 06880, attention Valerie Harper.

Sincerely,
Valerie Harper

Dear Kitty,
A lot of people I know have been boycotting P&G products because they thought the "Moonies" had bought the company. Since I like Procter & Gamble products I decided to write the company to get the correct information.

Thought you might be interested in making this public knowledge.
Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Black:
As agreed in our conversation, I am attaching some information about our moon and stars trademark. We are aware of the rumor that our trademark signifies company ownership by Reverend Moon's Unification Church.

Obviously, this rumor has no basis in fact. We have no record of Reverend Moon or the Unification Church owning any shares of P&G stock. As a matter of fact, no one individual owns more than 1/2 of 1% of our stock. Furthermore, the moon and stars symbol has appeared on our products since the mid-19th century-long before Reverend Moon was born.

Attached is information which discusses the history of our trademark in detail but, in brief, the moon and stars symbol was originally used (beginning in 1850) to identify crates of Star Candles, an early Procter & Gamble product, as they were shipped down the Ohio River. The symbol evolved into a cluster of 13 stars, representing the 13 stars on the early American flag, and a man-in-the-moon profile, a popular fancy of the time. We registered the moon and stars symbol with the U.S. Patent Office in 1882. The moon and stars logo has been a symbol of integrity for P&G products for over 130 years. The symbol only represents P&G and has no other significance.

I hope this information is helpful. Please feel free to share it with your local news media if you wish.

Sincerely,

BUSINESS COLLEGES
FACE CRITICAL
FACULTY SHORTAGES

Business colleges, like engineering schools, face critical shortages of faculty members, warns the dean of Texas A&M University's College of Business Administration.

"We've lost several excellent faculty members over the last three years, nearly 10 percent of our faculty," said Dr. William V. Muse. "We were lucky. We filled most of the openings. Other schools in the nation weren't as fortunate as there are not enough qualified people on the market to fill the number of vacancies nationwide."

The American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business reports that the current production rate it would take nearly seven years to fill vacant business faculty positions for the 1980-81 academic years.

E.F. Hutton on how the new tax law affects IRA

All IRA's may look the same. Until you retire.

What makes an IRA from E.F. Hutton different? Hutton offers a wide range of investment opportunities to help your money work harder. It's a difference you'll see when you retire. When you need it most.

Because your investment grows tax free, it can grow rapidly. Chart based on a 12% annual assumed rate of return. Your results may be more or less, depending on actual rate.

The new tax law makes the Individual Retirement Account (IRA) available to everyone. Even people who belong to company pension plans.

Thanks to this legislation, not only is everyone eligible, but the benefits have been increased.

An IRA gives you the tax break you need now. With allowed tax deductions having risen from $1500 to $2000. If husband and wife both work, the deduction can total up to $4000.

Because taxes are deferred, your money grows faster. And it can provide the added income you'll need later. But how much added income there'll be depends on when you open your IRA and the results of your investment program.

The IRA that changes with the market. With many IRA's, your investment choices are limited. But with E.F. Hutton you have access to a vast array of investment opportunities. Including money-market investments. Growth stocks. Mutual funds. Annuities. Treasury Bills. C.D.'s, and more.

Your E.F. Hutton Account Executive is there to assist. He or she can help you change your investment strategy as the market changes. So you have a better chance of getting the highest possible return each year.

No one can forecast the future, but we believe the more investment opportunities you have available the better chance you have to achieve more than average performance.

Retire on your terms, not just your company's.

The new tax law gives you more control over your retirement than ever before.

If you don't have a company pension plan, an IRA is essential. As we all know, Social Security benefits just aren't enough anymore.

If you have a company plan, an IRA could mean the difference between simply retiring, and retiring well. It's never too early to start planning. Just fill in the coupon or call toll-free,

Tips For Gardeners

From The Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

After two weeks of celebrating the two most important holidays of the year, January should be the month to start making your garden planning for 1982.

You know how January sometimes teases with a false spring. Rather than a steady cold it throws a May-like period of weather to enjoy for several days. Sometimes it prematurely starts spring growth to get killed by a later freeze. So be prepared to cover smaller plants if freezing is in the forecast.

One important chore to attend to in our area if we don't have needed rain soon is to water deeply your evergreens and newly-planted trees, shrubs and plants.

If you are planning to plant an oak tree Arbor Day (Jan. 15), be sure to choose a type adapted to our area. Ones recommended are Shumard's red oak, live oak, Spanish oak, and Mexican blueoak.

If you received a Norfolk Island pine for Christmas a few tips may help. Give it as much light as you can near an open window. Usually a once-a-week watering will suffice, but it depends on how quickly it dries out in its location. Be careful not to overwater. Feed it lightly with a complete fertilizer once a month and you should have no trouble. Someone asked when is the best time to move a Nandina? If you take enough soil with it you can move a Nandina anytime, but this is an excellent time to do so now.

One of the nicest and showiest plants is the Draecna (Warnecki). Its green and white leaves present a brightness in any room that is both cheerful and contrasting. With a little age this plant tends to branch and seldom reaches more than 4 feet. When this happens the top with about a foot of stem may be cut off and potted. Kept moist, it will root rather easily. That which is left will form new heads. This draecna prefers a standard potting mixture that drains well and is porous. Since perlite tends to cause leaf blemishes with this one plant, use topsoil and peat in equal amounts. Watering is standard. Usually a good watering once a week is sufficient. Give it a bright location but avoid direct sunlight. It tends to burn. A light monthly feeding, using a complete fertilizer, will keep it growing and the color good. In case it blooms, which it rarely does, remove the bloom spike. The odor is unpleasant.

Keep delicious cured or smoked chicken right at your fingertips by storing it in the freezer. Cured or smoked chicken can be kept in a freezer without losing taste or quality for up to a year, points out Dr. James H. Denton, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

It can be kept safely in the refrigerator for up to two weeks but should be frozen after that.

Denton explains that cured chicken has been soaked or injected with a brine of salt, sugar and nitrate and that the nitrate acts as a preservative to slow bacterial growth.

Regarding storage of smoked chicken, the special

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED-Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. Horne of San Angelo, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kathryn Ann, to Blake Allen Moody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Foy Moody. The wedding is planned for Saturday, Feb. 20, at 7:00 o'clock in the evening at Johnson Street Church of Christ in San Angelo. The bride-elect is a graduate of San Angelo Central High School and Angelo State University. She is currently a teacher and coach in the Fort Stockton school system. The prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Ozona High School and attended Abilene Christian University. He is currently employed by a well testing company in Fort Stockton.

list cites a University of Florida study which showed that chicken stored for 12 months was equal to freshly smoked chicken for flavor, texture and juiciness. Bacterial counts remained unchanged during the storage period.

So, shoppers can take advantage of holiday season specials on smoked chickens or turkeys by buying several and storing them in the home freezer. They'll be just as tasty a year later, says Denton.

Mrs. Jack (Merle) Gillit returned home Friday from Methodist Hospital in Houston, where she underwent open-heart surgery some weeks ago.

With the new year here, Extension meetings are in full swing again. The Happy Homemakers meet Thursday, January 7, at 9:30, at the Chamber of Commerce. The program will be on quilting.

The Progressive Club will meet Wednesday, January 13, 12:00 noon at the Civic Center. The program will be presented by Jan Kenley on "Arranging Flowers". People attending the noon program need to bring a salad. Everyone is welcome.

If you are thinking about redecorating a room this spring, give the colors some thought now. Beverly Trupp, president of Color Design Arts, offers some helpful hints with color. Colors that people do not want to be around are violet, black, and pink. Almost everyone dislikes pink, except an occasional accent color or in a little girl's room.

Blue, red, and green are called polar colors. People either like them or strongly dislike them. The tone, hue, and intensity of the color are the things people react to.

In planning a color scheme choose three basic colors. A primary color, (the carpet), an accent color (smaller upholstered furniture) and a surprise color (pillow and other accessories). An example would be beige (primary), burgundy (accent) and emerald green (surprise). With these thoughts in mind, have fun with your redecorating projects.

HAMBURGER STEW
1 1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
1 1/2 cups thinly sliced carrots

1 cup thinly sliced celery
2 cups hot water
1 1/2 cups instant rice
1 envelope onion soup mix

1 bay leaf
Crumble beef coarsely into 3 to 5 qt. casserole. Mix in carrots and celery. Cover. Microwave at high 3 1/2 to 6 1/2 minutes, or until beef is set, stirring once or twice.

Add remaining ingredients. Microwave, covered, 12 to 18 minutes, or until vegetables are tender, stirring once or twice. Remove bay leaf before serving.

TEXAS CORNBREAD

1/2 lb. ground sausage
1/2 lb. ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped
1/2 medium green pepper, chopped

1 can (10-3/4 oz.) tomato soup
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1/8 teaspoon paprika
2 teaspoons vinegar
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 pkg. (8 1/2 oz.) cornbread mix

In 8x8" baking dish combine sausage, ground beef, onion and green pepper. Cover with wax paper. Microwave at high 3 to 5 minutes, or until meat is no longer pink, stirring to break up meat after half of the cooking time. Stir, drain.

Mix in remaining ingredients except cornbread mix and paprika. Microwave at high 3 to 4 minutes, or until bubbly. Stir. While meat is microwaving, prepare cornbread as directed on package. Spread on hot meat mixture. Sprinkle evenly with paprika. Microwave at high 6 to 7 minutes, or until cornbread is set, rotating dish 1/2 turn after half the cooking time. Let stand 2 to 3 minutes.

There's one thing that can do so much in so many rooms--and that's a mirror.

Let's start with the foyer or entrance hall. A decorative mirror can add warmth, beauty and depth to that area beside serving a most useful purpose.

In the living room, one or two small decorative mirrors might be used with a group of pictures on a wall for a nice effect. A large mirror might be used to reflect an outdoor view or reflect the colors of the room. Place a mirror where it reflects something you'd like to have reflected. In this sense, a mirror is a picture in itself--a picture of your room.

In your bedroom, is the mirror over your dresser skimpy? Why not get a larger mirror that will give you both better use and decor.

Today mirrors, both framed and unframed, are available in every size, shape and style to be used effectively in hundreds of different ways.

As they say when a stage magician does a trick, "It's all done with mirrors." Remember, mirrors can add magic to your home. Let us help you find the right one for you along with any of your furnishing needs.

CHECK-UP TIME

Periodically my company requires me to have a "physical." My health is too important to them -- and to ME -- to neglect it.

Nobody requires me to have a "spiritual." The world figures rightly that a person's religious vitality is his own business.

Unfortunately, check-up time for our spiritual health is often some unexpected crisis. We learn the hard way that the soul as well as the body must be strong.

Each week brings opportunity for worshipping God, for deepening our religious insights, for cultivating spiritual strength. What our churches and synagogues provide is vital.

Teenagers with cancer have special problems

Remember when you were a teenager, and the problems in your life centered around homework, parents, pimples, crushes and growing up? It was a devastating time.

But what if your life was made even more complicated by disease? What if you were a teenager with cancer?

Those adolescent problems might seem even larger. And you'd need lots of support—especially from your peers—to deal with them.

At the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, a new wing for teenagers has been in operation since April. The wing offers support to teens with cancer by surrounding them with their peers, and with health professionals who care as much about their problems as adolescents as they do about their problems as cancer patients.

"Here, the disease is the norm. Adolescence is what's frightening," explains Dr. Jan van Eys, head of both the adolescent and pediatric units of the hospital.

"Adolescence is a time when you want to grow up, but you backslide. The tension and pull are almost unbearable. It's difficult enough to have to deal with these things when you're healthy, but when you're not healthy, the problems are enormous," he says.

The adolescent unit provides beds for 25 adolescents between the ages of 14 and 21. Many of these patients were bedded in the pediatric unit before the adolescent unit was established. Others were and still are spread throughout the hospital. Placement in the adolescent unit is voluntary.

"In the adolescent unit, the emphasis is largely on the nursing service," Dr. van Eys points out. "The nurses understand the adolescents. They provide a support system for them."

Nurses hired for the adolescent unit have not necessarily received special training. Sue Potter, Assistant Director of Nursing Service-Pediatrics and Adolescents, says. "However, many of them are young—in the 20 to 30 age group—and they're selected to be there because they want to work with adolescents. It's a very popular place," she says.

Laurie Guilmartin, who has been the adolescent unit's charge nurse during its beginning stages, says. "It's been an exciting thing to watch the unit develop." "Our first goal for this unit was to get the adolescents to feel like it belonged to them and their families. Now, I feel like this goal has been reached. The adolescents and their parents are very aware of what's happening in each room on the unit now, not just their own," Ms. Guilmartin says.

Although a formal program for the adolescents has yet to be structured, some special activities which have been sponsored from time to time have helped bring the unit together.

Through the Department of Volunteer services, shopping trips and pizza parties, movies and special times for the adolescents in the hospital's schoolroom have kept the teenage cancer patients in touch with each other and the kinds of lives they would be pursuing were they not victims of disease.

Through the hospital's mental health team, organized rap sessions have helped the teens and their parents to become better acquainted.

"When the environment is right, there are spontaneous rap sessions, too. These are happening more and more frequently," Ms. Potter points out. "The teens enjoy staying up late. They love to talk together at midnight and sometimes this is the best time for them to talk."

"Parents are communicating with each other in a spontaneous manner, too. You see them talking together in the dining room or around the washing machine," Ms. Potter says.

"In fact, I think the whole mood of our unit is super."

Occupancy in the adolescent unit has ranged from as few as eight or 10 to as many as 19 or 20. At times six of the adolescent unit beds have been used for overflow from the pediatrics unit, but the adolescent unit personnel hope to see all the beds in their unit occupied by adolescents as soon as the unit builds a good reputation for itself.

A 15-year-old on the unit

Final tax installment due for '81

The fourth, and final, installment of estimated Federal tax payments on 1981 individual income is due by January 15, 1982, the Internal Revenue Service says.

This installment should be paid using declaration voucher No. 4 found in the Form 1040-ES package. "Declaration of Estimated Tax for Individuals."

Taxpayers whose anticipated income changed during 1981 may have to file an amended declaration. Space is provided in the estimated tax package to compute an amended estimate.

For more detailed information, the IRS publication 505, "Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax," is available free by calling the IRS forms/tax information number in the local telephone directory.

helps to build that reputation by saying: "It's where I can be with kids my own age, instead of adults or younger children." As a former resident of the pediatrics unit, he confides. "It's a lot better and quieter than being put with an 8-year-old. What do I have in common with him?"

HEALTHY ADVICE

by Fred Lucas, M.D.

Losing Weight the Smart Way

The holidays are over, and now you could be upset with yourself because you ate too much during the festive period. As a result, you may have decided to lose a few pounds.

Unfortunately, many people with good intentions give up in discouragement and never make any headway in their battle with excess weight. One reason is the vast amount of incorrect information and myths about dieting.

As the Texas Medical Association has pointed out, many Americans torture themselves with all sorts of crazy, illogical diets ranging from periodic starvation to eating only foods like grapefruit and bananas.

Most people have to diet simply because they consume too many calories for their body to use each day. Calories not burned as energy are stored in the body as fat. Despite what some books and magazine articles may claim, the only sure way to lose that fat safely is to get more exercise and quit eating so much.

The main point to remember about dieting is that moderation, not starvation, is the key to losing weight and staying healthy.

Crash diets should be avoided because they can lead to bad nutrition and vitamin shortages. Taking vitamin pills will not prevent dangerous vitamin and mineral deficiencies during a crash diet.

Beware of the latest fads. The best diet is one which is lower in calories, but consists of a conventional mix of the basic food groups: milk, meat, vegetables and fruit, breads and cereals. The emphasis should be placed on low-calorie fruits and vegetables over higher-calorie red meats.

Push yourself away from the table before getting that filled up feeling. Never take seconds, even of salads. Eat five smaller meals daily instead of three big ones. And drink lots of water.

Remember that a plan for slow, but steady, weight loss over a longer period helps you to form better eating habits. In addition, weight lost over several months or a year is more likely to stay gone. Losing weight is only half the battle. Keeping it off is just as important.

Crockett County Care Center News

BY ANN McCARTNEY
DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

Christmas was over and we were back to routine schedules this last week in December. The Church of Christ brought our church services Sunday afternoon, residents played dominoes on Monday morning and Sara Hignight came and helped with ceramics on Monday afternoon. Tuesday afternoon Sara came again and led a sing-along from the organ. By use of our new wireless speaker, we were able to hear individual singers. Virginia Russell's son from Dallas was visiting and treated several ladies to a waltz. Everyone agreed it was a very enjoyable hour.

Dorothy Doll was sick again Wednesday and missed our morning reading time. We read about Haley's Comet, reminisced about how many people thought this would be the end of the world and other memories of that time period including the first automobiles. The conversation even included early remembrances of Christmas past. In the afternoon we had a residents council meeting. Through a Spanish speaking interpreter, we were able to get input from several new council members as well as our faithful regulars. It was a thrill to be given new ideas as to activities they would enjoy doing in the coming months.

Our Thursday morning beauty shop began in a panic because our "leader", Doris Hoffman called to say her young daughter, Jeannie, had just had an emergency appendectomy. Ruth Dorris and Maria Vitala came to our rescue though. Maria is also the leader of our Spanish hour held every Thursday evening.

Thursday afternoon we had our Bible study led by the Lutheran Church.

We had our regular Tuesday and Friday bingo games. A special thanks goes to Georgia Kirby for coming on New Year's as a volunteer. Winner on Tuesday of the monthly certificate from Baker Jewelers was Hilario Cortez. Maude Pettit won the dinner for two at El Chato's. Tomasa Ramos won the gift certificate from the Teacher's Store on Friday and Maude Pettit won second place.

The Scientists Tell Me...

Copper Is An Essential Element In Human and Animal Nutrition

By Robert L. Hancy
TAES Science Writer

Copper, called a "trace element" in nutrition, is known to be absolutely essential to life and health of all living organisms, according to Dr. Edward Harris, a biochemist specializing in trace element research at Texas A&M University.

Paradoxically, while a little copper is essential to normal nutrition, too much copper in the diet can be poisonous and cause all sorts of malfunctions, even death.

In the future, perhaps one of the most fascinating aspects of copper in human and animal health will be a more widespread use of copper-based drugs for treatment of arthritis and other inflammatory disorders, Harris says.

Already a number of excellent animal and clinical studies have reported promising results from using copper salicylates and amino acid complexes in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, gastric ulcers, epileptic seizures, convulsions, and certain carcinomas (cancers).

The anti-inflammatory activity of these drugs appears to be in arresting the inflammatory agent and stimulating tissue repair, according to Harris.

Harris' research has shown that copper is essential to proper development of blood vessels.

The functions of copper in connective tissue maturation are closely linked with the properties of lysyl oxidase, a copper-dependent enzyme found almost exclusively in connective tissue.

Closely akin to its role in connective tissue maturation is the function of copper in maintaining vascular integrity in major arteries of growing animals, Harris says.

Copper deficiency in the growing animal results in blood vessels with sparse and fragmented elastic fibers.

The failure to form a firm supporting elastin structure seems to result in a weakened internal structure of the aorta. Aortic aneurysms eventually give rise to aortic rupture and instant death through internal hemorrhaging.

Research showed that naturally occurring copper deficiency in farm animals, notably sheep and cattle in Western Australia, can cause severe problems.

The development of sway-back in lambs or falling disease in cattle was traced to insufficient copper in soils and pastures or the presence of high amounts of molybdenum complexes that blocked copper absorption.

The greatest impetus for early studies of copper function in humans was the recognition that changes in serum copper levels fluctuated with many disease states in man, a clear implication of the importance of copper to human health.

A partial listing of diseases of humans recognized to be associated with elevated levels of serum copper, include Addison's disease, aplastic anemia, arsenic poisoning, carcinomas (cancers) of various types, central nervous system disorders, diabetes, Hodgkins disease, iron-deficiency anemia, hyperthyroidism, leukemia, liver diseases, malaria, pernicious anemia, and sickle cell anemia.

Harris cautions that the presence of higher levels of copper in blood serum is not to be taken as the cause of all these diseases but rather as an indicator of the widespread importance of copper in a variety of functions in the body.

Another area of Harris' research involves vitamin C (L-ascorbic acid) and copper absorption in the digestive tract. The vitamin traditionally blocks uptake of copper into the system.

Harris found that only if copper precedes the vitamin is the latter an inhibitor of copper absorption. However, if copper is given first and the vitamin about 60 minutes later, then there is a remarkable enhancing effect on absorption. This effect seems to be quite specific for the vitamin.

Copper deficiency in the cells results in an impairment in the production of heme, the complex of the iron with porphyrin that forms the nonprotein part of the hemoglobin molecule.

The requirement of copper in the mother's diet for normal development of the unborn child and subsequent development of the child after birth is well known.

There is a question about rearing babies on cow's milk rather than human milk. Human milk has been shown to be about 30 times richer than cow's milk in copper, to mention only one difference.

The importance of maternal copper for normal development of the central nervous system is well known, Harris says.

Symptomatic of copper deficiency in many animals, including humans, are disorders of the central nervous system including: ataxia, tremor, clonic seizure, hypomyelination or demyelination, and reduced levels of sphingolipids.

A common symptom in grazing cattle and sheep suffering copper deficiency was higher incidences of spontaneous bone fractures. In the laboratory, skeletal defects induced by copper deficiency have been seen in rats, calves, mature cattle, and chicks.

Mature hens, fed copper-deficient diets before the laying period, lay eggs that are abnormal in size, shape, texture and some have no shells. Studies by Harris and his associates showed lysyl oxidase activity in the membrane-forming (isthmus) region of the hen oviduct.

The enzyme is believed to function in the biosynthesis of the shell membrane, a thin filamentous structure supporting the outer crystalline shell.

Elastin-like proteins have been found in the membrane, suggesting a requirement for lysyl oxidase in the membrane formation.

Though copper has not been considered a major factor in antibody or other responses of the immune system, this may have to be changed.

Low dietary copper in both male and female mice produced a highly significant reduction in the numbers of antibody-producing cells. These effects on the immune system seemed tied specifically to copper deficiency and no other metals.

Symptoms of copper toxicity have been reported for many animals and humans, Harris says. Briefly, in humans one sees or experiences nausea, vomiting, gastric burning and diarrhea.

Toxicity in humans is usually by accident rather than design. Sources of excess copper include check valves in dispensing machines, copper-lined containers used for storage or in cooking utensils, and copper tubing in water lines. These are but a few ways gram quantities of copper can be introduced into our system.

Diseases of copper metabolism have a genetic origin and in certain cases lead to massive accumulations of copper in sensitive organs. A characteristic of Wilson's disease is a massive accumulation of copper in liver and brain.

Symptoms of Menkes' disease appear before the third month and usually terminate the life of the child before the fifth or sixth year. There is no cure.

New York state leads the nation in percentage space devoted to state parks. Much of the thanks goes to a crusade by Theodore Roosevelt, who established the national park system.

Lawn care services is growing industry

The lawn care industry is making rapid growth throughout the nation, but it is not without problems, said a speaker at the 36th annual Texas Turfgrass Conference.

Some 7.7 million homes used professional lawn care services in 1980, said Bob Earley of New York, editor of Lawn Care Industry magazine. This is 10 percent of all the home lawns in this country. The upper limit will likely be about 30 percent, or some 20 million homes.

Why the growth in the home lawn care industry? Earley cited four major reasons:

It's less expensive to contract for all the lawn services needed than to do them on your own.

Most homeowners lack the technical know-how to give their lawns the proper care. Our population is growing older, so fewer people are physically able to take care of all their lawn needs.

A lush, green lawn has become a status symbol in many neighborhoods, and professional lawn care is the answer for many people. While the potential for growth in the lawn care industry looks good, Earley challenged conference participants to work as hard to keep old customers as to attract new ones.

He also noted that most lawns under the care of professionals look their best in three to five years. But after that time, thatch buildup often becomes a serious problem.

"We need better thatch reducing cultivation practices and equipment," he said.

Medic XIII elects officers

Medic XIII, the emergency medical services instructor organization based in San Angelo met on Saturday, December 12, 1981, at the Fire Training Center in San Angelo. Officers for the upcoming year were elected. They include Flo Wood, Braday, President; Dub O'Bryant, Ozona, First Vice-President; Ruth Marsh, Eden, Second Vice-President; Lou Wright, Robert Lee, Secretary; and Ron Perry, San Angelo, Treasurer.

This organization is dedicated to developing quality instruction for students in emergency medical services courses in the thirteen-county Concho Valley. Membership is restricted to EMS instructors certified by the Texas Department of Health. Plans are underway at this time for the Second West Texas Medical Seminar to be held in San Angelo on April 24, 1982. This event is co-sponsored by Angelo State University and Medic XIII.

Hypothermia in older adults

Older adults, beware of hypothermia-it doesn't have to be freezing for the disorder to occur.

Hypothermia occurs when the body cannot produce enough body heat, and body temperature drops lower than it should.

Persons with impaired circulation, specific diseases of veins and arteries, hypothyroidism or those taking phenothiazines (used to treat anxiety, depression and nausea) should be particularly cautious.

Temperatures can be as high as 60-65 degree for hypothermia to occur, and anyone can be affected.

If a family member possibly has stayed too long in the cold and has become sick, look for the following signs:

Skin is pale and waxy, face may be puffy and swollen

Chills often occur or parts of the body tremble

Person may say he feels warm

He may speak and breathe slowly and have difficulty

saying words

He may seem confused, forgetful and cannot understand what you ask him

He may become tired and cannot get up even after resting

If a family member or friend shows any sign of hypothermia, do the following things:

Put him in a warm bed and cover him with layers of blankets

Take off any heavy outer layer of clothes and lie close to the person to pass your body heat to him

Fill hot water bottles with warm water, wrap towels around them and place them on the victim's chest, ankles and feet

Electric blankets may be used, but be sure not to set them on high or they may cause burns

Elevate the person's feet higher than his head-this will help force blood to the head

Keep the person quiet

Give him warm water or warm milk

Do not allow him to drink any alcoholic drinks or take tranquilizers or sleeping pills, and

Call a doctor as soon as possible.

SMALL TOWNS FACE WATER SHORTAGES, A&M EXPERTS WARN

Small to mid-sized communities are in danger of losing their fresh water reserves to aggressive big cities scrambling to provide water for their booming populations, warns a Texas A&M University sociologist. "Our smaller cities are losing out to the major metropolitan areas for water rights to nearby rivers and lakes because they haven't the foresight of the larger cities and usually cannot afford the kind of political expertise available to the big cities," said Dr. Ruth Schaffer.

Schaffer said the nation's largest cities are scraping for water rights in regions several hundred miles away. They are seeking ways to build dams, reservoirs and transport systems that would allow them to import surface water from other areas for aquifers that are being depleted faster than they are being replenished.

BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
By Jerry Lay

Here's an amazing fact that shows how tough it will be for any college football coach ever to beat Bear Bryant's record of winning more than 314 games. To even approach Bryant's record, a coach would have to win 10 games each year for 31 years-and then, he'd still need a few more.

Here's one of the most unbelievable records ever set in the National Football League. The Philadelphia Eagles of 1940 gained only 298 yards rushing all year-and that's incredible when you consider that many individual players gain more than that themselves in a few games. But the Eagles as a team, playing a full schedule, got only 298 yards all season. Hard to believe, but true.

And, now a quiz for you. We're going to list 4 of the top quarterbacks in the National Football League and see if you know where each of these men played college football. Ken Anderson, Terry Bradshaw, Brian Sipe and Dan Fouts. Here's the answer: Anderson played at Augustana, Bradshaw at Louisiana Tech, Sipe at San Diego State and Fouts at Oregon.
