Last week's cold snap made a mess of last week's paper. The pictures were no good and that was the fault of the temperature drop, according to the printer. It got the chemicals out of whack. I don't know how they process film these days, but when I was doing it, I warmed my chemicals if they were too cold and cooled them with ice when they were too warm. It was a simple procedure, but I guess they probably have some kind of computerized, new-fangled way of doing it. Anyway the pictures we sent the printer in no way resembled the pictures that came out in the paper. We're hoping for better luck this time.

Speaking of the cold snap, it was only a couple of days before the temperature began edging back up, but it did serve to remind us that fall is just around the corner. We are all just getting over the shock of our outrageous electric bills, so surely relief is in sight. My bill here at the office hit an all-time high and was much higher than at this same time last year, prompting me to call WTU and ask if their rate-hike had passed PUC and was reflected on my bill. I was told it had not and as of this moment someone is coming to check my meter. Everybody I have talked to was complaining about their sky-high electric bill. Think what next year will be like if their rate hike is granted. Good grief, we may long for this month's bill a year from now.

Our "Stupid of the Year" award just must be given to the Continental Airlines mechanics union, whose strike for higher wages sent the company into bankruptcy and forced them to reorganize and hire half the number of people at half the salary they were making before. Of course, with all the money it was losing, it was probably just a matter of time. This is just one more indication that the heyday of the union is over. It has served its purpose and now needs to be retired by its members.

The Ozona High School journalism department hit the streets with the first edition of The Lions Roar Monday. It's a very good little newspaper and we have several copies if you'd care to pick up one. They plan to publish twice a month this year, and we have been promised copies to distribute to the public.

Firemen to host meeting here Saturday

Ozona firemen are busy making last minute preparations for the Hill Country Firemen's meeting which will be held here Saturday.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. The host firemen will be at the Civic Center around 7 a.m. preparing to welcome some 350 to 400 persons expected to attend.

The ladies luncheon will be held at the high school cafeteria. All other activities will be held at the Civic Center. The fire prevention program begins at 1 p.m. followed by hose races and a barbecue supper.

By the acceptance cards received by the Ozona Fire Department, it looks as if attendance could easily go over the 356 who were present in 1977 when Ozona was host for the spring convention.

Lions surge to 46-21 victory over McCamey

By-Gary Davis

The Ozona Lions made a golden performance and growled their way to a 46-21 victory over the McCamey Badgers Friday, September 23, in McCamey. Junior quarterback, David Delgado, ran for three touchdowns and threw passes for two more to lead the Lions to their third victory of the 1983 season.

The Lions will be looking for another win Friday as the Eldorado Eagles invade Lions Stadium at 8:00 p.m. "We were pleased with the effort," said Ozona Coach Don Abbott. "We knew we would make some mistakes because of our new defense, but our hustle overcame those mistakes." Coach Abbott was impressed with the team from McCamey. The Lion coaching staff was pleased with a host of defensive players, including seniors, Bob Reneau, Kent Hokit and Mark Vallejo; junior Ronnie Smith, and sophomore, Mark Marshall, who played at a new position, nose guard. This was the first time that the Lions have used a nose guard in their defense. Emilio Garza, Diego Leal, Arnold Vargas, Joe Vandiver and player of the week, David Delgado were the offensive standouts named by the Ozona coaches.

Delgado, who led the Lions in rushing with 131 yards and in passing with 65 yards, broke for a 76 yard run with only 15 seconds absent from the clock for the first Lion touchdown. Robert Flores split the uprights for the extra point and the Lions led 7-0.

With 7:18 left in the first period, Ozona's Mark Vallejo strutted 50 yards for the second score of the night. The extra point attempt by Robert Flores was no good and the score stood at 13-0.

Shortly, McCamey's Freshman running back, Rodney Terry, ran 47 yards, breaking several tackles, to put 6 points on the scoreboard for the Badgers. The extra point by senior, Ray Zarate, was good which made the score 13-7 at the conclusion of the first period of play.

Ozona scored 20 second quarter points to take a 33-14 halftime lead. The first score of the quarter came with 7:53 remaining in the period. David Delgado completed a 6 yard pass to Mark Vallejo.

The extra point attempt, a two-point conversion was no good and the Lion's tally rose to 19. Soon afterwards the Badgers scored on a 15 yard run by Rodney Terry. Zarate's extra point attempt was

Fields appointed county judge

In a called meeting of the Crockett County Commissioners Court Wednesday afternoon, A. O. Fields was named to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Johnny Jones from the Crockett County Judge's office earlier this month.

The meeting was called to order by the senior member of the court, Jack Williams, who asked for nominations for the office. B. W. Stuart made the motion that Judge Fields be named to the office and Jesus Castro made the second. The vote was unanimous and no other nominations were made.

The court went for Judge Fields to ask if he would accept the position and he accepted with the provision he take office the first of October. A swearing in ceremony was set for 11 a.m. Friday, September 30. Also, at that time, a justice of the peace will be named to take Judge Fields' position.

Judge Fields has been justice of the peace in Crockett County for the past 26 years.

Plans unveiled for Jr. Hi building

A special meeting of the Ozona Board of Trustees was held Wednesday, September 21, for the purpose of hearing architect Ron Barbutti present plans for the renovation of the old Ozona Junior High building.

Board President Joe Couch called the meeting to order at 8:00 p.m. and then turned the agenda over to Mr. Barbutti, who began his presentation to the assembled group of members.

Much of the early discussion centered around the exterior of the building, where officials felt that there was a probable need to replace old cracked sidewalks and extend existing ones.

The first floor of the building will contain cosmetology classrooms as well as a general workroom for cheerleaders. Cosmetology is the highlight of this first floor in that this program will allow vocational training for students who do not plan to attend college. It is a two-year course that enables Ozona students to go directly into the profession after completion requirements are met.

The second floor will be devoted to providing four additional classrooms and offices, and highlights of the third or top floor will include art, speech, journalism, and computer classrooms, all of which are needed for Ozona High School's expansion of curriculum and career opportunities.

Mr. Barbutti reported that he felt that the project could be put out for bids by mid-October and that actual work will begin no later than the middle of January, with a completion date of July 15, 1984.

Following discussion, the Board decided to accept Mr. Barbutti's plans and proceed with necessary approvals and bidding requirements.

$16 million law suit filed here

A 16-million-dollar lawsuit was filed in 112th District Court here last week against Dowell, a division of the Dow Chemical Company, and two of its employees on behalf of OJB, Inc., an Ozona based gas and oil development corporation.

In the suit OJB alleges that work done by Dowell to stimulate and increase production of its various wells in the county actually damaged them to the extent of $16 million.

The work performed by Dowell was done out of the Sonora office, and as a result two individuals were included in the suit, Harold Young of Sonora, and Jan Brown of Perryton, both of whom supervised the Crockett County operations. The services and materials complained of in the suit were provided from 1978 through 1982 and during that time one of the two individuals named was district manager for Dowell in Sonora. The suit further contends both had knowledge of the acts which are the basis of the lawsuit.

A Dowell representative selected the services and reviewed various technical data and made recommendations and representations as to the type of acid stimulation or fracturing stimulation to be used on the various wells owned and operated by OJB, Inc. to increase, stimulate and speed-up the anticipated recovery from each well.

OJB claims Dowell systematically "shorted" its wells on essential quantities of the materials used in the service. The corporation further claims that because of the fact it was impossible for it to monitor exactly what was being pumped into the oil or gas well it owned, Dowell would "short" it on materials ranging from 10% to 90%, depending upon the type of service being done.

The suit further claims OJB paid for and received cement of a quality substantially below that which Dowell had represented as being provided.

Dowell is accused of violating the Texas Deceptive Trade Consumer Protection Act in the suit in several respects. It claims Dowell and its representatives were the only ones who had knowledge of what OJB was actually paying for and what was actually being delivered and the actions were intentional on the part of Dowell.

As a direct result of Dowell and its representatives, OJB claims to have suffered damages to its oil or gas wells at this time of at least $16,000,000. OJB further claims the facts in the law suit were not discovered and could not reasonably have been discovered prior to 1982.

Attorneys for the defendant are Mason and Cameron of Ozona, and Lynch, Chappell, Allday and Alsop of Midland. Bill Mason filed the suit.

Services held here for W. T. Stokes Sunday

W. T. (Dub) Stokes, 69, died at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, September 23, 1983, at Angelo Community Hospital.

Services were held at 3:00 p.m. Sunday, September 25, in Ozona United Methodist Church, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery under the direction of Sizemore Funeral Home.

Mr. Stokes was born November 13, 1913, in Livingston, New Mexico. He moved with his family to Lubbock, where he was educated in Lubbock Public Schools and attended Texas Tech University.

He married Madeline Hughes on December 22, 1937. They lived in Odessa until 1942 when they moved to Ozona where W.T. was associated with his father in the drilling business. In the early years, they drilled shot holes for seismograph companies who were engaged in oil exploration throughout this section of the country.

After living in Ozona for a few years they decided that Ozona was the place they wanted to be their permanent home, so W. T. started drilling water wells in Crockett County, and continued in this business for the remainder of his life.

He was Past Master Masonic Lodge 747 A F and A M in Ozona. He had also served several terms on the Crockett County Hospital Board.

He was a member of the Texas and National Water Well Driller's Associations.

Survivors include his wife, Madeline, of Ozona, two sons and their families, Tommy and Jo Nel Stokes, and John and Vicki Stokes, all of Ozona; one sister, Mrs. Allen R. Hamilton of Big Spring; and four grandsons: Ken, John Tom, Andy, and John Austin Stokes, all of Ozona.

Active pallbearers were Dennis Clark, Pon Seahorn, Bob Childress, Johnny Jones, Jeffrey Sutton, Randy Upham, Bill Black, and Frank Childress.

Garland Davis receives TPSPPA appointment

Garland Davis, local school superintendent, has recently been appointed to the Texas Public School Professional Personnel Advisory Committee to the State Board of Education. Davis was appointed to the committee from the 21st Congressional District by State Board Chairman, Joe Kelly Butler.

The committee will conduct meetings and public hearings for the purpose of advising the State Board of Education on matters important to the public schools in Texas.

Present issues being studied by the committee are: implementation of H.B. 246, a curriculum reform bill; the Texas Assessment of Basic Skills; teacher education programs in the colleges and universities; teacher competency testing; textbook selection rules; and the guaranteed school bond program.

Davis said the committee is composed of professional educators from each of the state's congressional districts and is representative of all size schools. Regarding the possible impact of the committee's work, Davis said, "Our influence on State Board decisions will be as extensive as the Board allows it to be. However, the opportunity to register our opinions from the practitioner's advantage is very important, and I feel very good about being invited to participate."

Contest winner

Winner of the weekly football contest was Ruby Jean Tambunga. She tied with Mercedes Martinez for the jackpot, both missing only two games. While they both picked Dallas to win in the tie-breaker, Ms. Tambunga's score was nearest to the actual score.

TRUDEAU'S TAXMEN COMETH

By Edwin Feulner

The employees of a couple of dozen U.S. companies probably should pay more attention next year to the Canadian elections than the U.S. elections. Sound bizarre? It is.

The reason is simple: the leftist government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, to put things delicately, has been trying to stiff the companies these people work for. A devotee of socialist economics, Mr. Trudeau winces when he hears free-market success stories, especially when they're American success stories. So he's dispatched his bureaucrats to wage war on American firms doing business in Canada.

Among the biggest fish Mr. Trudeau eyes for his trophy case is the Amway Corporation, which sits quietly across the Canadian border in Ada, Michigan, and does a lot of business up north (employing more than 400 people in Canada, where another 100,000 independent distributors sell Amway's home care products). Amway has more than its share of differences with the Canadian authorities, but as Canadian journalist Bruce LaPlante noted recently, Amway's biggest problem is ideological.

"Some Amway people are, dare I say it, VERY successful," LaPlante wrote. "Guess what political-philosophical system most (if not all) of them espouse? Capitalism. What is the basic tenet of capitalism? That given a modicum of freedom one can accomplish just about anything one wants to accomplish. And what does Amway preach? That given a reasonable amount of effort, one can make a very nice living being an Amway rep."

The Trudeau government's feud with Amway involves (what else?) taxes. In 1965, after long negotiations, Amway and Revenue Canada—the Canadian equivalent of the IRS—reached agreement on a formula for deciding the market value of Amway products produced in the U.S. and exported to Canada—a formula that would be used to calculate customs duties paid to the Canadian government. For the next 15 years, Amway dutifully paid its taxes according to the agreement.

Then, in 1980, Canadian customs officials suddenly decided they were unhappy with the 15-year-old agreement, and unilaterally changed the rules of the game. Not only that, they are now suing Amway, claiming the company owes them $147.8 million in back taxes for the years 1965-1980... taxes that would have been due had the agreement not been in effect. The Ottawa government has even threatened to throw Amway's top corporate officials into the Canadian hoosegow.

It's my guess that this is one case where the Mounties won't get their men. Mr. Trudeau is facing a tough reelection fight, and his likely opponent, Brian Mulroney, is a dedicated free-enterpriser. Moreover, public opinion polls show that the Canadian people have had enough of Trudeau's anti-everythingism.

There's no guessing, of course, what Mr. Trudeau will do to rebuild his popularity. If there's political capital to be made in conducting a public battle with Amway and the approximately two dozen other U.S. companies who are having problems with the Canadian taxman, Mr. Trudeau will probably pursue the fight. If the cards tell him that it's bad politics—after all, more than 100,000 Canadians are Amwayers, and countless tens of thousands have ties to other American companies—he'll probably back off.

Mulroney says he wants to encourage foreign (read that U.S.) investment in Canada. The tax mess does anything but that.

Soviet Logic LESSON #1

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Austin Sen. Lloyd Doggett's governor-for-a-day ceremonies couldn't have come at a better time for Lloyd Doggett, or a worse time for Bob Krueger.

Doggett, who is in the midst of a tough campaign against Krueger for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate, was feted Saturday as governor-for-a-day.

That is the day when the governor and the lieutenant governor traditionally leave the state for 24 hours to allow the president pro tempore of the Texas Senate—in this case Doggett—to serve as acting governor.

The honoree gets to serve just long enough to sign a few proclamations and resolutions, but not long enough to take any real action.

However, the day does provide the honoree with a chance to pull out all the stops, invite in a lot of friends and political supporters, raise a bit of campaign money and—best of all—get a lot of media exposure.

With all the speechifying, wine and dining and politicking that goes on during a governor-for-a-day ceremony, Doggett should get plenty of newspaper space and radio and television air time.

And that translates into a lot of free campaign advertising.

Considering that Doggett is the acknowledged underdog in his race against Krueger, a former congressman and ambassador-at-large to Mexico, Doggett needs all the free publicity he can get to build his name identification among voters.

In addition to Krueger, Doggett also will be taking on Lubbock Congressman Kent Hance in the Democratic primary this May.

Gramm Announces

The Republicans also have a carload of candidates who already have announced for that Senate seat, the one being vacated by Republican Sen. John Tower.

And the latest of those candidates is College Station Congressman Phil Gramm.

Gramm threw his hat into the ring last week, joining Houston Republican Rob Mosbacher, Houston Congressman Ron Paul and a host of other potential candidates who are sizing up the race.

Gramm is the "Boll Weevil" Democrat who bolted the party earlier this year after being unceremoniously kicked off the House Budget Committee.

For the GOP, Gramm could prove to be a very good candidate.

During a time when statewide Democratic candidates have been running roughshod over Republicans, Gramm provides name identification and a strong following in at least part of the state. Gramm's switch to the Republican Party did little to hurt his political strength in the Central Texas district in which he resides—a district that will be very important in the 1984 Senate contest.

However, the Democrats also are more than a little pleased to have Gramm in the race.

Democratic leaders are confident that Gramm cannot win a statewide race in Texas, that he has not yet built a strong enough following in the GOP to pull votes away from more established Republican candidates and, most importantly, his entry into the Senate race gives Democrats an outstanding chance to recapture the congressional seat they lost when Gramm rebelled last year.

The GOP primary contest could be one of the most interesting Republican battles in years particularly if former Senate candidates Jim Collins of Dallas and Walter "Mad Dog" Mengden of Houston make the race.

Mattox Arraignment

While the U.S. Senate race continued to heat up, Attorney General Jim Mattox's legal problems continued to mount.

Mattox was arraigned on charges of commercial bribery in connection with accusations that he threatened to ruin the bond business of Houston law firm Fulbright and Jaworski.

That firm is representing Mobil Oil Corp. in a $1.7 billion lawsuit brought against Mobil by the State of Texas and South Texas rancher-oilman Clinton Manges.

Mobil had subpoenaed Mattox's sister to testify about banking transactions involving Mattox campaign loans when the threats purportedly were made.

Mattox has denied making any threats, has accused Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle of trumping up the felony bribery charges just to save face after a six-week investigation had turned up nothing and vowed to stay in office even if convicted of the charges.

Mattox, who has a reputation as a fighter, bully and an extremely abrasive politician, says the whole thing comes down to whether he or Mobil Oil will run the Attorney General's Office.

Mattox also has been quick to point out at nearly every opportunity that it is the school children of Texas who would benefit if the state wins its $1.7 billion suit.

That fact, he hopes, will give his fight the appearance of a little guy versus big guy contest and build public opinion on his side.

Phone Rates

While Mattox was vowing to fight on against big oil, another giant, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., was bringing out its big guns in an effort to convince the Public Utility Commission that it really does need the $1.7 billion rate hike it has requested.

Letters to the Editor

September 26, 1983

Dear Kitty,
 The St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Wheels For Life Bike-a-thon is over for this year and looking back we want to sincerely thank the citizens of Ozona for their generous support.

We are extremely proud of the riders, the volunteers whose efforts made this a success, and the citizens of Ozona. Thanks to them, we raised a grand total of $700.00.

Because the diseases that St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is battling can strike any child anywhere, this money will be helping to save children's lives all over the world.

Your help was an important part of this event, and you performed a very worthwhile service acquainting the citizens of Ozona with the life-giving work being done by St. Jude's. For that, we are very grateful.

It is a wonderful feeling to know that the people of our community are concerned and caring individuals and, on behalf of the children of St. Jude's, I want to thank each and every one who helped.

Sincerely,
 Tina Moran
 Chairman

Dear Editor,

I would like to make an appeal to the people of Ozona for Girl Scouts. We are in desperate need of a Girl Scout House. At present we have a concrete building, with no heat, a fireplace that doesn't work, bathroom facilities that need redoing and no telephone for emergencies.

I was told that we would

Tips For Gardeners

From The Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

Last Tuesday we were hopeful when there was a very promising looking cloud coming our way and rain was in the forecast. The cold front brought us only our first dust storm, but we're thankful it didn't last long. Rain is still in the forecast.

If you are a vegetable gardener take advantage by flooding furrows weekly. This deep watering technique makes plants tolerant to drought by encouraging a deep root system.

Even though the warmth of summer lingers on, a hint of autumn's chill will soon offer brilliant color in our shrubs beneath the trees that show color later. The display can easily become a part of your own garden if you plant some shrubs known for their fall color. Most can be planted from fall through spring. Offering some of the south's most brilliant autumn color, sumacs thrive in full sun and dry soil.

You will find the native sumacs in open woods, edges of thickets, and along roadsides. Notice them on the way to Abilene along the highway.

Another plant that does well here is the pomegranate. In each summer it has showy orange-red flowers followed by brownish to red fruit. Autumn turns its small, fine-textured foliage to golden yellow until the first frost causes the leaves to drop all at once. This plant must have full sun and seems to thrive with no care at all.

If you want a bold accent color, choose the winged euonymus (alata) but place it carefully because the crimson autumn color and effect is quite intense. Fall color comes about two weeks before that of other deciduous plants. The dwarf selection (compacta) becomes only 6 to 8 feet in height, offering even more vivid fall color than species. This plant is easy to grow and tolerant of either sun or shade, but is most intense in full sun. Any type of soil is fine, as long as it's well drained.

For color you can depend on year after year, the best spring-flowering bulbs for Texas are daffodils. Planting time isn't until November, but you will have a better choice of top-quality bulbs if you order now. They need a site that has good drainage and exposure to full sun. Set the bulbs about three times deeper than they are tall. Some of the best selections are mount hood (white), unsurpassable (yellow), Texas (yellow double flowers), cheerfulness (creamy white), Suzy (yellow petal, orange cup,) and the tazetta selections (Cragford, Orange Wonder, and Scarlet Gem).

Sorority meets for two social events

"A round-up of friends" was the theme of an old-west social of Alpha Alpha Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Monday, Sept. 19. A girl's rush social, the party was held at the Methodist Fellowship Hall, and was hosted by Jan Henderson, Ellen Lipsey and Leslie Wilson.

Members and their guests wore an assortment of denim outfits highlighted with bandanas and boots. Tables featured western placemats and centerpieces of cactus, old west memorabilia, and bandanas. A kettle of pinto beans, iron skillet of homemade cornbread, and fresh hot cobblers were served on red-checked dishes.

Games with western themes were enjoyed by the group, and Secret Sister gifts were exchanged.

Present at the social were Debbie Glasscock, Jan Henderson, Ellen Lipsey, Philda Morrison, Lori Parker, Jeannine Perry, Dena Porter, Tracey Preddy, Stephanie Ruthardt, Chris Weant and Leslie Wilson.

Guests were Leslie Reeves, Marilyn Armentrout, Becky Allen, Rita Sigwing, Karen Huffman, Melissa Loman, Melissa Hintz, Tammy Bunger, Lisa Wagener, Ralph Sullivan, Marcy Williams and Renee Schultze.

In an outdoor meeting at the home of Tracey Preddy last Monday evening, sorority members enjoyed ice cream and heard programs on The Girl Scouts of America and Christian Children's Fund.

Hostesses were Tracey Preddy, Lori Parker, and Dena Porter.

Present were the hostesses as well as Nesa Chandler, Elizabeth Clark, Debbie Glasscock, Jan Henderson, Ellen Lipsey, Philda Morrison, Jeannine Perry, Dena Porter, Stephanie Ruthardt, Celia Stone, Chris Weant and Leslie Wilson.

Money raised for St. Jude

A total of $700.00 was raised for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital on Sept. 10 as local bike riders pedaled in the Ozona Wheels for Life Bike-a-thon for Terry.

Everyone who participated did a wonderful job. The money raised from the ride will help continue the research into childhood cancer and other catastrophic diseases, chairman, Tina Moran said. Children here and everywhere will be helped by this successful Bike-a-thon and the progress being made at St. Jude Hospital.

The bikers were given ten days to collect and turn in their pledges. Jason Moran turned in the most money and also is the recipient of the 10-speed bicycle. Of the bikers who participated five will receive T-shirts and tote bags for collecting $75.00 or more.

SOURCE OF BEAUTY

When we look upon the grandeur of nature—when we gaze with awe at a masterpiece of art—when we are thrilled with the sounds of great music—then we often wonder about the source of all this beauty.

Undoubtedly, our energy and ability is God. It is He who is the real source of beauty in our culture. Human spirits, touched with divine inspiration have given the world treasures untold.

Consider Da Vinci's The Last Supper. Consider Handel's Messiah. Consider the marvelous literature of the Holy Bible. Truly some of the very finest of man's creations have come as the result of an awareness of God.

Indeed today our culture continues to be enriched by the expression of man's faith in the Eternal. Our churches bring us faith in God which is still a vital source of inspiration and beauty. Let the church enrich your life. Attend this Sunday and every Sunday.

"Gum Disease-the Silent Killer"

To understand gum disease, first, we must understand what we call our gums. There are two parts: the bone that holds our teeth tight and the soft tissue that tissue that covers the bone and surrounds the teeth. Did you know that when you look in your mouth you can only see about one-third of a healthy tooth? That's because the other two-thirds are embedded in the bone. It is pretty obvious, when we look at x-rays that our teeth were really intended to stay there or they would not have been built so securely in the bone.

The soft gum tissue we see when we look in our mouths is there for mainly one purpose, to seal out the bacteria from the bone. The gum tissue grows to the tooth to make the seal, however, not where you see it, it dips down a little (about 2-3 millimeters in a healthy state) and there attaches to the tooth. This forms a crevice that goes all the way around the tooth. Each tooth has its own crevice. Germs get in the crevice and get stuck together. Once the germs have been there for a while they become calcified to form tartar and more bacteria stick there to produce chemicals that work on the attachment of the gum to the tooth and eventually causes the gum to turn loose from the tooth letting the germs leak past the gum down to the bone. One usually cannot see it or feel it, therefore, normally we do not realize it is happening, but the bone begins to be destroyed by the bacteria. If the condition is allowed to continue long enough the bone will be lost to make the situation hopeless. Unlike cavities that can be restored or rebuilt we cannot, in most cases, rebuild bone that has been lost. However, in most cases we can stop the process of bone loss and not let it progress, thereby salvaging the teeth.

Gum disease seems to be very prevalent in our area for several different reasons I will try to explain. Our water is naturally flouridated to a perfect degree, about one part per million. This is wonderful. When we are very young this flouride is deposited in our teeth as they form and it makes the enamel very resistant to the effects of the acid caused by plaque and sugar; therefore we are not as likely to get cavities. But since we do not get cavities so easily, we usually have not ever had a reason or opportunity to learn to clean our mouths and we usually have not developed a routine of periodically having our mouths professionally evaluated. So what happens? We "think" we are o.k. because we are not having any pain. While in reality we may very well have a gum-bone problem. Remember, gum disease is normally painless until it is very advanced. That's why the name--"the silent killer."

Small business seminar

A financial management seminar for small business owners and managers will be held October 4, from 8 a.m. until noon at the Convention Center in San Angelo. The seminar is sponsored by San Angelo Chamber of Commerce and the Small Business Administration.

Discovery finalized in county

A discovery was finalized in Crockett County. The MPI (Ellenburger oil) field of Crockett County was reopened in Crockett County with completion of J. Cleo Thompson, Dallas, No. 1 AR-7, 3/8-mile northwest of the depleted original opener and 18 1/2 miles northwest of Ozona, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 1,675,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

Production was through perforations at 8,047-063.5 feet, which had been acidized with 700 gallons.

The following tops were picked on ground elevation of 2,820 feet; Dean, 6,232 feet; Wolfcamp, 6,362 feet; Strawn, 8,018 feet; and Ellenburger, 8,040 feet.

Drilled to 8,217 feet, 5 1/2-inch casing was set at 8,153 feet.

Location is 467 feet from the south and 1,320 feet from the east lines of 7-A-BS&F.

The MPI opener, Mallard Petroleum Inc. No. 1 Conoco-Enco, was finalized June 13, 1968 for a calculated, absolute open flow of 2,950,000 cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 4,170-1, through perforations at 8,100-182 feet.

National 4-H Week

National 4-H Week, October 2-8, is a special time for 4-H members and leaders to promote the nation's largest youth organization and to bring some recognition to its contributions, points out Rachel Hall and Billy Reagor, Crockett County Extension Agents.

4-H has a proud 75 year heritage that forms the basis of this year's National 4-H Week theme, "4-H: Building on Experiences."

The 4-H program in Texas began with the founding of the Jack County Boy's Corn Club in 1908, with twenty-five farm boys under the direction of Thomas M. Marks learning how to use improved production methods to grow corn on their farms.

The first girls 4-H programs grew out of the Milan County Girl's Tomato Clubs founded by Edna Trigg in 1912. Girls grew 1/10 acre of tomatoes and canned them using improved production and home canning methods.

The 4-H program that we know today evolved out of these programs in the 1920's with the motto, "To Make The Best Better" through the wise and effective use of the four "h's" representing Head, Heart, Hands, and Health.

Throughout its seventy-five years of existence in Texas, the 4-H program has reached more than one-million boys and girls with educational and developmental programs.

1983 has been designated as the Diamond Anniversary of 4-H in Texas. The Texas 4-H program has been recognized and commended for its 75 years of service to the people of this state and the contributions it has made and is making. Through the dedicated efforts of the 187,000 members currently enrolled in 4-H and more than 17,000 adult and teen volunteers who give of their time and energy are reaping the benefits of successful 4-H in Texas.

Crockett County 4-H programs currently offers more than eleven different projects to more than 225 members in Crockett County. Join the fun. Join 4-H. Call 392-2721.

African violets need plenty of light to bloom

If you want African violets to "light up your life," then be sure they get enough light.

"Although African violets cannot tolerate direct sunlight, they often need more light than most people give them in order to bloom," says Everett Janne, landscape horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"If African violets fail to bloom, more than 90 percent of the time it's due to insufficient light," he points out.

Too little light causes the central stem of violets to stretch and the leaf petioles to elongate as they reach for the light source. The result is a misshapen plant with few, if any, blossoms, Janne notes.

In contrast, a well-lighted plant will be symmetrical with closely spaced leaves and an abundance of flowers in the center.

"Fluorescent lights are excellent for growing African violets," says the horticulturist. "However, don't crowd plants under light and keep about 8 inches between plants and lights. If plants seem to stretch, lower light slightly or raise the plants."

Janne suggests watering African violets only when the soil is dry to the touch, and then watering them thoroughly. Water should be at room temperature or slightly above because cold water can cause leaf spotting. Wick systems used by some violet growers work well if the soil is leached thoroughly every four to six weeks to get rid of soluble salts that may accumulate.

Use only well-drained potting soil high in organic matter for growing African violets, recommends Janne.

A lobster's "claws" are not equal in size; if the right claw is larger, it means the lobster is "right-handed."

Premature infants thrive on milk from the natural mother

Laura Henry had something no one else could give her tiny son. Little Tony Henry was born two and a half months prematurely. During the three months it took Tony to get big enough to go home from Texas Children's Hospital, Laura Henry played an important role in her baby's care.

Six to eight times each day, Laura used a pump to express her breast milk for little Tony. Then each morning Laura or her husband Harold would drive 70 miles round trip to deliver the fresh human milk to Baylor College of Medicine. They made this trip every day, arriving before 9 a.m. seven days a week.

The Henrys were helping researchers at the Baylor Children's Nutrition Research Center learn what is the best food for infants like Tony. These babies, born as much as three months early, may weigh only two pounds at birth.

The survival of very small premature infants has created a whole new area of medicine, according to Dr. Cutberto Garza, Baylor nutritional specialist. The controversy over what they should be fed spans the globe.

Garza, assistant professor of pediatrics and physiology at Baylor, said scientific opinion in this country has favored synthetic formula. However, many researchers in Europe consider it unethical to feed premature infants anything except human milk.

The problem, Garza said, is that no one agrees about how fast these infants should grow. Some researchers believe premature infants should be fed whatever it takes to maintain the rate of growth that would have occurred in the mother's womb. Others think that doing this outside the protection of the mother's body may give a baby more nutrients than his immature system can handle. The results could be metabolic stress on the kidneys, liver and other organs.

Garza and his fellow Baylor researchers, Dr. Richard J. Schanler and Dr. Buford L. Nichols, are comparing the growth rates of small, but healthy babies fed synthetic formula with those fed a fortified human milk preparation...a sort of "supermom" milk.

The milk Laura delivered to the Children's Nutrition Research Center was analyzed for nutritional content. With the help of scientists from Texas A&M University, her breast milk was then mixed with additional nutrients obtained from the milk donated by other lactating women. These nutrients include minerals, fats and protein needed to support a rate of growth compatible with that occurring in the mother's womb, Garza said.

"We have data to show that there may be some special changes in the milk of women who deliver prematurely that may favor the very low birth weight infant," Garza said. "The milk of mothers who deliver prematurely will have a higher protein and sodium content, and may provide more energy."

"These changes may take up some of the slack, but the nutritional concentrations are not adequate to maintain the same growth rate they would have had in the womb. One would have to feed higher volumes to get adequate amounts of nutrients, and there are limits on how much one can feed this group of infants," Garza said.

The infants who have been fed the supermom milk appear to be growing at the same rate as the infants on formula. The nutrients they are receiving also are being used by their immature systems without any problems. The researchers have noticed some differences in the way the two groups of infants seem to be handling calcium and sodium, but they are unsure what the differences mean. This type of research has raised many questions that may take years to answer, Garza said.

"Many of the problems these kids encounter are caused by their immaturity at birth," Garza said. "We know they're going to be within normal limits and function normally if they get good care. The question is, could they have done even better?"

One of the side benefits to this study, Garza said, is the opportunity for parents to take an active role in the care of their hospitalized premature infant, rather than feeling left out of their baby's care after the mother is sent home.

"We can say, 'you have something that only you can provide the baby. We can see that your baby gets it, if you're willing to work with us.' It's a demanding job, but these parents are incredible," Garza said. "Someone is there without fail every morning delivering that milk."

This work done by the Children's Nutrition Research Center is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Institute of Child Health and Development. It is administered by Baylor College of Medicine in cooperation with Texas Children's Hospital.

Microwave seafood cooking

Seafood is ideal for microwave ovens because it cooks rapidly with delicious results.

Annette Reddell Hegen seafood consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, offers a few general tips for cooking seafood in a microwave oven:

Before cooking, brush the fish with butter or a dilute solution of a gravy browning agent to enhance the color of the dish. If you're baking a whole fish, shield the head and tail with a small piece of aluminum foil (unless your oven manufacturer forbids the use of foil) to prevent excessive drying during cooking.

Cook the seafood in a covered container to retain moisture and reduce the cooking time. Plastic wrap makes a good covering, but be sure to pierce it or turn back one edge before removing it so excess steam can escape.

When cooking more than one piece of seafood, spread the pieces out to allow space between each. Place the thickest portion to the outside and do not stack or layer pieces in the pan.

Remember that microwave cooking involves residual cooking process. The seafood should remain covered during the standin period.

Seafood cooks so rapidly and is so delicate that when preparing a whole meal, it is probably best to cook it last to avoid reheating it. Fish is done when the flesh turns opaque and flakes easily. Shellfish is done when the flesh turns opaque and, if cooked in the shell, the shell turns red.

Since microwave ovens vary in power and features, Hegen recommends consulting the owner's manual for further cooking instructions. A free brochure on microwave cooking with shrimp and a set of fish recipes are available by writing to "Seafood Recipes," Texas Agricultural Extension Service, P. O. Box 158, Port Aransas, TX 78373.

The first electric lamps used for street lighting were arc-lamps installed experimentally in Paris, in 1841.

The importance of gold to California is indicated by some of its official symbols: it's nicknamed the Golden State; its colors are blue and gold; the state mineral is native gold; the state fish, the golden trout; and the flower, golden poppy.

APPLES DO WELL in Ozona despite the drought. Herb Kunkel brought this branch in for us Monday, and it was enough apples to make several apple pies. We've noticed trees all over town loaded with apples of several different varieties, of course, it has taken tons of water to produce them during this dry spell.

Landscaping home s major investment

Landscaping a new home is a major investment that, if properly done, will increase in value over the years.

As much attention and planning should be given to the outside environment as to the home interior, says Billy Reagor, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Between 10 and 20 percent of the combined cost of the house and lot should be invested to adequately landscape a new home.

Major items included in this cost are grading, drives, patios, retaining walls, fences, planting and professional services. Initial grading is probably the most important because it will establish the drainage pattern and provide adequate movement of excess water.

Ideally, the house and grounds should be planned as a unit before actual construction begins. With advance planning, the house can be designed and located to make maximum use of existing landscape features.

Existing vegetation, lay of the land, prevailing seasonal winds, views, shade, distinctive existing features and building setback lines should all be considered and used to advantage when planning the landscape. Another consideration is the family's outdoor activities.

A landscape that accents a new home doesn't just happen; it must be planned, emphasizes Reagor. There is no substitute for adequate prior planning to eliminate many of the problems that often plague new homeowners.

Food prices due to climb sharply in near future

As far as the outlook for food prices is concerned, it's the lull before the storm.

While food prices have remained fairly stable during the past six months, consumers can expect to start paying more at the supermarket before long.

"It all boils down to the effects of this summer's drought over much of the nation," says Dr. Dick Ed-

Energy Report

The petroleum industry is the second largest tax revenue producer in the state of Texas behind the sales tax. In 1982, oil and gas production taxes totaled 3.4 billion dollars or 27 percent of all state taxes. Last year, the industry paid 68 percent of state costs of aid to dependent children, medical assistance and teachers' retirement matching funds. Petroleum tax dollars accounted for 47 percent of state funds for public education. Local property taxes paid by the petroleum industry totaled 1.2 billion dollars.

The state gasoline tax amounted to 496 million dollars with one-quarter of that for public education and the remaining three-quarters for road construction and maintenance.

Royalty owners received 5.1 billion dollars from oil and gas production in 1982.

And, the average price for a barrel of oil was $31.47 and a thousand cubic feet sold for $2.09 on the average.

In other news, a series of public protests against natural gas decontrol was scheduled last week. The rallies were held in about 50 cities and were sponsored by the AFL-CIO and the Citizens/Labor Energy Coalition.

In the Permian Basin our rig count for this week is 295. Last week it was 286. One year ago it was 268.

wards, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M.

The drought has severely reduced corn and soybeans used for feed, causing their prices to jump. Corn prices have already climbed some 30 percent in the past six months while soybean prices have climbed about 40 percent. This means higher feed costs which, in turn, push up the cost of producing cattle, hogs, poultry and eggs, notes the economist.

"Beef and pork prices, for instance, could jump as much as 20 percent," says Edwards. "Consumers have enjoyed fairly low beef and pork prices in recent months as producers have had to liquidate herds because of drought conditions. This has resulted in large supplies of red meat and subsequent low prices to consumers."

This year's drought and hot summer weather have also taken their toll in the poultry industry. Several million broilers have died from the extreme heat, which has also had a dampening effect on egg production. All this adds up to fewer broilers and eggs in the coming months, and that, coupled with higher feed costs, means higher prices to consumers.

Higher beef and pork prices also have a tendency to pull up retail poultry prices, the economist points out.

What's a consumer to do with these prospects in sight?

"A prudent consumer may wish to buy and store red meat and poultry products in anticipation of higher prices," says Edwards.

Extension office news

By Rachel Hall

This past Saturday, Jay Grisle conducted an excellent machine applique, embroidery, and monogram workshop. Jay gave many machine demonstrations, displayed several Christmas ideas, and enthusiastically helped the ladies attending.

Selecting a sewing machine is similar to the way of selecting a car. When you purchase a car, you closely consider features, durability and dependability to determine the mileage. Features affect the price, therefore, select features according to your sewing interests. Three good ways to select a quality sewing machine are: select a known brand, buy from a reputable dealer with good service and ask the opinion of friends.

Sewing machine guidelines include:

Know the type of service you expect from manufacturer and dealer. To guarantee your satisfaction with the service of the machine, be sure to know the following questions. Is the dealer a factory authorized representative? Will dealers service the sewing machines in other cities, in case you move? How long does the dealer offer free service, is it transferable to another city? How long is the warrantor responsible for repairs or replacement of defective parts? How long will warrantor make replacement of parts for the model for free or otherwise? Are any conditions associated with the warranty, are lessons required, must you mail in a warranty card, must you bring the machine to the dealer?

Look for machines that will match your sewing projects. Certain features are basic necessities, while others are special extras which are nice to have. Compare the features of at least three models. Basic features for machines are: Smooth stops and starts, bobbin doesn't vibrate while sewing and feeds thread evenly, thread guides are easy to follow, needle is easy to install, fabric feeds evenly under needle, variety of utility stitches, variety of throat plates and feet attachments for the utility stitches, accurate reverse stitching, variations in speed controls, easy to clean, and instruction book you can understand.

Test drive the machine yourself. A precision machine should be able to stitch on a variety of fabric types with equal ease. Look for even stitches with good tension control. If the tension is correct, the stitches will look the same on both the top and bottom of the fabric without puckers.

Tip: New sewers, ask the dealer to take you through a test drive on fabrics of different weights and textures to reveal problems associated with certain fabrics. Have the dealer explain the solutions.

Finally, don't pay for more features than you will use and don't economize by selecting a machine that will fall short of your expectations in a year from now.

Frank James is in St. Johns Hospital in San Angelo where he underwent surgery Monday.

Chester Wilson is in Community Hospital in San Antonio, undergoing medical tests.

USDA Quality Grades Can Predict Beef Flavor

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

If you want beef that is extra tasty, chances are best when you buy beef in the better USDA grades, according to meat scientists at Texas A&M University.

It wasn't always that way but has apparently evolved over time. If USDA quality grades were intended originally to predict the palatability of cooked beef, it is interesting that the first official grade standards in 1926 do not say that; no mention is made in those standards of "expected palatability," according to Dr. Gary Smith, Head of Animal Science Department at Texas A&M University.

In fact, Smith says, the words "palatability," "juiciness," "tenderness" do not appear in the original information on grades. The expressed intent of grading at that time was "to have comparability between the (wholesale meat market news service) reports issued from different markets."

Gradually, over the years, the definition of official grade standards has changed to identify differences in characteristics associated with eating quality. By 1975, the official grade standards defined "quality grade" (not just quality) as the palatability-indicating characteristics of the lean.

A team of meat scientists, including Smith, involved in meats research for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, (TAES) sought answers to two beef-grade-related questions: 1. Are USDA quality grades related to beef flavor, and, if so, how strong is the relationship? and 2. By what mechanism or through what means—physical and/or chemical—do the grades of individual components of the grade relate to differences in beef flavor?

Besides Smith, the research team included Dr. Z. L. Carpenter, formerly head of animal science and present director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service; Dr. J. W. Savell, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Meat and Muscle Biologist; and Dr. H. R. Cross, Professor in Meat Science at Texas A&M.

Earlier research in the 1970's by Smith, Carpenter and others had concluded that USDA quality grade, USDA marbling score, and intramuscular fat content had "low to moderate" relationships to sensory panel ratings for flavor. However, the most recent research of Smith and his group has clarified the relationship of USDA's quality grades and palatability of cooked beef.

In quality grade, the average flavor desirability ratings for loin and top round steaks from carcasses of each USDA quality grade showed that loin steaks and top round steaks from carcasses of higher USDA quality grade were significantly more desirable in flavor in 87.5% of comparisons with steaks from carcasses of lower USDA quality grade.

There were significant differences in flavor desirability of loin steaks between Prime and Choice, Choice and Good, and Good and Standard. These are the four USDA quality grades for which youthful carcasses, (those of A and B maturity), most often qualify, and as grade decreased, flavor desirability of loin steaks decreased significantly.

For top round steaks from carcasses of A and B maturity, Prime had significantly higher flavor desirability ratings than did Choice, but there was no difference in flavor desirability among round steaks from Choice, Good and Standard.

There are four additional USDA quality grades—Commercial, Utility, Cutter, and Canner—that are usually assigned to mature (C, D, and E maturity) carcasses. There were significant differences in flavor desirability of loin steaks between Commercial and Utility and between Utility and Canner, but not between Cutter and Canner.

For top round steaks, flavor desirability differed significantly between Commercial plus Utility vs. Cutter plus Canner, but not between Commercial and Utility or between Cutter and Canner.

In general, as grade increased flavor desirability increased, with intergrade and adjacent-grade differentials more consistent for loin steaks than for top round steaks.

Maturity was also found to affect quality. Assignment of a specific USDA quality grade to a beef carcass is made on the basis of the physiological age of the animal at the time of slaughter (which relates to USDA overall maturity group) and on the basis of intramuscular fatness of the animal (which relates to USDA marbling score).

If USDA quality grade is related—and it appears that it is—to flavor desirability of loin steaks and top round steaks, then it follows that either or both maturity and marbling would be related to desirability of flavor in cooked beef.

Beef carcasses of A maturity produced loin steaks that were significantly more desirable in flavor quality declined as maturity increased.

Beef carcasses of A maturity produced top round steaks that were significantly more desirable in flavor than those from carcasses of C or E, but not B, maturity. Top round steaks from carcasses of E maturity were significantly less desirable in flavor than were those from carcasses of A, B or C maturity.

Research showed that more youthful (A or B maturity) beef is more desirable in flavor than mature (C or E maturity) beef and that, generally, as maturity increases, flavor desirability decreases.

Marbling, a measure of fat content between lean fibers, was more significant in loin steaks than in round. For loin steaks, both maturity and marbling were related to differences in flavor desirability. For top round steaks, differences in flavor desirability were more closely related to differences in carcass maturity than they were to differences among carcasses in marbling score.

Intramuscular fat (marbling) is within the muscle and determined by chemical fat content assay. It was found that in general, loin steaks—but not top round steaks—can be stratified into meaningful flavor desirability groupings by use of intramuscular fat percentage levels.

Subcutaneous fat is found between the muscle and the skin and has been thought by many to have no effect on palatability of meat. However, research shows that for loin steaks, those with fat thicknesses of 0.30 inches or more produced steaks with significantly higher flavor desirability ratings than those with fat thicknesses of 0.24 inches or less.

Diet also affects flavor. It was found that any period of grain feeding (30 days or more) significantly improves flavor desirability of loin steaks and that optimal flavor desirability appears to be coincident with about 100 to 130 days of grain feeding.

In summary, Smith says that it now seems quite likely that present USDA quality grade is related to flavor of beef because grade indirectly assesses the extent to which flavor and/or aroma compounds are likely to be present in high vs low concentrations in the meat.

The Pony Express, which has lived in legend for more than a century, lived in fact for less than two years.

Program to assist future teachers

While government officials in Texas and across the country talk about problems in the educational system, Texas A&M University has taken action in one critical area.

Starting this fall the College of Education will offer scholar loans to high-quality undergraduates who commit to teach math or science at the secondary level after they graduate.

The program is vital because almost 50 percent of teachers who teach math in Texas are not certified to teach that subject and the situation with science teachers is not much better, said Associate Dean Bryan Cole, who worked with the college's Development Council in developing the program.

Six of the scholar loans at $2,000 each will be awarded this fall. To be eligible students must meet a number of qualifications including a combined SAT score of at least 1000 and a high school average of at least a B for incoming freshmen. Transfer students must have a B average on all college work to be eligible.

Changes in brucellosis program show interest

Basic changes in the Texas brucellosis program during the past three years are resulting in increased producer participation, according to statistics from the Texas Animal Health Commission.

"The Texas brucellosis program now in effect is vastly changed from what it was just three years ago. It is geared now to helping the producer with his problem, not aggravating it," Dr. John W. Holcombe, executive director, Texas Animal Health Commission, said.

"Before revisions went in effect in 1980, the Texas brucellosis program was primarily one of regular testing without an emphasis on vaccination," Dr. Holcombe explained.

Under the revised program, a producer has the opportunity to develop a herd plan that incorporates the use of adult vaccination and testing to fit his normal working schedule. This results in an immune herd once the disease is eliminated. About producer acceptance, Dr. Holcombe noted:

1. Vaccination of heifer calves has almost doubled since 1980; 2. Certified free herd numbers have skyrocketed from a total of 62 in 1980 to more than 800 this year to date.

A comparison of the old regulations (those prior to Feb. 29, 1980) to the present show: the card test was the official test for brucellosis; now, the card test is a presumptive test only. The TAHC lab routinely runs additional tests to determine actual infection. The high dosage of Strain 19 vaccine was used which caused problems with vaccine induced test reactions. Reduced dosage of Strain 19 virtually eliminates this.

Herd plans were inflexible for individuals whose cattle were infected; testing of such herds was to be conducted every 30 days. Now, testing is done to correspond with the herd owner's scheduled gatherings of cattle. An epidemiologist is also involved in establishing individual herd plans. Herd owners also now have the right to protest procedures; under the old plan this was not allowed. The new program also provides for incorporation of private veterinarians, and improvements in surveillance methods to detect brucellosis.

Journalism students trained

Firing up to produce a newspaper or a yearbook is as important as firing up to win a football game, and OHS journalism students are doing just that.

In an all-day seminar and workshop at Angelo State University last Thursday, September 22, twenty students from Ozona's journalism department learned about the techniques, materials, and attitudes required in publications.

DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

Bingo winner of the El Chato dinner for two Tuesday was Inez Bigg. She was able to immediately cash in because following the bingo game, cars were loaded and off we went for a field trip. Others joined Inez for this delicious meal.

Volunteers included Elodia Zapata, Ann Mayo, Dorothy Doll and Marie Pierson.

Tuesday afternoon all residents were treated to a movie shown by Ann Mayo and furnished by our local school library. This movie about animals proved to be quite enjoyable.

Wednesday morning ceramics were led by Ruth Hester and Marie Pierson. Residents participated. Many of our residents have begun making their Christmas presents.

Marie Pierson donated banana bread cake for our Wednesday afternoon treat. For the first time this fall, the weather proved to be too cool to sit outside.

Thursday morning's volunteer "beauty operators" were Madye Jo Humphreys, Arlene Clayton, and Lola Rios.

Thursday afternoon Bible study was once again brought by our friends from the Faith Lutheran Church followed by Spanish Hour of Praise by the Catholic ladies.

Thursday night another treat enjoyed by all our residents came by way of music furnished by the Knox Band. Band members Jamie Knox, Don and J.D. Kilgore, Ollie Sudduth, and Larry Petron entertained while Moriana Perez, Tomasa Ramos, Maggie Crawford, Virginia Russell and Billie Whatley all took turns whirling about and others put in lots of foot tapping time. This group will be back the 20th of October. Mark your calendars and come join us at 6:30 on that night!

Friday morning's bingo game welcomed a new caller, Virginia Bishop. Other volunteers included Judy Adams, Cindy Mathis, Carolyn Patten, Sue Linthicum, Veronica Tabbett, Dorothy Doll and Anna Bell Patrick. Winner of the first place certificate from Western Drug Store was Jesus Hernandez. Nina Mayfield was runner-up.

Friday afternoon Sammy Patino and Marie Pierson furnished residents transportation for a field trip to Clayton's Village Drug.

Friday was Happy Birthday time for Pearl Morris. She was presented a cake by Polly Mayes and C. O. Spencer Welding Services. Bertha Miller received the same on Saturday for her birthday.

Church services Sunday were conducted by the Church of Christ membership.

Dominoes were enjoyed by residents Monday morning.

Monday afternoon residents enjoyed visiting about their favorite fall memories during a session of Down Memory Lane.

Thanks goes to Martha Landin for bringing some much needed toilet articles. If anyone has any men's aftershave we could really use some.

Keep those visits coming!

Brownie Troop 53 meets

Brownie Troop 53 had their weekly meeting Sept. 20 at the home of their leader, Melisa Lowman.

Thirteen girls enjoyed refreshments provided by Mindy Coates. The activity for the meeting involved making felt Owls for the girls to bring their dues in each week.

The Troop elected officers for the remainder of Sept. and Oct. They include Sunny Lowman, president; Stefny Sutton, vice-president; Heather Weant, treasurer; Kasey Russell, hostess; Staci Sessom, refreshment chairman; Kellye Robinson, clean-up chairman.

The San Angelo Genealogical and Historical Society will meet Tuesday Oct. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the Western Hills Church of Christ, 1902 N. Childress.

Mr. James A. "Red" Scott will speak on Masonic Records.

The society meets the first Tuesday of each month, September through May. The public is invited.

More women than ever are blue collar workers

Nearly 18 percent of the blue-collar work force is composed of women, and if predictions by the Bureau of Labor Statistics are correct, this percentage should increase through 1990.

"We saw it coming," said Mike Freedland, president of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools (NATTS). "Women of all ages are increasingly finding jobs in trade and technical fields traditionally dominated by men."

NATTS, an organization of 600 accredited trade and technical schools, has seen its enrollments climb steadily since the mid-'60s, and estimates the number of female students in its member schools rose 17 percent between 1976 and 1980. Today, nearly 52 percent of all students enrolled in post-secondary schools with occupational programs are women.

In 1970, almost one-half million women were working in skilled crafts, up from 277,000 in 1960. This represents a rate of increase twice that for women in all occupations. By 1980, the number of women in skilled crafts jumped to 600,000.

"Since the 1960s, we've trained thousands of women who were disenfranchised with the traditional positions open to women," said Freedland. "They knew that we could help them get what they wanted: Good pay; interesting work; and the possibility of setting their own hours."

Curly top virus destroys West Texas tomato crop

West Texas gardeners are losing their most prized possessions, their tomato plants.

According to Dr. Harold Kaufman, Extension Plant Pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Fort Stockton, most of the destruction is due to curly top virus carried by the beet leafhopper. This virus is known to attack tomatoes, sugarbeets, dry, lima and snap beans, cucumbers and peppers. Destructiveness to these crops may range from invisible effects to total destruction. Young tomato plants may suddenly turn yellow and die. First symptoms on older plants are branches that bend downward and cupping and twisting of leaves. The entire plant may have a pale green to yellow appearance. Leaves may thicken and become leathery. Fruits will ripen prematurely and have a bitter taste.

Transmission of the virus is not by soil, seed, or mechanical means. The only known vector is the beet leafhopper which becomes infected by feeding on infected native range plants or weeds near the garden.

Dr. Kaufman says losses can be reduced in many instances by planting the resistant varieties Roza, Rowpac and Salamaster, controlling weeds in and near the garden and shading surviving plants to discourage leafhopper feeding.

Now against law to camp in roadside parks

Signs informing travelers and tourists that it is now against the law to camp in state-maintained roadside parks and rest areas soon will be appearing at these locations.

House Bill 675, spawned as a result of flagrant abuse of rest areas and parks over the past few years, has made it illegal to erect tents or other structures without a permit, or to remain in roadside parks, rest areas, comfort stations or picnic areas for more than 24 hours. Fines ranging up to $200 can be assessed violators. Permits will be granted only in the instance of rest area "travelers' breaks" sponsored by approved civic or community service organizations.

State Departments of Highways and Public Transportation maintenance forces have begun erecting signs apprising the public of the new law which went into effect Aug. 29. Signs are expected to be in place by the last of September.

Mark Goode, engineer-director for the department, said the use of roadside parks "is intended to provide a welcome respite from the rigors of driving." He said the facilities are "not designed for long term use by motorists, but primarily are designed as a safety measure and as a convenience to the traveling public."

The new signs will enable law enforcement personnel to warn travelers that the new law prohibits camping and that penalties will be enforced. Prior to 1983, Texas law made no provision for prohibition of unauthorized use of these roadside facilities. Several instances of abuse have been cited as precedents for getting the legislation in force.
