I don't know what we are going to do for entertainment, now that the Democrats are through tearing each other apart. There is serious doubt on my part whether any Texan, Democrat or not, will be able to vote in their column come November. Television has made a farce of political campaigns.

The incredible race for the U.S. Senate between Kent Hance and Lloyd Doggett, points up the fact that West Texans have no voice in the Washington apparatus. The "one man, one vote" rule has concentrated all the muscle in the cities and urban areas. It is just amazing Hance could carry 200 of the 254 counties in Texas and get beat by 400-odd votes. A recount is underway, but there is little doubt Doggett will face Phil Gramm in the November election. I think they should split Texas right down the middle, just this side of San Antonio, and let each side have a U.S. Senator. The rural areas would have as much say as the urban areas, and Heaven knows the two are as different as daylight and dark. Their needs vary in the same manner.

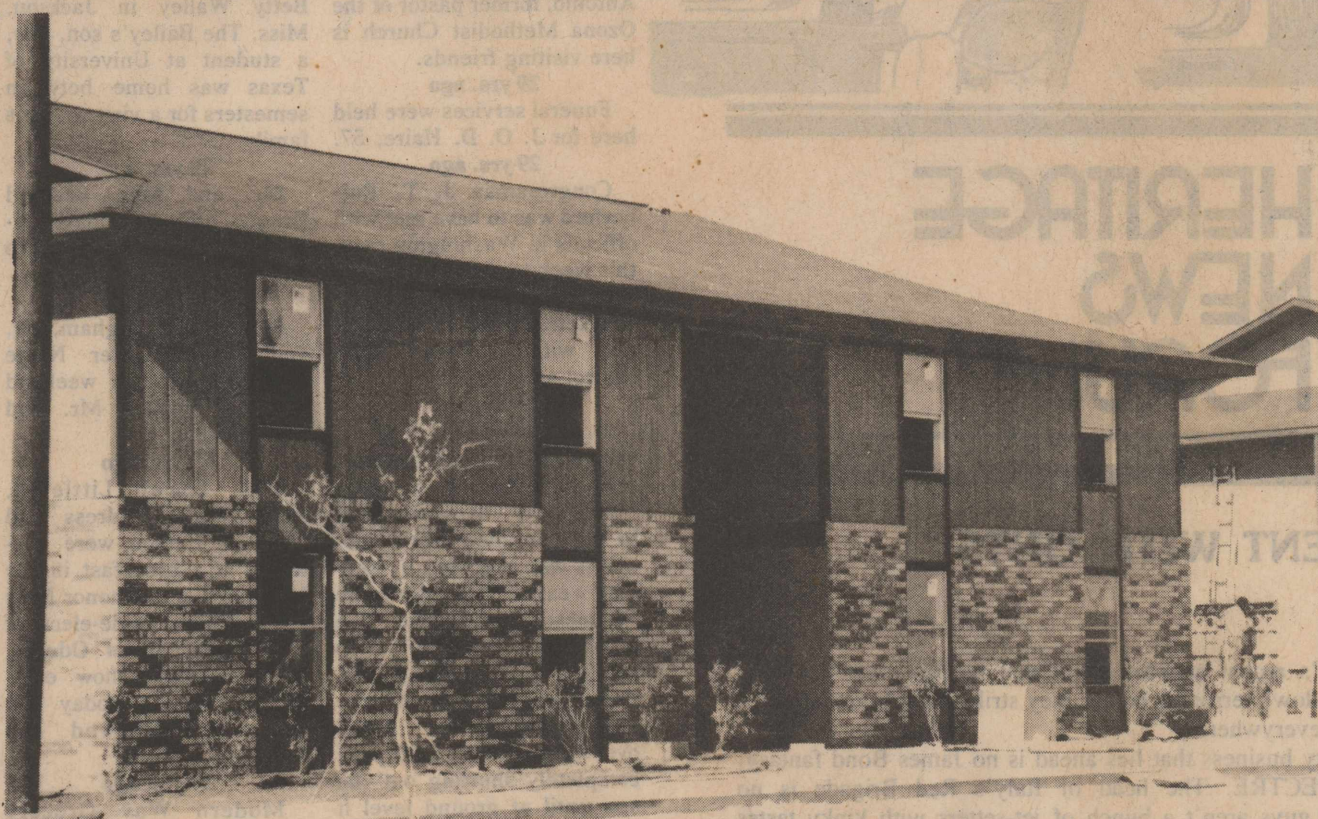

The race for the Democratic nominee for president has been the best situation comedy around for those who view the tube. Walter Mondale, the front-runner, has all the special interest groups behind him and he will probably be his party's nominee in November. People tend to forget he was vice-president in the most inept administration this country has probably ever known, and I would say he has all the trappings of a loser. Gary Hart, who would probably be his party's best bet, is not backed by the Democratic hierarchy. However, the general public is probably unaware his "new ideas" are just a new word for old liberalism. And then, there is Jesse Jackson, who went to Mexico for the good of his campaign and is considering a trip to Cuba. Whatever for, no one seems to know. His campaign speeches of "Hell fire and damnation" are enough to frighten even the most liberal network news broadcaster.

As yes, politics is a funny business. Anything so deadly serious which comes off in such a frivolous manner just has to be funny.

More on politics, here comes the governor's special session and scandalous tax bill to finance it. This is supposed to update education in Texas. What it really is, is the usual Democratic tactic of throwing money at a problem and hoping it will go away, along with Gov. White's promise to raise teachers' salaries to reimburse them for their support in the election. I don't know what happened to those who voted for Gov. White on his promise of lowering electric bills. Guess they were not organized enough to form a lobby.

What is really wrong with education in Texas is busing, families who send their kids to school for baby-sitting purposes, and the fact the federal government has ordered the education of illegal aliens in Texas public schools plus the lax discipline of the past few years. Public education in Texas has been in trouble for a long time, at least a generation. Now those who can't master

4-H fashion show fields twenty-eight entries

Twenty-eight 4-Hers competed Friday evening in the 4-H Fashion Show and judging preliminaries. Contestants were judged on record-books, judge's interview-appearance and construction.

In the sportswear category for eight-year-olds, Amy Easterwood was high point and Bonnie Martin received a blue award. Jeanie Cooper and Monica Mundell only participated in construction.

In non-tailored daywear for eight-year-olds, Leesa Haire was high point and blue awards went to Jennifer Jones, Heather Kemp, Connie King, Martha Mayfield, and Whitney Vannoy.

In the active sportswear for nine-year-olds, Sarah Pullen was named high point and blue awards were distributed to Carri Chandler, Courtney Childress, Marandy Keith, Robin Myers, and Ami Sewell.

High point active sportswear for ten year olds went to Ami Turner and Sabrina Easterwood received a blue award. High point in non-tailored daywear for ten year olds was Valerie Flores. Red awards were presented to Janet King, Michelle McMurray, and Rachel Petron.

Eleven year old categories were entered as follows:

Voter turnout light

A very small percentage of Crockett County voters turned out for the second Democratic Primary Saturday. The total vote count was not available, but those who did cast ballots picked Kent Hance overwhelmingly over Lloyd Doggett for the U.S. Senate nominee.

Hance polled 241 votes to 33 for Doggett. Apparently all of West Texas and rural East Texas went for Hance. The urban areas pulled Doggett ahead and the final tally showed him to be the winner by 509 votes. Hance has asked for a recount after carrying 200 of the state's 254 counties.

Doggett will face Republican Phil Gramm in the general election November. The winner will take the seat of retiring Republican Senator John Tower.

Tami Reagor, non-tailored daywear, Emilie Cervantez, active sportswear, and Tonya Ramos, evening/specialty. Each received high point awards.

Twelve, thirteen, and senior age categories included Summer Shacklette, non-tailored daywear, 12 year olds; Larisa Schoenhals, active sportswear, 13-year-olds, and Kim Baker, senior tailored. Each received high point awards.

District representatives were selected from Junior I (9-11), Junior II (12-13), and Senior (14 plus) age categories.

Little rain for Ozona from thunderstorm

Ozona received .36 of an inch of rainfall Sunday and Monday morning from some fierce thunderstorms which roamed the countryside and seemed to be "all bark and no bite," as far as the city was concerned. Varying amounts were reported with most private gauges reporting at least .50 of an inch, but the official gauge at the Water District office recorded .36.

Very little rain fell in May, 1.06 inches, but the heat set a record with several days of above 100-degree temperatures. The 106-degrees recorded here May 22, must have set an all-time record.

The weekend rain came Sunday after an unusually warm, muggy day. Winds began gusting around noon and a shower fell shortly thereafter. Intermittent showers fell during the afternoon, but most of the rainfall came with a thunderstorm early Monday morning.

The rains were spotty, with up to 2 inches reported in the extreme western part of the county, where some pea-sized hail was reported. Several ranches in all parts of the county reported up to an inch and one-half of rain for the period, while others reported little or none.

At any rate, while the drought seems to be broken in the Midland-Odessa area, it is still in full bloom in this part of West Texas. Skies were overcast shortly after noon Tuesday and the mercury was on the way up with 82 degrees at 1:15.

New coach takes up Ozona duties

Ozona's new head football coach, Jim Green, is very impressed with his new environment. Green is commuting daily from Iraan. He said he knew Ozona was a friendly town, but didn't expect the outstanding welcome he has received. Jim, his wife, Zoe, and son, J.B., will be moving to Ozona on June 24. This date was selected so Zoe could give her current employer a month's notice. She is a nurse in a doctor's clinic at this time.

Zoe will join Green, other coaches and wives at an open house at the Field House Monday, June 11. The open house has been scheduled from 7-8:30 p.m. Green hopes many parents and boosters will find time to come by so he and Zoe will have an opportunity to meet them. Several of the coaches and their wives will attend the session.

COACH GREEN

Green had known most of the coaches before reporting to Ozona. He had high admiration for them before, but said that he feels even more impressed since he's had the chance to visit with them individually.

Part of the screening process Green is using to determine his coaching assignments for his staff is a questionnaire form. This form asks the coaches to express their opinions of the best coaches for the many

"You could select names from a hat and come up with a heck of a staff with people of this calibre," Green said.

"Enthusiasm, optimism, experience and intelligence abound in this group of gentlemen."

Green feels Rip Sewell and the administrators of O.H.S. have put together a group that he is proud to be a part of. Green repeated his desire to meet more members of the community at the open house Monday evening.

AUSTIN — Legislators are scheduled to convene in Austin this week to consider raising taxes to pay for increased teacher salaries and highway construction.

Governor Mark White called the special session, as he promised he would a year ago, to also consider passage of a public education reform package put together by Texas serving on his select committee.

Many legislators have expressed a reluctance to raise taxes right now, particularly the sales tax which White wants increased by a penny. Preliminary head-counting had a few folks wondering if White could muster the necessary votes to pass his program.

But the uniqueness of a Texas special session is this: the governor calls lawmakers back to Austin and only he sets the specific agenda of topics that they can consider. He can reward legislators by adding their pet issues to the agenda.

Many legislators do not like special sessions, one reason being they generally lose money if the session drags on. The meager compensation they receive in return for leaving their businesses and jobs back home is not a personal incentive to some.

And although special sessions are allowed up to 30 days, generally they are much shorter because of the concentrated agenda, and an underlying attitude to get things over and go home.

Governors feel they have the votes, or are close to mustering the votes, before they issue the call.

Limited Reform

And governors have the power to hold lawmakers' feet to the fire by calling several sessions in a row. Under these conditions, few legislators are strong enough to deny a governor what he wants, although they can limit what he gets.

The House leadership weeks ago signaled White they will not write a tax bill to pay for all the education reforms he wants.

Their strategy is, as indicated, to hold up passage of a tax bill until the education reform package bill is signed by the governor. This way, they can closer estimate how much tax to raise, and they can avoid giving any one individual or special interest a blank check to spend.

Other players in the political drama include Dallas multi-millionaire H. Ross Perot, who headed the select committee which drafted the reforms, and Texas Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Annual Sessions

Bullock has been addressing the special session issues at various public speaking engagements around the state.

He warns that White's $4.8 billion tax hike plan is the largest increase not only in Texas history, but in any other state.

He also warns that if White succeeds in getting lawmakers' to raise the sales tax, the Texas tax would be the highest in the country, and Texas "would lose its competitive edge."

Among other things, Bullock advocates raising legislators' salaries and annual sessions to write one-year budgets.

"After 25 years in state government, I believe we could do a better job of managing our money with annual sessions, at least so we could write one-year budgets," he said.

Bullock told Rotarians in El Paso that he thought the Legislature would limit the tax increase to not more than $2 billion, less than half of what White wants.

Low-Level Waste

One issue lawmakers will face in regular session in January is creation of a low-level nuclear waste dump to handle waste generated in hospitals, laboratories, etc.

But a poll released last week indicates most Texans are opposed to such a dump, at least in their home county.

Across the state, 71 percent opposed putting the low-level burial site in their county. In West Texas, opposition ran higher at 80 percent based on a fear of contamination of the environment.

Currently, low-level waste is buried at only three sites in the nation, none in Texas.

A PRESIDENT WITH GUTS

By Edwin Feulner

President Reagan's recent announcement that he has given the CIA a green light to track down terrorists before they strike must have delighted James Bond fanciers everywhere.

But the grim, dirty business that lies ahead is no James Bond fantasy. The PLO is no SPECTRE. The head of Italy's Red Brigade is no Goldfinger. The bad guys aren't a bunch of jet-setters with kinky tastes and a lust for power. No caviar. No beautiful Alpine villages. No yachts. No fast cars. No fast dames in skimpy, slinky whatevers. Just cold-blooded killers who think they can change the world by blowing up busloads of innocent children, setting off explosives in crowded marketplaces, kidnapping, "kneecapping" (aiming rifle blasts at a victim's kneecaps), murdering.

Worse yet, while James Bond always has access to the enemy, because they spend so much time on the ski slopes or on exotic Caribbean islands, his real-life U.S. counterparts won't be so lucky.

No longer are terrorists the freelancers they once were. Today, they enjoy the encouragement and active support of a number of radical states: Libya, North Korea, Iran, Syria, Bulgaria, Cuba.

It won't be easy for the CIA, severely weakened during the 1960s and 1970s by wimp politicians and reform-minded do-gooders, to penetrate terrorist organizations that enjoy the protection of radical police states.

The British found this out when one of Libyan madman Muammar Qaddafi's henchmen unleashed a burst of machine-gun fire from the sanctuary of that country's embassy in London, killing a British policewoman. The United States found that out when a Moslem kamikaze mission leveled the U.S. military barracks in Beirut. And the Burmese and South Koreans found that out when a terrorist bomb intended for Republic of Korea President Chun Doo Hwan killed seventeen members of the president's party during a visit to Rangoon, Burma.

While Arab and Moslem fanatics have grabbed most of the headlines in recent years, many of their atrocities can be traced to North Korea, which has become one of the world's major supporters of anti-West terrorism.

According to Guy M. Hicks, a former Defense Intelligence Agency analyst, now at The Heritage Foundation's Asian Studies Center, the Communist North has become one of the major exporters of terrorism in the world. In addition to providing arms to the PLO, Iranians, Libyans, and Communist revolutionaries in Latin America and Africa, the North Koreans also are known to operate terrorist training camps, both in their own country and elsewhere. A sort of show-and-tell of indiscriminate killing.

With four major events on the horizon that would provide terrorists inviting targets — the Democrat and Republican party conventions in San Francisco and Dallas; the Los Angeles Olympic Games; and the New Orleans World's Fair — U.S. authorities have reason to be concerned.

President Reagan's new National Security Directive 138 instructs 26 different federal agencies, including the FBI, CIA, and Coast Guard, to draft proposals for countering terrorism in the United States. While his strike-first attitude may upset some, I'm delighted we have a president with guts.

been separated for two years. She's been living in the house I owned before marriage. Now she says she has built up some of the equity and part of the house is hers. She's wrong, isn't she?

A: If you owned the house before marriage, it remains your separate property and will not be divided on divorce.

However, if over the years of your marriage, either of you has made mortgage payments out of community funds, or if community money was used to improve the home, your wife has a claim for reimbursement. It is in the Court's discretion whether to award this, but the Judge could decide that as much as half the community dollars put into the house will be returned to your wife.

Q: I live in a Houston subdivision that is incorporated. Recently, I was told that I was violating some deed restrictions, particularly that I could not keep my boat on my driveway. A number of other people out here violate this very restriction, but they have not been contacted. Do I need to get a lawyer?

A: The right to enforce a restrictive covenant may be waived by subdivision property owners. To show waiver, however, you must show that other violations exist which would lead the "average person" reasonably to conclude that the restriction has been abandoned and its enforcement waived. Among the factors to be considered are the number, nature, and severity of existing violations, any prior acts of enforcement of the restriction, and whether it is still possible to realize the benefits intended by the covenant. A party who successfully enforces a restrictive covenant against a non-conforming user (such as yourself) is entitled to attorney's fees and court costs.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

GARDEN OF THE MONTH

As selected by THE OZONA GARDEN CLUB

The Peery Holmsley home 201 Cedar Dr.

Now is the ideal time to enjoy our leisure time in the early morning and late evening hours, either doing garden chores, entertaining or maybe just rocking and relaxing.

Outdoor living becomes more popular each year it seems, all the more reason for planning patios, terraces and enclosed areas near the house.

If there are no trees to provide shade, canopies over the patio and other garden areas will reduce heat and glare. A lattice-work shelter covered with vines will add beauty and protection from the heat. Another protection from the heat is a sturdy frame work of metal pipes topped with heavy mesh to support an overhead vine. Vines used in this area are ivy, wisteria, silver lace, morning glory, trumpet, jack bean, clematis and grape.

If you are having difficulty in growing borders, try the reliable sedums. They are the tough, hardy usually creeping perennials sometimes called stone crop or live-forever. Sedums grow quite well here in Ozona soil in shade or partial shade. They take care of themselves are excellent for slopes and banks on rock and wall gardens or in crevices among steps. Many kinds are of a crawling nature, but they are not difficult to control. Also, they have shallow root systems that are not serious competitors to deepest rooted perennials nearby, and are easily pulled up. Sedum (slab-crumbium) and Sedum (spurius) are both recommended for the fronts or borders for they can be clipped. Never plant sedum (sarcocolla) among perennials because it becomes very difficult to eradicate.

If you haven't planted your caladiums be sure they will not be in a place where there is too much sun. Especially the white and pink types that have thin foliage. They grow well in locations where most flowering annuals could not survive.

Keep your cannas looking good by removing the old flowing stalk just above the first set of leaves. This will keep them blooming throughout the summer.

THE RING OF TRUTH

How much we depend on symbols to express our thoughts, our feelings, our convictions!

This ring says "We're engaged." It speaks of love and promises given. It prophesies marriage and vows to be taken. It proclaims to the world that two lives shall be forever intertwined.

But can anyone be sure that such a symbol speaks truth? We can express with this ring only what is real and honest in our hearts. If our hearts lie or deceive, the symbol becomes part of the fraud.

If this ring then is to speak truth, he who gives it and she who wears it must have learned within themselves to separate truth from falsehood in thought, in feeling, in conviction.

The Church has a great deal to do with the sacredness of love and marriage. It can fulfill its duty best if given the opportunity to mold the character of our sons and daughters long before their wedding-day.

'Charge It' tops American vocabulary

Two of the most popular words in the American vocabulary are "Charge It." About two-thirds of American families now use credit for day-to-day expenses, and even more buy furniture, automobiles or appliances on installment contracts, says a family finance expert with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

According to home economist Nancy Granovsky, buying on credit is so common that some consumers don't realize there are both good and poor reasons to do it. Certain circumstances make borrowing financially sound, she says. Some of the best reasons to use credit include:

Anticipated price increases. Even though inflation has slowed down, some cost increases are inevitable and can justify the interest expense that comes with borrowing.

Major events in life, such as beginning a new job, establishing a household or family, take a lot of money which it can make sense to borrow.

A genuine emergency, if you have not accumulated a sufficient emergency cash fund.

Making essential, big-ticket purchases that you could not pay for with cash on hand. Cars, furniture, if you have not accumulated a sufficient fund.

The Gloriosa daisy is a Making essential, big-ticket purchases that you could not pay for with cash on hand. Cars, furniture, major appliances and a home are traditionally purchased on credit.

Taking advantage of attractive seasonal sales or specials on which you can save money, assuming you want or need the items. Borrowing for educational purposes.

Credit can be a valuable resource that helps families reach goals. But overuse of credit can also result in financial disaster, says Granovsky.

An early warning sign of problem credit use is borrowing for poor reasons, she adds.

For example, borrowing up to the limit of your capacity to repay simply because you want something is not a good idea, she says, since even a minor miscalculation can force you to default.

Living beyond your income and using credit for day-to-day living expenses is also a poor reason to borrow because any unexpected expenses can result in financial disaster.

It's also unwise to use credit just because you anticipate a pay raise. If the money doesn't materialize, it can create a financial hardship, warns the home economist.

Buying because the terms seem easy is a form of self-deception that can lead to financial problems. This is especially true if you are buying items impulsively without considering their quality and price.

Buying on credit to boost morale is at best a temporary solution, since you may find yourself even more depressed when the bills arrive.

If you buy on credit to raise your standard of living or status, without raising your income, you can also wind up with an unreasonable debt load.

"The overuse of credit can creep up on anyone," says Granovsky. "All it takes is a bit of financial carelessness, a false sense of security and a few concessions to the temptations of easy payments."

An unexpected cut in income or an unforeseen expense might bring the problem to a crisis. But more often the problem develops slowly and gives off many warning signals, she notes.

That's why examining your reasons for buying on credit can help avoid a serious financial trap.

Good eating habits important to youngsters

A child is never too young to start learning good eating habits, but that doesn't mean parents should start feeding meat to their youngsters before the child is eight months old.

"By eight to 10 months of age, the baby is used to eating solid foods and has a digestive system ready to absorb the protein in meats," says Marilyn Haggard, Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

Although meat is a good source of protein, most babies get plenty of protein from milk. The most important contribution meat can make to a baby's diet is iron because iron deficiency continues to be a health problem for many youngsters, says Haggard. Beef also provides B-complex vitamins.

"The meat chosen for a baby should be tender and juicy with no gristle, fat or bone. A blender is especially handy for producing a suitable consistency," she says. "Purchasing strained meats can be much more expensive than fixing your own."

When babies become toddlers, they will like meat in a form they can handle, such as cold meatballs, small tender beef chunks or thin slices of frankfurters.

Parents shouldn't worry needlessly about how much their toddlers eat. Their appetites, matched to smaller needs, often don't satisfy the parent's beliefs about how much a child should eat. "Children rarely go hungry deliberately," Haggard says. "They usually eat as much as they need."

During the first year of life, the body triples in size, but toddlers have a slower, steadier growth rate. They don't need to eat as much as parents and grandparents often expect. "Don't push," Haggard says. "Remember that toddlers are more likely to eat frequently, rather than to eat a lot at one time."

"If your child is ever-curious, bright-eyed, with solid-feeling flesh and more energy than you know what to do with, he or she is probably eating enough," says the nutritionist.

Serving sizes need to be small for younger children. Haggard offers these guidelines when serving meat: for ages 1-3, 1 ounce boneless lean cooked meat; for ages 3-6, 1-1/2 ounces boneless lean cooked meat; for ages 7 and up, 2 to 3 ounces boneless lean cooked meat.

Irradiated foods may still contain insects

The "bugs" may have been worked out of the process to protect food using low levels of radiation, but bugs still remain in the food, says a Texas A&M University food scientist.

In reaction to recent controversy over the use of irradiation instead of pesticides like ethylene dibromide (EDB) to protect consumers from food-destroying insects, Dr. E. E. Burns pointed out the drawbacks for killing insects with irradiation is that no one has developed a process for removing the bugs.

"Initial applications for irradiation might be killing insects in infested cereals and flour, or in fresh and dried fruits, instead of using chemical fumigation, but you still have a problem with the dead insects," said Burns. "Anybody who figures that out will never have to work again."

Production open in Crockett County fields

Lower Pennsylvanian gas production was opened in the Escondido field of Crockett County with completion of Conoco Inc., Midland, No. 2 C.T. Harris "12", one location southwest of the Ellenburger oil area and one mile southeast of the Pennsylvanian detrital area of the Escondido, Northwest field and 20 miles south of Big Lake, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 2,700,000 cubic feet of gas daily, with gas-liquid ratio of 400,000-1. Gravity of the condensate is 39 degrees.

Production was through perforations at 8,354-78 feet, which had been acidized with 1,500 gallons.

The following tops were picked on ground elevation of 2,560 feet; Strawn, 7,817 feet; Pennsylvanian, 8,352 feet; Fusselman, 8,664 feet the basics are the teachers themselves. This is through no fault of their own. When colleges lowered their standards in order that more of the illiterate could get into their programs, it was the downfall of the education system. When high school graduates who could neither read nor write were allowed diplomas, it spelled doom for the education system.

I don't know if more pay will attract better teachers. I don't know if teachers can be assessed as to their skills by those who do not have these skills themselves. I do know, however, as long as teachers have a three-month summer vacation, the rest of the working public, who are lucky to get two weeks a year vacation, will resent a higher teacher pay scale, especially if it does not produce better students. And, of course, it will not.

PROPER INSULATION... Keeps in the Cool Air You've Paid For Insulation comes in rolls, loose-fill or batts. Insulation is labeled with a R value showing its ability to resist heat. The better its insulating value, the higher the number. R values up to R 30 in the ceiling and R 18 in the walls are recommended for this area.

Brush management needed; mesquites rob water supply

Brush is robbing the State of Texas of more than 10 million acre feet of water annually, which is more than one-half of the current annual use of ground water and surface water of 17.8 million acre feet. The State of Texas covers a land area of approximately 168 million acres of which almost 100 million acres is occupied by brush. The Texas brush problem is not going away and it is not getting better - it is getting worse.

Mesquite, which is the worst brush variety in the West Texas Chamber of Commerce service area, occupies about 56 million acres in 206 counties in Texas. Mesquite is a very inefficient water user as compared to the official state grass, side-oats grama. From one acre foot of water (325,851 gallons) mesquite will produce 1,600 pounds of dry matter as compared to 4,500 pounds of dry matter produced from the same quantity of water by sideoats grama.

The value of brush management to increase livestock and foliage production has been documented by major universities and the Soil Conservation Service. Their research indicates that the livestock carrying capacity has increased from one animal unit per forty acres to as much as one animal unit per six acres after brush control treatment on extremely heavy brush infested rangeland. Normal increases are one-half to three animal units on the same acreage after a brush control program.

Mesquites are phreatophytes; that is, they are plants that draw water like a well. They put their roots down to the top of the water table in areas where the water table is near the surface and drink water during low precipitation or their deep roots extract the water from the soil before it has time to reach the water table in deeper aquifers. In areas where dense covers of mesquite are present, very little grass can survive. Consequently, there is not any ground cover to absorb runoff and reduce surface evaporation. Also, the bare ground increases the potential of flood damage and excessive soil erosion which deteriorates the land and silts downstream reservoirs, thereby costing tax dollars for clean up. The annual depositing of sediment in our reservoirs, streams, rivers and channels is costing billions of dollars annually. Sediment in our state's water supplies is our number one pollutant.

The Water Committee of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is pursuing a goal of implementing a state-wide brush control program. Brush reduces the ranchers' livestock carrying capacity, which reduces the economic livelihood of our communities, our area and our state. Brush also reduces our wildlife potential, reduces our water supplies, deteriorates the quality of our surface water and costs billions in tax dollars.

June and July are optimum months for effective brush control. For additional information, contact WTCC Water Committee, P. O. Box 1561, Abilene, Texas, 79604.

Desert plants may provide fuel source

Vast tracts of West Texas desert could be used one day to raise millions of tons of saltbush as a source of fuel, says a Texas A&M University plant scientist.

After screening more than 2,000 Texas plants for biomass energy potential, Dr. Ron Newton and plant researchers at Texas A&M and Texas Tech University have found that saltbush holds the greatest promise for fuel production among plants that could be grown in vast quantities. The plant thrives on little rainfall and high salt content found in West Texas soil, he said.

"Turning plants into fuel is already being done, but we'll see it being done on a much larger scale in the future," said Newton.

The cost of producing fuel from biomass is much greater than the cost of producing fuel from petroleum, said Newton, but as petroleum prices increase and genetic technology advances, plants will become a practical source of fuel.

Researchers at Texas Tech who are also involved in the project funded by the Exxon Corp. and the Department of Energy, are genetically engineering saltbush plants that would be even more drought-tolerant and could withstand high salt levels.

Crockett County Care Center News

DIRECTOR OF ACTIVITIES & SOCIAL CARE

Bingo continues to be a big event on Tuesday and Friday mornings. We could really use some more "eyes" to help some of our residents play, though. How about it, teachers and students, while school is recessed, wouldn't you like to come and help? Tuesday's winner of the El Chato dinner for two was Pearl Morris. Friday's overall winner was Hilda Dysart. She won a gift certificate from The Teacher Store. Second place winner of some of Anna Bell's Avon was Maggie Crawford. Billie Whately won the Baker Jewelry certificate. Twenty residents played each day. Volunteers included Patrick, Mattie Cooper, Elodia Zapata, Amaldia Lumberas, Lola Rios, Alice Ross, and Maude Pettit.

Tuesday afternoon eleven residents went on a field trip to Clayton's Village Drug. Residents enjoying the trip included Paul Cavin, Tomasa Ramos, Hilda Dysart, Nina Mayfield, Nila Turnell, Maude Pettit, Ola Mills, Inez Biggs, Billie Whately, Minnie Karr and Johnny Henderson. Volunteers taking cars included Ruth Dorris and Jo Davidson. Thank you, Clayton's!

Thanks goes to Sue Arledge, too, for sending a year's subscription of "Texas Highways" in memory of Mrs. Henry Cash, the mother of the Baptist preacher at Comstock.

Ceramic class was led on Wednesday by Ruth Hester. Residents joining in included Tomasa Ramos, Hilda Dysart, Nina Mayfield, Maude Pettit, Ola Mills, Billie Whately and Moriana Perez.

Wednesday afternoon Bernice Jones and Lynette Davidson furnished our Sunshine Hour refreshments. A good time was had by a large group of residents out on the sun porch. We really appreciate the Lillian Henderson Sunday School Class for sponsoring this weekly event again this summer.

Thursday morning's beauty shop was manned by Lola Rios and Diane Martinez. This is another place we could really use some help each week.

Bible study was brought once again by Ted Turnley. This was followed by Spanish Hour of Praise led by Maria Vitela, Maria Torres, Paulita Leal, Carmen Vargas, Felipa Munoz, Mariana Hernandez, Hermana Onofre, and Sulema Martinez.

Friday afternoon eight residents attended our monthly resident's council meeting. All the plans for June were made including another picnic.

Sunday church services were furnished by the United Methodist Church. Joan Nicholas led the service. Bernice Jones played the piano. Five other church members assisted with the singing.

Dominoes were played this week by Johnny Henderson, Ola Mills, Maude Pettit, Paul Cavin and volunteer Tina Holmsley.

Thanks goes to Earline Jones for doing some recent volunteer work and for making a donation to our curtain fund.

Volunteer, you'll be proud you did!

Texas oil production decline may prompt tax increase

Texas oil production continues to decline. There were 71,637,000 barrels produced in March versus 73,321,000 in March of 1983. That averaged about 50,000 barrels a day less than the same month last year. The lower production figures also mean less tax revenue to local and state governments which might put more pressure on the legislature to increase severance taxes.

The top six producing counties in order are: Pecos, Ector, Gaines, Yoakum, Andrews and Hockley.

The Texas Railroad Commission is sponsoring two seminars in Midland this month. The first one is scheduled for June 13th at the Holiday Inn Country Villa. It will be on "Oil and Gas Forms and Procedure." The second seminar is the next day, June 14th at the same location. The subject is Gas Proration. For more information contact the Railroad Commission office in Midland or PBPA.

The Secretary of Energy, Donald Hodel, says the government's synthetic fuels program is "deader than a doornail," but can be resurrected if Congress eliminates more than eight billion dollars in potential aid to syn-fuels projects. Hodel added that "facilities producing synthetic fuels products at prices above sixty-five dollars a barrel probably shouldn't receive funds."

The Reagan Administration at one time, favored doing away with the Synthetic Fuels Corp. entirely.

PHONE NEWS TO THE STOCKMAN.

Studies indicate no cure for hangovers

The Romans ate owl eyes and raw eggs to try to cure hangovers. The Greeks wore parsley to ward them off. Haitian voodoo worshippers stuck pins in the cork of the bottle from which they drank.

Today, the search continues for a cure for the after-effects of drinking too much alcohol. There hasn't been much success, says the Texas Medical Association.

People nowadays try soups, flat beer, vitamins, fish, ice cream, water, biters, tabasco, oysters, chili peppers, snorts of oxygen, vigorous exercise, rolling naked in the snow, and sitting in a sauna bath. The only benefit of these is the distraction.

One reason for the lack of a universal cure is that each person has different tolerance levels and reactions to alcohol. Through the ages, most hangover cures have included a certain amount of alcohol itself in the formula. But no research has shown that alcohol will minimize or reduce a hangover.

Some over-the-counter drugs carry claims of relieving hangovers or preventing drunkenness. But a Food and Drug Administration panel recently found no product or single ingredient that is "unique in relieving the symptoms of a hangover" or that "can entirely prevent inebriation."

For hangover relievers, the FDA panel recommended using preparations with a combination of ingredients such as pain relievers for headaches, antacids for upset stomachs, and caffeine for fatigue or dullness.

The only ingredient the panel reviewed for claims of reducing or minimizing a hangover was activated charcoal. Activated charcoal is safe in recommended doses, the panel said, but clinical studies are needed to determine if it is effective in minimizing hangovers.

Fructose was the only ingredient the panel reviewed for claims of preventing or reducing drunkenness. Promoters claimed it could prevent inebriation if taken before drinking or sober one up if taken afterward.

The FDA panel noted that studies indicate fructose plays a part in lowering blood alcohol levels. However, the group said there was not enough data to prove fructose has much effect in minimizing inebriation, and additional research is needed.

MRS. MIKE HAYS
nee Miss Mary Wall

Miss Wall and Mr. Hays are united in marriage

Mary Wall became the bride of Mike Hays of Midland Friday, June 1, in Calvary Baptist Church. Bro. Jerry Cain officiated at the eleven a.m. double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the newlyweds are Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Wall and Mr. and Mrs. John Hays of Carlsbad, New Mexico.

The altar of the church was decorated with a white wrought iron arch trimmed in greenery and blue ribbons.

Family pews were marked with blue and white ribbons.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace over taffeta. The Queen Anne neckline was trimmed with re-embroidered lace and seed pearls. The lace puffed sleeves had satin ribbon and bow streamers. The skirt was edged with tiered lace. Her sweeping cathedral length veil was of sheer nylon illusion, trimmed in matching lace and seed pearls. The bride carried a colonial bouquet of blue silk lilies, forget me nots, and carnations tied with blue and white streamers.

Planiest was Glenda Capps. Peggy Skains was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sophie Borg and Bobbie Tebbetts. Kathy Smith of San Angelo was flower girl. Shala Haygood of Menard was train bearer.

George Wall, brother of the bride, was best man. Jackie Whitehead and Harvey Hill were groomsmen.

Following the ceremony a reception was given by the bride's family in the church fellowship hall.

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Ozona High School and will attend Aladin Beauty College in Midland. The bridegroom is a 1976 graduate of Ozona High School and Taylor Business School.

Student loans are available

Students and parents who have tried unsuccessfully to borrow money for college expenses may be surprised to learn that there is actually an abundance of long-term, low-interest money available for that purpose. The trick is to find a banker interested enough in making such loans to go through the paper work involved.

At least one West Texas banker says his bank is not only interested but is eager to process student loan applications. Jim Bullock, senior vice president and head of the consumer loan department of Texas American Bank of Amarillo says his department is "quite active in making student loans and would like to make even more."

Cooperating with the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Program, he said the bank will lend qualified undergraduate students up to $2,500 per year and up to $12,500 total over the course of his or her college years. Graduate students may qualify for as much as $5,000 per year or up to $15,000 total in student loans.

No interest is charged on the loans until six months after the borrower ceases to be enrolled as at least a half-time student. Then repayment at 8% interest may be made over five to ten years, depending on the amount borrowed.

The amount of the loan for which a student may qualify depends on the cost of attending college, other financial aid which may be received and the family's financial condition. Determination of the amount of the loan and approval of the application are made by the financial aid officer of the college.

Bullock said that once the school completes its part of the application, the bank routinely processes it and arranges for the disbursement of the cash. The proceeds from the loans can be used at any Texas school, including vocational schools, or by any Texas resident attending an out-of-state school, he said.

Although all Texas banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions may make such loans with the Texas Guaranteed Student Loan Corporation insuring them against loss, apparently few are agreeable to handling the paper work or to lending money over such a long period of time at low interest rates.

Bullock said it is the policy of Texas American Bank of Amarillo to participate in such programs as a service to the community. He pointed out that the bank is an "open-door" lender and that no deposit relationship is required.

Texas American Bank's student loan coordinator, Traci Layman, should be contacted for additional information on Texas Guaranteed Student Loans and for loan application forms.
