Moses Coy removes excess mortar from limestone blocks he is placing as supports at The Crockett

Building on 11th Street. The building is owned by Ozona National Bank and is being renovated to serve as a community meeting room for non-profit and civic purposes.

Crockett Building nears completion

Work on a community room for Ozona draws nearer to completion with the addition of stone to the building's front. The community room is in the former Ozona Boot and Saddlery on the south end of the square between the water district office and the Davidson Building.

Owned by Ozona National Bank, renovation of the interior has been underway for several months according to bank president Don Long. A walk through the building reveals plush emerald green carpet and walls with oak wainscoting. All the wood in the building is oak, including louvered doors to the kitchen and dressing room.

The eight round tables already in place will seat 48 persons, and additional chairs will be available, Long said.

The kitchen, which was designed by Long, contains oak cabinetry built by project contractor Alejos Lara. A stove top, microwave, dishwasher and well-lighted island work surface make the facility more functional.

The view from the two dormer windows and the front door focuses on the David Crockett statue on the square, resulting in the name The Crockett Building for the structure. A large framed print picturing the hero of the Alamo has been donated by Tom Cameron for use in the building.

Limestone blocks matching those of the adjoining Davidson Building are being used to finish the exterior. Finding the rock was a problem, and bank officials had almost given up on locating the materials. "But we just didn't know where to look," Long said.

The stone was obtained by Lara from a source at Fredericksburg and is being shaped and laid by Moses Coy. Coy learned to work with stone from his father, the late Amador Coy of Mexico. He has been in the construction business 33 years. He worked 10 years for J. B. Miller and 15 years for Lilly Construction. Coy was employed by Miller at the time the Village Shopping Center was under construction. Now in business for himself, Coy lays brick, rock and ceramic tile. He is being assisted with the ONB project by Jesse Castro.

Once popular because of local quarries, "this stone's not used much in Ozona now," Coy said.

Completion of The Crockett Building will add to the historic appearance of portions of downtown Ozona and at the same time offer an informal meeting area for the public. The Crockett Building will be available for non-profit community and civic affairs. Regulations regarding use and reservations will be announced later, Long said.

"We're very proud of The Crockett Building," said Long of the project.

No date has been set for completion of the renovation of the building.

Stockman's Tucker takes a final bow

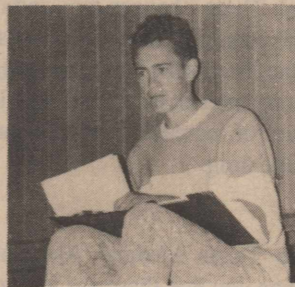

by T. C. Tucker
As another school season full of sporting activities comes to its end, I would like to take this opportunity to close my season and thank everyone I came in contact with during my stint here as a sports writer.

A few "especially" thank-yous need to be noted.

I admire the Moores for having faith in an ignorant 14-year-old who came walking through their doors wanting to write junior high sports stories and came away with first-hand knowledge of the newspaper business and life itself. I owe them a lot more than can ever be counted on green note.

I have worked with almost all the coaches Ozona Schools have had on their roster in the past four years, and I express gratitude to each and everyone of them. Their outstanding cooperation in providing data, comments and other reporter's aids made my work much easier. I do want to note one person in particular who I worked with from the beginning junior high days up to present high school status. Coach Don Payne always showed enthusiasm for both his and my work.

Even plagued with my phone calls, time after time he replied to questions in a positive, informative manner. I know I should be very grateful for the relationship that developed between us, and I am. Thank you, Coach Payne.

One cannot work in this profession without honoring the subjects one writes about. I say to all those that passed across a field, court, or course and participated in good, clean, fun competition, "Way to go!"

Of course, I'd like to thank God and my family; Mighty Mouse; a host of others including Lawrence Block, U2 and readers at large; this great opportunity of a country we live in, and an opportunity that developed some 3 1/2 years ago.

Ready to ride in the annual St. Jude's bike-a-thon are: Jennifer

Usener, John Paul Usener, Justin

Also riding was Jason Moran, Moran and Ruth Helen Cervantez, standing right.

Know the characteristics of cocaine use

Are you concerned that someone you know may be using cocaine? To be sure, you need to know about the drug's effects. On one hand, you may have heard that cocaine brings euphoria, increased energy and mental capabilities, and sexual stimulation. On the other hand, you feel you know little of the negative behavioral changes associated with cocaine use.

The Texas Medical Association offers the following characteristics of cocaine use as a guideline to help target the problem early so that you can offer the needed help.

There may be significant change in sleeping habits. Cocaine is a stimulant which interferes with normal sleep. Sometimes, users will stay awake for long periods of time when taking cocaine, then fall into extended periods of sleep.

The person may have frequent nosebleeds, a red, stuffy nose, or sniffles. Sniffing cocaine is the most frequent method used, so these signs could indicate cocaine use. Also, there may be injection sites on the inside hollow of each arm by the elbow if the person is "shooting up" cocaine with a needle.

There may be a sudden interest or specialized knowledge about the drug. People who are dependent on cocaine (or other drugs) often like to show-off their knowledge about the different types of cocaine and the effects it has.

He or she may have lost a lot of weight. Cocaine decreases the appetite and many cocaine users either skip meals or eat poorly.

There may be rapid mood swings. Cocaine is very short acting and only produces feelings of euphoria and confidence for an average of 30 minutes for each dose, then is quickly followed by depression or a "crash". Being extremely moody may be a sign of cocaine use.

He or she frequently may be sick or late to work or school, and show decreased productivity at work or school. These changes may indicate that the person is staying up late using cocaine, becoming less responsible or losing interest in normal activities because of increasing preoccupation with the drug.

The Texas Medical Association reminds you that these are just some of the early characteristics that might indicate a person may be abusing cocaine. If you know of someone that shows these signs, seek help by calling 1-800-COCAINE or contact your physician for advice. Don't wait until it's too late to get help. Chronic or daily use of cocaine results in hallucinations, delusions, extreme paranoia, and for many, incarceration in jails or institutions, and for some, even death.

The Texas Medical Association is a professional organization with more than 29,000 physician and medical student members. It is located in Austin and has 116 component county medical societies around the state.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
 TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Last week, the differences between 1986 political foes, Gov. Bill Clements and former Gov. Mark White, stood out, clear-cut now as then.

Clements was coming under fire from some Democrat lawmakers for his vow to veto their plan to raise the cigarette sales tax to fund public education.

And White was in Ohio, telling state lawmakers there to raise their taxes for education.

White told Ohioans he led the fight to "raise every tax in sight" to fund such reforms as no pass-no play, abolishing the state Board of Education, and raising teacher salaries.

And he told them that it probably got him defeated in '86 by his ol' nemesis, Clements.

What White didn't tell them was that he ran hard on a promise of no new taxes, a promise he broke after one month in office.

As fate would have it, Clements also signed a tax bill after promising no new taxes, but only after Democratic senators stalled passing the budget until the last minute, forcing Clements to sign or throw state government into the red.

In The Senate

Port Arthur Sen. Carl Parker told colleagues that anything less than $500 million allotted to fund poor school districts is a "gold-plated, engraved invitation to turn the school system over to Judge Harley Clark," the judge who ordered reform of the present school-funding formula.

Some senators renewed their pleas for a cigarette tax hike, and threatened to cut some of Gov. Clements' projects if he continues his veto vow. Later, a conference panel cut Clements' $39 million plan to reward school districts which improve test scores and reduce dropouts.

In another challenge to Clements, senators voted to reject the new pesticide board which the House imposed on Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower. The move dares Clements to veto the bill, a move that would abolish the Agriculture Department right out from under the controversial Hightower.

Senators also approved the Contest and Gift Giveaway Act to reduce fraud using prizes to lure people to sales presentations.

In The House

The House approved stricter regulations for bingo games, putting them under Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission scrutiny, and requiring 35 percent of the proceeds to go to the sponsoring charity, not the bingo hall operator.

House members also voted themselves a raise, from $7,200 to $20,000 per year, subject to voter approval.

In another vote, the House rejected a bill proposing a state lottery sponsored by Ron Wilson, D-Houston. Wilson called anti-lottery lobbyists "hypocritical Christians."

They also approved a ban on driver's licenses for high school dropouts below age 18.

Other Highlights

•The Lt. Gov.'s aide who riled Attorney General Jim Mattox in Capitol halls has been named campaign manager for Treasurer Ann Richard's gubernatorial race against Mattox.

Glen Smith, former bureau chief for The Houston Post, a newspaper Hobby sold awhile back, has never managed a campaign before, and insiders speculate Richards will use him to engineer a media-oriented effort, rather than a grass-roots one.

•Gov. Clements signed into law a bill giving Texas more clout in recovering cleanup costs from spills of oil or hazardous material. The state can now go directly to the responsible party, instead of relying on reimbursement by federal funds.

•Included in some 30 bills the governor signed was one making it a felony to violate college athletic recruiting regulations, a penalty which allows the state to extradite illegal recruiters.

•Clements was also expected to sign a bill giving tax breaks for oil produced through enhanced recovery techniques, from 4.6 percent to 2.3 percent for 10 years.

•Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, has repeatedly ripped Clements for not appointing many blacks to state boards, and the governor never has cottoned to Democrats twisting his arm.

Thus, Clements will probably wait until after the session to fill the State Board of Medical Examiners slot held by black physician, Dr. Robert Hilliard.

•Tired of Houston lawmakers airing their city political squabbles in the Legislature, as many as 50 House members signaled "Present, Not voting" on Houston bills last week.

Several joked the governor should call a special session just to deal with Houston's local problems.

Lloyd Benson encourages trade between Texas and Mexico

Trade between Texas and Mexico is increasingly becoming important to our state - creating jobs and promoting growth.

A good example is the robust growth in the Texas job market last year - growth that took place despite a sharp drop in the price of oil last fall.

Most of the credit goes to the $4.5 billion increase of exports from Texas to Mexico last year.

According to a recent analysis by an economist of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, this export growth has meant approximately 135,000 jobs to our state. Obviously, increasing Texas exports to Mexico is having a measurable benefit to our economy.

In fact, this tremendous increase in exports gave our state a trade surplus - selling more goods to Mexico than we bought - of over $1 billion. This is the first time we've had such a surplus since the peso was sharply devalued in 1982.

Texas A&M psychologist says "forget it" to remember information

COLLEGE STATION - Sometimes, the best way to solve a frustrating problem is to forget about it, says a Texas A&M University cognitive psychologist who studies human memory.

"I call it 'stuck thinking,'" said Dr. Steven Smith. "When mental blocks stop us from solving problems, continuing with the same old approach is about as useful as banging your head against the wall."

The answer to finding key information tucked away in memory is to stop thinking about it. It's called "incubation" and Smith has found that if incorrect information is too accessible, we need to take time-out from thinking about it.

During experiments, clues were initially presented with some of the problems to artificially induce fixation - the frustrating part of trying to solve a problem, said Smith.

Previous explanations have suggested that problem-solving continues at some unconscious level when attention is diverted from the problem.

Alternatively, Smith theorizes that overcoming fixation consists of forgetting inappropriate information so that appropriate information will be relatively more accessible.

Campers brave thunderstorms at Ft. McKavett campout

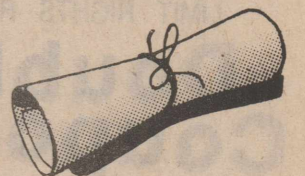

The Mom and Me Campout was held the weekend of May 20-21 at Camp Sol Mayer by Fort McKavett.

The two day, one night campout was organized by the Concho Valley Council office in San Angelo. The campout was strictly for Moms and sons in the Permian Basin District whose sons are participants in Tiger Cubs, Cub Scouts or Webelos. There were over 500 in attendance. Even though a severe thunderstorm tried to scare campers away, survivors included Becky Childress and son Mark; Barbie Myers and son Chad; Roylan Sullivan and son Brad; Sally Roane and son Will; and Chodya Squires and her two sons Scott and Joe.

Patsy and Aurora Najar were in Mexico City to visit the Shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe, the floating gardens of Xochimelco and the zoo. Joining them on the tour were Mylene Najar and Chona Vela of Dallas.

Lots of success in the days ahead.

Unanimous vote sends college savings bill through House

AUSTIN - With a 121-0 vote May 12, the House approved and sent to the governor a bill containing proposals by Land Commissioner Garry Mauro to allow agencies such as the Veterans Land Board to issue tax-free bonds so parents can afford college for their children.

Legislation creating the Texas College Savings Bond Program was carried in the House by Rep. Wilhelm Delco, D-Austin, and in the Senate by Sens. Don Henderson, R-Houston, and Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville.

"The cost of a college education has gone out of sight," Mauro said. "We, as state officials, cannot stand aside and see fine young people go without the education they need to succeed."

"Their success is our success. Without them we have no future," said Mauro, who also serves as chairman of the VLB. "I commend Rep. Delco and Sens. Henderson and Edwards for their leadership in putting together a bill that will help make education accessible."

Bonds purchased through the program could mature in from 1 to 20 years and come in amounts from $250 to $500. They would be sold at a discount, with the difference between the purchase price and the price at maturity being exempt from taxes. And, depending upon the length of time until maturity, the bonds could produce income up to four times the original purchase price.

For instance, a person might spend $250 for a $1,000 bond which matures in 20 years. At the time of maturity, the $750 difference would be tax-exempt.

Mauro said that under the program an individual's bond holdings up to $25,000 will not be taken into consideration when deciding if a student is eligible for a loan, scholarship or other financial assistance provided by the state agencies.

The bill sets up the College Opportunity Act Committee that will advise the state's Bond Review Board. On that committee will be the chairs of the VLB, Water Development Board, Public Finance Authority, Coordinating Board and the National Research Laboratory. These agencies are the agencies authorized to issue the college education bonds.

Fallen baby birds need special care

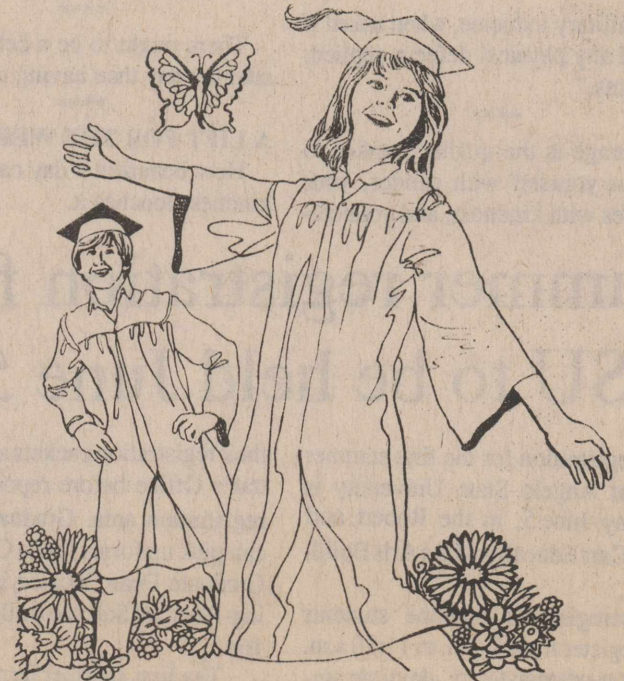

This is the time of year when newly-hatched wild birds fall or are blown out of their nests. These young birds are often taken in by well-meaning people who have little or no experience in handling wild birds.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Catrina Martin said in most cases birds should not be captured or adopted. "Usually the young bird has not been abandoned, and simply placing the bird back in the nest tree or a nearby tree or shrub will result in a reunion with its parents," Martin said. Contrary to popular belief, a parent bird will not reject the baby simply because a human touched it, she added.

Sometimes there is no suitable tree in which to place the bird. In such cases, the best thing to do may be to place the youngster with a wildlife rehabilitator who has the state and federal permits required to handle wild birds. Such permits are required for most birds and mammals found in Texas. There currently are about 275 permitted rehabilitators in the state. For information on how to contact the one nearest you, call toll-free 1-800-792-1112, ext. 4505.

"Forever His" May 28
11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services

"Forever His" has been traveling, singing and preaching since 1985 under their name which is not just a "catchy" title, but a way of life for them. They began to sing in churches all around Texas, singing the 70 songs that God has given to them and are now expanding their travels throughout the United States.

The Lord said:

BY CONNIE MARROQUIN
CHURCH OF GOD OF PROPHECY

Thou shalt have no other gods before Me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the Earth, thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God. Exodus 20:3, 5

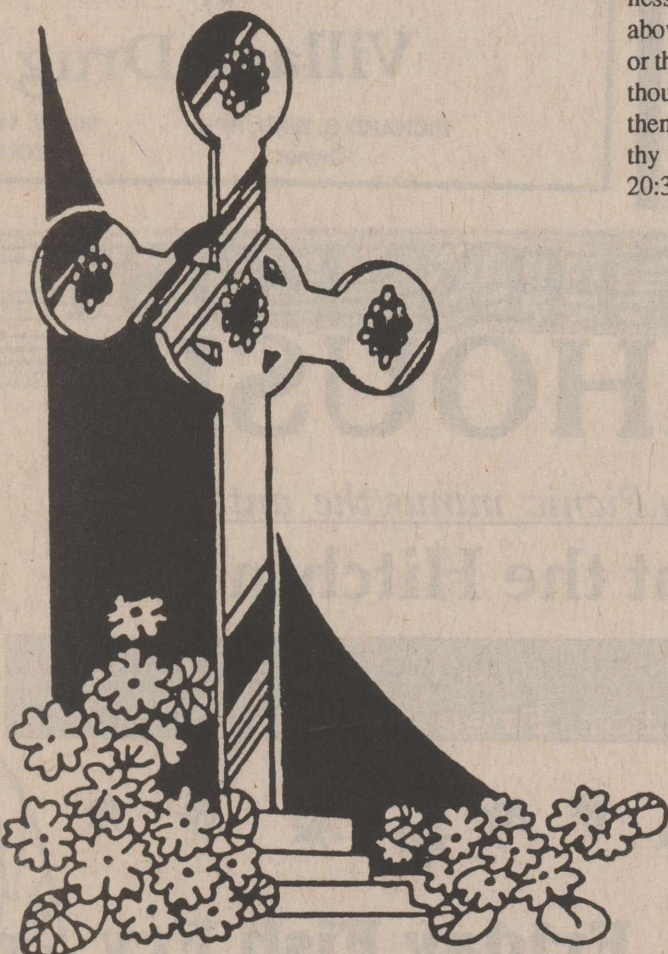

They shall be turned back, they shall be greatly ashamed that trust in graven images, that say to the molten images, ye are our gods. Isaiah 42:17

Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves; for ye saw no manner of similitude on the day that the Lord spake unto you in Horeb out of the midst of the fire: lest ye corrupt yourselves and make you a graven image, the similitude of any figure, the likeness of male or female. Deuteronomy 4:15, 16.

Behold, I set before you this day a blessing and a curse; a blessing if you obey The Commandments of the Lord your God which I command you this day: and a curse if ye will not obey The Commandments of the Lord your God; but turn aside out of the way which I command you this day, to go after other gods, Deuteronomy 11:26, 28

Therefore thou shalt love the Lord thy God, and keep His charge, and His statutes, and His judgments, and His commandments, always. Deuteronomy 11:1
God bless you.

Teacher retirement bill passed

AUSTIN - Two far-reaching retirement bills affecting every current and retired school employee in Texas have been passed by the Texas Legislature and sent to Gov. Bill Clements for his signature May 18.

The Texas State Teachers Association praised the Legislature for passing both House Bill 85, sponsored by Rep. Jim Rudd of Brownfield, and Senate Bill 490 by Sen. John Montford of Lubbock.

Among the major provisions in the bills are options for early retirement for current school employees, improved provisions for beneficiaries, and a raise for currently retired employees.

TSTA President Charles Beard said the retirement legislation was top priority legislation for his 95,000-member association, along with an improvement in the state's basic salary schedule.

"This bill will go a long way in attracting new teachers to choose teaching as a career," Beard said. "It adds an important benefit for all other school employees, including the educational support personnel."

House Bill 85 provides full retirement benefits to any 55-year-old school employee who has 30 years of service in the profession. It also would reduce the early retirement penalties for others. For example, an employee at age 55 years with 20 years of service could retire with only a 10 percent reduction in benefits, as opposed to the current penalty of 30 percent.

The bill also increases monthly benefits for currently retired employees, ranging from four percent to 16 percent depending upon the year of retirement, up to $100 per month. The raises will be distributed in four groups: those retiring before September 1975 will get 16 percent; those retiring between Sept. 1975 and Aug. 1980 will receive 12 percent; those retiring between Sept. 1980 and Aug. 1983 will get eight percent; and those retiring between Sept. 1983 and Aug. 1986 will receive four percent.

The state's contribution to the Teacher Retirement System will be increased from the current 7.2 percent to 7.65 percent for four years, after which it will automatically increase to eight percent, the original amount of the state's contribution before reductions were made several sessions ago.

Senate Bill 490 also adds key benefits in that it reduces the current vesting period from 10 years to only five years. It also provides options for beneficiary payments in that it will allow a retiree to elect to receive smaller monthly retirement payments in order to guarantee a lifetime annuity for the designated beneficiary. Should the beneficiary die first, however, the retiree will now be able to revert back to drawing full benefits.

It also provides the beneficiary the option of receiving a $10,000 lump sum or a monthly allotment.

Patsy Torres and son David of Iraan were in town visiting and shopping. Patsy's husband Daniel's job required moving several years ago, yet she still enjoys coming back home.

Mr. and Mrs. Levon Parker recently returned from a five week stay in Springer, New Mexico. Springer is located in the northeast corner of New Mexico. Allie Mae said "about all we did was work," but she was sporting a beautiful tan. Work must be good for you because she looked beautiful.

Connie Jennings will be a birthday lady May 27. Happy birthday, Connie.

Piase Fierro was in town visiting his mom, Anita, friends and family. He lives in Nashville, TN and works at a Hardee's restaurant. I asked him if he ever went to the Opry. "Sure," he said, "I have season tickets, go all the time. See, I went from rock to country."

When asked if he ever got to see any real stars, he said he saw "Dolly and Stella" all the time. I asked if they were pretty and he said "No way - two much makeup." Upon returning home, Piase will be attending another schooling session for his job. Have a safe trip home.

Mae Armentrout had to see the doctor this week. She has a case of bronchitis. Saturday she said she was some better. Get well soon, Mae, you're one of my favorite people.

Rodney Beasley and friend Amy Thornton of College Station were in town visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beasley, last week. Rodney, Amy and family also visited Rodney's sister, Mrs. Greg (Debbie) Frelich, Caleb and Colby of Midland.

Upon returning to Ozona, the pair left for Astroworld in Houston. While there they also visited Amy's brother. After returning to College Station, Rodney will start summer school and Amy will be making plans for a trip to Europe.

Party honors Borregos

Hosting the event for their parents and family members were: Albert Borrego Jr. and family of Sonora, Martha Gandar and family of Sonora, Esmi, Olga, Randall and Andy Borrego of Ozona.

An Editorial

By Texas Land Commissioner,
Gary Mauro

When Congress last dealt with the Clean Air Act in 1977, most Texans thought of air pollution as something that affected others, those living in New York or Los Angeles or in industrial cities like Pittsburgh or Birmingham. In the 12 years since, however, smoggy brown clouds have settled over many American cities.

Houstonians breathe some of the most polluted air in the country. The American Lung Association says 800,000 children in the Houston-Galveston area and another 800,000 in Dallas-Fort Worth are at risk from the air they breathe. Dallasites had only 80 days of 15-mile visibility in 1987. In 1950, they could see that far 315 days a year. El Paso and Beaumont are also on the list of cities that fail to meet federal clean air standards.

No place is immune. Acid rain affects the Davis Mountains and the peaks in Big Bend are obscured by haze from Mexico and the West Coast on 330 days a year.

Dinner conversations in homes across the state now include not just football and politics, but acid rain and the greenhouse effect. Weather reports give air quality indexes, at times warning people with respiratory problems to stay indoors because the air outside is unsafe to breathe.

Air pollution has become a global problem. And the more global the problem has become the more local it has become. Today, it is a concern of all Americans who are tired of having to breathe air they can see, smell and taste.

What has become clear is that while many Americans don't know how those brown clouds got there, they want them cleaned up. Elected officials at all levels of government are hearing appeals from their constituents and searching for solutions to the problem.

In New York City, the city and state governments are working with Brooklyn Union Gas Co. in testing mass transit buses that run on compressed natural gas. In Denver, the second year of a successful program requiring addition of oxygenates to local gasoline supplies is in full swing. In Arizona, the state Legislature has passed a law prohibiting the purchase of diesel buses by transit authorities after January 1, 1990. In California, methanol has received extensive on-road testing as an alternative fuel.

And in Texas, a coalition called Clean Air Texas, made up of oil and gas producers, environmental and consumer groups and the Texas General Land Office, has banded together in support of legislation requiring state vehicles, school buses, private fleet vehicles and mass transit buses to use compressed natural gas or other clean burning alternative fuels. The coalition and its many supporters in the legislature and media believe that those vehicles paid for with tax dollars should not be polluting our state, can seriously affect children's lungs, according to testimony by Dr. Philip J. Landrigan, of the American Academy of Pediatrics before the House Energy and Commerce committee's Health and Environment Subcommittee.

But what ultimately may make CNG a reality in the United States is its cost. Converting fleet vehicles to natural gas will actually save money. Fuel costs are as much as 60 percent below those of current fuels and because of its clean-burning qualities, vehicle maintenance is reduced by as much as half. Conversions range from $1,200 for a gasoline-powered school bus to $8,000 for a large, diesel-powered transit coach. Factoring in fuel and maintenance savings, the initial investment can be recouped in 15 to 48 months.

The economic benefits for the state as a whole are significant. A 1988 study by the Southern Methodist University Center for Enterprising reports that for every trillion-cubic-foot increase of natural gas used nationally 100,000 jobs will be created in Texas over five years. That means 328 drilling rigs and more than $3 billion a year in personal income.

Not only do we win environmentally, but economically. Natural gas use makes sense. The idea of switching to natural gas is an idea whose time has come.

An alternative fuels bill, S.B. 740 by Sen. Don Henderson, R-Houston, and a companion bill, H.B. 1523, would require the use of compressed natural gas or other alternative fuels in state-owned or operated fleets with more than 15 vehicles, school districts with more than 50 buses, and local transit authorities.

The Senate approved both bills April 21 and House action is expected in May.

We believe natural gas can and should play a major role in cleaning up the air we breathe and in stimulating our state's ailing economy. Natural gas can power vehicles and boilers. It is safe, abundant, and, just as important, it is a vast natural resource of the United States that can help relieve our growing dependence on energy from the Middle East.

Texts by the Environmental Protection Agency have shown compressed natural gas to be far cleaner as a vehicular fuel than gasoline or diesel. Burning compressed natural gas virtually eliminates emission of particulates and evaporative hydrocarbons. It produces 40 percent less exhaust hydrocarbons and 50 percent less carbon monoxide emissions. The Environmental Test Corp., an independent, federally recognized emissions test lab in Aurora, Colorado, has found a 30 percent reduction in oxides of nitrogen. Both nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons are precursors of ground level ozone.

Studies show that exposure to ground level ozone at concentrations Corpus Christi, would require conversions in the 21 Texas counties which fail to meet federal air quality standards. This bill would also levy a surcharge for burning fuel oil in utility and industrial boilers between April 15 and October 15.

DOUBLE COUPONS ON TUESDAY

Aurora and Joe Tobar take a break from the kitchen and the welding machine to show visitors around the newly remodeled Chato's Restaurant. The new section of the restaurant opened last Wednesday. Renovation plans include a large dining/meeting room yet to be completed.

Chato's Restaurant completes remodeling

The dream never stops for Joe Tobar. A desire for progress and improvement keeps this energetic Ozona man busy with project after project.

Last week Tobar opened his remodeled restaurant, Chato's. While customers have been eating in the front of El Chato's, Tobar was busy designing and constructing a new kitchen and converting much of the club area into a restaurant.

The result is a restaurant which comfortably seats 160 and would do credit to a much larger town.

Bright colors, serape covered tables and Tobar's poster collection contribute to the atmosphere. An expanded menu offers turkey and dressing every Sunday, K. C. steak, plate lunches and prime rib daily in addition to the Mexican food, chicken fried steak and hamburgers available before.

"We've got prime rib like you'd find in San Antonio or San Angelo," Tobar said.

The Tobar family has been in the restaurant business in Ozona for 40 years. Joe's parents, Manuelita and Jose Tobar, owned and operated the Cactus Cafe here for 20 years.

This summer, on the Fourth of July, Joe will celebrate 20 years in the restaurant business for himself. Tobar gives credit to his late father for helping make this possible. "My brother-in-law Rudy Ramirez, my father and I built this place. It took nearly seven years. As I had the money, I put it in, and we built it," he said. The portion which now houses the restaurant was added to the original structure five years ago.

Tobar praises former Ozona restaurant owner John Held for the training he received during nine years working for him. "I owe most of everything to him for teaching me."

Held's pies and rolls were known far outside Crockett County. "I'm making the rolls like Mr. Held used to," said Tobar.

Tobar first branched out on his own by leasing the M & M. It was during his time there that the restaurant building project began. "We were here before the interstate," he says of Chato's. More recently Tobar leased and operated the restaurant at Circle Bar Truck Corral.

Joe takes pride in his community being known as "the biggest little town in the world". "We've got one of the nicest towns and one of the country's best truck stops, and we need something like a nice Mexican restaurant," said Tobar who worries "that Ozona is going to dry up and blow away if somebody doesn't do something."

The enterprising Tobar credits businessmen Tom Mitchell and Buster Miller for their improvements to the community. In addition to their businesses, both do many things of benefit to Ozona that no one ever sees, Tobar said.

Joe and his wife, Aurora, are proud of their business. Their daughters are part of the family operation, and Mama Tobar, as Manuelita is known to the community, is also an important part of the day to day operation of Chato's.

"I owe everything to my family, Mr. Held and to God; He's the main one," said Tobar of his success.

While you're dining in the new Chato's, keep in mind that Joe and a crew of workers are busy in the old restaurant section, because coming soon to Chato's is a large dining room for parties, receptions and meetings.

"I want to do something nice for Ozona," said Tobar with a smile.

Odometer statements revised

Beginning Saturday, April 29, sellers of vehicles in Texas must complete a new, improved odometer statement.

Vehicle buyers must acknowledge the seller's representation of the odometer reading on the statement.

Other changes to the odometer disclosure form, required with vehicle title transfers, are warnings to the buyer and spaces for the addresses and printed names of both parties.

The new form, which has been sent to county tax assessor-collectors by The Highway Department's Division of Motor Vehicles, must be used beginning April 29 or the title transaction could be rejected.

The changes are being made under the Federal Truth In Mileage Act of 1986, which aims to unify buyer protection in title documents from state to state.

A warning has been added to the form that incomplete or false information may result in fines, imprisonment or both.

If the odometer does not reflect actual mileage, the seller must check a box stating that fact.

The form need not be used in the sale of private vehicles 10 years old or older, commercial vehicles that carry two tons or more, or vehicles that are not self-propelled.

The new disclosure statement, form 40, is available from county tax assessor-collector offices and regional offices of the Division of Motor Vehicles of The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. Other forms may be used as long as they meet the new federal standards and have a notary block for the seller's signature.

Texas certificates of title issued after April 1990 will include the new federal odometer disclosure requirements. In the meantime, the supplemental odometer disclosure form assures Texan's compliance with federal law.

'Desert Soliloquy' exhibit at ONB documents preservation of natural area

A 14-year struggle to preserve one of the most interesting and beautiful of the nation's natural areas, Mescalero Sands in Southeastern New Mexico, is documented in a display at Ozona National Bank.

The exhibit, "Desert Soliloquy", portrays the lengthy campaign spearheaded by Eastern New Mexico University graduate Calvin Smith to have the Mescalero Sands designated a "national natural study area".

The display will remain at the bank approximately two weeks. The exhibit is brought to Ozona through ONB and Crockett County Historical Society courtesy of Smith and the Strecker Museum at Baylor University where he is director.

The display describes the geology, archaeology, history and natural history of a "very secluded, beautiful area that deserves the recognition it has received," Smith said. It features about 100 of the 1,000 color slides he took during the project.

Smith was born in Odessa but considers New Mexico his second home. He graduated from Lovington High School and obtained degrees in anthropology, zoology and biology at Eastern New Mexico University.

He did extensive research in archaeology and ecology and initiated the Mescalero Sands project in conjunction with the Paleo-Indian Institute and the Natural History Museum.

Some of Smith's photographs for the exhibit were selected by the Carnegie Museum of Natural History, Pitsburga, PA, for the juried show of its annual Natural World Photographic Competition. The America West Foundation of Hobbs, NM, provided a grant toward the preparation of the Desert Soliloquy exhibition.

The public is invited to view the exhibit at Ozona National Bank Monday through Friday during regular banking hours.

4-H programs make summer fun productive

Parents have a tough time making sure their children have a fun, relaxing, yet productive summer. Summer is a time that poses problems in terms of constructive activities that keep kids from making time to get into trouble.

4-H offers some programs and activities that may help. Thanks to funding both from the Cooperative Extension Service and from private sources, The Texas Agricultural Extension Service boasts a fine facility on the shores of Lake Brownwood where, each year, thousands of 4-H'ers attend summer camp.

In the past few years, camp has been available in different age groups. Forteens (ages 13-19), there is "Spectra '89," a special-interest camp. Teens can focus on such interests as image and attire, photography, tennis, advanced computers, public speaking, or canoeing and sailing.

While some camps' costs might be prohibitive, a week at Brownwood (Aug. 6-11) costs only around $100. This includes room, board, and supervision by the 4-H Center staff.

The regular summer sessions are held from July through August, for four days each session. Two sessions, July 23-26 and July 26-29, are geared for 9-11 year olds. The July 30-Aug. 2 session is for ages 12-14, and Aug. 2-5 is for all ages, from 9-14. The total cost of the four days is $59, which includes all meals, lodging, refreshments, and limited accident insurance coverage.

Activities include recreation, archery, canoeing, swimming, high adventure courses, and parties. College-age counselors and adult resource staff conduct the educational sessions. Staff leaders and County Extension Agents are there to supervise 4-H'ers at all times. Adults can accompany their children, if they wish.

OJHS earns safety award

Ozona Junior High School has been awarded a Certificate of Exceptional Effort from the Texas School Safety Honor Roll Program recognizing its support of safety education and accident prevention. The award was announced Tuesday by OJHS Principal Buddy Hooper.

The Texas School Honor Roll Program, sponsored by Texas Safety Association in cooperation with the Texas Education Agency, is the only state recognition program that covers all aspects of school safety education and accident prevention. The Honor Roll Program assists schools in meeting the intent of Texas accreditation standards (Principles 3 and 10) relative to safety, promotes coordinated efforts for safety throughout the school system, encourages programs for reducing or eliminating accidents involving students, and enables each school to objectively analyze its own safety activities.

Participating in the program during the 1988-89 school year were 1000 schools from 243 districts across the state.

Texas Safety Association is a non-profit, non-governmental, educational organization whose members work in government, private industry, and as individuals to prevent accidents and needless loss of life and property.

Crockett 4-H'ers compete in Junction range contest

Crockett County 4-H'ers traveled to Junction Saturday to compete in their range judging contest.

The junior team placed second with Matthew Marshall second high individual. Justin Southern, Martha Mayfield, and C'Jay McKinney were the other members of the team. T.J.

Young and Jason Hignight also judged.

Senior members competing were John Williams, Jennifer Davidson, Angie Marshall and Julie Childress.

John and Sara Hignight and daughter Amanda, and Larry Williams accompanied the youths.

Tucker receives National Merit commendation

Ozona High School has been notified by National Merit Scholarship Corporation that Tommy Tucker has been designated a Commended Student in the 1989 National Merit Scholarship Program. Principal James I. Payne announced that this senior placed in the top 50,000 of more than one million participants in the 34th annual Merit Program and will receive a letter of commendation in recognition of outstanding academic promise.

An official of NMSC stated, "Being named a Commended Student in the extremely competitive Merit Program is a credit to these young men and women and the schools which play a key role in the development of academically talented youth. We hope the recognition these students have earned will increase their motivation to use their abilities to the fullest, for they represent an important intellectual resource which our nation needs."

The more than one million participants in the current Merit Program entered the competition by taking the PSAT/NMSQT in October 1987 as high school juniors. Although their qualifying tests scores are very high, the 35,000 young people throughout the nation who are Commended Students scored slightly below the level required for semifinalist standing in their respective states. Only the 15,000 semifinalists, whose names were announced in September, will continue in the competition for some 6,000 Merit Scholarships to be awarded in the spring of 1989.

Tucker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Tucker.

4-H party slated Thursday

All 4-H'ers are invited to put on their swim trunks and head to the Ozona public pool for the annual end of the year party Thursday evening, May 25, at 6 p.m.

There is no charge to attend, and all youth who have been enrolled in 4-H during the past school year are invited, along with their families.

Sandwiches, homemade ice cream and other goodies will be served. If you have not been contacted to bring food, call Janie Chandler at 392-2456.

Officers for the coming year will be elected at the party.

A quality contractor:
Complies with applicable state and local codes and regulations;
Is prompt and courteous and provides fast, reliable service; and
Is a member of the Air Conditioning Contractors of America (ACCA). ACCA members are up-to-date on the latest technical information regarding HVAC systems and make quality an integral part of their business.

Schools fail to reward students who know how to learn, says educator

COLLEGE STATION — Schools get relatively good marks for teaching what students need to know — domain learning — but sometimes fail when it comes to showing students how and where to learn and understand information — strategic learning — says a Texas A&M University educational curriculum authority.

"Schools reward the regurgitation of information, but there are no rewards for students who realize they have a gap in their knowledge and seek out ways to fill that gap," said Dr. Patricia Alexander.

Based on her research Alexander recommends that when educators teach material content, they should combine that with how to read the text in order to gain more knowledge. Also, teachers should motivate students to be more strategic learners, seeking out additional information on their own.

Armijo rides 100 miles, earns $2 thousand for St. Jude's

Cancer is no stranger to Duane Armijo. He knows from first-hand experience what the disease can do. He is the father of a four-year-old cancer patient who is in remission. A desire to repay some of the help that has been given to his son led Armijo to pledge a 100 mile bicycle ride Saturday to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Armijo's part of the annual bike-athon began at 6 a.m. Saturday when he left Ozona for Mayfield Store 47 miles away. "I made it in exactly two hours, 50 minutes each way," he said. "There was no wind until I reached Juno; it was nice and cool." After a rest at the store, Armijo began the return to Ozona with the wind to his back. The completion of the 100 mile trip earned approximately $2,000 in pledges for the children's hospital, he said.

The Ice House sponsored his ride with spare equipment and water bottles for the trip. Lesa Pearl assisted by accompanying him via car, and others helping with various aspects of the trip were Terry and Merry Marshall, Judy Adams, Leslie Wellman and Gene Medders.

"Thank you, Ozona, for making the ride," Armijo commented.

Pledging support for his special ride were: Baker Jewelry, The Baggett Agency, FESCO, Cadillac Cafe, Jim Wilson, The Teacher Store, Dr. Gary Vannoy, Helen Kennison, The Ozona Stockman, J. Pointers for parents

From The Office For Substance Abuse Prevention
Standing up against negative peer pressure to use alcohol or other drugs is hard for children. But the experts at the Office for Substance Abuse Prevention, of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, have found practical ways that parents can help children of all ages say NO loud and clear:

Make firm family policies that help your child say "no" to drugs.

1. Talk frankly with your child about alcohol and other drugs now. Parents can change mistaken ideas their children may have obtained from some peers and the media such as "everybody does it."
2. Let your child know that you are REALLY listening. Children of all ages are much more likely to communicate about peer pressure when they receive positive verbal and nonverbal cues that show their parents are listening with their full attention.

3. Help your child feel good about himself or herself. Self-regard is enhanced when parents praise effort, as well as accomplishments, and when they correct by criticizing the action rather than the child. And positive self-regard can help a child say "no."

4. Help your child develop strong values. A strong value system can give children the courage to make the right decisions. Also, some studies seem to indicate that children involved in activities sponsored by religious groups are more likely to say "no" to alcohol and other drugs.

5. Make firm family policies that help your child say "no." Sometimes saying, "My parents would ground me for a month" is easier than telling peers "I don't want to do it."

For more information on how to help your child say "no," write: National Clearinghouse for Alcohol and Drug Information, P.O. Box 2345, Dept. NAPS, Rockville, MD 20852; or call (301) 458-2600.

Final passing standards established for TASP exam

Final passing standards for the new Texas Academic Skills Program (TASP) Test, given to more than 7,700 students in March, were established by the State Board of Education in April.

The board, accepting the recommendation of Commissioner of Education W. N. Kirby, adopted the preliminary passing standards it adopted in February as the final passing standards for the examination. The standards require that students correctly answer 25 of 36 items on the reading and mathematics sections of the test to pass those parts of the examination. Students also must write an acceptable essay.

House Bill 2182, passed by the 70th Texas Legislature in 1987, requires that all entering freshmen at the state's public colleges and universities take a basic skills test to determine if they have the skills necessary to perform college-level course work. That same year, the State Board of Education authorized the Texas Education Agency to develop a new test to replace the Pre-Professional Skills Test (P-PST) as the admissions examination for teacher education programs. The Agency and the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board agreed to jointly develop a test which would satisfy both requirements.

Data from the March 4 administration of the examination, the first time the test was given, showed that 81 percent of students taking the test passed. Eighty-two percent of high school students also passed the examination.

The state's top education officials, while pleased with the passing rates, cautioned that those students who took the test March 4 were not typical of those who will take the test in the future. While most college freshmen - approximately 72 percent - historically Happy belated birthday to Veronica Ramos who celebrated on May 19.

Dr. Logan got the last laugh on his coffee buddies recently. Seems the crew had been giving Doc a teasing about his recent eye surgery. A message was written on the back of the surgeon's business card by the coffee drinkers asking him to use his skills to improve Doc's appearance. Then they all signed the card.

When Doc Logan showed the request to his doctor, a message went right back to the coffee drinkers telling them Dr. Logan looked fine and perhaps his friends might like to be worked in for an eye exam.

Storm damages Boys Ranch

High winds, possibly a tornado, damaged several buildings and an entry sign at West Texas Boys Ranch last week. The storm was part of a wide system that caused damage over much of the San Angelo area.

No injuries were reported as the storm hit the ranch. Quick reaction to the threatening weather is a matter of course when you have nearly 60 boys to watch over.

"We were lucky that none of the residential buildings were touched," said Campus Director, Chris Jorgensen. He added that a houseparent had seen an apparent funnel cloud and had immediately alerted the other four cottages. The boys and staff huddled in the interior laundry rooms to ride out the storm.

Ironically, several of the staff members had completed fire and emergency training school just two days before the storm.

The winds ripped roofs off three outbuildings and damaged the roof of the chapel and gymnasium. The billboard on Highway 67 was totally destroyed. Two fiberglass tanks were tossed across the campus, with one coming to rest about 700 yards away.

Accompanying hail destroyed several hundred newly planted tomato plants in the ranch garden. Shattered mesquite limbs littered the entire campus.

Damage estimates are not yet

The consumer who wants to improve the aesthetic quality of drinking water has a multitude of companies and products to choose from. Sifting through advertising claims and technical data to select the appropriate treatment method can be a trying experience.

Here are some questions consumers should ask a water treatment professional to determine the system needed.

1. What exactly does the analysis of the water done by the treatment professional show? Many companies include free in-home testing of water. Not all contaminants can be evaluated this way. For example, organics, which have been associated with serious health problems, must be analyzed in a lab with sophisticated equipment. Be wary of home analyses claiming to determine more than basic water quality constituents such as hardness, pH, iron and sulfur.

2. How long has the company been in business? Is there a list of referrals that can be contacted?

3. Have the product and manufacturer been rated by the National Sanitation Foundation (NSF) or other third party organization? Was the product tested for the specific contaminant in question, over the advertised life of the treatment device, under household conditions (tap water, actual flow rates and pressures)? The NSF, whose function is similar to U.L., sets performance standards for water treatment devices.

4. Does the water quality problem require whole-house treatment, or will a single-tap device be adequate? Some contaminants are as hazardous when inhaled or absorbed through the skin as when ingested. Treatment of all water used in the house may be required.

5. Will the unit produce enough treated water daily to accommodate household usage? If a filter or membrane is involved, how often must it be changed? How does the consumer know when to make that change?

6. What are the total purchase price and expected maintenance cost of the device? Will the company install and service it? Is there a fee for labor? Can the consumer perform maintenance tasks? Will the unit substantially increase electrical usage in the home? Watch for hidden costs, such as installation fees, maintenance fees or rental fees. Additionally, disposing of waste materials, such as reject water, spent cartridges from activated carbon units, and used filters, can add to the cost of water treatment.

8. What is the expected life of the product? What is the length of the warranty period, and what does the warranty cover?

These are guidelines for selecting home water treatment systems based on having a potable water supply. Treatment can be for aesthetic as well as health factors. Contact the County Extension Office for publications on selecting water treatment units and on water problems.

1987 Ag census data

Early data from the 1987 Census of Agriculture shows that Texas had 188,788 farms based on $1,000 or more in sales of agricultural products.

Of the total number of farms, 68,792 had annual product sales of $10,000 or more, said Billy Reagor, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Census data showed that land in farms in Texas totaled 130,502,792 acres. Eighty-five percent of this land was on farms with $10,000 or more in sales.

The 1987 census showed that Texas farmers and ranchers sold $10.54 billion in agricultural products and that farms with $10,000 or more in sales averaged $147,748 per farm.

Data also showed that $2.96 billion or 28% of total agricultural sales were for crops, while $7.58 billion or 72% came from the sale of livestock and poultry and their products, the agent said.

Census information comes from all identified farm and ranch operations in the United States. The Census Bureau defines a farm as a place where $1,000 or more of agricultural products were produced and sold or normally would have been sold during the census year. Sampling is used to collect data for selected items and to account for nonresponding farm operations.

Reports for individual counties may be obtained by writing the Information Office, Agriculture Division, Bureau of the Census, Washington, DC 20233, or by calling (301) 763-1113. Printed reports are also available from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Data on computer tapes and diskettes are available from the Census Bureau at (301) 763-4100.
