Foreign visitors spending time with host families in Ozona are Joerg Bauer of Germany, Renaud Quantin of France, and Arnd Kiesselbach, also of Germany. The three have been learning about life in America while touring the area.

Germans, Frenchman find crossroads at Ozona

Renaud Quantin
by Michael Glaze

While his nation celebrates the bicentennial of the storming of the Bastille, 17-year-old Renaud Quantin of Fontainebleau, France finds himself in the distant land of Ozona. "I like the change," says Renaud, who is staying with the Helen Kenison family as part of the Experiment in International Living Program. The experiment is a private, non-profit organization devoted to citizen exchange, language training, and academic degree programs in international education.

Renaud, who spent a month in Florida last summer, arrived in Ozona July 7th after requesting a chance to visit Texas.

"There is much solidarity among the people in the U.S.," he said. "I like that. The people are nice and can speak easily with strangers. A lot of people in France are selfish."

Renaud is fascinated by the comparative silence of Ozona to his hometown of Fontainebleau, located approximately 45 miles southeast of Paris. There are fewer cars and fewer people on the streets, and the town is not as crowded, he says.

Blood donors give 30 pints

Blood donors contributed 30 pints when the bloodmobile was in Ozona July 12. Five were special donors responding to an emergency appeal from San Angelo, said Judy Adams of the chamber of commerce.

Those donating included: Sandra Gonzales, Jan Lott, Jimmy Gillit, Helen Kenison, Connie Jennings, Margaret Coates, Elizabeth Upham, Jimmy Hohertz, Virginia Gotcher, Jose Ortiz, Sara Estrada, Glenda Henderson, Irma Munoz, Neal Ulmer, Kimberly Baker, Beth Boyd, Nancy Hale, Paula Bailey, Mary Nations, David McCarter, Jim Gray, Lilly Ramirez, Gene Martinez, Ron Bailey, Gussie Schneider, Maricela Valdivia, Charles Schneider, Lisa Garza, Doug Meador and John L. Henderson.

"Houses are very near each other in Fontainebleau," he said, comparing the size of the town to that of San Angelo.

Renaud points out the great number of cities in the U.S. saying that Paris is the only large city in France.

"All things run around Paris," he said.

During his visit, Renaud has become interested in many facets of the American way of life. He recently discovered "cruising the drag" as many young people in Ozona do for fun.

Although he is 17, he cannot receive a driver's license in France for another year. The legal drinking age in France, though, is 16 which he feels is too young.

"I think 21 is a good idea," he said, adding that many people do stupid things when under the influence.

Lenient American gun laws also interest Renaud. In France, guns cannot be transported except to and from a shooting range. Other than gun laws, though, he believes that French police enforcement is more liberal than that in the U.S.

One disappointment for Renaud has been American food.

"I don't like American food very much," he said. "Americans eat a lot of things not good for the body. We pay more attention to the food we eat."

He did find that American orange juice tasted better, though.

Since his arrival, he has seen movies in San Angelo, visited Fort Lancaster, gone bowling, hunted for arrowheads on a local ranch, and of course, celebrated Bastille Day.

The Caverns of Sonora, the Covered Wagon Dinner Theatre, Langtry, and Seminole Canyon are also on the agenda during Renaud's visit as he is very interested in ancient Indian cultures and hopes to one day visit Wyoming and Arizona.

Saying that when he thought of the desert, he pictured a vast land with no trees, he seemed surprised by the landscape of the area which contrasts greatly with the forests of his home.

Currently in the third of four levels of education in France, Renaud hopes to become a pilot in the Army or to work as an environmentalist. He is quite a sportsman, interested in volleyball, rock climbing, tennis, wind surfing, and martial arts.

In addition to speaking Spanish, he has studied English for four years but sometimes has trouble understanding West Texas accents.

"If there is a lack of communication," said Helen Kenison, his host, "then he spells. He writes English very well."

He is the son of Annie and Jean Quantin, and has an 18-year-old sister named Agnes.

Renaud leaves Ozona August 4th, but he will carry with him memories that will last forever.

"I will always remember the landscape and the solidarity of the people," he said.

Joerg Bauer & Arnd Kiesselbach
by T.C. Tucker

With only a few hundred miles separating them, Germans Joerg Bauer and Arnd Kiesselbach traveled half-way around the world only to meet each other in Ozona.

The two 17-year olds recently arrived here via two individual foreign exchange programs; Joerg through a collaboration between the U.S.' 4-H program and a similar agricultural establishment in Germany, and Arnd through a company focusing on exchange situations.

Leaving their homes in the southern half of the Federal Republic of Germany, near Stuttgart in a suburb called Bad Cannstatt, and Hamburg in the north respectively, Joerg and Arnd met at The Ozona Stockman and immediately broke into a running conversation of German sprinkled with English.

The two will be spending about a month in the U.S. Arnd will stay here most of that time while Joerg leaves July 27 for Dallas where he and 19 other young Germans will rent tour buses and visit Houston and New Orleans, among other places.

Arnd had his choice of anywhere in the U.S. as a possible visitation spot; instead, he left the option up to the company and thus ended up in Ozona staying with Steve Williams after arriving and touring San Antonio.

At home in Germany, Arnd spends his time attending school. His father works as an engineer for the country's largest airline, Lufthansa. His brother and sister currently study engineering, specifically economic and textile respectively.

Arnd has visited the U.S. before. Last year, he toured Washington, D.C. He also visited San Francisco and the Caribbean as a young boy.

After all these big cities and his own Hamburg with its population of 1.6 million, how does Arnd react to Ozona?

"We have lots of towns and villages all around that are no different from here," he said.

He proves amazed at some things, in particular America's fascination with "sugar and vitamins", the horrendous amount of commercials on TV and shopping procedures.

Joerg echoed his observations. "Here, one place can have almost everything you need while in Germany, you must go to several little

Survey team attends mohair conference

The Mohair Council of America sent a market survey team to Germany and Italy during June, and while in Italy they attended the International Mohair Association Conference in Milan, Italy.

While in Germany, the MCA team consisting of Perry Bushong, president; Mark McLaughlin, vice-president; Jeffrey Sutton, secretary/treasurer and Brian May, executive director, visited manufacturers in Bremen, Bielefeld and Calw. These manufacturers dealt in womenswear cloth and velours for upholstery.

"The response to the current situation in mohair was very positive," said May. While their production of total mohair cloth had dropped over the last four to five years, the 1989-1990 mohair looked to be an increase.

"These manufacturers also had some good suggestions about upcoming promotion projects in the MCA," May said. The bulk of the mohair used by these firms was fine adult and young goat. The demand for a brushed mohair fabric had still not developed in this market.

The Italy conference was the first time in the last 13 years that a decrease in world production was announced.

The predicted production in pounds for June 1989 to June 1990 is as follows:

South Africa	26,400,000
Texas	15,000,000
Turkey	4,180,000
Australia	1,800,000
New Zealand	1,100,000
Argentina	1,000,000
Lesotho	1,500,000
Total	50,980,000

This represents about a nine percent reduction worldwide. It is the first time South Africa has reported a decrease in the last 13 years. The largest decrease in production came from Turkey with a 64 percent decrease from 1988 to 1989. Australian production remained about the same, and New Zealand was a slight increase. The Texas production, which includes all production, is around a five percent reduction from last year.

The stockpile in South Africa was reported to be at 13,200,000 pounds. Within this stockpile, the breakdown was 50 percent adult, 25 percent fine adult, 16 percent young goat and nine percent kid. Ten percent was said to be seedy or defective.

The topmakers, traders and hand-knitting groups all reported extremely depressed markets, especially for young goat and adult. The handknitting business, which uses the bulk of adult mohair, is at its lowest point and appears it will not be back in the foreseeable future. Machine knitting is doing somewhat better, but can only use kid mohair due to fashion trends which require flat, smooth, thin yarns. There are reports that handknitting is still prevalent in new markets such as China and the Soviet Union.

The menswear, womenswear and velour groups were optimistic according to May. "The menswear group is doing very well and expects to use more mohair next year. This is evident by our baby kid prices." The womenswear group reported good business with a great deal of success for members who are trying new lines and ideas with mohair.

The domestic market stands a bigger chance of being the coming market for mohair, according to Jeffrey Sutton who expects to see an increase in usage of the product.

Sutton termed the meeting in Milan a big success. Growers seemed to be getting along and working together to develop the mohair product and promote greater usage of mohair, he said.

During the conference, McLaughlin, Mohair Council vice-president, was elected vice chairman of the IMA Growers Group. Bob Childress was reelected chairman of the International Mohair Association.

The Italian spinners who were visited said that their use of kid and young goat would increase, but they still had some inventories to sell.

The MCA will have several foreign visitors in Texas this fall. The primary emphasis will be placed on bringing more foreign buyers to Texas to help influence their buying trends toward U.S. mohair.

Additional reports on other survey team trips will be presented at the MCA annual summer directors' meeting in Kerrville July 20. Charles A. Little, Group Managing Director of British Mohair Spinners and vice chairman of the International Mohair Association, will be the featured guest speaker at the meeting.

For further information about the meeting, interested persons should contact the Mohair Council office at 915-655-3161.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN-In the closing days of the special legislative session, with tempers short, blank checks on the Senate floor, a landmark Texas Supreme Court case, and various announcements for political office, Gov. Bill Clements:

- Blasted Attorney General Jim Mattox for halfheartedly defending the state's school finance law now before the Texas Supreme Court;
- Called Senate conference panel members "obstinate" for stalling progress on workers' compensation reform and suggested they be replaced;
- Opened the special call to protect Medigap insurees but shut out attempts to decrease the state's share of parimutuel purses; and
- Threatened another special session this fall if lawmakers stall on workers' compensation, and promised an anti-abortion special session next spring.

Special Session Threat

With the governor promising a November session if they fail to pass a workers' compensation reform bill, the governor and key lawmakers huddled with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Gib Lewis in an effort to break their weeks-long impasse.

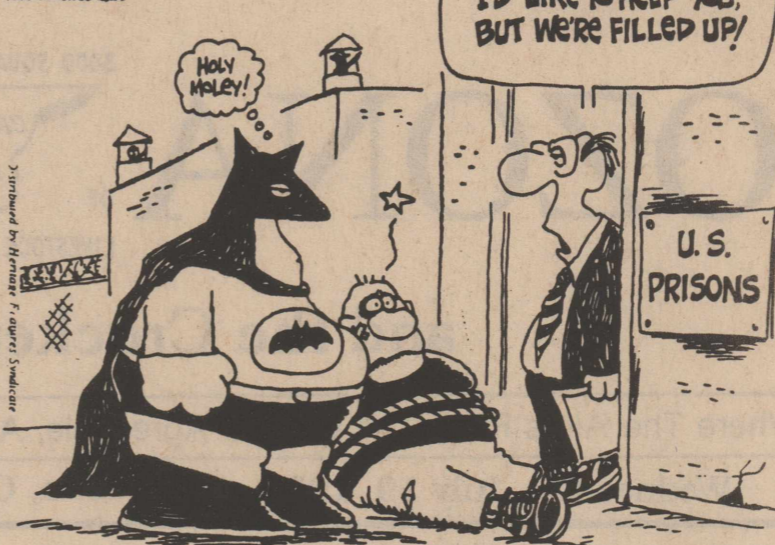

Medigap insurance protections made it into the special called session, but an effort to revamp parimutuel racing didn't.

The governor widened the call to prevent elderly Texans from being victimized by unscrupulous Medigap insurance salesmen.

When Clements, who favors the House version, ripped senators for stalling workers' compensation progress, Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, said Clements' remarks were no help in the negotiations.

His vow of a November session did not fall on deaf ears, particularly lawmakers who need to spend some time at home making a living between regular sessions.

MCCARTHY

Clements also indicated he will call a special session for anti-abortion issues next spring, which happens to be in the middle of the elections.

Thus, lawmakers could be in Austin for three specials in the space of a year, which could certainly impact their pocketbooks.

Dog Racers Heard

The Texas Racing Commission heard from five groups seeking the lucrative greyhound track in Galveston County.

The sniping was the hottest so far in racetrack hearings with witnesses trying to disqualify one or more groups for alleged ties to crime and violations of state liquor rules.

Meanwhile, the senator who sponsors horse racing issues, said the start of Texas parimutuel racing could be delayed because an amended bill won't be filed this special session.

Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas, chose not to file the bill when Clements opposed his attempts to decrease the state's share.

Harris failed to meet with Clements after the governor said he would not move forward to revamp some of the racing issues.

Political Campaigns

As expected, state Rep. Dan Morales, D-San Antonio, entered the attorney general's race, but what few could figure out is why his brother, a long-haired rock singer with a new hit record, sat beside him at the Capitol news conference.

Morales, who in earlier sessions has advocated a state income tax, promised as AG to crack down on drugs. He said he is pro-choice but will uphold any new anti-abortion laws.

He also said he agrees with Mattox that poor school districts are correct in suing for a greater share of public school financing.

Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance finally revealed his cards and filed his committee for governor, naming Dallas developer Trammel Crow as his campaign treasurer.

State Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, announced for lieutenant governor as the candidate for political outsiders. He was hit with questions about a $10,000 check from chicken magnate Lonnie "Bo" Pilgrim. Edwards, 37, deposited the check in his campaign account, but returned the money the next day.

GOP gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams of Midland said he will take assets from convicted drug users, including "Daddy's Mercedes" if the son or daughter is arrested on drug charges while driving it.

Other Highlights

• Senators sent the House two bills outlawing desecration of the flag, one a state law, the other a resolution backing a federal constitutional amendment.

• The House received a Senate bill giving the death penalty to child murderers.

• A bill by Rep. Rick Crawford, R-Amarillo, which would allow a non-binding referendum on abortion issues in November 1990 has promoted strong opposition from both sides of the issue.

• Treasurer Ann Richards, a Democrat for governor, blasted the Texas Department of Commerce for returning $6 million in job training funds to the federal government.

Harrell-Holmsley united in marriage

Leah Beth Harrell of Odessa and Peery Arthur Holmsley of Ozona were married Saturday, June 10, 1989, in a ceremony held at the Pecos River Campground Tabernacle. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harrell of Odessa. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Reid Holmsley of Ozona.

Grandparents of the couple are: Mr. and Mrs. Alex Niemczak of Lubbock, Mrs. Maggie Taylor of Cotulla and Mr. and Mrs. Peery Holmsley of Ozona.

Daniel Harrell, Church of Christ preacher from Taylor, performed the ceremony for his sister and her bridegroom. Vows were spoken before a background of white trellis with English ivy and pink bows. A heart-shaped archway was entwined with English ivy and flanked by pots of fern. Aqua and pink silk flowers accented a grapevine wreath hung between the trellises. Aqua bows marked the pews.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory silk organzine veiled over ivory silk mist and combined with re-embroidered Alencon lace. Reappliques scalloped the scoop neckline, vined over the shoulders, flowered the bodice, defined the slim waist and crisscrossed the contoured skirt. Seed pearls adorned the lace.

Her lace sleeves were long and artfully tapered. Inverted pleats, asymmetrically slanted, gracefully belled the skirt. A cascade of the beautiful lace bedecked envelope pleats at the back and sent her generously gathered train aisleward in a full chapel sweep. Large bows decorated the train between the pleats.

A pearled lace tiara held her full French illusion veil. The wedding bouquet of pale pink rosebuds, white lilies, carnations, baby's breath and greenery was caught with aqua ribbon.

The bride wore a traditional blue garter. Something new was the wedding gift of pearls from the bridegroom. The wedding gown and headpiece were worn by Mrs. Reid Holmsley at her wedding.

Lydia Harrell Lyon of Odessa was her sister's matron of honor. Rachel Haner and Elizabeth Harrell, sisters of the bride, and Holly Wesson, all of Odessa, were bridesmaids. Haley Harrell of Taylor, niece of the bride, served as flower girl.

Attendants wore full tea-length princess style dresses of aqua taffeta. The off-the-shoulder boat necklines were accented with a large bow in front. Each carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds, greenery and baby's breath tied with an aqua bow. The flower girl's dress featured a dropped waistline accented with a pink bow. The pink lace bodice topped a tiered skirt of white lace.

The bridegroom wore an ivory tuxedo with tails and an ivory bow tie. Attendants provided a contrast with their black tuxedos, ivory shirts, and aqua bow ties and cummerbunds. The ring bearer wore an ivory tuxedo with tails, aqua bow tie and cummerbund. Boutonnieres were pink rosebuds with baby's breath.

White wicker double-heart baskets with pink bows and hurricane lamps provided decoration.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a fitted and fringed cloth of aqua burlap. His chocolate cake was decorated with an outline of the state of Texas centered with his brand. Also decorating the cake were emblems of a coyote, moon and longhorn steer head. A mocha punch, cheese, crackers and fruit were served.

Decorating the bridegroom's table was an ivy in a bucket, a small windmill, a horseshoe he was given several years ago by a friend, and a pair of spurs handmade by a friend as a wedding gift.

Serving were Buffie Tooley, Amy Holifield, Leslie Lawrence, Barbara Holifield, Virille Owens and Karolyn Ligon.

Guest tables were decorated with flower-filled baskets, rice bags, bows and potted ivy. Decorations from the rehearsal supper were also used. Hanging baskets and 1,000 tiny lights decorated the trees.

Registering guests was Nancy Murphey-Andrews. The registry table at the rear of the tabernacle was covered with a white linen cloth edged with lace and decorated with an arrangement of pink azaleas.

Guests were then handed a fan by Amy Holifield. The fans were designed by the wedding couple with wooden handles tied with pink and aqua bows. On one side of the fan was the poem "A Mile With Me" by Henry Van Dyke. The other side had Genesis 2:18, 22 printed on it along with a short message from Peery and Leah thanking the guests for joining them at this joyous occasion.

The bouquet was caught by Elizabeth Harrell and the garter by Mark Harrell. The bride and bridegroom left the tabernacle in an ivory buggy pulled by a black Friesian horse.

Guests attended the wedding from: Cotulla, Pearsall, San Antonio, Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth, Laredo, Abilene, Lubbock, Odessa, Midland, Sanderson, McCamey, San Angelo, Ozona, Iraan, Sheffield, Kermit, Wink, Andrews, Comanche, Taylor, Amherst, Houston, Langtry, and Magdalena, NM.

A rehearsal dinner at the campgrounds served 66 of the wedding party, families and close friends. Invitations were designed and written by Buffie Tooley, friend of the bridegroom's family.

Decorations followed a western theme. There were miniature bales of hay decorated with small western hats and small aqua bandana print handkerchiefs, horseshoes tied with bandana bows, baskets with flowers, potted cactus in miniature aqua tubs, wreaths of different shapes with dried flowers and bows of aqua or pink ribbon.

The serving table was covered with a cloth of aqua bandana print. The centerpiece was a wood cutout of cacti and a coyote howling at a full moon. The coyote wore an aqua bandana.

A traditional West Texas barbecue of goat meat, chicken and pork chops was served with all the trimmings. Fresh fruit was served as well. The dessert was peach cobbler, ice cream and cheese cake.

Hosting the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Reid Holmsley and Rowdy assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Owens, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Williford, Mr. and Mrs. Zane Turk of Sheffield, Mr. and Mrs. Ridgely Holifield of Iraan and Mrs. Maggie Taylor, grandmother of the bridegroom from Cotulla.

After the meal there was a slide presentation accompanied by appropriate music. The slides were of the bride and bridegroom from baby days to the present.

Family and friends from Odessa, Ozona, Sheffield, Cotulla, Pearsall, San Antonio, Sanderson and McCamey attended.

Pre-nuptial parties included a kitchen shower hosted by the bride's co-teachers of Alamo Junior High in Midland, bridal showers in the home of Mrs. Glen Williford of Sheffield and in the home of Mrs. Mildred Mitchell of Odessa, and a pounding given by the Church of Christ in Hawley.

The bride is a graduate of Odessa High School and Abilene Christian University. She earned a teacher's certificate from Texas Tech University in Lubbock. The bridegroom is an Ozona High School graduate and a senior at Abilene Christian University. He is youth minister at the Hawley Church of Christ.

Following a wedding trip to Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, Peery and Leah taught Bible class for a week at camp meeting. They will be at home in Abilene.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

I would deeply appreciate it if you would please send me a copy of the article that you did on my son, John Wallace Granger (or Johnny) the young man that is riding his horse across the country, carrying a cross to tell the world about his faith and love for Jesus Christ. He is trying to raise funds for the American Association of Missing Children, a Houston, Texas based organization.

I thank you for your kindness your office has shown my son.

Thank you,
Betty L. Granger

Editor:

On Thursday, July 1, 1954, I was four years old and was caught in the horrible flash flood in Ozona.

I am now thirty nine years old and would like to have a copy of the July 1, 1954 edition of your newspaper. If it isn't possible to obtain a complete copy, could I get the front page flood story?

I sincerely appreciate any copy, or Xerox from micro film you can send me.

Mrs. Janet M. Hafacker, Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Moore:

We spent an unplanned night in your fine city on 18 May 1989. We had a tire separate about 30 miles west of Ozona and limped into town on the emergency spare, expecting all kinds of dollars and problems getting back on the road the next morning. Neither was the case thanks to the good folks in Ozona; especially, at Borrego's Fina and the Western Auto Store (the owner even delayed her beauty shop appointment to help us).

We appreciated the hospitality and would like to publicly thank all those we came into contact with during our short stay. As your paper's banner states, "...And the People Friendly..."

Thank you,
Don and Virginia Barber, San Antonio

Hance: 'Gas decontrol may be just in time'

Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Kent Hance praised Congress for passing the natural gas decontrol bill with "strong bipartisan support." This long overdue measure is one of the keystones of President Bush's energy policy. "Natural gas decontrol may have come just in the nick of time. The gas available for use is rapidly slipping below an adequate surplus level. In fact, a gas surplus could already be history. Decontrol of natural gas, while not a cure-all, is an essential first step in revitalizing the gas industry," Hance said.

"The gas decontrol bill's passage is a start in the right direction toward the national energy strategy for which I have been calling. It will make us less dependent on foreign energy sources and strengthen national security in the long run. However, new tax incentives and stable oil prices are still needed if we are to ensure a sound oil and gas industry in the future. Economic growth in our energy sector is vital to providing jobs and an improved education system in Texas," Hance emphasized.

"The new legislation will provide the independent Texas wildcatter more incentive to drill for gas now that restrictive government price controls have been removed. This in turn will help build the surplus of gas we need to meet peak demands during summer and winter periods," Hance said.

"Whether or not we will have enough gas to meet our commercial and industrial demand in the United States this coming winter is a cause for concern. At the current levels of natural gas production, any kind of long-lasting cold snap could push the system beyond its limits. As one example of the problem close to home, it should be noted that the offshore Gulf Coast gas reserves are being depleted much faster than they are being replaced," Hance said.

"Supply and demand will once again be the order of the day for natural gas. Additions to natural gas reserves have fallen about 50 percent since 1981 and many producers have not been drilling because the price is still too low. A U.S. Department of Energy survey has confirmed there is little incentive for gas reserve exploration at prices below $2.50 per Mcf (thousand cubic feet). The current spot gas price is around $1.60 per Mcf at the wellhead," Hance said.

"One of the best things about natural gas is it is the cleanest burning fuel available. Concerns about the environment and fears of the greenhouse effect have made natural gas increasingly attractive. It is also important to point out that Texas is the nation's largest single supplier of natural gas," Hance concluded.

"Who is my neighbor?"

Luke 10: 25-37

And behold, a lawyer stood up to put him to the test, saying, "Teacher, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?"

Jesus said to him, "What is written in the law? How do you read?"

And the lawyer answered, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself."

And Jesus said to him, "You have answered right; do this, and you will live."

But the lawyer, desiring to justify himself, said to Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?"

Jesus replied, "A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and he fell among robbers, who stripped him and beat him, and departed, leaving him half-dead. Now by chance a priest was going down that road; and when he saw him he passed by on the other side. So likewise a Levite, when he came to the place and saw him, passed by on the other side. But a Samaritan, as he journeyed, came to where he was; and when he saw him, he had compassion, and went to him and bound up his wounds, pouring on oil and wine; then he set him on his own beast and brought him to an inn, and took care of him. And the next day he took out two silver coins and gave them to the innkeeper, saying, 'Take care of him; and whatever more you spend, I will repay you when I come back.' Which of these three, do you think, proved neighbor to the man who fell among the robbers?"

The lawyer said, "The one who showed mercy on him."

And Jesus said to him, "Go and do likewise."

Where does seedless watermelon seed come from?

Watermelon season is upon us and many consumers may be buying seedless watermelons. Have you ever wondered where the seed to grow seedless watermelons comes from?

According to Mike Braverman, vegetable specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, the process begins with a normal watermelon being treated with a chemical called colchicine. This chemical doubles the number of chromosomes, or genetic information, of the watermelon from two to four sets, said Braverman, who is headquartered in Weslaco.

These watermelons, with four chromosome pairs (tetraploids) are then crossed with normal watermelons that have two chromosome pairs (diploids), he said. Produced is a fruit which has three chromosome pairs (triploids), he explained.

When planted near normal, seeded watermelons, these triploid seeds produce seedless watermelons.

shops, each specializing in one thing." He noted an example of this as the markets where his family sells their apples and other farmers vend their particular produce.

Apples, however, are not his family's main venue as three hectares (about 7.5 acres) of grapes go into making the family-label wine.

The family owns a specialized restaurant as well, keeping it open 12 weeks out of the year during January/March and November/December stints.

Joerg plans on continuing in the family business. While Arnd still works on his schooling equivalent to our primary and secondary education here, Joerg opted to cut his basic studies short in order to begin a work-study program where he learns such matters as cultivating grapes for wine production.

The greenness of the vineyard and surrounding landscape and the dense population of Germany clash with the openness of West Texas.

"Wherever you look in Germany is either the next town or village or farmland," Joerg said. "Here there are ranches and areas of nothing."

Arnd commented, "In America, you need a car because often you have far to travel, while in Germany we have buses for the cities and trains for longer distances."

The two also noted that cars in Germany lack cruise controls—further support of the shorter distances. They expressed awe at the wide lanes and bigger cars in the States. Joerg visited the Circle Bar 76 Truck Stop where the mass of semis drew the attention of his camera.

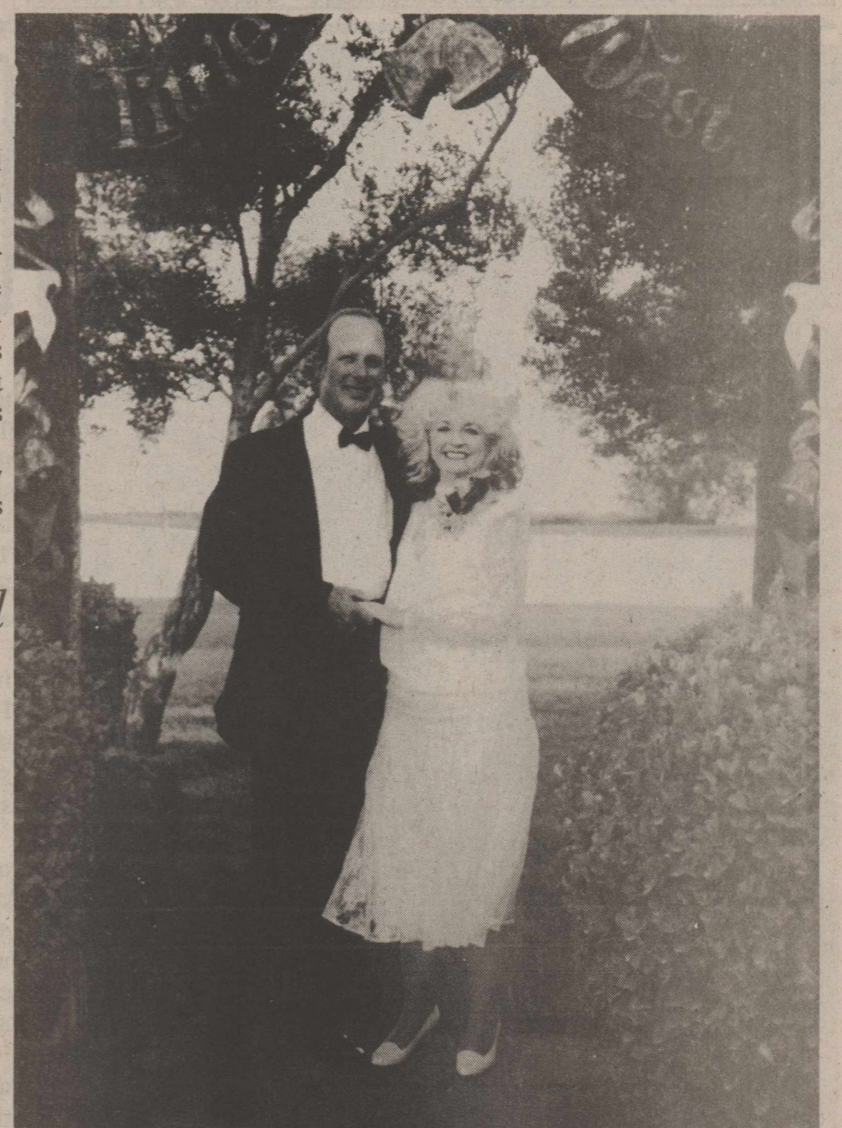

"There is also no speed limit in Germany," Joerg said.

"There is one," Arnd corrected, then laughs, "but nobody follows it." They described the closest thing to open highways as the autobahns where the limit for speed depends on the driver's personal judgment.

"There are many accidents just because everyone is going so fast," Joerg said.

For the next couple of weeks, both should be relatively safe under the local, comparably slow limits. Joerg, along with his hosts Neal and Tedra Ulmer, plans on visiting the Sonora Caverns, Ft. Lancaster, a vineyard/winery in Ft. Stockton and other interests.

Both will hopefully enjoy their time in Ozona, a "small but lovely town" as Joerg puts it. And maybe the two will continue a friendship that took trips of thousands of miles to initiate.

Donna Sanchez Morrow recently completed a 74 hour course at The Barbizon School of Modeling in Fort Worth. The 1986 graduate of Ozona High School plans to further her career by taking assignments in the Abilene and Dallas areas.

Morrow completes modeling training

Donna Morrow was one of 54 students graduating from the Barbizon School of Modeling July 9. Graduation exercises were held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Fort Worth. Upon graduating, Mrs. Morrow received awards of the Best Satellite Student of Abilene and third runner-up for Most Outstanding Model.

"I did my first professional photo shoot about a month ago in Abilene," said the recent graduate. Completion of the 74 hour course in major modeling involved 24 classes. The students studied such topics as speech, makeup and exercise in addition to retail, showroom, commercial and runway modeling.

An interest in fashion modeling in high school led Donna into the field. Being told by one of her teachers that she would never be able to afford the training made her more determined to achieve her goal. "I think you can do anything you set your mind to do," said the Ozona High School graduate.

Donna is appreciative of the love and support shown by her husband Brian and little son Thomas, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Sanchez, and her in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morrow. She was assisted with her 70's modeling outfit by Ozona Mercantile.

"Because of what I've been able to do, one of my friends who is married and has two children is now making plans to attend college," Donna said.

Paisano Baptist Encampment July 23-28

The 69th consecutive session of the Paisano Baptist Encampment located halfway between Alpine and Marfa on Highway 90 will continue a tradition July 23-28 that has touched hundreds of West Texas families through the years, but for the first time, will have a special Youth Praise Celebration for all 7th - 12th grade students.

The Youth Praise Celebration will be from 9:45 to noon each morning, with Richard Campbell, evangelist from Lubbock, as the worship leader. The program will be designed to address the needs of the youth of today, and will replace the usual Bible study the youth have had in the past.

Camp preachers, who alternate in bringing the message in the worship services, will be Dr. Milton Cunningham, pastor of the Westbury Baptist Church, Houston, and Dr. Levi Price, pastor of the First Baptist Church, El Paso.

There will be a special estate planning seminar, Monday through Thursday at 7 p.m. sponsored by the Baptist Foundation of Texas. Experts from the foundation and area attorneys will give information about minimizing estate taxes, wills, estate planning, and basic concepts in helping make plans for the future.

Classes will be provided each morning for 4 and 5 year old preschoolers, and first through sixth

Extension Connection

by Tedra Ulmer, County Extension Agent
"Texas Agricultural Extension Service"

A high incidence of child abuse, teen suicide and teen pregnancy in Texas has called attention to the fact that parents need help and additional skills. A new effort—a collaboration between the Children's Trust Fund of Texas and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service—has been initiated to try to meet these needs.

Partners for Parenting will link funding from the Children's Trust Fund with Extension's expertise and delivery system—a system that stretches across all 254 counties in the state.

During the next nine months, teams of people from each county who are concerned about parenting and child abuse prevention will be equipped with resources and program ideas to conduct educational activities in 1990 and the future.

The county teams will be trained to develop, implement and evaluate parenting programs. They will have access to a library of parenting educational materials housed on the Texas A&M University Campus.

The materials will include three categories: developmental information (from prenatal to adolescence); special parenting (parenting children with special needs, foster parenting, step-parenting, adoptive parenting, single parenting and teen parenting); and parenting and work.

The county teams will be made up of extension agents and volunteers such as medical professionals, church affiliated leaders, youth leaders, social service workers, parents, teachers and others. They will receive six of training this fall.

Following the training, county extension agents will serve as facilitators for parenting task forces in the counties. Programming in each county will be tailored to meet the needs of the people in that county, by determining critical needs and planning accordingly.

If you or someone you know are concerned about parenting and our children contact me at the Crockett County Extension Office by Wednesday, July 26. There will be space available for three persons on the initial team. We will receive training on Tuesday, Oct. 24 at the Ector County Extension Office.

I urge you to become involved in planning for the needs of our children—and for parents who need help with an increasingly difficult job.

This program is open to anyone from Crockett County, regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin. You can reach the Extension Office by calling 392-2721 or coming by our office on the second floor of the courthouse annex. We're open Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

I'll look forward to hearing from you.

DPS investigates three accidents

DPS officers investigated three accidents in Crockett County during the July 11-13 period according to Sgt. Glenn Redmond.

On July 11 at 11:30 a.m., a pickup driven by John Childress backed into a pickup belonging to H. R. Elkins at the Crockett County Hospital parking lot.

The accident was investigated by DPS Trooper Ben English.

Judith Brower of Orlando, FL required treatment at the local hospital following an accident in which her 1987 Toyota ran off the road and overturned 12 miles west of Ozona.

Two small children in the vehicle were uninjured in the 6:45 a.m. accident. Trooper Dale Taylor was the investigating officer.

Telephone wires at Crockett County Hospital were broken by a truck-tractor semi at 5:18 p.m. July 13. The rig was operated by Russell Tate of Ludlow, KY. Investigating officer was Trooper Dale Burger.

Several members of the K. C. Ku family were in Ozona last week to visit their friend, Mrs. Lowell Littleton. Mr. and Mrs. Ku came to the United States 18 years ago after fleeing communist China. Pictured are Dr. and Mrs. Wayne Ku and daughter Malinda, Mrs. Littleton, Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Ku, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Ku and sons Lowell and Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ku, daughter Amanda and son Andrew.

Ku family, Littleton have special ties

The K. C. Ku family of Dallas has a special attachment to Ozona. Ku remembers with gratitude and love the assistance given to his brother, Marshall, by Lucille Littleton and her husband, the late Lowell Littleton, while Marshall was an university student.

Invited to Ozona for Christmas with other international students by the Littleton and Pleas Childress families, Ku became a special friend of the Littletons who decided to sponsor his education. After about a year, First Baptist Church of Ozona began financial assistance to the young Chinese man, and the Littletons continued to put away the amount they would have provided in anticipation of the day he would need a car.

The kindness shown Marshall is the basis for a family friendship which has lasted through more than 20 years.

Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Ku, three sons and their families were in Ozona last weekend as guests at the Littleton home. Ku came to the United States 18 years ago, ending years of relocation while fleeing the communists.

After communists took all that his paralyzed father had, K. C. and his two brothers were told, "Go wherever you can go," Ku said. K. C. escaped in the late 1930's using a business travel permit. He became associated with a missionary, Dr. Culpepper, but later went back to the home of his parents for a time.

Ku joined Dr. Culpepper in Shanghai, and in 1947 was able to get 15 members of his family, including his wife and children, his parents and brothers to Shanghai. "Come to Shanghai; there is plenty of rice," the family was told.

The joy of escape was marred by the death from pneumonia of Ku's small son at the end of the boat trip.

After two years of work at a seminary, the Kus fled an almost totally communist occupied China, this time going to Taiwan. The following year, 1950, the family went to Hong Kong as refugees. In 1951, the missionary Culpepper opened a seminary in Taiwan, and K.C.'s oldest brother, Marshall, was encouraged to come to the states.

Marshall is now a pediatrician in Indiana. One of his children is a dentist, the other a doctor.

Two of K.C.'s children were already attending universities here by the time he and wife Ruth and other children arrived in 1971. Ku became a member of the finance department at First Baptist Church of Dallas where he was employed until his retirement three years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Littleton represented K. C. and Ruth Ku at the wedding of their son Charles. Mrs. Littleton gave a talk prepared by Ku who was not fluent in English at that time.

Charles' first son was named Lowell, and the second son was given the name Paul by Mrs. Littleton. Being allowed to name a child is a high honor in the Chinese culture, Mrs. Littleton explained.

Lowell, now 17, and Paul, 13, presented special music at First Baptist Church Sunday. Both played piano, and Lowell also played cello and Paul violin during the service. Lowell will give a recital at the Dallas Public Library Aug. 4.

The boys' father, Charles, is a member of the Texas State Board of Dental Examiners.

Wayne Ku is a dentist in North Dallas. Brother Dan is a technician for his two brothers and a sister in their dental business.

"There is no way to be alive without these friends and the grace of the Lord," said K. C. Ku speaking of his Ozona friends.

Future ag leaders plan convention in Dallas

Houston's 6,000 seat Astroarena filled to near capacity beginning Wednesday, July 12, when more than 5,000 Texas FFA members and guests attended the 61st Annual State FFA Convention.

Organized in 1928, the FFA is a national organization of students enrolled in agricultural education in 50 states, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and the District of Columbia.

Texas now has 947 FFA chapters with nearly 55,000 active members and more than 600,000 former members. Each state association is required to have a minimum of four chapters and at least 125 members.

The convention's keynote address on Wednesday, July 12, was delivered by Frederick D. McClure, assistant to President Bush for legislative affairs. A former national FFA secretary and Texas state FFA president, McClure received his bachelor's of science degree in agricultural economics from Texas A&M University where he was student body president.

He went on to earn his juris doctor degree in 1981 from the Baylor University School of Law and worked as a trial lawyer with the Houston law firm of Reynolds, Allen, and Cook. Additionally, McClure is a former Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo four-year scholarship recipient, having received his award in 1972.

During this year's state FFA convention, more than $535 thousand worth of educational scholarships were presented to selected FFA members. The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo gave away 50 four-year, $8 thousand scholarships at a cost of $400 thousand, almost 75% of the total scholarship money to be awarded.

The state convention is the highlight of a year's worth of activity by FFA members, and all chapter members are invited to attend. Delegates from each chapter conduct the business of the state association and elect officers to represent them in the coming year.

The convention will be divided into five general sessions, with the first session beginning at 9 a.m. Wednesday, July 12, and the last session beginning at 9 a.m. Friday, July 14.

These sessions will include election of the 1989-90 state FFA president from the state FFA officer candidates nominated by the ten area FFA associations. From ten area nominees, voting delegates also selected the state FFA sweetheart to represent the state association during 1989-90.

Other session activities included reports of retiring state officers, the national officer election runoffs, presentation of numerous awards and degrees, recognition of individual and chapter achievement in FFA contests and award programs, and the installation of new state officers.

Through active participation in the FFA, members learn by taking part in and conducting meetings, speaking in public, participating in contests based on occupational skills, earning awards and recognition, and becoming involved in cooperative efforts and community improvement. Every member carries out a supervised agricultural experience program as preparation for an agricultural career.

The ultimate objective for the organization is to produce future leaders for American agriculture with its vital role of producing food, fiber, and agribusiness employees.

Heat stress increases with humidity

Recent sporadic rains, coupled with the early onset of hot weather in Texas, have created a weather hazard usually expected later in the year—heat stress, or hyperthermia.

Even people accustomed to the Texas climate sometimes fail to realize the dangers posed by the combination of high humidity and heat. The affect of humid heat can be most dangerous for the very young, the elderly, and persons already weakened by illness.

Dr. Clift Price, Associate Commissioner for Personal Health Services at the Texas Department of Health (TDH) said a recent report shows that in an average year, 200 people in the U.S. die as a result of hot weather.

The report stated that overall mortality rates increase dramatically during severe weather. The National Center for Health Statistics has calculated that since an extreme heat wave was the unique factor during the summer of 1980, when mortality rates jumped sharply, as many as 1,700 deaths nationally may have been heat related.

Dr. Price said that high temperature alone is physically tolerable to most people, but in combination with humidity, it can cause a person's cooling mechanism, perspiration, to work overtime. "If one fails to replace the fluids and salts lost through perspiration, dehydration can follow," he said.

Symptoms of dehydration are muscle cramps, nausea, dizziness, headache and low blood pressure. If fluids are not replaced, heat stroke can ensue, causing sudden weakness, severe headache, loss of consciousness, brain damage and death if the victim is not quickly treated.

"To avoid danger of overheating," Dr. Price said, "people should dress in light-colored, loose-fitting clothing. They should drink more than their normal intake of water, and be sure to have water available if they need it. They also need good ventilation, and perhaps as important as anything else, they should take stock of their own physical conditions.

"Persons with heart or respiratory problems, and those taking certain medications, are especially at risk," he said.

Dr. Price said that in recent years, meteorologists have begun using the term, "heat stress index," referring to the relationship between temperature and humidity.

The heat stress index is a numerical table by which the National Weather Service rates the degree of discomfort a person may feel at a given temperature and humidity. Although the table does not allow for the variables of wind and shade, which can influence an individual's tolerance of heat and humidity, the index reading, like a thermometer reading, is useful in helping persons take needed precautions against hyperthermia.

A heat stress index of 105 is considered very dangerous.

To determine the current heat stress rating, using the National Weather Service index chart, find the index number in the column below

Flores rescued from fire in early morning call

Falling asleep while smoking in bed proved dangerous for an Ozona man Saturday. Alfredo Flores was found unconscious in a house full of smoke from a burning mattress after a neighbor alerted firemen that someone might be in the house.

Men Doug Meador and John L. Henderson used airpacs to enter the building where they found Flores who had partially slipped from the bed. Upon regaining consciousness, Flores refused medical help, said Fire Marshal Steve Kenley.

Firemen received the call to the 315 Largo home at 12:24 a.m.

A second fire call was received on July 15 when volunteers were summoned to the Pleas Childress Ranch at Turkey Roost. The call was received at 9:48 p.m. and trucks returned to the station at 11:35.

Volunteers found an injured ranch hand lying in a pasture Sunday while on their way to a fire on the Brooks Ranch. The man, an employee who was helping fight the range fire, had fallen from the back of a pickup.

Call them partners: birds called egrets feed on insects stirred up by grazing cattle. In return, the egret warns the cattle of danger by flying away.

He was taken to Crockett County Hospital and transferred to a San Angelo Hospital.

Eldorado sent trucks to this fire and two Crockett County water trucks also responded.

Volunteers assisted at a fire east of Big Lake July 10 when all their units were occupied with a fire north of the city. Mertzon and Barnhart also sent volunteers to assist the Big Lake units.

June Cameron named to Advisory Council for Concho Valley girls home

June Cameron has been named Crockett County representative to the Regional Advisory Council of Concho Valley Home for Girls. Mrs. Cameron is the wife of Tom Cameron of Ozona.

According to Patricia S. Rice, Board president, Concho Valley Home for Girls established the Regional Advisory Council this spring. Members will assist in disseminating information about the Home, giving feedback to CVHG from their home counties, and otherwise facilitating communication between the Home and the Concho Valley community.

Concho Valley Home for Girls operates two foster group homes in San Angelo for girls who cannot longer live with their own families. The agency was incorporated in 1969, and the first home began accepting residents in 1973. As the name implies, the Home serves the whole Concho Valley, offering a constructive alternative for girls aged 10 to 17 who are faced with a destructive home situation—abuse, neglect, or other serious family troubles. A number of children from the Ozona area have been served by the Home in the past.

The goal of the Home is to provide a safe and caring environment to help its residents surmount their earlier troubles and grow into happy, responsible, self-sufficient adults. Residents attend public schools and participate in social, cultural, and religious activities in the community. The Home's programs also incorporate tutoring, individual and group counseling, and training in independent living skills. Further information on the Home can be obtained by contacting council member Cameron.

Longest Day of Golf tourney August 7

A unique golfing event to benefit the American Cancer Society has been set for Monday, August 7, at Ozona Country Club. Ronald Koerth will chair the "2nd Annual Longest Day of Golf."

"Almost one in three persons will be diagnosed with cancer in his or her lifetime. Through events such as the longest Day of Golf, we are hoping to make an impact in this statistic by providing the necessary funds to fight the disease. The money raised by the American Cancer Society is used locally to provide assistance to the cancer patients we have right here in our community, as well as to support major research facilities," Koerth said.

"Because of the efforts of the American Cancer Society and all those who battle against cancer, we are looking at almost half of all patients surviving. Earlier detection and treatment could save even more lives—proof that we need to increase the programs of the ACS," he said.

"The American Cancer Society is helping persons here in Crockett County because it is a community-based organization. So we are encouraging everyone to support all the local efforts to raise funds," he continued.

The American Cancer Society is active in providing education to the public as well as to health professionals on cancer, its symptoms, treatment and prevention. It is a volunteer-based organization, relying on volunteer efforts of fundraising and education as well as service and rehabilitation to cancer patients.

To sign up for the Longest Day of Golf or to be a sponsor call Becky Childress, 392-2492 or 392-3216, Jeanie Wellman, 392-3264 or Ronald Koerth.

Local teacher featured in Abilene paper

Attending a week-long teacher's workshop in Abilene resulted in fame for Ozona's Rosalind Williams and Jo Parker of Eldorado. The two were pictured in living color on the front page of the Abilene Reporter in their "creatures from Ylberbia" costumes created during the workshop.

The training for classroom teachers was an exercise in incorporating music, art and drama into everyday teaching, Mrs. Williams explained. Teachers were shown how to use these skills to teach such subjects as math and phonics through songs with words composed to fit known melodies.

Facts learned through singing, dancing and body rhythms are retained twice as long as those learned by other methods according to Mrs. Williams who teaches music in the Ozona schools.

As part of their project, the two women created an imaginary country and culture which was an exercise in higher thinking skills.

The workshop was one of 14 sponsored across the state this summer by the Texas Arts Council. The sessions began last year to help meet state mandates that every elementary teacher teach music, visual arts and theater arts.

The workshops are led by specialists from the Fine Arts Council of Austin using a format developed by the Center for Learning Studies in Houston.

The workshop Mrs. Williams attended was at the Region XIV Education Service Center in Abilene. "A workshop planned for San Angelo was cancelled because of lack of interest," she said.

Mrs. Williams was enthusiastic about the week of training. "The method needs to be used more. It gets kids up from their desks, and they learn better with movement."

Small business disaster loans offered

Mr. Julio G. Perez, District Director of the Small Business Administration (SBA) office in San Antonio, announced today that SBA has expanded its declaration for Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDLs) to small businesses in adjacent counties to declared counties that have sustained economic injury losses as a result of severe storms, tornadoes, and flooding in Texas, occurring May 4 through June 15, 1989.

The counties eligible for economic injury loan assistance include McCulloch and Williamson counties. Adjacent counties include Bastrop, Burnet, Concho, Crockett, Lampasas, Lee, and Mason. Other counties include Menard, San Saba, and Travis.

If a small business was normally able to meet its bills and pay its operating expenses, but cannot do so now as a direct result of the disaster, it may be eligible. The loans, however, are not to cover physical losses.

Economic injury loans are limited to the financial needs of the applicant based on the actual economic injury and may be made for up to $500,000. The interest rate is 4 percent. Based on repayment ability, a loan may extend to 30 years.

This program is available only to small businesses which are able to meet SBA size standards and which do not have credit available elsewhere.

The deadline for filing for economic injury assistance is February 20, 1990. Businesses seeking additional information should call the SBA toll-free number, 1-800-527-7735.

Selected for the summer program were: Pablo Talamantez, Adrian Vargas, Pete Ramirez, Griselda Tambunga, Gerald Ortiz, Luis Rico, Gabriel Flores and Michael Flores.

Use the right appliance for the job.

When you need to bathe the dog, there are better things to use than a washing machine.

And when you need to cool and heat your home, there are better things than a heat pump.

A heat pump can't cool your home in summer as well as a high-efficiency air conditioner. And it can't warm your home in winter as well as a natural gas furnace.

Think of winter this summer. For comfortable efficient heating in your home, the most effective appliance ever made is a natural gas furnace. Period.

Meador travels with CareLink Copter

Doug Meador, Crockett County's paramedic, waited a year and a half for one day as part of the Lubbock General Hospital and Methodist Hospital's CareLink.

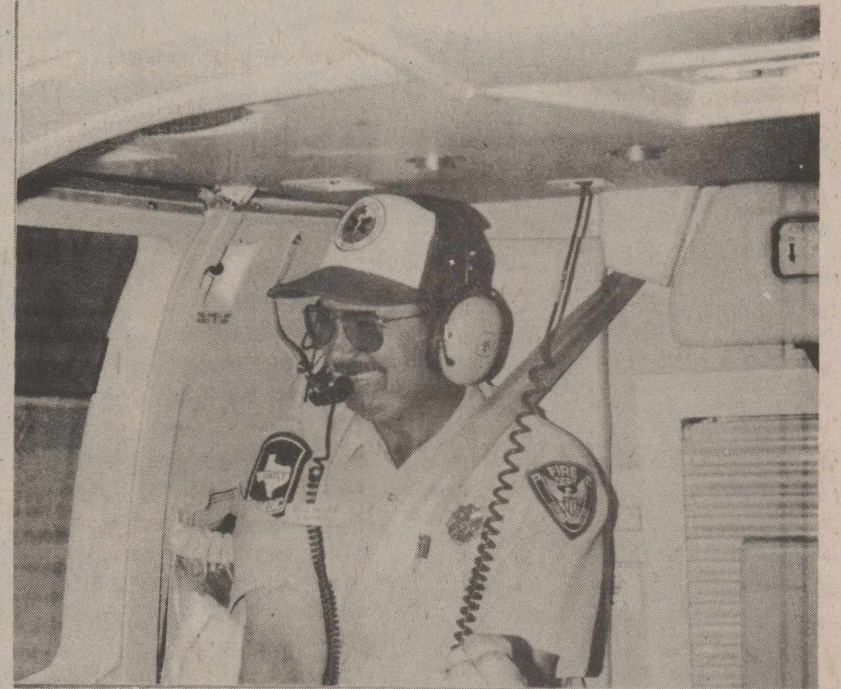

The air transport helicopter program area covered by rescue personnel is within an 80 mile radius of Lubbock and a 200 mile radius by physicians or referring institutions. However, the CareLink helicopter would serve this area if called, Meador said.

The Lubbock program is the only EMS helicopter system in the nation that flies with two pilots, Meador said. In addition to the pilots, the flight crew consists of a registered nurse and registered paramedic. Meador rode as part of a guest observer program.

"It was excellent," Meador said of the experience. The medical helicopters carry all kinds of medical equipment.

Fellow Ozona EMS member John L. Henderson was scheduled to participate the next day but had to cancel due to other obligations. The program now has a three-year waiting list.

During Meador's day with CareLink, the crew made transfers of criti-

Crockett County Public Library News
by Louise Ledoux

Crockett County Public Library has had several outstanding books on golf donated in memory of Dick Webster. If you are a golf enthusiast, or an Ozona history buff, don't miss Dogleg Madness. It is a wonderful story of the diversity of golf and people who play golf, written by an almost home-town boy, Mike Bryan. Mike is the grandson of Myrtle Post, and he has dedicated this book to her.

The following excerpts are taken from the book jacket and the text. "PAR is a three-lettered code, the double helix that has eluded us all these years. For amateur golfers, par is a hopeless quest—and quest is the right word. Playing any game without hope of excellence has all the earmarks of tilting at windmills. Not only do we play without hope, we play without Don Quixote's delusions. We feel the joyful anticipation on the opening tee as we ponder our first big shot down the fairway, but we aren't deceived. The little white ball mesmerizes us with its black magic, and we dream—but we don't lie. We know what's in store for us.

"Mike Bryan travels from the U.S. Open at Shinnecock Hills to an event unique in the annals of golf writing: the 1986 Ozona Country Club's Invitational, held in the harsh flatlands of West Texas, featuring every caliber of swing and stroke imaginable, and started with the firing of a pistol at 8:30 a.m.

"Dogleg Madness conveys more about golf than any other account of the sociology and history of the game, from the mentality of the fan and the architecture of the swing, to the greatness of Bobby Jones and the temper of Tommy Bolt, the horrors of the shank, the impact of year-round irrigation, and the trials of metropolitan golf with Bryan's long standing Brooklyn foursome. The portraits of the players range from demigods to duffers: the legendary Golden Bear, Jack Nicklaus, to the lesser-known pros like Miller Barber and Horses; Williams, a cowboy-hatted pillar of the Ozona club.

"Bryan ponders the riddles of the game, including the curse of his own 'beautiful swing' that has never granted him the peace of par golf. He works his swing and humility at the great Scottish courses, reports on a lackluster betting auction—a Calcutta—during the Ozona tournament, dines with the charmingly eccentric pro, Mac O'Grady, and stomps through the mud with Nicklaus on a new layout under construction in North Carolina. All the way from the popularization of the game in the States before the turn of the century by Commodore Vanderbilt and other hitters to contemporary players' absorption in Zen as a way of improving their play, Bryan covers the range of this tormenting endeavor. In short, Dogleg Madness is the best explanation of why so many of us are consumed by the desire to hit this little ball better than we do."

Mike Bryan was the coauthor, with Keith Hernandez, of If at First, the autobiography of the National League first baseman. Formerly an editor at and now a contributor to Golf Magazine, he has written for many other publications. He lives in Houston.

Don't miss Dogleg Madness, it's a wonderful summer read!

County 4-H record books all win blue ribbons

All five of the 4-H record books submitted for district judging last week brought home blue ribbons, according to Tedra Ulmer, Crockett County Extension Agent-Home Economics.

"This is something we're really proud of and I think it shows how much time and effort our 4-H members put into their projects," Ulmer said.

Every record book submitted is given a ribbon award for quality. In addition, books are ranked first through third. Senior-level books which win first are eligible for state competition. If they win at state level, they are sent on for national judging.

John Williams, son of Larry and Elaine Williams, placed first in the range management category. A senior, Williams' book will be sent on for state judging.

Katharine Durham, daughter of Neal and Tedra Ulmer, placed first with her intermediate-level book in the achievement category. Martha Mayfield, daughter of Kathryn and Richard Mayfield, placed first in the intermediate division in range management.

Tamie Reagor, daughter of Billy and Judy Reagor, placed second in the senior sheep category, and Andy Stokes, son of Tom and JoNel Stokes, placed third in senior beef cattle.

Judges from Crockett County who traveled to district headquarters at Fort Stockton for the event were Jill House and JoNel Stokes.

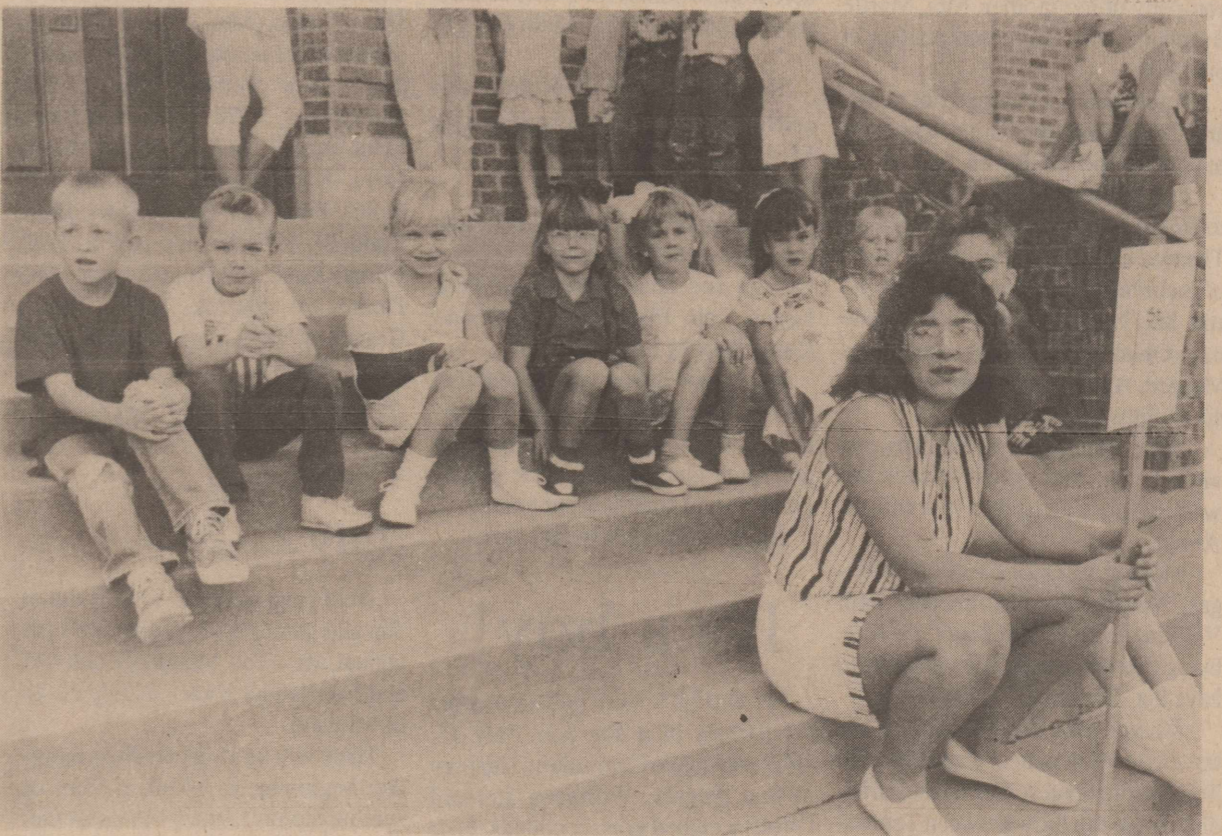

The 4-H record book program is designed to teach 4-H members skills in record-keeping and writing. It also is the source of scholarships and trips for senior 4-H members, both on the state and national level.

"We would like to encourage any 4-H member and his parent to check into keeping record books. After judging this week I can truly say they make an impressive statement about the activities the 4-H members participate in throughout their 4-H careers," noted Ulmer.

For more information about record books or the 4-H program contact the Crockett County Extension Office at 392-2721 or come by the office which is located on the second floor of the courthouse annex.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, national origin or handicap.

Expressions of anticipation are on the faces of children at the Baptist Vacation Bible School Monday. Classes are for 3-year-olds to sixth grade from 9 to 11:30 a.m. July 17-21.

Bentsen pushes immunization relief

A lot of people think the vaccines developed by modern medicine have eliminated most childhood diseases.

Unfortunately, that's not true.

Over 40 percent of American children under four years old don't get their basic immunizations. In fact, the percentage of childhood immunizations has declined in the 1980s. Looking at these figures, it's no surprise that we've seen a sharp upsurge of measles, mumps and whooping cough among our children.

But the problem runs much deeper. As one health care group recently noted, America faces a "child care crisis" because many of our kids are not getting the basic health care they need.

The signs are there. More than 40,000 infants die in this country each year. The infant mortality rate in the United States is the worst among 18 industrial nations. And studies show millions of American kids are needlessly ill each year from a lack of preventive medicine and proper nutrition.

Why aren't our children getting the medical attention they need? A big part of the problem is the inability of families to get and keep health insurance. Of the nearly 40 million Americans without health insurance, over 13 million are children.

We're not just talking about our country's poor. Practically a third of these uninsured kids come from families whose annual wages range from the poverty line to nearly twice the poverty line. That means a parent working full time for wages even above the minimum wage often have less access to a doctor than one on welfare.

We cannot allow that to continue. It makes no sense, socially or economically.

Every dollar invested in immunization means ten dollars saved in the treatment of childhood illnesses. Annual health care costs for children who regularly visit a pediatrician are ten percent lower than for those who do not.

As Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, I recognize the dangers and expense caused by inadequate health insurance for our children. That's why I sponsored legislation to make such insurance more available to working families. It was recently approved by the Senate.

Under my plan, families would receive a tax credit toward the purchase of health insurance for children up to age 19. The credit would pay as much as half the costs of the insurance, up to $500 a year. The tax credit would be refundable, which means families would benefit from it even though they earn so little that they pay no taxes. The amount of the tax credit declines as a family's income rises and would phase out completely for those whose income exceeds $18,000 a year.

Making health insurance— and medical care— available to children is an investment that will pay rich dividends for all of us.

It costs much less to pay for an ounce of prevention than to buy a pound of cure.

Happy birthday, Juan Molina, who celebrated his 80th, Wednesday, July 11, 1989.

Visiting Dr. and Mrs. Joe B. Logan over the weekend were their children George and Sharon Reid and Patti Logan from Plano, also Kelli and Casey Brooks from Temple.

A very special day was celebrated on the 14th as it was "Doc's" birthday. They reported a very lonesome and quiet house after all the grandchildren and friends went home. Happy belated birthday, Doc.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Schwertner are the parents of a son born July 11, 1989, in Angelo Community Hospital in San Angelo. Wolfgang Bernard (Wolf) weighed in at six pounds, 11 1/2 ounces and was 19 inches long.

Grandparents making him welcome are Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Clary of San Angelo and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Schwertner of Van Court. The baby's great-grandparents are H.R. Schwertner of Temple and Mrs. Viola Neal of San Saba.
