Firemen battle structure fire

Ozona volunteer firemen worked three calls to grass fires and one structure fire during the Aug. 30-Sept. 4 period.

A 4:23 p.m. call to the Demp Jones Ranch Aug. 30 required 150 gallons of water to extinguish a small grass fire started by welding.

Two trucks and six men responded, returning to the station at 5:02 p.m. Local volunteers assisted Sonora

Aug. 31 with fires on Hwy. 277. The call was received at 7:27 p.m., and volunteers returned to the Ozona station at 2:55 a.m. after using 300 gallons of water.

A Sept. 4 fire in Farmers Field on the Crockett/Reagan Co. line drew volunteers from both counties. One Ozona truck went to the S&W Disposal site at 10:27 a.m. and returned at 12:31 p.m.

Cause of fire was unknown; approximately 100 acres burned.

A structure fire July 2 on Piedras Street damaged a storage building belonging to the Robert Daniels.

Two trucks and 10 men answered the 3:46 p.m. call, using 800 gallons of water.

CA man seriously injured in I-10 crash

A California man was seriously injured in Crockett County Sept. 3 when the vehicle in which he was riding overturned west of Ozona. According to the accident report, driver Jacinto Lara of San Jose, CA apparently went to sleep an ran off onto the loose gravel at 3:40 a.m.

The driver overcorrected the 1984 Toyota which began sliding sideways, then swerved on the road, striding a bridge rail on the south side of the roadway before overturning one-half time.

Raymond David Saenz Jr., 23, also of San Jose, lost hand and leg in the accident. He was taken to Crockett County Hospital by EMS ambulance and transported to a San Angelo hospital.

Lara was wearing a seat belt and received only minor injuries.

Cocaine and marijuana seized at local residence by officers

A quantity of suspected cocaine and a quantity of marijuana were found at a residence on South Highway 163 Aug. 30 when sheriff's deputies executed a search warrant.

Charged with possession of cocaine with intent to sell and possession of marijuana were Noe G. Guerra, age 22, and Patricia Lara, age 24.

Charged with possession of cocaine was Augustine G. Guerra, age 23.

The cases will be referred to the Crockett County Grand Jury for action.

Arrests for the week ending Sept. 5 included:

8-30 John A. Fierro Jr., age 27 of Ozona, was arrested by sheriff's deputies on charges of public intoxication following a disturbance at a private residence. He was released 9-3 after laying out his fine.

8-30 Nino Tambunga, age 23, was arrested by sheriff's deputies on a charge of driving without a driver's license. He was released 8-31 after paying his fine.

8-31 17-year-old Kesa Rae Maynahonah of Oklahoma was arrested by sheriff's deputies on a warrant charging assault. She is still in county jail, and the case has been referred to the county attorney for prosecution.

9-2 42-year-old Michael Kenneth York of California was arrested by THP on charges of driving while intoxicated. He was released the next day after posting bond.

9-3 21-year-old John Mansell Clark of Ozona was arrested by THP on charges of driving while intoxicated. This is a felony case and will be referred to the Crockett County Grand Jury for action.

9-4 Two California men, Charles A. Williams, 30, and Guy a McClure, were arrested by THP while driving a vehicle that was reported stolen from California. They are in county jail awaiting action from California.

INCIDENTS;

9-1 Sheriff's deputies investigated an incident in which three persons had been attacked by a dog in the 900 block of Ave. J. Sheriff's deputies contacted the owner of the dog. The animal was later destroyed with the consent of the owner.

9-3 Sheriff's deputies investigated a report of a broken windshield on a pickup belonging to Mr. Ted Cotton. The damage was apparently done by water balloons.

Deputies located three teenagers who were involved. It is expected that the damage will be repaired with no charges being filed.

I-10 accident claims life of CA man

A Resenda, CA man died in a one-vehicle roll-over Friday at 3:03 p.m. in Crockett County. Emerson Dale Miller, 69, was pronounced dead at the scene by Judge Kathryn Mayfield.

According to investigating officer, DPS Corporal Dale Taylor, the Miller vehicle was westbound on I-10 when it ran off the right-hand side of the road on the unimproved shoulder. The driver then overcorrected, crossing the median and eastbound lanes before coming to rest rightside up on the south unimproved shoulder.

The Chrysler overturned an undetermined number of times, and the driver was not wearing a seatbelt.

The accident was not included in the holiday weekend DPS Motorcade count which began at 6 p.m. Friday.

Ross receives highest Scouting honor Aug. 19

Joe Charles Ross received Boy Scouting's highest honor Aug. 29 when he was presented in an Eagle Court of Honor at the civic center in the presence of his parents, fellow Scouts and other friends.

Ross, a 1989 graduate of Ozona High School, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ross.

Larry Huff, district executive of the Permian Basin District, opened the session of the court of honor, an event marking the end of seven years of Boy Scouting for Ross.

In explaining the Eagle award, Kim Squiers stated that approximately 50 million boys have been in Scouting since 1910, and approximately 500,000 - or one percent - of these Scouts have achieved this great honor.

Squiers continued by saying that the Eagle Scout badge represents ability to be of service to fellowmen by saving life in emergencies, an understanding of community and nation and a willingness to help others, a job started and finished, good hard work (on the average, it takes three years to achieve the award) and strength of character.

"The Eagle Scout badge is a symbol of what a boy has done; but, more important, it represents what the Scout will be in the future as he continues to grow into manhood," Squiers concluded.

On his course toward the Eagle rank, Ross has earned badges in: camping, citizenship in the community, nation and world, communications, lifesaving, environmental science, first aid, swimming, personal management, safety, canoeing, pioneering, nature, orienteering, mammals, archery, reptile study, cooking, hiking and personal fitness. He has served his troop as patrol leader.

For his community service project, Ross, assisted by Keith Sessom, refinished three sections of folding chairs used in the halls of Crockett County Courthouse.

In becoming an Eagle Scout, Ross shares a common bond with astronauts Neil Armstrong, James Lovell, Brian T. O'Leary, Gerald Carr, Charles M. Duke, Don F. Eisele, Don L. Lind and Tony Llewellyn, and politicians Gerald Ford, Dolph Briscoe and Lloyd Bentsen, all Eagle Scouts.

Ross was escorted to the front of the room by Doug Meador and joined by an honor guard of Eagle Scouts Ray Don Myers (Scoutmaster) and Tooter O'Bryant as Dee Keilers gave the Eagle charge to live with honor, loyalty, courage and service.

When Ross repeated the words of the Eagle oath, he was joined by Myers and O'Bryant.

Huff concluded the meeting with words of praise for Scoutmaster Myers, Ross and his parents.

During the ceremony, Ross received the Eagle Scout certificate and letter of commendation from the BSA chief Scout executive presented by his father and the Eagle badge from Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross were honored by their son as he presented them with miniature Eagle pins.

Guests were given opportunity to congratulate Ross and his family before partaking of refreshments.

His and Hers

by Scotty and Linda Moore

Life on the town square may sometimes be slow, but rarely dull.

Recently while walking across the square, Beth Boyd, a member of The Stockman staff, was questioned by a young mother who was traveling cross country with her son, a boy of about 9.

"Is it all right for us to be here like this?" she asked from their resting place on a blanket. After being told that the park is used by many travelers and local people as a place of rest and relaxation, she wanted to know if there was much crime in Ozona.

After assuring the travelers that crime is low in Ozona, Beth went on her way.

A little more than an hour passed, and word went over the scanner that a deputy was out at the park with a woman who had lost her purse.

Heads went up in the office. Yes, it was the woman who had been resting in the park. The scene continued to unfold as the distraught traveler gestured while talking to the deputy. She rushed from spot to spot and even checked the garbage can for the missing purse.

A second deputy arrived and was dispatched to try and locate a vehicle which had been parked in the area. Moments later a scanner message cancelled the search. The purse had been found.

Our attention captured again, we watched as the woman brushed a tear from her cheek. Overcome by relief, she took a seat on the curb, obviously still talking to the deputy and gesturing broadly as she spoke.

The little boy, who had received some of the brunt of her fear and frustration, sat beside his mother as close as could be.

In awhile, the pair rose and walked to their car, arms around each other.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Even veteran Capitol operatives were shocked last week by reports that some lawmakers have used political donations to pay mortgages, buy cars and planes, and support their private businesses.

This revelation, at the end of a summer marked by weekly reports of questionable financial dealings by several state officials, may well doom passage of a constitutional amendment which would increase salaries for lawmakers.

More than that, as the public's image of a "Legislature for sale" grows, it's only natural for politicians to wonder if a clean house sentiment is brewing among voters.

The law says political funds are not to be commingled with or laundered for personal or private use.

The House promptly convened a committee to study whether a new law is needed to limit lobbyists' gifts and other political contributions.

Political gifts from persons wanting to do business with state officials has always been a part of Texas politics. Most trown on it, many excuse it, some abuse it.

The public perception is that such funds were always used in election campaigns.

Not so today. Some of the reported uses of political contributions include:

• State Sen. Bill Haley illegally loaned his nursing home business $15,000 from his campaign fund, and also lived in a lobbyist's Capitol-view condo for seven months before paying rent.

• Speaker Pro Tem Hugo Berlanga and state Sens. John Montford, Hugh Parmer and Eddie Bernice Johnson all used political funds to pay mortgages on Austin homes and condos.

• State Rep. Stan Schlueter, has regularly drawn $9,000 monthly from political funds for what he says is legislative business expenses—an apartment, two private club memberships, plus more than $53,000 spent on his private plane.

• Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's political fund draws $98,000 interest; Speaker Gib Lewis paid $17,850 income tax on his. The amounts of those balances were not reported.

• State Sen. Chet Brooks paid his one-man advertising agency $30,000 from political donations to pay for his work for the '88 Dukakis-Bentsen campaign, though he admitted the campaign did not hire the Brooks Agency.

So far, Haley is the only one to admit to an illegality, one he said was made mistakenly, not deliberately, and he repaid the loan with interest. As to whether these and other revelations offend the public sense of propriety, only time will tell.

Campaign Heating Up

Democrat Ann Richards sailed her gubernatorial campaign up the Intracoastal Canal on a 60-ft yacht, calling it a first-hand look at the needs and problems of the Gulf Coast.

She also became the first Democratic hopeful to address the tax issue, saying the sales tax will have to be broadened to keep Texas afloat, but opposing a state income tax.

Along the way:

• Richards said the state was ill-prepared to contain and clean up massive oil spills.

• The Coast Guard charged that the Asian-made yacht was chartered without a license, was the subject of a license hearing last year and faces another this year.

• Republican opponent Kent Hance sent Richards a life preserver and a message that her liberal tax-hike philosophy will sink the state. Her campaign manager sent back a snorkel and mask, saying Hance "is in over his head" and called Hance a liar.

Candidate List Grows

Two Republicans announced for attorney general: State Sen. Buster Brown of Lake Jackson and state Rep. Pat Hill of Dallas. Both blasted incumbent Jim Mattox for politicizing the AG's office.

Brown vowed a war on drugs, but Hill said that since Brown voted for an AG retirement increase, he may be ineligible.

Steel Imports Questioned

Congressman John Bryant, D-Dallas, a candidate for attorney general, asked feds to investigate whether two U.S. companies can import South African steel for use in a 4,100-foot bridge over the Houston Ship Channel.

The bridge is a state highway project and may be partially funded by federal dollars. Bryant wants to know if the importation violates the Anti-Apartheid Act of 1988.

Other Highlights

• The highway commission approved widespread, random drug and alcohol testing for probably 75 percent of its 11,000 employees.

• A state district judge refused to dismiss a lawsuit filed by several counties against the state for failing to transfer convicted felons from county jails to state prison.

The state prison system is under federal court order not to overcrowd prisons, but the bottleneck has proved expensive to county governments, which must pay for additional local jail costs.

Flattery will get you nowhere. This is especially true when you give it to yourself.

Local club celebrates Square Dance Month with new class

"Do a do-si-do, then an alaman left..." Part of a foreign language? No, it's part of a fun, active sport and that is square dancing.

"It's a nice way to get a little exercise, have some fun with others and learn some new moves..." according to Roddy Arnett, president of the Ozona based Levis and Lace square dance club.

September is national square dancing month, and the local club begins lessons to honor the month. Interested people, singles or couples, are encouraged to show up at the Perry Automotive building Thursday, Sept. 7, at 7 p.m. to learn more about square dancing.

Bob Bell is the caller with the able assistance of his wife, Elaine.

Square dancing is active in every state in the USA and in most countries of the world. There are square dances held all over West Texas regularly. It is also a clean activity as no drinking is allowed at square dances and families can bring their children.

"We are fortunate in Ozona to have Bob, who is the local caller. Many towns our size must import a caller. I want to invite anyone who is interested to come on out Thursday and see what it's all about," Arnett added.

Hotel Cactus may go condo

A landmark on the San Angelo skyline, the Hotel Cactus may go condo if sufficient interest is shown by potential buyers. A midwestern investor is considering remodeling the historic property originally operated by hotel magnate Conrad Hilton.

Announcement of the revitalization project was made by Alvie Cole, a Sterling County rancher who sells commercial properties and ranches for insurance companies and banks. Cole declined to identify the investor who has been interested in the vacant hotel for several years. Cole explained the man is interested in building apartment units designed for the individual buyers.

The multi-million dollar project has attracted other investors interested in underwriting the effort with the prospective buyer, Cole said.

"A minimum of 65-75 people committed to buy apartments are needed before this man would make a final purchase agreement for the historic hotel," explained Cole.

The 14-story, 235-room structure could include as many as 109 custom apartments. Construction costs would run in the $40-$55 per square foot range.

Originally opened on May 31, 1929 as the fifth Hilton Hotel, the Hotel Cactus was recognized for its historical and architectural importance in 1984 by its inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places by the United States Department of the Interior. Golda Foster, chairman of Eastern Star members plan Sept. 7 supper

Eastern Star Chapter No. 287 of Ozona will be hostess to the Masons and wives of Ozona Thursday, Sept. 7. Supper will be served at 7 p.m.

All Masons, wives and Eastern Star members of this area are welcome.

Sue Spoons home after Alaskan trip

Sue Spoons returned to Ozona Aug. 17 after a three month stay at Kenai Peninsula, Alaska, with son Kent and family. While there, Sue caught several nice halibut while ocean fishing. She also went lake fishing and paddle boat riding.

The family went "dip netting" for salmon. The fish were jumping everywhere, and Sue watched as one skipped across the water and into a just lowered net at a nearby boat.

A trip to Fairbanks in Kent's plane enabled the travelers to see wildlife and the breathtaking snow-covered summit of Mount McKinley.

Another memorable event of the visit was viewing two baby moose just outside the house one night. "We heard a noise and went to the window to find two baby moose staring in the face," Sue said.

A special program will be given during the party which will be held in the back yard of Polly and Bud Mayes' home at 211 Mesquite.

Guests are asked to bring their own chairs if convenient.

Foreign oil dependency major concern for Lloyd Bentson

Alarming new statistics show that our country is becoming more and more dependent on foreign oil, threatening our economy and national security.

Recent data indicates that U.S. crude oil production has declined by over 1.5 million barrels a day since 1986, and it's continuing to get worse. For the first six months of this year, production dropped by 500,000 barrels a day compared to the same time last year. Meanwhile, demand for petroleum products continues to grow.

As a result, in only four years, our imports of oil increased by two-thirds — from 4.7 million barrels a day in 1985 to over 7.8 million barrels a day during the first half of this year.

The Library of Congress recently predicted that if these trends continue, the United States will import more than half the oil it uses by 1992.

We cannot let that happen. Not only does it put our national security in the hands of foreign oil producers, but rising imports worsen our trade deficit and threaten our economy. Right now, oil imports account for more than 41% of our international trade deficit — a 16% increase over last year.

Even more, reducing the amount of foreign oil we import will reduce the number of foreign oil tankers coming to this country. Fewer oil tankers reduces our risk of oil spills, which this past summer soiled our shores and inflicted billions in environmental damage.

The most effective solution will be a oil import fee, which would set a floor price on oil. But resistance in Congress to an oil import fee and the President's opposition make that an unrealistic option.

There are other promising initiatives, and we should pursue them.

As chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, I'll ask the committee next year to approve tax incentives to encourage domestic oil production.

Such incentives would make domestic drilling more cost effective for U.S. oil producers and make them more competitive with their foreign competitors.

This year is a difficult time to pass those incentives because we're not seeing enough real progress in reducing the budget deficit. There's no room for these incentives in the budget agreement reached by Congress and the President. But, I'm hoping that next year we will see some real cuts made in the deficit so we can enact incentives to boost U.S. oil production.

In addition, we should step up our efforts to research means of Enhanced Oil Recovery. We have 330 billion barrels of oil in the ground that we can't recover given existing technology and economic conditions. If we can make a breakthrough in Enhanced Oil Recovery that allows us to only get 10% of that oil, we would more than double proved oil reserves overnight.

We're not doing enough to fund EOR research. The Department of Energy currently spends only $23.5 million—or 6%—of its fossil energy research budget on EOR research. The administrations request for 1990 would drop that amount to $18.2 million.

That's why, as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, I will continue to do my utmost to encourage increased oil production in the United States and decreased dependence on the whim of some far off sheik or potentate.

Gas production down

Railroad Commission Chairman Kent Hance announced that Texas oil and gas wells produced 443,694,396 Mcf (thousand cubic feet) of gas in June, compared to the May gas production total of 465,218,919 Mcf. June production was down 0.63 percent compared to June 1988's production of 446,550,233 Mcf.

The state's top producing counties, rank ordered by preliminary June production were: Webb, 23,086,981 Mcf; Zapata, 23,084,399 Mcf; Pecos, 15,828,913 Mcf; Hidalgo, 13,833,887 Mcf; Panola, 12,057,518 Mcf; McMullen, 8,977,914 Mcf; Hemphill, 8,654,116 Mcf; Crockett, 6,473,740 Mcf; Nueces, 6,389,277 Mcf; and Matagorda, 6,062,667 Mcf.

Texas gas production in June came from 189,247 oil wells and 46,783 gas wells.

Hildebran authors bill for temporary racing permits

District 67 State Representative Harvey Hildebran has announced that he will author legislation relating to horse racing at county fairs and other non-profit organization events. According to Hildebran, a Republican from Uvalde, he will file a bill during the next regular legislative session that would allow temporary permits at these events, effectively relaxing regulations and standards by the Texas Racing Commission.

As the statutes are now, most county fair facilities do not qualify for a horse racing permit from the Racing Commission. Representative Hildebran's bill would enable the county fairs to receive a temporary racing permit while under less harsh regulations by the Commission.

"When the horse racing bill was passed, county fairs and non-profit organization events were overlooked," Hildebran said. "The bill did not include provisions that exempted these types of races and essentially prevented them from carrying on this fine Texas tradition. My proposal seeks to address this situation and gets us back in the saddle."

Representative Hildebran, also, did not rule out the possibility of filing this piece of legislation in the upcoming called Special Session this Fall.

Decline in water levels recorded

Some drought-stricken parts of Texas are reporting declines in ground water levels.

The Texas Water Development Board maintains a ground water level monitoring network of more than 5,400 wells that are measured annually for assessment of ground water amounts available in the state. Several key indicator wells are equipped with recording devices to provide continuous monitoring of water levels in various aquifers around the state, said Billy Reagor, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Despite the recent heavy rains in eastern and upper coast areas of Texas, five of seven recorders showed slight declines in water levels from the past month, and six of the seven showed declines from the previous year.

Two wells showing an increase in the past month were both in areas that received substantial rainfall. A well in Dallas County monitoring the Twin Mountains (Trinity) Formation rose 0.31 of a foot above the May measurement, but was still 5.68 feet below the June 1988 measurement.

A Lissie Willis Sand Aquifer well in Harris County rose 0.45 of a foot above the May measurement, yet was 1.21 feet below the previous June measurement.

According to the Water Board, the only recorder well showing a rise in water levels from last year was a Carrizo aquifer well in Dimmit County that was 0.54 of a foot above the June 1988 measurement, said Reagor.

Unfortunately, little rain fell on the recharge zone for the southern portion of the Edwards aquifer that supplies ground water for the City of San Antonio. As the only major Texas city that still relies solely on ground water for its municipal supply, San Antonio is already facing the prospects of possible water rationing.

In June of this year, the Edwards aquifer was 16.50 feet below the level in June 1988 and has dropped more than 20 feet since April. As of July 7, 1989, the aquifer water level was at 632.5 feet above sea level. The record low for the aquifer is 612 feet above sea level, at which mandatory water rationing will be by the City of San Antonio. At this level, Comal Springs in New Braunfels will cease to flow.

Morales law will cost drug dealer big bucks

September 1, a state law that will allow local law enforcement officials to seize the assets, properties and businesses of drug dealers will go into effect.

The Asset Forfeiture law, House Bill 65, will crackdown on drug dealers who hide behind legitimate business ventures.

"This new law says if you choose to make your money selling drugs, you will pay not only time in jail time but with your car, your bank account and your property," state Representative Dan Morales, the author and sponsor of the bill said.

Morales, Democratic candidate for Attorney General, is chairman of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee and was the sponsor of the House Anti-Crime Package.

It is estimated seizures from the first year will net the state over $200 million.

"This is money local law enforcement agencies can use to fight drug trafficking in their community," Morales said.

Morales has promised to create a division of narcotics enforcement within the attorney general's office.

"It will be the primary responsibility of the division to actively organize and coordinate state, local and federal efforts to prevent drugs from entering our state and prosecute those involved in narcotics trafficking" he said.

Morales says the state should be in step with the new federal efforts to fight the importation and use of drugs and his Assets Forfeiture Bill will focus the state's efforts to play a major role in the anti-drug war.

New Star program opening at ASU

"Life Beyond Earth" is the new star program opening Thursday, Aug. 31, at the Angelo State University Planetarium.

Star programs in the ASU Planetarium are presented every Thursday at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 2 p.m. Tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for students, senior citizens, and ASU faculty and staff.

The new star program explores the possibility of extraterrestrial life in our galaxy and throughout the universe. It also traces the evolution of life on Earth and examines the future of space exploration.

According to Dr. Mark Sonntag, planetarium director at ASU, the possibility of other life forms in the galaxy has always been one of life's most intriguing fascinations.

The ASU Planetarium is located in the Nursing-Physical Science Building, just off the corner of Vandeventer and Johnson streets. For more information call 942-2136.

You have probably heard of a fellow named Murphy who had a law for every lousy thing that ever happened to him. I don't know who Murphy was, but he must have led less than a charmed life. His most famous rule was, "if anything can go wrong, invariably it will." And in case you are having a particularly bad day, I have 50 more of Murphy's Laws for you to consider:

1. Nothing is ever as simple as it seems.
2. By trying to please everybody somebody will be displeased.
3. By making something absolutely clear, someone will be confused.
4. Every clarification breeds new questions.
5. You can fool some of the people all of the time and all of the people some of the time and that is sufficient.
6. Persons disagreeing with your facts are always emotional and employ faulty reasoning.
7. Enough research will tend to support your conclusions.
8. A penny saved is a penny.
9. An easily understood, workable falsehood is more useful than a complex, incomprehensible truth.
10. The further away the disaster or accident occurs the greater the number of dead and injured.
11. No name, no matter how simple, can be correctly understood over the phone.
12. Things get worse under pressure.
13. Leftover nuts never match leftover bolts.
14. Them that has, gets.
15. People are always available for work in the past tense.
16. Opportunity always knocks at the least opportune time.
17. How long a minute is depends on which side of the bathroom door you're on.
18. The number of people watching you is directly proportional to the stupidity of your action.
19. Never step in anything soft.
20. Almost everything in life is easier to get into than out of.
21. When anything is used to its full potential, it will break.
22. The best way to make a fire with two sticks is to make sure one is a match.
23. Measure twice because you can only cut once.
24. All kookies are not in a jar.
25. Nothing is as simple as it first seems.
26. Everything you do costs more than first estimated.
27. It is a fundamental law of nature that nothing ever quite works out.
28. Whatever you set out to do, something else must be done first.
29. All things being equal, a fat person uses more soap than a thin person.
30. The tendency of smoke from a cigarette, barbecue, campfire, etc. to drift into a person's face varies directly with that person's sensitivity to smoke.
31. If you hit two keys on a typewriter, the one you don't want hits the paper.
32. The person who buys the most raffle tickets has the least chance of winning.
33. The driver's side windshield wiper always streaks and wears out first.
34. The first place you look for anything is the last place you will find it.
35. By working faithfully eight hours a day, you may eventually get to be a boss and work 12 hours a day.
36. The more urgent the need for decision the less apparent becomes the identity of the decision-maker.
37. The more complex the idea or technology, the more simple-minded is the opposition.
38. The only imperfect thing in nature is the human race.
39. It is a mistake to allow any mechanical object to realize you are in a hurry.
40. If it jams - force it. If it breaks, it needed replacing anyway.
41. Bad weather reports are more often right than good ones.
42. Don't worry about what other people are thinking about you. They're too busy worrying about what you are thinking about them.
43. The one time in the day that you lean back and relax is the one time the boss walks in through the office.
44. In designing any type of construction, no overall dimension can be totaled correctly after 4:30 p.m. on Friday.
45. Never do card tricks for the group you play poker with.
46. The traffic signals are always timed to be on red when you are in a hurry.
47. Gray hair always grows where it can be most easily seen.
48. No matter where you park in the parking lot, you will get a dent or scratch in your new car.

49. The copier always runs out of paper when you want to make a copy.

50. Excess fat always gravitates to your stomach and posterior first and always burns off there last.

Martinez to receive Silver Poet award

Elijah Martinez of Ozona has been selected by World of Poetry to receive the Silver Poet Award in 1989 in recognition of his past writing achievements.

The Silver Poet Award is given exclusively to honor poets who were active with World of Poetry in the past but have not corresponded in a year or more explains Eddie-Lou Cole poetry editor and a member of the World of Poetry Board. The award is designed to stimulate the interest of these writers and help them become productive poets again, said Cole.

Martinez received the Golden Poet award for the poem "Missing Children" at a World of Poetry awards ceremony held in 1987 in Las Vegas. The writer has since been named a Golden Poet for 1988 for his poem "My Candle Burns For You".

Senator Sims proposes that $200,000 of settlement money to be used to Study Pecos River fish kill

New Mexico lawsuit regarding a broken compact by New Mexico on the Pecos River water to Texas. The lawsuit has been ongoing for more than 40 years.

State Senator Bill Sims of San Angelo was informed by Renea Hicks of the Texas Attorney General's Office that Texas will receive approximately $14 million in compensation from New Mexico, to be paid in full by March 1, 1990. This compensation is reimbursement for water used in New Mexico which should, lawfully, have gone into Texas. Senator Sims was asked if he has suggestions about how the money should be allocated.

"I believe the money should go back to the people who were using the water from the Pecos River. It is impossible to give it to the people directly, and this would be most beneficial toutsers of Pecos River water," said Senator Sims.

Senator Sims suggested that the Governor's Office undertake a feasibility study to determine the best methods for using the $14 million in irrigation projects on the Pecos.

The Governor's office was sent a memo from Senator Sims in regards to how he though the money should be split up. Senator Sims said, grant $200,000 to a university to study the Pecos River fish kill problem that has been ongoing for the last five plus years; and put the rest into enhancing and developing the irrigation systems on the Pecos River.

Senator Sims has asked the Governor to open the call during the Second Called Legislative Session, to begin Nov. 14, to include the transfer of the $14 million from the General Revenue Fund to a special trust fund that would be established for the Pecos River irrigators and landowners. This fund could be regulated by the Red Bluff Water District No. 1.

Awake

By Rev. Connie Marroquin
Church of God of Prophecy

Paul exhorts the sleeping Christian, "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ will give thee light." Ephesians 5:14

Satan loves to lull Christians into a state of slumber, and they will feel very comfortable in that state, that all is well with their soul.

It is a well-known fact that man, as a rule, avoids responsibility and seeks to escape from it through various outlets. What is needed for a bored, dilatory Christian is inspiration. Inspiration is necessary in all worthwhile walks of life.

All of the great achievements of mankind were accomplished because man was inspired to push toward the mark he had set for his goal.

Paul wrote, "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philippians 3:14.

We are all facing eternity, and it is just a matter of time until each one of us will be ushered out of this life into another life. We will be called upon to give an account to God. "So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God." Romans 14:12.

There is not any escape from this accounting. It is as sure as eternity itself.

Today is the most opportune time to evaluate ourselves for any weak points in our spiritual lives, and, through prayer and inspiration from God, any spiritual deficiency will be changed to spiritual efficiency.

In this life only can we fulfill our commitments to God, according to our endowments. We will not have any second opportunity in eternity. God bless you.

Varsity Lions outman Van Horn Saturday

By Tammy Davee

Ozona massacred Van Horn 6-0 in Fort Stockton Saturday with a total of 372 yards gained. The Lions growled to a massive 65 total rushing yards with no penalties.

"Chris Denman threw four out of 12 for 117 yards alone," said Coach Don Payne, "and Danny De Hoyos threw one for five yards."

The Lions open regular season play Friday, Sept. 8, at 8 p.m. in Lions Stadium against the Sonora Broncos. Players listed on the varsity roster are seniors Chris Denman, Roger Martinez, George Ybarra, Lalo Rodriguez, Jason Tumlinson, Mark Fierro, Bruce Beasley, Andy Stokes, Danny Vasquez, Randy Judd, Isaac Leal, Pete Ramirez, Gabriel Flores, Robert Dominguez, Ricky Burger, Luis De La Garza and Sotero Fuentes; and juniors Danny De Hoyos, Jimmy Williams, Domingo Perez, Lonnie Martinez, Ruben Borrego, Michael Ybarra, Daun Williams, Cody Morris, Albert Talamantez, Lee Galan and Gilbert Rico.

Pick true problems when dealing with children

Parents should pick their battles wisely when it comes to problems concerning peer pressure and their children, a Baylor College of Medicine psychiatrist advised.

"Pick the things that are true problems. Parents should ask themselves if it really matters if their child is wearing a T-shirt with a hole in the back or shoes that are ridiculous in the parents' assessment," said Dr. Florence Eddins-Folensbee, child psychiatrist and assistant professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences, Baylor College of Medicine.

Peer pressure, pressure to conform to a group of people's standards or norms, begins as children start to communicate with others outside their families. Peer pressure peaks at the junior high level when some children influence others to do things they do not totally want to do.

"Wearing a funky hairdo may be a way of finding out who they are," Eddins-Folensbee cautions. "It is important to realize that children, especially teenagers, will do things to make themselves different. It is a way to find the things that interest them and is part of their natural development."

Parents should be concerned though, she said, if there is evidence of delinquent behavior, such as drug use, skipping school, or grades that suddenly drop.

"Parents need to communicate with their children. When a problem arises, it is time to sit down with the child and find out why the problem occurred," added Eddins-Folensbee. "If it is an ongoing pattern and not a one time problem, it may be time to seek professional help to change that behavior."

Children who feel supported by their own families and have the opportunity to participate in many activities are less likely to feel pressured to conform to a single group, she said.

"It is much easier for a child to say no if he is involved in a number of activities, such as swimming or soccer," Eddins-Folensbee said. "A child who is isolated and uninvolved will not have the confidence to say no to pressure because they naturally want to be liked by peers."

Peer group influence is important in a child's natural development since it teaches them to socialize in ways that will benefit them as adults. As children become confident teenagers, it is easier to say no to their peer group because of a stronger sense of self.

As for outgrowing peer pressure, Eddins-Folensbee adds, "I'm not sure that people really outgrow it. Adults join different clubs or do different activities to be part of a certain group."

"Concern for man and his fate must always form the chief interest of all technical endeavors."

—Albert Einstein

Technology is moving full speed ahead in Texas. Congress recently approved construction funds for the Superconducting Super Collider (SSC), and in doing so took a bold step towards advancing America's research capabilities.

Texas stands to gain hundreds of jobs with an annual payroll of $250 million, and the prestige of being the home of one of the world's most advanced research facilities.

So large is the scope of this project that businesses, scientists, universities and industry throughout the country are gearing up to participate in the construction and operation of the SSC.

But for all the excitement in the scientific community, the question remains for most Americans: what will the SSC mean for me and my children?

Perhaps the most important contribution to be made by the SSC is the new products and technological advances it will promote.

Washington Update

By Congressman Lamar Smith

Unlike any previous facility of its kind, the SSC will enable scientists to break down atoms into their most basic particles.

Identifying and understanding these particles will not only increase our knowledge of how the universe was formed, but will stimulate innovation and discovery in areas such as computing, electronics, chemistry and biotechnology.

Our daily lives could very well be effected by technological advances made as a result of research performed with the SSC.

High energy physics have proved useful in the past for the development of the X-ray machine, one of our most basic medical tools.

X-ray technology has advanced to the point where we now use it to treat inoperable tumors and to inspect materials for structural defects (for instance, to detect flaws in bridge girders).

In addition, electron radiation has enabled us to develop extremely fast photographic films and to develop "biological micro-holography"—a technique to analyze living tissue in three dimensions at the microscopic level. It is also used in the manufacture of micro-miniature electronic circuits.

Devices and processes used by scientists in high energy research have also found wider application. Products such as digital computing circuits, whole-body scanners used in hospitals, and high power amplifiers in broadcast stations are closely related to tools developed for use in the laboratory.

We are poised to take a giant step forward towards a better understanding of our physical world. In doing so we are ensuring that America is not left behind as the world moves further into the science-based, high-technology economy of the future.

But in the midst of all our fast-paced advancement we must not forget the fate of mankind.

If improvement of our world for future generations is the goal, then we must pursue scientific knowledge whole-heartedly.

Without this vision and without this commitment we cannot succeed.

The drive and ambition to be the best has made America number one time and again. With the help of the SSC we can re-establish our lead in science and technology. More importantly, we will be charting the course for our future.

Visiting

Clayton and Jason Dees of Brenham have returned home after a week's visit with Paw-Paw Charles and Nannie Beverly Preddy in Ozona. The two also visited with Uncle Mike, Aunt Tracey and Cousins Allison and Chuck Preddy. At week's end, Beverly drove the children to Fredericksburg where they met their parents to return home. Clayton and Jason are the children of Everts and Michelle Dees of Brenham.

Mrs. Lola Brown, Velda Toney and Valeta Couey returned home this week from a trip to Great Lakes, IL. Mrs. Brown drove to Arkansas where she picked up Velda and Valeta and on to Illinois where they attended the boot camp graduation exercises of Charles Dyess. Charles is the grandson of Charles and Lola Brown of Ozona. Charles will be at home for two weeks before reporting for schooling in Virginia. The trip was fun for all, but exhausting as they covered the many miles in just one week.

Traveling from Dallas this weekend to visit with Randy and Brenda Petty and children were Mrs. Petty's parents, Harold and Charlene Peikert.

Belated birthday wishes go to Dee Keilers who turned a year wiser Sept. 2. Hope you had a good day, Dee.

Visiting with Larry and Rita Hensley this week is Rita's mother, Betty Sigwing of Dallas. Rita enjoyed mom's visit greatly as she provided help in the Hensley's move to their new home.

Moving back to Ozona are Thomas and Theresa Sertain and family. They have moved from the Tampa, Florida area. Theresa is the daughter of Don and Judy Morris and granddaughter of Bess Barron. Grandmother Bess is enjoying having the great-grandchildren and proved so by baking the children up some cinnamon rolls which was to their delight.

Visiting with mother Cista Hernandez and family were Juan and Mary Ramirez of Garland. Mary is a former resident of Ozona and enjoys returning home when she can.

Joe and Hilda Villarreal of Eagle Pass were in town last weekend to visit with Arcadio and Angelina Cisneros and family. Hilda is a former resident of Ozona and daughter of the Cisneros.

Maxine Henderson has returned home after summer trips to Mississippi, Wichita, Kansas and Irving. Returning with her from Irving to extend the visit were her daughter and grandchildren.

Slim Bullard was a year wiser Sept. 3 and didn't even mention a word when asked how he was doing. Happy belated birthday, Slim.

Let and Liz Martinez returned home to Ozona from Fort Worth last weekend to attend the Tambunga reunion.

Trey DeLaGarza shopped for Dad Hector's birthday card on Monday. Dad turned 28 on Sept. 5. Trey went on to relate that he helped Dad shear sheep over the weekend and helped shoot a varmint. I had a hard time figuring out which event was more exciting for Trey. Happy birthday, Hector.

Mrs. Ken Frazier and son Daniel of Colorado Springs, CO returned home Thursday. They have been here two weeks helping Mrs. Frazier's mother, Mrs. Lela Nussbaumer, recuperate from a broken leg.

Drought projections mount

A projection of effects of weather related factors during 1989 on Texas crops and livestock indicates the impact to the Texas economy could top $3.5 billion.

This figure is the result of estimates compiled by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to emphasize the disaster that many Texas farmers and ranchers are facing as a result of unfavorable weather conditions, including drought, hail, and floods.

Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, extension service director, said that loss estimates were projected for major commodities and geographical areas by county extension agents serving all 254 counties of Texas.

"The impact of the drought and other weather related problems already is a grim reality in South and West Texas and throughout most of the state's wheat area," Carpenter said.

He said research indicates that the total economic impact on the production and agribusiness sectors of the state for each dollar of farm product sales is about $3.10.

"Therefore, the so-called domino effect of weather related losses through rural towns and the urban centers will result in significant impacts to the entire state," Carpenter said.

He said the wheat loss situation primarily is the result of cold weather in early 1989. The corn, sorghum, and cotton situation is mainly the result of drought, and is focused in the western and the southern part of Texas, although major hail damage has occurred in the South Plains.

Carpenter said the livestock analysis reflects added costs to producers of maintaining the livestock during the drought above normal costs. This also is concentrated mostly in South and West Texas, he said.

Additional livestock production costs that are drought-related are projected at about $507 million.

Total crop loss projections are estimated at about $975 million.

The biggest loss is expected to be in the cotton crop with about $465 million estimated. The wheat loss is estimated to be about $350 million, while the sorghum crop loss is projected at around $80 million.

Loss estimated to the Texas corn crop is about $70 million, and the unfavorable weather is expected to trim the rice crop by an estimated $15 million.

Carpenter said the total crop loss and livestock cost estimate to the producer is projected at $1.4 billion. The economic impact of projected crop and livestock losses is estimated at more than $3 billion, he said.

Dr. Carl Anderson, extension service economist, said all farm and ranch marketing cash receipts in 1988 totaled about $10.95 billion.

He said a marked increase in grain prices and a large cotton crop boosted sales substantially last year, while somewhat higher prices for cattle, broilers, wool, dairy, and poultry marketings helped increase livestock sales.

The agricultural production system in Texas is estimated to have an economic impact of about $35 billion. The entire food and fiber production, processing and retail marketing chain has about twice that impact, Anderson said.

Carpenter said the economic situation for the remainder of 1989 will depend on weather conditions where crops are still in various stages of production.

But for many producers in South, Southwest and Far West Texas where the drought has persisted severely for the past two years, it has already meant shattered dreams and devastation.

"The drought will worsen the rural crisis and its impact on Texas' people and towns. The agricultural industry's general health and problems will reach well beyond the farm and ranch gate," Carpenter said.

The report was coordinated by Dr. Chester Fehlis, state leader for county extension programs, in cooperation with Dr. Roland Smith, extension economist in agribusiness and marketing.

Adequate lighting makes sense for... reading, working and studying.

Use the correct lighting for all your tasks by remembering these lighting tips.

- When possible, move your light source around until you eliminate any shadows or glare to make it easier on your eyes.
- Look for a light source with soft, even illumination so the brightness is balanced down, out, and up.
- When buying bulbs, remember that the lumen rating tells you the light output of the bulb. The watts are how much electricity is needed to produce the light output. And bulb life is the estimated number of hours the bulb will burn.

Extension Connection

By Tedra Ulmer, County Extension Agent
"Texas Agricultural Extension Service."

Do preschoolers need coping skills?

Does your preschooler need the ability to cope with stress, peer pressure and attacks on his or her self-esteem? You bet your booties!

Every child, from a very early age, is faced with different types of stress. Consider the stress your child is under each morning as you take him to the baby-sitter or the day care center.

First, he or she may not be an early riser—and changing from a leisurely summer schedule to the first days of preschool may be a big shock to the system!

Second, being left in a new environment with strange people is frightening to small children—they don't really understand that Mom and Dad will eventually come and get them.

Third, your child is out of his natural "pecking order," whatever it may be around the house. Is he the only child? Oldest? Middle? Whatever, your child must establish his own place in this new society in which he's been placed.

So children need to be able to handle stress from an early age. How do you teach them, especially if you're not too great at handling stress yourself?

One way is to give your child alternatives—like having him pick out what he's going to wear that day (after you've provided suitable alternatives!) or having her help you choose what she's going to pack in her lunch.

Another idea is to let the child feel he or she is in charge. Ask them to take you on a tour of their schoolroom. Put them in charge of carrying their own things to the building. Sometimes it might not hurt to point out a child who is acting up at the prospect of being left and note that their behavior isn't very becoming.

And that takes us to peer pressure. Yes, even preschoolers face peer pressure—pressure to be prettier than little Sally or run faster than Mark or paint better than Juan. So how do you help them deal with it?

Constantly remind your child that he or she is special. That they have special talents and that there is only one of him or her in the world.

Point out and praise good work. Children rarely get the "bighead" from honest praise—and if they do their peers will take it out of them! Instead, we parents are so afraid they won't grow up to be modest about their achievements that we tend to downgrade them and minimize what they've accomplished.

Dealing with peer pressure also involves learning values and being able to stand up for what you believe in—so teaching your values to your children must really begin before they're old enough to understand what they are—they must be ingrained in their feelings and behavior.

Finally, attacks on self-esteem are constant among preschoolers. They're pretty uninhibited about name-calling and being ugly to each other. Again, giving your child a sense of being special and giving him or her strong values to fall back on can do a world of good.

So giving your child a lot of love and warmth and a feeling of security and belonging in your own family can do a lot toward protecting him or her in that big new world he's being faced with...a and the stress, peer pressure and attacks on self-esteem that go along with life away from Mom and Dad.

Take medical precautions when refinishing furniture

For do-it-yourselfers, the hours spent refinishing can result in the production of beautiful furniture - and headaches, dizziness or nausea.

According to Dr. Peggy Owens, a housing specialist, liquid paint and varnish removers are the culprits.

"Paint strippers are among the most toxic products used in home workshops. They contain solvents which can damage your skin, eyes, respiratory tract, nervous system and internal organs," she cautions.

Owens, who is with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, says that although do-it-yourselfers typically heed label warnings to use strippers in a well-ventilated area, they often don't realize how much ventilation is required.

"If at all possible, it's best to work on projects outside. When you must work inside, you'll need 10-15 exchanges of indoor air with outdoor air every hour," Owens explains.

The specialist says that rate of air exchange can be obtained with a window exhaust fan, but not an air conditioner.

"Air conditioners don't provide adequate ventilation for paint remover fumes because they recirculate air rather than exhausting it."

Owens also suggests that refinishers wear light-weight plastic splash goggles to prevent eye damage, and gloves to protect the skin.

All solvents will dissolve the skin's natural oil protective barrier, she notes, and after prolonged contact skin will turn dry and develop cracks. Some paint remover solvents will penetrate the skin and enter the blood stream.

"Plastic gloves made of blended neoprene and natural latex will withstand paint remover for a reasonable length of working time," the specialist says. "If you're using steel wool, put cotton gloves over the plastic ones to protect them from abrasion."

Once you have yourself protected, Owens advises protecting your property from fire hazards. The fire-causing potential of paint removers must be stated on the label, and will typically be stated as "extremely flammable", "flammable", or "combustible".

"Before starting a paint stripping project, turn off all pilot lights and remove sources of heat, ultraviolet light or flame in areas where fumes may circulate. If you're working in a garage with a hot water heater, for example, be sure the pilot light is off."

As a final precaution, the specialist suggests that family members in poor health, children and pets not be allowed in areas where paint removers are being used or where fumes from them are present in the air.

Beta Sigma Phi initiates Crockett Room

The Alpha Alpha Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its first business meeting of the year last Monday week in the newly remodeled Crockett Room next door to Ozona National Bank. The lush verdant interior decorated with many paintings of local historical buildings made for a pleasant backdrop for the evening's business.

The board of directors consisting of Lori Williams, president; Tracey Preddy, vice-president; Donna Herschap, recording secretary; Teri Williams, treasurer; Kim Caddell, corresponding secretary; and Ellen Lipsey, extension officer, hosted the get-together. The year's calendar and budget were reviewed, and community work was discussed.

Other members attending were: Pam Bissett, Laurie Hale, Katece Hale, Debbi Bachman, Diane Anderson, Nancy Gillit and Monica Bendle.

Eating healthy while dining out

It is not surprising to discover that, on average, Americans eat out about four times each week. Our fast-paced lifestyles and the convenience of restaurants have made dining out the norm rather than the exception it once was. Even though you may eat out often, you do not have to sacrifice healthy eating habits, says the Texas Medical Association.

Many restaurants have become more health-wise and offer food that is grilled, poached, steamed, or baked rather than fried or sauteed. Even fast-food places are offering alternatives to burgers and fries, such as salads and baked potatoes.

Business travelers, who often eat on airplanes, can order special meals. Place an order at least 24 hours before your flight, and you can receive meals that are low in calories, cholesterol and sodium.

You can also make special requests in restaurants. Slight changes in food preparation and serving can be easy for the cook and healthy for you.

For instance, ask the waiter to put dressings and sauces on the side. Use small amounts rather than the entire serving. Ask that the fat and/or skin be trimmed from meat before it is cooked and that no butter or fat be added to the meat as it is prepared.

Order a baked potato instead of French fries and go easy on the butter and sour cream. Try substituting yogurt or lemon on your potato.

Disabled drivers to benefit from new law

Beginning Sept. 1, service stations that offer full-service refueling must pump gasoline and diesel for disabled drivers, upon request, at the self-service price. Stations that have only self-service pumps are not affected by the new law, passed during this year's regular legislative session.

To receive refueling service at the self-service price, a driver must display a disabled person's insignia, validation sticker, identification card, or license plates issued by the highway department.

The new law allows Class C misdemeanor charges to be filed against a station manager who does not establish a policy providing refueling service for the disabled driver.

Similar charges can be filed against an individual employee who is acting against station policy and refuses to provide this service when requested. The law will be enforced by the attorney general or a local prosecuting attorney.

Junior High acquires talents of two new teachers

By Tammy Davee
Approaching the junior high school to interview Mr. Sohl and Mrs. Aldridge, I began to think of the many teachers who have touched, motivated, guided and influenced as well as instructed students.

In interviewing these new teachers, I salute the many talented teachers out there in the world. Through your work, you have touched so many lives, and I would like to say thank you.

Mark Edward Sohl, husband to Suzy Sohl and father to seven children (three presently with him), took time from his busy schedule to talk with me.

The Sohls moved here from Alpine where he taught reading.

"People here were so very kind and helpful," said Mr. Sohl. "We knew this was a community we wanted to be a part of."

Mr. Sohl has a master's degree in reading and is certified in many other areas. This enables him to teach reading and speech to Ozona Junior High students.

The new teacher works with students to increase their reading capacity as well as communication skills. In his reading class, a student is not simply taught how to read but instructed instead on many branches and services afforded through a student's ability to read well. Students are taught how to read based upon the desired comprehension and difficulty of the text.

"You can't read a social studies text for test preparation as you would a comic book for entertainment," explained Sohl.

A student is also taught the fine art of skimming and scanning, as well as how to study and apply oneself to time organization so as to have study and leisure time plus the enjoyment of literature.

Mr. Sohl stresses that "They (students) can...they have the ability; they just have to try."

"I expect my students to strive for excellence," said Sohl.

To Mr. Sohl, a good student is not necessarily the one who brings home the straight A report card, but instead the student who can, will and knows how to apply him or herself to studies.

I first asked what concerns him both as a father and a teacher about the present day life of a student that was not a part of his growing up. I was not surprised to hear him speak of the usual enticements facing young adults. However, I was surprised by his answer when I asked what one thing he would change.

After a long pause, he said, "I wouldn't change anything. Yes, there are many negative elements, but there are also so many positive things. So many opportunities out there available here in Ozona as well as larger cities."

"Even though it's a dangerous time to live, it's also a thrilling, adventure-some time. Education has tremendous opportunities for them to become what ever they want to be."

Kathy Sewell Aldridge is the proud daughter of two retired Ozona teachers, Coach Rip Sewell and Ellen Sewell, a former librarian. Her husband's name is Vaden, and he too is a former Ozona student. They moved to Ozona from Spearman along with two daughters.

In Spearman, Mrs. Aldridge taught fourth grade. She is presently coaching Ozona High School physical education as well as girls' junior high basketball and track.

Mrs. Aldridge finds the change from fourth grade refreshing. Coming as no surprise to anyone who knows Coach Rip Sewell is the fact that he was the biggest influence on her choosing to be a coach.

To Mrs. Aldridge, the most important quality for a student is attitude. Good athletes always present themselves in a positive manner, according to Coach Aldridge.

The most important lesson of all, she believes, involves self-esteem: "You can do it, whatever it is, if you want it badly enough," she said.

When asked about sportsmanship, she said, "A good sport loses as well as she wins."

Mrs. Aldridge knows there are a lot more early pressures out in the world than ever before, but the one change she would make for young people would be self-esteem improvement.

I would like to extend a warm welcome to both these new teachers and their families.

Your news is always welcome at The Stockman. 392-2551.

Librarian to review for literary journal

Mrs. Sherry York of Ozona High School is one of 160 selected educators who write reviews for The Book Report: The Journal for Secondary School Librarians. The journal is read by approximately 9,500 subscribers in the United States, Canada and overseas.

The Book Report reviewers receive new publications and media which they read, examine, and write reviews of. After describing for librarians and other school staff the contents of the material and its application to the curriculum, they recommend whether or not to spend school funds on the product. Their experiences as educators who are in touch with students, teachers and school library programs enable them to be reviewers for The Book Report.

The Book Report reviewers provide an important service to the magazine's readership. They also develop expertise as media evaluators and bring the name of the Crockett County Consolidated Common School District to national and international attention. The school district joins with The Book Report in commending Mrs. York for her extra activity and outstanding professional achievement in the field of library science.

Reagan County Owls screech to victory

By Tammy Davee

The Reagan County Owls scrimmaged Ozona Junior Varsity Lions in Lion Stadium Friday and carried the game to a 4-2 victory.

Play opened with Ozona immediately advancing 20 yards from the line of scrimmage. The Owls then began a stand-off that kept the ball down as the Lions moved nearer their goal.

The Owls were persistent and well-motivated, but Ozona's Lions had the power and carried the ball across the goal line for a touchdown.

The now enraged Owls made a play for the goal, only to be brought down by the Lions. Unable to hold the team, the Lions were pushed aside for an Owl touchdown.

Faced with a tie, the Lions began a drive toward the goal. A pass was thrown, but it was too long. The Lions again took to the air for a completed pass, but the Owls were able to claw the running back down 15 yards from the goal line.

Another pass was thrown only to be intercepted by a high-flying Owl. Because the game was a scrimmage, the whistle was then blown and the teams placed back at the line of scrimmage.

Ozona's further aerial attempts failed, and Big Lake made a touchdown.

The mighty Lions scored the final touchdown before the game ended. "I feel we are greatly improved over last Friday's game," said Jerry Don Payne, head coach. "Our condition was better, but we still have a long ways to go before we're ready to play Sonora."

The first official junior varsity game will be played Sept. 7 against Iran at 6:30 in Lion Stadium.

Intermediate students receive books

Fifth grade students at Ozona Intermediate School will receive a gift book titled The Way To Go this year announces Joel Carrigan of The Ambassador Company of Gastonia, NC.

Making distribution possible in Ozona are Bill's TV and Appliance, The Cameras Two, Freddy Funeral Home and Village Drug. Many communities throughout the nation are participating in the youth development program centered by the books.

The Way To Go is a collection of eight short stories written to appeal to young people today while reinforcing traditional moral values. One of the stories emphasizes the importance of being a responsible person; another shows how highly honesty should be valued; another focuses on the danger of drugs and alcohol.

Carrigan describes the program as a response to a growing concern felt by parents and others throughout the nation. Too often, it is maintained, young people are the innocent victims of harmful influences that undermine the sound values parents are trying to teach their children in the home. National statistics on drug and alcohol related accidents involving teenagers, on missing children, teenage pregnancies, teenage suicides, are cause for alarm. The great majority of parents do not have these problems. Nonetheless, they worry about them: peer pressure is a strong influence on young people.

The response of the local sponsors of this program, when asked why they are participating in it, can be summed up as follows: "This community means a lot to me. Our young people are our most precious resource. They are our future. This program is good for our young people, their parents and our community."

De Hoyos earns bachelor's degree

Randy Tambunga De Hoyos, a 1983 Ozona High School graduate, received his bachelor of science from Angelo State University Friday, Aug. 18, 1989, at the Physical Education Building in San Angelo.

He was honored with a reception afterwards at Onesimo De Hoyos' residence. About 150 persons attended the reception. Guests attended from Andrews, Austin, Midland, Sterling City, San Angelo and Ozona.

Randy is presently employed as a director of an after school program in Fallsbrook. He resides at Oceanside, CA and plans to be a teacher and coach in Carlsbad High School Oceanside.

He is the son of Mr. Hector De Hoyos of Sterling City and Mrs. Lena De Hoyos of Ozona.

Groundwater to be protected by taxes

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Aug. 18 that his office will begin collecting a new fee that will be used to protect groundwater in Texas.

The new fee on delivery of petroleum products takes effect September 1. The fee affects only commercial deliveries of petroleum products such as gasoline, aviation gasoline and kerosene to retail outlets. The fee does not apply to gasoline and diesel fuel bought by the average consumer.

An estimated 3,500 taxpayers will be affected by the fee, passed into law by the legislature this year as part of the Groundwater Protection/Petroleum Storage Tank Remediation Fund.

"The fee creates a fund that can be used to clean up leaks and spills of petroleum products, allowing us to prevent groundwater contamination. Groundwater is a precious resource in Texas, and we must protect its purity," Bullock said.

The only petroleum products exempt from the fee are those used in chemical manufacturing and naphtha-type and kerosene-type jet fuel.

Certain uses of petroleum products are exempt from the fee, including those used by common carrier railroads and electric generating facilities.

The fee is collected by operators of bulk facilities, and paid by the person who requests withdrawal of the product from the bulk facility.

Bulk facilities include pipeline terminals, refinery terminals, and rail and barge terminals.

The fee amount is based on the Coast Guard Academy seeking applications

The United States Coast Guard Academy is now accepting and processing applications for appointment as Cadet, U. S. Coast Guard, Class of 1994. Applications are being accepted for both men and women. Appointments as Coast Guard Cadets are tendered solely on the basis of an annual nationwide competition with no congressional nominations or geographical quotas. Applications must be submitted to the Director of Admissions prior to 15 December 1989. Candidates must arrange to participate in either the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or American College Testing Assessment (ACT) prior to or including the number of gallons of the product taken from the bulk facility. Fees begin at $12.50 for less than 2,500 gallons and increase to $50 for between 8,000 and 9,999 gallons. The fee for 10,000 or more gallons is $25 for each increment of 5,000 gallons.

The fee will be collected until the fund reaches a ceiling set by the Legislature. The ceiling is $125 million through August 31, 1991. Beginning September 1, 1991, the ceiling is $100 million as of September 1, 1991.

The Texas Water Commission will administer the fund and the groundwater protection cleanup program.

For more information about the petroleum product delivery fee, call the Comptroller's toll-free number at 1-800-252-5555.

December 1989 ACT and SAT test administrations.

Appointments as Cadet are tendered based on the candidate's high school record, performance on either the SAT or ACT, and leadership potential as demonstrated by participation in high school activities, community affairs and/or part-time employment. Most successful candidates rank in the top quarter of their high school class and have demonstrated proficiency in both the mathematical and applied science fields.

Candidates must be unmarried at the time of appointment, have no legal obligations resulting from a prior marriage, and must have reached the age of 17 but not 22 by July 1, 1990.

All candidates must be assured of high school graduation by June 30, 1990. All candidates must have completed a minimum of three years of English, and three in mathematics to include algebra and plane or coordinate geometry or their equivalents, and must fulfill basic physical requirements.

Coast Guard Cadets obtain an excellent undergraduate education at no personal expense. In addition, they receive pay and allowances fully adequate to fulfill their ordinary living expenses. The constantly updated Academy curriculum leads to a Bachelor of Science degree with a strong academic emphasis on engineering and science. The selected major studies, when combined with varied elective courses, establish a solid foundation for a challenging career. Graduates of the Academy are commissioned as Ensigns in the United States Coast Guard. Selected officers may pursue further postgraduate education and specialized training at many leading civilian and military graduate or professional schools, in such fields as aviation, business administration, electronics, engineering, law and oceanography.

The young Academy graduate can look forward to a varied, exciting, and demanding career as a regular Coast Guard Officer. Under the Department of Transportation, the Coast Guard performs a variety of missions. These include search and rescue operations by ship and plane, maintenance of advanced electronic and other aids to navigation around the globe, operation of icebreakers which clear the way for all polar expeditions, and enforcement of marine law and all aspects of merchant marine safety. In addition, the Coast Guard has responsibility for boating safety and marine environmental protection.

To obtain an application or further information, write: Director of Admissions, U. S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, CT 96320; or call (203)444-8501.

Children's German classes offered at ASU

German language classes for children ages 8 through 14 will be held each Saturday, beginning Sept. 16, and will run through Nov. 18 at Angelo State University, according to Dr. Otto Tetzlaff, head of the Department of Modern Languages at ASU.

Dr. Tetzlaff annually offers the class free of charge. The class is scheduled for 1 p.m. each Saturday in Room 121 of the Academic Building.

For further information concerning the German language class, contact Dr. Tetzlaff at 942-2244.

Census shows cattle and calves dominate state's agriculture

Cattle and calves accounted for $6 billion or 57 percent of Texas' agricultural sales in 1987 according to recently released figures from the Commerce Department's Census Bureau. The cattle and calf inventory on the 142,244 farms reporting such stock totaled 13,020,910, up from 1982. Some 12,120,310 cattle and calves were sold in 1987. The heifer and heifer calf inventory totaled 3,230,691. The inventory of steers, steer calves, bulls and bull calves totaled 4,295,123.

The 1987 Census of Agriculture shows that Texas' agricultural sales totaled $10.5 billion. Livestock, poultry and their products accounted for $7.6 billion or 72 percent of total agricultural sales. Crops, including nursery and greenhouse products, accounted for $2.9 billion or 28 percent of total agricultural sales.

The 188,788 farms counted in 1987 were two percent more than in 1982, when the last agriculture census was taken. Some 36 percent had 1987 sales of $10,000 or more, and nine percent had sales of $100,000 or more.

Production expenditures for the state's agricultural operations came to $8.9 billion. Agricultural operators paid eight percent less for commercial fertilizers, 18 percent more for agricultural chemicals, and 31 percent more for hired farm labor than they did in 1982. They spent about the same for livestock and poultry feed.

The sheep and lamb inventory totaled 2,054,963 on 7,821 farms. Some 1,903,627 were shorn in 1987, yielding 13,806,748 pounds of wool. The state's agricultural producers sold 1,661,353 head during 1987.

The census shows that 68 percent of the state's agricultural operators with sales of $10,000 or more considered farming to be their principal occupation. Of the 31,389 agricultural operators with sales of $10,000 or more reporting off-farm work, 57 percent said they did such work 200 days or more.

Some 89 percent of the farms were operated by individuals or families as sole proprietorships. Partnerships accounted for eight percent. Of the two percent that were corporate farms, 87 percent were family operations.

For more information on published reports and machine readable data from the 1987 Census of Agriculture, and also data from previous agriculture censuses, contact the Census, Room 436, Iverson Mall, Washington, D.C. 20233, Attn.: Agriculture Information Specialist; or call 301 763-1113.

New product fights fleas

A new tool is available for West Texas producers to use against rodent-borne fleas that carry bubonic plague, Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower announced last week.

"We are convinced that judicious use of this product, PyraPerm 455 Dust, can be an effective way to fight bubonic plague," Hightower said. "Fleas carry the plague from rodents to humans, livestock and wildlife.

The Texas Department of Agriculture has approved use of the insecticide under provisions of the federal pesticide law that allow states to issue special local need registrations. Without this registration from TDA, use of PyraPerm in Texas would be illegal.

The dust is applied either in bait tubes which are placed in areas where rodents feed or with a duster directly into openings of rodent burrows.

"If these application methods are strictly followed, the risk to the environment is minimal," Hightower said. "We weighed the environmental risk against the risk of bubonic plague and are convinced that the product is necessary and effective."

Greatest use of the dust is expected to be in the Permian Basin, where occasional outbreaks of bubonic plague have occurred.
