"Man, it seems as if these trucks are never down any more. When we drain that AMALIE L. P. G. still looks plenty good; and it sure won't thicken up on you, like that ordinary, common grade oil we used to use. You can't beat butane — if you've got AMALIE L. P. G. Oil!"

Butane or propane (Liquid Petroleum Gas) burns HOT. That's why ordinary oil oxides — the qualities that give it its viscosity, or flowing power, burn away. And it thickens up almost like gear-grease. AMALIE L. P. G. Oil is ENGINEERED to the job. HOLDS its viscosity. Keeps grit and dust "suspended," so they filter out. And its 100% pure Pennsylvania oil.

E. N. 'Shorty' McCall Utilizes Strip Crop Rotation and Soil Builders

E. N. "SHORTY" McCALL, conservation farmer of the year for the Blackwater Valley Soil Conservation District, in a field of Alnum grass on his farm near Enochs. (Staff Photo)

Wire mesh diversions, terraces, spreader systems and soil building crops are among the methods E. N. "Shorty" McCall uses to conserve the precious little bit of moisture that falls on his 230 acres of farm and ranch land near the Enochs community. Shorty who was this week honored with the Ft. Worth Press plaque for being the outstanding conservation farmer in Bailey County, has set his goal as the ultimate utilization of every drop of water available in the most efficient manner possible.

In one field McCall has combined strip crop rotation between grain and cotton, with terracing, and the growing of a soil holding grass called Alnum. Alnum, which he is trying on an experimental basis is reported to be a natural hybrid of Johnson grass and Sudan.

There is seven acres of Alnum and five acres of blue panic, another recommended grass for dryland. The Alnum was planted at about one pound per acre, and Shorty hopes to harvest at least 300 pounds of seed per acre, which will sell for $3 per pound. The grass is about seven foot tall and grows in clumps much like Johnson grass.

He hopes to eventually combine his strip crop rotation between grasses such as panic and Alnum and cotton, as he is primarily a cattleman, rather than a farmer.

And it is on his ranch land that a unique diversionary spreader system has been installed. The spreader system is designed to utilize the natural contours of his range land to spread the water (if any ever falls) over the land without it running off as waste.

Shorty, who has been on the SCD board of supervisors for five years, believes that conservation through more efficient use of soil and water, is the hope of the dryland farmer or rancher. With less than 3/4 of an inch of rain, McCall has strong vigorous feed and grain as well as grasses on his place. He has attained this vigorous growth through planning for dryland conditions and making the ultimate use of what little moisture he has received.

One patch of unusual cotton is worthy of note here, that he is growing Weber 99, or "Okra cotton," as Shorty calls it. The plants are holding up better than nearly by varieties of other types of cotton. The plants were developed over a long period of experimentation with an okra root system and a cotton plant cross. The roots branch out just below the ground, much as an okra plant does, and totally unlike a cotton plant which sends a central tap root straight down to hardpan. The plants are heavily fruited and offer much promise for harvest.

After seeing the McCall place which has received less than an inch of rain this season, one wonders just how much production irrigated farmers could achieve if they used as careful planning of their land and crops as Shorty does.

Under the acreage reserve program, farmers are paid for each acre of land retired from the production of basic crops up to a specified percentage of their allotments. The program is designed to aid soil improvement and reduce surplus production, points out Cherry.

Farmers of the nation have signed agreements covering approximately 10.7 million acres while the 63,672 agreements sign-

DROUGHT WATER RATIONS FOR LIVESTOCK
A major problem facing many Texas livestockmen in the face of prolonged drought is that of providing and maintaining sufficient water to keep their herds going. Even the problem of feeding emergency rations is not generally as serious as a dwindling water supply, although the two go closely in hand.

Recent studies on livestock water intake, designed to help the stockman know more nearly how to gauge his water supply, may be of considerable help in borderline areas where water is neither plentiful nor too short to sustain animals.

Factors most closely affecting animal water consumption are feed and weather. Livestock naturally requires more water in warmer weather, and also take in water in near-direct proportion to the amount of feed consumed.

In a pinch, the stockman's best chance of cutting water rations in half is simply halving the feed allowance. This would have to be done gradually and with particular care to see that the animals lose no weight but at least maintain that which they already have until the emergency period is ended.

Never, in the case of lactating cows, should the feed-water cut back be used if possible, since it would result in a production decline that might not be regained during the milking period.

$32.8 Million To Texans From Soil Bank Payments
Texas farmers will receive more than 23.8 million as payments for land placed in the soil bank acreage reserve program. Bob Cherry, extension economist, says that a total of 63,672 agreements were signed in Texas before the July 27 deadline.
Under the acreage reserve program, farmers are paid for each acre of land retired from the production of basic crops up to a specified percentage of their allotments. The program is designed to aid soil improvement and reduce surplus production, points out Cherry.
Farmers of the nation have signed agreements covering approximately 10.7 million acres while the 63,672 agreements sign-

Overweight Hogs Weaken Markets, Experts Report

No other practice has a more consistent record for weakening the hog market than does the marketing of overweight hogs. Such a practice, says E. M. Regenbrecht, extension swine husbandman, not only results in lower market prices but feeding hogs to weights over 200 pounds is not efficient feeding.

Hogs, continues the specialist, best utilize their feed in reaching the 200 pound level. It's expensive to put on the extra pounds because heavy hogs eat more feed per pound of gain. Too, the oversize cuts produced are usually too fat and consumers refuse them.

thus forcing such pork to a bargain counter.

Market prices, points out Regenbrecht, are an expression of supply and demand — not just the total of each, but the kind of supply and the kind of demand. The average consumer will eat 80 pounds of pork per year but doesn't want much of it in the form of salt pork from heavy hogs. There is a world of difference between the cuts from three 200 pound hogs as contrasted with those from two 300 pound animals. The tonnage is the same but the consumers see distinct differences in the cuts and since they prefer the leaner pork, the wise swine feeder goes to town with a product which will move from the meat market.

Despite these known facts, Regenbrecht says there is always present a temptation to feed hogs to heavier weights. At times, a short supply of heavy hogs may pull the market price close to the market top but such conditions are usually of short duration and before hogs can be fed to the heavy weights the market has become re-established and prices go back down.

Since feeding to heavier weights is the easiest and surest way to lower the hog market, it stands to reason that selling at correct weights is a sure way to raise the market. Selling at correct weights was good advice when hog numbers were burdensome, and it's good advice today, believes Regenbrecht.

Mr. and Mrs. George Provence and her mother, Mrs. J. H. Sain, traveled to Gould, Okla., last Saturday, and attended funeral services there on Sunday for Mrs. Sain's aunt, Mrs. Ella Rogers.

Chiropactic Has Brought Health and Happiness To These People—

Child's Fever Vanishes After Adjustments

Back to school check-ups should include spinal check-up.

Falls or other jolts coupled with fatigue always precede fevers, colds, and even polio, because the fall or joints of the points of the spine, causes nerve end irritations that become inflammations of the spinal cord, or other membranes such as the nose and throat.

An eight year old boy was brought to us by a patient of ours. He had a fever and was vomiting. Our examination and X-Rays located the area of injury and nerve interferences. Immediately after the first adjustment, the fever receded and vomiting was replaced by sound sleep. In three days he was well. Our children deserve the best. Don't let them suffer needlessly.

Note: Texas Workmen's Compensation Law authorizes payment for Chiropactic services. Demand it from your employer and his insurance company.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR CHILDREN

Children respond very well to Chiropactic; so well in fact that many Chiropactors in larger cities limit their practice to children.

In a four state survey conducted by the research department of the International Chiropactors Association, results were as follows: of 31,808 children under Chiropactic care only nine cases of polio occurred of which none resulted in paralysis or other disability. Other abnormal conditions respond equally well as this case history, for example:

A boy, age six years, was brought to the Clinic by his mother, who is also a patient. The boy's entrance complaint was chronic tonsillitis, underweight poor appetite, difficult breathing, daily nose bleed, very nervous, and lack of energy. He was examined and X-rayed and then placed under chiropactic care. After two weeks all these conditions are very much improved. We feel that it is only a matter of time and this young or will be a normal, healthy child.

Rep. Osborn Explains Benefits That Would Accrue From Research Station

Plans to establish on the Plains a station of the Texas Research Foundation were discussed and the work of the Foundation explained by State Rep. Jesse Osborn, guest speaker at the meeting Tuesday of the Rotary Club.

Mr. Osborn said he feels it is important to get the station set up here because we need to study new crops for the Plains. The Foundation has done great work north and east of Dallas, in the older settled parts of Texas, in showing farmer and landowners new methods to improve themselves and the area's economy.

Dallas business men, bankers and other of the area have spent $2 million to pay for research conducted by the Foundation, which has its headquarters at Renner, Texas. Abilene and Merkel recently raised money to secure a sub-station of the Foundation, and so did Corpus Christi and vicinity.

Here on the Plains, tentative plans are to secure land either by lease or purchase, somewhere near Springlake. Mr. Osborn said, and the project will require about $30,000 per year. A five year fund is stipulated.

Mr. Osborn said the Foundation's research work on new crops and improve varieties is invaluable to an agricultural area. He mentioned that a non-shatter combine sesame is in the works; research elsewhere indicates good returns could be made here with sunflowers.

He said that interested businessmen and farmers may make 5-year pledges to the four county organization formed to help promote the station's establishment here, and he believes it will be money well spent.

DISCUSSES STATE PROBLEMS

Mr. Osborn dwelt briefly on a few state problems that are sure to occupy the thought and attention of the state's law-makers when they assemble in Austin in January. He said there will be some legislation on water, getting to be an ever intensifying problem in Texas; and he mentioned taxes to support the schools.

He said no one should look to natural resources as a source of tax money, already taxed about to the economical limit. And he pointed out that ad valorem taxes in the state are getting high. He did not advocate a sales tax; but he said many consider a sales tax to be a most fair tax, and it would relieve the home owner of additional tax burden. Mr. Osborn urged his listeners to think on urgent state problems and tell him or write him what their ideas are.

Mr. Osborn was introduced by Rotarian Bill Andrews, program chairman. Guests included two local men, Arthur Crow and his son, Johnny Crow. Clyde Holt presided in the absence of the president.

This GMC has "muscles" unsurpassed in its class!

The simple facts speak for themselves. This new GMC 250-8 has 180 V8 horsepower standard. No other truck in its class comes even close to that.

The extra power delivers 276 foot-pounds of truck-propelling torque. Over-the-road truckers call it "guts"—and this GMC's got up to 33% more than the others.

It's at the top of the heap in frame-strength, too. In fact, there's as much as 10% more "muscle" in its chassis than you'll find in comparable trucks.

And there's more. For this rugged GMC has 3500 lb. front axles and 7200 lb. rear—unsurpassed in its weight-bracket. It has extra-size brakes and springs.

Add it all up and you can see what GMC Blue Chip stamina really means. Especially when you team it with a GMC's dependable performance and Hydra-Matic* savings.

For here's a truck that not only delivers the goods at lowest cost—but keeps delivering long after an ordinary truck would have faded out.

Come in and find out about having one start work for you! *Optional at extra cost

Bailey County Farm Bureau News

BY LONNIE M. BASS
The Bailey County Farm Bureau directors met August 7, 1956, in the Farm Bureau office in Muleshoe.

Proposal submitted at previous meeting for quarterly news paper for several South Plains counties to cover Farm Bureau news was rejected. It was felt that news needed to be more current than quarterly.

Recent raise in Bracero pay for hoe hands was discussed and those present were dissatisfied with the survey made, because it did not include the extras that farmers must furnish bracero labor.

Plentiful Foods List Includes Turkeys and Rice

A record turkey crop is expected this fall... about 10 million head more than a year ago. Heaviest increases in farm marketings over a year ago are due in September, placing turkeys at the top of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's plentiful foods list for the month.

From the consumption standpoint, McHaney says cotton has not shared the increased use of fiber. In 1920, cotton's per capita consumption was 26.5 pounds, in 1954, 25.4 pounds, Per capita consumption...

Babson Discusses INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

Babson Park, Mass., Aug. 23. Readers are naturally interested in what I think may cause the next stock market decline. I have heretofore discussed the domestic political situation which could be very much upset by President Eisenhower's physical condition; also the fact that many purchasers on installments are getting physically and mentally tired with "keeping up with Lizzie." Therefore this week I will confine myself to the international situation.

COMMUNISM ON THE DECLINE

I think that the Russian leaders, who are primarily interested in holding their own jobs, believe that they now have a better chance of spreading Communism through diplomacy than through threatened violence. The first step in such a campaign was the discrediting of Stalin. The second step has been apologizing to Tito for various things they have done. The real reason for their change is that Communism is contrary to human nature. These Russian leaders now believe it must be brought about slowly and cannot be forced.

WHAT WASHINGTON KNOWS

This situation has been carefully discussed behind closed doors in Senate Committee rooms. These select committees have been told things that the public do not yet know. The White House and our leading statesmen are correct in following this policy until they find the answer; then it will be told to the people. This news could greatly affect general business. Certainly our several hundred thousand soldiers in Europe could be withdrawn and defense appropriations would be reduced. This would harm some industries and localities, while other industries would be helped. To summarize my thoughts, I herewith give ten brief forecasts.

(1) Both political parties will make an effort to keep this inside information secret until after November 6 of this year.

(2) Our European allies are quietly being adjusted to this change in our policy. This can be done, even in the case of Great Britain, because the people of those countries do not expect to have all the inside confidential information.

(3) Ordinarily, official statements by Russia would receive considerable attention. Due to the present admission by the Russian Government of Stalin's treachery, butchery, and dishonesty, the capitals of other countries will now be skeptical of all Russian political announcements.

(4) I sometimes think that only a great world religious movement could save the day for all concerned. I see no sign of such a movement at the present time. More people are attending churches, but what we hear seems to go in one ear and out the other. Too many churches are becoming high-grade social organizations rather than teaching us to be willing to sacrifice for other families and nations.

(5) By 1965, Germany may again attempt a local European war to control Europe and liberate the Russian satellites.

(6) The fear of the atomic bomb and especially of the H-Bomb may bring us to our knees. This fear is already having its results. Another factor in the situation is the "guided missile," which could entirely change warfare. The guided missile, however, has not yet been made accurate enough to endanger us.

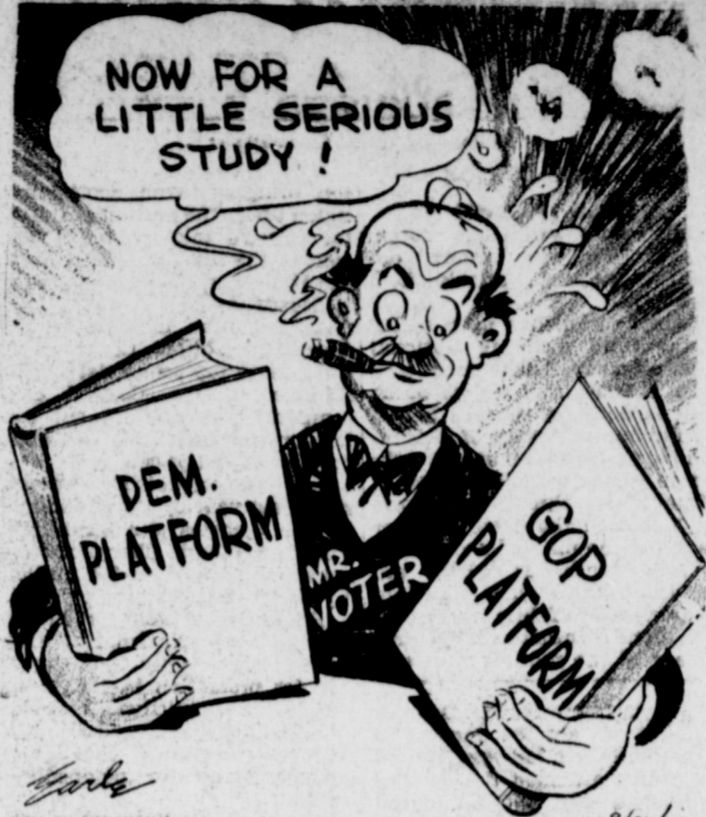

(7) President Truman's trip abroad will be helpful to the situation. This also applies to all student exchanges and to the rest tourists who travel this summer from the U. S. and other countries.

(8) I see no reason why we should have much decline in the stock market during 1956, provided some very unexpected serious event does not occur.

(9) I certainly do not look for World War III for many years, because the people of the United States are in no mood to enter such.

(10) The conservative and patriotic program for each reader is to keep up retail purchases, continue present advertising, and gradually get out of debt.

The Critic

THIS WEEK —In Washington—

With Clinton Davidson
A session of Congress is, in some respects, like a baseball game. One team is made up of Democrats and the other of Republicans. Each is trying to make a "hit" with voters, or "score" by passing a bill that would be popular with the "fans."

throughout extension of the sugar and Wheat Agreement Acts, but they also "froze" cotton and rice acreage allotments and tossed out modernized parity. The next play you might call a "balk." Eisenhower asked for a limit on the size of price support loans any one grower could get, but Benson never would say how much, and so Congress did nothing. Eisenhower also called for an expanded rural development program, but Congress didn't even swing at it.

Today's Meditation

Light In The Valley
The Light still shines in the darkness, and the darkness has never put it out. (John 1:5 — Phillips.)

Our first opportunity to visit a cave was during a vacation trip. As we stood looking at the rock formations, wet with water, our guide explained that the formation of the rocks by dripping water was started centuries ago. He also said that the green vegetation growing on the walls did not appear until electric lights were installed.

PRAYER

O Christ, Thou art the true light of this world. So shine into our hearts that all the darkness will be expelled and we shall walk in Thy light without fear and without stumbling. In the blessed name of Christ we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Christ is the light of the world; no darkness can overcome Him. Howard B. Oborn, (III.)

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

The healing power of divine Love will be set forth at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christ Jesus." Jesus' assurance to his disciples of their ability to heal the sick by means of prayer will be included in the Scriptural reading (John 14:12): "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father."

VISITS PARENTS

Aliene Lowery, of Lubbock, was a weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lowery and also visited other relatives and friends.

Sand Hills Philosopher IS WORN TO NUB BY WOMEN SPEAKERS AT CONVENTION

Editor's note: The Sand Hills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm has been listening to the national political conventions, but what he found out is hard to say. Dear editor: I'd been listening to political convention speeches so long out here lately I felt like I had to get some rest so I borrowed a newspaper out of my neighbor's mail box yesterday morning. I can't see how borrowing a paper just to read it is much of a crime, after all, the print stays the same, regardless of who reads it first, it's not like borrowing a pair of socks, and come to think of it, everything in the paper must have been read two or three times before anyway by the people who put it together, although occasionally you run into an article that looks like it was never examined before by anybody, at any rate, I took the paper and settled down under a shade tree and turned to the inside pages, just to avoid the convention news. I hadn't gone long when I ran into an article describing sound waves which a scientist said apparently came from the planet Venus. According to him, it wasn't an echo, or sound from our planet bouncing back, although he said it sounded like static.

area bounded by my farm yet, but the fact that the noise this scientist heard coming from there sounded like static doesn't mean anything. That is, I don't know how far out a radio beam goes, but if it can reach Venus, and if there is anybody living there and he heard say a broadcast from a political convention on this earth, you think it would make much more sense than static? I'll tell you, I listened pretty closely to the Democratic convention in Chicago, and while the Democrats are accused of favoring economic planning, I don't believe anybody who would run seven women speakers, one right after the other, before the microphone in one long stretch, was guilty of much planning. And I'm not saying the Republicans are any better at it. In fact, I don't believe there are enough speakers in the world, not to mention just one party in the United States, who can fill up four days before the microphone and not wear the audience down to a nub. Conventions, like plowing, are necessary, but anything anybody can do to shorten either will have the undying gratitude of a lot of people, although I will say this, I've never heard a speech yet, regardless of how dry it was, that could drive me to plowing.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

FARMER COUNTY Farm Bureau News By RAYMOND EGLER

Natural gas is expendable, too, farmers learned last week. Bruce Parr, upon learning that his neighbors, who were on a cooperative line, were experiencing a shortage of gas pressure, came into the office to get action or information regarding the shortage. He called President Kaltwasser, who was in Lubbock attending a Farm Bureau meeting, and told him the story. Gilbert, Jack Patterson, L. F. Bruns and Franking Bauer, who were in the meeting also, immediately went to Pioneer Gas Offices in Lubbock to confer with those officials. When they returned, they were able to tell farmers that pressure would be back to normal probably Wednesday night.

For some this information saved the expense and trouble of converting to butane. We are aware that bankers, farmers, lawyers and other individuals were making calls on this subject at the same time; but your Farm Bureau officials were on the job for you, too, just like they were in May of 1952, when secretary Hadley Reeve began negotiations with President C. I. Wall, with what was then West Texas Natural Gas Company. The objective was to eliminate obstacles to more than one farmer being attached to each tap of the gas transmission lines. This objective was obtained before that summer was out.

BOLSTER BRITISH POSITIONS

With an audience of fellow guardsmen watching him, Brian Nightengale, 23, bids farewell to his 8-month old baby son, Ronald, before sailing on the liner New Australia for the Mediterranean. Guardsman Nightengale, a regular soldier, was leaving with the 3rd Battalion, Grenadier Guards to bolster the British position in the crucial Suez Canal area.
