Ag commissioner here Jan. 12

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs will be in Ozona Jan. 12, 2001, at 11:00 a.m. in the Crockett County Courthouse Courtroom, upstairs. The public is invited to attend. She will be here no longer than 30 minutes.

Commissioner Combs is a fourth-generation Texan and rancher. She brings energy, experience and a strong commitment to the agricultural industry as the state's 10th commissioner of agriculture. She is also the first woman to hold this position in Texas history.

Commissioner Combs has a cow-calf operation in Brewster County on the same ranch established more than a century ago by her great grandfather, one of Texas' original frontier trail drivers.

She received her law degree from the University of Texas School of Law and worked as an assistant district attorney in Dallas. From 1993-1996, Combs served in the Texas Legislature, writing the state's major private property rights legislation. She also was a member of the House committees on Natural Resources and Criminal Jurisprudence. In 1996, Combs joined the staff of U. S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison and worked as the senator's state director.

Commissioner Combs currently serves on the boards of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, Texas Wildlife Association and Texas Natural Resources Foundation. She also has served on the board of

Hill continues law enforcement career

Former deputy and constable Harvey Hill will continue to work in law enforcement in Crockett County.

"District Judge Brock Jones asked me if I would serve as bailiff for his court," Hill said. In order to do so, Hill must be a licensed police officer with the authority to carry a gun. Sheriff Shane Fenton has agreed to continue Hill's deputation through his department.

It is the responsibility of the sheriff to provide a bailiff, Hill explained. Due to manpower constraints and scheduling, assigning a deputy to serve as bailiff during a trial would take someone away from law enforcement duties. Changing bailiffs during a trial is grounds for a reversal, Hill said.

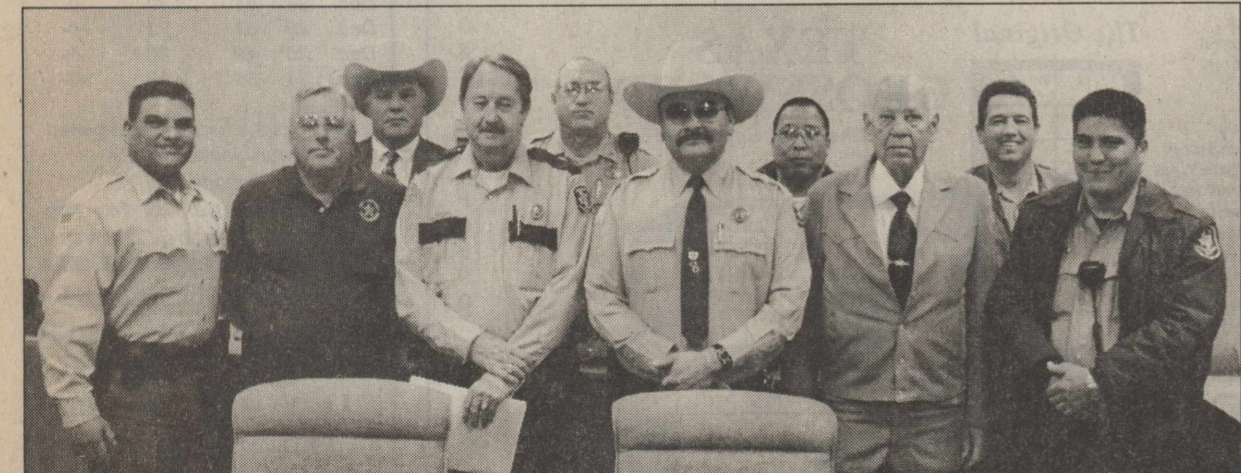

Hill will work as bailiff and assist the sheriff's department for no pay, but will receive insurance benefits. He will use a sheriff's department vehicle for duties such as transporting prisoners from Ozona to other towns and serving civil papers and warrants in Crockett County.

He will also serve as bailiff for county and justice of the peace court as needed.

Harvey Hill first hired on as a deputy in Eagle Pass in 1966. He came to Ozona as a deputy in October of 1976, advanced to sergeant and then was promoted to captain in 1989. He retired for the Crockett County Sheriff's Department in February of 1996. He then was elected constable and served without pay.

A report of the sighting of some of seven prison escapees at Circle Bar Pit Stop Jan. 1 fortunately "turned out to be nothing", Sheriff Shane Fenton said Tuesday.

Seven men escaped from a maximum security prison, the Connally Unit, at Kenedy on Dec. 13 and were not heard from again until Christmas Eve when they shot and killed a police officer during a robbery in Irving.

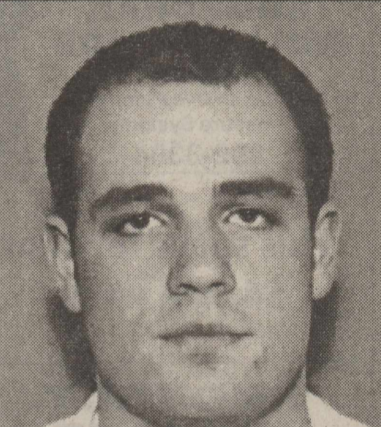

Sheriff Fenton and his deputies conducted an intensive search here Monday night, seeking a white van after the possible sighting at Circle Bar. Convenience stores and motels were checked in addition to street and highway surveillance. DPS Troopers and Ranger Brooks Long assisted. Officers from surrounding counties also helped, Fenton said.

George Rivas, who is believed to be the leader of the seven, is reputed to be "one of the most dangerous men in Texas" according to El Paso prosecutors. He was involved in more than a dozen robberies in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona from 1987-1994. After being caught after a 3-hour standoff in El Paso he was sentenced to 99 years for aggravated kidnapping and burglary.

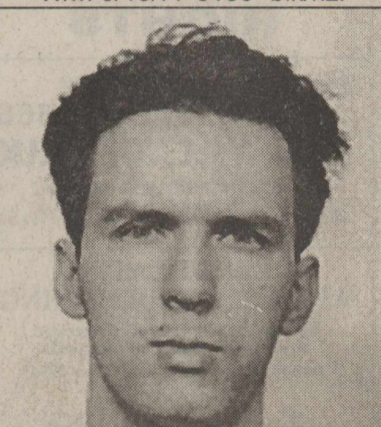

The group also includes two murderers, a serial rapist, a child beater and two armed robbers. The men are believed to have begun plotting their escape last summer.

January is school board recognition month

January is School Board Recognition Month and Crockett County Consolidated Common School District is joining other districts across the state to gratefully acknowledge the invaluable contributions trustees make to their communities.

"Volunteer school board members serve countless hours working to improve public education," said Larry Taylor, Superintendent of Schools. In difficult times, school trustees develop policies and make tough decisions on complex educational and social issues which impact the entire community and the lives of individual students. They bear responsibility in Crockett County CCSD for an annual budget of $11 million, 850 students, ages five to 18, 156 employees, and four campuses.

"School trustees have a tremendous responsibility, preparing today's students—and tomorrow's leaders—for productive roles in our society. School board members are the voice of their communities, serving first and foremost in the best interest of our schoolchildren," said Taylor.

"We proudly join educators and community members in saluting these education advocates as they provide leadership for student achievement, academic programs, district funding and school facilities. Their service ensures that decisions about local public schools are made by those most familiar with the needs of the community's children and families," said Taylor. "These individuals deserve recognition and thanks for their commitment and dedication to the continuing success of our students and schools," he said.

The men and women serving Crockett County CCSD and their years of service are:
 George Ybarra, 18th year
 Elliott Barrera, 12th year
 Wade Richardson, 9th year
 Dr. Marcus Sims, 9th year
 Veronica Tijerina, 7th year
 Billy Cunningham, 2nd year
 Laurie Hale, 1st year

Marge Smith retires

Marge Smith, owner of Marge's Beauty Cottage, ended her career as a beautician Dec. 29, taking care of her customers right up until the last moment.

"The first I knew of the place called Ozona," said Marge, "was when we were transferred here in 1968 by the oil company Phillip was employed with. We arrived around noon, and being tired and hungry, decided to have lunch before looking for a place to live and ended up at the Dairy King and had the best old-fashioned hamburger! Oliver and Margaret West ran the place, and the last burger I ate there was as good as the first!"

"The next week I went to work with Laura Lea Rackley, and all the ladies were so nice and welcoming I began to feel as if I had come home. When the Rackleys were transferred, I opened my first little shop in the Crockett Hotel in the room that is now the office for the funeral home. In time, Betty Farson came to work with me. We stayed there until the Village Shopping Center was built, then moved over there, adding more equipment, and later Maggie Reed and Pat King joined us. Our clientele was still growing, and we moved again into the building Pat's Dad built that housed a beauty shop and a dentist's office.

"In the meantime, we bought our home, and I wanted a smaller place to work again so I sold the shop to Pat and worked for her until my shop was built. I have been here for 32 years. In this time, Carol Buie worked with me for awhile, and then she bought Pat's shop. Later Ana Smith came to work with me and remained until she was forced to quit for health reasons.

"Through the years I have lost a lot of customers to death, which is much akin to losing a family member as all my clients are dear friends. "Now it is time I put aside my brushes and combs and say so long to my customers. I will not be saying good-bye to my friends, but 'see you around' as I plan to stay in this place called Ozona that is the very best place I know to be.

"Thank you, Ozona, for letting me be a part of your big family."
 Marge Smith

MARGE SMITH combs out Dorothy Montgomery's hair as she talks about her retirement on Jan. 29. "She doesn't gossip and she has a clean, nice shop," said Dorothy of Marge and her Beauty Cottage. "When I come here, it renews my spirit as well as my hair." Photo by Linda Moore

Looking Forward To Working Relationships

The 538 electors from every state in the Union met in their respective state houses and cast their votes for president and vice president. George W. Bush and Dick Cheney received the necessary 270 electoral votes and will now become the next President and Vice President of the United States. This constitutional act finally marked the end of the 2000 presidential and federal election cycle.

The 2000 election cycle was the closest presidential election in American history. It also produced the first evenly divided Senate this century, while the House of Representatives provides neither party with an overwhelming majority. These results should clearly tell every elected official across the United States that bipartisanship and an ability to work for a common goal will be necessary to complete the work of the American people.

President elect Bush along with both Republican and Democratic candidates from all around the country campaigned on the issues of education, medicare, social security and tax reform. These priorities were included in many stump speeches and provide the new Congress and President elect Bush a good starting point for the next Congress and next presidency. It is clear that whether we are Republican or Democrat, our constituents want a change from the current policies that govern our education, medicare, social security policies and tax code. I believe it is imperative to abandon partisan politics and work with President elect Bush to get these priorities done just as this Congress has done with President Clinton.

The past two years Congress has proved that we can work together with the White House and look past party lines. The 106th Congress finally closed its doors for the winter holidays but not without first meeting the needs of Americans everywhere. Congress and the White House agreed to provide $150 million increase for the Community Health Centers (CHC) program. CHC combine the efforts of community leaders and doctors to develop a plan to best provide proper quality health care to rural communities. We established programs to boost home ownership for low and moderate income families. And we also agreed to reauthorize the Older Americans Act which provides services to many of our mothers and fathers and grandmothers and grandfathers. This Congress worked together with the White House and achieved great ends. I expect the next Congress will do the same.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate President elect Bush for a well run and dignified campaign. And I would also like to ask that as a nation we stand behind our new leader as has always been done in the past. Let us work together to achieve the priorities that every American who went to the polls voiced-a change in education policy, reform to the medicare and social security system and a simpler and fairer tax code for everyone.

Fit after 50 exercise video and companion guide offered by the National Institute on Aging

"If I'd known I was going to live this long, I'd have taken better care of myself"
Eubie Blake

If there's anything close to the Fountain of Youth, it might be exercise! To get you started, the National Institute of Aging (NIA) has produced an inexpensive, at-home exercise program based on reliable medical research and "road-tested" by scores of older Americans. The 48-minute video, and 100-page companion book is affordable ($7!) and participants who stick with the program for a month receive a certificate of recognition from NIA Director Richard J. Hodes, M.D.

NIA's exercise program targets aging baby boomers and seniors — 71 million Americans are 50 years or older while 34 million of them are over 65 years — because:

- lack of exercise and poor nutrition were the second largest underlying cause of death in the U.S. in 1990;
- 25 percent of all adults do no physical activity at all; and,
- half of women age 75 years and older are inactive.

The exercise program emphasizes:

- Endurance exercises, which increase stamina and may help delay or prevent diabetes, colon cancer, heart disease and stroke;
- Strength exercises, which increase metabolism helping to control weight and regulate blood sugar. Studies show, they also may help prevent osteoporosis;
- Flexibility exercises, which may help prevent and aid recovery from injuries; and,
- Balance exercises, which help prevent falls — a major cause of broken hips and other injuries that lead to disability and loss of independence.

Top 10 reasons that Exercise with the National Institute on Aging is better than all the others:

- 1) It is based on sound scientific research funded by NIA.
- 2) It is inexpensive — only $7 for a 48-minute video and 100-page companion book (the government doesn't profit from this product).
- 3) It makes a great gift for mom, dad, other relatives and friends.
- 4) You receive an NIA certificate of achievement for participating one month.
- 5) Margaret Richard, who leads the exercises, is a well-known fitness guru seen on public television.
- 6) The physically robust astronaut John Glenn endorses the NIA's exercise guide.
- 7) Winter is an especially good time to make and keep important resolutions.
- 8) It is geared specifically to aging boomers and seniors.
- 9) It emphasizes strength, flexibility, balance and endurance exercises for a well-rounded workout.
- 10) You set the pace in this safe exercise program.

The NIA, part of the National Institutes of Health at the Department of Health and Human Services, leads the federal effort supporting and conducting research on aging and the special medical, social and behavioral issues of older people. A substantial part of NIA's research involves ways to prevent frailty and reduce disability with age.

Rehab 2001 includes enhanced live and online auction

Continuing to use technology to the advantage of all the communities it serves, the West Texas Rehabilitation Center unveiled the 2001 version of the Rehab BidSite, part of the Rehab 2001 event.

"The BidSite is live right now. We invite the public to check it out and place an early bid on the nearly 300 items merchants and individuals have contributed to make this year's auction a success," said Pat O'Connor, Director of Information Services for WTRC. The Web address for the BidSite is the same as that for the Center, www.WestTexasRehab.org. From the Home Page, the user can either go into the auction site and view the variety of merchandise and services available, or make a charitable gift for Rehab 2001, as well as discover information about the Center's activities.

New users who would like to use the system only need to go through a simple registration process in order to register as a bidder, O'Connor said. A new feature used this year is that the calls from bidders during the Rehab 2001 telecast will be handled through the facilities and personnel of Blue Cross Blue Shield of Texas, a major sponsor of Rehab 2001 Auction. Additionally, the back-end systems and servers that make the online part of the auction have been beefed up to handle several times the volume of hits that were received last year, O'Connor said.

The auction will run 24 hours a day through midnight (Central Standard Time) on Saturday, Jan. 13. Bids will be accepted via telephone from 6:00 p.m. through midnight on Jan. 13 at the following numbers: (915) 793-4192 or toll-free at (866) 219-7013. A complete catalog of items available for sale will be published in the Abilene Reporter-News and the San Angelo Standard-Times on Saturday, Jan. 13.

Significance of Spindletop oil discovery

On the tenth day of the 20th century, the Spindletop gusher radically changed the course of the 100 years to follow. The abundant oil that blew out of the ground on Jan. 10, 1901, drenched coastal plains near Beaumont, Texas, and marked the beginning of a new era in civilization. The age of liquid fuel propelled the industrial revolution throughout the world.

In 1900, coal provided 90 percent of the energy used in the United States. Since oil was neither found in great quantities nor cheaply produced, petroleum was a high-value product, used mainly for lubrication and burning in stoves and lamps.

Prior to the Spindletop discovery, oil production in the United States was fewer than 60 million barrels a year with a good well in Ohio producing 150 barrels a day. In contrast, the Lucas gusher produced an estimated 100,000 barrels a day, a fact which helps explain the remarkable significance of the field and the fevered rush of activity. In one year, 1902, the Spindletop field accounted for 20 percent of America's oil production.

"Spindletop could produce more oil in one day than the rest of the world combined," according to James A. Clark and Michel T. Halbouty in their book Spindletop.

Spindletop field was the catalyst for a shift in power sources affecting the economy, politics and lifestyle of Texas, the United States and the world. This cheap, abundant oil source motivated chemists and inventors to refine it into various products and experiment with the improved burn capabilities. The U.S. Patent Office was soon issuing 30 patents a week for equipment that burned liquid fuel.

Shipping and railroads were also transformed by the cheap, abundant fuel. The first ships to burn Spindletop fuel were the tankers moving crude to the east coast. When a ship was changed from coal- to oil-powered, it gained nearly 2,000 tons in carrying capacity. Additionally, less manpower was needed on the oil burners than was necessary to stoke coal-burning boilers.

In the late 1880s, the Pennsylvania railroad was already testing oil-burning locomotives. Oil-burning engines could be adjusted quicker with more precision and had a much cleaner burn. Also, rail passengers enjoyed the added feature of the absence of hot cinders that could enter open windows. Thus, the technology was already in place for a rapid shift from coal to oil in the rail industry.

Sugar plantations in the region were one of the first to use oil power in their manufacturing process, replacing wood as the fuel source.

The switch from coal to oil was not complicated. Usually in the first year equipment was paid off with the energy savings. Within a year from the discovery, Beaumont oil was burning in Germany, England, Cuba, Mexico,

New York and Philadelphia.

Across the country, the new-found oil created an industrial boom, creating countless jobs for the unemployed and ushering in an era of prosperity. Initially Pattillo Higgins, the driving force in finding oil at Spindletop, had wanted to build a brick factory in Beaumont, but the cost of coal made the business venture unprofitable.

Texas would become a big winner in the new prosperity. The focus of the oil industry moved from Pennsylvania to Texas, attracting investors who spent billions of dollars throughout the state in the relentless search for oil and gas. By 1928, Texas was the number one producer of oil in the United States.

Storage facilities, pipelines and refineries were built around Spindletop, creating the core of the Texas petroleum industry. Some companies succeeded with spectacular results, but hundreds folded just as spectacularly.

The companies founded by families connected with Spindletop are now some of the largest oil corporations in the world. The Texas Company evolved into Texaco, and J. M. Guffey Petroleum transformed into Gulf Corporation. ExxonMobil has its roots in the Humble Oil Refining Company, as well as the Magnolia Oil Company.

The United States moved into a position of world leadership based on its natural resources. The river of oil that began with Spindletop shipped American men and supplies to Europe during World War I. American oil fueled Allied trucks and planes on European fronts, leading to the Allied victory.

It was not until World War II that oil and gas supplied more energy than coal, however, that war's need for synthetic rubber and explosives fostered the development of the highly specialized petrochemical industry.

Petroleum-based plastic creates thousands of products in daily use. Further development of formulated oil-based products included new medicines, beauty products, paints, varnishes, fabric, lubricants and health-care products. In the 1990s, Texas led the nation in production of chemical products that include petrochemicals.

The river of oil flowing from Spindletop and later fields brought Texas and the country growth, employment and mobility. It also served to propel America's leadership in world affairs in the 21st century.

For more information about Spindletop events and projects, visit the Spindletop 2001 Commission website: www.spindletop2001.org or call the office at Lamar University, John Gray Center, Building B, Suite 103, Beaumont, Texas 77705 at (409) 839-2977.

OFFICIAL MEMORANDUM
STATE OF TEXAS
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

Young people are the Lone Star State's most precious resource, and their education is our most important responsibility. In towns and cities throughout Texas, locally elected school board members govern and guide schools in accordance with the will of the people. They also ensure that control of and accountability for the schools stay where they belong -- with the residents of that community.

Texas has more than 7,000 school board members, representing the largest group of elected officials in the state. Most school boards consist of seven locally elected trustees who serve three-year terms without pay. These dedicated men and women make policy, set budgets and work to ensure academic excellence and accountability for students, teachers and administrators.

The Texas Association of School Boards (TASB) represents and serves local school boards across the Lone Star State. The TASB has designated January 2001 as School Board Recognition Month to raise awareness of the board members' contributions in helping children learn and succeed academically.

I encourage all Texans to recognize school board members for their service to communities throughout the Lone Star State. Their commitment to quality and excellence helps give students the opportunity to reach their full potential.

Therefore, I, George W. Bush, Governor of Texas, do hereby proclaim January 2001,

SCHOOL BOARD RECOGNITION MONTH

in Texas and urge the appropriate recognition whereof.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 10th day of November, 2000.

George W. Bush
Governor of Texas

Road dust can cause breathing problems

The street where you live could contribute to your asthma problems. It's easy to imagine that a dusty, unpaved road could contribute to breathing problem. But California researchers say dust from paved roads could contribute significantly to asthma-causing pollutants in the environment. They vacuumed dust from several southern California roads and found that it's full of things that cause respiratory allergies — such as soil, exhaust particles, tire dust, brake lining dust and plant materials. All this stuff is thrown into the air when cars drive on roads. Up to about 12 percent of the allergens found in the air could come from road dust. It could be worse in areas that have more vegetation, and thus more pollen to contribute to the dust.

The situation is probably the worst for people who live near major highways or well-traveled roads. Doctors at UT Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas say one way of dealing with asthma-causing allergies is to stay indoors and keep windows shut. Use the air conditioner to filter the outside air — and keep your filters clean, changing them often. Keep your windows rolled up in the car, and use the recirculate setting on your car air conditioner. That may help keep some of the road dust out of your lungs.

Care Center Chatter

It has been a great week here at the care center with carolers, friends and families.

We filled our main lobby with friends, family, volunteers and staff the evening of Dec. 22. Punch, egg-nog and Commissioner Freddie Nicks' famous cookies were served. Our residents entertained guests with their hands up wheelchair dancing.

Francis Flanagan gave out awards for the Employees of the Year who are voted on by residents. Those honored by the Residents' Council were: Josie Mendoza, R.A.; Roland Flanagan, A.D.A.; Jana Harrison, C.N.A.; Anna M. Yruegas, Housekeeping; Connie Marshall, M.A.; Connie Nelson, L.V.N.; Penny Tippi, Maintenance and Eva Ramirez, dietary.

I was presented an appreciation by Betty Hartley from the Family Council of the care center.

The following people helped make our Christmas at the care center a great one: Mrs. Cecil Buckner, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny McMullan, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Adcock, Levis and Lace Square Dancers, Commissioner Freddie Nicks and wife Pat, Westerner Drug, family of Consuela Sarabia, Johnny Johnson, Rennie Tippi, Lupe Galvan, First Baptist Church Youth Group, Cynthia Flores, Catholic Church Choir, Catholic Youth Group, Del's Little School-

Words alone cannot say how much you all are appreciated. Thank you.

The week after Christmas is somewhat a relief to staff and residents. The stressful days of getting ready for Christmas have passed. It's just getting things back to normal for all of us.

Tuesday afternoon residents enjoyed fresh peeled apples and oranges, which were given to them by the 8th Grade Jr. High and Westerner Drug. What a wonderful treat.

On Wednesday morning residents enjoy the reading of The Ozona Stockman which Scotty and Linda Moore furnish each week. Wednesday afternoon Len and Mary Hillman and Merle Welty entertained our residents in the main lobby with their music. Our bib maker Marie Gerlach visited with residents. She does a wonderful job of making our bibs.

We end the old year this coming Sunday. We, the staff and residents, are looking for a wonderful new year to come.

A Goal for the Year Ahead

By Dr. Dennis J. Prutow

Saul set his heart to demonize and persecute Christians. Christ took hold of Him on a lonely desert road outside Damascus, Syria. Without sight for three days, he contemplated this Jesus he so vehemently opposed.

A man named Ananias went to Saul and spoke to him about Jesus. "Why do you delay? Get up and be baptized, and wash away your sins, calling on His name" (Acts 22:16). Saul became the well-known apostle Paul.

Paul was now a committed follower of Christ. There were new goals and priorities. He was willing to go to jail and even to die for the cause of the Savior. After decades of service to Christ, Paul had the same great goal.

"Not that I have already obtained it or have already become perfect, but I press on so that I may lay hold of that for which also I was laid hold of by Christ Jesus. Brethren, I do not regard myself as having laid hold of it yet; but one thing I do forgetting what lies behind and reaching forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 3:12-14).

We can embrace the words and the goal of the apostle Paul. They can set the tone in our lives in the year ahead.

President-elect George W. Bush nominates Ann M. Veneman for U.S. Secretary of Agriculture

ASI President Cindy Siddoway among ag leaders to meet with Bush, Veneman to discuss ag issues

Just a few days after nominating Ann Veneman as U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, President-elect George W. Bush and Veneman held an informal information sharing session with leaders of U.S. farm groups. American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) President Cindy Siddoway represented the U.S. sheep industry at the Dec. 22nd meeting held in Austin, Texas. Siddoway said the meeting lasted about 1-2 hours and covered a wide range of topics. Bush began the meeting by giving an overview of agricultural and related issues, and Siddoway said he demonstrated a "good grasp of the issues" facing agriculture. He then "asked a lot of questions" and held an amicable give-and-take session with the ag group leaders.

Siddoway said Bush was familiar with various sheep industry issues and when reminded of the importance of trade to the sheep industry, Mr. Bush's reply was, "I suppose Australia will put the pressure on me."

Also attending the meeting was Vice President Elect Dick Cheney, a six-time Republican congressman from Wyoming. Siddoway said she told the new leaders that she was looking forward to working with the new Administration, especially since Bush, Cheney and Veneman represent the three largest sheep producing states in the U.S. -- Texas, Wyoming and California.

During the meeting, Bush said that his nomination for Secretary of the Interior would be from a western state. He also said that he wanted USDA and the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to work more closely together, and, in fact, EPA Administrator-Designate Christine Todd Whitman was in attendance at the Dec. 22nd farm leader gathering. Siddoway said that she and others in the group felt honored to be involved in such a meeting.

"What a great way to start off with the new Administration," Siddoway said. "And what an honor for agriculture to be one of the first groups with which Bush has met." Ann Veneman Bio Agriculture Secretary-designate Ann Veneman was raised on a peach farm in Modesto, Calif., and has held various agriculture and trade positions for the vast part of her career. She is the first woman to be nominated as Secretary of Agriculture.

From 1995 to 1999, Veneman served as secretary of the California Department of Food and Agriculture, the first woman appointed to that position. From 1991 to 1993, she served as deputy secretary of USDA. Prior to that position, Veneman was the deputy undersecretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs, where she managed issues such as trade policy and negotiations and food aid. Veneman first joined USDA in 1986 as the Associate Administrator of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service. Veneman most recently worked for a law firm where she specialized in food, agriculture, environment, technology and trade issues.

Enrollment period for Texas Tomorrow Fund underway

Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander announced that parents and grandparents can enroll children in the Texas Tomorrow Fund, the state's prepaid college tuition program, from now until May 25, 2001.

"Believe it or not, something is growing faster than your kids: the cost of a college education," Comptroller Rylander said. "Since 1996, tuition and required fees at Texas public colleges and universities have increased 69 percent."

"For just a little bit of money each month, the Texas Tomorrow Fund locks your child's college tuition and required fees at today's prices, and the State of Texas guarantees they will be paid when your child is ready for college, no matter how much costs soar in the future," Comptroller Rylander said.

More than 12,000 Texas Tomorrow Fund contracts were sold during the last enrollment period that ended June 5. The Texas Tomorrow Fund is now in its sixth annual enrollment period. To date, the fund has enrolled 100,000 children and the program's investment assets are valued at $625 million.

The Texas Tomorrow Fund allows parents to prepay for up to five years at a Texas public or private university, two years at a community college, or two years at a community college plus two years at a senior college. Tuition benefits can also be transferred to an out-of-state university. Texas Tomorrow Fund payments may be made in a lump sum or in annual or monthly installments. During the current enrollment it will cost $14,759 to prepay tuition and required fees for four years at a Texas public university. Parents of a newborn can pay as little as $129 per month until the child graduates from high school. Parents of a kindergartner will pay $159 per month.

"Fourteen-thousand dollars is a lot of money, but it will be a real bargain 13 years from now, when the cost of a college education for today's kindergartner is expected to reach $39,338, or 19 years from now, when it will cost $62,425 for today's newborn to earn a college degree at a Texas public university, if current cost trends continue," Comptroller Rylander said.

"The cost of a college education is rising at about eight percent per year," Comptroller Rylander said. "With the Texas Tomorrow Fund, Main Street Texans don't have to worry about Wall Street volatility."

The Texas Tomorrow Fund pays for college tuition and the required fees that every student must pay when they enroll in a college or university. The Texas Tomorrow Fund does not cover other college expenses such as room and board, books and fees associated with particular courses, such as lab fees.

For more information, go to the Texas Tomorrow Fund website at www.texastomorrowfund.org or call 1-800-445GRAD (4723).
