Alpine man with Ozona ties killed

An Alpine man with ties to Big Lake and Ozona died in a crash Thursday (Dec.12) night near Big Bend, Reagan County Sheriff Jeff Garner said.

Brewster County is handling the investigation, he said, but Garner's office was called to notify the family, who lives in Big Lake.

The man, 22-year-old Travis Zuberbueler, lived in Alpine, Garner said.

The service for Zuberbueler will be at 3 p.m. today (Dec. 18) at St Margaret of Cortona Church in Big Lake. Private burial will be held later with family.

Sheriff Ronny Dodson said the Brewster County Sheriff's Office Crash Investigation Team is still investigating the one-vehicle crash.

It occurred about 5 p.m., approximately 30 miles south of Alpine on State Highway 118.

Evolving market strategy essential for today's businesses

If you haven't noticed, our world is changing fast and not just technologically. The Internet has really changed the way people shop and purchase goods and how entrepreneurs and small business owners market their businesses

To help overcome dire economic news and make your small business more successful we are going to look at some things that should help in the future.

Make a list of what has worked in the past.

You've heard the saying; those who do not study history are doomed to repeat it. Take look at where you've been. For those things that didn't work, ask yourself why. Was it the right timing, the right offer, the right target market? Could you have done more mar-you need one, but who has the time or know how to put one together? Write a two page marketing plan. On the first page list where you are now, (gross and net income, numbers of new and repeat customers, amount you currently work and earn). Then set goals for where you would like to be in a year for each of those. On page two choose three marketing strategies you are going to use to achieve these goals (email marketing, direct mail, business FaceBook page). Include a to do list of steps you need to take to implement each one, as well as due dates for each step.

Look to external partners. Successful businesses aren't built by sitting back and waiting for customers to come to their store. Seek strategic partnerships and Joint Ventures. Develop a support network of at least one other entrepreneur who is in the same situation as you and go to him/her for advice

Focus on helping, not selling. If your business is only about making money, you are likely to run into problems trying to grow. Think about your customer's wants and needs and how you can help them. Update your website.

This is one of the least expensive and most effective ways to market your business. With all the competition out there, you can't just throw up a basic website and expect it to do much for you. Your site needs planning and built to be an effective salesperson that connects with your ideal customer.

Stop doing everything yourself. As a small business owner, if you want something done you probably shouldn't be doing it yourself. Focus your time and energy on the things you are best at that grows your business and makes money. Leave the rest to your team of skilled employees.

Have a life. It is great that you are passionate about your business, but all work and no play makes anyone unhappy and burned out. Do something you love outside of work, get some exercise every day, and make time for family and

A mother's letter to Santa

I've been a good mom all year. I've fed, cleaned and cuddled my children on demand, visited the doctor's office more than my doctor, sold 62 cases of candy bars to raise money to plant a shade tree on the school playground.

I was hoping you could spread my list out over several Christmases, since I had to write this letter with my son's red crayon, on the back of a receipt in the laundry room between cycles, and who knows when I'll find anymore free time in the next 18 years.

Here are my Christmas wishes:

I'd like a pair of legs that don't ache (in any color, except purple, which I already have) and arms that don't hurt or flap in the breeze; but are strong enough to pull my screaming child out of the candy aisle in the grocery store.

I'd also like a waist, since I lost mine somewhere in the seventh month of my last pregnancy.

If you're hauling big ticket items this year I'd like fingerprint resistant windows and a radio that only plays adult music; a television that doesn't broadcast any programs containing talking animals; and a refrigerator with a secret compartment behind the crisper where I can hide to talk on the phone.

On the practical side, I could use a talking doll that says, "Yes, Mommy" to boost my parental confidence, along with two kids who don't fight and three pairs of jeans that will zip all the way up without the use of power tools.

I could also use a recording of Tibetan monks chanting "Don't eat in the living room"

WHAT'S ON MY MIND

your hands off your sister," because my voice seems to be just out of my children's hearing range and can only be heard by the dog.

MELISSA PERNER If it's too late to find any of these products, I'd settle for enough time to brush my teeth and comb my hair in the same morning, or the luxury of eating food warmer than room temperature without it being served in a Styrofoam container.

If you don't mind, I could also use a few Christmas miracles to brighten the holiday sea son. Would it be too much trouble to declare ketchup a vegetable? It will clear my conscience immensely.

It would be helpful if you could coerce my children to help around the house without demanding payment as if they were the bosses of an organized crime family.

Well, Santa, the buzzer on the dryer is ringing and my son saw my feet under the laundry room door.

I think he wants his cravon back.

Have a safe trip and remember to leave your wet boots by the door and come in and dry off so you don't catch cold.

Help yourself to cookies on the table but don't eat too many or leave crumbs on the carpet.

Yours Always, MOM...! P.S. One more thing... you can cancel all my requests if you can keep my children young enough to believe in Santa.

Everett's First Day

"A baby is God's opinion that the world should go on." Carl Sandburg

Everett Wood spent his first full day on earth today and he got off to a great start. He was a little late getting here but, boy oh boy, was he ever worth the wait.

Everyone who came to the hospital to coo, tickle and hold the beautiful bundle of joy commented on what a handsome young man he is, with no tattoos, tongue studs or earrings. Although I did notice that the hospital placed an ankle bracelet on Everett. (I hope sure that's the only one he ever wears.) Of course, the hospital put the ankle bracelet on Everett to deter someone from stealing him but there was fat chance of that with an army of parents, grandparents and good friends standing guard.

Whoever said that all babies look alike never saw baby Everett. Showing his fine taste he was impeccably dressed in camo, his hair was combed and his skin was touched with angel dust. Although I did note that his tiny red feet were a little

Everett didn't spend one minute of his first day watching television, Facebooking, Tweeting or texting and didn't waste his valuable time worrying about what the gasbags in Washington were up to. He played no video games and spent the day in the company and safety of family and friends who love him unconditionally He took the day off from work and spent He didn't start a fight with anyone, didn't most of the day taking a nap. In fact, he proved to be an exceptional sleeper, but those of us who know him expected no less. He's so extraordinary that I'm quite sure he'd have been walking on day one... if Grandma Vicki had ever put him down.

An audiologist sprung a pop quiz on Everett and tested his hearing by placing tiny earphones over his cute little ears and then measuring his brain waves. The conclusion her computer came to was that Everett was in the 80th percentile for kid's his age, hardly a surprise to those of us who know him. If they had told him there'd be a test he would have studied long and hard and been in the 100th percentile, I'm quite sure.

It was obvious from day one that Everett is an exceptionally bright child with lots of common sense. Whenever a doctor, a hospital nutritionist, or myself would enter his private room he'd warily open one eye and cast a suspicious glance in our direction, proving how smart he is. There'll be no pulling the wool over his eyes.

Everett didn't get expelled, jailed or inebriated on day one and was very polite. cuss, insulted no one, nor complained, and even when he puked on his mother's shoulder he did so in a very respectful manner. He didn't charge one thing on a credit card he couldn't pay, and other than a little baby gas, he didn't pollute the environment or contribute to global warming/cooling. He didn't spend one minute worrying about things that will never happen and the only thing he stole was our hearts.

Everett didn't talk back to his mother, or make faces behind her back when she sang silly songs off key that would have made a coyote howl. And did I mention that Everett was an exceptional listener, never once interrupting anyone while they were bragging about what a great young man he is. He told no lies, ate local, had a good bowel movement, cheated no one and didn't do drugs, other than one shot the nurse gave him. And might I add, he was far more courageous than I've ever been when confronted by a six foot nurse wielding a sharp, pointy needle. He didn't once ask his parents for money, although if he'd have asked I'm sure they'd have given him everything they had in the world. From the get-go Everett was muchloved and he brought out the best in everyone who he came in contact with.

Dear little perfect Everett, may you live 30,000 more days and may every one of them be as perfect as your first.

Comptroller reports state revenue amount

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS By Ed Sterling | Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — Texas will have some $98.9 billion in general revenue for state budget makers to work with in the 2014-2015 biennium, according to Texas Comptroller Susan Combs' revenue estimate.

Combs delivered the estimate to Gov. Rick Perry, Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, House Speaker Joe Straus and every member of the state House and Senate on Dec. 12.

"This available revenue," Combs said, "supports general revenue spending of $96.31 billion for the 2014-2015 biennium ... producing an expected revenue balance of $2.58 billion."

Turning to the economy to help explain the surfeit of revenue, she added, "Texas has recovered 100 percent of the jobs lost in the recession and has added 597,000 beyond the previous peak in August 2008."

Gov. Perry welcomed Combs' official estimate, saying, "Texas government budgets like Texas families, limiting spending and saving hard-earned dollars. As a result, Comptroller Susan Combs estimates our current 2014-2015 budget will end with a positive balance of nearly $2.6 billion. What's most remarkable is we've done this while passing $1.4 billion in tax cuts, and we've made historic investments in water and, if voters approve, roads."

SECRETARY OF STATE RESIGNS

Texas Secretary of State John Steen on Dec. 13 announced he would step down next month to return to his private law practice and continue managing his family's investments.

Appointed by Gov. Perry in November 2012, Steen, Texas' 108th secretary of state serves as the state's chief election officer. Duties of the office include the storage and preservation of official and business and commercial records required by law to filed, publication of government rules and regulations, the commissioning of notaries public, the keeping of the state seal and attestation to the governor's signature on official documents. The secretary of state also serves as senior advisor and liaison to the governor for Texas Border and Mexican Affairs and serves as chief international protocol officer for Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Stewart

Lauren Nicole Knight of Belton and Captain Jake Edward Stewart of Ozona were wed on November 24 at 4:30 p.m. at Villa Antonia in Jonestown with the Rev. Pete Sharber officiating. Lauren is the daughter of Gary and Vicki Knight of Belton, and the granddaughter of Bill and Marjorie Knight of Belton. Jake is the son of Eddie and Kay Stewart of Ozona, and the grandson of Lorelei Hankins of Rocksprings.

The bride wore an ivory Fada gown by Blue by Enzoani. The vintage-inspired lace overlay dress featured a scalloped edge illusion sweetheart neckline and keyhole back, with a fit and flare skirt, and sweep train. The bride carried a bouquet of cream and pink roses and peach stock flowers accented with dusty miller.

The maid of honor was Shannon Knight, sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were friends of the bride Jaclyn Poole of San Antonio, Brie Bailey of Belton, Michelle Mayfield of Belton, Amanda O'Toole of La Canada-Flintridge, Calif., and Lana Wagner of Lubbock, sister of the groom.

Best man was Luke McMullan of Big Lake, cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were friends of the groom Jonathan Siskey of Albany, Ga., Tyson Vordick of Ozona, Clay Hale of Ozona, Wilson Stokes of Ozona, Will Wagner of Lubbock, brother-in-law of the groom, and Joshua Knight of Nolanville, brother of the bride.

The flower girl was Olivia Knight, niece of the bride, and the ring bearer was Patton Wagner, nephew of the groom. Music was provided by the Salado Trio.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Renaissance Hotel in Austin, hosted by the parents of the groom. The reception was held at Villa Antonia, hosted by the parents of the bride. After a honeymoon in Colorado, the couple will be stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Missouri.

Lauren is a graduate of Belton High School and received a Bachelor of Arts in visual communication from the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor. Jake is a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point and holds a Bachelor's degree in economics.

Christmas Posadas

JOE HERNANEZ THE OZONA STOCKMAN

MEMBERS OF THE OLPH 2014 CONFIRMATION CLASS performed the Christmas Posadas last week at the Crockett County Care Center. The Posadas is a pageant of the birth of Jesus and the tribulations suffered by Joseph and Mary as Joseph begged for a lodging place for his wife who was with child. The Posadas are presented in verse form and sung by two groups, those outside, begging for a place to spend the night and those inside, refusing to open the door to one more guest.

WORDS OF INSPIRATION

God has plans. "For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future." Jeremiah 29:11. Notice that plans is plural indicating more than one plan. We don't know all about the plans He has for us but God says "I know" and that's all that matters.

The first plan we know about was the plan of creation. In the counsel halls of eternity past God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit planned to create man in their image. Man was a special creation of God, made in His image and likeness.

sin and become lost to God. But God loved the world of lost mankind so much that before He ever created us He also had a plan to rescue us from sin. God the Father designed this plan, God the Son implemented the plan and God the Holy Spirit maintains the plan by drawing lost mankind to the

Anothcompleted redemptive work of Jesus Christ. er plan we know about

Thirdly, God did not create us and redeem us to turn us loose to try and live the best we could. He has a plan for living for each and every one of His children that He has prepared in advance. This we sometimes call the plan for sanctification. "For we are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus to do good works, which God prepared in advance for us." Ephesians 2:10.

Remember, when we are down to nothing, God is up to something!

TWO MEN AND A LITTLE DOG

Last week I was at the veterinarian clinic when two old men poorly dressed came in with an old cardboard box and inside a young dog that was having puppies. She was a Dachshund or wieniee dog as I call them. The problem was her puppy was breach or backwards and she could not have it. She kept straining and straining trying to give birth but to no avail. The little dog looked so sweet and innocent and had no idea why she brought so much attention from everyone in the clinic. Fortunately the veterinarian was able to save her. That event reminds me of something in the Bible. Over 2000 years ago a young virgin was giving birth to her first child, a son. She had conceived by the Holy Spirit and when they arrived in Bethlehem the town was full and the only place available was a stable where they kept animals, (Luke 2:4-7). The Angel Gabriel had appeared and told her many things about the baby she was going to have. His name was to be Jesus, He would also be called, "Son of the most high" and "Immanuel" which means, "God with us "and He would be great and sit on throne of David and reign forever, (Matthew 1:21, Luke 1:30-33). He would be able to save people from their sins, (Luke 1:77-79). Nothing is impossible with God, (Luke 1:34-38).

See you in Church next Sunday.

OZONA SENIOR HAPPENINGS

Christmas puzzles are at the Senior Center

BY BRENDA NEWTON

SENIOR CENTER DIRECTOR

Dec. 12 was a really busy day. We went to the arts and craft show put on by the Helping Hands Meals on Wheels. There were so many pretty things to choose from that it was hard to make a decision. All the visitors were having such a good time looking and visiting.

After that was the second Evening on the Town in Ozona. It was hard to find a parking place on Main Street. I have been so impressed with all the new businesses that have come to town. It is fun to see our Main Street with lights and decorated windows and all.

I think this has been the best Christmas spirit I have seen in our town in a long time. I hope everyone has a good season so these businesses can continue to serve us all year and more years to

There has been a lot of action going on here at the center. We have all had a good time at style show, parties and square dancing. All of our sweet people brought their presents back for the Angel Tree. Again, Barbara Walker was so thoughtful to bring us more crocheted neck warmers.

She makes them so pretty and each stich is done with love and thoughts of giving them to someone that needs their warmth and comfort. Thank you Barbara for letting us enjoy your talents and share them with the ones that enjoy the Meals on Wheels. It's a good thing. It will not be long until the birthday celebration will be done and we will move on to a new year. Come on out and see the decorations before they come down and new ones go up. I would love to see each and every one of you here.

We have two Christmas puzzles on the table that need to be put together. Come work on one.

Come and entertain us on the Roland keyboard. We have a pool table and dominoes and books and a Wii System with games. We have a 60-inch TV you can watch and comfortable chairs for you to sit in. If you want to be alone, there's a TV in the east room that you can watch in the comfort of a lounger.

I still would like to get a group to challenge each other bowling. There are two computers online and VCR program to teach you how to use them. The copy machine is here for your use so come take advantage of it.

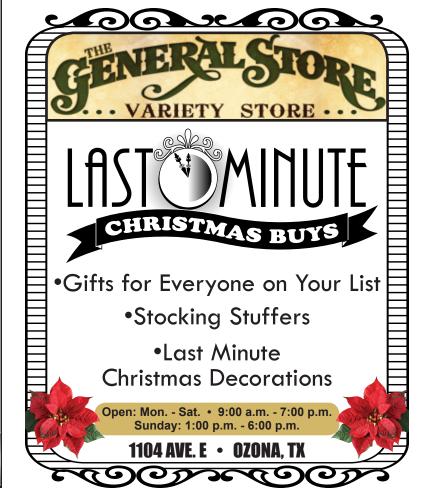

Exercise at 9 a.m. on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Bridge is played Monday afternoons at 1:30 p.m. Balance exercise is Tuesday and Thursday at 2 p.m.

Mexican Train is on Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. Prayer Group is Wednesday at 3 p.m. Quilting is Thursday mornings at 9:30 a.m.

Come on out - the coffee

Michael Sis named as new San Angelo bishop

SUBMITTED BY THE DIOCESE OF SAN ANGELO

SAN ANGELO — Pope Francis has named the Rev. Michael Sis, currently vicar general of the Diocese of Austin, to succeed Most Rev. Michael D. Pfeifer as Bishop of San Angelo.

Pfeifer introduced Sis on Dec. 12 at the Diocesan Pastoral Center in San Angelo.

His ordination and installation as new bishop for the Diocese of San Angelo is scheduled to take place at 2 p.m., Monday, Jan. 27, in San Angelo.

The event Dec. 12 was just the second time the 53-year-old has been to San Angelo, and he asked residents to pray for him as he takes on the mantle of leading such a large diocese.

"I want to learn your hopes, your dreams, your struggles and fears," Sis said. "The people impress me. Good, solid hard-working citizens. Lovable people. The history of Catholicism is beautiful with the Indians and the Franciscan missions. The whole frontier mission of the church is admirable. But there is so much for me to learn because it is new territo-

dained for the Austin

diocese on July 19, 1986. He holds a bachelor of arts degree in philosophy from the University of Notre Dame, a bachelor's degree in theology from the Gregorian University, and a licentiate in moral theology from the Academia Alfonsiana, Pontifical Lateran University, Rome.

Assignments after ordination included 1986-1988, associate pastor, Christo Rey Church, Austin; 1989, associate pastor in campus ministry, St. Mary's Student Center, College Station, Texas; 1990-1992, associate pastor, St. Mary's Cathedral, Austin; 1992, associate pastor, St. Mary's Student Center; 1993-2006, pastor, St. Mary's Student Center; 2006-2009, vocation director, Austin Diocese; 2009-2010, pastor, St. Thomas More Church, Austin; and 2010-present, vicar general and moderator of the curia, Austin diocese.

The San Angelo diocese includes 37,433 square miles across 29 counties in Texas, including Crockett County. It has a population of 859,701 people, with 77,230, or nine percent of them, Catholic.

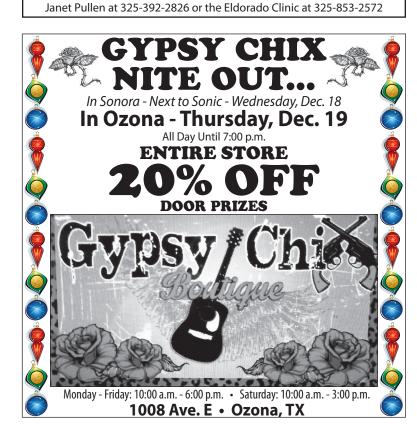

'The experience and diverse background of Bishopdesignate Sis make him a tremendous choice to lead the Diocese of San Angelo. He has served as a pastor in campus ministry at Texas A&M University, parish pastor, vocation director for the Diocese of Austin and currently serves as vicar general and moderator of the curia for that diocese. I ask all in the Archdiocese of San Antonio to pray that God will bless and guide Bishopdesignate Sis as he prepares for this important new role as shepherd of the Diocese of San Angelo. I offer him my support and affection, and wish him every success," said the Most Rev. Gustavo Garcia-Siller, archbishop of San Antonio, in a released statement. "In addition, I also express my gratitude and thank Bishop Michael Pfeifer, OMI, whose resignation was accepted by the pontiff, for his decades of service to the church in West Texas, as well as the universal church. He has done an excellent job in the Diocese of San Angelo, and I have valued his skills as a leader and administrator. May the Lord bless him in his retirement."

Bishop Pfeifer has served as bishop of the Diocese of San Angelo for 27 years and submitted his resignation on his 75th birthday in May

As I leave this office as bishop for the Diocese of San Angelo, I indeed welcome with open arms and an open heart and the open heart of all the people of the diocese, Bishop Michael Sis, and I ask you to do the same. I ask you all to give him your constant prayers and support. From my own experience, when we had to make these changes, please also give him your patience. I leave as your bishop with much gratitude in my heart for the many, many prayers and kindnesses you offered me. I am not sure what will happen in the future, there is much work still to be done, but it tends to all work out," Pfeifer said.

Pecos River guarded by isolation, bound by reservoirs

BY MORGAN SMITH TEXAS TRIBUNE

In the final 100 miles of the Pecos River, as it journevs south through far West Texas to empty into the Rio Grande, there is one public access point.

A Val Verde County road crosses the river near Pandale, an abandoned pioneer settlement 55 miles from the closest population center. The next direct link to urban civilization on the river comes only after 50 more miles, at the U.S. Highway 90 bridge. In between, signs of modern human life are limited to the rare ranch house on a distant river bluff.

Its rocky rapids — navigable only by canoe or kayak and its long stretches of windy lakes keep all but the most dogged paddlers from

"You are confronted with all this harsh desert beauty. It's a very, very tough trip," said Greg Williams, who has traveled to the Pecos region for 25 years through his work with the San Antoniobased Rock Art Foundation, which supports the preservation of archaeological remains on the river. "It's remarkable, and it will change you. But it's tough. It's a very humbling experience."

Isolation has allowed the Pecos to avoid some of the challenges that increased development has brought to many of the state's other waterways. But it has not been spared from a less direct threat — the gradual ecological changes wrought by the manmade lakes bookending its passage through the state.

Starting in the mountains of northern New Mexico, the river enters and leaves Texas through two reservoirs. Before joining the Rio Grande to fill Lake Amistad, it runs about 350 miles through Texas after hitting the Red Bluff Reservoir on the state's border with New Mexico.

About 100 miles west of Midland, the Red Bluff captures much of the water that flows from the river's source in New Mexico, leaving the upper reaches of the river heavily dependent on rainfall for replenishment.

The stored water that does flow downstream is salty after picking up the minerals left behind in the reservoir, contributing further to the river's naturally occurring high salinity. Salt levels are also magnified by surface water withdrawals for agricultural purposes — the river is the sole source of irrigation

TROUBLED WATERS THE STATE OF TEXAS RIVERS for acres of arid farmland in the region. Drought makes all of it worse. The high-salt conditions are perfect for a species of coastal algae toxic to freshwater fish, said Tim Birdsong, the ecosystem and habitat chief of Texas Parks and Wildlife's Inland Fisheries division. After first invading the upper Pecos in the mid-1980s, he said, the algae have spread to other rivers in the state, including the Trinity and the Brazos, triggering widespread fish kills. The algae blooms on the Pecos have imperiled its diverse aquatic life, including a kind of minnow known as the Pecos pupfish, whose primary habitat is certain parts of the river and its tributaries.

In the last decade, the state has invested about $4 million in an attempt to understand how to control the algae outbreaks, Birdsong said. Several universities have also picked up on that research, but it has not resulted in a successful method of curbing the algae's growth in Texas waterways.

"We have done just about all we can to get at this issue and we aren't seeing any real cost-effective strategies at managing algae blooms in streams and rivers," he said.

As the river flows south, it is increasingly fed by groundwater springs, creating a healthier ecosystem, Birdsong said. The land it travels changes to deep limestone canyons, in some areas soaring 150 to 200 feet, making the water difficult to withdraw for agricultural purposes.

"As far as access, it's almost nonexistent," said Missy Harrington, whose family has ranched in the area since the late 1800s. "We always laughed that my great-grandfather bought the land sight unseen because they told him there were rivers on three sides, but they didn't tell him there were 200-foot bluffs."

The early ranching operation raised cattle, she said, but her family discovered, as many in the area did, that cattle needed costly supplemental feed to stay alive on the sparse countryside that surrounded the river. Now, the only livestock they keep are sheep and goats, which are hardier and require less water.

"I don't think it's changed much in the last hundred years, and I doubt that it'll change much in the next hundred years," Harrington said. "Maybe whenever places sell, and land gets chopped up it's a beautiful place to build a house, I guarantee it. But it's kind of remote so you're going to have to want to live in the country."

Harrington's land is on what is known as the Lower Pecos, which runs through the canyons that begin along about 60 miles north of Lake Amistad. The freshwater springs that feed the lower portion of the river, which is home to some of the continent's oldest rock art, make it less susceptible to low flow and water quality issues that plague its upper reaches. But the reservoir at its mouth has also left its mark.

"What you see the Pecos now looking like as you cross Highway 90 is not what the Pecos River looked like at all. Really at that point it's the reservoir," said Carolyn Boyd, a Texas State University archeologist. "Underneath that bridge there's 80 feet of silt underneath the little water that's actually there.'

(1990-'93)

BOB DAEMMRICH | TEXAS TRIBUNE

The paintings and rock carvings created by the nomadic hunters and gatherers who occupied the region 12,000 to 4,500 years ago are unusual both for their narrative composition and superior preservation, said Boyd, who directs the Shumla School, an organization dedicated to studying the region's rock art.

"Essentially what we are looking at are the oldest known books in North America that line the river," Boyd said.

The paintings are in dry rock shelters protected from water damage and were produced by combining animal fat with colors produced by chalklike river rocks, a method Boyd said improved their longevity.

The construction of Amistad in 1969 brought a new element to the climate that had kept the paintings preserved for so long. Surface evaporation from the lake has added more moisture to the arid desert air, Boyd said, which has led to increased mineral accretions and microbial growth on the cave walls that hold the art, accelerating its deterioration.

The effects of the reservoir on the river, said Williams of the Rock Art Foundation, are only just now being seen.

"There are deposits on the walls, there's insect populations that weren't there before," he said. "The humidity has increased, and the full extent of that I don't think we know."

Altered recipes, food choices make for healthier holiday meals

BY PAUL SCHATTENBERG
TEXAS AGRILIFE EXTENSION SERVICE

COLLEGE STATION – Turkeys aren't the only things getting stuffed during the holidays. That's why Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service experts have offered tips on altering recipes and making food choices that will make for healthier holiday eating.

"The sugar, fat or sodium content of almost any holiday recipe can be reduced without a noticeable difference in taste," said Dr. Mary Bielamowicz, AgriLife Extension nutrition specialist emerita, College Station. "In addition, there are several traditional holiday foods that have good nutritional value, provided you serve them in ways that don't reduce or negate that nutritional value."

Bielamowicz said sugar and fat content are probably the biggest worries to address when preparing holiday recipes.

"If a recipe calls for a cup of sugar, use two-thirds of a cup," she said. "If it calls for a half-cup of oil, shortening or other fat, use one-third cup."

Processed foods typically have a higher salt or sodium content, she said, so people should be vigilant about checking food labels for sodium content as well as other nutrition data when selecting holiday food items.

"In addition, if it says to use one-half teaspoon of salt, use one-quarter teaspoon or leave it out entirely," Bielamowicz said.

Low-fat also doesn't al-

If that is the case, enjoy the food, but just watch how much you eat.'

Dr. Jenna AndingAgriLife Extension Program Leader for Nutrition and Food Sciences ways mean low-calorie, so be aware of both in holiday food choices, she added.

"Try using reduced or non-fat cheese, milk, cream cheese, cottage cheese, yogurt or mayonnaise instead of their higher-fat counterparts. And try substituting evaporated milk for cream. For mashed potatoes, try using defatted broth instead of butter to reduce both fat and calories."

Bielamowicz said modifying more complicated recipes may not always produce the desired texture, so it's best to try the new recipe out and do a taste-test before serving it to friends and family.

She said for more information on recipe substitutions, the free downloadable publication "Altering Recipes for Good Health" can be found on the AgriLife Extension Family and Consumer Sciences website at http://fcs.tamu.edu/food_and_nutrition/pdf/altering-recipes.pdf.

"Many traditional holiday foods can be healthy and nutritious choices, so long as they are prepared properly and not 'embellished' in ways that take away from that nutritional value," said Dr. Jenna Anding, AgriLife Extension program leader for nutrition and food sciences.

For example, she said, if you're cooking a turkey, leave the skin on to contain the flavor, but then remove it afterward to reduce the fat content. Baste your turkey it in its own juice or use a defatted broth.

"For vegetables, the healthiest method of cooking is either steaming or roasting using a small amount of oil or cooking spray. Adding herbs and spices can add unique flavors without added fat and calories."

Anding noted that sweet potatoes are a favorite holiday vegetable containing beneficial phytonutrients and antioxidant properties, as well as essential vitamins and minerals.

"Sweet potatoes are a good source of fiber, are high in vitamins A and C and are a good source of manganese. They are also low in calories — a medium sized baked potato only has about 100 calories, according to the USDA. For people watching their calories this holiday season, a baked sweet potato with a little bit of brown sugar and cinnamon can be a healthier option to one topped with butter and lots of marshmallows."

Anding said cranberries, a common holiday food, are loaded with phytonutrients and are known for their antiinflammatory properties that can promote health and may reduce the risk for disease. Adding them in salads and baked items such as muffins, cookies, and pies can be a way to sneak in some added nutrition and flavor.

Even with healthier preparation techniques, when it comes to eating during the holidays, Anding cautions that portion size cannot be forgotten.

"Many of us have favorite holiday foods that we eat once or twice a year. If that is the case, enjoy the food, but just watch how much you eat."

In addition, Anding notes that the holiday season often provides more opportunities to eat due to social gatherings, office parties and other festivities.

"If someone is trying to avoid holiday weight gain, the key is to plan accordingly so they can keep their calorie intake in check," she said. "And don't forget regular physical activity. It can burn off those extra calories and relieve stress that can periodically strike during the holiday season."

Thanks, west Texas! AEP Texas wants to say thank you to electric consumers in our service territory for your patience and understanding as we worked to restore power following one of the worst ice storms in recent history. When severe weather damages power lines and equipment, we know it's vital to work safely and swiftly to restore service. Over 7,300 electric consumers served by AEP Texas were without power during the peak of the recent outages.

AEP Texas mobilized extensive resources in this restoration campaign. We called in additional resources from other parts of AEP Texas. We also brought in contractors and crews from neighboring utilities. Nearly 185 workers were directly involved in the restoration effort.

Thank you to those employees who put in countless hours. We are grateful for the dedication shown by our employees and others, including working through the Thanksgiving holiday. From the start, many AEP Texas employees were working long hours to support the restoration effort. We appreciate their resolve to get the job done safely and swiftly. We also appreciate the continual support provided by the families of employees working to restore power.

Most of all, thank you to the electricity consumers in our service territory. We greatly appreciate your patience and understanding. We understand that an extended outage is very trying for families especially during a holiday. Please be assured that we are committed to providing to you with safe, reliable electric service, no matter what the conditions.

As always, AEP Texas is connected to you. And connected to Texas.

DPS increases DWI enforcement during holidays

AUSTIN - The Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) will increase DWI patrols for a 21-day period that includes both the Christmas and New Year holidays.

From Dec. 13 - Jan. 2, DPS troopers will focus DWI patrols in high-risk locations at times when alcohol-related crashes are most frequent.

"Historically, the holiday season brings an increased potential for drinking and driving incidents, and these enhanced DPS patrols will help save lives," said DPS Di-rector Steven McCraw. "Impaired driving can easily turn a holiday celebration into a tragic situation. By designating a sober driver or finding alternative transportation if drinking alcohol is expected, Texans can do their part in keeping our roadways safe and making the holidays memorable for the right rea-

The increased patrols that target impaired driving are funded through a grant from the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT).

During the Christmas/ New Year holiday enforcement effort last year, DPS troopers made more than 1,200 DWI arrests, and approximately 303 were the Texas, New Mexico and Colorado each filed briefs on the case. The U.S. Supreme Court asked the U.S. Solicitor General to weigh in on the case before deciding to take the action.

Chairman Bryan W. Shaw of the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality commented, saying, "While Texas is loath to sue our New Mexico neighbor, river compacts are law, Texas rightfully depends on water apportioned under the law, and the compacts must be enforced."

SCOTUS HEARS AIR CASE

The U.S. Supreme Court on Dec. 10 heard oral arguments in EPA v. EME Homer City Generation, a case contesting the federal agency's cross-state air pollution rule that would require Texas and 27 other states to reduce power plant emissions that cross state lines.

Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Barry Smitherman said the rule "threatens the viability of the Texas lignite mining industry, jobs and severely hampers economic growth. If the rule is implemented, many Texas coal-fired power plants may be forced to limit or shut down operations."

A decision by the high court is expected by June 2014.

torney Rosemary Lehmberg was not forced to resign, pursuant to a Dec. 11 ruling by visiting Judge David Peeples of San Antonio on a petition to seeking to remove her from office.

Lehmberg, who also serves as the chief enforcer of the state's ethics laws on uppertier officeholders, was arrested and jailed last April for driving while intoxicated. Her behavior following her arrest was recorded and widely publicized.

Following the civil court hearing, Lehmberg said, "I deeply regret my actions on April 12th and have taken full responsibility. I am committed to carrying out my responsibilities as district attorney and to continue serving the voters of Travis County."
