Ozona man dies in crash

An Ozona man died last week in a multiple car crash five miles south of Barnhart on State Highway 163.

SAMMY GOODLOE

Sammy Lee Goodloe, 36, was pronounced dead at the scene by Crockett County Justice of the Peace Evelyn Lozano, according to a report from the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Goodloe was traveling north on State Highway 163 when his 2014 Dodge Ram Pickup crossed into the southbound lane and struck a 2006 International Truck Tractor pulling a Semi-Trailer full of sand, the report stated.

The driver of the 18-wheeler, Carlos D. Calvillo, 31, of Austin, attempted to steer right to avoid the oncoming truck driven by Goodloe, but was unable to avoid the crash, the report stated.

Goodloe's truck came to rest on the road, while the 18-wheeler continued south and came to rest just off the west side of State Highway 163.

The semi-trailer, full of sand, came to rest in the southbound lane. A short time later a third vehicle, traveling south on the highway, struck the trailer causing a second crash.

Everyone needs to be cautious on roads

This week, the sheriff was concerned about the increased traffic situation and the bad accidents that have been occurring in and around our county.

Since he has experience with big trucks, he was able to shed some light on how difficult it can be for an 18-wheeler to avoid a bad situation.

Did you know that those trucks can legally weigh up to 80,000 pounds?

If you are chatting on your cell, or decide to send a quick text and momentarily get in the path of one of those loaded vehicles, you need to realize he really cannot take any kind of evasive action quickly.

ON PATROL
JANET PULLEN

Depending on what he is loaded with can be very difficult for him to safely stop or even swerve to avoid and collision.

The sheriff said he really believes drivers being in too big a hurry is the biggest contributor to the accidents he has seen.

How many times have you passed a vehicle that was going just a couple of mph too slowly, that you could not bear to follow one more mile, only to see that vehicle at one of your first stops in San Angelo?

How much time did you really gain?

Was it worth hurrying past him only to realize he was right behind you when you both reached your destination?

With the increased amount of traffic we are experiencing, Sheriff Rodriguez would like to encourage you to please be very cautious on our roads.

We are not used to having the amount of traffic we are having now and some have become complacent and may be not as cautious as is necessary.

Buckle up, watch what you are doing, focus and allow plenty of time to get wherever it is you are headed.

Put that phone down and check it upon your arrival at your final destination. Drive like you mean it.

By the way, have you seen our shelter lately?

It is hot where we are, but not much longer.

We are so excited.

Tile on the runs, the plumbing works. It gets better every day. Can't wait.

Texas seen as 'electoral wasteland'

Voter turnout in Texas is indisputably awful.

The March primaries drew 1.9 million, with only 560,033 voting in the Democratic contest and the rest voting in the more competitive Republican races. According to the Texas secretary of state's office, there were 18.9 million adults in the state in March, and 13.6 million of them were registered to vote.

STATE ANALYSIS
ROSS RAMSEY

West Virginia and Oklahoma in turnout that year. Those 2010 and 2012 numbers are from general elections, and in Texas, most races have been decided in the primary — in which the turnout has been much lower than in the general election. Most races have been decided by the time the November voters tune in.

Redistricting is one reason. Most districts are drawn to favor one party or another, meaning that the winner of the Democratic or Republican primary will win in November unless they make a terrible mistake and also have an opponent on the general election ballot. Texas has 36 congressional seats. In seven of them, the Republican candidate has no Democratic opponent. In six, the Democratic candidate has no Republican opponent.

Only one of the remaining seats, the 23rd Congressional District (which includes Crockett County), is considered winnable by either major party in November. The overall level of competition is similar in the 31-member Texas Senate and in the 150-member Texas House.

Statewide, the problem also has to do with the Republican Party's long winning streak in Texas. Like a long spell of anything - rain, San Antonio Spurs wins, drought - it becomes more and more difficult to imagine a different result. It begins to feel as if only one outcome is possible.

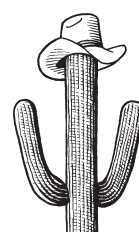

That is also hard to sell to an unmotivated voter, but it is possible. Look at the jump in turnout in presidential years, with their wall-to-wall news coverage and advertising. It looks like a battle, and a close one, and it draws people to the polls.

It might not change the results. The Republican ticket featuring Mitt Romney and Paul Ryan received 57.2 percent of the vote in Texas in 2012. Republican Gov. Rick Perry got 55.1 percent in his re-election bid in 2010. That presidential race - the noisier of the two - drew an extra three million Texans to the polls.

It looked like a race.

Magic Words

IT'S THE PITTS

LEE PITTS

At the tender age of 21 I was hired to be a field editor for a livestock paper and part of my job was to sell and write ad copy, even though I'd never written as much as a classified ad before in my life. It was like asking a butcher to do brain surgery. These days, when everything is a commercial, there are people who make a living studying bold letters, reverses and borders and their impact on consumers. When I was cutting my advertising teeth I had no idea what any of these things were. I thought Geneva and Helvetica were cities in Switzerland. I didn't know a typeface from a whiteface.

Writing ads was good training to become a writer and I quickly learned how one little word could make a BIG difference, such as the time I wrote "loves with" instead of "lives with" in referring to one man's cattle.

I learned through trial and error and the memos I got from the publisher. He told me the six things you need in every ad but I never could remember what they were. That's why some of my bull sale ads failed to mention where the sale was, and I may have even left off the sale date a time or two. I recall one stinging memo chastising me for failing to mention the breed being sold, which was a big deal in 1973 because cattlemen were experimenting with some two dozen different breeds at the time. But I thought the fact the picture in the offending ad was a Hereford and the name of the ranch was Peterson Brothers Herefords might have been good enough clues.

These days many of the big outfits hire agencies to compose their ads but 40 years ago only pharmaceutical firms could afford that luxury. I'm still amazed how many bull breeders stole slogans copyrighted by Ford, Pepsi, Pillsbury, or some other big firm and to my knowledge none of them ever got sued.

Because we've made so much genetic progress ads are very different now than they were 40 years ago. Today in ads you'll see the same great bulls used artificially with their photo and pertinent statistics. Back when I began writing ads a typical ad might feature some real "famous" herd sire you never heard of that was bought out of an all breed bull sale, bred in the rancher's own herd or, as in the case of one used-up old herd sire, purchased out of the slaughter run at the sale barn!

I quickly learned that there were some magic words that seemed to resonate with bull and female buyers, including the words free, safe, and guarantee. As in "free delivery" or "guaranteed safe in calf." Sometimes it was better to guarantee the heifers to be open because the buyers didn't want them bred to the previously mentioned "famous" bull from the slaughter run at the sale barn.

The best magic words that would attract buyers like a magnet were "Complete herd dispersal." It's like the words "estate sale" versus "yard sale". Some purebred breeders knew these magic words and advertised their yearly bull sales as "complete dispersals" but the buyers quickly caught on to this little lie. They knew that the way to tell if the rancher was really selling all his good cattle was if the squeeze chute was also being sold. One old boy even asked me to always be on the lookout for an old cheap squeeze chute he could sell at his "complete herd dispersal" every year.

You never know what will attract buyers and so I often asked ranchers why they showed up to a particular sale. I asked one volume buyer how he ended up buying 20 of the worst bulls ever. "Was it the ad copy, the photos, or the records of the bulls?"

"No," he said as he rubbed his belly, "it was the free top sirloin barbecue and the post-sale homemade ice cream with berry cobbler."

But even the great food evidently wasn't enough to bring him back because he never showed his face at that seller's auction again. Reminding us all that sometimes a good ad will only make a bad product fail faster.

Senate panel addresses slowness of VA care

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS By Ed Sterling | Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — On June 12, the state Senate Committee on Veteran Affairs and Military Installations met in Pasadena, Texas, to get input from military veterans in the wake of the records falsification scandal at U.S. Veterans Affairs-run facilities.

Also on June 12, Gov. Rick Perry recommended that slow service at VA facilities be remedied by allowing veterans to get health care needs met at non-VA facilities.

Several health care provider groups responded, expressing interest in expanding health care options to veterans, the governor's office stated.

Sen. Leticia Van de Putte, D-San Antonio, who chairs the Senate committee, has recommended the creation of a hotline "to help Texas veterans deal with long wait times and VA bureaucracy."

After the hearing in Pasadena, Van de Putte stated, "While our reality is that the VA is a federally run and funded agency that serves Texas residents, that does not mean that Texas cannot ensure our veterans are taken care of in the honorable way they deserve and have earned. Ultimately, Washington needs to fix the VA's problems, but in the meantime, Texas will focus on the immediate crisis: Getting medical care to our heroes."

EPA PLAN TO BE REVIEWED

Federal carbon emissions rules proposed last month will be reviewed by the Texas House Committee on Environmental Regulation, Speaker Joe Straus said June 11.

The Obama administration's plan, to be administered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, would reduce greenhouse gas emissions nationally by 30 percent, as compared to 2005 levels, by 2030. Because individual states may have to reduce more than 30 percent in order for the country as a whole to meet that threshold, Texas faces a reduction of 39 percent, Straus said.

"It's important for legislators to understand the potential impact of this federal mandate, not only on the cost and availability of electricity, but also on the broader Texas economy," Straus said. "The committee's work will guide the House's approach to this issue in next year's legislative session and the seriousness of these proposed rules demands that we start working on that approach soon."

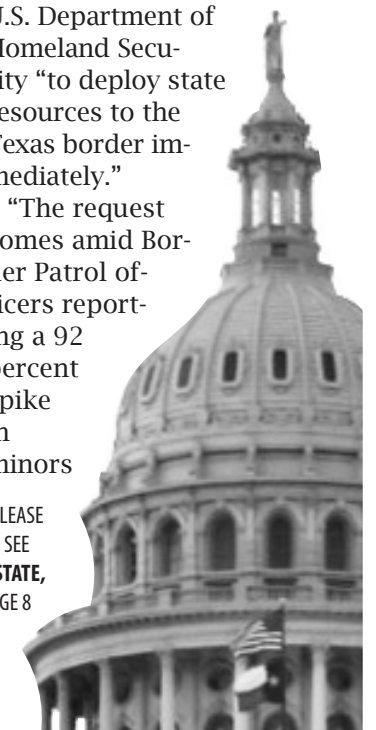

"The House will work with a range of stakeholders to make sure that Texas responds to these regulations in a prudent and responsible way," Straus added.

BORDER AID IS REQUESTED

Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott on June 12 requested $30 million from the U.S. Department of Homeland Security "to deploy state resources to the Texas border immediately."

"The request comes amid Border Patrol officers reporting a 92 percent spike in minors

Local media named to honor roll

Melissa Perner of The Ozona Stockman and Eligio Martinez of KYXX-FM 94.3 were named to the 2014 Media Honor Roll, a program sponsored by the Texas Association of School Boards (TASB) and by Crockett County Consolidated Common School District in Ozona.

The Media Honor Roll recognizes media representatives statewide for fair and balanced reporting of news about public schools. Media representatives from more than 380 Texas newspapers, radio, and television stations, and online publications were honored by their local school districts.

Criteria for the district selection included the media representative's efforts to get to know the superintendent, board president, and the district's mission and goals; report school news in a fair, accurate, and balanced manner; give high profile to positive news about schools; visit the schools; and maintain a policy of no surprises by sharing information with school officials.

"Their work aids local communities in focusing on the goal of providing the best public schools we can for every child," said Faye Beaulieu, TASB president.

Superintendent Raul Charvarria and CCCSD Board President Ray Don Myers would like to personally thank our local media for the attention and positive attention that our students and schools receive from Melissa Perner and Eligio Martinez.

OZONA SENIOR HAPPENINGS

Computer course Tuesdays

BY BRENDA NEWTON
SENIOR CENTER DIRECTOR

It has been so much fun to see a few new faces come to the center. We have had some try out the Balance Exercise and Line Dancing. You are really missing out if you have not tried either of these classes. Neither of them is hard, but you will not believe how much better you will feel if you do them for a while. We have also had new faces for lunch. That is especially exciting because it is fun to have new people to talk to. The meals have been really good lately and they are balanced meals fixed according to recipes furnished by a dietitian and served to you in a nice and friendly environment. There is not a place you can go and get a balanced meal for less money.

I have been thinking lately (that's scary) about starting a computer course out here. I have a few tapes by Daniel S. Cowan and sponsored by the Ozona National Bank that teach computer skills starting by turning on the computer. I know these tapes are not the latest thing out, however, if you know all the things on these tapes, you will be able to convert to the latest. I have learned to play these tapes on the 62-inch TV we have in the main room and that would be a nice, comfortable place to learn. I am thinking about 10 a.m. Tuesday, June 24. This would be right after balance exercise. Mark this on your calendar and come give it a try. It moves really slow and can be repeated if you don't get it the first try. If I have some come, I will continue with the lessons each Tuesday until we finish.

The Balance Exercise is working better in the morning, so we will leave it in the morning at 9 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. I have started a line dancing class on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 2 p.m. We have tried it a couple of times and we are having a great time (and getting a little exercise to boot). Some of the dances we will be trying are The Freeze, Achy Breaky, Honky Tonk Stomp, Electric Slide and Slap Leather. The steps are really easy it just takes a little time to learn them. Come on and give it a try. It's not hard.

If you need help with paying for Medicare Part A, B or Medicare Advantage plan costs, call 1-800-252-9240 or dial 2-1-1. The 211 number will get you answers for just about anything you need to know.

If there is something you would like to have started at the center, please let me know and I will try to make it happen.

Don't forget the trade table. We have really had a good time with the trash to treasure table lately. Thank you to the ones that have donated to this table.

HO HUM DRUDGERY

Sometimes we just get tired of the same old routine. I may get it in the summertime but it can happen any time. I cannot explain all the reasons. Maybe we want a change or feel like what we do does not really make a big difference. It could be we do not feel appreciated. I worked with a man years ago that was really an inspiration to me. He was always on time for work and had such a good attitude. Ready to work no matter what and worked faithfully all day in the cold, heat regardless of the weather or job. Sometimes the work was fairly easy and not messy and others hard and dirty but he never griped or complained. His attitude and work ethic reminds me of something in the Bible. God wants us to be faithful in all we do. It pleases Him when we are faithful even in the seemingly trivial or insignificant tasks, (Luke 16:10-12). He also promised if we can be faithful in small or little things He may entrust us with bigger things, (Matthew 25:21). Thank goodness, the God we love and serve is a faithful God and fulfill all He has promised, (1 Corinthians 1:9, 2 Thessalonians 3:3). God wants ministers or preachers to be faithful, (Ephesians 6:21), Church leaders and teachers, (2 Timothy 2:2), women, (1 Timothy 3:11), and all Christians, (Revelation 2:10). See you in Church next Sunday.

In CD-23, advantages are seen for both Gallego and Hurd

BY JULIÁN AGUILAR
TEXAS TRIBUNE

EL PASO — A San Antonio native and former CIA agent is trying to break through in the only region in this Republican state where congressional Democrats hold a steady grip: Texas' border with Mexico.

But predicting whether Will Hurd, who lost a Republican primary bid for the same seat four years ago, will prevail against U.S. Rep. Pete Gallego, D-Alpine, is as tasking as guessing where someone in this sprawling top-sup district resides.

The 23rd Congressional District includes almost 25 percent of the Lone Star State's land, all or a part of 29 counties (including Crockett County), two time zones, about 800 miles of border and two major population centers: El Paso and Bexar counties. It is also a seat that has changed hands twice in two general election contests, and it is one of only nine congressional districts in which voters favored Mitt Romney over President Obama in 2012 but elected a Democrat to Congress.

"I learned long ago you run unopposed or you run scared," said Gallego, 52, who is in his first term in Congress after serving 11 terms in the Texas House. He added, "By the nature of the district, it is a competitive race."

A campaign spokesman for Hurd, 36, said that the candidate was not available for an interview. But Hurd has said that the district is tired of career politicians and that the House could benefit from his credentials. "There is nobody in the 435 members with my experience in intelligence and national security," Hurd told The Big Bend Sentinel in May.

Hurd lost the 2010 primary election to Francisco "Quico" Canseco, who then defeated U.S. Rep. Ciro Rodriguez, a Democrat, by about 5 percentage points. Canseco lost to Gallego in the 2012 general election by a similar margin. In a rematch, Hurd upended Canseco in the May runoff.

Colin Strother, a Democratic strategist who worked for U.S. Rep. Henry Cuellar, D-Laredo, in the district before its boundaries were redrawn, said that Hurd's positions align with Tea Party values. Though that could be a benefit for Republicans in most of the state, it would work against Hurd in his congressional bid, Strother said. He cited Gallego's membership in the Blue Dog Coalition, which bills itself as representing the center of the U.S. House.

"Pete has been very supportive of pro-economic policies, the oil and gas industry in particular, which provides a lot of jobs in that district," he said. "The current political environment with the current anti-Hispanic, anti-immigrant — be they legal or undocumented — rhetoric from the Republican Party, combined with who the Tea Party chose to face him, is really advantageous for Pete."

Hurd, according to his campaign website, does not stray far on similar issues, however. He also supports "decreasing the regulatory burdens facing those creating and expanding businesses" and "protecting our economic future by balancing our budget and simplifying our tax code."

Matt Mackowiak, a Republican strategist worked as a press secretary for Kay Bailey Hutchison, a former U.S. senator, said what Hurd had in his corner was the lack of faith voters have in their elected officials in Washington.

"Gallego is an incumbent, and being an incumbent at this time when congressional approval ratings are so low in a district like this, it's a dangerous place to be in," he said.

Strother said the state Republican Party's newly adopted platform could hurt Hurd in the border district, though Strother added it might not be easy for Democrats to directly tie Hurd to it. That platform favors eliminating in-state tuition rates for undocumented immigrants and banning so-called sanctuary cities, local governments that prevent local law enforcement from enforcing federal immigration laws. It also eliminated a call for a national guest-worker program.

Mackowiak said labeling every Republican as an extremist is an easy plot for Democrats seeking to persuade Hispanics to vote for a Democrat.

Hurd "probably had no role in how the platform was developed. It was developed by activists," Mackowiak said. "I think there is a little bit of an oversimplification in that Republicans are going back to Tea Party and hardline."

Although the platform is nonbinding, Gallego said that he believed district voters may expect Hurd to distance himself from his Republican colleagues who supported the immigration plank.

"That platform is a statement of principles that its candidates are expected to abide by," he said. "I think it becomes incumbent upon a candidate to essentially disavow some of the things that are in that party platform."

Otherwise I think the assumption is that you are a true believer." On his site, Hurd talks about "making border security, countering drug traffickers and fighting cyber criminals a national intelligence priority."

Mackowiak said a party platform could be "a headache" but added that it has never decided a race. Instead, Hurd's success could hinge on how successful he is in reaching out to potential voters.

"The question is going to be: Are the Republicans going to come in for Hurd?" Mackowiak said. "He's less well-known and wasn't expected to win his primary. It's going to take some time to reintroduce himself."

But he starts with a clean slate, Mackowiak added, instead of having to change minds, as Canseco would have had to after losing the last election.

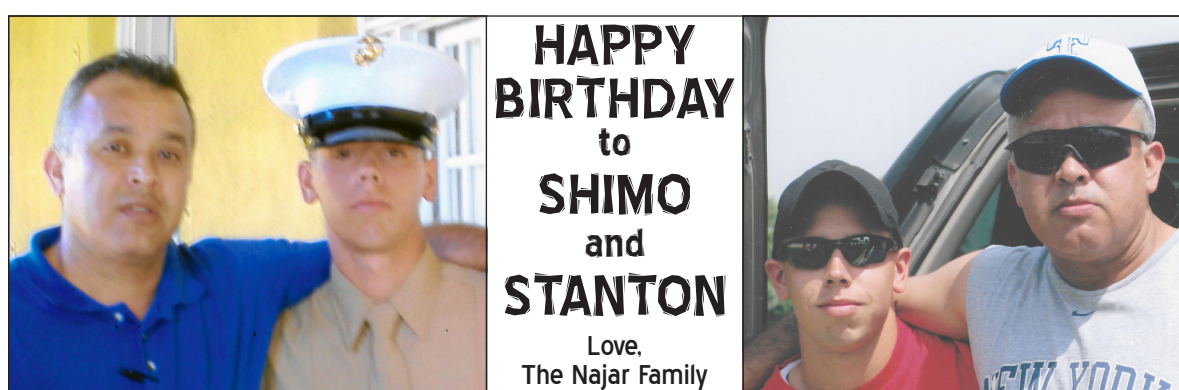

Another issue is that Gallego can use his Hispanic heritage in the border district as an advantage.

Republicans have made a concerted effort to attract Hispanics, who have traditionally voted for Democrats, and convince them that the Republican Party's positions on abortion and taxes are in step with their own beliefs. The district is about 69 percent Hispanic, according to the Texas Legislative Council's 2012 data.

"I am sure he's going to do a number of 'wink, wink, he's not Hispanic' efforts, but we'll see how that plays out," Mackowiak said, adding that Hurd can win those independent voters over with some effort. "If you get to meet Will, you see he's an impressive young guy, he's got good experience, he's very genuine, he wants to listen."

Gallego said he does not know how that will play into his strategy, if at all. But he joked that there was nothing he could do about his ethnicity.

"The fact that I am Latino is not a secret. There's not much I can do about that," he said. "It is what it is. I think people know that my last name ends in a vowel. What can I tell you?"

UIL adopts cross-country rule, adds cheerleading, may move state basketball

The University Interscholastic League, which governs public-school athletic competition in Texas, adopted a new state-qualifying format for cross country at its annual Legislative Council meeting that began June 10 in Austin.

The top four teams in each of the four regions, and within each of the six classifications, will advance to the UIL Cross Country State Championships held annually in Round Rock.

Before the rule change, implemented through a referendum ballot of Texas superintendents, only the top three regional finishers qualified for the state meet.

The UIL rejected proposals for adding bowling and water polo as sanctioned sports, and shot down a mercy rule in 11-man football.

The UIL took no action on a proposal for instant replay in football, meaning it was at least somewhat open to the idea.

"There wasn't an indication that we're ready to do that yet," UIL spokesperson Kate Hector said. "We're going to keep an eye on it."

The UIL Legislative Council cleared the way June 11 for officials to work on a deal to move the boys' and girls' basketball championships to the Alamodome in San Antonio next year.

UIL officials have been concerned in recent years about the growth of the South By Southwest festival, making it difficult to hold the tournament events on consecutive weekends in early March.

"It's a bittersweet feeling having to move it," said Hector, relaying the sentiment expressed by UIL executive director Charles Breithaupt. "We were faced with the option of changing dates or changing locations to provide some relief for fans and schools and providing the best event we can for them."

The first state championship was held in Austin in 1921, when El Paso beat San Antonio for the boys' title. The first girls' tournament was in 1951.

There are now 48 teams - four in each of six divisions for boys and girls. The event has been held on the home court of the Texas Longhorns.

The council also voted to create competitive cheerleading as a pilot program in 2015-16. Any continuation of the pilot program will require another vote.

A UIL committee approved a pilot program that would give district championships in Class 6A, the state's highest classification, a home game in the first round of the playoffs.

According to the proposal on the UIL website, the Texas Medical Association asked the UIL to add cheerleading in an attempt to increase safety training and awareness within the activity.

If approved in October, the plan would be in effect for the 2015 season.

Danny Conner's reptiles do not fail to entertain the crowd.

The Crockett County Public Library hosted Conner as part of their summer reading program with two morning presentations and a public event Monday.

Conner's animals included "Juanita," an 11-foot Reticulated Python, "Apollo," a 10-foot long Albino Burmese Python and, the star, "Spartacus," a 100-year-old Alligator Snapping Turtle that weighs 110-pounds.

"He's not cute, he's not cuddly," Conner said of Spartacus. "Pound for pound no other animal has a stronger bite."

He also had lizards and a three-year-old alligator.

Along with showing all the animals, Conner tries to educate his audience about them, and gives safety tips when approaching them.

"Always keep your distance with dangerous animals," he said.

"Fizz, Boom, Read!" is this year's theme for the Summer Reading Program at the library every Monday and Thursday in June.

There will be two age groups: 6-12 years come from 10-11 a.m. and 3-5 years come from 11 a.m. - noon.

It is a science-themed Summer Celebration, and several special programs will be brought to Ozona free to the Public for both children and adults, thanks to funding from Friends of the Library.

The library will also be presenting Harlin's Magic Show featuring magic tricks, science experiments, balloons and much more at the Civic

Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service graduates lifetime leaders

BY DR. JIM MAZURKIEWICZ
TEXAS AGRILIFE EXTENSION

COLLEGE STATION - Lawyers, farmers, bankers, ranchers and agriculture-related industry representatives banded together for two years with one aim: learn to be leaders. Their intensive study of agriculture worldwide culminated this month when their Texas Agriculture Lifetime Leadership XIII class graduated at a ceremony in College Station.

"The Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service administers the program known as TALL, which focuses on local, state, national and international issues to help ensure effective understanding and encourage positive action that will advance the agriculture industry," said Dr. Jim Mazurkiewicz, program director.

This class, the 13th since the program started, traveled extensively, including a trip to Brazil to learn about the impact of agriculture worldwide.

"TALL creates leaders in agriculture by exposing participants to all segments of the industry - locally, nationally and internationally. We develop a network with other participants and those who generously host us during visits to realize opportunities where we can positively affect how we, as agriculturalists, will feed and clothe the world," said Kelley Sullivan of Houston.

"The program has truly broadened my perspective on many production, political and social issues impacting agriculture, which will help me be a stronger leader and spokesman for this great industry," said Lindsay Kennedy of Lubbock. "The TALL program is making a lasting impact not only in the lives of its participants, but on Texas and American agriculture as a whole."

Graduates and their hometowns are: Casey Cook and Wade King - Amarillo; Jesse Womack III - Austin; Kevin Proctor - Ben Wheeler; Jason Avent - Canyon; Jon Mixson - Corpus Christi; Debra Barrett - Edroy; Linda Jordens Galayda - Elkhart; Brady Miller - Groom; Heath Hill - Gruver; Kelley Sullivan - Houston; Kody Bessent, Mary Jane Buerkle, Shelley Heinrich, Lindsay Kennedy and Eric Wanjura - Lubbock; Matthew Tyler - Malakoff; Kelly Kettner and Joe Osterkamp - Muleshoe; Sally Oglesby Harris - Ozona; Chase Tynnell - Rosenberg; Brant Mettler - Sanger; and Bryan Cliff - Stratford.

OZONA FIREFIGHTERS assist Shannon AirMed officials in loading Martin Carrillo, of San Antonio, into the helicopter after Carrillo's 2001 Ford Explorer had tire tread separate causing Carrillo to steer the vehicle to the left and roll once off the roadway heading south on State Highway 137 on June 13. Two passengers were transported to Reagan Memorial Hospital and then one by AirMed to Shannon Medical Center. As of Monday morning, all three people involved were alive.

THIS 18-WHEELER TRUCK was one of three vehicles involved in a June 12 accident where an Ozona man was killed on State Highway 163 north.

being apprehended at the border. The influx of child immigrants has so overwhelmed the U.S. Border Patrol that federal agents are devoting time and resources to the humanitarian aspects of the influx, and are not available to secure the border and successfully stop criminal activity," Abbott stated in a news release. A sentence in the letter explains: "The $30 million requested is only two percent of the amount of aid the President is asking Congress to appropriate in temporary aid to deal with the consequences of the porous border."

DROUGHT STATUS IS RENEWED

Gov. Perry on June 9 extended by 30 days the emergency disaster proclamation he initiated on July 5, 2011. The proclamation certifies that exceptional drought conditions apocose a threat of imminent disaster in 166 of the state's 254 counties. "All rules and regulations that may inhibit or prevent prompt response to this threat are suspended for the duration of the state of disaster," as stated in the proclamation.

SALES TAX REVENUE GOES UP

State sales tax revenue in May was $2.45 billion, up 8.5 percent compared to May 2013, Texas Comptroller Susan Combs announced June 11. Retail and wholesale trade sectors, the oil and natural gas mining sector and the services sector led the growth, Combs said. The comptroller will send cities, counties, transit systems and special purpose taxing districts their June local sales tax allocations totaling $621.5 million, up 11.6 percent compared to June 2013. "This marks the 50th consecutive month of increased state sales tax revenues, and brings the fiscal year-to-date growth to 5.4 percent," she noted.

TOLL BILLING CHANGES TO COME

TxTag billing services will have "new and improved account access and payment options" for toll road users, Texas Department of Transportation announced June 9. "The new system is expected to be fully implemented by mid-summer," TxDOT stated.

Texans can use online driver license services, mega centers this summer

AUSTIN - The Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) is encouraging residents to beat the summer rush at driver license offices across the state by renewing their license or identification card early or online. The summer months are typically one of the busiest times of year at driver license offices, and many eligible Texans can skip the trip to the office completely via online renewal of their license, identification card or change of address at Texas.gov. Additionally, in order to renew online, the card cannot have been expired for more than two years. Requirements for renewing online are available at Texas.gov, the official website of the State of Texas. Customers can also renew by phone at 1-866-357-3639. The eligibility requirements for phone renewal are the same as for online renewal. The fee is the same for online, in-person and telephone renewals. Licenses must be renewed in person every 12 years, so an updated photo can be taken and eyesight can be tested. If residents need to come into the office to renew, they can do so within one year prior to the expiration date, which means they can pick a time that is convenient for their schedule. Customers may obtain a replacement driver license or identification card online if they are able to provide the 20 character code on the front of their current license or card. Visit the DPS website to make sure you have the proper paperwork (including documents needed for residency requirements) before making the trip to the office: <http://www.dps.texas.gov/DriverLicense/ApplyforLicense.htm>. Mega centers feature an innovative queuing system that offers customers the convenient option to reserve a spot in line before going to the office. Customers can virtually enter the line via cell phone, online or using a land line. To be eligible to renew online, the card holder must be a U.S. citizen and the expiration date on the card must be within one year. When the card is renewed, the expiration date on the new card will be six years after the current card's expiration date, whether customers renew early or not.

Non-pesticide termite treatment now available in Texas

Developed over years of Texas A&M testing, Polyguard Products, of Ennis, Texas introduces TERM Particle Barrier, the first and only Texas termite treatment not classified as a pesticide.

EPA classifies the TERM Particle Barrier as a "device". The concept is simple - quartz particles are carefully sorted and sized to an exact combination. Particles are too large for termites to move, and too small for them to crawl between. The particle barrier simply blocks entry, causing termites to forage elsewhere for food.

TERM Particle Barrier can be installed by Polyguard authorized pest management professionals on the outside perimeter of existing or new homes and schools, as well as in bath traps and wherever plumbing penetrations come through the slab. No building should be built without this particle barrier, as it blocks most places where termites enter structures. TERM Particle Barrier should dramatically reduce the need for pesticides.
