Rodriguez wins state

Lady Lions third, Lions fourth in Round Rock

BY MELISSA PERNER THE OZONA STOCKMAN

ROUND ROCK - Ozona's Omero Rodriguez knew he had plenty of motivation to win the individual title Saturday at the UIL State Cross Country meet.

All he had to do was close his eyes.

Once the black background encompassed his view, a vivid picture of his runnerup finish materialized and provided plenty of fuel.

"Looking at my picture from last year made me mad," Rodriguez said. "Me being in the back of the pack motivated me so much more this season. It motivated me to finish

"I had that picture in my mind the whole race."

Making the final turn as he approached the finish line, Rodriguez said he closed his eves once more so a different outcome would be etched as they opened.

Rodriguez broke the black tape, earning first place with a time of 16 minutes, 19.57 seconds, at the state meet at Old Settlers Park.

New Summerfield's Francisco Parra took second place with a time of 16:32.90, while Christoval senior Tyler Doering ended in seventh

Lions capture District Championship

MCCAMEY - It was the game for the district championship. The weather was cooperating, not too cold, no rain and no wind.

Both teams were warming up. McCamey had their senior night.

It was perfect, until an announcement came throughout the stadium that one, essential piece of the puzzle was

VOL. 102, NO. 43 Wellness center property agreement fails

BY MELISSA PERNER THE OZONA STOCKMAN

An agreement could not be reached to extend the property agreement with Crockett Count and the Crockett County Health and Wellness Center Board.

At Monday's commissioners' court meeting, more discussion took place about extending the five-year agreement for the property across from Lion Stadium that was formerly the north pool. The agreement ended Nov. 9.

Only one motion was made by Commissioner Frank Tambunga, which was to extend the property and include a waiver in case the county was not able to allow the wellness center to use that property.

The motion died for a lack of a second.

Commissioner Randy Branch made that same motion at an Oct. 30 joint meeting of the commissioners, wellness center board and school board, and it also died for a lack of a second.

At the joint meeting, County Judge Fred Deaton made a motion to extend the property agreement. That motion failed with Branch and Commissioners Pleas Childress and Eligio Martinez voting against it.

"I think it was pretty well said and done the other night," said Shirley Kirby, with the wellness center board. "We will continue with what we're doing."

Childress asked about building the structure next to the senior center.

Tina Bean said the architect doesn't feel like that would be a good area because of flooding.

Kirby said they would like to be close to medical facilities.

"I don't want to commit to an area until we decide on the clinic," Childress said. "I like taking one step at a time and prioritizing our needs."

Earlier at the meeting, a presentation was made about working with Shannon on a new clinic.

The county is also looking at building a new jail.

Martinez said people in his precinct have told him they are not in favor

Time to think about business transitioning

Have you wondered how you would transfer ownership of your business when you feel it is time to retire, or are forced to retire?

Have you wondered what it would be like if one of your partners died unexpectedly and their spouse would be your new

Have you wondered how you would value the business in these cases?

Then now is the time to review your business buyout agreement or commonly called the buy-sell agreement to see how the above "triggers" are addressed. Don't have a buy-sell agreement in place? Then now is the time to consider putting one together.

Because of uations than ever before. In addition there are certain triggers that could occur in a closely held business with two or more owners that would cause angst if there is not a proper agreement in place.

sions in business transition sit-

Now is the time to work with an attorney and financial advisor on drafting the proper agreements to cover the transition issues mentioned above.

Of course the best time to address transition issues is in the beginning when you are forming the business with your partners.

If you are a sole owner of a business, transitioning when it is time for you to exit also requires preparation.

The business has to be prepared for sale so that it shows well, much like selling a house. Business processes and customer relationships have to be such that the business can run well and be profitable without you being in place.

If the business runs well only as long as you are at the helm, it may not be worth as much to someone else.

Of course if you are transitioning the business to an interested family member or key employee, then this process may be easier as they have time to work towards ownership and you can help make the transition smooth.

But transitioning to an outsider where you basically wish to cash in and leave is a different story. Structuring the business where the financials, processes and relationships aren't solely dependent on the owner is important, and may take time to put into place.

Many current business owners will be looking at transitioning their business or find themselves in a situation where because of certain triggers in a partnership, find themselves in a transition situation.

The key is preparation and planning to make it go as smooth as possible. In the case of a partnership business transition, seek the appropriate professionals to help you.

One night in McCamey et me tell you about that night in McCamey. You know when the Lions won their district championship at 2 a.m. When we all hung out in their gym and watched the kids play.

It was a night to remember. A night, which many Ozona players, coaches and fans, thought would never end.

When we look back at Ozona's district championship win, we all will remember how long that evening it took the Lions to get to that victory.

It started out like any other Friday night. Everyone was pumped to see the Lions compete for the district championship. Teams were warming up, the band was warming up and I was getting ready to take photos on the sidelines.

Our photographer Joe Hernandez was in Round Rock with the cross-country teams, so it was my job to capture the moments leading to a district championship. As I was taking some practice shots, Head Coach Edward Perez came up to me and the rest of the photographers asking where was Coach Clayton, our high school principal. Having no service on his cell phone, Perez borrowed mine and that's when we learned the news, there were no officials at the game.

What? No officials? That's kind of essential in playing a football game.

For the record, it's the home team's responsibility to secure officials for the game.

When the announcement was made at the stadium, it was stated that the Permian Basin Chapter "dropped the ball" and did not have our game on its schedule, and that neither school was at fault. Let me reiterate, it's the home team's responsibility to secure officials. Just saying.

So began the waiting game. Waiting until Crane finished their game against Grape Creek, their officials to drive over and the start of our game.

What do you do in Mc-Camey for two hours? Drive around, that took 15 minutes, maybe. I will say the local restaurants and the Dollar General got a boost from all the Ozona fans.

You could hang in their gym or, if you are a band student, watch a movie in their band hall. Take selfies on your phone. You could also secure that front row parking spot in anticipation of the start of the game, again, while watching a movie on Netflix on your phone. Ozona fans are loyal.

WHAT'S ON

MY MIND

MELISSA PERNER

When you play a game starting at 11 p.m. and ending at 2 a.m., interesting things happen. Quickly, the Lions took the lead but you could tell players were tired. Of course they were. We were supposed to have this game finished by now. The band did an excellent patriotic show at halftime. It was after halftime, when the hour kept getting later and later, that tempers and impatience began to set in. Everyone, players, coaches, officials, trainers, ball boys and photographers, were all tired on that football field. Fans were tired and when fans are tired and grouchy, they get loud. Ozona fans are already loud, but when Mc-Camev fans, what few they had, chimed in we got louder.

You get crazy because your body is saying it's bedtime, but your mind is saying cheer for our team.

The officials didn't help either. Their tempers were up because they had already done this once. The clock couldn't run fast enough in the second half.

In the end, everyone was so tired and distressed about the whole situation, it was hard to enjoy the victory. However, we had players that played well, we had coaches that handled the situation professionally, we had a band that kept playing and we had fans stay to the very end.

Now, two questions came up during the night. Why couldn't we move the game to Saturday and why doesn't McCamey just forfeit?

The answer, UIL rules state "earnest effort should be expended to find officials so that the game may be played without additional travel expenses for team and fans," and "a host school does not have to forfeit the contest unless the district executive committee rules that they have been negligent in contracting and securing officials.' Overall, it was a night to remember. Let's hope the Lions next game will be completed before 2 a.m., but that doesn't mean Ozona fans will be less crazy. It is the playoffs. Go Lions!

Rush To Judgement

By far, the most educational experience I had in high school and college was to be a member of the livestock judging team. For those of you who may not be familiar with the activity, back in the 60's and 70's we judged three species of livestock (cattle, hogs, and sheep) and in college we also judged horses. A class consisted of four animals which you had to place in the proper order of merit and justify your placings in three or four classes with a set of reasons you presented to a judge. As there was a time limit, this taught a person to think quickly and to speak in a convincing manner.

There's not been a day in my life I haven't used my livestock judging skills. I realized this recently when our absentee ballots arrived and I made a shocking discovery: judging pigs is just like judging politicians. (With apologies to the pigs.)

To illustrate, here's a sample set of reasons: Sir, or madame, (as the case may be), I place this class of pitiful politicians 4-2-3-1 with an easy top, a close middle pair and a raving lunatic at the bottom.

In placing 4 over 2 I went with a fast talking hog, not because she was any good, but because she was the least objectionable. I wouldn't let any of these nitwits inside my house for fear of them stealing the family silver.

I placed 4 on top because she's never slurned at the taxpayer trough before Although I was put off by her comment, "I and global warming. He wants to legalize never stole anything. I just want a chance." Her lack of experience was the reason I went with a dark horse.

IT'S THE PITTS

I criticized 2 and placed him second because he's a double chinned gasbag who is longer in the tooth and has a bigger mouth and smaller ears.

I went with 2 over three in a tight middle pair because 2 is a bigger blowhard than 3, fleshier in the jowls and thicker in the rump. In fact, he's been a big pain in the patoot for years and I wish he'd get an honest job so we wouldn't have to support him any longer in the style to which he's become accustomed.

I held my nose and went with the rotten Republican over the dimwitted and devious Democrat because he's got more experience being a crook and at least we won't have to train him.

I criticized 3 and placed him third because he's an idiot who shoots from the lip. He says we should vote for him and good government, but I only have one vote.

I also didn't like that 3 was a greenie who whines all the time and still believes in Santa Claus, the Faster Runn drugs, ban guns, and make eating beef a crime. Clearly he's been educated far beyond his intelligence. While I found 3 to have no redeeming social graces it was an easy placing in putting him over my bottom animal because even though 3 is a liberal crook who sells his vote to the highest bidder, and has ties to PETA and the vegetarian movement, at least we know what we're getting. He graduated magnum cum loaded and if it wasn't for all the olives and celery in his martinis and Bloody Marys he'd starve to death.

I rolled 1 to the bottom of the class because he's a shifty, one-eyed lazy cur who changes sides faster than a windshield wiper. This jackass has been totally emasculated by decades of straddling the fence and a lifetime of "service." And when I say service I'm thinking more along the line of what a bull does to a cow.

This mugwump has all the personality of a baseball bat, combs his hair with a sponge, is so crooked he has to screw his socks on and is so corrupt he deserves four more years... in prison. He doesn't steal votes although he has been known to buy quite a few. He's been a politician and woman chaser his entire life and says he's for the working man, although he's never actually been one.

It's for these reasons I place this class 4-2-3-1. It's also why I won't be voting for

Abbott, Patrick win top posts as Republicans dominate

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS By Ed Sterling | Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — Winners in the Nov. 4 general election on the whole proved that incumbency and/or running as a Republican continue to be assets when Texas voters hit the polls.

Democrats Wendy Davis and Leticia Van de Putte lost by wide margins to Republicans Greg Abbott and Dan Patrick for the offices of governor and lieutenant governor, respectively. In the Abbott-Davis race, the spread was 20 points: 59 to 39 percent. Similarly, the spread in the Patrick-Van de Putte race was 19 points: 58 to 39 percent.

Incumbent U.S. Sen. John Cornyn, R-Texas, rebuffed Democratic challenger David Alameel, a Dallas businessman, by a 27 percent margin or 2.85 million votes to Alameel's 1.59 million.

Incumbents, regardless of party, exacted a near sweep in races for congressional seats. The exception was incumbent freshman U.S. Rep. Pete P. Gallego, D-Alpine, who lost massive Congressional District 23 stretching from El Paso to San Antonio by two percentage points (about 2,500 votes) to Republican Will Hurd of San Antonio.

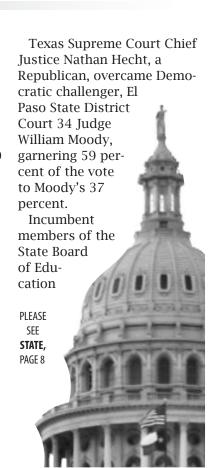

REPUBLICANS TO HEAD AGENCIES

In the races to head state agencies, Republican state Sen. Ken Paxton of McKinney was elected attorney general, to replace Greg Abbott as the state's chief law enforcement officer. Paxton, of McKinney, received nearly 59 percent of the vote to Democratic challenger Sam Houston of Houston, who received 38 percent. Farmer and Republican state Sen. Glenn Hegar of Katy in the race to succeed Texas Comptroller Susan Combs, beat Houston-area accountant and Democrat Mike Collier by a margin of 20 points: 58 percent to 38 percent. Republican Fort Worth attorney George P. Bush in the race to succeed Jerry Patterson as land commissioner beat Democratic opponent John Cook by a 25-point margin, 60 percent to 35 percent.

Former state Rep. Sid Miller, R-Stephenville, won the race to succeed Agriculture Commissioner Todd Staples, over Cleburne farmer and Democrat Jim Hogan by 20 points, 58 percent to 38 percent. Petroleum engineer Ryan Sitton, a Friendswood Republican, won a seat on the oil and gas regulating Texas Railroad Commission, beating Democratic opponent Steve Brown, a Houston businessman, 58 percent to 36 percent.

FROM THE PULPIT

From time to time I catch myself thinking "if only." If only I would have spent more time in preparation on that sermon maybe it would have connected with someone. If only I would have thought a little longer before I opened my mouth and inserted my rather large foot.

And now I have reached the age where I contemplate, if only I would have spent more time with my kids. If only I would have gone to visit my parents instead of worrying about how good my lawn looked. Maybe you never have those thoughts, but if you do, know you are not alone. Surely the Apostle Peter wondered, "If only I would not have denied Jesus three times!"

Or in the Old Testament is it possible that Samson, when he was blinded and chained by the Philistines, thought "If only I would have remained faithful to God and never even heard of Delilah!" Do you think Cain woke up in a cold sweat one night crying out, "If only I would not have killed my brother Abel!" To think in such a way is just part of our human nature, but I do not believe God desires for us to live that way!

The Apostle Paul said in Philippians 3:13, 14 "Brothers, I do not consider that I have made it my own. But one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus."(ESV)

My Texas Hill Country interpretation of this verse is that Paul was saying "I ain't got this all figured out yet, but I know if I don't waste time thinking if only...and spend more time on what I can do now and in the future, I am a whole lot better off!"

A great example of this is found in sporting events. Too often teams or individual players spend so much time after a bad play or a loss, thinking if only, that they lose focus on the next play or game and that is a recipe for defeat.

While it is important to "learn from our mistakes" we must not let the failures of the past control our present and future! Instead we need to focus on what we can do now that will have eternal value. Because if we do not approach life with "forward vision" we may wind up one day looking back with nothing but "if only(s)"!

Dwelling on past mistakes and trying to live life in the "rearview mirror" is not good on any level, but it has eternal consequences when it comes to the spiritual realm. This is where we need to get a little theological (I spent a lot of time and money to get a Seminary degree so it is important that I throw in a big word every now and then to "justify" the cost!) God knew it would be impossible for us to overcome our sins and failures because they are the chains that hold us in bondage, so He gave us a way to be forgiven and start over in freedom. "He (Jesus) himself bore our sins in his body on the tree, that we might die to sin and live to righteousness. By his wounds you have been healed.

For you were straying like sheep, but have now returned to the Shepherd and Overseer of your souls." (1 Peter 2:24, 25 ESV) Please know that because Jesus willingly went to the cross to die to pay the cost for our sins ("...the wages of sin is death..." Romans 6:23) we can be forgiven! Which means we don't have to stand alone on the day of judgment armed only with our "if only(s)". Rather, if we believe that Jesus is the Son of God and that He died for our sins and that God raised Him from the dead, and confess Him as our Lord and Savior, He stands with us and says "This one is mine...they are forgiven!'

In closing I ask you to think about this: Do vou drive down the interstate looking at the image from your backup camera? If you do, it won't be long until you will be thinking, here or in the hereafter, "If only I would have been looking where I was at and where I was going instead of where I had been!'

> JOHN CURRY is the pastor of First Baptist Church in Ozona, Texas.

A LITTLE THANKS

I like this time of year when it starts getting cooler and the leaves start changing color. When I see all the beautiful colors of the leaves I am reminded of the splendor, majesty and goodness of God. Due to our fast paced culture and busy schedules, many times it is difficult to think about God and be thankful. For me I have to get in a quiet place and I need time to think and reflect. As I look back and think about how my parents provided for me when I was growing up; like a roof over my head, clothes on my back, bread of the table, shoes on my feet, care when I was sick, and a home with love, it makes me realize that I was very blessed. They have both gone on to be with the Lord but I wished I had spent more time thanking them and appreciating all they did for me. My grandmother used to sing a little song, "count your many blessing name them one by one" Do we have food, a roof over our heads, health, job opportunities and the list goes on? As the holiday season approaches let us enjoy and give thanks for the many blessings God has given us. There are some verses in (Psalm75:1;107:1,2,9,15,22,43) that give reminders as to why we are to be thankful, (Psalms 30:4 & 35:18 & 97:12 and Colossians 3:16,17). See you in Church next Sunday. Texas reaches Ebola monitoring endpoint

BY CARRIE WILLIAMS

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF STATE HEALTH SERVICES

The last person being monitored in connection with the state's three diagnosed Ebola patients will be cleared from twice-daily monitoring by the end of the day Friday after reaching the 21-day mark, the longest incubation period for the disease.

No additional cases of the disease have been diagnosed

A total of 177 people - a mix of health care workers, household contacts and community members - have been monitored over time because they had contact with at least one of the three Texas Ebola patients, specimens or medical waste.

The last person being monitored Friday is a hospital worker who handled medical waste Oct. 17.

"We're happy to reach this milestone, but our guard stays up," said Dr. David Lakev. commissioner of the Texas Department of State Health Services. "We reached this point through teamwork and meticulous monitoring, and we'll continue to be vigilant to protect Texas from Ebola."

Texas also recently cleared the people who were being monitored in Texas because they were passengers on one of the Dallas-Cleveland flights that carried a Dallas health care worker before she was diagnosed with Ebola.

State and local health officials worked with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to closely monitor people since the first patient was diagnosed Sept. 30.

Health officials continue to monitor all travelers who return to Texas from countries with widespread Ebola outbreaks. The CDC has identified about 50 people who have returned to Texas from those areas.

One of those travelers, a Central Texas nurse who cared for Ebola patients in Sierra Leone, is considered to be at "some risk" of exposure to Ebola and has agreed to stay home until she reaches the 21-day mark. The rest are considered to be "low risk" contacts and are being monitored for symptoms.

WASHINGTON, DC - The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is encouraging farmers and ranchers to make their voices heard by voting in the upcoming Farm Service Agency (FSA) County Committee elections. FSA Administrator Val Dolcini announced that beginning Monday, Nov. 3, 2014, USDA will mail ballots for the 2014 elections to eligible producers across the country. Producers must return ballots to their local FSA offices by the Dec. 1, 2014, deadline to ensure that their vote is counted.

Nearly 7,700 FSA County Committee members serve in the 2,124 FSA offices nationwide. Each committee consists of three to 11 members elected by eligible producers. Members serve 3-year terms of office. Approximately onethird of county committee seats are up for election each year.

UIL rules state that it is the responsibility of the host school to secure officials for the game.

UIL also states that if officials fail to show, "earnest effort should be expended to find officials so that the game may be played without additional travel expenses for team and fans," and "a host school does not have to forfeit the contest unless the district executive committee rules that they have been negligent in contracting and securing officials."

"This was a mutual agreement between both schools," said Superintendent Raul Chavarria. "The possibility of playing the next day was discussed."

(17:07.82) and Miles sophomore John Harris was in 25th (17:49.91).

"I just wanted to be a state champion in cross country, that was my goal all along," said Rodriguez, who also had an eighth-place finish as a sophomore. "I just wanted to run a good race."

From the get-go, Rodriguez did exactly that by jumping out to a quick lead and becoming the pacesetter for a majority of the race. He would need to battle with a few opponents, through the hills and turns, but found himself at the front of the pack when he crossed the finish line.

"I wanted to get out there real quick and keep up a good pace," Rodriguez said. "I knew nobody could keep up with my pace, so I wanted to make sure I had a good lead.

"Then I just kept speeding up more and more.'

In team competition, the Lions were unable to make it back-to-back state titles by placing fourth with 82 points - edged out of the top three by Sundown (80). Valley View took first with 59 points.

Rodriguez led the way with his first-place finish while teammates Adrian Rodriguez (19th), Roman Esparza (28th), Alex Hopper (31st), Noe Medina (49th), Danny Posadas (89th) and Alan Landa (97th) rounded out the Ozona group.

Other than Rodriguez, the rest of the runners return next season for the Lions.

In Class 2A girls action, Ozona's McKenna Moses paced all individual qualifiers with a fifth-place finish. The junior clocked in with a 12:31.75.

"I felt pretty good, but I almost had an asthma attack coming across the line," Moses said, chuckling. "But I also think we did really good as a team.

The Lady Lions placed third in the team standings, behind Sundown (first) and Hamilton (second), to earn the first team medal in program history

The can be attributed to a tight-grouping finish, from Moses, Estefania Torrealba (26th), Gabriella Treto (28th), Nerada Vega (38th), Madison Childress (74th), Alyssa Newlin (112th) and Brenna Hale (114th), that accumulated big points in the team standings.

"Being that we've been here the last two years, I think next year is going to be even better," said Moses. "We have everybody coming back, five of our runners are juniors.

"Next year, I think looking at a first-place finish is definitely a possibility."

Lowe's Market Business of the Month

BY SHANON BIGGERSTAFF OZONA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Chamber of Commerce would like to recognize Lowe's Market as our Business of the Month.

Lowe's first opened its doors in Olton, TX in 1964. Lowe's has now grown from one store to 152 stores throughout Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas and Kansas.

Lowe's Market includes Lowe's Super Market, ACE, Lowe's Big 8 Food Store, Lowe's Family Center, Fiesta Foods, La Feria, Lowe's Super Save, Mercado, Shop n' Save, Avanza and Lowe's Corner Market.

The Pay-and-Save, Inc. Supermarket chain d/b/a Lowe's has a rich family history that can be traced back to the late 1940's when E.M. "Bud" Lowe started his career by selling candy and sundries with only one truck distributing throughout the town of Littlefield.

The Lowe's grocery career began in 1964 with the purchase of their first store in Olton, Texas.

Bud and his son, Roger, founded the company on the principle of taking care of the community, their teammates, and their family.

It is this philosophy that has allowed the company to grow.

In 1973, Bud Lowe passed away and Roger took the resigns to develop the grocery stores into what they are today.

Roger's strong belief in God and the importance of family values are the cornerstones of the Lowe's success.

Johnny Acuff manages the Ozona Lowe's.

"Johnny has been in the grocery business most of his adult life", said his wife Linda. "He is very knowledgeable about the business."

The local Lowe's has 26 employees.

A Manager, three Assistant Managers, four people in administration, three in the meat market, two in produce, four stockers, and nine cashiers.

Ozona employees service an average of 890 customers a day or 6,230 people a week.

"This number doubles during holidays and hunting season which runs from the first week in November to the last weekend in January." said Linda.

"We work very hard to satisfy all our customers. The Lowe's corporate office also sends out a Mystery Shopper every month to evaluate our customer service, cleanliness and friendliness. We have remained in the top 20 of all stores," said Johnny. "If there is an item that we don't normally carry, we can check to see if Lowe's carries it in stock and order it for you. We also compare our prices to our competition on a monthly basis and have found that we are in line with other grocery suppliers."

Customers visiting Lowe's can also earn points towards merchandise with their purchases.

Throughout the year you can always find something being raffled off or given away.

"We always have something going on throughout the year that allows us to interact with our customers," said Linda.

The Chamber of Commerce would like to recognize Lowe's Market for their continued effort to provide quality service and for being an asset to the local business community.

Lowe's Market is open seven days a week from 7 a.m.-10 p.m.

For more information, call Johnny or Linda Acuff at (325) 392-3324.

How Crockett County | Hurd upends Gallego in District 23

For the third time in as many elections, CD-23 is changing hands, this time going back to the GOP after challenger Will Hurd ousted incumbent Democrat Pete Gallego of Alpine.

The district stretching from east El Paso to Bexar County, includes about 800 miles of Texas-Mexico border and all or part of 29 counties, including Crockett County.

It was considered the only toss-up in this year's congressional elections.

"I said one of the papers had made a comment about how more districts should have two guys like Pete Gallego and Will Hurd, and I said

with that," Hurd said. thanked him for his service to the country and the district. and he said 'go forth and do

Hurd, a former CIA agent who ran on his experience dealing with international threats and border issues, took the lead in early voting and held on throughout the night. With 98 percent of the votes counted, he held a 2-point margin over Gallego, 52, a former 11-term member of the Texas House.

"I want to congratulate Will Hurd on winning this hard-fought race," Gallego said. "While the airwaves were flooded with millions of dollars in attack ads, Will and I managed to keep things relatively positive, and I hope he continues that positivity as he heads to Congress."

Hurd billed himself as an outsider who could sift through Washington's gridlock and get things done.

Gallego touted his Hispanic roots and reminded voters he was a moderate Democrat who supported the oil-andgas industry and fought back against the Obama administration when it wanted to exempt members of Congress from the Affordable Care Act. The race was one of just a few of Texas' 36 U.S. House seats considered to be seriously competitive. In recent decades the district lines have been redrawn repeatedly and the seat has alternated parties in a series of close finishes.

The race was one of the state's costliest congressional contests with an estimated $6 million in combined spending, including thirdparty contributions bolstering both campaigns.

of a wellness center.

"People are aware of what is going on. Look at how the school bond passed," Tambunga said.

Martinez also said he was concerned about infections in a wellness center. He was concerned if the facility would be staffed by people who are knowledgeable on infection control and liability.

"There are many things that have to be investigated. We know you're against us Eligio. We will worry about those things when the time comes," Kirby said.

"I want a place where I can work out for the benefit of my own health," added Nile Kelley, wellness center board member.

Deaton said he has heard that people want a clinic more. He also said the commissioners are looking at having a bond issue with the two most important items, which are leaning toward a jail and a clinic.

"I'm not saying everyone is opposed to it, and that everyone is for it. Certainly, the wellness center has been a little bit controversial throughout the whole community. On the list of priorities, it's not the top priority," Deaton said.

Bean said that the people are going to have to vote on the center.

NEW CLINIC Preliminary plans for a new Ozona clinic were presented to the commissioners.

Crockett County Care Center, Health and Emergency Services Board President John L. Henderson presented the commissioners with the plans that were presented in September by Shannon Medical Center officials.

"At that particular time we explained to them we weren't sure. We didn't want to get in a super big hurry," Henderson said. "Dr. (Marcus) Sims is really pushing this thing to attract doctors, including specialists from Shannon.

The 10,105 square-foot building would have additional rooms for specialists to have their own equipment. The current clinic building is around 4,300 square-feet.

The proposal, which costs around $3 million, includes the county constructing the building and Shannon furnishing new equipment.

Costs also include demolition for the existing building, which Henderson said he would hate to see the existing building torn down.

"It makes me no difference where we put it, or what you do with our existing facility. It costs more to tear down, and we can utilize what we have there," Henderson said.

One suggestion for the existing structure was to build small apartments for the specialists or visiting physicians to stay.

He also said the West Texas Rehab could move into the existing building and have more room.

"I haven't visited with them. We certainly will as to what they would like," Henderson said about the rehab center.

Henderson said Sims is pushing for the new clinic, not only for visiting doctors, but also for the community.

"Lots of residents don't want to go over there because they think we have old stuff. We don't have old stuff. We have a new x-ray machine that's digital," Henderson said. "I just wanted to bring this to you and let you be thinking about this. If you all want to do this, you need to think about where you want to put it and when you want to do it.'

Deaton said the county has set aside funding to explore a bond for a new jail, and that they could have something ready for the clinic. Earliest the county can call for a bond is November 2015.

"This is a bigger decision than what we on the court are able to do. This would need to go to the voters and be approved by the voters,' Deaton said. Sheriff Robert Rodriguez said he is in favor of anything that will better the county, but he did remind the commissioners about the need for a jail.

"I'm not demanding anything. I know we're making headway," Rodriguez said. "I am a citizen here too. I do get sick. I'm not against anything that will make the county better."
