Wellness center one step closer to bond election

BY MELISSA PERNER
THE OZONA STOCKMAN

The Crockett County Wellness Center is one step closer to a bond election.

At Monday's regular meeting, Shirley Kirby presented the commissioners' court with a petition containing 627 signatures. The petition calls for a $4 million bond in November for a wellness center.

Kirby also presented a letter from the J. Cleo Thompson family stating that the Double T Ranch donates to the wellness center one acre of land between the J. Cleo Thompson and FESCO offices.

County Judge Fred Deaton said the petition signatures will have to be validated by Michelle Medley, the county voter registrar.

Kirby said the wellness center board members put down the voter registration numbers on as many signatures as they could. The group needed at least 10 percent of the county's voting population. Registered voters in Crockett County is around 2,400.

Anyone that signed the petition has to be a registered voter in Crockett County. Also, only one signature per person was allowed.

Once Medley approves the signatures, the commissioners will validate the petition.

"What we've got today is just a little bit more to take it a little bit further. Once we certify the names, it will go on the bond ballot for November," Deaton said.

SHIRLEY KIRBY (right) presents the Crockett County Commissioners' Court with a petition for a $4 million bond to build a Crockett County Wellness Center during Monday's regular meeting. The petition will need to be validated before the commissioners can call for the bond.

Deaton said the wellness center will be a separate item on the ballot from other bond issues.

Commissioner Eligio Martinez said the county could not build on private property.

Kirby said they were aware of that and that the property would be deeded to the county when the time comes.

"Until the bond election passes or fails they will not deed the land until after that," Deaton said.

Kirby said the wellness center board has raised $67,000, and that those funds can be used to help with architect costs.

"We will do what we have to do," Kirby said.

JAIL BOND

The commissioners approved a contract with DRG Architects LLC., out of San Antonio, for a new jail facility being proposed for a November bond election.

The contract is good up until the bond election. If the bond election fails, the contract is terminated. If the bond passes, then the county will continue the contract. Cost is $30,000.

The commissioners also approved to hire SKG Engineering and boundary survey to included the location of the proposed jail property, and a Phase I Environmental Survey of the proposed jail site. Deaton abstained.

The proposed site for the jail is located south of town between the south softball field and the cemeteries.

Wayne Gondeck, of DRG Architects, said the next step will be to have workshops with the commissioners to discuss the bond issue and the jail structure further.

NEW CLINIC

Deaton said the county is looking at calling a special meeting in the next two weeks to discuss the bond issue for a new health clinic.

At last month's commissioners' meeting, Deaton said a petition may have to be circulated before a bond election can be called.

Based on the Texas Health and Safety Code a petition of 10 percent of the county's registered voters may have to be circulated before the court can call for the bond.

According to the Texas

Health and Safety Code, sec. 263.021, "10 percent or more of the qualified property tax-paying voters of a county may petition the commissioners' court of the county to establish or enlarge a county hospital or any medical or other health facility."

The firm of Bickerstaff Heath Delgado Acosta LLP is researching the issue for the county and have asked the Texas Attorney General's Office for an opinion, Deaton said.

Deaton said the commissioners are looking to meet with the Crockett County Care Center, Health and Emergency Services Board, their attorneys, their financial advisor and O'Connell Robertson architects at the special meeting.

Fort Lancaster Frontier Day Friday

SHEFFIELD, Texas — Fort Lancaster State Historic Site is hosting its annual Western Frontier Days on Friday, May 15, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m., and admission is free to the public.

"The story of Fort Lancaster will come alive with soldiers, pioneers, a chuck wagon, and live animals. Visitors can meet the pioneers and soldiers and hear their stories of life on the Texas frontier," said Jefferson Spilman, site manager for Fort Lancaster.

Visitors can also experience daily life through observing cooking demonstrations, soldier duties, livestock, and live camels. "Although our visitors center is currently closed for renovations, we have a temporary building, which currently serves as our office and gift shop," said Spilman.

Fort Lancaster State Historic Site, a Texas Historical Commission property, spans 82 acres and commemorates the remnants of one of four posts established in 1855 to protect the military route between San Antonio and El Paso. The site contains the ruins of what once constituted a sizable military installation as well as an interpretive trail and a visitors center with exhibits and a gift shop.

Marketing choices are plentiful for businesses

When it comes to marketing and advertising your business, it is easy to fall back on colloquial phrases as justification for not being willing to try different techniques or channels.

I grew up the son of a furniture and floor covering store manager in a time where there were three primary means of advertising in a small town. Our small town (less than 10,000) had two small newspapers and one AM radio station. So, we had print and radio advertising available. The third means was posters. Big Posters. These had a simple message and filled most of the large plate glass windows on the storefront. The messages were things like "Clearance Sale," "Recliner Sale," or "Mother's Day Sale,"

BUSINESS TIPS

and were always in two to three foot tall letters on white paper. Colloquially speaking (and accurately so) "The times are a changin'." Actually, they changed a long time ago and I hope you changed with them, at least in terms of marketing and advertising by embracing opportunities other than the ways listed above. Radio, TV, and print advertising are all still good means of advertising. However, they are not the only means.

The internet and social media have brought about a new channel of advertising that should not be overlooked. Having an online presence can be like having the airwave, print, and post advertising all-in-one. Its value is so great that airwave and print media have embraced it as one of their products. When you purchase a TV or radio ad, you can also purchase a spot on their website. When you buy a print ad, again, you can buy a spot on their website. Social media has a number of ways to advertise and promote your business. Having your own website is another great way to promote your business. There are number of websites out there can help you create a professional looking website economically, or you can hire a professional website designer. With so many choices, how do you decide which channel or combination of channels to use? The key to answering that question is identifying and understanding your target market. This will involve some market research. It has to go beyond the "well my friends and family listen to this radio station, or that TV station" or "at my house, we usually only read the paper". You want to know what your client's habits are. When you truly understand your target market...your customers, then you can make the best use of your marketing and advertising dollars.

Will the 'Home of the Brave' still protect free speech?

The thwarted attack May 3 on a Prophet Muhammad "cartoon" competition in Texas aimed to put freedom of expression in the crosshairs.

Let's examine the latest incident — which seems now to be an unsuccessful attempt to echo the Jan. 7 attack on the French satirical magazine Charlie Hebdo — through a First Amendment lens.

The invitation to draw Muhammad cartoons at the Garland "art fair" may well be worthy of criticism by those who see respect for another faith's beliefs as a guiding concern. But such drawings, which offend Muslims who see any imagery of Muhammad as blasphemous, are protected free speech.

Some say the cartoon exhibit was too provocative to be allowed, noting it was sponsored by the vehemently anti-Muslim group, American Freedom Defense Initiative, as an "in-your-face" response to the same civic center being used in January for an event denouncing Islamophobia.

But "provocative" must not mean prohibited. The First Amendment's protection for free speech anticipates, invites and encourages blunt, emotional and sometimes shocking speech as part of the messy democratic process of exchanging views and vigorous public discussion.

Groups like the American Freedom Defense Initiative, and the better-known Westboro Baptist Church group and other groups outside the mainstream of American life, draw their life from testing our collective support for free speech. They attract attention by challenging the nation's comfort zones, from politeness to political correctness to public safety.

But as Chief Justice John Roberts wrote in a 2011 decision involving the Westboro group, "Speech is powerful. ... It can stir people to action, move them to tears of both joy and sorrow, and ... inflict great pain." But, he said, "We cannot react to that pain by punishing the speaker," adding that the nation's commitment to free and open debate means protecting "even hurtful speech on public issues to ensure that we do not stifle public debate."

Yes, the Garland, Texas, event was more P.T. Barnum than Picasso, and more crass than class. But, as Roberts wrote about Westboro admittedly using its presence at military funerals to attract attention, we cannot punish speakers for finding an effective way of being heard.

INSIDE THE FIRST AMENDMENT

I wish I could say that the nation's commitment to Roberts's views is — pardon the expression — "bulletproof." But we live in an age of rising terrorist threats, and the record also shows that fear dramatically affects public support for unfettered freedom.

In its annual nationwide State of the First Amendment survey by the Newseum Institute's First Amendment Center, 49 percent of Americans, fully eight months after the 9/11 attacks, said the First Amendment "goes too far in the rights it guarantees" — with a similar bump up in the weeks after the Boston Marathon bombing.

First Amendment scholars also warn that the ongoing "war on terror" with its repetitive, persistent threats from groups like al-Qaida and ISIS, has the potential to alter the very legal equations by which we determine the line between protected and unprotected speech, and the extent of religious liberty and other core freedoms.

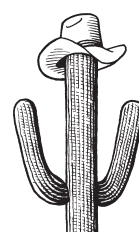

One of those measures in law is the degree to which speech is an "incitement" to violence, which can place it outside First Amendment protection. In a 2005 article in the Whittier Law Review, scholar Kenneth Lasson noted that "terrorism creates a kind of permanent imminence" that could criminalize speech seen as protected in calmer times.

First Amendment freedoms live at the fringes, even as they encourage dialogue and debate that creates middle ground. We've spent two centuries and more profiting from those freedoms and that standard.

Reasonable and proper steps to protect public safety are a common-sense response to true threats. But the "Home of the Brave" has an added responsibility — even in the face of terrorist threats — to defend and protect the right to push, provoke and proclaim nonmainstream views.

Long Time Passing

IT'S THE PITTS
LEE PITTS

I read in the Wall Street Journal that children born today have a good chance of living until they are 150. Just imagine how the obituary page might read then.

Orpheus "Moldy" Ashbottom passed away at the Forever Dead Holding Facility after the candles on his birthday cake caused a fire, the sprinklers went off, and Moldy got pneumonia. Months passed before anyone realized he was dead. At the time of his death Orpheus was married to his twelfth wife, Wanda, a childhood sweetheart he saw at their 140th high school class reunion. After the pregnancy test Orpheus did the honorable thing and married Wanda.

At the rest home, Orpheus enjoyed playing the slot machines and using the male/female ratio to his advantage. He was still driving at age 135. He leaves behind his wife, who had recently filed for a divorce, 120 children (35 born on medicare), 460 grandchildren and 1,000 great grandchildren. In his final days Orpheus sold his kidneys, lungs and heart to pay the overdue bill at the elder care detention camp. In lieu of flowers send contributions to Diapers for Dads.

Maggie "Mumsy" Muttentchop, 152, passed away peacefully at the home of her great, great, great, great granddaughter. Town folk will remember Mumsy as the friendly Starbucks barista who later in life became a celebrity closet arranger. At age 110 in mid-life, Mumsy began her career as an artificial knee and hip salesperson for the Snap, Crackle, Pop Body Parts Corporation. The last 20 years of her life were spent puttering around the house in a mumu, long black socks and sandals trying to find her hearing aid and reading glasses.

Mumsy was married to Mike Muttentchop for 130 years and the two of them enjoyed sharing their teeth at very early bird dinners. Mumsy was once asked how she felt about being married for so long to the same person. She sighed and said, "It gets a little old after awhile. You know what I mean?" In retirement Mumsy was looking forward to taking very long naps. We should take comfort in knowing she finally got her wish.

Charles "Dirty Charley" Winklegoose, age 155, died of suspicious causes at his palatial palace surrounded by bill collectors, lawyers, mistresses and illegitimate children. After flunking out of Harvard, Charley spent 30 years in the military, serving in World War III as a golf course attendant at Camp David, and during World War IV as a highly decorated lobbyist.

After serving in the Chelsea Clinton Presidency and the Sasha Obama cabinet, Dirty Charley spent the next 80 years as a U.S. Congressman, 15 of which were spent in San Quentin. During his stay there he continued to receive his forty million dollar yearly salary. Dirty Charley donated his prized collection of empty Metamucil® containers and prescription bottles to the Smithsonian on which he took a huge write off. Dirty Charley was laid to rest with full military honors in Washington's Boot Heel cemetery where he'll feel right at home with other crooks and scumbags.

Rainbow Seabreeze Harmony passed on to another dimension at the age of 150. She spent her life crusading for women's right to pierce their bodies, and was once arrested for indecent exposure while still fully clothed. Her body was decorated with 138 colorful tattoos which, as she got older, sagged and morphed into some interesting, albeit pornographic, art.

Rainbow worked at McDonalds for 80 years, and was promoted to head dishwasher two years before retiring. She was killed by a marauding pack of wolves while at a protest rally against guns.

Never married, Rainbow had several life partners. At the age of 102 she won the two hundred million Lotto Jackpot which almost covered her 16 year stay in cell block 16 of the Long Time Passing Assisted Care Facility. Rainbow's ashes were mixed with those of her pet lavender bush and were gently scattered so as to not contribute to ozone depletion. Her memorial service featured a lecture on climate change and Rainbow requested donations be made to the Euthanasia Society, Vegetarians for Peace, The Transgender Fund and your local chapter of Women Who Hate Men.

Conferees struggle toward budget compromise

AUSTIN — For the Texas Legislature to accomplish its main purpose, the passage of a state budget for fiscal years 2016 and 2017 must be achieved.

The five House and five Senate members of the Conference Committee on the budget, House Bill 1, have been working together since late April. They must angle their philosophical pathways to something mutually acceptable to take back to their respective chambers for consideration.

Last week, however, no results-showing HB 1 conference committee report was published, so as yet, there is no document revealing stalemate-breaking agreements on the $211 billion budget.

Movement on other items, in a bulk sense, has been slow. As of Friday, May 8, only four Senate bills and zero House bills had reached the governor's desk. House and Senate members filed a total of 6,274 bills in the current session.

This week, May 11 to 15, constitutionally imposed deadlines take effect, setting the stage for a massive die-off of bills that have not moved well into the process. So far, 1,315 House and Senate bills have progressed beyond the committees in which they originated.

COMPTROLLER PINPOINTS CONCERNS

With the June 1 end date for the legislative session only weeks away, Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar, the state's chief bookkeeper and a former member of the House and the Senate, on May 4 sent a written reminder of his budgetary concerns to Gov. Greg Abbott, Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick and House Speaker Joe Straus.

While the focus of budget disagreements between the House and Senate is taxes and where to cut them, Hegar urged attention to a list of long-term balance sheet issues affecting the state's credit rating and thus the cost of borrowing. Here's a shortened version of the list:

1. Roads and infrastructure. Additional funds are needed to meet the state's rapid population growth.

2. Texas Employees Retirement System pension. The state's contribution rate is insufficient to amortize the liability in a timely manner.

3. Long-term debt. The state's general obligation debt has more than doubled from $7 billion in 2010 to $15 billion currently. It must be paid down.

4. Other post-employment benefits. Accrued liabilities to the Teachers Retirement and Employees Retirement systems need to be fund in order to keep them actuarially sound.

5. Texas Tomorrow Fund. Unfunded liabilities are growing for the state's guaranteed college tuition program.

6. Deferred maintenance. Normal deterioration of state-owned facilities must be

WHO DEFINES MARRIAGE

Right now arguments are being made to the Supreme Court as to what marriage is or should be. The court is made up of nine men and women and they may decide if it is the traditional one man one woman or men and men or women and women. Those nine may decide for 318 million people. They may throw out what has been the traditional marriage of one man and one woman and bring in something that is contrary to what states have in their constitutions or what you believe or even the Religious beliefs that you strongly adhere to. There is a real struggle or battle going on in the United States to redefine everything that this country was founded on but that is not the real question. Who defines our moral values, marriage being one of those? Is it a state, a nation or nine men and women or even one federal judge? The only one who has the real authority to define marriage and our moral values is God our creator. God gave us the moral values or standards to live by in the Bible, (2 Timothy 3:16). We are told to obey them and that there would be consequences for disobeying them. God says marriage is one man one woman and this is not to be violated, (Genesis 1:27&28, 2:18-24). The question is are we going to obey God or man? See you in Church next Sunday. Brother J

Abbott signs bill to help students who fail state exams

BY EVA HERSHAW
TEXAS TRIBUNE

Gov. Greg Abbott warmed up his bill-signing pen on Monday, approving a measure ensuring that some high school seniors who fail to pass state exams can seek an alternate route to graduation.

"The goal of the Texas public education system should be to ensure all students who graduate from high school or college are career-ready," Abbott said in a statement after the bill signing. "While it is critical that the state appropriately holds public schools and districts accountable for delivering the best possible education, we must protect Texas students from being penalized as a result of evolving testing standards."

Under Senate Bill 149 by state Sen. Kel Seliger, R-Amarillo, panels made up of educators, counselors and parents will weigh factors such as grades, college entrance exam scores and attendance to decide whether a student should earn a diploma despite poor performance on standardized exams.

About 28,000 students in the class of 2015 still must pass one or more of the five state exams in U.S. history, biology, algebra I, English I and English II required to graduate. Of those who need to retake exams, about half must retake more than one.

CCCCSD Superintendent Raul Chavarria said the district already has a resolution prepared by their law firm, and that the school board will discuss it at the May 20 regular meeting.

He also said the district will have to form the required committees to conform.

"Lots of work for the last weeks of school," Chavarria said.

Supporters of the bill say it's intended to provide an alternative graduation method for some otherwise qualified students, not as a graduation fast track for students who did not meet the requirements needed to get a diploma.

Critics, however, have expressed concern about the objectivity of the panels, made up of educators whose schools could be penalized if their students fail to graduate. The plan has been criticized by the Texas Association of Business and the Austin Chamber of Commerce, which argue that it could lead to graduates being less prepared for careers or higher education.

The law takes effect immediately.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Comptroller of Public Accounts
50-195 (02-12/12)
[41.41, 41.70]

Property Tax Protest and Appeal Procedures

The law gives property owners the right to protest actions concerning their property tax appraisals. You may follow these appeal procedures if you have a concern about:

- the market or appraised value of your property
- the unequal appraisal of your property
- the inclusion of your property on the appraisal roll
- any exemptions that may apply to you
- the qualification for an agricultural or timber appraisal
- the taxable status of your property
- the local governments which should be taxing your property
- the ownership of property
- the change of use of land receiving special appraisal
- any action taken by the chief appraiser, appraisal district or appraisal review board that applies to and adversely affects you.

Informal Review

(Insert description of appraisal district's informal review process, if any, then give name and telephone number of person taxpayer should contact.)

Crockett County Appraisal District
PO Box 1569
Ozona, Texas 76943
325-392-8258

Review by the Appraisal Review Board

If you can't resolve your problem informally with the county appraisal district (CAD) staff, you may have your case heard by the appraisal review board (ARB).

The ARB is an independent board of citizens that reviews problems with appraisals or other concerns listed above. It has the power to order the CAD to make the necessary changes to solve problems. If you file a written request for an ARB hearing (called a notice of protest) before the deadline, the ARB will set your case for a hearing. You'll receive written notice of the time, date and place of the hearing. If necessary, you may request a hearing in the evening or on a Saturday or Sunday. Prior to your hearing, you may ask to review the evidence the CAD plans to introduce at the hearing to establish any matter at issue. The law provides that before a hearing on a protest or immediately after the hearing begins, you or your agent and the CAD shall each provide the other with a copy of any written material intended to be offered or submitted to the ARB at the hearing. To the greatest extent practicable, the hearing will be informal. You or a designated agent may appear in person to present evidence or you may send notarized evidence for the ARB to review at your hearing. The CAD representative will present evidence about your case. You may cross-examine the CAD representative. The ARB will make its decision based on the evidence presented. In most cases, the CAD has the burden of establishing the property's value by a preponderance of the evidence presented.

In certain protests where the owner has submitted an independent appraisal before the hearing, the chief appraiser has the burden of proving the property's value by clear and convincing evidence. You can get a copy of a protest form from the appraisal district office at (insert address).

Crockett County Appraisal District
PO Box 1569
Ozona, Texas 76943

Note: You shouldn't try to contact ARB members outside of the hearing. The law requires ARB members to sign an affidavit saying that they haven't talked about your case before the ARB hears it.

Review by the District Court or an Arbitrator or SOAH

After it decides your case, the ARB must send you a copy of its order by certified mail. If you're not satisfied with the decision, you have the right to appeal. If you choose to go to court, you must start the process by filing a petition within 60 days of the date you receive the ARB's order. In certain cases, as an alternative to filing an appeal in district court, you may file, not later than the 45th day after you receive notice of the ARB order, a request for binding arbitration with the county appraisal district. In certain cases originating in certain counties, as an alternative to filing an appeal in district court, you may appeal to the State Office of Administrative Hearings (SOAH). An appeal to SOAH is initiated by, not later than the 30th day after you receive notice of the ARB's order, filing with the chief appraiser of the county appraisal district a notice of appeal. Appeals to District Court, Binding Arbitration, or SOAH all require payment of certain fees or deposits.

Tax Payment

You must pay either the amount of taxes due on the portion of the taxable value not in dispute or the amount of taxes due on the property under the order from which the appeal is taken.

More Information

You can get more information by contacting your appraisal district at (insert appraisal district name, address, telephone number).

Crockett County Appraisal District
PO Box 1569 909 Avenue D
Ozona, Texas 76943
325-392-8258

You can also get a pamphlet describing how to prepare a protest from the appraisal district or from the State Comptroller's Property Tax Assistance Division at P.O. Box 13528, Austin, Texas 78711-3528.

Deadline for Filing Protests with the ARB*

Usual Deadline

On or before May 31 (or 30 days after a notice of appraised value was mailed to you, whichever is later).

Late protests are allowed if you miss the usual deadline for good cause. Good cause is some reason beyond your control, like a medical emergency. The ARB decides whether you have good cause.

Late protests are due the day before the ARB approves records for the year. Contact your appraisal district for more information.

Special Deadlines

For change of use (the appraisal district informed you that you are losing agricultural appraisal because you changed the use of your land), the deadline is not later than the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you.

* The deadline is postponed to the next business day if it falls on a weekend or holiday.

For ARB changes (the ARB has informed you of a change that increases your tax liability and the change didn't result from a protest you filed), the deadline is not later than the 30th day after the notice of the determination was mailed to you.

(You may insert deadline for protests concerning omitted property if doing so would avoid taxpayer confusion.)

If you believe the appraisal district or ARB should have sent you a notice and did not, you may file a protest until the day before taxes become delinquent (usually February 1) or no later than the 125th day after the date you claim you received a tax bill from one or more of the taxing units that tax your property. The ARB decides whether it will hear your case based on evidence about whether a required notice was mailed to you.
