Hurd, Ortiz Jones race still going by dylan mcguinness

$1

Democratic congressional candidate Gina Ortiz Jones' clash with county and state election officials over provisional ballots that could decide her race will reach its deadline Tuesday and a group of prominent Democrats are now backing her up.

SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS-NEWS

At issue is the final vote count in Congressional District 23, where Jones trails incumbent Republican Will Hurd by more than 1,000 votes. Jones wants to see a list of voters in Bexar County who cast provisional votes so the campaign can encourage them to "cure" their ballots, or correct them to ensure they're counted.

The deadline is 5 p.m. Tuesday.

"The clock is ticking, and we're working hard so that all voters can stand up and be heard," Jones said.

The Hurd campaign has called his lead "insurmountable" and declared victory.

HAWLEY - The Ozona Lions will face Seymour Friday night in the Bi-District round of the Class 2A Division I Playoffs.

The game will be 7:30 p.m. at Gordon Wood Stadium in Brownwood. Lions will be the home team.

The Panthers (9-1) won the District 4-2A Championship.

Their only loss came against Hawley (14-12) in a non-district match.

Ozona lost to the Bearcats Friday day, 35-12, in their final regular season game.

EMPLOYEES WITH ALLEN KELLER COMPANY start the concrete work on the Interstate-10 Frontage Road Extension Project Tuesday morning. Due to construction, part of the Frontage Road that runs by the 365 exit in front of El Chato's Restaurant down to Stripes Convenience Store and the Swimming Pool Park will be closed to traffic. The 365 exit was still open for off coming traffic. The road will be converted into a one way during the project. Work on the project began Oct. 15 but was delayed 16 days due to weather. The $3.4 million project is expected to take about a year to complete. The project is being overseen by the Texas Department of Transportation.

Veterans fight for our freedom: it's time we fight for their legal aid exas is home to the second-largest veteran population in the country, with more than 1.5 million veterans in the Lone Star State.

The transition from military life to civilian life is difficult. In addition to the emotional and physical battles facing veterans upon their return, numerous legal challenges often make the transition even more challenging.

Landlord/tenant disputes, credit problems, family law matters, veterans benefits, restoring a driver's license: these are all common civil legal issues that can become overwhelming for veterans.

Providing free legal services to qualifying veterans is imperative. We should make a commitment to better the lives of the service men and women who voluntarily risked their lives for our freedom.

Texas lawyers and the legal community have a responsibility to help military service members. Legal aid can and does make a difference for veterans.

GUEST COLUMN

NATHAN L. HECHT & DONALD J. GUTER

the state, local bar associations, legal aid organizations, and law schools are hosting free legal clinics to help veterans access the justice system and get the help they need.

If you are a veteran in need of legal assistance, please visit https://texaslawhelp.org/tvlaw-2018 to find a TVLAW clinic in your area, or call the statewide hotline at 1-800-622-2520.

These efforts are part of the larger initiative in Texas to support the men and women in uniform who took an oath to defend our country.

We owe it to them to defend their rights.

This past year, the Texas Access to Justice Foundation provided $1.87 million in grants to 14 nonprofit organizations that provide free legal services to veterans.

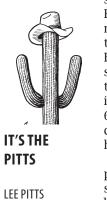

Soup Strainers and Flavor Savers

Have you ever noticed the obligatory five or six young men standing behind every Grand Champion steer or heifer at a major livestock show who were responsible for grooming the animal? While every hair is in place on the bovine the talented fellas responsible look like they just spent six months as roustabouts in northern Alaska without access to running water or shaving utensils.

They have so much facial hair one wonders if they go out in public does PETA throw paint on them thinking they're wearing wool?

Beards and mustaches are a generational thing. If you look at pictures of our Presidents you'll see that only one or two of our Presidents up until Abe Lincoln had facial hair. Then Abe started a trend of nine Presidents who wore some kind of facial hair. (In Abe's case he had a good reason, he was uglier than a mud fence.) Then for no discernible reason, Presidents became clean shaven again and the last President who had any kind of facial hair was William Taft who was our 27th President.

While my generation was famous for growing our hair long in almost every instance we budding baby boomers were clean shaven. I had eight uncles and as I recall there wasn't a beard in the bunch, although I did have an aunt with a mustache. Fast forward to today and any selfrespecting man has some sort of beard, mustache, fu man chu, soul patch, flavor saver or soup strainer. Even muttonchops have made a comeback. And therein lies my problem. Except for those days spent in a coma, from the time I started shaving at 16 until I turned 65 I shaved nearly every day of my life. And I hated every day of it!

I encountered many problems being a serial shaver. First, I'm nearly blind and not being able to see my face in the foggy mirror meant one sideburn was always an inch or two higher then the other and a chunk would be missing from my nose, ear and/or both. I was also a chronic bleeder which meant I always had several tiny pieces of toilet paper with red dots in the middle all over my face when I went out in public. Fast forward to today when everyone has facial hair and being clean shaven means I stick out worse than the wart on Abe Lincoln's face.

Then there's the costs associated with shaving. Men and women don't just shave these days with a razor and a blade, oh no, they have to use a "shaving system" so Proctor and Gamble and Gillette can charge you $25 for a package of blades. Thank goodness dollar stores came along where I can buy a whole bag of throwaway razors for a buck. I don't care if they do take huge chunks out of my cheeks, at least I'm not having to dip into our retirement savings to purchase shaving equipment. If I added up all the time and money I've wasted on razor blades over the years I'd probably own a big ranch and be a billionaire by now.

And if my face had been covered in facial hair maybe it wouldn't now be covered in skin cancer. I can also see how a full beard might have come in handy when I had to feed our cows in freezing weather.

Now that I'm a hermit and have stopped going out in public I've started skipping the daily shave. Then other problems started rearing their ugly head.

After about three days I don't feel comfortable in my own skin and after a week my face has the texture of 80 grit sandpaper and I could use it to sand furniture. And in trying to cut through the oldgrowth, prickly underbrush I always break two or three cheapie dollar store razors so now I wonder just how much money I really am saving.

I've almost resorted to desperate measures. The fella who cuts my hair at the Curl Up and Dye Barber Salon tells me that priests in ancient Egypt dealt with the shaving problem by plucking every hair from their bodies. I swear, I hate shaving so much it's almost enough to make me join the priesthood.

Each year, legal aid organizations provide free services to more than 8,500 Texas veterans.

In addition, many private attorneys volunteer their time and expertise through pro bono programs that provide assistance to clients at no charge.

For example, the South Texas College of Law Houston Veterans Clinic opened in spring 2015 to serve low-income veterans facing service-related legal issues.

Funding from the Texas Access to Justice Foundation provided a staff attorney to help run the clinic and teach law students applicable law as they work on veteran cases. Many of these law students are themselves veterans. In addition to this ongoing work, the law school also hosts free clinics each year, providing legal aid consulting or representation to more than 100 veterans in Brazoria, Fort Bend, Harris and Montgomery counties.

This week (Nov. 11-17) is Texas Veterans Legal Aid Week (TVLAW). Across The Joe Jamail Endowment for Veteran Legal Services, created by Houston attorney Richard Mithoff, launched last year to provide a funding source for Texas veterans to have access to legal services.

Since its inception, the endowment has raised more than $800,000. These funds will go a long way towards securing the free legal services our veterans truly need.

If you would like to learn more or honor a service member or veteran in your life, please visit teajf.org. The commitment to veterans must continue.

We owe them more than gratitude and applause we owe them our promise that what they have sacrificed for us will not be overlooked. One way to honor their service is to step up and help veterans receive the legal assistance they deserve.

Election results reveal larger than usual turnout

AUSTIN — More than 8.3 million of Texas' 15.8 million registered voters cast ballots in the Nov. 6 general election, as shown in results posted by the secretary of state.

The turnout of almost 53 percent was recognized widely as the highest in nearly 50 years for a Texas election without presidential candidates on the ballot.

U.S. Rep. Robert Francis "Beto" O'Rourke, D-El Paso, garnered national attention in his quest to unseat U.S. Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Houston, but Cruz won the race with 4,244,204 votes (50.92 percent) to 4,024,777 (48.29 percent) for O'Rourke.

Gov. Greg Abbott, a Republican, was re-elected to a second term. He received 4,638,532 million votes, which amounted to 55.83 percent of total votes cast. Democratic challenger Lupe Valdez of Dallas received 3,528,705 million votes or 42.47 percent of the total vote. STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS By Ed Sterling Texas Press Association

Lt. Gov. Dan Patrick, a Republican who presides over the Texas Senate, was re-elected to a second term, receiving 4,244,709 million votes, 51.32 percent. Democratic challenger Mike Collier of Houston received 3,841,940 million votes, 46.45 percent.

Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton, a Republican, was re-elected with 4.2 million votes, 50.6 percent. Democratic challenger Justin Nelson received 3.9 million votes, 46.9 percent.

INCUMBENTS RETAIN POSTS

In other state agency races, Texas Comptroller Glenn Hegar, Republican, was reelected over Democrat Joe Chevalier; Land Commissioner George P. Bush, Republican, was re-elected over Democrat Miguel Suazo; Agriculture Commissioner Sid Miller, Republican, was re-elected over Democrat Kim Olson; and Railroad Commissioner Christi Craddick, Republican, was re-elected over Democrat Roman McAllen.

All incumbents won reelection in Texas Supreme Court, Court of Criminal Appeals and State Board of Education races. Winning open seats on the State Board of Education were: Matt Robinson, Republican, over Democrat Elizabeth Markowitz, District 7; Pam Little, Republican, over Democrat Suzanne Smith, District 12; and A. Denise Russell, Republican, over Democrat Aicha Davis, District 13.

Results tweak seat counts Also in Nov. 6 election results, Democrats picked up 12 seats in the 150-member Texas House of Representatives, so in 2019 Republicans will hold 83 seats and Democrats 67. Incumbent House members who lost their re-election bids include: Reps. Matt Rinaldi, R-Irving; Paul Workman, R-Austin; Ron Simmons, R-Carrollton; Linda Koop, R-Richardson; Rodney Anderson, R-Grand Prairie; Mike Schofield, R-Houston; Gary Elkins, R-Houston; and Tony Dale, R-Cedar Park. Is alcohol bad for you? This is where a little perspective is important. If you drink excessively, the answer is an absolute, yes. But I'm not at all convinced that having a couple of drinks a week, or even a couple glasses of wine with a meal in the context of an overall healthy diet and lifestyle will cause harm.

A friend of mine directed me to an interesting article in Popular Science called "Remember when wine was good for you?"

The focus of the article is the recent global study that found, contrary to prior research and popular belief, there is no amount of alcohol that is good for us. I think it's worth pointing out that the increased mortality risk associated with light drinking is so tiny that it's almost impossible to distinguish from chance. In brief, the recent global study certainly did not prove anything and was little more than a laborious read of statistical "noise."

The article highlights an important problem that confounds virtually all observational nutrition studies... most epidemiologists - practitioners and scientific methodologists researching the incidence and prevalence of health factors in large populations consider a change in risk that is less than 100 percent in either direction to be statistical "noise." In other words, the risk to life isn't significant enough to justify looking into it further.

For example, the increase in lung cancer risk from smoking cigarettes is in the 1,000 to 3,000 percent range, and the increase in the risk of liver cancer from eating moldy grains is about 600 percent.

Many studies have shown that alcohol consumption may have benefits far beyond easing our social interaction and making us braver on the dance floor.

A metaanalysis of the literature conducted in 2015 by the Journal of Internal Medicine found that moder-HERE'S TO ate alcohol YOUR HEALTH consumption is associated with reduced risk for coronary artery disease, stroke, and heart failure.

JIM FISH

However, that same study also found that heavy drinking, defined as consuming four or more standard-sized drinks per day, is associated with increased risk of high blood pressure, coronary artery disease, abnormalities in heart rhythm, and brain bleeding type stroke.

The Journal of Internal Medicine went on to define this critical point as, "24g of alcohol per day, the equivalent of two twelve-ounce beers, two five-ounce pours of wine, or two one-and-ahalf-ounce shots of distilled liquor." So, from this study, we can conclude that alcohol, in small doses, may improve cardiovascular health, while overdoing it can be very harmful.

Whether your choice of drink is wine, beer, or liquor, make sure you are aware of the massive amounts of hidden sugar that can be present in these beverages. Cocktails are the most frequent offender, with their sugary mixers and syrups.

Certain beers can have a load of sugar, and many wines have added sugar to suit the palates of modern drinkers. However, low alcohol wine is sugar-free because it is fully fermented, meaning the yeast has consumed all available sugar during the fermentation process.

Overall, studies confirm that there are some very pos-

'No alcohol is healthy?' Say it ain't so! itive benefits for the brain with low to moderate alcohol consumption, especially as it relates to red wine. There are many possible mechanisms by which red wine benefits the brain, including over 500 different compounds that have been identified in wines. These compounds include many polyphenols, which are biologically active phytonutrients that provide us important antioxidant protection and nurture our gut microbes.

I consume a maximum of two or three glasses of red wine per day (not every day) because red wine seems to be associated with health benefits, not only for the heart but for the brain as well. I look for organic, low-alcohol wines with an alcohol content of 12.5 percent or less.

As with any food in your diet (you knew this was coming), you should absolutely check the sugar content of the wines you consume. There are wines available now that are specifically tested for fructose and glucose. Look for wines that have less than 1g of sugar per liter.

Our bodies are resilient. Even if there is "no level of alcohol that is healthy," that doesn't mean that we can't tolerate some now and then. We could say the same for polluted air, heavy metals in drinking water, pesticides and herbicides, etc. These things are impossible to avoid entirely and worrying incessantly about them is probably worse for you than the exposure itself.

Wow! We are halfway through November. I always heard that time seemed to move faster as you got older, but this is ridiculous. I am trying to keep up, but I am not doing a very good job at it. I keep skipping things that are important. I am not complaining, just letting you know that if you are experiencing this feeling, you are not the only one.

I have not been announcing our Bingo in the paper because I put it in that it was the second Monday in each month in the future.

The bridge games have been a lot of fun. They didn't even have to use me as a fourth. That is a good thing for them because I'm not good at bridge. This is not a private club. If you would like to learn to play bridge, don't be shy, come on out and learn.

Niki was back last Tuesday and she had a couple to exercise with her. Come exercise with her at 10 a.m. Tuesdays.

Come on out at 9:30 a.m. Friday and work on your jewelry. They have a good time. You should come try to fix some jewelry. If you have broken jewelry or something that you don't like anymore, bring it with you and make a new piece or fix an old piece. We have some tools to work with. You can have a new piece of jewelry to wear. come try it out, it's fun.

I love my quilting ladies. They come at 9:30 a.m. Thursday. I am always amazed at the fun they have creating the beautiful quilts and deciding who should be the recipient of their creations. The one they have been working on for the raffle is really cute. Come by and get your tickets for the drawing for this quilt. They would love to have you come join in the fun.

We will have afternoon bingo each Thursday. Bring your nickels and play as many cards as you can handle at a nickel a card per game. If you bingo for that game, you get all the nickels. We serve cokes and popcorn and have a good time. Then we have blackout bingo for a little prize for the lucky winner.

The center will open at 8:30 a.m. and close at 4:30 p.m.

Bridge 1:30 p.m. Monday Exercise with Niki 10:30 a.m. Tuesday

Mexican Train at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday

Prayer Group at 3 p.m. on Wednesday

Quilting at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday.

Bingo from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday.

Jewelry repair 10 a.m. Friday.

Come on out, the coffee is on.

We Can Do Nothing

"I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ve can do nothing." John 15:5 Last time I checked the dictionary of the English language, the definition of nothing still meant - nothing. But I see that religion has changed the definition from "nothing" to "something". The definition has been so badly twisted that "nothing" now means a "whole bunch of stuff." The question never has been nor will it ever be are we sufficient enough to please God? We all know that the answer to that question is a great big resounding NO! Here's the real question – is Christ sufficient? If so, then He is the only one who can make us pleasing to God. Religion thrives on the prospect of Christ's "insufficient" sufficiency. They say that if we combine man's half-way-decent efforts with Christ's "unfinished" work, that we, together with Christ, will be able to accomplish many things. But Christ clearly stated that without Him, we can do nothing. Some may look at this

LIVING SOMEONE ELSE'S DREAM

They left England in September 1620. 102 brave men women and children boarded the 100 foot Mayflower. 66 days later after facing many difficulties and uncertainties they landed only to encounter cold and rain. After the first year with much sickness, lack of food and severe cold only 53 survived. There was no going back because they wanted a new life with freedoms but especially a life with the freedom of worship. They paid a great price and today we enjoy the benefits. You see, we are living and enjoying their dream. Every year my family makes plans so we can be together for Thanksgiving but it more like Christmas and Thanksgiving together. I usually try to make as we call them "Mama's rolls" and candied sweet potatoes to put on the thanksgiving table. We also want to especially remember someone else who had a dream for us. Just as the Pilgrims paid a great price for us, another paid a great price for us. It was Jesus Christ who gave His life so we could have our sins forgiven and have peace with God and the hope and promise of wonderful future, (John 3:16, Colossians 1:5, 12, 13, 14, 20, 21, 22). This Thanksgiving Day and Christmas season may we take a little time to pause and reflect on the many freedoms and blessings this great country offers and also for the many wonderful blessings that God and others have made available to us. See you in Church next Sunday. Brother J and say - see, Christ can do nothing without us. No, God can do anything He pleases without us, and He has.

When Christ says that we can do nothing without Him, He is not saying that He is insufficient, but that we are.

By saying that we can do nothing without Him, He is saying that He is all-sufficient. So, what is our "contribution" to Christ's power?

Our sin-tattered garments.

When we say that there is something good we can do to gain His favor, we are supposing that He needs our help because He simply cannot do it without us.

Truth is, God loses nothing without us, but without Him, we lose everything.

request, including large counties such as El Paso and Maverick.

Crockett County has also complied with the request.

Crockett County voted in favor of Hurd with 904 votes. Ortiz Iones had 333.

Releasing the list "will facilitate opportunities to inform eligible voters of their rights and ensure that they have ample opportunity to cure their ballots or otherwise ensure they are counted," the county commissioners precisely changed its rules in 2014 to forbid what Jones is trying to do.

The new rule came after campaigns wanted the provisional voter list in Williamson County after a 2014 judicial race was decided by 12 votes, Ingram said. The county granted their request.

The secretary of state's office thought it should have been withheld, and it changed its rules to forbid release of the voter lists until ballot boards finish their work.

Secretary of State spokesman Sam Taylor said "our agency's rule ensures that vot-Democrats wrote in a letter to ers are not bothered by campaigns after the election. ballot board.

At least 850 such votes are outstanding in the district, according to elections officials in 17 of the district's 29 counties that provided numbers to the San Antonio Express-News. Those counties made up about 90 percent of the vote Tuesday. It remains unclear how many of the votes will ultimately count.

Bexar County officials last week released the result of 446 votes the county had tallied since Tuesday. Jones gained a net 70 votes, bringing the margin to 1,080 votes.

County Judge Nelson Wolff, a Democrat, also supported Callanen. He said he spoke with Secretary of State Rolando Pablos early Monday about the concerns the officials raised in their letter. 'The state sets the legislation, the secretary of the state sets the rules, we have to carry it out," Wolff said. "To the best of my knowledge, Jacque has followed the law.'

Election officials shot back, arguing that the release of the lists would be illegal and the notification to voters redundant.

Bexar County Elections Administrator Jacque Callanen has said she can't legally release the list before the county's early voting ballot board — a small, bipartisan group charged with reviewing provisional and mail-in ballots — completes its work.

The lists become public records after the review, according to election law.

The Texas secretary of state's office said that might be because their ballot boards are already done with their reviews. Bexar County accounts for more than half the district's votes.

"They're beating me up," Callanen said Friday after Iones staffers implored her to release the list at a Commissioners Court meeting. "They're asking me to break the law, and I won't do it."

The secretary of state's office has supported her claims. Keith Ingram, the state election director, said the office

"Any additional 'notice' from a campaign would be redundant and potentially confusing to voters," Taylor said.

The Jones campaign said it has not received an official response from Bexar County authorities regarding its request.

The small margin in the race has elections officials in the district's 29 counties furiously trying to tally outstanding ballots that were not included in figures from the election last Tuesday. Those include the provisional ballots, mail or "absentee" ballots, which were accepted until 5 p.m. Nov. 7, and military and overseas ballots, which can arrive through Tuesday, Nov. 13.

For the most part, the task of reviewing those votes falls to each county's early voting

All ballots will be received by Tuesday. The official result may not be known until the first week of December.

"Some positives came out of the game with Hawley. They showed why they are a top 10 team. They are a very big team and are able to do things simply because of the talent. We simply had too many mental mistakes and turnovers to beat a top 10 team like Hawley," said Coach Kyle Freeman.

Ozona was led by Carlos Cantu in rushing yards. Cantu had six carries for 64 vards.

Marcus Perez had 10 carries for 25 yards.

Joe Perez rushed for a 19-yard touchdown.

Lazaro Rodriguez caught a 14-yard pass from Perez for the Lions' second touchdown.

Rodriguez and Aiden Fuentes each had seven tackles for the Lions.

Jacob Childress, Zachary Talamantez and Jesse Vega each had an interception for Ozona.

Ozona finishes the regular season 2-7 overall and 1-3 in district play.

ate, Democrats picked up two seats as Republicans Konni Burton of Colleyville and Donald Huffines of Dallas lost their races to Beverly Powell and Nathan Johnson, respectively. Republicans currently hold 21 Senate seats and Democrats hold 10, but in 2019 the balance will shift to 20-11 or 21-10 depending on the outcome of a special election to fill the Senate District 6 seat vacated by Sen. Sylvia Garcia, D-Houston. Gov. Abbott ordered the special election to be held on Dec. 11. Two state representatives who won re-election on Nov. 6, Democrats Carol Alvarado and Ana Hernandez of Houston, both have expressed their intent to run for the vacated seat.

Public Notice

Are internet-only public notices sufficient?

No. The internet is a valuable resource, but it's not a viable stand-alone source for public notices.

Newspapers have been printing public notices in Texas since 1836. Generations of Texans have come to expect their notices in print. And now Texas papers provide this crucial service in print AND online...at no extra charge.

With newspapers, more people NOTICE their public notices.

And that, after all, is what notice is about in the first place.
