PROGRESS REPORT AT MIDYEAR . . . .

Prospects Look Good For West Plains Crops Despite Repeated Hail And Wind Storms

Despite recurring hailstorms which have destroyed thousands of acres of young cotton and grain sorghum as well as wheat, the general outlook for business and agriculture on the West Plains is a bright one, and most observers are optimistic about the fall prospects for this section of the state. This optimism is reflected in bank statements, postal receipts and population figures, as well as in agricultural forecasts by usually reliable sources, and it appears that Muleshoe and the West Plains face one of the best harvest seasons in several years.

Population
To begin, population in Muleshoe, "the capital of the West Plains" country, has maintained a steady conservative growth during the past years, and at mid-year 1957, shows a closely estimated population of 4,335, as compared to 3,500 in 1950. This growth of almost 1,000 has not depended on any sudden booming industry, although a concerted effort continues to establish a payroll industry in Muleshoe. The population increase has been due to the opening of new businesses, the expansion of existing places of business and the natural advantages offered in Muleshoe to outsiders.

The industrial development committee in Muleshoe has been hard on the heels of a large clothing manufacturer to locate a plant here. Although nothing definite has been promised, there is a feeling within the committee that Muleshoe has a good chance of being chosen as the site of one of the two plants to be established in West Texas.

Financial
Bank deposits in the two local banking institutions for the first twelve months of 1957 showed an increase of more than half a million dollars. The two banks combined deposits totaled $6,400,757.53, or $500,957.84 more than deposits for the same period in 1956. During the month of May, Bailey county residents purchased more than $8500 worth of U. S. Government savings bonds, also.

Agricultural
The farm picture, following five years of hard drought, is beginning to look very much better for this fall. Rains this year have already totaled 10.31 inches officially in Muleshoe, with considerable more than that recorded outside of Muleshoe proper. Last year at this time only 6.25 inches had been recorded, and the entire total in 1956 was only 8.32 inches.

Although the rains have helped the crop outlook immensely, they have been a mixed blessing for many farmers. Continued rains and water standing in the fields caused losses to cotton from soreshin diseases, and about the time this situation was corrected by replanting in many instances, hail storms, accompanied by high winds and driving rains, began to plague farmers in the area south of the sandhills.

Some farmers have been hit by three heavy hail storms within the past three weeks. The farms of Cecil Davis, Buford Bates, Harlan Davis, Jack Scott, Robert Kelton, and Morris Kilgough, among others, were damaged heavily Monday night of this week by the third hail storm in as many weeks. Last week hail hit in the same area following on the heels of a storm of the previous Monday which caused considerable damage. Rains accompanying the hail ranged from one to three inches in many places south of the sand.

Despite the ravages caused by natural phenomena, other forces of nature have smiled on local crops. Hot weather has helped growing crops, and other counties have been less fortunate than Bailey. Most observers, even on a national level, have stated the belief that the West Plains may lead the western part of the state in cotton production.

The wheat harvest, in full swing now, has resulted in quite a bit of 40 bushel grain, and barley has exceeded production of past years, with at least two farmers topping the 70 bushel mark.

Onion harvest, likewise in operation at this time is resulting in production ranging from 300 to 400 bags per acre. There are approximately 200 acres of onion in the area, and the going price averages $3.75 per bag. Income from the present onion harvest is expected to put more than a quarter million dollars in circulation.

More than 3,000 acres of vegetables have been planted in Bailey county and the immediate trade area. Income from vegetables, if present market prices hold, will add considerably to the annual agricultural financial picture.

Construction
Building of both business and residential types has continued this first half of 1957, with more than a million dollars in commercial construction either in progress or completed within the first six months of the year. These buildings include office structures for Bobo Insurance, Pool Insurance, Muleshoe Clinic, several service stations, and in addition to a number of fine new homes which have been built this year in and near Muleshoe.

Postal Receipts
Postal receipts for the first six months of 1957 took an $821.21 increase over receipts for the same period in 1956. Receipts for the period ending June 28, 1957 were $22,826.44, and for the same period in 1956, they totaled $22,005.23.

Quarterly receipts for the three months ending June 28, 1957, were $12,232.20, and for the same period in 1956 were $10,683.90, for an increase in the current year of $1548.30.

Preston-Craig Wedding Solemnized In Dennis Chapel At Dimmitt June 6

(From The Castro County News)
The wedding of Miss Kathryn Genell Preston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Preston of Dimmitt, and Randall Holt Craig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Craig of Muleshoe was solemnized at 8 p.m., June 6 in the Dennis Chapel at Dimmitt.

Emerald trees formed a background for the double-ring service read by the Rev. Earl Landtroop of Clovis. A white satin arch was garlanded with greenery and flanked by baskets of white stock and gladioli.

O. C. Renfro played the traditional wedding music, and accompanied Alva Lee Shofner, who sang "I Love You Truly," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a designer gown of chalk white embroidered nylon organdy over net and taffeta designed with a portrait neckline bordered by embroidered bands of self fabric. The full skirt was accented at intervals by embroidered bands and streamers from a tulle bow extended the full length of the ballerina skirt. Her silk illusion veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls and rhinestones.

Attendants
Miss Charlotte Mears attended the bride as matron of honor. She was dressed in mint green organdy fashioned with a v-neckline and cummerbund at the waist; she carried a colonial nosegay of yellow roses. Mrs. John Cronford of Norman, Okla., and Miss Norma Messenger were bridesmaids and wore yellow organdy dresses and carried nosegays of roses.

gown of Chantilly-type lace and nylon tulle over net and satin. Designed with fitted bodice and portrait neckline, the gown featured long sleeves ending in points over the hands. From this stemmed a waltz length skirt over tulle, fully shirred with a yoke of scalloped lace, outlined with a band of scalloped applique. The immense fullness of lace and tulle over the ruffled net and satin, was emphasized by Crinoline underneath. Her French silk veil of illusion was attached to a lace hat. ## Irrigation Pipe Meeting Called To Begin July 16

An estimated 3,000 miles of concrete irrigation pipe is now in use on Texas farms. Because of the widespread interest and requests for information on the subject of concrete irrigation pipe, a meeting has been set for July 16. It will be held in the Aggie Auditorium on the Texas Tech campus at Lubbock with a 9 p.m. starting time.

R. V. Thurmond and D. W. Sherrill, irrigation specialists for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, say the meeting is open to any person who is interested in concrete pipe for irrigation or in problems relating to the installation of such systems. Featured speaker on the one-day program will be A. P. Pillsbury, professor of irrigation, University of California. The extension specialists point out that between 25 and 30,000 miles of concrete irrigation pipe are used in California and that Prof. Pillsbury, because of his work in the state,

Gas Tax Refund Is Now Available On Proper Application

Farmers are reminded by C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist, that they may now apply for a refund on the 3-cent Federal tax on gasoline used for farming. The amount claimed must be based on the quantity of fuel used for farming purposes on individual farms and ranches during the period from July 1, 1956 to June 30, 1957.

Bates says that all claims must be submitted to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, and claims for the past year must be in by September 30, 1957. Only one refund claim per farm operator will be permitted and each tax claimant is cautioned to make certain that his refund request includes all eligible fuel used.

Each farm or ranch operator who applied for tax refunds in 1956 will be mailed Form 2340 for filing the 1957 claim. An instruction sheet for preparing the application will also be provided, says Bates. For new fuel users or those who failed to file last year, copies of the filing form may be obtained from the office of the local county agent.

Too, Bates suggests that a copy of Publication 308, Farmers Gas Tax Refund, prepared by the Internal Revenue Service, be obtained from the county agent's office or from the nearest District Internal Revenue Service Office.

The specialist advises agricultural producers who used an appreciable amount of gasoline last year in their farming or ranching operations to check into their eligibility for a refund. The legislation which makes possible the refund was passed by Congress in the spring of 1956 and farmers unfamiliar with the procedure should contact their local county agent or Internal Revenue Service for details.

is recognized as one of the nation's authorities on the subject. Another feature which is sure to get a lot of attention will be the announcement of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers standards for design and installation of non-reinforced concrete irrigation pipe systems. Thurmond says this is the first effort to put uniform standards in effect all over the nation.

A new film, "Concrete Life Lines", which was released only a month ago by the Portland Cement Association will be shown just prior to the noon recess.

Other speakers will include Tom Cowan, area engineer, Soil Conservation Service; M. P. Hammond and Bruce Spencer, Gifford-Hill Western; John Koester, Portland Cement Association; Charles Richter, real estate loan officer, Farmers Home Administration and Lester Young, State ASC Office.

Grain Sorghum Variety Tests On At Hi Plains Station To Check Adaptability

The grain sorghum variety and strains tests conducted at the High Plains Station of the Texas Research Foundation at Halfway, are designed to determine best adapted to the High Plains condition. Major items to be studied are production, maturity, and standing ability.

One hundred, ninety varieties and strains of grain sorghum are included in the research program at the station, R. G. Peeler, president of the grain sorghum producers association announced, after conferring with the station staff.

Fifty varieties have been planted in four row plots 100 feet long with each treatment repeated four times. The two center rows of the four, in each plot, will be harvested to determine the yield.

The average of the four separate plots will be used in determining the value of the variety.

One hundred forty-six varieties and strains of grain sorghum are included in the observation tests. Each of these 146 has been planted in four different sites at the 310 acre farm. Included are many new or untried varieties and hybrids that have not been used extensively in the High Plains. The most promising of these will be selected for further testing in the future and may turn out to be better than varieties and hybrids now planted.

Ten varieties have been planted in field acreage for comparison. These are the ten grain sorghums in most common use in the High Plains. All the plantings listed are up to a good stand.

ACCESS ROAD BUILT

An access road has been constructed east and west thru the center of the 310 acre High Plains Station. This road which intersects a north to south road now in the middle of the site, will make observation and field trips to the various projects much easier for the many visitors to the station.

DON'T BUY ANY CAR BEFORE YOU DRIVE A CHEVY... ITS BEST SHOWROOM IS THE ROAD.

Beauty in motion—Chevrolet Bel Air Sport Sedan with Body by Fisher.

Here's why Chevy's best showroom is the road!

Because Chevrolet's sleek good looks, its advanced features, are only part of the story. The big bonus is its remarkable roadability, the crisp precision handling that has posted an entirely new standard for cars in every price class. You can't read about that... but you can feel it in one minute on the road! Good drivers know roadability is the single thing that means more driving satisfaction for more thousands of miles than anything else. More safety, too, for it grants greater stability on curves, greater traction on wet roads, better "bite" under hard braking, more accurate steering. There are reasons for all this, of course: Chevrolet's balanced weight distribution that takes excessive loads off the front wheels, the wide stance of outrigger rear springs, Ball-Race steering, spherical-joint front suspension. Sure, you can admire the sculptured lines in the showroom. But Chevy's a car specifically designed for beautiful motion—you have to travel in this one to know just how terrific it is. Try it, this week!

Babson Discusses . . .

Turnpike Bonds

Babson Park, Mass., July 4 — Since my return from the South, I have been making a study of Turnpike Bonds and other non-taxable investments. Casual readers of this column may not realize that non-taxable bonds are around their lowest prices for a long number of years. As an illustration, State of Massachusetts highly rated bonds carrying the full faith and credit of the State, free of all Federal and State taxes, which sold at par in 1950 can now be bought around 65. This is the lowest price in their history.

REASONS FOR THE DECLINE

This decline is due to the constantly increasing interest rates of the past several years. There is no other logical reason. While the stock market has been climbing since 1949 (when the Dow-Jones Industrial Average was around 165, in contrast to today's level of around 500), bonds have been declining. Yet the bond market is just as susceptible to the Law of Action and Reaction as the stock market. When stocks are clearly in a bear movement and money rates decline, bonds will again go up in price. Therefore, non-taxable bonds may be in the position today that the blue chips were eight years ago when they were selling at a third of their present prices.

Certain banks and other institutions which are large bond buyers state that there are reasons other than increased interest rates why municipal bonds are selling so low. Due to the possibility of World War III, some of the savings institutions have been selling the bonds of large cities, especially industrial cities which could be targets for bombing. At the same time, these institutions have found it very difficult to sell the unlisted bonds of small cities and towns, even though they are perfectly safe and yield around 4% income-tax-free.

WHAT ABOUT TURNPIKE BONDS?

I believe Turnpike Bonds should be a logical exception to the above situation. They have both security and marketability. The conservative financial institutions say they do not like them because they are revenue bonds, dependent upon the earnings of the turnpike. Yet, every corporation bond is a revenue bond, depending upon earnings. The non-taxable feature of turnpike bonds, however, far exceeds the slight risk of declining earnings. Of all the turnpike bonds, only one issue, secured by the West Virginia Turnpike which "starts nowhere and ends nowhere", has failed to make good. I admit that with rationing of gasoline in the event of World War III, turnpikes would temporarily be in trouble; but so would almost everything else. No bombing, however, could materially damage a modern turnpike.

Recently, the Boston & Maine Railroad canceled all its commuter business because of a strike by the maintenance men. It would take a strike of several months' duration by Turnpike maintenance men before their services would be missed. Practically the only necessary employees of a Turnpike Authority are those who collect the tolls. And I cannot imagine these men striking. Turnpikes are therefore less liable than most investments to suffer from labor troubles.

THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY

One of today's fastest growing industries is the Automobile Industry, and our turnpikes must prosper along with it. Not only are new cars put out by the millions each year, but boys in a very old Ford must pay the same toll as those riding in new Cadillacs! Everyone wants to save time, and also it is very much safer driving on a six-lane modern turnpike.

These turnpikes can never be built for less than their present cost. Therefore, the Government in its new Road-Building Program, should be glad to take over any of these turnpikes and pay the bondholders in full. I am also told that the present thought in Washington is to spend funds on widening and straightening present two-lane highways to make them four-lane and six-lane roads, rather than putting all the money into new turnpikes. Eighty per cent of the accidents today occur on the ordinary two-lane highways. Furthermore, most of these accidents occur on unnecessary hills and curves. The most inconscient investors today are those who are buying taxable General Motors stock and refusing to buy non-taxable Turnpike Bonds!

Over Ike's Proposal That States Take Over Own Relief Loads

Editor's note: The Sand Hills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm seems a little worried this week, but we guess he'll get over it. Dear editor:

I don't mind admitting I'm pretty worried this morning.

According to an article I read in a newspaper last night — I was so upset over what I read I don't even remember now where I found the paper — President Eisenhower made a speech before a meeting of all 48 State Governors the other day and urged that the Federal government cut out some of its work and turn it over to the states.

For example, he said, disaster relief ought to be paid by the states instead of Washington.

Now I believe in state's rights all right, and I go further, I believe also in county rights, precinct rights, community rights, and farm rights, and on this farm I believe in husband's rights, but Ike's proposal has sure thrown a bombshell in my thinking.

That is, if a man gets in financial trouble and calls on Washington, and Washington refers him back to his state, what's to keep the state from referring him back to his county, his county to his precinct, his precinct to his community, and his community telling him to help his ownself?

You can see what this would lead to. We'd be right back where we started, with everybody expected to look after himself, and a whole generation of progress toward telephoning Washington would go out the window. This country just wouldn't be the same again.

Not only that, but some smart aleck would then come up with the proposal that if Washington is going to turn disaster aid back to the states, why couldn't it turn foreign aid back to the foreign countries, and anybody who knows anything at all about the world today knows it would collapse next Tuesday if Washington shut off all foreign aid.

I tell you, we're treading on dangerous ground when we start talking about everybody relying on his own resources. I intend to buy a whole bunch of postcards and write the entire United States Congress about this, just as soon as my next check from Washington gets here.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Washington News Letter

by LYNDON JOHNSON

Dear Friend:

Texas has taken the lead in building highways under the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1956, which became law just a year ago. Less than two months after the President signed the highway bill enacted by the 84th Congress, the Texas Highway Department received bids on the first Texas contract under the program.

Today, 267 miles of superhighways are under construction or soon will be under construction in Texas. Bids are now being asked for construction of 278 miles more.

Texas will receive some $270 million of Federal funds in the next three years to build and improve the State's section of the Interstate System. In addition, Texas will get about $122 million to spend on primary, secondary and urban road systems. Over the next 13 years, it is estimated that more than $2 billion in Federal highway aid will be received by our State.

Future growth of Texas will be vitally affected by this vast highway construction program. Economic benefits of the program will spread out widely. I consider the Highway Act one of the most progressive pieces of legislation enacted by Congress since it became a member of the House of Representatives 20 years ago.

Drought and floods have cost Texas heavily. It is estimated that the last five years of the drought cost the State's farm interests $2.7 billion. Property damage done by the spring floods approximated $70 million. In addition, Texas lost some 25 million acre-feet of water into the Gulf of Mexico. Value of the topsoil washed away is incalculable.

An effective water development program would have prevented much of the loss. We have lagged behind in the construction of necessary flood control and water projects. Last week, in a series of Senate speeches, I presented the facts about the kind of program we need and urged action during this session to get the program well started.

Excessive imports of foreign oil threaten to ruin our Texas independent oil producers. Since reopening the Suez Canal, their production has been cut 700,000 barrels a day. Meanwhile, oil imports have reached the staggering figure of 1,700,000 barrels a day.

The national security is threatened by this situation. I have called on the President to take action — which Congress gave him authority to do — to reduce imports. I am assured action is underway.

Sharon Thompson of Cotton Center, Hale County, was in the office after being chosen "Miss Young America in 4-H" at a National Conference here. Former Attorney General Geram C. Mann of Dallas was a welcome visitor. Former President Truman was in town. I gave a luncheon for him, with a number of Senators as guests. Governor Price Daniel spent several days in Washington before attending the Governors' Conference in Williamsburg, Va.

Christian Science Services

The supremacy and all-power of God—divine Life, Truth and Love—will be emphasized at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Selections to be read from the Bible in the Lesson Sermon entitled "God" include the following from Joshua (1:9): "Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage, be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (228:25-27): "There is no power apart from God. Omnipotence has all-power, and to acknowledge any other power is to dishonor God."

The Golden Text is from Joel (2:27): "Ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and none else."

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Lancaster and son, Darrell, and Mrs. Lancaster's mother, Mrs. Denny Neal, of Temple, are spending several days in Estes Park, Colo. Mr. Lancaster has been attending a management institute for rural electric cooperative managers.

THIS WEEK

-In Washington

With

Clinton Davidson

Nearly 2000 years ago the Master Teacher — Christ, asked: "What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

About 1500 years before Christ, Esau, the grandson of Abraham, sold his birthright — his inheritance — for one meal, called in the Bible, "a mess of pottage." Through the centuries, millions of mortals have answered the question asked by Christ by exchanging their souls for alluring promises which turned out to be merely "messes of pottage."

Powerful labor leaders who have sold their souls are finding that Judgment Day is here for them. They are accused of the abuse of the power and confidence entrusted to them by Congress and by millions of workers.

Today, millions of labor union members are asking two questions: "Have our leaders sold their souls and the souls of our unions?" and "if so, what price will we have to pay?"

Dave Beck is paying a big price. Apparently he has done great damage, not only to himself but to the Teamsters Union which he has headed for many years. If he has violated the law, if he has caused his Union to lose its integrity, not only he but millions of honest workers will also suffer greatly.

If the investigation reveals that leaders of many unions have sold their souls, the entire labor union movement may have to join in paying the price.

What is the price? Let's be specific and try to answer the Master's question that was asked at the beginning of this column. The price could result in setting the labor movement back to the pre-Franklin D. Roosevelt days. Does that seem impossible? Well let's examine the situation.

Congress vested great powers in labor unions. Most important of all, it gave them the special privilege of acting as national monopolies. Because labor unions are exempted from the monopoly provisions of the Anti Trust Laws they are able, through nationwide strikes to halt such vital national functions as steel production, gasoline production, railroad transportation, international shipping, etc.

Such powers are not entrusted to the owners and managers of those great industries. It is doubtful that even the President of the United States has such power. But labor, you will remember, used this power to practically close all steel production in the United States during the Korean War. If Congress becomes convinced that labor officials and labor unions have lost their souls—their integrity—their morality—then Congress may withdraw labor's special privileges, principally the legal right to act as monopolies.

If this were done, nationwide strikes would cease to exist and the sanctity of the picket line would become a theory.

It appears, however, that Congress will not be forced to take such action. George Meany, President of the AFL-CIO, and other labor leaders of unusual integrity already have taken positive actions to clean house of racketeers and other dishonest union officials. They will not stand by idly while other officials sell the souls of labor. They are taking positive action. For example, the AFL-CIO Executive Council, on recommendation of an Ethical Practices Committee, has ousted Beck as an AFL-CIO Vice-President, suspended one union and placed two others on probation on charges of corruption. It will be far better for labor, and for the country, if labor cleans its own house. Commendably, it shows every indication of doing just that.

All dumb clocks aren't found in the hen yard.

Cotton Insect Report

Light to heavy rains fell over a wide area during the past week. Heavy hail damaged or destroyed stands of cotton on an estimated 85,000 to 100,000 acres. Damage was heaviest in Dawson, Floyd, Lynn, Lubbock, and Terry counties. Conditions were favorable for growth of cotton in areas not affected by hail. Some increase in insect activity was observed in a number of fields.

Aphids were observed in light infestations in Floyd, Hookley, Lynn, and Lubbock counties. Thrips populations increased on cotton in areas where rainfall was light. Although infestations were reported as light in a majority of fields, somewhat larger numbers were found in some fields in Briscoe, Floyd, Hale, Parmer, and Terry counties, with heavy infestations reported in Hale county.

Fleahoppers were reported in light infestations through the southern part of the area or in fields where cotton had reached the fruiting stage. Cotton is yet too small to attract the insects in many fields.

Garden webworms damaged stands of cotton in isolated fields in Mitchell and Scurry counties.

Cabbage loopers have been reported in small numbers on cotton throughout the area. Ordinarily these insects have been present in light infestations at this date in previous years.

People Who Have Suffered and Died Lived Useful Lives

WE are prone to meet problems with vain questions. "Why does God permit war?" men ask. It is things of this sort that emphasize the problem which faced the writer of the Book of Job. Job was tempted to doubt God's goodness.

We should remember that the Book of Job is a poem, a drama, in which questions and answers are brought out through the action and discussions between the personalities.

This problem of Job's confronts every thoughtful individual. If a person is assailed by similar afflictions, he is bound to phrase the question and he will be lucky if he doesn't have Job's doubts.

If a person is free from personal affliction, he must surely be blind to the sufferings of his fellow men. He will know nothing of the tragedy involving innocent people, if the person is not moved to consider the problem of evil and the problem of pain.

Job never found any real solution to this problem. But he did attain an attitude of faith that enabled him to say, "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him." It's doubtful whether there is any doubt other than that of faith.

It was in something of Job's spirit that Christ cried in His agony in the garden, "Father, if it be possible, let the cup pass." Yet, His supreme concern was that the will of God should be done. He went to the Cross in the courage of faith, knowing that it was God's way.

The mystery of suffering has never been made plain. The solutions that modern optimists offer those in affliction are hardly more satisfactory than the ones offered Job.

What does help us is the realization that men and women who have suffered greatly have lived lives of great usefulness and helpfulness toward others. Even where nations have suffered and perished, they have given the world a heritage of truth and right and liberty.

COTTON AT THE CROSSROADS

The cotton industry of Texas and the nation has a vital decision to make in the next few years. It must decide whether to accept more and more controls and restrictions or meet the challenge of modern technology. The first path leads to virtual extinction of the small farmer in a decade or so—the other opens up vast new fields in marketing and demand. The key to a successful future for cotton lies in greater research towards developing new uses and wider markets for the product. We have a number of research projects now—but they have been directed mainly towards increasing production, or per-acre yields. We have gone about as far as we can go in that direction under the present economic demand.

It is a cold, hard fact that almost every bale we produce over the 9-million bale mark each year must be either stored, subsidized or dumped at a loss in countries abroad. Once our domestic consumption exceeded 12 million bales. But synthetic fabrics have cut deep inroads in our main markets at a time when our main goals were to get more cotton from less acres!

Today, the industry and government agencies must develop a new approach. The surface hasn't been scratched on all the potential uses for cotton. Only a vast research program will bring them into being. There are several immediate goals which could create a market demand to equal and eventually surpass our previous 12-million bale consumption. But the cotton industry, and the government, have been guilty of letting many opportunities slide away. As an example, a vast quantity of jute is imported each year to make binding cloth for cotton bales. Using even poor grade cotton, a competitive fabric could be manufactured to wrap cotton

Additional Water Can Be Developed In Sandhills Area

Additional supplies of ground water can be developed in the sandhills area of Lamb county, according to a Geological Survey report released today by the Department of the Interior. The most important source of water in Lamb county is the Ogallala formation, which supplies all the water for municipal use and irrigation in the county. The number of irrigation wells increased from about 75 in 1937 to 1,719 in 1951. In the areas of heavy pumping, water levels have declined persistently since 1943, but in the areas remote from pumping the water table is at about the same levels as it was in 1938. The water in the Ogallala is hard but otherwise suitable for most purposes. Entitled "Geology and ground-water resources of Lamb County, Texas," the report was prepared by Edward R. Leggat, geologist of the Geological Survey. It contains records of 1,742 wells, including 172 drillers' logs, records of water-level measurements in 45 wells, and chemical analysis of 91 water samples. Pending publication as a bulletin of the Texas Board of Water Engineers, typewritten copies of the report are available for public inspection at the offices of the Geological Survey, Room 1242-G, General Service Administration Building, 18th and F Streets, NW, Washington, D. C. and 302 West 15th Street, Austin, 14, Texas.

Auctioneers Will Hold Conference At A & M On July 27

The first annual conference for Texas livestock auction operators will be held at Texas A. & M. College, July 27. About 50 of the state's 150 auction operators are expected to attend. Dr. John G. McNeely of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Sociology, who will be in charge of the conference, says this first meeting is being held because "the auction ring now probably is the biggest single method by which livestock moves to market in Texas today. Since World War II the industry has taken on a completely new look; it now has an air of permanence, and the auction operator is a responsible businessman who forms an integral and important part of his community. Naturally, any industry which grows and changes as fast as this one has, meets new problems—industry-wide, as well as local. We want to give auction operators a chance to discuss these problems, as well as to acquaint them with certain regulations and responsibilities growing out of the federal control which was extended to cover their operation during the past year. Topics for discussion in the conference were selected by a committee of auction operators and personnel of the Texas A. & M. College System. They include Packer & Stockyard supervision; disease and sanitation; auction facilities and operations; and several other subjects of particular interest in this group. An outstanding list of speakers—many of them leading figures nationally in their fields—has been arranged. Registration will begin at 8 itself will get underway at 9:30. Plenty of time will be allowed for discussion throughout the day. The program will end with a banquet that evening. A meeting of the Livestock Auction and Commission Sales Association will be held the next day.

Hot Weather Hints By Safety Council

The "good old summertime" is here and with it comes higher temperatures and bright sunlight. The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council warns that too much sunlight and overexposure to high temperatures can cause trouble unless precautions are taken. They point out that heat sickness will occur when the body's heat regulating system collapses during prolonged heat or overexposure to the sun. In sunstroke, body temperatures rise, the skin becomes hot and dry, the face reddens and a shooting headache develops. Heat exhaustion is an entirely different thing. Its symptoms are below normal body temperature, cold clammy skin, pallor, dizziness and a dull headache. The Council offers the following suggestions for preventing summertime troubles caused by heat. Avoid overexposure to direct sunlight and wear a hat while out-of-doors; avoid overexertion; wear light, porous and loose fitting clothing; increase the use of salt in food and use salt tablets or salt in drinking water; plenty of water during the day but avoid ice water and alcohol; eat nutritious food but don't overeat; drink fruit juices or eat fresh fruit for a plentiful supply of Vitamin C and get plenty of rest and bathe regularly. The Council offers this simple rule if first aid treatment must be given to a person suffering from heat sickness. If the patient is cold, make him warm, if he is hot, make him cool.
