Little H'way Route Change Thru City

NEW RIGHT-OF-WAY IS SOUGHT

State Plans To Pave No. 9 When Straightened Through Lynn And Dawson

At a conference held here recently between the commissioners court, a committee of citizens, and representatives of the state highway department, the re-routing of highway No. 9 through the county was discussed and practically agreed upon, according to information gathered by the News.

It was tentatively agreed that the new route should pass through Tahoka via the present route, cutting across the northwest corner of the court house yard, or should follow Sweet Street one block west of the present route from the northwest corner of the court house square to the northern limits of the city. The right angle turns two miles north of Tahoka are to be eliminated, as we understand it, the new road angling across a farm or two and then intercepting and following the present roadbed. South of Tahoka, the two right angle turns just outside the city will be eliminated, and the new road bed will follow the general course of the present highway but is to pass through O'Donnell on the west side of the Santa Fe railway, thus eliminating any railway crossing. It will continue down the west side of the tract over a new right-of-way all the way to Lamesa.

This proposed routing is only tentative, however, and is subject to slight changes, as we understand it.

The Department is proposing to do the grading and drainage work if the county will furnish a right-of-way 100 feet wide through the county. The new survey is being made and the new roadbed is to be constructed with a view to placing some kind of a hard surface on this highway in the near future, the district highway engineer says. A similar proposition has been made to the commissioners court of Dawson county, and the prospects are that No. 9 will be paved through these two counties within the next year or two. In fact, the plan is to pave it throughout its entire length in this state.

Home Beauty Contest Opens

"The Home Beautification contest which began in February to last over a period of two years is meeting with unusual response from the home demonstration club women of Lynn county," said Miss El Fleda Harrison Wednesday. "A summary of the work done is as follows: 86 yards improved; 21 yards leveled; 8 planted new lawns; 14 replanted and enlarged lawns; 1,063 shade trees living; 269 fruit trees living; 77 evergreen trees living—Arizona Cypress, Red Cedar, Arbor Vitae, and Pine; 529 shrubs living; 49 native shrubs planted and living; 35 wind-breaks planted; 54 screens planted; 9 cutting beds containing 220 living cuttings; 108 added equipment such as large and small spades, forks, rakes, pruners; 3 added lawn mowers; 4 added hoses; 2 piped water to front yard; 3 driveways improved; 2 built wash houses; 2 improved garages; 1 moved brooder house; 4 fences built; 3 gates changed; 3 cobblestone walks made from native stone.

"The plans for the contest were announced in February to the clubs and each club enrolled one demonstrator and already 86 homes have reported improvement.

"The contest consists of beautifying the yard proper and correctly locating the various buildings, lots, fences, driveways, and walks needed in carrying on the farm business.

"A good lawn is the very foundation of exterior home beautification and so many points are being given to the lawn that it will be impossible for any contestant without a reasonably good lawn to be a winner. Mrs.

Two Are Fined In Justice Court

One young man of the Redwine community entered a plea of guilty and was fined in the justice court here Saturday on a charge of fighting. A complaint was filed against his antagonist, charging abusive language.

The hostilities that got these youths into court were staged near Redwine several days ago. Nobody was seriously hurt.

Fergusons Failed To Appear Here

Quite a crowd of people coming from all sections of Lynn county were in Tahoka last Saturday morning at ten o'clock to hear Jim Ferguson speak in the interest of his wife's candidacy for governor. They were badly disappointed, however, as the Fergusons failed to show up. We were unable to procure any definite explanation as to the failure of the Fergusons to come, further than that the appointment had been made without their knowledge and they felt that it would be a little too strenuous work for them to undertake to fill it.

The Fergusons spoke in Lubbock to an immense audience Friday night and in Sweetwater on Saturday night. Jim's attack upon the opposition is said to have been much milder than in previous campaigns but there was considerable enthusiasm manifested in the Lubbock meeting nevertheless.

Grease Hounds Defeat Bankers

The Greasehounds are about to bound the life out of the Bankers, according to reports drifting occasionally into the News office. Following our report of last week, they almost chased the money sharks clear off the diamond, piling up a score of 9 to 1.

Wednesday afternoon, the two teams renewed hostilities, but at the end of the third inning a kind Providence came to the assistance of the bankers, a shower of rain putting a stop to the game. The score stood 4 to 2 in favor of the hounds.

Nation's Gas Tax Will Be Large

The new Federal tax levying 1 cent on each gallon of gasoline sold and 4 cents on each gallon of lubricating oil went into effect Wednesday.

Chester Connolly says that there are 26,000,000 motor vehicles—cars and trucks—in the United States, one-third of which are Fords, and that it is estimated that each vehicle will use three gallons of gas each day. This would mean a daily consumption of 78 million gallons. The one-cent tax therefore would yield a daily revenue of about $780,000.00. Figuring one quart of oil for each ten gallons of gasoline, the tax from the oil would amount to $78,000.00 daily. The gas and oil tax combined would be $858,000.00 daily, or $313,170,000.00 each year.

That ought to help balance the budget.

Lee Candidate For Judge In Hockley

Many Tahoka friends will be interested in learning that Preston Lee of Levelland, son of W. M. Lee of this city, recently announced as a candidate for county judge of Hockley county.

Mr. Lee was reared here. For several years he was in the employ of the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Company here and later went to Levelland as local manager. Five years ago he was elected mayor of Levelland and served for a term or two. His many friends here are hoping that he may win in the present contest.

CONTEST SOON ON WASH DRESS

H. D. Clubs Plan For Annual Event Which Will Be Held Here On July 8th

The Home Demonstration Club women of Lynn county are to have a Wash Dress contest in Tahoka on Friday, July 8, according to Miss El Fleda Harrison.

The Wardrobe demonstrators' dresses are to be judged on the same day.

Each club member is to make one cotton dress, either a neighborhood or street dress, in cooperation with the Club Wardrobe Demonstrator.

No cooperators will be required to compete with demonstrators. The contests will be separate.

The first prize winner in the cooperators' contest is to be awarded $2.50; the second, $1.75; and the third, $1.00.

The person winning first place in the Wardrobe work contest, will get a free trip to the A. & M. College.

Also, girls' clothing will be displayed and judged on this day.

Miss Myrtle Murray, Dist. H. D. Agent, and Miss Ila Mae Chitwood, Lubbock County H. D. Agent, will be the judges.

Postal Rates Are Raised One Cent

Postmaster D. A. Parkhurst calls attention to the fact that postal rates for letter mail will be raised after July 5 to 3 cents instead of 2 cents per ounce.

The three cent rate may be paid in stamps of any denominations, he explains, just so the total value is three cents per ounce or fraction of an ounce.

Mr. Parkhurst also reports that the Tahoka office has been able to show a small increase in revenue during the months of February, March, April, and May.

Red Cross Receives Clothing And Food

We have received the following donations since our last report:

Mrs. R. W. Fenton Jr., clothes, $7.70; Mrs. Stella Sproles, clothes, $3.75; Mrs. Brooks Smith, clothes, $6; Mr. R. F. Barton, food, 30c; Mrs. H. Bayse, food, 50c; Mrs. J. B. King, food, 20c; C. A. Bailey, soap, $1.40; W. E. Suddarth, clothes, $21.50. Many thanks to all of these parties.

We especially need two dresses, size 38, and one pair of ladies low heeled shoes, size 5½. Also, dried beans, peas, etc. In fact, we can use wheat, corn or any farm products, and men's shoes, sizes 8 to 10. If you have any of these items, we can put them to good use. In ladies' shoes, much prefer they were low heeled, even if they are badly worn and do not look so well; still if they can be worn, there are people in your county that will be more than proud to get them. We do our very best to get these donations to people that really need them and are worthy. But we cannot help unless you help us. If you have black-eyed peas, even if they are weevil eaten, there are people who can use them to plant and will be glad to get them.

Cade's Grandmother Dies At Rising Star

Tax collector Aubra M. Cade of this city and his brothers, R. M. Cade of Wilson and V. L. and H. M. Cade of Slaton were called to Rising Star on Monday of last week by the death of their aged grandmother, Mrs. M. E. Cade.

The deceased lacked only a few days being 92-years old at the time of her death, and had been a resident of Texas for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. McKehan and three children of Fayetteville, Ark., and Miss Dorothy Durham of Junction City, Ark.; are here this week as the guests of Dr. and Mrs. K. R. Durham. Mrs. McKehan and Miss Durham are sisters of the Doctor.

After visiting at Hereford and in New Mexico they will return to their home state, accompanied by Dr. Durham's mother, who has been here the past two months.

MAKING PLANS FOR ELECTION

County Committee Assesses Candidates; Will Make Up Ballot Next Monday

The Democratic executive committee met Monday and completed arrangements for the primary election to be held on July 23. One of the important items of business was that of assessing the candidates for the expenses of the two primaries that are to be held. These assessments were very materially lighter than they were two years ago, due to the larger number of candidates and to the plans adopted to reduce the expenses of holding the elections.

The following assessments were made: All candidates for county judge, county attorney, sheriff, county clerk, tax collector, and tax assessor, $25.00 each; candidates for district clerk and county treasurer, $10.00 each; candidates for county commissioner and public weigher, $15.00 each.

There are three candidates for county judge, one for county attorney, two for sheriff, six for county

Charge Man Of Whipping Girl

A complaint was filed in the county court here this week charging a citizen of the Morgan community with the offense of aggravated assault, it being alleged that he whipped his niece with a piece of barbed wire.

The niece, who is 18 years of age, was doing some hoeing for her uncle, according to reports given to the News by officials, and the man became displeased with the kind of work the young lady was doing.

The case will be called for trial at the next term of county court.

Observe Fathers' Day At Baptist

There were fifty-seven present in the Men's Bible Class last Sunday, meeting for the first time in the American Legion Hall.

Preceding the regular lesson, which was taught in a very fine way by G. E. Hogan, a brief program was rendered in commemoration of Fathers Day.

A quartet entitled "Don't You Love Your Daddy Too?" was rendered most effectively by Messrs. L. C. Heath, J. E. Thompson, C. T. Burnett, and Taylor. White, with piano accompaniment by Miss Helen Applewhite.

"That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine" was beautifully sung by Dottie Turrentine, Ola Lee Stevens, and James Thompson, with Goza Lee Thompson accompanying at the piano.

A brief talk in honor of father was given by one of the members of the class.

Following the lesson period, the class took action accepting the offer of the American Legion tendering the use of the Hall to the Class as a permanent meeting place. A committee was appointed to perfect arrangements. At the same time a vote of thanks was given to Sheriff B. L. Parker and other officials for their tender of the court house as a meeting place for the class.

WEEKLY PROGRAM OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

Sunday morning from 9:45 to 10:00, song service; 10:00 to 10:45, Bible study; 10:45 to 11:00, communion; Sunday evening, 7:45, Young people's meeting; Monday afternoon, 4:00, Ladies' Bible class; Wednesday evening, 7:45, teachers meeting, song practice and prayer service.

We invite visitors to attend these various meetings and insist that all members especially are present from time to time.

We must commend the young folks for their increasing interest in the Sunday evening services. The programs are splendid. We are convinced that this good work is going on.—Reporter.

Miss Thelma Taylor, who is a nurse in the Lubbock Sanitarium, is here visiting home folks during her two weeks' vacation.

Hail Kills Cotton Over Large Area

Young Girl Wins Bed Room Contest

Miss Sallie Hill of the A. & M. College was here last Saturday morning judging the 4-H club girls' bed room contest for the twenty-two counties of this district. Miss Faye Estes of Joe Stokes was the winner in Lynn county. She is just 14 years of age and this is her second year in club work.

The result of the contest in the district will be announced soon.

Redwine Youth Died Tuesday

Odell Bowen, little son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Bowen of the Redwine community, died at an early hour Tuesday morning and was buried that afternoon in the Grassland cemetery, Rev. Allen of Grassland officiating.

The little fellow, lacking a few days of being eleven years old, had been suffering for a number of months from a tumor on the brain.

The family live in a small two-room house and as the boy lay at the point of death Monday night a terrific wind and hailstorm broke, hail beating through the roof and water flooding the floor several inches deep. The hail, as in many other sections, was so severe as to destroy the crop and kill all the chickens belonging to the Bowen family. This misfortune added to their bereavement makes the condition of the family almost tragic.

Tax Information Given By Cade

All 1931 taxes paid before July 1 will not go on the delinquent tax list, according to Aubra M. Cade, tax collector. A ten per cent penalty on all such taxes and six per cent interest from February 1 is due on these taxes already, but if the taxes are not paid before July 1 it will then become necessary for owners of the property to redeem it from the State.

Mr. Cade insists that all who can possibly do so should pay their taxes before July 1 and thus save themselves further trouble and expense.

Dallas Man Will Speak To Baptists

The pulpit at the Baptist Church was filled Sunday morning and evening by Rev. K. S. Jenkins, pastor at O'Donnell, and he brought two splendid messages, which were heard by good-sized congregations. One of the features of the morning service was a trio rendered by Dottie Turrentine, Ola Lee Stevens, and James Thompson, accompanied by Goza Lee Thompson at the piano, the selection being "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine" in commemoration of Fathers Day.

Rev. Hays of Irving, Dallas county, brother of Prof. B. M. Hays of this city, will fill the pulpit next Sunday. Everybody cordially invited.

Tom Speight Gets Finger Mashed Off

On last Saturday morning Thos. H. Speight got the fingers of one hand caught in a wind mill while it was turning and one of them was so badly crushed that amputation of the member was necessary, the operation being performed in the Lubbock Sanitarium that afternoon. Another finger was also very badly mashed and it may be necessary yet to amputate it.

Mr. Speight was manager of the Jones Dry Goods Store here for a number of years but more recently has been engaged in farm work.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carpenter and little daughter were visitors in Abilene the first of the week, accompanied by T. J. Bovell. Mr. Carpenter represented a client in court in Abilene and Mr. Bovell was a witness in the case.

MUST REPLANT MUCH ACREAGE

Most Feed Will Come Out; Between 75 and 150 Sections Affected By Monday Storm

Possibly the most destructive hailstorm that ever visited Lynn county swept over large areas of the county late Monday afternoon and night, leaving devastation and distress in its wake. Thousands of acres of cotton were utterly destroyed and other thousands of acres of feed crops were beaten off almost to the surface of the ground. Much of the wheat still standing in the fields was also totally destroyed.

It is difficult to estimate the number of sections devastated by the hail but estimates run all the way from 75 to 150. Probably one-fourth of the cotton acreage of the entire county was destroyed. Some place the per cent as high as 40 per cent, but this is believed to be an overestimate.

Several sections lying west of New Home and many sections lying immediately north and northwest of Tahoka were swept clean. From Tahoka southeastward, the stricken territory embraces large parts of the communities of South Ward, Midway Edith, Redwine, and Draw, reaching southwestward to Three Lakes and T-Bar. Another area embracing several farms in the neighborhood of Newmoore was also stricken.

In some sections of the town of Tahoka the hail was very destructive, doing havoc to gardens, flowers, and shrubbery, while other sections of the town received only slight damage.

The rainfall, too, was terrific in many places. In some localities not damaged by hail, the rain came in such floods as to do great damage to crops. In many fields the waters swept across terraces and contours and either washed up or covered up the young cotton and feed. In a number of places on both highways 9 and 84, the floods swept over the roadbed, practically destroying the grades.

The amount of precipitation varied

Methodists Held Large Banquet

A great throng of Methodists and their friends crowded into the basement of the Methodist Church on Thursday night of last week to partake of a feast that had been prepared by the ladies of the church and to enjoy the program that had been arranged for the occasion. A total of 163 plates were sold, and several were present who did not eat. Both the feast and the program were greatly enjoyed, apparently, by all present.

As soon as the invocation was pronounced by John N. Thomas and before the banqueters had hardly gotten seated, the young people of the church, led by pastor H. C. Smith, started up a merry sing-song that continued at intervals throughout the evening, to the delight of all.

"Should the Church go forward now, or wait until the depression is gone?" was the subject of an address delivered by Happy Smith. Mr. Smith was in favor of going forward now.

A vocal solo was beautifully rendered by Miss Lucille Slaton, and a duet given by Misses Mildred and Margaret Wetsel. Mrs. Ruby D. Suddarth at the piano.

"The value of organized church clubs meeting monthly for fellowship and planning of work" was the rather lengthy subject assigned to W. E. Suddarth, who delivered a well prepared address, suggesting many ways in which such clubs might be serviceable.

Possibly the greatest event of the occasion was the heated debate on the following burning subject: Resolved that a House Burns Up and not Down, perpetrated by Miss Mabel Lee and Truett Smith, representative in the case.

Senator Borah of Idaho, independent Republican and one of the strongest members of the U. S. Senate, announced Monday that he would not support President Hoover for re-election on the platform which the Republicans adopted at Chicago. He characterized the platform as "wholly inadequate and wholly unresponsive to the necessities and demands of the people", and says that
"with the exception of one plank, it fell dead at the feet of the American people, eliciting scarcely a favorable comment
from the party press, and arousing not the slightest concern or attention from the public generally." The Prohibition plank, he contends, was adopted merely as a matter of expediency and he expresses the belief that "a great majority of the members of the convention were for repeal of the "Eighteenth Amendment, naked repeal." Since Borah is bone-dry and since it seems certain that the Democratic convention will adopt a dripping wet platform, we are wondering what Borah will do in November. Will he lead a third party movement? or will he go fishing? Just now Borah seems to be a Senator without a party.

There is much criticism just now of the state highway commission. It is being charged with unfairness and extravagance in the building of state highways. But such charges are likely to be brought against any commission, elective or appointive. The only complaint against the present commission that has any real basis in fact, as we see it, is the complaint that the members are inclined to be dictatorial and unresponsive to the wishes of the people. It would probably be better for these offices to be made elective, so that each member would be directly responsible to his constituency
for the manner in which he administered the office. Still we doubt if three men could be found in all Texas of higher integrity and honesty of purpose than
W. R. Fly, Cone Johnson, and D. K. Martin, who now constitute this commission.
Certainly it is the strongest and best highway commission Texas has ever had.

According to our information, Senator
Morris Sheppard voted for the so-called "soldiers bonus bill", while Senator Tom Connally voted against it. Doubtless both of these Texas senators were sincere and patriotic in the votes which they cast.
While we believe that the passage of the bill would have had the effect of increasing the amount of our circulating medium, restoring the dollar to its former debt-paying power, and thus relieving the masses and stimulating business, yet we recognize the fact that there is argument on the other side of the question. It took a good deal of courage for any Senator to vote against this measure, since in so doing he must incur the displeasure of so large and powerful a group of our citizenship. Even if Connally was wrong on this proposition, he displayed a degree of political courage and independence that must command our admiration.

There has been nothing spectacular
about the administration of Governor Sterling. Neither has there been anything about it to indicate a brilliant brand of statesmanship. He has probably made some grievous errors. Many people believe that the declaration of martial law in east Texas to curtail the production of oil was a grave error—one that was very expensive to the people. But nobody has charged Sterling with dishonesty. Nobody has charged him with graft. He went into the governor's office a millionaire and is now said to be a "broke" man. His integrity and patriotism are above question. Many people are going to take these things into consideration when they cast their votes on July 23.

THE TWENTY-THIRD PSALM UP TO-DATE

Hoover is my Shepherd; I am in

He makes me to lie down on park

He leadeth me beside still fac-

He disturbeth my soul;
He leadeth me in the paths of de-

Yea, then I walk through the valley

I anticipate no recovery, for Hoover
is with me.
He prepareth a reduction in my

He annointeth my small income

My expenses runneth over.

PAINS QUIT COMING
"When I was a girl, I suffered periodically with terrible pains in my back and almost double with the in-last for hours and I could get no relief.

"I tried almost every-

Cardui. My mother

Fifty-Four Years Of Pioneering On The Plains Of Texas

TRAIL DRIVING ACROSS THE PLAINS

Bill and John Slaughter were just beginning to get their Crosby county ranching business well established when the State of Texas began to demand payment—leases, in other words—from cattle raisers for pasture rights on state lands. Though cattle were bringing a good price, considering other prices and the cost of raising, the Slaughters felt that they could not afford to pay for pasture and began to hunt other grass in 1883.

They went out into New Mexico and located ranch sites near the western border of that state, 150 miles west of Socorro, the nearest town. Will Slaughter selected the American Valley, and John selected the head of the Tularosa river, a little further south.

When they came back home they announced their intentions of moving, and Will told me that I was to take charge of his new ranch.

Moving a large herd of cattle up the trail to Kansas was a big job, but such drives were small jobs compared to the feat that was ahead of us. In driving cattle to Kansas markets, the cowboys had a well-beaten trail to follow and it usually followed some river for long distances, or was within easy reach of water. But our drive was to be across six hundred miles of Plains prairies and New Mexico's deserts and mountains—where no trail had been made, where there were few landmarks, and less water, and over a route that scarcely anyone but the Indians knew very little about.

With Dick Crutchfield as wagon boss, the first herd of WIL-S cattle, 2,500 head, were started out in May, 1883. About a month later I started out with 2,500 head, and just following me with a herd of JON-S cattle was Tom Nichols. Following him were herds belonging to W. W. Tuttle and Pat Sanders, and to Dan Kyle, who had also decided to move to western New Mexico. These were the first cattle to cross the Plains except the Coggin and Wiley herds several years previously.

Our outfit was typical of the trail-driving days. I had a big chuck wagon pulled by seven yoke of oxen and loaded with supplies sufficient for many weeks on the long, hard trip. There were eleven men with each wagon, eight of whom were cow hands, one a cook, one a horse rustler, and a boss. We pulled a calf wagon behind the big one.

We followed the Blanco over the Plains going by the water holes known as Blackwater, Runningwater, and to Spring Lake. After reaching Spring Lake, a big problem confronted us. It was eighty miles from Spring Lake, which is west of Plainview, to Portales Lake, over in New Mexico, and not a drop of water between the two points for the cattle, so far as we knew. It would take us a good five days to make the trip at the very best.

Crutchfield, Tuttle and Sanders, Nichols, and Kyle chose to take the risk on making the trip with their herds. Each of our outfits carried a fifty-gallon barrel of water on each side of our wagons for the men to drink. Five days and nights without water for the cattle and horses—their own supply was growing dangerously low—were required for the journey. Not all lost so heavily, but

Nichols lost between 400 and 500 head of cattle, most of them perishing on the last day of the trip before reaching Portales Lake.

I decided to stay at Spring Lake until the spring rains. I left the stock in charge of other cowboys to graze in the vicinity of the lake and went over to Fort Sumner, New Mexico, and got a Mexican who was well acquainted with the country. After the rains, about a month, we started the herd to Portales, describing a half circle to the north of the route taken by the others, driving the cattle by surface lakes pointed out by the Mexican.

I caught up with the other herds on the banks of the Pecos river. My cattle were in comparatively good condition, while their cattle had been so near starvation that it had taken several weeks for them to get in condition to travel again. We crossed the mountains, the Rio Grande, and finally reached our ranch sites without further mishap. Tuttle and Sanders settled at Horse Springs, east of the Tularosa river.

I worked for Bill Slaughter on this ranch until May or June, 1885, when I went into the employ of the Nathan Hall Cattle Company, which was preparing to establish a ranch in that section. Hall sent me to South Texas for cattle with which to stock the ranch. I bought two herds of longhorns and drove them to just south of Toyah, after having experienced much trouble along the route with the Mexican cowhands I had employed in Corpus Christi and Laredo. At Toyah I learned that New Mexico had quarantined against South Texas cattle and was forced to turn the herds loose.

Quitting Nathan Hall in the winter, I hired to John Slaughter, but before I had been with him long he sold out his New Mexico ranch to Stephens and Uphaw. I went to Utah in '86, bought 1,000 head of cattle from the Mormons and ranch-ed them for a year on the Dirty Devil River for John Slaughter.

I worked in Colorado as a ditching contractor and as a transfer line operator for quite a while, but when the depression hit the nation in 1894, the year General Coxe made his famous march on Washington, the mines were forced to close down resulting in poor business and uprisings among the men. In fact, conditions became so bad that life was in constant danger, and I decided to come back to Texas.

Bill Slaughter continued to ranch in the American Valley while I was in Utah and Colorado.

Old-timers had told us that sometimes snow would lie over the American Valley for two or three weeks at a time. In '93, I think it was, a big snow came in that section, covering the ground to a depth of two feet and not melting for a month. The previous spring Bill had branded 5,000 head of Cattle. When the snow came, he and his men had no snow shoes or any other way to get out of the valley and insufficient food to do them until the snow melted. Cattle and horses died in wholesale lots, and the next spring he branded only about 300 head. Even the men nearly starved to death. This disaster almost broke Bill Slaughter. He moved back to Texas, establishing a ranch some where on the Canadian river in the Panhandle, but financial difficulties soon forced him to give that up.

When John quit the Utah country, he established a ranch on leased land 20 or 30 miles below Big Spring, where he remained several years. The Nave-McCord Cattle Company had formed a big ranch, the Square and Compass, in southwestern Garza county, southeastern Lynn and northern Borden counties. John had a chance to sell his Big Spring ranch and buy the Plains outfit and thought that he could raise $50,000 to pay for it. He came up to the Plains, closed the deal with Nave-McCord, and returned to his ranch south of Big Spring to find that settlers had come in while he was away and "jumped his claim". That was about the year 1900. Having already signed up with Nave-McCord, he was forced to go through with the deal in spite of the great loss he had just taken. In order to complete the deal and stock the ranch, though, he had to borrow about $300,000 from his brother, C. C. Slaughter. When C. W. Post came into this section in 1907, John Slaughter sold out about 50,000 acres of the Plains land to him for $4.00 an acre. He had paid less than $2.00 an acre for the land. This great cattleman lived on this ranch, known as the U-Lazy-S, until 1928, when he died suddenly from acute indigestion while working with a round-up. John B. Slaughter Jr. is now manager of the ranch. Next week: The Famous Long-S Ranch.

INDIGESTION

"My work is confining, and often I eat hurriedly, causing me to have indigestion. Gas will form and I will smother and have pains in my chest. I had to be careful what I ate, but after someone had recommended Black-Draught and I found a small pinch after meals was so helpful, I soon was eating anything I wanted. Senator Borah of Idaho, independent Republican and one of the strongest members of the U. S. Senate, announced Monday that he would not support President Hoover
for re-election on the platform which the Republicans adopted at Chicago. He characterized the platform as "wholly inadequate and wholly unresponsive to the necessities and demands of the people", and says that "with the exception of one plank, it fell dead at the feet of the American people, eliciting scarcely a favorable comment from the party press, and arousing not the slightest concern or attention from the public generally." The Prohibition plank, he contends, was adopted merely as a matter of expediency
and he expresses the belief that "a great majority of the members of the convention were for repeal of the "Eighteenth Amendment, naked repeal." Since Borah is bone-dry and since it seems certain that the Democratic convention will adopt a dripping wet platform, we are wondering what Borah will do in November. Will he lead a third party movement? or will he go fishing?

Just now Borah seems to be a Senator without a party.

There is much criticism just now of the state highway commission. It is being charged with unfairness and extravagance in the building of state highways. But such charges are likely to be brought against any commission, elective or appointive. The only complaint against the present commission that has any real basis
in fact, as we see it, is the complaint that the members are inclined to be dictatorial and unresponsive to the wishes of the people. It would probably be better for these offices to be made elective, so that each member would be directly responsible to his constituency for the manner in which he administered the office.
Still we doubt if three men could be found in all Texas of higher integrity and honesty of purpose than W. R.
Ely, Cone Johnson, and D. K. Martin, who now constitute this commission. Certainly it is the strongest and best highway commission Texas has ever had.

According to our information, Senator Morris Sheppard voted for the so-called "soldiers bonus bill", while Senator Tom Connally voted against
it. Doubtless both of these Texas senators were sincere and patriotic in the votes which they cast. While we believe that the passage of the bill would have had the effect of increasing the amount of our circulating medium, restoring the dollar to its former debt-paying power, and thus relieving the masses and stimulating business, yet we recognize the fact that there is argument on the other side of the question. It took a good deal of courage for any Senator to vote against this measure, since in so doing he must incur the displeasure of so large and powerful a group of our citizenship. Even if Connally was wrong on this proposition, he displayed a degree of political courage and independence that
must command our admiration.

There has been nothing spectaclar
about the administration of Governor Sterling. Neither has there been any thing about it to indiate a brilliant brand of statesmanship. He has probably made some grievous errors. Many people believe that the declaration of martial law in east Texas to curtail the production of oil was a grave error—one that was very expensive to the people. But nobody has charged Sterling with dishonesty. Nobody has charged him with graft. He went into the governor's office a millionaire and is now said to be a "broke" man. His integrity and patriotism are above question. Many people are gonig to take these things into consideration when they cast their votes on July 23.

The Bureau of standards recently perfected a device with which anyone using ordinary household lighting
current may study the atom.
It is compact and portable.
Voltage necessary to operate the motor is the ordinary amount used in household lighting system.

Fifty-Four Years Of Pioneering On The Plains Of Texas

As Told By Jack Alley
To Frank P. Hill
Copyright, 1932, by Frank Hill

TRAIL DRIVING ACROSS THE PLAINS

Bill and John Slaughter were just beginning to get their Crosby county ranching business well established when the State of Texas began to demand payment—leases, in other words—from cattle raisers for pasturage rights on state lands. Though cattle were bringing a good price, considering other prices and the cost of raising, the Slaughters felt that they could not afford to pay for pasturage and began to hunt other grass in 1883.

They went out into New Mexico and located ranch sites near the western border of that state, 150 miles west of Socorro, the nearest town. Will Slaughter selected the American Valley, and John selected the head of the Tularosa river, a little further south.

When they came back home they announced their intentions of moving, and Will told me that I was to take charge of his new ranch.

Moving a large herd of cattle up the trail to Kansas was a big job, but such drives were small jobs compared to the feat that was ahead of us. In driving cattle to Kansas markets, the cowboys had a well-beaten trail to follow and it usually followed some river for long distances, or was within easy reach of water. But our drive was to be across six hundred miles of Plains prairies and New Mexico deserts and mountains—where no trail had been made, where there were few landmarks, and less water, and over a route that scarcely anyone but the Indians knew very little about.

With Dick Crutchfield as wagon boss, the first herd of WIL-S cattle, 2,500 head, were started out in May, 1883. About a month later I started out with 2,500 head, and just following me with a herd of JON-S cattle was Tom Nichols. Following him were herds belonging to W. W. Tuttle and Pat Sanders, and to Dan Kyle, who had also decided to move to western New Mexico. These were the first cattle to cross the Plains except the Coggins and Wiley herd several years previously.

Our outfit was typical of the trail-driving days. I had a big chuck wagon pulled by seven yolk of oxen and loaded with supplies sufficient for many weeks on the long, hard trip. There were eleven men with each wagon, eight of whom were cow hands, one a cook, one a horse ruster, and a boss. We pulled a calf wagon behind the big one.

We followed the Blanco over the Plains going by the water holes known as Blackwater, Running water, and to Spring Lake. After reaching Spring Lake, a big problem confronted us. It was eighty miles from Spring Lake, which is west of Plainview, to Portales Lake, over in New Mexico, and not a drop of water between the two points for the cattle, so far as we knew. It would take us a good five days to make the trip at the very best.

Crutchfield, Tuttle and Sanders, Nichols, and Kyle chose to take the risk on making the trip with their herds. Each of our outfits carried a fifty-gallon barrel of water on each side of our wagons for the men to drink. Five days and nights without water for the cattle and horses—their own supply was growing dangerously low—were required for the journey. Not all lost so heavily, but

I decided to stay at Spring Lake until the spring rains. I left the stock in charge of other cowboys to graze in the vicinity of the lake and went over to Fort Sumner, New Mexico, and got a Mexican who was well acquainted with the country. After the rains, about a month, we started the herd to Portales, describing a half circle to the north of the route taken by the others, driving the cattle by surface lakes pointed out by the Mexican.

I caught up with the other herds on the banks of the Pecos river. My cattle were in comparatively good condition, while their cattle had been so near starvation that it had taken several weeks for them to get in condition to travel again. We crossed the mountains, the Rio Grande, and finally reached our ranch sites without further mishap. Tuttle and Sanders settled at Horse Springs, east of the Tularosa river.

I worked for Bill Slaughter on this ranch until May or June, 1885, when I went into the employ of the Nathan Hall Cattle Company, which was preparing to establish a ranch in that section. Hall sent me to South Texas for cattle with which to stock the ranch. I bought two herds of longhorns and drove them to just south of Toyah, after having experienced much trouble along the route with the Mexican cowhands I had employed in Corpus Christi and Laredo. At Toyah I learned that New Mexico had quarantined against South Texas cattle and was forced to turn the herds loose.

Quitting Nathan Hall in the winter, I hired to John Slaughter, but before I had been with him long he sold out his New Mexico ranch to Stephens and Upshaw. I went to Utah in '86, bought 1,000 head of cattle from the Murmons and ranched them for a year on the Dirty Devil River for John Slaughter.

I worked in Colorado as a ditching contractor and as a transfer line operator for quite a while, but when the depression hit the nation in 1894, the year General Coxe made his famous march on Washington, the mines were forced to close down resulting in poor business and uprisings among the men. In fact, conditions became so bad that life was in constant danger, and I decided to come back to Texas.

Old-timers had told us that sometimes snow would lie over the American Valley for two or three weeks at a time. In '93, I think it was, a big snow came in that section, covering the ground to a depth of two feet and not melting for a month. The previous spring Bill had branded 5,000 head of Cattle. When the snow came, he and his men had no snow shoes or any other way to get out of the valley and insufficient food to do them until the snow melted. Cattle and horses died in wholesale lots, and the next spring he branded only about 300 head. Even the men nearly starved to death. This disaster almost broke Bill Slaughter. He moved back to Texas, establishing a ranch some where on the Canadian river in the Panhandle, but financial difficulties soon forced him to give that up.

When John quit the Utah country, he established a ranch on leased land 20 or 30 miles below Big Spring, where he remained several years. The Nave-McCord Cattle Company had formed a big ranch, the Square and Compass, in southwestern Garza county, southeastern Lynn and northern Borden counties. John had a chance to sell his Big Spring ranch and buy the Plains outfit and thought that he could raise $50,000 to pay for it. He came up to the Plains, closed the deal with Nave-McCord, and returned to his ranch south of Big Spring to find that settlers had come in while he was away and "jumped his claim." That was about the year 1900. Having already signed up with Nave-McCord, he was forced to go through with the deal in spite of the great loss he had just taken. In order to complete the deal and stock the ranch, though, he had to borrow about $300,000 from his brother, C. C. Slaughter. When C. W. Post came into this section in 1907, John Slaughter sold out about 50,000 acres of the Plains land to him for $4.00 an acre. He had paid less than $2.00 an acre for the land. This great cattleman lived on this ranch, known as the U-Lazy-S, until 1928, when he died suddenly from acute indigestion while working with a round-up. John B. Slaughter Jr. is now manager of the ranch.

INDIGESTION

"My work is confining, and often I eat hurriedly, causing me to have indigestion. Gas will form and I will smother and have pains in my chest. Methodists Active During Past Week

The local Methodists enjoyed some fine times last week. The mid-week meeting was led by J. N. Thomas and was helpful to everyone present. An account of the wonderfully successful "Fellowship banquet" on Thursday night appears in another column.

For the church hour worship service there was a special observance of Fathers' Day. The prelude consisted of a medley of the old songs our fathers sang; Miss Janice Sanders read a most appropriate poem and G. M. Reid gave a splendid talk on the general theme "Fathers". At the 11:00 o'clock hour the Reverend Smith conducted the regular order of worship and preached an inspirational sermon on Paul's words: "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ". Mrs. N. E. Ballou impressively sang "Open My Eyes" as the special musical offering.

At the evening hour the old story of the prophets Elijah and Elisha brought out the beautiful thought of the reward that follows loyalty to leadership.

A goodly number of the ladies of the church enjoyed the "Guest Day" of the W. M. S. which was observed at the parsonage Friday afternoon. There was a most interesting program which featured the devotional and a splendid address by the Conference Vice-President and the District Secretary, respectively, both visitors from Lubbock. Mesdames Carmack and Buey gave a vocal duet, Miss Mabel Lee played a piano solo, and Miss Lucille Slaton sang. A reading by Mrs. Suddarth, the welcome address by Mrs. Lee and the prayer by Mrs. Fenton completed the program.

A refreshing drink and angel food slices were served to the accompaniment of enjoyable music—violin and vocal—furnished by the Misses Slaton and Lee.

An interesting special is promised for next Sunday's opening hour—9:45 A. M. Be there on time! Bring a friend!—Reporter.

"I No Longer Have to Dose Myself With Harsh Purgatives"

"A friend of mine urged me to try Sargol and Sargol Soft Mass Pills. I will always bless the day I took this advice. I have taken five bottles and I am now enjoying the best health I have had in years. The Sargol Pills proved to be exactly what I needed for constipation, and this is the first time in six years I don't have to dose myself with purgatives. All my troubles with constipation and biliousness are now at an end. My skin has changed to a clear natural color. The Pills are different from any other laxative I have ever used. They are not only pleasant to take, but never upset me in the least."—Mrs. A. B. Treloar, 221 Lane Ave., Long Beach, Calif.

New Home

We had a splendid rain Monday afternoon late, also hail that damaged a large acreage west and south of town so much that a number of our farmers will have to replant their entire crops.

HAIL, WIND, AND RAIN DESTROY MANY CROPS

greatly in different localities. While only 1.20 inches of rain was registered in Tahoka, it is probable that as much as three or four inches fell in some places.

The storm was preceded and accompanied by a furious wind, which did little damage however further than to break a few limbs from the trees and level gardens to the earth.

On Wednesday afternoon, a very heavy rain fell in the east portion of the county doing further damage to crops.

On last Friday, a very severe sandstorm raged most of the day, especially throughout the afternoon. The wind was very high on Saturday also. These winds were accompanied by the highest temperatures of the year, the thermometer registering 102 on Thursday, 103 on Friday, and 100 on Saturday.

Farmers are preparing to replant the stricken areas as fast as they can after the soil becomes dry enough for them to get into the fields. Some are already re-planting. Although it is very late to plant cotton, much of the cotton acreage will be re-planted in this crop. Some of the cotton acreage will be planted in feed. Only a small portion of the feed acreage will have to be replanted, since most of the damaged feed will recover from the terrible drubbing it got from hail and wind.

Due to previous hail and rainstorms and sandstorms, some farmers have already planted their cotton crops three and four times this year. But there is nothing left to do but to plant it again, and they are going about it with a determination and a courage that will yet win.

ing the affirmative, and Mrs. Fred Buecy and Judge G. H. Nelson representing the negative. These four peerless orators held their auditors with breathless interest as they advanced argument after argument clinching their respective sides to the controversy. It was the general verdict that both sides won but at the close of the debate nobody seemed to know whether a house burns up or down.

During the evening all the candidates were introduced by the singers, who required every candidate to stand but permitted no one to make a speech, except those who were on the regular program.

It was a most pleasurable occasion, long to be remembered by all present.

Mrs. A. O. P. Nicholson, 77, has been very seriously ill for the past week but has shown some improvement the last few days. Soon after becoming ill her condition became so grave that recovery seemed almost impossible but an unexpected turn for the better has given hopes. Her aged husband, almost 88, is blind and practically helpless. They live alone but relatives and friends are looking after their needs.

A 9-pound son made his arrival last Thursday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Myrl Redwine. Mother and babe are both doing well. Mrs. Redwine's mother, Mrs. John Havron of Chico, is with her for a few days.
