WOMEN WILL ATTEND CAMP

Annual Encampment Will Be Held at Two Draw Lake, Post, July 12 and 13

Lynn county Home Demonstration and 4-H club women and girls will hold their annual encampment at Two Draw Lake, Post, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 12 and 13, according to announcement made by Miss El Fleda Harrison, county home agent. A large percentage of the club members will attend.

Women from this county will also play hostesses to women and girls from the counties of Lubbock, Dawson and Hockley.

The encampment will be strictly recreational in nature, Miss Harrison says. Mrs. Robt. Cook of the Wells community will be recreational director for women, and Miss Margaret Strain of Midway will be director for girls. Both attended the H. D. recreation school held at Lubbock early this year.

Each person attending the encampment is to take care of herself in the way of eats and bedding, Miss Harrison says. The plan is all to arrive at Two Draw at 11 a. m. on the first day of the camp, and to break camp at 2:30 on the second day.

EDITH H. D. CLUB MET WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON

The Edith H. D. Club met Wednesday afternoon, July 6, at the home of Mrs. J. W. Taylor, our garden demonstrator.

Miss Harrison gave a demonstration of farm and ranch food supply, which was of great benefit to all and which every farm woman should be very much interested in. We filled our 4-H pantry budgets and planned our fall gardens.

The members present were: Mmes. H. D. Hargrett, T. L. Tippit, Sam Holland, O. L. Sanders, Johnson, Henry Douthett, W. Pennington, J. K. Nowlin, J. D. Pharr, G. Pennington; and visitors were: Mmes. Whittington, Dyke, Prater, Lindly, McCord, Dyes, Branson, O. B. Branson, and Misses Ruth Pharr, Syble Watson of Stanton, and the hostess, Mrs. Taylor. —Reporter.

Precinct Meetings On Election Day

R. C. Wood suggests that we call attention to the voters that precinct conventions will be held in each voting precinct in the county on primary election day. Most of these conventions will likely be held at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The purpose is to elect delegates to the county convention, which will meet the following Saturday, at which time delegates to the state convention will be selected.

The state convention will meet this year in Lubbock, the date being September.

Seagraves—About forty trucks were put to work hauling caliche from the newly-installed crusher two miles south of town Tuesday afternoon of last week. The work had been delayed over a month awaiting arrival and installation of the crusher at the pit. It is expected that the work will continue without delay until the project is completed.

Messrs. and Mmes. Buster Fenton, Winter Knight, Summer Knight, Lee Roy Knight, Mrs. Clay McCoy, Miss Allene Taylor, F. A. Robinette, and Oscar Roberts spent the Fourth out at Mr. Roberts' summer camp at Weed, New Mexico.

Tahoka Closed Fourth Of July

Practically every business house in Tahoka was closed throughout the day on Monday, July 4.

The town seemed to be almost depopulated, too, as many of the people went to New Home, Post, Lubbock, and other places to observe the holiday. No celebration of any kind had been arranged here.

WILL IMPROVE POST HIGHWAY

New Grade On Highway 84 From Post Over Caprock Planned By Highway Dept.

An allotment of $20,000 was made by the state highway department in Austin this week for grading and drainage structures on Highway 84 from Post west toward the Lynn county line. Plans will be ordered and bids taken when Garza county has furnished a 100-foot right-of-way.

Plans are being considered to re-route No. 84 out of Post west from the new high school building to the caprock and an entirely new grade built up the caprock onto the plains. The highway department also has made public an order stating the commission has adopted the policy of not requiring local or county aid in further construction owing to financial and economic conditions.

Nothing new has been made public in regard to plans for paving Highway 9 through Lynn and Dawson counties.

Celebrated July 4th At New Home

It is estimated that two thousand people assembled at New Home Monday to observe the great Fourth of July celebration staged at that place. A big barbecue was served at the noon hour and nobody went away hungry. The people of New Home had taken great pains to supply ample amounts of barbecued meats to feed the multitudes.

The county candidates and both the candidates for district attorney spoke in the morning, and politics seemed the order of the day.

In the afternoon there were two excellent ball games, beginning soon after 1 o'clock. Wolfforth defeated Lorenzo by a score of 6 to 3, and then Meadow and New Home had a game, Meadow winning by a score of 8 to 3. Our own Truett Smith was catcher for the New Home team and did a good job of it.

The baseball tournament was continued over Tuesday and Wednesday. On Tuesday afternoon Wolfforth defeated Meadow 6 to 3, and Lorenzo was a warded the game against New Home.

On Wednesday Lorenzo defeated Meadow 2 to 1.

The finals will be played at New Home Sunday afternoon either between Lorenzo and Wolfforth or Lorenzo and Meadow.

Republicans "Damp", Democrats "Wet" Platform Comparison Shows

In order that our readers may weigh and compare the declarations of the two major parties on the matter of prohibition, we publish below the planks of the Republican and Democratic platforms recently adopted dealing with this subject.

Republican Plank

We believe that the people should have the opportunity to pass upon a proposed amendment the provisions of which, while retaining in the federal government power to preserve the gains already made in dealing with the evils inherent in the liquor traffic, shall allow states to deal with the problem as their citizens may determine, but subject always to the power of the federal government to protect those states where prohibition may exist and safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and attendant abuses.

Such an amendment should be promptly submitted to the states by Congress, to be acted upon by state conventions called for the sole purpose in accordance with the provisions of Article V of the Constitution and adequately safeguarded so as to be truly representative. Democratic Plank

We favor the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. To effect such a repeal, we demand that Congress immediately propose a constitutional amendment to purely representative conventions in the States called to act solely on that purpose.

We urge the enactment of such measures by the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively prevent the return of the saloon and bring the liquor traffic into the open under complete supervision and control by the States.

We demand that the Federal Government effectively exercise its power to enable the States to effectually protect themselves against importation of intoxicating liquors in violation of their laws.

Pending repeal, we favor immediate modification of the Volstead act to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the Constitution and to provide therefrom a proper and needed revenue.

Jimmie Allred To Speak in Lubbock

Attorney-General Jimmie Allred will speak in Lubbock Friday night, according to announcement made by Hon Tom Garrard of that city. Mr. Garrard's communication follows:

Jimmie Allred, our brilliant, young and aggressive Attorney General, will give an account of his conduct of the Attorney General's office to his friends on the South Plains in an address at Lubbock Friday night, July 8th, at 8 o'clock.

"On account of the large area of Texas, the short time until election and the exacting duties of his office, Mr. Allred won't have time to visit all sections of the state but can only cover the larger towns. He would appreciate meeting as many of his friends on the south plains as possible on his visit to Lubbock."

Women To Visit Baptist Men's Class

The Men's Bible Class last Sunday decided to invite their wives and other women of the Church to meet with the class next Sunday morning at the American Legion Home.

President J. E. Thompson announced that every married man in the class would be expected to bring his wife and that any member who has no wife will be expected to bring some other man's wife. In view of this announcement, Uncle Ben Rogers has asked that if any married man expects to be out of town next Sunday he wants to know it. Some friend will please give him such information.

There were forty-five men present in this class last Sunday morning. A patriotic program was hastily improvised just before the class met, consisting of a few patriotic songs, a quartette, and a brief address by one of the members. Then followed the exposition of the lesson for the day by the teacher, G. E. Hogan, which was very fine.

CENTRAL CHURCH MEETING

The Central Baptist Church, ten miles east of Tahoka, will meet in conference next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock for the purpose of calling a pastor for the ensuing year, according to B. J. Emanuel, a member of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thomas and two daughters of Ponder, Denton county, have been here since Saturday night visiting Mr. Thomas' father, A. I. Thomas and family. On Monday afternoon, all the Thomas families gathered at Two Draw Lake to enjoy a fish fry, Paul having brought with him a 27lb. cat caught in Lake Dallas.

Mrs. Chas. Crum and her two sisters, Ruth and Eva Adair, of Breckenridge spent Saturday, Sunday and Monday visiting their aunt, Mrs. H. C. Crie, preparatory to taking their grandmother, Mrs. Lizzie Adair, on a tour of Central Texas and later to Carlsbad Cavern.

Dollar Day Was Success Saturday

The business men of Tahoka have expressed themselves as being well pleased with the second Dollar Day, which came on last Saturday instead of Monday on account of the fact that the latter day was a holiday.

The third Dollar Day will be held on Monday, August 1. Further announcement concerning it will be made later.

The town was filled with people last Saturday and the merchants enjoyed a good business, considering the general depression that still prevails.

LAMESA PREACHER COMING

Bro. R. D. Bennett from Lamesa will preach at the Church of Christ Sunday morning, July 10, at 11:00 o'clock. His subject, "How to Keep Down the Depression", should be of interest to everybody.

Whites And Hays Guests At Party

Many friends gathered at the Baptist Church Wednesday night to do honor to Mr. and Mrs. Taylor White and Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Hays, all of whom are to remove from Tahoka soon. Mr. and Mrs. White will leave next Monday for Odessa, where Mr. White will teach vocational agriculture in the high school. Mr. and Mrs. Hays will remove soon to Wolforth, where Mr. Hays has been elected superintendent of schools.

The program Wednesday night consisted of a lot of fun at Mr. White's expense, engineered by Truett Smith and Mrs. Gladys Stokes, some songs, and a number of tributes to the honorees of the occasion by various members of the church. Services of a city marshal were also necessary to the proper execution of the program and Ray Weathers acted this part to perfection.

Punch was served and a general good time was had.

PRESBYTERIAN SERVICES. HERE NEXT SUNDAY

We are requested to announce that Rev. W. K. Johnston will preach at the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning and night at the usual hours. He will doubtless bring excellent messages and it is hoped that he may be heard by goodly congregations.

CHURCH MEET WILL BE HERE

Primitive Baptists From All West Texas Will Hold Annual Meet In August

The West Texas Primitive Baptist Association will meet here in the City Tabernacle on Thursday night before the fourth Sunday in August and will continue in session over the fourth Sunday, according to announcement made by J. S. Wells.

This association covers a vast territory and many churches will be represented in the meeting here. "Preachers will be here from three states", Mr. Wells stated. Many of the visitors will come prepared to camp out during their stay in our city but some will be cared for in the homes of the people.

This association met here a few years ago, it will be remembered, and many visitors were here from far and near, great throngs attending all the services. The old-time hymns are used altogether in the services, many of which are never heard in this day in the services of other churches. Many Tahoka people will doubtless attend the services of this association when it is held here.

"THE IRRESISTIBLE CONFLICT"

Both parties have gone wet. At least those who control party policies have done so—the Republicans mildly wet, the Democrats vehemently so.

In another column of this paper will be found the platform planks of the two parties on this issue.

The Republican plank is a bit ambiguous and confusing. This results from the fact that it is a compromise. President Hoover is a dry but the majority in the recent Republican convention was evidently wet. The platform builders tried to construct a plank that would please both sides, or that would not offend either side. It calls for submission of some kind of a liquor amendment repealing or materially modifying the Eighteenth Amendment. It seems to favor the retention in Congress of sufficient power to regulate the traffic and to prohibit the old-fashioned saloon, but would otherwise leave the matter up to the various states.

The Democratic platform calls for outright repeal. Pending repeal it favors the modification of the Volstead Act so as to permit the "manufacture and sale of beer and other beverages of such alcoholic content as is permissible under the Constitution". It would also protect dry states against importation of liquor from wet states after the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. It urges the States to enact such measures "as will actually promote temperance and effectively prevent the return of the saloon."

Both platforms call for the submission of the proposed repeal amendment to "conventions" in the various states called for that purpose—not to the state legislatures.

There is evidently cunning design on the part of the wets in proposing that the matter shall be passed upon by conventions rather than by the state legislatures. Doubtless they feel that it would be impossible to procure favorable action from the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. They figure that it will be easier for them to control conventions. Conventions are always run by the politicians. Delegates to conventions do not have to stand for reelection. The wets are afraid of the legislatures. They know that the Eighteenth Amendment was ratified by the legislatures of the various states and they know that the members of the various legislatures feel more keenly their responsibility to their constituency than would the delegates to conventions, where wire-working and chicanery are often the rule.

Nevertheless, we predict that when the fight come in the various states, the wets are going to be surprised at the vigor and strength of their antagonists. The dries have been rather quiescent for the past few years. Many of them have felt that the Eighteenth Amendment was perfectly secure. They have listened to the ravings of the wets with perfect composure and complacency. But they are now realizing that the Eighteenth Amendment is in real danger. They are becoming aroused. When submission is actually voted by Congress every dry brave will don the war paint. They will put the facts before the people. They will tear the mask of falsehood from the great mass of propaganda with which the wets have been flooding the country. We believe that the great majority of the people will realize that it would not be safe from any standpoint in this day of progress and enlightenment for the old-time saloon to return; and if Prohibition is destroyed, the saloon in some form or other will be with us again. That is inescapable. Booze is too plentiful and too destructive even when all our governmental agencies are doing all in their power to suppress it. With the government licensing its sale and sharing in its ill-gotten gains it would soon become again utterly intolerable. The legalized liquor traffic must not come back.

While we may fail to find any sure and effective remedy in the Democratic platform adopted at Chicago last week for the economic ills that now beset the country, yet we would like for Roosevelt and the Democrats to have an opportunity to try their hand. Roosevelt is classified as a Progressive Democrat, in full sympathy with the great masses of the people—the champion of the "forgotten man". With the possible exception of John Garner, he was by far the best man that had any chance of securing the nomination at the hands of the National Democracy, in our humble opinion. He was nominated in spite of the opposition of Smith and Tammany Hall. He was not the favorite of Big Business. In his speech of acceptance he declared that economic issues would be given first importance in his campaign, relegating the liquor issue to second place. While he declared that he was in favor of repeal and that from this day the Eighteenth Amendment is doomed, yet this is a matter that will be fought out before the American people, whoever may be President. Dry Democrats will likely vote for Roosevelt for President but they will fight to the death any proposal by anybody to destroy the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Democratic convention at Chicago adopted a platform demanding repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment but urging the enactment of such legislation by the various states as will prevent the return of the saloon. But if the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed outright and the control of liquor traffic turned back to the states, as wet Democrats propose, then the Federal Government will have no power whatever to prevent the return of the saloon. If New York or Massachusetts or Illinois or Louisiana or New Mexico or any other state sees fit to permit the return of the saloon within their respective boundaries, the Federal Government will be absolutely helpless to prevent it. Furthermore, it will be absolutely helpless to control or regulate the traffic in any way or to any extent within the boundaries of any state. It may prohibit the shipment of liquors from wet states into dry states but it will have no power whatever over the liquor traffic within any state except to collect its revenue. This suggestion about preventing the return of the saloon in the event the Eighteenth Amendment is destroyed is pure bunk, put out only for campaign purposes.

We failed to note last week the visit the previous week-end of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Jones to Mangum, Oklahoma, where they were called to the bedside of her mother, who was seriously ill. They left her much improved.

Mrs. Irma Bradley and daughter Marian of San Angelo are here visiting her sister, Mrs. K. F. Knight, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mattie Bradley, and other relatives.

J. H. Edwards attended the big Cowboys Reunion at Stamford Monday. He reports an immense crowd and splendid entertainment.

Fifty-Four Years Of Pioneering On The Plains Of Texas

As Told By
Jack Alley
To
Frank P. Hill

CATTLE AND THEIR CHARACTERISTICS

I don't believe there are very many men that have handled as many cattle as I have. For nearly forty years I worked with cattle almost constantly, and most of that time I was in the service of men who raised cattle on a large scale. I worked in every capacity on the ranch during these years and at all times had charge of from 2,500 to 40,000 or 50,000 head.

A great part of my life has been spent in the saddle among the cows—Texas longhorns, Herefords, Durhams, and cross-breeds. I was in constant contact with cattle and the cattle business from 1876 when I joined the Slaughters until a few years ago. On those early day ranches we seldom went to town and seldom saw anyone but cowmen. We "punched" cows, talked cows, slept with cows, and ate cows year in and year out. During that time I came to know cows pretty well.

Cattle are a whole lot like us humans. There is nothing mysterious about a herd of cattle—that is, if you know their traits and characteristics, what their actions mean, and how to deal with the animals.

I never had a stampede in my life. One of my best qualities as a handler of cattle herds was that I could always sense an impending stampede. I could tell during the day by the action and attitude of my herd whether or not they were liable to stampede that night. When I sensed any uneasiness or nervousness among the cows, we would spread them out over a large area, not allowing them to congregate in any large bunches. Then when a cow would get scared there was no close milling or danger of her spreading alarm to the whole herd. With proper handling the cattle would soon settle down again after a little flare up.

Singing and talking to the cattle was a common practice on the range. When uneasiness was detected among the herd, which occurred most frequently during night-time, we would ride among the stock singing, or whistling, or talking to them. This let the cattle know that we were there and that everything was all right, thus steadying their nerves. Many were the nights spent by the night men riding along singing to the cows. This brought into being the many songs of the range, many of which have been written and many others of which have been forgotten. Frequently, the cattle would be in such a nervous state of mind that the whole camp force would be required to keep them under control during the night, even after we had been riding all day.

Stampedes might be caused by any one of many things. One scared cow could spread alarm to the entire herd and start a stampede that would cost the owner thousands of dollars. A clap of thunder or flash of lightning, possibly a dog's bark, or the sudden appearance of strange people or animals could put an entire herd into panic; but, unless the cattle were already nervous there was not so much danger of a break.

When cattle are on trail they act a great deal like soldiers. Cows walk in couples or in small groups, and will walk side by side in almost the same positions day after day. Certain steers will always be found in the lead every day. Just behind them will be another group, always just behind the leaders. Others will be found on the right side of the herd, others on the left, others in the center, and certain others are always dragging along at the end. They travel along the trail together, they graze together, and at night they bed down together and in the same section of the bedding ground. When they get dry for want of water, they string out for eight or ten miles, if you let them, and walk in twos and small bunches.

While on trail it was necessary to make a close check on the herd every day to see if any had been lost. A herd of two or three thousand cattle couldn't be counted every day for that would require too much time. But, the experienced cowpuncher would ride around the herd and, noting the usual groups, leaders, drags, and so on, could tell whether or not any cattle had been lost. This was one place where a cowboy's knowledge of cows was so important. You had to know the individual cows of your herd, their associates and their habits.

About 2,500 or 3,000 head was the usual size of a herd that was moved by one group of cowboys. Sometimes 4,000 or 5,000 would be moved in a herd, but that was too many. Large herds were much harder to handle and the danger of stampede was much greater. Each herd was in charge of a wagon boss, whose word was the law of the cow camp; seven or eight cowboys, who rode herd all day and then took turn about watching at night; a horse wrangler, who looked after the horses, grazed them, and saw that each cowboy had a fresh mount when the one he was riding tired; and the cook, who prepared the meals and had charge of the wagon. The wagon carried the food supplies, bedding, and other camp equipment, and especially on the Plains, two large barrels of water for the men. The wagon was drawn sometimes by horses or mules, and sometimes by oxen. The principal fuel on the Plains was cow "chips", buffalo "chips", or small sticks picked up around the camp or along the route of the day's drive.

Chuck was served cafeteria style from the back of the wagon and from the pots over the fire. After a hard day's drive, "hot rolls"—bedding—was spread out on the ground and we went to bed, using our saddles for pillows. Many times we slept with our clothes on so as to be ready to go out and work with the herd in case of trouble. Horses were kept nearby for such an emergency.

A herd of cattle was usually driven from ten to fifteen miles a day, depending on conditions. When dry they travel faster than they otherwise do. They must be grazed along the route, and the cowboy's work on trail usually was of twelve to eighteen hours duration a day.

If necessary, everything was risked to save the cattle when they were in danger of coming to harm. Life and health were risked by every cowboy who ever rode range in the old days of the cattle business. When necessary, we worked in the saddle day and night until we were utterly exhausted, one example of which I will give.

Among the first cattle bought by the XIT Syndicate to stock their big ranch were 10,000 head from Col. C. C. Slaughter in about 1884 or '85, the latter to deliver them to Syndicate men on the Yellowhouse just above the present site of Lubbock.

This was a dry year, and there was no permanent water between Tobacco Creek and the Yellowhouse, not even any at Moar's Draw or Tahoka Lake. He sent the cattle up in three herds of about 3,300 head each. The first herd stood the trip all right.

As the second herd was being driven by Tahoka Lake to the east, the cattle smelled the damp air from the alkali lake bed. They were very thirsty and made a run for the lake, getting out from under the control of the cowboys. Almost dying from thirst they milled around in the lake without water before cowboys succeeded in getting them on the trail again. Immediately on noting the predicament they were in, the boss sent a messenger to Col. Slaughter, who was at German on the Buffalo

Ranch northwest of Colorado City.

Slaughter gathered all the cowboys and six-shooters he could find as he came to Tahoka Lake. Under Slaughter's command, the cowboys would ride into the edge of the herd, cut out a hundred or two head and drive them on the Plains out of smelling distance of the dry lake, where another bunch of cowboys held them. He sent word back to the driver of the third herd that he would kill him if he let his herd get into that lake.

After many hours of desperate work, the cattle were driven on to the Yellowhouse and saved from starvation. But, Slaughter had lost his eyesight, he had gotten so much of the alkali dust in his eyes. He went to St. Louis and had a specialist work on them, partially restoring his sight; but, he was almost blind the remaining years of his life.

Next week: Alley Becomes Boss Of Slaughter Ranch.

New Home

The largest crowd ever to assemble at New Home was here July 4th for a picnic. Barbecue was served to an estimate of 2500 people. The ball games in the afternoon and the candidate speaking in the morning were the features of the day. Many people went home with blistered necks only to say they had had a glorious Fourth.

Miss Nora Sawyer of Idaho, who has been visiting in the R. Q. Adams home for several weeks is returning home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Wilson visited Mr. Wilson's people in Plainview through the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Seth have returned from an extended visit in Gallup, N. Mex. Mr. Seth also attended the Cowboy Reunion at Stamford this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Fulton have as their guests this week all of their children and grandchildren. Those here are: Messrs. and Mesdames Milton Fulton of Los Angeles, Calif.; E. Guest of Rogers, John Gannaway and Rass White of New Home; also, the son of their deceased son.

Mr. and Mrs. McEachern and Mr. and Mrs. Garland McWhorter of Woodrow attended the singing at church Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Farris and Miss Laurin Levett were guests of our singing class Sunday night.

COMEDY RULES IN NEW THAYER MYSTERY FILM

Sixty minutes of fun and entertainment is provided at the Palace Theatre in Post next Wednesday and Thursday, where Zasu Pitts, Eugene Pallette, Lucien Littlefield, Tully Marshall, Harold Waldridge, Francis Sayles and Theodor von Eltz dispense their various brands of comedy in the murder mystery "Strangers of the Evening".

While "Strangers of the Evening" is primarily a mystery dealing with the substitution of bodies and the final accounting of the missing body, the situations are obviously built for laughter . . . and get plenty of it, with the able help of the splendid cast.

KEN MAYNARD PLAYS "TEXAS GUN FIGHTER"

An unusual twist in Tiffany Productions' western screen drama, "Texas Gun Fighter", which will be at the Palace Theatre, Post, Friday and Saturday of this week, gives Ken Maynard an entirely different role than he has ever played before.

As a reformed member of a gang of outlaws, he is made sheriff of a western mining town and is forced to fight it out and capture the same gang.

In the "Texas Gun Fighter" Ken proves just how trustworthy a reformed bandit may be. He risks his life and the confidence of the miners when he is forced to use trickery to capture his old gang.

Mrs. Lou Huffman is reported to be improving from an attack of malarial fever. The fever was contracted while she was on a visit in East Texas, the doctor says.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Yandell and children of Lubbock spent the Fourth with R. A. Hoover and family here. Mrs. Yandell is Mr. Hoover's sister.

Mrs. J. W. Barnes is reported to be quite sick this week.
