HOLD MAN FOR THARP MURDER

Former Amarillo Football Player Is Arrested For Crime; Claims Can Prove Alibi

Although stoutly maintaining his innocence, H. C. (Buddy) Blanton of Amarillo is still being held in jail in Lubbock charged with the robbery of two M-System stores and the murder of Robert Tharp, manager of one of them, on Saturday night, October 15.

Blanton was arrested in Amarillo about 2 o'clock last Sunday morning and on Sunday afternoon was identified by six employees and a customer of the two M-System stores in the Potter county jail. Blanton was then brought to Lubbock and placed in jail there.

Blanton, 21, is a former football player on the Amarillo high school team. He had been married only about two months when the crimes with which he is charged were committed. He claims that he was not in Lubbock on the fatal night and can prove an alibi. His wife, he claims, was in Hobbs, New Mexico, at the time. It is said that each of the witnesses against him, however, separate from the others, picked him out from a number of other prisoners as the man who robbed the Lubbock grocery store and shot Tharp down.

Prior to Blanton's arrest several suspects had been arrested in Lubbock but had been released. A number of checks, identified as some of the checks taken from the M-System stores on the night of the robbery, were later found near the air port north of Lubbock. It is claimed that clothing found in Blanton's room in Amarillo following his arrest corresponded in appearance with the clothing worn by the man who committed the robberies and murder.

Blanton has made a written statement to assistant district attorney, Burton Burks, it is said, but the contents of the statement has not been revealed.

In a court of inquiry in Amarillo Wednesday, however, nineteen witnesses testified that Blanton was in Amarillo on the night of the Lubbock robbery and murder.

"REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM" HERE THIS WEEK

The amazing adventures and glorious romance of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," as vivified in the Fox production featuring Marian Nixon and Ralph Bellamy, will occupy the screen at the English Theatre today, Thursday, and Friday. The choice of dainty, wistful, appealing Miss Nixon and tall, handsome Bellamy to enact the leading roles in this important feature picture came, it is said, as a reward for splendid work in recent successes.

Briefly, the film story recounts the main adventures of Rebecca, as immortalized in the book, revolving around her intense desire to win the regard of her spinster aunts; her interest in obtaining a wedding ring for the unwed mother of Jack-O-Lantern, and her romance with Dr. Adam Ladd. Mae Marsh, as Aunt Jane, and Louise Closser Hale, as Aunt Miranda, portray the aged spinster aunts of Rebecca.

Business Is Light In County Court

Judge G. C. Grider opened county court here Monday morning and the appearance docket was called Tuesday morning. No cases have been tried, however, and there will probably be few trials at this term.

Upon request of the county attorney, the court ordered that a number of capias pro fines be issued in cases in which defendants had pleaded guilty at various times during the year but who had not paid their fines.

ATTENDING CONVENTION

Mmes. J. K. Applewhite, C. B. Townes, W. O. Thomas, and W. B. Slaton are in Fort Worth this week attending the state-convention of the Order of Eastern Star. They are expected to return today or tomorrow.

Mrs. L. McCormack came in Saturday from Dallas, where she has spent the past several months, and will remain here quite awhile with her daughter, Mrs. D. W. Gagnat.

Cheese Making Taught Women

The cheese-making demonstration held at the Home Economics laboratory in the high school building here last Saturday by Prof. Kenneth M. Renner of the Texas Technological College was well attended and was a most interesting affair, according to Miss El Fleda Harrison.

The women who attended, she says, went away well prepared to give the demonstrations in their respective communities.

Those in attendance were: Mrs. Sumner Clayton of O'Donnell; Mrs. I. M. Draper of Midway; Mrs. R. W. Barton of New Lynn; Mrs. Sam Holland of Edith; Mrs. J. R. Sims of Lakeview; Mmes. A. E. Leverett and A. M. Daniel of T-Bar; Mmes. Lit Moore and Joe Poindexter of New Home; and Mmes. Will Montgomery, W. S. Anglin, John Stokes, R. W. Fenton, and Jack Corley of Tahoka.

Peck In Favor Of Loan Moratorium

Wm. M. Peck of Concordia, Kansas, is here this week looking after business. Mr. Peck is in the loan business and has loaned much Northern and Eastern money in Lynn county the past seventeen years. Like many other people, Mr. Peck has his own ideas about how to end the depression. He wants Congress to authorize the President to declare five years moratorium on all farm loans or to induce the big loan companies to agree to such a moratorium, with interest rates reduced to the minimum, so as to give farmers an opportunity to pay out their farms.

He thinks that would be more helpful than anything else that could be done, and he thinks most of the big loan companies would willingly consent for some such action to be taken. At any rate he thought the matter should be put up to our Congressmen.

Church Of Christ Enrollment Growing

We are exceedingly glad to note the steady growth in attendance. Sunday morning there were a total of 87 assembled in the various class rooms. A goodly number of young folks were present Sunday evening and there were twenty ladies in the Ladies Bible class Monday afternoon.

It is indeed commendable in these perilous times to see such a splendid number of Christians still clinging to God's unchanging hand.

Bro. Drennon is no doubt largely responsible for the increase in attendance, for he is not idle one hour of the day. Throughout the week he and his good wife were busily getting better acquainted and visiting the sick.

"How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the Gospel of peace and bring glad tidings of good things!" (Rom. 10:15).—Reporter.

Methodist Planning Social Next Week

A benefit entertainment will be held in the basement of the Methodist Church Thursday night of next week to which all the people of Tahoka and surrounding territory, old or young, are invited, the social committee of the church announces.

Games, stunts, contests, and musical numbers will feature the evening's program. A male quartet will be on hand. Entertainment is being planned for both young people and old people, and a rip-roaring, good time is promised one and all. Plenty of cocoa, coffee, and sandwiches are promised to climax the affair.

A small admission fee of 25c will be charged, the proceeds going to the church, and tickets may be obtained at either drug store.

WEEKLY PROGRAM FOR THE CHURCH OF CHRIST

1682 BALES GINNED IN TAHOKA; BAD WEATHERS HALTS HARVEST

Large Congregations At Methodist Church

Congregations at the Methodist Church at both services last Sunday thoroughly enjoyed the two splendid sermons which the pastor was able to give. Everyone welcomed the Rev. Smith again after his enforced absence, and was happy to see him recovered from his illness.

The morning subject was the familiar story of Paul's conversion with the lesson centering on the thought: "What will Thou have me to do?" It is a question every Christian should sincerely ask and be ready to act in answer. In the evening a concluding treatise on the sermon series to which we have listened—based on our relations to Christ according to His spirit within us—brought out some very fine lessons which should be a daily source of inspiration.

Supt. G. M. Reid conducted the Church school worship following the prelude, "Flower Song" by Lange, and W. E. Suddarth was in charge of the church preliminaries.

Let us keep the Church school attendance up to the mark we have reached, and then keep it climbing. "On time is 9:45 A. M.—Reporter.

ON DEER HUNT

Dr. E. E. Callaway of this city and his brother, Sam Callaway, a prominent lawyer of Fort Worth, left Monday morning for the mountains of New Mexico with the avowed intention of killing a black-tail deer or two. They are to be accompanied on the hunt by Joe Wharf, formerly of this county but now residing in our sister state to the west.

Connecticut Man Put In Jail Here

A gentleman claiming Connecticut as his native state and giving his name as George J. Ringling is in jail here for passing a bad check in the sum of twenty dollars to an O'Donnell drug store last Saturday. The check was drawn on a Boyle Kentzky, bank and bore the purported signature of the cashier. It was found out, however, that the signature was spurious and the check no good.

Ringling has had quite a checkered career, according to statements made by him to officers here, and has visited many portions of this old globe. It is said that he is wanted by Federal authorities and it may be that he will be surrendered to them.

Primitive Baptists Services Monday

Elder Sammy Redford of the lower Rio Grande Valley preached at the Primitive Baptist Church here last Monday morning and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wells while here.

Elder Redford went from here to Brownfield and was on a preaching tour that will take him as far west as California.

OPEN STORE AT O'DONNELL

Levine Bros. have recently opened a dry goods store in O'Donnell with Mr. W. Pearl in charge. Mr. Pearl is brother-in-law of Al Lehman, manager of Levine Bros. store here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rogers of O'Donnell are here visiting their daughter, Mrs. N. M. Wyatt. They were accompanied to Tahoka Wednesday by a son, M. H. Rogers, of Levelland, where they have been visiting.

ANOTHER PIONEER STORY IN "NEWS" NEXT WEEK

Next week another story by a West Texas pioneer will appear in The News. This story, a true one, was told to a representative of this paper by an old man who first came to West Texas 65 years ago, when Fort Griffin was in its infancy, when bad men were here, and when a woman outlaw did business along the trail. This man, who left here fifty years ago, and, as he was leaving, met Billy the Kid, was through Tahoka recently.

The gathering of the cotton crop has proceeded very slowly since our report last week, due to rain. Light showers that fell last week kept pickers out of the field two or three days and the rain on Monday night stopped operations again. Only 274 bales were ginned from last Thursday morning until this Thursday morning. The total this morning had reached 1682, with 1091 weighed up at the yard.

A rain and thunder storm accompanied by considerable hail visited this section Monday night. The precipitation in Tahoka amounted to .72 of an inch, according to the U. S. rain gage kept by the News. It was possibly a little heavier than this in some localities but was lighter in others. The hail covered quite an extensive territory centering around Tahoka. Only a light hail was reported at Grassland and Redwine while none fell at O'Donnell, West Point, or New Home. A few farmers have reported heavy damage to the cotton crop from the hail, but in most of the area the damage seems to have been comparatively light.

The first killing frost of the season was in evidence Wednesday morning. It did not kill all of the green vegetation by any means but it is believed that it will cause most of the cotton leaves left by the hail to shed off. The first ice of the season was also seen Wednesday morning, only a very thin layer on ponds and water in exposed vessels. This frost and freeze killed some unmailed feed and late cotton. Just how much reduction in the cotton yield will result is hard to estimate at this time.

Tech-Notre Dame B Game Friday

Lubbock, Oct. 27.—The big game of all time for West Texas, the Texas Tech-Notre Dame B football game here Friday night is expected to have the largest audience of any game yet played west of Fort Worth in Texas. Already 4,500 tickets have been sold and extra bleachers have been erected to care for all who come in for the game.

Notre Dame's B team, that has never suffered a defeat, will be accompanied to Lubbock by Tommy Yarr, captain of the 1931 Ramblers, an all-American center by unanimous choice, and present assistant Notre Dame coach. A squad of 30 or 40 men will accompany him. The trip here will be the first time a Notre Dame team has played in Texas in 19 years, since 1913 when the team came to Austin to play Texas University.

Democratic Rally Here Saturday

A regular old-time Democratic rally will be held here next Saturday, beginning at 2:30 P. M., according to an announcement made by Judge G. C. Grider. Two speakers will be here from Lubbock to speak in the interest of the entire Democratic ticket, particularly for Roosevelt for President and Mrs. Miriam Ferguson for governor.

Judge Grider made this announcement Wednesday after a telephone conversation with Judge J. E. Vickers of Lubbock. Judge Vickers assured him that two good speakers would be here and asked him to give publicity to the rally. Judge Vickers was one of the leading Ferguson supporters in this section of the state during the recent campaign. Judge Grider will have charge of local arrangements.

Kid Singers At Central Sunday

The Kid Singing Convention will meet at Central Baptist Church Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The last convention was held at South Ward last August. Officers elected on that day were: Horace G. Krebs of New Lynn, president; Horace Lindly of Edith, vice-president, and Fay Jones of New Lynn, secretary-treasurer. These are the officers for the coming year.

If the weather will permit, we are expecting many good singers to be present with programs from their classes.

In connection with the Kid Convention, the officials of the county singing convention will discuss some matters confronting them. We welcome them to our convention.

Every one is extended a cordial invitation to come and bring your song books. Singing will begin promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

Horace G. Krebs, president.

Down Town Class Attendance Better

It was a joy to have in our Down Town Class last Sunday morning such a splendid group of men and especially so many who have not been in regular attendance. I know that we speak for the teacher, president, vice-presidents, and for the entire class when we say that such attendance makes us indeed happy. We have a teacher who is par-excellent. Our president is wide-awake and the enlistment committee is on the job faithfully magnifying Sunday school attendance. One of the judges in the state of New York said a little while ago that of the more than 4,000 juvenile cases that had come under his jurisdiction, only four were regular in attending Sunday school. We cannot over-emphasize the importance of this good work that is being carried on by all our churches. It not only is good for men and women, but equally so for young people and children. Let us see to it that the children are regu-

START DRIVE FOR RED CROSS

Annual Roll Call Goal For Lynn County Set at Four Hundred Memberships

The annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross, announced for November 11 to 24, will find more than 3,000 chapters seeking memberships for regular and emergency activities through 1933.

B. P. Maddox, chairman of the local chapter has summed up the national organization's relief activities during the past year as follows:

"To prevent suffering in this period of unemployment and general economic depression, the Red Cross has made widespread distribution of wheat, flour, clothing, medicine and other supplies. More than 2,200 chapters have participated in community unemployment relief problems.

"Approximately 15,000,000 persons, residing in every state in the Union, have received flour through the Red Cross, while the clothing needs of tens of thousands of distressed families have been supplemented by the organization's present cloth and clothing distribution program. The task of converting government wheat and cotton into flour and garments was assigned to the Red Cross this year by Congress.

"After fifty-one years as the official national relief agency, the American Red Cross finds itself in 1932 carrying the largest peacetime load in its history," the chairman said.

Ninety-five disasters—in addition to unemployment—commanded the relief facilities of the organization during the last fiscal year, according to the local chapter official. That disaster played no favorites is revealed in a Red Cross report which shows 62 disasters visited the continental United States and 28 struck insular possessions during the fiscal year. Five foreign disasters were of sufficient severity to bring help from the American Red Cross.

Altogether, the agency extended assistance to 486,000 victims of disaster during the 12-month period. That figure does not include the millions to dependency as a result of economic conditions.

Final plans for an extensive campaign here are being completed this week and those directing the community-wide appeal have expressed the belief that the membership quota will be reached or exceeded in a comparatively brief period.

Lockwood Named Roll Call Leader

Judge B. P. Maddox announces the appointment of A. L. Lockwood, as chairman of the Lynn County Red Cross Annual Roll Call, which will begin on November 11. Mr. Lockwood will announce his list of precinct chairmen within a few days.

Lynn county's quota of membership has been fixed at 400. It is hoped and believed that this number will be readily obtained this year. Judge Maddox, chairman of the local chapter, requests that Mr. Lockwood be given the united support and cooperation of the people of Tahoka and Lynn county in this membership campaign, for the Red Cross has done wonderful work here in Lynn county and is doing a great work everywhere.

Our good friend G. W. Douthit came into the News office last Saturday with a sack of butter beans and a nice cushaw, which he said his wife had sent us. Editors like most other folks depend largely on the women these days. We have been enjoying those butter beans already, and some of these days we are going to whack that old cushaw into many pieces, as we used to do a few years ago when we were kid down on the farm, and bake 'em. Or maybe the cook will serve it up in some other fashion—but anyhow we are going to enjoy that cushaw. Mrs. Douthit asked us not to mention this little gift, so we are going to ask our two or three readers to say nothing about it.

The lawyers of Lubbock are to be commended for their decision not to represent in the courts for the next twelve months any person charged with the crimes of theft, burglary, robbery, or murder committed in the perpetration of any of these crimes unless appointed by the court to do so. This unselfish and patriotic action on their part will probably have a wholesome effect in deterring the criminal from plying his vocation in Lubbock. If lawyers everywhere would be more conscientious and patriotic all the time in the defense of criminals in the courts, criminals would find it much harder to commit crime and get away with it. Many of the best and greatest men we ever knew were lawyers and the members of the legal profession as a whole will doubtless compare favorably in morals and conduct with other classes of our citizens, but it is a fact that there are many lawyers who will stoop to any trick and be guilty of the most shameful hypocrisy in order to deceive or befuddle a jury and clear a client. The practice of criminal law in this country has become notorious for the sharpers and tricksters that abound in this branch of the legal profession; and it is due largely to the shrewdness, the hypocrisy, the trickery and the eloquence of these gentry that gangsters and racketeers and hijackers flourish in so many of our cities and escape the clutches of the law. If all lawyers would only be fair and honest and conscientious in the kind of defense they make when representing criminals, there would soon be a marvelous crime decrease in this country. The Lubbock lawyers are possibly going a little far in their decision not to even represent any of this class of criminals in the courts but they are at least going in the right direction and are blazing a trail that thousands of others would follow.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce and a number of West Texas newspapers are fighting the proposed constitutional amendment which provides that the Legislature may make an appropriation for a Texas Centennial exposition to be held in 1936 "commemorating the heroic period of early Texas history and celebrating a century of our independence and progress." The constitution at present prohibits the appropriation of money from the public treasury for any such purpose. It is now proposed to set aside this provision of our constitution for this one show. We wish to join the other opponents of the measure. This is no time to be spending money for anything except absolute necessities. With thousands of farmers and thousands of other citizens already unable to pay their taxes, with the State unable today to pay its obligations, with school teachers and many state employees being compelled to wait for their money or to discount their vouchers, this is no time to be planning for the spending of many other thousands of dollars of the people's money for a mere show. We should like for the Centennial to be held. It would doubtless inspire many of us to a deeper love and higher appreciation for our state. It would probably be of considerable educational value. If the state and the country were prosperous there might not be much objection to a reasonable appropriation from the state treasury to help pay the expenses. Under any circumstances, however, it is doubtful if such an appropriation would be justifiable. Under present circumstances, it would be inexcusable. The taxpayers of Texas should swat it on November 8.

In addresses and interviews John Garner is advocating the immediate modification of the Volstead act so as to permit the sale of "beer" containing an alcoholic content of 3 or 3½ per cent and the levying of a Federal tax of say 3 cents per bottle on this beverage, claiming that such a beverage would not in fact be "intoxicating" as that term is defined by our courts and that its sale would not be in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment. Garner is probably right in this contention. But, while his proposal would undoubtedly yield considerable revenue to the Federal Government, yet the practical effect of it would be to make the Prohibition law still harder to enforce. Three per cent beer would be about the same kind of beverage as the old potions known as "Ino" and like beverages dispensed in "local option" days looking and tasting so much like real beer that it was difficult for a novice to detect the difference. But beer drinkers wanted the real thing, because it had more "kick" to it, and the "real thing" was therefore sold in the open and above-board under the guise and label of "Ino" or other non-intoxicating beverage. It was easy therefore to violate the law with impunity and almost impossible to enforce it until legislation remedied this evil, and social "clubs", which were mere saloons in disguise, flourished in every "dry" town. Real beer, such as Schlitz and B. Weiser, contained an alcoholic content of 5½ to 7 per cent. The proposal to legalize the sale of near-beer is simply a proposal in disguise to make the sale of real beer easy and safe for the seller.

We do not believe in tariff walls that destroy or cripple free trade among the nations. Since we have maintained a Protective Tariff system in this country for so long a time, it would probably be disastrous to our industrial system to tear down these walls all at once, but instead of continually building them higher we should begin lowering them. We believe that the severest criticism that can be leveled at President Hoover and a Republican Congress is the fact that they gave us the Smoot-Hawley tariff act. If foreign nations buy our cotton and our wheat they must be allowed at the same time to sell us something in return. We must depend upon Europe largely as a market for our cotton and if Europe can not buy then the price becomes disastrously low. The prosperity of this country, and especially the prosperity of the South, depends in large measure on the prosperity of other countries. We can not shut our eyes to this fact and get anywhere financially. No nation liveth to itself.

We believe that the pledge should be removed from the top of the ballot in the Democratic primaries in this state. While the pledge is there, however, we do not believe that it should be regarded lightly. Still, it should not be considered of such transcending importance as to keep Democrats from entering the primary, since a nomination is tantamount to an election and participation in the primaries is the only means by which a citizen can have any voice, ordinarily, in selecting state, district, county, and precinct officials. Neither should the pledge be considered of such binling force as to stifle the consciences of the voters when they come to cast their ballots in the general election. Above all things a man should be a patriot at the polls.

Hundreds of thousands of dry Democrats will vote for Roosevelt and Garner on November 8; but Mr. Roosevelt should not get the idea that they are voting for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment nor should Mr. Garner think that they are voting for "Beer before March."

We often hear people say that they expect to hold their nose and vote 'er straight. Why should any free American citizen feel compelled to hold his nose while he votes? Why not vote as his conscience dictates and no nose-holding will be necessary.

Once upon a time there lived two little maidens with their mother near the seashore. They were very happy and grew up to be lovely young ladies. One was very dark with rosy cheeks and raven locks. The other was wondrous fair, but a great sorrow was hers. She never looked in the mirror or caught her reflection in a laughing brook without a feeling of shame, for her hair was snow white.

Their house was on the edge of a mysterious forest. Strange stories came to them of the awful doing of a witch and a monstrous cat who had turned this forest from a beautiful park to a place of mystery and dreadful deeds. The countryside for miles around was kept in a state of terror by her awful rages. On stormy nights she came out on the cliff overlooking the water and screamed at the wind and tore her hair out by the handful. As soon as it left her head it turned to tiny snakes. As long as the storm lasted they stood up on their tails and danced. When the storm calmed the little snakes died and each one turned to a little black lily. These lilies were deadly poison to any living creature that ate or touched them.

One Haallow'en night there came a dreadful storm. The waves beat up on the Witch's Cliff. Off in the distance was the booming of the distress guns of a ship gallantly riding the storm in an effort to reach safety with her precious cargo of human lives. The Prince of the realm was on board and great was the grief of all on board at the fate of their young ruler. The brave ship rode the waves in close to shore. All at once a mighty demon leaped from the cliff. It was the monstrous cat with the wicked old witch astride of his back beating him with her iron broom. His awful shrieks added to those of his mistress so terrified those on board that they all jumped into the sea. The young prince tried to protect his subjects against the attacks of the terror of the forest. His only reward was to be badly scratched by the black cat and burned by his fiery breath. The last straw came when the witch threw a handful of little snakes all over the Prince that tried to bite him. He quickly jumped overboard, drowned the snakes, and started swimming to safety.

The old witch wanted to follow him but she could not swim and the cat was afraid of water. The old witch threw her iron broom at the Prince, striking him on the head. He sank, soon to be washed ashore almost lifeless. His subjects carried him to the cottage by the sea where lived the two lovely maidens. Their mother was called the flower lady. She could heal people of the most grievous ills of soul and body. She took the young Prince in and sent the people away. She put morning glories in his right hand that he might rule gloriously and bravely; hearts-ease in his left hand that he might carry again the heart for the sorrowing.

When he awakened he fell desperately in love with the girl with the white hair and called her his Snow Queen. She was very happy, as no lovers had sought her. After they looked upon the dark beauty of her sister, who was known as the Rose Maiden, they had no eyes for her. Rose played at love and threw their hearts away when she had broken them by her proud, haughty ways. They always came to little Violet of the snow white hair for comfort but not one thought to love her.

The Prince was so madly in love he had time for no one but his Snow Queen and hastened the wedding.

They were married at a dear little church by the good old white-haired minister. Little did the bride suspect she was to be Queen over a mighty people. They arrived at the palace late at night and her ladies-in-waiting prepared her to meet the kingly father. She was badly frightened at so much grandeur, but remembering her mother's teaching she walked proudly as the pure in heart should. The king gazed long and earnestly at her and said: "My son, you have chosen wisely, and brought to me a lovely daughter, as well as a wise queen to rule over your household. She will bring to you joy in your love and prosperity in your kingdom."

In a few days a frantic message came from the mother by the sea, asking if Rose went with them. She had not been seen since the wedding. No one ever saw her again and they mourned her as dead. She had so many lovers no one ever made any impression on her proud and heartless life, until the young Prince was borne pale and dripping into her mother's home. She gave to him her heart with all the ardor of her stormy young nature. She hoped until the last moment to win him from her sister. She went from the church to the dismal forest to mourn for her lost love. Her grief was so great she could not bear to have human sympathy. She wandered deep into the shadow and gloom of the awful forest. The old witch played sweet music and lured her on into the fatal darkness. She became completely lost and the old witch sympathized and asked the trouble.

When the story was told the old witch offered to help her to get revenge on the sister and lover who had so grievously hurt her. She began to teach her the art of witchcraft. Rose, with broken heart and ruined life, made her an apt pupil. She learned fast.

Soon she began to make trips to the palace. The servants were taken violently ill or the food spoiled on the table. Rose delighted at these small successes. One moonless night she stole a beautiful white cat from the palace and took it to the cave with her, where she lived. The demon cat belonging to the old witch grabbed it and ran off into the forest and for several hours dreadful howls came to their ears. When night came the cats returned and the beautiful palace cat was coal black with green eyes and ghost stripes around them.

The old witch told Rose she must drink of the bitter spring so that all human tenderness would be burned out of her heart. Only a sip and she could feel her heart freezing in her breast. The waters were so bitter she could hardly bear the taste but every sip made the next one easier to take. Her power grew and the cat waxed strong and fierce. One thing stood in her way; she could not drink the final draught of the bitter water to burn the last park of human tenderness that still smoldered in her proud heart.

Rose began to make regular trips to the palace. Years had gone by in the bitter training for her revenge. There were several beautiful children in the palace. One little dark-eyed beauty so like herself in the days when she dwelt in the cottage by the sea. Wild stories floated about the palace. A maid ran shrieking to her mistress. A long bony arm reached out a door and choked her. The stablemen came to report that a monstrous black beast came to the stable and the horses went wild. The Queen's favorite horse was found with his heart clawed out, and a pool of fiendish laughter floated through the air as the beloved palfrey breathed his last. On a gala night people told wild stories of a monster cat which made havoc of all that came his way and of a floating black figure with a ghastly face. The pair appeared before the Queen's carriage, the horses ran away and she was almost killed.

One Christmas night when the palace was filled with gaiety and mirth, Rose and the cat appeared in the banquet hall where a great banquet was in progress. The cat began to swell up and get bigger and bigger until he was as big as an elephant. Everyone was too frightened to speak. The cat gave a howl louder than anything and growled like thunder. Everybody began to run and scream. The children came out in the hall to see what was the matter. The old cat attacked the little dark princess; she fell down the stairs and was killed. The Queen was heartbroken.

The grief of her lost love and the death of the little princess was more than Rose could bear. She ran screaming from the palace with her cat at her heels. She ran for miles into the dismal forest, past the witch's den, on and on until she came to the dreaded black pool of forgetfulness. She plunged in, hoping to still the terrible pain that had haunted her all her life.

A party of young hunters heard the splash and despairing scream and rushed to the pool. They searched some time. One young man said he could see a lady's face in the water. It became plainer and they got their boat and fished her out. She was warm and still breathing and her beauty and youth had returned a hundred fold. The waters of the pool had washed out bitterness, sorrow, and all of the wickedness the old witch had taught her. Old age had vanished and she was young again in soul and body.

The young man who saw her deep in the waters of the pool took her tenderly to a wise woman whom he knew and she awakened her. The young man looked so like her lost love she was comforted for all she had lost. For days she thought them the same. After a whirlwind courtship, they were quietly married and started on a visit to the palace. The Queen was overcome by the look of her lost sister in the face of the young bride. She had mourned her loss for years. No one ever knew the truth of it. The mysterious bride was never known. Her past memories all were a closed book buried in the bottom of the black pool of forgetfulness. They did not tarry long at the palace but went to a far country, far from the dashing waves on the witch's cliff and the moaning of the black forest which made Rose strangely sad. The palace cat got smaller and smaller after his mistress jumped into the pool and a little wood rat ate him up.

The old witch was so mad at the loss of Rose that she beat her monster cat with her iron broom. He turned on her in self defense, killed her and ate her up. She was so mean she poisoned the old cat and he died in great agony, making the forest resound with his death yell. After one hundred years of wickedness and misery, peace was restored to the forest and it moaned no more. People could walk in the moonlight and lovers strolled under the trees that had been the terrible mystery forest.

lar in their attendance. It will make its contribution throughout life.

Our attendance for the entire school has not increased like it should have done. Possibly many have lost the habit during the summer slump. A pastor, even a new pastor, with the superintendent and a few faithful ones, cannot grow a great Sunday school. It will take about 350 in and around Tahoka to do for our school what ought to be done. Scarcely any parent would live away from the influence of the church and its transforming atmosphere. Since all of us are recipients of the ennobling, elevating, saving influence of our churches, we then ought to make a contribution to see that such work is worthily carried on. The best contribution that any one can make to the church and its Sunday school is Faithfulness. These bright stars that flare up occasionally soon burn out. Faithfulness is the one ingredient that has given the 20th century its glorious heritage of Christian freedom and hope. Victory always follows faithfulness; never vice versa. Let any life give itself to any cause, without stint or reservation, and such cause is carried forward and onward to fruition. "Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom." It is also the price of a wide-awake, growing Sunday school and soul-winning church.

There are a large number of people who have left their church affiliation in other communities. The census reveals more than forty such Baptists. There is a proportionate number for the other churches. No doubt some letters have been in the trunk so long that the mice have eaten off the fellowship. We're to reach this large number and enlist them in worship and service.

The pastor will preach Sunday morning on "Trust". Sunday evening he will preach on "Reasons and Excuses". We extend a cordial welcome to visitors and friends and those who do not have a church home. "Come this way and we will do thee good."

Lawrence Hays, Pastor.
