I know this card ain't fancy, And it shore ain't much to send. But it brings a Merry Christmas, From a pore but honest friend.

R. T. Stack, out at Muleshoe Courts, tore off a piece of wallpaper, wrote some verse on one side and sent it to us as a greeting. He indicated he was sort of hard up here at Christmas so we forgive him .

We like to send and get cards at Christmas. I can't see how General Taylor can get through Christmas without a single greeting card; he approves of Christmas all right, but wants to ceive no cards.

I giggled when I got a beautiful card from the Governor. His excellency, or a secretary had written "Hon." on the envelope in front of my name! Flattery will get you nowhere, Mr. Daniel; but my chest did go out considerably.

Martin Kriegel, ye blacksmith of Lariat, whittles in his spare time. In the office Christmas Eve to renew his subscription, gave me a pair of plyers he'd whittled. They're inches long; they'll work, but they're not heavy.

Idle Thoughts of An Idle Fellow:

Pat Bobo, the attorney insur ance magnate, usually quits smoking Christmas thru Easter. W. Q. Casey had a spell of flu, took advantage of the occasion to quit smoking. The light of the torch of liberwas dark. The great lady lookd down on the bay, her arm reld high.

She was a giant statue, a gift rom the people of France to the people of the United States. The amed French sculptor Bartholdi had labored for years to form his symbol of the welcome America offered to the people of the world who sought freedom and a new opportunity. And the task of transporting and erecting the statue in its permanent home was an immense achievement.

Now, many years later, the orch of liberty would blaze brightly. It was Pres. Widson who permanently turned on the lights 'n the famous statue, as thousunds of onlookers cheered. Here vas a bright beacon of hope which would always burn. This vas the Statue of Liberty!

Remember the year? The pace of life was slower in hose days. A man took his time about most things . . . including buying a car. He wanted to be sure he could get the right car at the right price.

The year was 1916. Being sure of getting the right leal is a smart idea today, too. And you'll get the best deal on he right car-when you buy a new 1958 Chevrolet from us We'll give you an old-fashioned nonest deal . . . with the most up-to-date terms:

The services of an approved cotton warehouse are essential to the government loan program.

This company has always cooperated with the government and the farmer in making the loan available to our customers.

The loan, when offered by the government has always been available to farmers in the area served by us.

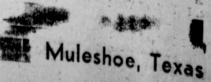

And, no customer has ever been forced to sell his cotton on a distress market because of the lack of the service of a qualified ware houseman.

Farm Bureau is offering the same service to cotton farmers in placing cotton in the Plains Cot-2,415.99 ton Cooperative Association this year as it did last year. An average of $3 increase per bale was 2,415 99 paid to farmers using this service for the 1956 crop. The increase comes through the medium of reclassification and the additional service of the micronaire test, provided by the association. The cotton is then grouped according to grade and staple and sold directly to millers on the basis of samples. This results in a better sale from the producer's angle, similar to his selling each grade of hi cotton directly to the cotton mills. The loan price, less $2.60 per bale is paid to the producer either at the time he brings his cards in, or within a week, depending upon his choice. The profits resulting from sales is distributed to patrons in August, following the cotton season. This is one way farmers sometimes are able to realize payment for the "plus" or "light" spot grades of cotton that are not recognized in the CCC loan system. In short, the association is a research and marketing service for producers, built and operated by the producers. The building the association is located in is on 302 Buffalo Lakes Road, just north of the Slaton highway east of 99 Lubbock. Visitors are welcome to visit and view operation of the
