JOE HILL JR. IS COMING SOON

Boy Scouts Sponsoring Lecture By Member Of Byrd Expedition To Antarctic

Joe Hill Jr. of Canyon, son of Pres. J. A. Hill of West Texas State Teachers College and youngest member of the Byrd expedition to the South Polar regions, will give a lecture in Tahoka on Wednesday night, June 19. He has already spoken in Canyon, Amarillo, and Pampa. He has a lecture schedule that will take him to all the state teachers colleges of Texas and to many of the cities and towns over the state.

He comes to Tahoka under the auspices of the local Boy Scout troop. He will have with him his much-prized dog, Nika, given to him by Admiral Byrd. This dog is one of the 140 huskies taken on the trip.

Joe will have many experiences to relate pertaining to the trip and their long stay in the Antarctic regions.

The place where the lecture will be given will be announced next week.

Geo. Mahon Asks Relief Extension

Congressman George Mahon has conferred with Government officials in Washington in an effort to secure an extension of the aid that has been rendered farmers of the drought area. He has been working with the Commodities Purchase Section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding a 30 day extension of the reduced freight rates on hay and feed being shipped into the counties that have suffered most from the drought. The agreement which made possible the reduced rates during the last few months expired May 31. The Commodities Purchase Section has included 131 Mid-Western counties in the proposed area to be benefited, 60 of which are in West Texas.

He has also made an effort through the Farm Credit Administration and the Texas Relief Commission to secure an increase in the amount of the loan allowed farmers for feed for livestock.

Mr. Mahon said: "Now that rains have come over West Texas, our farmers have an opportunity to bring themselves back to a basis of prosperity if they can only be carried over a few more months until a new crop can be raised. I believe that those steps which the government has taken to help the farmers in the drought area should not be withdrawn at this crucial time, but should be continued until returns from a new crop can be realized."

Europe Is Toured By Former Citizen

J. B. Nance brought to the News office this week a recent copy of The Ada (Oklahoma) Evening News containing an interview from Jim Keltner, who had just returned from a trip to Southern Europe, Northern Africa, and Southwestern Asia.

Mr. Keltner resided in Tahoka a year or two several years ago, being associated with C. B. Keltner in the hotel business here. He is a wholesale grocer in Ada.

Among the cities visited were Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, Algiers on the southern shore of the Mediterranean, Naples and Rome in Italy, Athens in Greece, Cairo in Egypt, and numerous places in Palestine, the Holy Land.

He described Lisbon as the most beautiful city he had ever seen, not a wooden building in the town. They saw the ruins of old Pompeii destroyed by an eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A. D. They saw the fine historic buildings in Rome and Athens, and in Egypt they saw the relics which were taken from the tomb of Tutankhamen. The sea of Galilee is described as a lovely sight, and the Mediterranean is even bluer than he expected, Keltner says. To describe all the interesting cities and historic places of interest which he visited and enjoyed would require a large volume.

Skid Derrick For New Test

Casing in the Wanete-Hart test oil well collapsed Wednesday night, and this hole must be abandoned. The derrick is to be skidded and a new well started. This will be done immediately.

Just how far from the old well the new one will be drilled had not been determined at an early hour this morning.

Rural Electrical Program Starts

A new rural electrification program to become effective immediately will benefit territory served by the Plains division of Texas Utilities company and New Mexico Utilities company, according to H. L. Allen, vice president and general manager of Texas Utilities company, and confirmed by A. J. Whitling, associated in the same capacity with the New Mexico company.

Mr. Allen said: "The rural line extension policy contains liberalized provisions wherein the customer if he uses service only for lighting and incidental purposes will benefit through the company's investment up to $300 per customer in the extension of facilities. Where the customer makes full use of the service for electric refrigeration, cooking or other major appliances or for farm power purposes providing an annual revenue of $60 or more, the company will invest up to $500 per customer in line facilities to provide the service. The domestic rate for rural service will be the same as that prevailing in the nearest town served."

A. B. Sanders Child Dies At Littlefield

Little Mary Louise Sanders, 7, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. A. B. Sanders, died at Littlefield Wednesday morning.

Nine days before, the child had been stricken with a form of sleeping sickness and had lain unconscious for six days preceding her death. Pneumonia developed Tuesday, with fatal consequences.

Professor Sanders is superintendent of the Littlefield school. During the years 1924-1925 and 1925-1926 he was principal of the high school in Tahoka, and he and Mrs. Sanders have many friends here, who deeply sympathize with them in their bereavement.

Sow Brings Record Litter Of Piggies

Marshall Stewart has a sow that is doing her part to stave off the depression and bring prosperity to her owner, according to A. R. McGonagill, who brought the story to the News.

This sow is thirteen months old and has a litter of 16 baby pigs. This is her first experience as a mother but she seems to be doing an excellent job so far. "The remarkable thing about it is that this is her first litter of pigs and her mother never had a litter of pigs in her life," Stewart declared in his enthusiasm over the sow's performance, according to Mr. McGonagill.

Mr. McGonagill thinks that this is close to a world's record. His recollection is that the world's record is less than 20 pigs to the litter. Any way Marshall Stewart ought to have plenty of ham and brown gravy down at his house next winter.

PROGRAM AT MIDWAY

The Midway H. D. Club is sponsoring a program to raise funds to send a delegate to A. & M. Short Course.

Time: 9 P. M., Friday, June 14. Place: Midway school house. Admission: 5 cents and 10 cents. Fun for old and young.

MEETING AT ZAZARENE

Rev. Buford Battin, the Abilene District N. Y. P. S. President will conduct week end services of the Nazarene church Friday and Saturday at 8:30 P. M. and Sunday at 11 A. M. and 8:30 P. M.

SALES PADS now in stock at The New office.

Mary Fenton In CIA Graduating Class

Denton, June 5.—Miss Mary Fenton of Tahoka received her bachelor of arts degree from Texas State College for Women (CIA) at the thirty-second annual commencement exercises held June 3. She majored in library science.

Mary C. Fenton

Activities of "senior week," combined with annual home-coming began with the production of "Romeo and Juliet," traditional Shakespearean play presented by the college Little Theater. A tea, banquet and organ recital were also featured among the activities. Dr. Paul Quillian, pastor of St. Luke's Methodist Church, Oklahoma City, Okla., delivered the baccalaureate sermon.

Following a plan begun for the first time last year, President L. H. Hubbard gave the commencement address. Miss Fenton, who has been a prominent student in campus activities, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Fenton.

Oil Reported In Garza County Well

The showing of oil in Grisham-Hunter Corporation and M. L. Richards wildcat test in Garza County is attracting renewed attention since the prospect headed 40 barrels of oil from two streaks of lime showing oil. Operators will inject acid Friday and probably will be ready for a production test early next week.

The wildcat test is credited with showing oil from lime at 2,880 to 2,900 and from 2,916 to 2,938 feet.

Grisham-Hunter and Richards No. 1 Sullivan is 300 feet south and east from the northwest corner of S. E. Harper survey, block H.

Observers visiting the wildcat test estimate the showing in its present form to be capable of 10 to 20 barrels per day.

J. W. Wilson Infant Died Last Sunday

An infant of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wilson, who reside in the Craft apartment, born Sunday morning, died late in the afternoon. Funeral services were conducted at the home Monday by Rev. H. C. Smith of the Methodist Church. Burial was in the Tahoka Cemetery under the direction of Harris & Applewhite, funeral directors.

Mr. Wilson is a driller at the Wanete-Hart test oil well being drilled on the T-Bar southwest of town.

DALE COMING HOME

A letter received this morning from Rev. Geo. A. Dale stated that he would arrive home Saturday night and would be in his pulpit here at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. He reports a most successful revival at Waskom.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Smith returned Saturday night from an extended trip through New Mexico and Southern Colorado. They greatly enjoyed the magnificent scenery and say they had a wonderful trip. They visited Mr. and Mrs. B. B. West at Colorado Springs and left that city on the day just preceding the flood that swept away so much property and took several lives. We have learned that the water got four feet deep in Mr. West's service station and did a lot of damage.

Miss Mary Seroyer returned Monday from a visit of several weeks with relatives and friends in Cleburne. She was accompanied by Tahoka by Miss Faye Pitts, who formerly taught here and who was on her way to Canyon to attend the summer term of the W. T. S. T. College.

A little daughter, Dorothy Ann, was born to Dr. and Mrs. K. R. Durham Wednesday morning. The little daughter weighed 8½ pounds. Both mother and babe doing well.

D. L. Nicholson is in Plainview today attending a meeting of the Plains Cooperative produce dealers.

Brownfield Legion Visits Local Post

About 25 or 30 members of the Brownfield Post of the American Legion visited the Marion G. Bradley Post here on last Thursday night and gave some degree work.

A sandwich supper was served and a most pleasant occasion it was.

New Boy Scout Troop Is Active

After a preliminary meeting Friday, May 22, the Boy Scouts of Tahoka met again May 30 and began registration of the troop. Patrol leaders including Robert Maddox (Cat Patrol), David Weathers (Beaver Patrol), and Vernon Smith (Bob White Patrol) were elected by the scouts attending. Drill on Tenderfoot tests, allegiance to the flag, games and leaders' meeting filled the two hour program.

Those scouts that have passed a part of the required tests in the last two weeks are Wade Howell, David Weathers, Neil Walker, Keith Connolly, Finis Connolly, Vernon Smith, James Foster, Carra Reese, Charles Heathman and C. W. Conway. Others are preparing for their tests.

W. E. (Happy) Smith, L. F. Frazier and W. E. Heathman compose the local committee of the troop for the coming year. The P. T. A. is the sponsoring institution in Tahoka. J. D. Donaldson Jr. is the Scoutmaster. The Scouters and Scouts will certainly appreciate the whole-hearted cooperation of the people of Tahoka in the attempt to make a success of this citizen-building organization.

Among the projects for the summer include the sponsorship of the appearance of Joe Hill Jr., Byrd Antarctica lecturer, who is to speak here Wednesday, June 19. This is an opportunity for you to enjoy an instructive evening as well as to promote scouting in Tahoka.

Cows Killed By Lightning Stroke

Sam Holland, who lives three miles southeast of Tahoka, reports that lightning killed the only two milch cows he had Tuesday afternoon.

He and Mrs. Holland were standing in their door looking at the cows and talking about them when a bolt of lightning flashed from the heavens and struck the animals dead.

There was not much rain and no hail at his place and his crops were not damaged.

1935 AGRICULTURE CENSUS SHOWS INCREASE IN FARMS

Nearly 10 per cent increase in the number of farms in the United States during the last five years is indicated by preliminary reports from the 1935 Census of Agriculture for approximately one-fourth of all counties in the country. When the count is complete the fact probably will appear that the increase is due to a larger number of jobless persons, or part-time workers, in cities who are trying to take up the slack on a 5 or 10-acre tract within a short distance of their jobs. There has been a demand for these little farms for 2 or three years. Some of the experiences have been successful, others have failed, depending upon the arm and brain power of the experimenters.

KELTNER HOTEL REPAIRED

The Temple Trust Company the past week has placed a new roof on the Keltner Hotel, although the title to the property is still in litigation, we understand.

Pet Hegi left Friday on his summer vacation. He expects to be gone about a month. We have a deep secret that we could tell about Pete but wouldn't do it for the world. We understand, however, that when he comes back to Tahoka he probably will not come alone. He expects to spend most of his vacation at Canyon, in Kansas, and at Petersburg with relatives.

The E. R. Kemp family of the Gariyn community were here Wednesday visiting while Mr. Kemp was purchasing some farm implements.

Hail Storm Covers Big Area In County

Plainview Host To Legion Meet

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Dye and Mr. and Mrs. Skip Taylor attended the American Legion convention of the 19th congressional district which was in session in Plainview Saturday and Sunday. The Legion Auxiliary was also in session.

There was a registered attendance of 317. The Tahoka people say that a most interesting program was rendered and some important business transacted.

Among others, a resolution was adopted advocating location of new veteran hospital in the 19th congressional district. Another resolution indorsed the action of the Lockney Agricultural and Development Association and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in making request for a water survey on the Plains and Government set-up to aid in financing irrigation wells. Congressman Wright Patman was thanked for his efforts to aid ex-service men within recent months.

The place of the next meeting was not selected.

Wilburn Lamb, 11, Of Wilson, Dies

Wilburn Lamb, 11-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lamb of Wilson, died of blood-poison Tuesday afternoon in a Lubbock sanitarium. No further information as to the death is available.

Burial was in the Wilson cemetery Wednesday.

CCC Workers Come From Relief Rolls

County Administrator B. P. Maddox has received a communication from Neal E. Guy, CCC Enrollment Supervisor, of the Texas Relief Commission, advising that hereafter only those boys whose families are on the relief rolls will be selected for CCC work.

"Civilian Conservation Corps selections are limited to applicants who can make a proper allotment to dependents," the statement says. "It has been ordered that selectees for enrollment beginning June 15, 1935, must in every case represent families on the public relief rolls."

"The above quotation is specific and it will be useless for you to request exceptions as our actions must be guided by this rule."

"An assigned quota larger than the number of available applicants does not mean, in any instance, that you are authorized to select non-relief applicants. There will be no non-relief applicants in any county."

STRICKLAND AT A. & M.

Prof. and Mrs. J. D. Strickland left last week for College Station, where Mr. Strickland will spend six weeks in the summer session of the A. & M. College.

Mr. Strickland is teacher of vocational agriculture in the high school here.

BUILDING NEW HOME

C. E. Woodworth is building a new home in the west part of town three blocks east of the high school. It will be a five-room structure with stucco finish. Work was begun Monday morning.

Henry Burkhalter, who taught at Gruver the past year, and Lowell A. Dalton of Lubbock were here the first of the week representing the B. M. H. Engineering Co. Henry was reared near Tahoka and is a graduate of the Tahoka High School. Later he graduated in the Engineering Department of the Texas Technological College.

Earl Grider returned Saturday night from a few weeks stay at Frederick and Lawton, Oklahoma. He reports terrific rains, heavy hail, and overflowing streams in that part of our neighboring state but says the wheat and alfalfa crops are excellent.

MANY FARMERS WILL RE-PLANT

Hail District Reaches From New Home To O'Donnell; Is Several Miles Wide

A terrific rain and hail storm swept a large section of Lynn county Tuesday afternoon, leaving devastation in its wake.

A strip of country several miles wide and reaching from New Home in the northwest portion of the county to O'Donnell on the south line was devastated. In the vicinity of New Home and throughout the Petty community, practically all crops were destroyed. There were no crops in the T-Bar pasture to be damaged but the foliage was beaten from the trees and some damage was done to live stock.

Striking south of the Tahoka-Brownfield highway, crops on the Edwards farms and other farms in that vicinity were wiped out. In the T-Bar community, in the Midway community, and in the territory surrounding O'Donnell, crops were utterly destroyed, while fearful damage was done to business houses and residences in the town of O'Donnell itself.

In much of the hail-stricken district, the storm was the worst for years. Hailstones as large as hen eggs and some possibly larger broke through roofs of houses and car tops, shattered the windshields of cars, smashed countless numbers of window panes, killed chickens and turkeys and terribly beat and bruised cows and horses. The heavy rain that followed the hail washed it into lakes, ditches, and barrow pits, leaving drifts two or three feet deep in places, it is said.

As much as two and three inches of rain is reported in some places. There was no hail in Tahoka and the rainfall here was only 31 of an inch. It extended only a few miles east of town, and none of the crops in the east half of the county were damaged.

Farmers in the stricken areas will begin re-planting as soon as they can get into their fields.

Rules Not Perfected For Work Program

Judge B. P. Maddox, county administrator, this week received a communication from J. B. Keely, chief engineer of the Texas Relief Commission warning against the attempt to give any information or to explain general policies respecting the new work program.

The communication says in part: "The purpose of this communication is to advise with you insofar as possible with reference to the new work program. It seems, in all probability, that all work activities will be carried on under the new Work Progress Administration and will be coordinated with other governmental agencies."

"While no definite instructions have been given with reference to submission of new work projects, it would seem desirable that all county administrators develop worthwhile projects in cooperation with the commissioners court, municipalities, and other governmental agencies to be inaugurated under the new program."

"You are to refrain from attempting to give any information or try to explain general policies and rules and regulations governing the new work program, for the reason that such rules and regulations, information, and policies have not yet been made known to this office."

"You are merely to make known to the officials of the political subdivisions and local governmental units that the Work Division of the Texas Relief Commission will receive applications, in the form of a brief, for proposed work projects and pass them through the proper channels for consideration."

John R. Willis of Dallas, special agent of the Southwestern Life Insurance Co., was here Friday on business for the company and was the guest of Mrs. Gladys M. Stokes, the local representative.

CURRENT EVENTS PASS IN REVIEW

SUPREME COURT INVALIDATES NRA AND FRAZIER-LEMKE FARM MORTGAGE ACT.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

THREE unanimous decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States shook the New Deal to its very foundations.

Next in importance was the decision read by Justice Brandeis, holding unconstitutional the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act.

IN the May survey published by the American Federation of Labor Industry is charged with withholding 4,000,000 jobs in a "strike" against New Deal legislative proposals.

THE question of the constitutionality of the Wagner labor disputes bill, passed by the senate, was raised by the NRA decision.

FRANK C. WALKER'S present job—as head of the division of allotments and information in connection with the work-relief program is not so important as had been expected.

SECRETARY HULL signed a reciprocal tariff bargain with Sweden, the fifth to be completed under his program which he has been promoting for about a year.

LAWSON LITTLE, the brawny young Californian, won the British amateur golf championship for the second consecutive year.

There has been a lot of talk about Mr. Farley's alleged ambition to be governor of New York.

cratic candidate for governor in 1934. I challenge him to run on his record.

ONLY nine states of the Central West will send delegates to the "Grass Roots" convention of the Republican party which opens June 10 in Springfield, Ill.

The keynote address, according to reports, will take inventory of American affairs under the Roosevelt New Deal and indicate the trend of the party in opposition.

On the other hand, President Green of the federation has been openly threatening a general strike of organized labor if the measures mentioned above are not enacted.

SETTING a new precedent, President Roosevelt "acted as his own messenger" and personally returned to Speaker Byrne the Patman bonus measure with his disapproval.

THE veteran who is disabled owes his condition to the war. The healthy veteran who is unemployed owes his troubles to the depression.

Mr. Roosevelt's stern warning against the dangers of inflation inherent in the measure was listened to in silence, though there was mild applause at other times.

For some, the big news is that Little, the San Francisco golfer, has defeated Doctor Tweedell, the British challenger.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Goodby, NRA Wall Street's Dormouse Good Wages, Short Hours Lottery Swindles

The Supreme Court unanimously declares NRA unconstitutional.

High judges, whose decision nobody can veto, short of a constitutional amendment, say congress must do its work and cannot abdicate in favor of the Chief Executive.

The most important decision in many years, this probably makes further argument about extension of NRA unnecessary.

Alice's puzzled Dormouse, at the Mad Hatter's tea party, could not understand his watch, that would not keep time, although the Dormouse did everything.

It is announced, but not by Mr. Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, that a great strike will be called in protest against the Supreme Court's NRA decision.

At first, stock broker gentlemen, whose "Kaaba stone" is the stock ticker, began a weird dance of joy when they heard that NRA was dead, and pushed up stock prices.

Some union men know that wages, hours and other conditions improved in the old way are more durable than increased pay based on political fiat.

It is necessary for some one to provide as well as for some one to take it.

Peddlers of tickets in the Havana lottery send out "come-on" letters, trying to sell tickets to foolish Americans.

What Arthur Brisbane has said, and now repeats, is that through foreign lottery schemes Americans are swindled out of large sums.

Postmaster Farley's plan to hasten air mails allows a crowd of 10,000 to see a whirling autogiro drop down on the roof and deliver mail, another autogiro coming to get mail bags and carry them away.

Mr. Farley's plan is to have the autogiro fly between outlying flying fields, where high-power, fast planes land, and carry mail bags to the roofs of city post-offices, saving time lost in slow street travel.

One branch of the Standard Oil company, the New Jersey branch, managed by Mr. Teagle, offers 6,000 of a bonus of 5 per cent added to their pay envelopes to meet the higher cost of living.

What would natives have thought had this happened in earlier days, when everybody believed that hell, the devil and all his wickedness were just beneath our feet and heaven just over our heads?

Postmaster General Farley thinks of printing on all postage stamps, Sursum Corda, which means "Lift up your hearts."

"Car loadings," says the postmaster general, "are up," incomes reported by our taxpayers "are up," more people are buying automobiles than before.

For some, the big news is that Little, the San Francisco golfer, has defeated Doctor Tweedell, the British challenger.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—President Roosevelt announced a year ago that the Tennessee Valley—authorities and the experiment of government production of electric power on a huge scale was to serve as a yardstick on electric rates charged by private power companies.

Lately, J. R. McCarl, comptroller general of the United States, has had his bookkeeping sleuths at work on the records of the Tennessee Valley corporation. Mr. McCarl was not concerned about the yardstick for power rates nor was he interested in experiments designed to prove the value of government ownership in the power field.

It happened that Mr. McCarl's report on the audit of TVA affairs was made public coincidentally with a movement by the TVA directors for new legislation—amendments to their basic law which would give them additional authority.

For instance, Mr. McCarl showed in his report that the federal government had expended a total of $132,792,080 in development of the power facilities, equipment and necessary appurtenances.

Disclosures of this fact brought many charges in the course of the committee hearing and led to the conclusion by several house members that no electric rate based upon 38 per cent of the cost of the production facilities could be considered honest.

Mr. McCarl told the committee also that he had found various haphazard and "trick" methods of bookkeeping and necessary "Bookkeeping" that he had found it necessary to disallow expenditures of something over two million dollars which he said were illegal.

"Despite the apparently excessive depreciated value at which the Muswe Shoals property was taken up on the books, the authority is not using the valuation basis for depreciation but instead is basing depreciation on the earnings from the sale of power by charging 10 per cent of the gross revenue to operations as depreciation and accumulating the amount of such charges as a reserve for depreciation.

"Assuming a very conservative rate of valuation consumption for example, 2 per cent, the amount of depreciation, based upon the value at which the properties in question were capitalized by the authority, would be approximately $1,000,000 per annum.

"A larger revenue will proportionately increase the reserve for depreciation at the present 10 per cent method of amortization, but to accumulate a reserve on the 10 per cent plan equivalent to the amount that would be charged to depreciation on a valuation basis at 2 per cent, the gross revenues would have to be more than ten times the present amount or about $10,000,000 per annum.

"There is very little basis for assuming that revenues will ever reach such a figure."

The comptroller's report touched on many other phases of TVA affairs which he found subject to criticism and it made mention of a factor that, it seems to me, ought to be of vital importance to communities throughout the country.

It is to be remembered that government agencies, federal, national, state or local, pay no taxes into the treasury of its jurisdiction. Consequently, the government which fosters a municipal owned power plant simply must forget, for taxation purposes, that such property exists within its domain.

Likewise, such a plant is not required to consider interests on the investment in the shape of dividends to the stockholders who, in turn, pay taxes on their income.

Doctor Morgan and other directors of the TVA were subjected to questioning of a type about as severe as any witnesses before a house committee in recent months.

There appeared just no way at all in which friendly members of the house committee could justify the action of the TVA board in its attempts to block private power development.

It was shown in the course of the hearing that the TVA had gone far away from its base of operations to buy two small parcels of land—one not much larger than a city block and the other only a few acres in extent.

Under questioning, TVA directors admitted this land lay in the middle of a proposed reservoir planned by a private power corporation. In acquiring the parcels of land the TVA made it impossible for the private interests to proceed with their power development because the land in question would have been in the middle of the reservoir 300 feet under water.

The TVA probably will win and obtain the amendments its board of directors desire. There are public ownership advocates in sufficient strength to carry out the President's idea in going ahead with the TVA development. It is made to appear, nevertheless, that as a result of the disclosures before the house committee, TVA may not henceforth proceed in a manner quite so arrogant.

Politics is politics and apparently politicians will play the game always. If better proof be needed, it seems to me the demonstration over immediate payment of the cash bonus to war veterans will suffice.

An organized minority—the World War veterans—were very close to success in forcing congress to appropriate $2,500,000,000 and pay it over to them. They failed because President Roosevelt—like three Presidents before him—had to view the problem from the standpoint of the country's welfare and not the welfare of this minority.

Credit is due the President for the stand he took just as credit was due Presidents Hoover, Coolidge and Harding. He will be criticized and attacked by this local minority just as the others were criticized and attacked. While a veto message is regarded by many as not being as strong as it might have been, nevertheless Mr. Roosevelt was firm and his firmness gave courage to enough senators to avoid the debacle of additional waste.

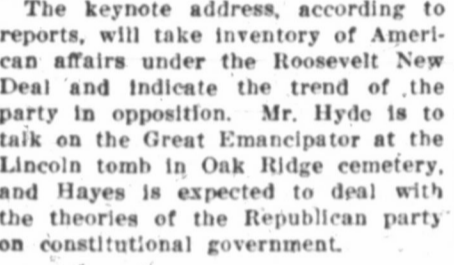

I am informed that the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and various and sundry other organizations of former soldiers, sailors and marines are prepared for a bitter fight next year against those representatives and senators who dared to oppose cash payment of the bonus now when it is not due until 1945.

It knows its power and it does not hesitate to characterize opponents of the cash bonus as traitors. The lobbyists are certain to go into every state and congressional district next summer and seek to defeat those who dared to follow their own conscience and vote against this raid on the treasury.

As a result of the vote on the bonus and the subsequent Presidential veto some keen political observers have begun to calculate in their own minds what the view of the country is. It was pointed out, for example, that a maximum of four million would be entitled to a bonus. At the same time attention was called to the fact that new voters are arriving at the age of franchise at the rate of approximately two million since the end of the World War.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, which he names "Penelope," in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin retires from business, and Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt is a rising young psychiatrist. He is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Beiden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "maddie nose" was in part responsible.

CHAPTER II—Continued

"Lanny!" Stephen reproved her. Then to Dan McNamara: "Do you mean to tell me you left her out there unguarded? How would you explain her escape—if she had chosen to disappear?"

"I don't think she'd duck, Doc. But even if she tried it, I got a plain clothes man on guard."

"Please bring the patient in, Lanny," Stephen pleaded. "And then you might—" he glanced eloquently at their empty glasses. Lanny glared at him, so he smiled—and she ceased to glare. But she went on mumbering.

Dan McNamara shook his head sagely. "Nothing wrong with that woman's thinking apparatus," he informed Stephen.

And then Lanny ushered the new patient in. She paused just inside the door, swept the room with a slow glance and permitted her gaze to come to rest on Stephen Burt, who rose and bowed to her. Instantly the frozen hostility in her glance faded and she smiled. "Reminds me of a gargoyle," Stephen reflected.

"Meet my friend, Dr. Stephen Burt. Nance," Dan McNamara introduced her shyly. "Doc, this is Nance Beiden, alias Dorothy Case, alias Fay Barham, alias Elizabeth Vernon."

Stephen said politely that he was delighted to make her acquaintance, and Nance replied with acrid directness. "Why? Whereat Stephen Burt laughed and set a chair for her. Nance plumped herself down in it with a weary sigh, jerked off her jaunty hat and threw it on Stephen's desk. "All right, Steve. Shoot! What's the idea of the big convention? Another fishing expedition?"

"Now, Nance," Dan McNamara soothed her, "you cut that out: You're not talking to Doc Blithen. Doc Burt's a gentleman."

Nance remembered her manners. "My error," she apologized.

From the doorway leading into the waiting room, Lanny gazed upon the girl with frank disapproval. Over Nance's shoulder she caught Stephen's eye and shook her head sorrowfully.

"The old girl's shocked!" Nance laughed, softly without looking around, while Lanny disappeared.

"How do you know, Miss Beiden?" Stephen inquired.

"Mirror," and Nance Beiden pointed. "Close your eyes," Stephen commanded, "and describe this room to me."

"All right. There are two empty highball glasses on the telephone stand back of you." She sniffed. "Bourbon. The stand's three feet high and the telephone book is in the compartment under the top of the stand. The telephone is one of those combination receiver-mouthpiece things like they use in English stage scenes, and the telephone cord is white. The desk is solid walnut, I think, flat-topped and clean. You have a bronze combination inkwell, pen-rack, and pin-tray. There is a blue crayon pencil and a red crayon pencil and a black, gold-banded fountain pen on the pen rack. The fountain pen has green ink in it. I know because on the calendar pad on the desk, which is opened at November 23—although this is the 24th—you've written something with the pen very recently. You're sitting in a walnut swivel chair, brown leather upholstered, and a high back up to your shoulder tops. The Chief's chair is an over-stuffed rocker, and if you give him another drink he'll fall asleep in it. On the wall back of you, there is a framed diploma in Latin, issued to Stephen John Burt by Leland Stanford Junior University Medical school, and about four feet from it is the Oath of Hippocrates in a black frame, like the diploma. The print is old English and done in black and red. Across the room, in back of the chief, is a walnut bookcase, built in detachable tiers, and there's a white washstand in the corner close by. The rug is beige colored and Chinese, and on the wall in back of me, where you can look at it readily, is a framed photograph of your father. It must be a photograph of your father because he looks a great deal like you. In back of me a door leads into the old lady's den and—"

Just as Nance opened her mouth, a small mirror, held it up and opened her eyes an instant—"yes, I thought so. That door is ajar and the old lady is listening to every word I say."

"Now, I'll describe you. You're a darling. You're tall and you haven't started to grow a tummy yet. You're about thirty-two or three years old, your hair is dark brown and your eyes dark blue, and you have nice teeth, and they show when you smile. You have nice hands and your nails were manicured this morning, but you have a dirty spot on the finger-nail of your right index finger—no, it isn't dirt. It's iodine. Pardon! My error. Do I win first prize, Doc?"

"In a walk, Miss Beiden. You are absolutely the most amazing person I have ever examined. You are one in a million—one of those rare persons who not only see everything at a glance but take a mental photograph of it. And remember it. Yes, you win a prize."

"I'll have a highball with you boys," said Miss Beiden comely.

"You'll not, you little—this and that," Lanny countered from behind the door. "The very idea!"

"Then the party breaks up here and now," Miss Beiden informed Stephen.

"Lanny," Stephen called. "I hope you aren't forgetting the laws of hospitality."

"Come on, kid," the girl entreated Lanny. "Buy me one and I'll get the chief to do something nice for you in return."

"What influence has the likes of you with the chief of police?" Lanny was emerging with two highballs.

"Do you drive a car, Miss Beiden?" Nance Beiden whistled sharply to Dan McNamara.

"Get out your card, Dan. Here's the fountain pen. Write as I dictate. Ready? To all traffic officers: The bearer, Miss Rebecca Lanning, has the freedom of the city. She has my authority to park where she pleases and she shall not be tagged. She cannot be arrested for anything except murder and even then she must not ride in the wagon. Signed: Dan McNamara, Chief of Police."

Dan McNamara obeyed, Nance Beiden viced the card, blotted it and handed it to Lanny. "Now, you tell 'em all who's kind to you, Rebecca. I'm some kid, am I not? You bet I'm some kid. Dan knows it and your boss things about criminal-psychology and just why it would be frightful social injustice to put this girl in San Quentin."

She turned to Nance Beiden, drew the girl's face down on her breast and patted the rouged cheek. "See you tomorrow, dearie," she promised. "Be a good girl now and be nice to Dan McNamara, because he's one of the best friends you'll ever have."

"Kiss me again, please," Nance whispered. And when Lanny had complied, the girl came around the desk to Stephen Burt. "I want you to kiss me, too," she said. "You're sweet—thank you a lot."

When Dan McNamara and his prisoner had departed, Lanny and Stephen looked at each other throughout a long silence, which Lanny was first to break. "That girl's clean, Stevie. Not a touch of the slattern about her. She could pass the Binet intelligence test so fast he'd meet it on her way back. And she isn't tough at all. She's only trying to be, and she finds it uphill work."

"Defense mechanism largely," he said. "Better go home, Lanny. Get a good night's sleep and try to forget what a sad world we live in."

"It'd be a d-d sight sadder if you didn't live in it," she snapped.

Under stress of emotion, Lanny, as she grew older, occasionally indulged herself in a little mild profanity. Stephen didn't mind. He knew she was disillusioned, middle-aged in point of years, but old with the wisdom and sadness of the world, as only a doctor or a trained nurse can be; that she had earned her privileges. As a surgical nurse she had been sworn at by doctors whose nerves grew taut as piano wires, during a dangerous operation, and she had learned to give as good as she received—wherefore the men of her world respected her and liked her, for her courage and efficiency.

"See to it that you're on hand in court tomorrow morning, Stevie, with a sweet line of scientific argument to bewilder that judge and the district attorney," she charged a little later. "Good night, my dear boy."

Dear old Lanny! Once more had occurred to her the miracle of love. A stranger—a bit of fotsam and jetsam on the muddy sea of life—had looked behind her brusque, businesslike, beligerent exterior and found the great warm heart that yearned so for affection and understanding. Hers was a strange nature. She was so strong, and so possessed of the urge to share her strength with those she loved, particularly if they evinced any affection for her, that she was singularly democratic in her choice of beneficiary. Nance Beiden, like Stephen Burt, had appealed to her thwarted mother love, and nothing that the girl had been, nothing she might ever be, would alter Lanny's opinion, formed on an instant's notice, that the girl was an angel. A dark angel, perchance, and like Lucifer, fallen from high place, but—an angel nevertheless.

The presence of Chief of Police Daniel McNamara cleared a lane through the corridor of the Hall of Justice, in which the police courts of San Francisco are located.

He paused before a courtroom door. "Nance is in there," he told Stephen. "I'll not go in with you, I'd have a week of rotten publicity in all the papers if I appeared to have any special interest in the case. Her lawyer's name is Tyrrell and he'll call you as an expert witness."

knows it and if, by now, you don't know it, I hope Steve fires you."

"You are some kid. I admit it. Thank you, dear. You shall have a highball."

"Have one yourself," Nance suggested grandly. "Let's all be sociable, eh, Steve?"

"Miss Beiden—" Steve began.

"Call me Nance," the strange young creature interrupted. "Why all the formality?"

"Have you any objection, Nance, to telling me your real name?"

"None at all. I don't know my real name."

"Who were your parents?"

"I don't know."

"Why did you steal the silk stockings?"

Nance threw back her head and laughed. "Why you silly, I had runs in every pair I owned."

"Poor dear!" Lanny was speaking. Her hand strayed over the girl's jet black, shiny bob; her fingers sought a shell-like ear and tugged it gently.

Nance looked up at the nurse, surprised and friendliness shining in her eyes.

"Why, you're sweet, aren't you? Why, you darling!" And she lifted her face for Lanny to kiss. Lanny kissed her. Trust Lanny for that.

"It's too late to go further tonight, Dan," Lanny said. "Bring her in at nine tomorrow morning."

"Can't, Lanny." With a bound the excellent McNamara had landed beside Lanny in the garden of friendship, as one might say. "She's due in the police court at nine o'clock for sentence. Right away she'll be waited over to the Superior court to the judge that gave her a suspended sentence two years ago. She hasn't made good, so he'll sign the commitment papers, and it'll be some time before we see our Nancy again."

"Has she an attorney?"

"The public defender, that's all." Lanny looked at Stephen. Stephen looked at Lanny. Both nodded.

"Get the best in town, Dan," Lanny urged the chief. "Doctor Burt will appear in court and plead for a stay of sentence. We'll tell that judge a few things about criminal-psychology and just why it would be frightful social injustice to put this girl in San Quentin."

She turned to Nance Beiden, drew the girl's face down on her breast and patted the rouged cheek. "See you tomorrow, dearie," she promised. "Be a good girl now and be nice to Dan McNamara, because he's one of the best friends you'll ever have."

A Split Second Later He Was Sprawling on the Deck.

Slippery Eels

By James J. Montague

THE whistle had blown, the gong had sounded. From his post by the gang plank a sailor man had repeatedly cried "All ashore that's going ashore," and turned away to other duties. The captain and his subordinates were on the bridge, and the engineer himself presumably stood by the throttle, for this was a small liner and required no gold braid on the engine room or costly flotilla of tug boats to swing her out into the stream. Deep within the belly of the craft sounded a gong, and on deck one felt a slight tremor. Obviously we were on our way.

Looking toward the shore I observed a human figure approaching, and gestulating as it approached. Its occupant wasted no breath in sound, but applied himself only to the serious and obviously important business of joining our vessel before it was everlastingly too late. He ran low to the ground, only glancing up now and then to note how wide a gap the ship had opened between her and himself. There was perhaps four or five feet to clear when he set his right foot on the string piece. While the passengers stood gasping, the runner slightly coiled his figure, then opened it swiftly out and took off. A split second later he was sprawling on the deck, engaged in a violent effort to regain the breath that had been knocked out of him by his contact with the deck.

Presently he succeeded in this highly important undertaking, and looked up, at first in trepidation at the bridge, afterward curiously at those of us who stood near his alighting place. His eye met mine. After a second look to make sure he said, slowly and painfully:

"Always late, ain't it?"

"But this time you at least managed to arrive," I said, while the spectators, having been deprived of the spectacle of a man plunging into the uttermost depths of the harbor had begun to walk slowly away.

"Yep," said the informal visitor. "I'm improvin'."

He was indeed, for he was a regular member of the crew, and that meant a job at least as long as it required the ship to journey from New York to Savannah. And for this young man that was considerable.

The next day I found him engaged in polishing the brass work and other shining metal trimmings on the boat deck. Anxious to learn where and how he had occupied himself since we last had foregathered on another ship and in another port, I inquired of him if it would be too volitive of ship's discipline if he dropped in on me in my room during his watch below. He said that it could be managed, and that night he arrived, bearing in a newspaper under his arm a package which it would be permissible to open after we passed the ten mile limit.

Having nothing of any import to tell about himself, I asked him to pick up his story from the time I had last seen him, almost on the other side of the world.

I listed my questions in the order of their importance.

"What had become of the whale farming enterprise?"

"Had he got any steamship magnate to listen to his scheme to have a trout pool, and a thicket for grouse shooting on a great liner?"

"Had he perfected his five lap to the mile track so that small motor cars could be raced on ship board during a voyage?"

"And had he pursued any further his researches into the possible usefulness of electric eels?"

"All of 'em was fops but the eel idea," he said. "And that would of been all right if I'd of had sense enough to get out in time. An' you can't hang that on me very hard, for look at all them birds in the stock market who thought a good thing was goin' to last forever. Where are they now?"

"But what about the eels?" I insisted.

"Well, I was wrong about one thing, an' that was that you could get electricity out of electric eels. You can't get away from the fact that the juice is in 'em, but gittin' it out an' makin' it of commercial use was the trouble."

"About five years ago when I was in the tropics I stepped off the freighter I was servin' on without speakin' to the skipper about it, an'

got some boys ashore to show me what these here eels was doin' their stuff. After givin' 'em for three weeks I had enough to start, an' build me a pond so I could get them at work. But I ain't no engineer, an' though I tried every way I could think of to get the juice out of them wrigling fish an' into a storage battery, it wasn't no good."

"But I ain't no quitter. What does a promoter do when a scheme blows up on him? I says to myself, 'He onloads it onto somebody else' I answers back. An' that was what I started out to do. I got a feller who runs a newspaper down in one of them island towns to do my printin' for me, an' we sent out circulars about our eel farm, an' how before very long all the machinery in them parts would be run by eel power, an' when a eel give out, which he seldom does, you could get enough meat off of him to pay all the overhead."

"By an' by I got a few bites from people who lived on some of the big islands, but most of 'em wanted to know how they was to tell if these was real electric eels I had to sell, or just common eels without no kick into 'em. So I wrote 'em all that if they would get somebody on my island that they knew an' trusted to see a demonstration I'd prove that my eels was the real McCoy an' would supply power as advertised. By that time it struck me it might be a good plan to find out something myself about them fish before I took a chance on a public exhibition."

"Well, I got some ship engineers, an' other educated fellers to come an' see the rest, an' to bring compasses along which would point to any place, an' so prove eels was electrical. An' blast me if any eel made the least impression on any compass you could rig—no't even on a magnetized needle floatin' on a crock in a basin of water."

"Of course I didn't want to be stuck with a lot of useless eels on my hands, so I did what anybody else would of done in my place. I advertised in newspapers in countries thousands of miles away—countries where they didn't have no electric power, but needed it bad. An' by an' by I began to get letters of inquiry, and not only that but letters with money in 'em. I kept up supplyin' 'em with information about our plant an' how we was improvin' the breed of eels, an' how before five years you could send eels all over the world to run little local electrical machinery, an' the money come in so fast that I siggered I had my fortune all made."

"An' then one day a quiet little feller comes along an' asks to see the eels work. I tried to stall him off, but he insisted, so I took a chance an' let him come to the plant. He then looked at my stock once, an' then says: 'What country does this island belong to?'

"Well, I told him. 'What else could I do? An' the next week a cablegram come to the main office, an' a bunch of local cops come out an' looked me over an' give me two days to get out of the place an' take my eels with me. What do you think of that?'

"Here I was doin' what many a supposed big business man has done, an' I got kicked practically off the ocean for it, an' had to go back to work as a deck hand. It ain't right, I tell you. No wonder there's so many Reds an' Soviets and things growin' up all around us."

Pipe Surely Should Be Broken in by This Time

Hallia Hatem kills of Shawnee, Ohio, is smoking a pipe that dates back to 1850, when it was purchased by Aho Hatem, at Hamat in Persia. He handed it down to Nader Hatem in 1700 and it went in turn to Aca Hatem in 1740; Soma Hatem in 1870, on to Allas Hatem in 1890, and to Hallia Hatem Ellis in 1905, says the Detroit News.

Without much fear of contradiction save from the occasional archeologist who dares puff a clay pipe made by the mound-builders, Ellis may say when he sits down to draw the smoke through six feet of pipe stem that he is inhaling from the oldest pipe in active service in these United States.

Mounted on a glass bowl and standing 80 inches high, this ancient pipe is inlaid with ivory. When in operation, the glass bowl is filled with water, and the smoke is inhaled through the water from the tobacco bowl on top of the glass receptacle. The tobacco is soaked in water first, and is kept burning by means of charcoal.

THE PRESIDENT AND OUR CONSTITUTION

In a radio address last Friday respecting the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court which held the NIRA as unconstitutional, President Roosevelt sought, it is said, to carry the issue to the people, and inferentially suggested that a constitutional amendment might be submitted later.

Until the New Deal was inaugurated, we had long believed that broader power should be given the federal government over the business and industrial activities of the country. But every time we began to advocate such an amendment to our federal constitution, we ran square up against the old Southern Democratic doctrine of States Rights and local self government and the charge that we were taking the Republican position in favor of a strong centralized government at Washington.

When President Roosevelt took the reins of government and began to guide this nation, or attempt to guide it, out of the slough of depression, we were amazed and astounded time and again at the grants of power given to him by Congress, making him a virtual dictator. We said then that if this surrender of the legislative power by Congress to the President was in keeping with the Constitution, then we had misread the Constitution of our country and the innumerable decisions of our courts construing it.

President Roosevelt in his radio address strongly intimated that the Supreme Court in rendering this decision had done something radical and unexpected and had departed from the trend and gist of former decisions of this great tribunal. Such is not the case. This decision is in line with the decisions of this court respecting the powers of the federal government from the days of John Marshall, who himself was most liberal in construing this great document, the fundamental law of our land.

Repeatedly President Roosevelt referred to this decision as the court's "edict", as if the court were undertaking not to construe but to make a law. We do not like such an inference by the President of the United States. The Court was called upon to construe an act of Congress which involved the constitutionality of the NIRA and one of the codes promulgated thereunder, and it did so. It was unanimous in its opinion. It seems to us that it was unbecoming in the President to intimate that this opinion was an arbitrary ruling, an "edict", of this court.

The President seems to take issue with the opinion of the court. He sets forth the power of Congress and of the Federal Government as he construes it. If he is correct in his construction, then there is practically no business, commercial, industrial, mining, manufacturing, agricultural or transportation enterprise over which the federal government may not assume legislative jurisdiction, and the old Democratic doctrine of States Rights is relegated to the junk heap. His construction of this instrument would put to shame the contention of Alexander Hamilton and John Adams of an early day and the Abolitionists and many Republicans of the Civil War period that what this government needs is a strong centralized government at Washington. Their contentions were mere child's play as compared with his proposals.

Probably the Constitution should be amended. We think it should. But as a Southern Democrat we can never favor an amendment that would authorize Congress to delegate its power to the President or to any other department of the government. The Constitution makes it the business of Congress to enact laws, and we are in favor of keeping it that way.

This is no criticism of the New Deal as a whole. We think many of the New Deal policies have been highly beneficial to the people. Under the conditions that have existed the AAA and the Bankhead law have been of great benefit to the cotton farmers of the South. Under other conditions, however, these policies might have worked a hardship on the farmer. We believe they would. If bumper crops had been made in West Texas last year for instance, and the farmers of this section had been compelled to pay about a fourth or a third of the total proceeds of their cotton crop to the Government as a tax, we opine that the Bankhead law might not have been so popular. But, under the conditions that have prevailed, the AAA program and the Bankhead law have been highly beneficial to our farmers, as have many other New Deal activities.

So, we are not criticizing the New Deal as a whole. We are not criticizing President Roosevelt except upon the one point above mentioned. We recognize the fact that he has been patriotic and earnest in his endeavor to help us common people. In many respects he has been a wonderful President; but we think he has been too indifferent about observing the Constitution. And we think that it is just as palpably wrong for a President to show contempt for the Constitution as it is for a bootlegger to do so.

CATO VINDICATED

Relying chiefly upon the evidence of one credible witness, a federal narcotics officer, and a string of self-confessed thieves and liars—dope fiends—United States District Attorney Clyde O. Eastus stood before a jury in the federal court in Lubbock last Friday morning and pleaded that the death sentence be imposed upon W. F. Cato, sheriff of Garza county, for the homicide of Spencer Stafford, a federal narcotics agent in Post on February 7.

"Cato ought to be taken out, a rope strung around his neck. He ought to be strangled to death," Eastus shouted to the jury, according to press reports. But the jury went out and, after due deliberation, returned a verdict of "not guilty" and sent Cato back to his wife and to the people of Post, who loved him.

Eastus also stood before the court, before the case went to the jury, and pleaded with the judge that he give a charge limiting and practically eliminating Cato's right of self defense on the ground that he had deliberately provoked the difficulty. The Court, after due deliberation, refused to give this charge, and in spite of any personal opinions and feeling he might have had he gave a charge that defendants' attorneys declared was eminently clear and fair. It doubtless stated the law as applicable to the facts with the usual precision and correctness that characterize Judge Wilson's charges.

The verdict of the jury, we believe, brought deep satisfaction to the masses of the people in this section of the state. They have confidence in W. F. Cato. They believe that he thought his life was in danger when he fired the fatal shots. They believe that he told the truth on the witness stand. The very persons whom the Government charged that he had conspired with to commit this alleged murder have long been his political enemies. They have never supported him for office. On the contrary they have fought him—did so in the last race he made for sheriff. Cato has heretofore so conducted himself as a citizen and as an officer as to win and hold the confidence of the people of his county. They believe him to be honest and upright.

Furthermore they resent the tactics that the federal district attorney has employed from the very inception of this case. They resent the aspersions that he has seen fit to cast upon the people of Post generally, as published in the newspapers. They think that in this case he went far beyond the bounds of duty and became a persecutor rather than a mere prosecutor.

They have no criticism to make of his investigation, exposure, and prosecution of the violations of the narcotics laws by certain citizens of Post. While he made some statements respecting conditions there that were evidently highly exaggerated of the real facts, yet a bad situation was uncovered, and we believe that all who are guilty should be severely punished. Any man who will "peddle dope", simply for the money he can make out of the business is one of the worst of criminals and deserves no mercy. We do not believe that the people of Post, any more than the people of Tahoka or Lubbock or Dallas, would for a moment defend or excuse such a man or his criminal business. They are for law and order, and they believe that the guilty should be punished. But they have contempt for an official who, they believe, for notoriety, or for personal aggrandizement, or out of a spirit of vengeance, or from any motive, would persecute an honest officer and calumniate a majority of the citizenship of their town.

Therefore, the masses of the people throughout this section of the state are highly gratified at the verdict of the jury in the Cato case.

Possibly our people generally do not appreciate the good that is being done by our home demonstration agent. Her work lies mostly with the rural women and girls. In the various girls clubs they are being taught many, many things that will be useful to them through life—how to sew and make attractive dresses and other wearing apparel, how to grow gardens, how to prepare dishes and to cook, how to improve and beautify their bed rooms at little expense, and how to do many other useful things. We visited the improved bed room of one of these girls just last week, who had converted a junk room in an unattractive tenant house on a farm into an attractive bedroom at an insignificant cost. She has been taught how to make furniture and other equipment out of scraps and junk and her accomplishments with the material she had to work with was something wonderful. Scores of girls in Lynn county are being taught and trained in the art of home making, and this knowledge and training will be useful to them as long as they live. The home demonstration agents in Texas are doing a wonderful work.

They are putting on a big beautification and clean-up campaign over at Slaton. The whole population seems to have entered heartily into it. They are not only beautifying their lawns and back yards but they are cleaning up other places, removing or destroying everything that is unsanitary as well as everything that is unattractive. We have made much progress in the beautification of lawns and back yards in Tahoka but other places have as yet received little attention. We are wondering if our program couldn't be broadened so as to include the whole town. There are millions of weeds in Tahoka that mar the attractiveness of our town and will make it look like a wilderness if they are allowed to grow to maturity. Wonder if we couldn't do something about it.

Both sides are wondering what part U. S. Sen. Morris Sheppard will take in the campaign, if any, in view of his campaign against national repeal. He faces re-election next year, and his vote to override the president's veto on the Patman bonus-inflation bill came as a most pleasant surprise to many Texans. Rumors that Jim Ferguson may get into the race against him were revived in Austin, following Jim's appearance at the wet rally.—The Claude News.

The saloon boys proclaim loud and long that prohibition has been a failure, therefore, ask that the question be turned over to them for solution. If those who lived in saloon days will kindly remember the drunkards who sprawled on the streets of every saloon town, they will hesitate to vote to make a bad situation worse by allowing the return of legalized liquor.—The Canyon News.

Refreshing Relief When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Theodor's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. Q. W. Adams of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Theodor's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

S. J. R. No. 24 A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing to amend Sections 3 and 5 of Article 7 of the Constitution of the State of Texas so as to permit the furnishing of State official text books free to every child of scholastic age, attending any school within the State.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Section 3 of Article 7 of the Constitution of the State of Texas be amended so that hereafter it shall read as follows:

"Section 3. One-fourth of the revenue derived from the State occupation taxes and poll taxes of One ($1.00) Dollar on every inhabitant of the State, between the ages of twenty-one and sixty years, shall be set apart annually for the benefit of the public free schools; and in addition thereto, there shall be levied and collected an annual ad valorem State tax of such an amount not to exceed Thirty-five Cents on the One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars valuation, as with the available school fund arising from all other sources will be sufficient to maintain and support the public schools of the State for a period of not less than six months in each year, and it shall be the duty of the State Board of Education to set aside, under such regulations and in such manner as may be provided by law, a sufficient amount out of the said tax to provide free text books for the use of children within the scholastic age attending any school in this State; provided, however, that should the limit of taxation herein named be insufficient to defray the deficit may be met by appropriation from the General Funds of the State and the Legislature may also provide for the formation of school districts by General Laws; and all such school districts may embrace parts of two or more counties, and the Legislature shall be authorized to pass laws for the assessment and collection of taxes in all said districts and for the management and control of the public school or schools of such districts, whether such districts are composed of territory wholly within a county or in parts of two or more counties, and the Legislature may authorize an additional ad valorem tax to be levied and collected within all school districts heretofore formed or hereafter formed, for the further maintenance of public free schools, and for the erection of equipment of school buildings therein; provided that a majority of the qualified property taxing voters of the district voting at an election to be held for that purpose, shall vote such tax not to exceed in any one year One ($1.00) Dollar on the One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation in such district, but the limitation upon the amount of school district tax herein authorized shall not apply to incorporated cities or towns constituting separate and independent school districts, nor to independent or common school districts created by General or Special Law."

Section 2. That Section 5, Article 7, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, be amended so that hereafter it shall read as follows:

"Section 5. The principal of all bonds and other funds, and the principal arising from the sale of the lands hereinbefore set apart to said school fund, shall be the permanent school fund, and all the interest derivable therefrom and the taxes herein authorized and levied shall be the available school fund, to which the Legislature may add, not exceeding one per cent annually, of the total value of the permanent school fund, such value to be ascertained by the Board of Education until otherwise provided by law, and the available school fund shall be applied annually to the support of the public free schools. And no law shall ever be enacted appropriating any part of the permanent or available school fund to any other purpose whatever; nor shall the same, or any part thereof ever be appropriated or used for the support of any sectarian school, provided that the State Board of Education may furnish State Adopted text books free to every child of scholastic age, attending any school within the State; and the available school fund herein provided shall be distributed to the several counties as may be provided by law and applied in such manner as may be provided by law."

Section 3. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to the electors of this State qualified to vote on Constitutional Amendment at the election to be held on the Fourth Saturday in August, 1935, at which election there shall be printed on each ballot the following:

"For the amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas permitting the furnishing of free text books to every child of scholastic age attending any school within this State," and every voter shall mark out with pen or pencil the clause which he desires to vote against, or the word "For" or the word "Against", at the beginning of such clause, so as to indicate his vote for or against each of said proposed amendments.

Section 4. The Governor is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation for said election and shall have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of this State, and said election shall be held under the Constitution and laws of this State.

Section 5. The sum of Ten Thousand ($10,000.00) Dollars or so much thereof as shall be necessary is hereby appropriated out of the State Treasury to pay the expenses of the publications and elections provided for in this Resolution. The above is a true and correct copy.

S. J. R. No. 6 A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas, amending Article 16 by adding another section to be known as "Section 61" providing for the abolishing of the fee method of compensating all district officers of this State and county officers in counties of this State having a population of 20,000 or more, and providing that all such district and county officers be paid on a salary basis; and providing that the Legislature shall enact law putting this amendment into effect; providing for the submission of this amendment to the voters of this State; and providing that all precinct officers in all counties and county officers in counties under 20,000 population may be compensated on a fee basis or on a salary basis and authorizing the Commissioners' Court to determine whether certain county and precinct officers shall be paid on a fee basis or a salary basis; and providing for the necessary appropriation to defray the expenses for the submission of this Amendment.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That the Constitution of the State of Texas, Article 16, be amended by adding thereto another section to be known as "Section 61", which shall read as follows:

"Sec. 61. All district officers in the State of Texas and all county officers in counties having a population of 20,000 or more, according to the then last preceding Federal Census, shall from the first day of January and thereafter, and subsequent to the first Regular Session of the Legislature after the adoption of this Resolution, be compensated on a salary basis. In all counties in this State, the Commissioners' Court shall be authorized to determine whether precinct officers shall be compensated on a fee basis or on a salary basis; and in counties having a population of less than 20,000, according to the then last preceding Federal Census, the Commissioners' Court shall also have the authority to determine whether county officers shall be compensated on a fee basis or on a salary basis. The county and precinct officers shall be paid into the county treasury where earned for the account of the proper fund, provided that fees incurred by the State, county and any municipality, or in case where a pauper's oath is filed, shall be paid into the county treasury when collected and provided that where any officer is compensated wholly on a fee basis such fees may be retained by such officer or paid into the treasury of the county as the Commissioners' Court may direct. All Notaries Public, county surveyors and public weighers shall continue to be compensated on a fee basis."

Section 2. The Legislature of the State of Texas is hereby directed, at the first Regular or Special Session after the adoption of this Resolution, to enact such legislation as will be necessary to adequately compensate, on a salary basis, the officers herein referred to in all counties having a population of 20,000 or more according to the then last preceding Federal Census.

Section 3. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the State of Texas at a special election to be held on the 24th day of August, 1935, at which election voters favoring such proposed amendment shall write or have printed on their ballots the words:

"FOR amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas abolishing the fee system of compensating all district officers, and all county officers in counties having a population of 20,000 or more; and authorizing the Commissioners' Court to determine whether county officers and precinct officers in counties containing less than 20,000 population may be compensated on a fee basis or on a salary basis."

Section 4. The Governor of the State is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation for said election and have the same published as required by the Constitution and existing laws of the State.

Section 5. The sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury of the State not otherwise appropriated to pay the expenses of said publication and election. The above is a true and correct copy.

GERALD C. MANN, Secretary of State.

H. J. R. No. 48 HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to Section 1, of Article XVII, of the Constitution of Texas providing that Constitutional Amendments may be submitted by the Legislature at Special Sessions under certain conditions; providing for an election on the question of the adoption of such amendment and providing for the proclamation and the publication thereof; describing the form of ballot, and making an appropriation therefor.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Section 1, of Article XVII, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, be amended so as to hereafter read as follows:

"Section 1. How the Constitution is to be Amended. The Legislature at any biennial session, by a vote of two-thirds of all members elected to each House, to be entered by yeas and nays on the Journals, may propose Amendments to the Constitution, to be voted upon by the qualified electors for members of the Legislature, which proposed Amendments shall be duly published once a week for four (4) weeks, commencing at least three (3) months before an election, the time of which shall be specified by the Legislature, in one weekly newspaper of each county, in which such a newspaper may be published; and it shall be the duty of the several returning officers of said election, to open a poll for, and make returns to the Secretary of State of the number of legal votes cast at said election for and against said Amendments; and if more than one proposed, then the number of votes cast for and against each of them; and if it shall appear from said returns that a majority of the votes cast, have been cast in favor of any Amendment, the said Amendment so receiving a majority of the votes cast, shall become a part of this Constitution, and proclamation shall be made by the Governor thereof; provided however, that in cases of extraordinary emergency affecting the State as a whole, Amendments to the Constitution may be proposed in the manner hereinabove set out upon the submission of the proposed Amendment by the Governor at any Special Session.

Section 2. The foregoing Amendment shall be submitted to the electors of this State who are qualified to vote on proposed Constitutional Amendments at an election to be held on the 24th day of August A. D. 1935, at which election each ballot shall have printed thereon for those favoring the Amendment the words:

"For the Amendment to Section 1, Article XVII, of the Constitution of Texas, providing that Amendments to the Constitution may be proposed at Special Sessions of the Legislature under certain conditions." And those against the Amendment shall have printed the words:

"Against the Amendment to Section 1, Article XVII, of the Constitution of Texas, providing that Amendments to the Constitution may be proposed at Special Sessions of the Legislature under certain conditions." Each voter shall strike out with pen or pencil the clause which does not indicate his desire regarding the above proposed Amendment.

Section 3. The Governor is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation for said election, and to have the above proposed Amendment published in the manner and for the time required by the Constitution and laws of this State.

Section 4. The sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000), or as much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to pay for the expenses of said publication and election. The above is a true and correct copy.

GERALD C. MANN, Secretary of State.

H. J. R. No. 39 HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an Amendment to Section 15, of Article 1, of the Constitution of Texas, and providing that the Legislature may authorize the temporary commitment of mentally ill persons, not charged with a criminal offense, for treatment and/or observation without the necessity of a trial by jury.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS:

Section 1. That Section 15, of Article 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas be so amended as to hereafter read as follows:

"Sec. 15. The right of trial by jury shall remain inviolate. The Legislature shall pass such laws as may be needed to regulate the same, and to maintain its purity and efficiency. Provided, that the Legislature may provide for the temporary commitment, for observation and/or treatment, of mentally ill persons not charged with a criminal offense, for a period of time not to exceed ninety (90) days, by order of the County Court without the necessity of a trial by jury."

Section 2. The foregoing Constitutional Amendment shall be submitted to the qualified electors of the State, qualified to vote on the Constitutional Amendments, at an election to be held throughout the State on the 4th Saturday of August, A. D. 1935, at which election each ballot shall have printed thereon the words:

"For the Amendment of Article 1, Section 15, of the State Constitution by adding to said Section a provision to the effect that the Legislature may provide for the temporary commitment of mentally ill persons not charged with a criminal offense by the County Court without the necessity of a jury trial."

"Against the Amendment of Article 1, Section 15, of the Constitution by adding to said Section a provision to the effect that the Legislature may provide for the temporary commitment of mentally ill persons not charged with a criminal offense by the County Court without the necessity of a jury trial."

Section 3. The Governor of this State is hereby directed to issue the necessary proclamation for said election, and have the same published as required by the Constitution and laws of the State of Texas.

Section 4. The sum of Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) or as much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the Treasury of the State not otherwise appropriated to pay expenses of said publication and election. The above is a true and correct copy.

Quite the neatest trick we've observed for a long time is this cleverly arranged, yet delightfully simple, home frock. Especially nice for those of us who gain and lose weight or who just naturally love a smart looking wrap-around for sheer comfort and convenience. And, of course, a boon to expectant mothers. Note how the belt slips through a slit and may be simply adjusted to fit the figure. Meanwhile, one has stepped right into it as into a coat. No petticoat needed. Nice shoulders and back, aren't they? Most attractive in solid color cotton broadcloth or printed or plaid cotton of any sort. Pattern 9321 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric. SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE. Address your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West 18th Street, New York, N. Y.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, & Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for June 9 THE HOLY SPIRIT (Pentecost Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—John 16:7-11; Romans 8:10-13, 26, 27. GOLDEN TEXT—For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—Romans 8:14. PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Keeps His Promise. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Coming of the Holy Spirit. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How the Holy Spirit Helps Us. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Work of the Holy Spirit.

1. The Holy Spirit Promised (Joel 2:28, 29). The prophet foretold that in messianic times there would be a mighty effusion of the Holy Spirit. He was to be poured out. He was to be bestowed upon all flesh, irrespective of age, sex, or class. This out-pouring was to issue in extraordinary activity and service. This activity was to be accompanied by marvelous signs.

II. This Prophetic Promise Was Partially Fulfilled at Pentecost.—(Acts 2:1-21, 32, 33).

The unusual behavior of the disciples at Pentecost, with Peter's preaching which resulted in the conversion of thousands, evidenced the supernatural, but the cosmic signs which the prophet predicted to take place in heaven and earth were not in evidence. The real fulfillment of the prophet's prediction is in the future and will find fulfillment in connection with the regathering of Israel and the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom.

III. Some Names of the Holy Spirit. 1. Comforter (John 14:16, 17). "Comforter" means literally "one called to one's side as a part taker, an advocate, a helper and defender." He is called "another Comforter" as he was to take the place of Jesus.

2. The Witness (John 15:26). The Spirit peculiarly witnesses of Christ. He does not speak of himself, but takes the things of Christ and shows them unto us (John 16:13). 3. The Spirit of Truth (John 16:13). The Holy Spirit guides into all truth. Those who are taught by him know the truth.

IV. Some Works of the Spirit. 1. He regenerates (John 3:3-8). The new birth is peculiarly the Spirit's work.

2. He teaches (John 14:26). The Holy Spirit was to take up the work of teaching the disciples.

3. Convicts the world of sin (John 16:8, 9). The Holy Spirit alone can show men the demerit of their lives and their shortcomings before God.

4. Convicts the world of righteousness (John 16:10). The resurrection and ascension of Christ prove that he is the Righteous One and that righteousness is only possible as he is accepted as Savior.

5. Convicts the world of judgment (John 16:11). Sin unatoned for shall be punished. The sinner who refuses the righteousness which God provided in Jesus Christ shall be judged.

6. Gives victory over the flesh (Rom. 8:2, 12, 13). By the energy of the Holy Spirit the carnal nature can be kept in subjection.

7. He leads the believer (Rom. 8:14). The Spirit-filled believer lives the life of the Son of God.

8. He gives assurance to the believer (Rom. 8:15-17). The Holy Spirit witnesses together with the human spirit to the reality of the new birth.

9. Enables the believer to pray according to the will of God (Rom. 8:26, 27). The Holy Spirit helps the believer's infirmities in prayer.

V. The Diversity of the Gifts of the Spirit (I Cor. 12:4-11).

In the Church there are to be found those possessing the gifts of wisdom, faith, healing, miracles, prophecy, discernment of spirits, divers kinds of tongues and their interpretation.

VI. The Sealing of the Spirit (Eph. 1:13, 14).

Into the regenerated life comes the Holy Spirit at once. The indwelling of the Divine Spirit is God's seal of ownership. It is not only a seal of ownership, but of security. It is also the guarantee of the completion of the work of redemption.

VII. The Unity of the Spirit (Eph. 4:1-6).

Christian unity is only possible when effected by the one Holy Spirit.

VIII. The Sin of Grieving the Spirit (Eph. 4:30).

The Spirit may be grieved by failure to respond to his initiative, by yielding to the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye and the vainglory of life, by failure to render full and free obedience, as well as failure to surrender every faculty of the being to his control and direction.

Joy

Joy is the mainspring in the whole round of everlasting nature; joy moves the wheels of the great timepiece of the world; she it is that loosens flowers from their buds, sings from their armaments, rolling spheres in distant space seen not by the glass of the astronomer.—Schlier.

Nobleness

Be noble, and the nobleness that lies in other men, sleeping but never dead, will rise in majesty to meet thine own.—James Russell Lowell.

Flower-Adorned Gowns of Real Silk

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHION is recapturing the elegancies and enchantments which bespeak a truly feminine season. This message of a return to the exquisite, the aesthetic, the lovely and alluring in matter of dress is being told in countless beguiling trends.

A most happy evidence of increasing sentiment expressed for the sweetly feminine in dress, is the revival of that charming custom of wearing flowers, carrying flowers and trimming prettiest gowns with flowers. No need to tell you the fascinating things designers are doing with flowers, the illustration herewith speaks for itself.

Another evidence of the dawn of a new era of exquisitely feminine fashions is the re-entrenchment of silk, real genuine "all-silk," mind you.

This call for real silk from those of discriminating taste is not a mere passing fancy but rather a sense of fabric identification which is developing among the fair sex. We are coming to know that such terms as crepe, satin, taffeta and the like, are not necessarily silk, and when they are, should be called silk crepe, silk satin, silk taffeta, and so on.

The duo theme of flowers and real silk sounds enticing—and is it? For answer, please refer to the trio of adorable evening creations in the accompanying picture. It adds a glamorous note to these distinguished and exquisite modes that they were selected for illustration from among a collection of costumes entered exclusively by society women shop owners in the metropolitan silk showing held recently in New York. A deep lilac silk crepe (quality-kind pure silk) fashions the stately evening gown to the left, which bears out word from Paris that deep lilac and violet tones are outstanding this season. The wide bordering of silk violets which outlines the graceful cape speaks eloquently of the fascinating and ingenious play which designers are making with flowers.

The costume centered in the picture reflects a very ecstasy of beauty. This most alluring dinner ensemble is in gray (a very high-style color for evening) pure-silk taffeta. Its cunning jacket with quaint fowing-from-the-elbow sleeves is graced with a youthful collar faced with lilacs in delectable coloring. To complete the picture milady carries an intriguing muff done in lilacs to match.

Vaporous, elusively sheer and floating, much-draped and shirred chiffon is the idol of the hour for evening wear. The "darling of a gown" with "red riding hood" cape to the right in the group is of exquisite white silk chiffon. The evening hood is one of the outstanding features of the formal mode. Young girls adore them. As artful as fancy can picture is the shirring on this gown which occurs at shoulder cuffs and on the skirt. The very latest gesture in silhouettes is interpreted via the elaborate draping at the sides of the slender fitted skirt. Lilacs on the hood and worn as a corsage sing a song of springtime youth and beauty for this dream of a midsummer night chiffon ensemble.

SILK NET JACKET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This exotic silk print evening gown is white with green florals widely spaced. The silk net "butcher boy" capelike jacket is in the same shade of green. Front, back and the sleeves are pleated. This very beautiful twosome is worn by Gladys Swarthout, the lovely opera and movie star who was recently chosen as one of the ten best dressed women in America.

Pastel Colored Kids Are Latest Note in Footwear

Pastel colored kids are the next foot-note. They come in pale powder blue, dusty pink, soft green and yellow, and they are designed in high cut-out sandals for afternoon wear with light frocks.

The new beach sandals come in white and eggshell lined bound with bright orange, blue or red kidskin strips to match the beach outfit.

REGENCY TREATMENT FOR SPRING COATS

"Draped bows," "butterfly revers," "front fullness in the bodice"—call it what you will—each phrase describes the treatment that persists through the Vionnet adaptations that are shown. The coat and wrap designers give this detail an impressive position in the second spring collections.

The "pouf" at front, which gives a pleasant Regency quality to the otherwise modern coat or frock, lends itself to a variety of interpretations—suitable for taffeta or flat fur for the coat and varied from ruffling revers to double jabot in crisp formal wraps. Also important as a detail that promises to be heard from are the butterfly collars that are placed high across the shoulders rather than as jabot.

Knit Suit Styles Inspire You to Do One Yourself

You know how important the suit is to be. But had you thought of knitting one for yourself? You'd be inspired to make the effort after taking one look at a three-piece which includes a British looking short jacket, with skirt and sweater blouse. The jacket has all the airs of the high-powered English tailored suits of the season, with its high notched lapels, its semi-fitted lines and its casual one-button closing. Skirt and jacket are done in diagonal ribbing, with the same effectiveness of the smartest diagonal woolsens.

Tweed knit coat designs are nothing short of superb.

Taffeta Takes Prominent Place in Fashion Parade

Crisp taffeta continues as a highlight of the spring fashion parade. Rustling bags, gloves, sleeves, revers, blouses and dresses are being taken for granted, but have you seen the dashing navy and white taffeta gloves?

To make them fit well, the palms are of soft woven silk. They are gauntlet type, with a heavily corded, flared cuff. They are particularly smart with a dressy navy suit and an ideal accessory.

TREMENDOUS TRIFLES

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

IN THE spring of 1898 a Swedish tailor in Berkeley, Calif., read an advertisement in a San Francisco paper that said "Tailors wanted for a whaling cruise in Alaskan waters." Some ancient memory of his Norse ancestors stirred in him. He applied for the job. A few days later he was aboard the whaler "Reliance" as she spread her canvas and headed north.

"Get aloft there and help unfurl them—sails!" followed the first mate to Eric. "You go jump in the ocean," was Eric's calm reply. But before the mate's fist could crash into his face, the captain, Swedish-born and a kindly soul, interfered.—To his demand for an explanation Eric produced a crumpled newspaper clipping and pointed to the "Help Wanted" advertisement.

"The newspaper made a mistake," said the captain with a laugh. "I wanted sailors, not tailors." But Eric didn't feel like laughing. In fact, he was very angry and only the captain's assurance that he could travel on the ship as a passenger until they put in at Port Clarence, calmed him.

When the "Reliance" stopped at the port to take on water and reindeer meat, Eric left the ship. In an Eskimo village he obtained a boat and started down the coast. At the mouth of the Sirocco river he met with three prospectors who had found a little gold there and they gave him a small nugget. A short time later Eric showed this to an Eskimo chief who pointed out toward the hills and exclaimed excitedly "Umalaktok, umalaktok, emetna" meaning "much more the same." The chief then took him up the river to where it forked and there by scratching in the gravel they were able to pick out large pieces of coarse gold.

At first this place was known as Snake river but later when a horde of frenzied fortune-seekers pitched their tents and built their shacks there it became Nome City. Thus a typographical error launched one of the greatest gold rushes in all history.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT COMMAS

A COMMA is only one of many punctuation marks and, except for the period, is about the smallest and most insignificant of them all. But put it in the wrong place and disastrous results may follow.

Once upon a time a misplaced comma cost the United States government the tidy sum of $2,000,000. The day might have been warm, the clerk who was marking the tariff free list might have had a headache, but whatever the details surrounding the incident, the comma got put in the wrong place. The clerk, instead of writing "All foreign fruit-plants are free from duty," wrote this, "All foreign fruit, plants are free from duty." Two million dollars worth of foreign fruit had come into the country and congress had to meet for the next session before this little comma could be removed.

Then there is the story about the Russian empress, Marie Feodorovna, Emperor Alexander III had imprisoned one of his political enemies. Then the empress accidentally caught sight of the following note, written by her husband on the margin of one of the death warrants: "Pardon impossible, to be sent to Siberia."

Marie had pled for the life of this subject. His wife was one of her childhood friends and she had done all she could to save the conspirator. Alexander could not, in duty bound, release the plotter, and the sentence stood until Marie transposed the comma so that it read, "Pardon, impossible to be sent to Siberia." The man was released, thanks to a woman's big heart and a little comma.

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN

"AN ACCIDENT is the mother of invention, 60 times out of 100," said Louis Brennan, the torpedo inventor. One day he saw a frayed driving belt on a planing machine acting queerly. He got the idea that it was possible to make a machine travel forward by pulling it backward. He made use of that principle in inventing his engine of death.

Careless workmen in a paper mill forgot, one day, to add sizing to the pulp, and the whole vat had to be thrown away as waste. A short time later the proprietor came by. He saw the discarded rolls and tore off some strips to use for making notes. It absorbed the ink as fast as he wrote on it, so he called it "blotting paper." We've used it ever since.

In another plant a workman playfully tossed a piece of cheese into the plating bath solution, used for producing copper disks for stamping phonograph records. The disks from this particular bath were far superior to any others. The casein in the cheese was the one element that chemists had been looking for.

A French scientist, while experimenting in his laboratory, accidentally opened the wrong valve. Several drops of moisture settled in a glass tube. Horrified at his mistake, the scientist was about to throw the tube away when he realized that he had discovered liquid oxygen.

HAND-SHAKING OUT OF DATE?

Jugoslavians in Movement to Abolish It.

The formation of an Antihandshaking club in Yugoslavia is noted by the omniscient London Times, which remarks in approbation, that trusting one's right hand to a stranger is to give "the most valuable of hostages, and on occasion, as when mastering the left sleeve-link (one of the indispensable allies in the battle of life."

"This handshaking business" the editor continues, "used to be thought a quaint survival from the days when right hands held daggers or could draw swords; to place it in the keeping of another was to clear yourself of any dangerous intention or ability. Business men have often laughed to think how little meaning the ritual need have today when fighting and ambushes take other forms. Fascists and Nazis have learned to make a gesture more nearly combining the remembrance of antiquity with the action prescribed in diagrams of Swedish drill.

"The efficient Japanese combine the quest for physical fitness and social geniality by constant bowings from the hips, bringing important abdominal muscles into play and getting better exercise in proportion as the obeisance is marked. The bow and the salute have this further advantage also, that they do not betray their makers as handshaking can. People who offer a hearty grip, with a 'Doctor Livingstone, I presume?' impression that two strong white men have at last managed to meet, do not at all like it if their palm is hastily and lightly stroked, or if they are given a fleeting sense of a flabby and shapeless mass.

There are secrets of handshaking, hidden rituals and squeezes of the brotherhoods for those who enjoy them; but from these subtle pressures and convolutions of the fingers much unhappy fumbling and discomfort arises, for many a man has been thought to have been giving some secret sign when in fact he was merely trying to extricate his unhappy hand. An occasional handshake on a big occasion between the parties to an engagement or marriage, or other major partnerships, and on other important events, is all very well, an old custom and not a bad one. But when it grows to ludicrous lengths in the interests of salesmanship and a politeness without ordinary good will behind it, it is time to cry halt and to fill in the membership forms which will enable one, as of right, to extend, for once only, the right hand of fellowship to the stalwart men of Ljubljana."

Depression's End Seen for Peanut Industry

Some people have theories about the superiority of lower animals to the human race. They claim, for instance, that animals eat enough, and having satisfied their appetites, quit. Therefore animals have few digestive disturbances. Of course, anyone who has tried to bring up a dog knows there is something wrong with the idea, but the theorists laugh off this objection by maintaining that the dog is almost human. Take the snake, they say; it eats, then lays off for days or weeks at a time.

Now comes the report from Chicago that the zoo animals are suffering from what the French call evil of the heart, but what we sometimes refer to as tummy-ache, from eating too many peanuts. They are being given the well-known and effective remedy.

We merely point out two things—that the ability of animals to restrain their appetites in the presence of peanuts has been overestimated by those who hold up animals as exemplars of dietary wisdom; and that the depression is over when kids can buy enough peanuts to sicken a whole zoo.—Detroit News.

Scientists Claim Brain and Brawn Go Together

The theory that brains and brawn go together was put forth recently by a group of scientists who had assembled to discuss the world's ill and how to cure them. A large chest expansion is a symbol of mental breadth, it was said, while a narrow chest denotes compressed intelligence. Children who are the best students, surveys have shown, are those with the biggest chests. Statisticians were called in to show that more successful persons, as a rule, have more generous height and girth measurements than their less fortunate neighbors. Thus the idea of brain power being associated with brawn has been elevated somewhat from the field of physical culture arguments.

Among the statistics cited in support of the theory that larger dimensions are indicative of business success were those showing sales managers, on the average, to be twenty-five pounds heavier and one inch taller than salesmen. Railroad presidents appear to be thirty-one pounds heavier and one and one-half inches taller than station agents. The relative avoiddupols of generals and private soldiers was not given.

Regardless of the scientific explanations of these phenomena, the ordinary man—possibly the station agent—has some sensible views on the subject. In the first place, he readily will grant, good health is the best stimulant for a smoothly working brain. There are exceptions, of course, as in the case of the genius who has cultivated his brain cells to compensate for physical deficiencies, but in the main the better a person feels physically the more fit he feels for head work.

Why Do Cream Tests Vary ?

WHEN The milk is from the same herd and no apparent irregularities in feeding, milking or separating the cream.

- THE ANSWER May be summarized as follows:
1. Richness of milk separated.
  2. Change in temperature of milk.
  3. Speed of separator bowl.
  4. Amount of water used in flushing separator bowl.
  5. Rate of inflow to separator bowl.
  6. An unbalanced separator.

STARDOM SURPRISED BLONDE ALICE FAYE

Stardom burst upon platinum-blond Alice Faye, she of the doll-like complexion and sophisticated air who is one of the ten stars of "George White's 1935 Scandals," at the English Theatre Sunday and Monday.

It happened without premeditation. During the making of the first edition of the frolicsome "Scandals," of which the coming one is to follow-up, Miss Faye reached Hollywood to do a song and dance number.

One screen test convinced Fox Film studio executives that here was stellar timber.

Instantly Miss Faye was shoved up as leading lady, and was treading the heights.

The rest is screen history. Miss Faye's appeal registered distinctly in "Now I'll Tell By Mrs. Arnold Rothstein," "She Learned About Sailors," and "365 Nights in Hollywood."

Now in the 1935 edition of the Scandals she shares honors with such stage and screen aces as James Dunn, Ned Sparks, Lyda Roberti, Cliff Edwards, Arline Judge, Eleanor Powell, Emma Dunn, Benny Rubin and George White.

In "George White's 1935 Scandals" Miss Faye sings these song hits, specially composed for the picture: "According to the Moonlight," "Hunkadola," and "Oh I Didn't Know You'd Get That Way." They have become popular overnight wherever heard, as have "It's an Old Southern Custom," "I Got Shoes You Got Shoesies," and "I Was Born Too Late."

The melodies are the work of Jack Yellen, Joseph Meyer, and Cliff Friend, with additional lyrics by Herb Magidson, all four top-notch song writers of the day.

Jack Donohue, the dance director, who coached Miss Faye in her dances used in presenting these songs, says she "is one star who can take dance direction once and pick up the step without a second explanation."

The eyes and ears of the American screen populace are turned now on her latest appearance; it was in response to countless requests that this screen siren was elevated to stardom.

Miss Faye is young in years. She knew she could dance, but was unsure of her voice. A New York attorney, Hyman Bushel, made her sing for recording on a twenty-five cent phonograph home record, and before she could utter the first syllable of Jack Robinson, she was on her triumphal path to fame.

"George White's 1935 Scandals" was entirely conceived, produced and directed by George White.

SERVICES WELL ATTENDED AT METHODIST CHURCH

Services were well attended Sunday at the Methodist Church. Again our Baptist friends visited us and we were indeed glad to have them.

Sunday was Communion Day. Bro. Smith made an excellent talk. The evening hour was well attended. The pastor brought an unusual lesson on "The Dulling Power of Familiarity." The lesson was taken from the fourteenth chapter of John. Those who were not there missed a spiritual uplift. It was an unusual sermon, yet very practical and something we could all take home with us and profit by. Miss Marjorie Wells rendered a very beautiful piano solo.

Come be in the services next Sunday. The church needs you and you need the church. Be in your place in the choir. We appreciate the service you are rendering from time to time. We are all lifted to a higher plane by good music and spiritual sermons.

A hearty welcome awaits you.—Reporter.

BAPTIST W. M. S. CIRCLES MET WITH MRS. E. I. HILL

With Mrs. Joe L. Nevill as leader the Blanche Rose Walker Circle of the Baptist W. M. S. rendered an interesting program on "Lifting the Banner in the Land of the Southern Cross" when they met with the Sallee Circle in the home of Mrs. E. I. Hill Monday afternoon.

At the close of the program Mrs. H. P. Caviness presided over a short business session in which plans were made and committees appointed for the W. M. S. School of Instruction to be held in Tahoka Baptist Church June 18. This one day meeting will be association-wide and will be presided over by Mrs. L. Lumsden of Wilson, president of Brownfield Association W. M. S. Mrs. J. E. Leigh of Dallas will conduct the school. All interested women invited.

During the social hour a refreshment plate was passed to each of the following: Mother Stroud and Mesdames Caviness, Heathman, Suits, Wells, Cooper, Nevill, Reese, St. Clair, Johnson, Howell, Harris, Oliver and Hill.

METHODIST YOUNG PEOPLE SEND DELEGATES TO MEET

The Young Peoples Department of the Methodist Church sent two delegates to the Summer Assembly being held at McMurry College, Abilene, June 2 to June 7. This week of study, inspiration, recreation and personal development certainly offers the young people an opportunity for self-improvement as well as to be of great benefit to the church they represent. The attending delegates are Luda Strasser and Marjorie Wells.

Regular evening service Sunday at 7:30 p. m. You are welcome and urged to help us.

CHURCH OF CHRIST NOTES

I closed the meeting at Jal, New Mexico, last Sunday night with a fine interest and we feel much good was done. The services here were carried on in a splendid way by local talent.

I will fill the pulpit here next Sunday, both morning and evening. Come help and be helped.—R. P. Drennon.

WE LIVE LONGER

The average life of mankind in the time of Queen Elizabeth was twenty years. Today the average is fifty-eight years for man and sixty-one for woman, who is biologically more important. Recent discoveries in medicine are leading to astonishing results, and give a prospect that the life of man will soon reach the Biblical promise of three score and ten.—Drs. W. J. and C. H. Mayo.
