The average payment for youths on relief work will be $15 a month; those to direct a comparatively small part going to high school would be given $6 a month; college, $15 a month.

roblem of what to do with the The youth the finishes school, supposedly equippe to make his real start in life, and finds what few jobs there are are given to older and married men and women, as well as the youth who is unable to finish school because of poor circumstances, has been one of the most discouraging aspects of the entire depression. The NYA will attempt to remedy it by divisions set up to work with private industry and schools in each state, co-ordinated by national headquarters in Washington.

EGISLATIVE administration leaders, for a while in a frenzy of anxiety to hitch the President's tax-therich program to the resolution extending the so-called "nuisance" excise taxes, thereby speeding it through the Washington legislative factory in four days, suddenly disclaimed any intention of such procedure, and let the $500,000. 000 tax extension ride along unappendation program during early July.

And the general opinion of administration and that housing is not what they leaders in the senate was that the taxes were led to believe it would be. Neithobtained from the rich might possibly eliminate the necessity of the "nuisance" taxes after another year.

THE federal government began a spending more money than in any previous year of peace. Mr. Roosevelt announced that he would spend $8,520,-000,000, of which $4,582,000,000 will go for "recovery and relief." He expects the treasury to collect $3,991,000,000. No, it doesn't add up. The deficit for the new fiscal year will be $4,528,000,-000, it is estimated,

The fiscal year just passed came to an end with the public debt at a new peace-time peak of $28,685,000,000, still some shy of the $31,000,000,000 the President estimated a year ago. To finance the new budget, he had counted in part upon the $500,000,000 extension of "nuisance" taxes just passed by congress, but not upon the tax-the-rich program which the New Dealers hope to jockey through some time in August. Estimates have it that this will net another $340,000,000.

The expendeure for the past year is only $7,258,000,000 instead of $8,571,-000,000 forecast at the start of the year. The deficit was $3,472,347,000 instead of the proposed $4,869,000,000,

If the expenditures outlined in the 1936 budget reach the estimated total, the public debt on July 1 next year would stand at $34,239,000,000.

During the next year the President expects to spend $4,880,000,000 for relief and for the employment of 3,500,-100 idle workers. A general upswing in business would improve the revenue expected by the treasury. The Presiient counted on $3,711,000,000 coming in during the 1935 fiscal year. Reeipts proved to be $3,785,000,000.

provision put upon the measure when the senate passed it by one vote, to abolish in seven years all public utility holding companies which the securities commission deemed "unnecessary."

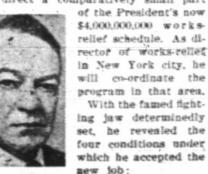

The interstate commerce committee of the house voted to give the commission immediate discretionary authority. After the final passage of the utilities bill it will go to a conference committee to have the differences between the two houses ironed out.

DRESIDENT ROOSEVELT asked congress to prevent holders of federal gold bonds from suing the government for damages they may have suffered because the New Deal went back on the gold payment pledge.

The Chief Executive asked that an appropriation be made for Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to pay off $8,000,000,000 in cash to bond holders who demanded immediate cash payment. Bond nelders who plan to convert their bonds into cash and buy foreign gold will be given 100 paper dollars for a $100 gold bond. They contend that because it takes $1.69 to buy what was $1 worth of gold before the New Deal, they should be paid $169 in

The President's stand was that the privilege of suing was an "act of grace" bestowed by the government. He asked that the privilege be withdrawn from the holders of gold bonds to prevent the use of the courts "in aid of efforts to sabotage the operations of the government or in aid of private speculation."

SOVIET Russia, through its ambassador in Tokyo, warned the Japanese government that Japanese Manchukuan boats must keep out of Soviet waters in the Far East, or the consequences, will fall on the shoulders of the Japanese Manchukuan authorities. The ambassador listed a series of alleged violations of Soviet territory, adding that "these violations may bring serious consequences in the relations between the U.S.S.R. and Japan in the cause of peace in the Far East."

He spoke of attacks on the Soviet guard which were maneuvered to appear as if they had taken place on Manchukuan territory. It was alleged that four Soviet guards had been at tacked and killed, that Japanese guns had played on Soviet settlements from the Manchukuan side of the Amur. "The Soviet government expects the Japanese government to adopt urgeni energetic measures to prevent further provocative action by local Japanese Manchukuan military authorities," said the ambassador.

Russian newspapers, speaking officially, accuse Japan of stirring up trouble along the Russian border, to "bring on grave complications." A protest carries Stalin's warning to Japan that a continuation of these incidents "may have serious consequences in the relations of Russia and Japan, and peace in the Far East."

If Russia and Japan should have a Arthur Brisbane serious disagreement, Russia's equipment in the way of submarines and airplanes, all within 400 miles of Tokyo, would probably enable other countries to stop worrying about Japan's military plans.

England does not approve of Mussolini's plans in Abyssinia, and the question arises, Would England close the Suez canal, the short cut for Italian troops and supplies to Abyssinia? Will Italian airplanes be forbidden to fly over the Suez canal area?

The answer as to closing the Suez canal by Britain would probably be no. England would not voluntarily provoke hostilities with Italy. She really wants peace. But, how easily war could come-French against German or English against Italian or Japanese against Russian!

Germany undertakes to establish a "family tree" for each of its 66,000,-000 inhabitants, which means asking, answering, writing down ten thousand million questions.

The sensible answer would be, "I descend from Adam, with heaven knows how many mixtures in my blood on the way up," but Hitler would not accept that. Young couples getting marriage licenses are questioned: "What were your eight great-grandparents like? Did they have any Negroid or Jewish blood?

We are afraid some one may come, with better airplanes and submarines than ours, and steal it; so the government will dig a deep hole, far from the coast, put in it a huge safe, and hide away the gold lump, that is used only to impress the financial imagination of the world and keep foreigners from knocking down our currency,

Lloyd George, in spite of his seventy-two years, returns to active politics. He hates the "arid atmosphere of political controversy" and returns to active politics only because he believes that world conditions are growing worse, and "from the point of view of peace are worse than before 1914."

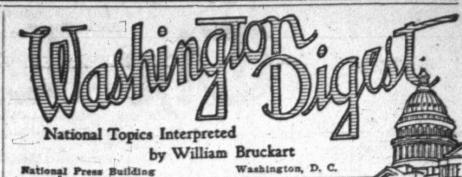

Miss Koutanova, Russian, twentyone years old, jumped 25,426 feet from an airplane without oxygen apparatus and landed in a cabbage field after turning over four times before her parachute opened. She claims the female record.

Russia is teaching millions of young people to use parachutes, the first step in curing nervousness in flying. Here we have only a small handful of excellent pilots, but the masses of our population know as little about aviation as they do about "geometry in space."

Mr. Werner Kahn, district leader of 'Hitler Youth," says Nazi doctrines have become Germany's real religion, and "the time must come when entry into the Hitler Youth organization will take the place now occupied by Catholic or Protestant confirmation." than three months since President Roosevelt signed the congressional resolu-Works Relieftion appropriating five billion dollars for use by the administration in public works and public relief. To date, according to the records, less than half a billion dollars has been allocated for expenditure on agreed projects and of this sum approximately three hundred million dollars was turned over to the Civilian Conservation corps, a going Institution.

The slow motion of the administration in getting its public works relief program underway is giving birth to an immense amount of criticism. If one is to believe the undercurrent of discussion in Washington, it is giving more concern to the officials responsible for spending this vast sum of money in the recovery-reform effort of the New Deal. So many projects have been advanced and rejected in turn, so many new ideas have been brought forward and ballyhooed and so many false motions have been indulged in that Washington observers are rapidly reaching the conclusion that congress was correct when in debate, it was said the administration had no concrete plan for utilization of this vast fund. To review the developments since April 8, when the President signed the appropriating resolution, is to say that conditions have been one continual round of confusion. First, it will be recalled the President sought to meet the wishes of congress as expressed in debate by relieving Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, of much of the responsibility and authority he held. This was accomplished by the new setup that was reported to you heretofore. Now, it seems, the new setup has failed to function and the bulk of the management of expenditures has settled down into the lap of Harry Hopkins, the relief adminis-

Mr. Ickes still has some authority. It apparently is enough to irk Mr. Hopkins. These two men differ widely in their views. Mr. Hopkins long has been looked upon as a reliever by pro- money should exceed an amount fession; Mr. Ickes has attempted, inso- greater than $1,143 for every man emfar as he has been able, to employ ployed. This was designed to spread practical methods in administration of his share of the funds.

Laying aside the personal equation which is best exemplified by the Ickes-Honkins differences it must be said frankly that next to nothing has been accomplished. President Roosevelt has stated and reiterated that the expenditure program is getting underway satisfactorily, but the discussion among observers seems to show an alarming lack of co-ordination and of indecision.

One of the newest projects advanced, and it has just passed the stage of an executive The Youth order setting up a Program new agency, is the so-called National Youth administration. This new alphabetical unit-the NYA-has received fifty million dollars to spend in helping boys and girls between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five. It is supposed to be a means of preventing idleness among the young people who are of the age during which, unless they are occupied, irresponsible tendencies de-

In announcing the new program, the President departed from his previously announced intention of assisting only persons now on relief. (Whether this departure means that he has tossed aside definitely the rule laid down last winter that the dole must go or whether this is to be an isolated exception to that rule, is not immediately determinable. It remains as a fact that the government's assistance under the NYA will be available to needy young men who are not on the dole as well as to those who are on relief. Secretary Perkins, of the Labor department, said the plan had been worked out by her and her associates in the children's bureau. She figured that 2,500,000 would be eligible for assistance under the plan. Those to be helped will be selected by local volunteer committees, thus establishing in each community another agency subject to federal domination and federal guidance.

Succinctly, the scope of the NYA as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt includes: Finding employment in private industry for unemployed youths.

Training youths for industrial, technical and professional employment, Providing for continued attendance of needy youths in high schools and

Providing work relief on projects to meet the needs of youth.

Miss Josephine Roche, an assistant secretary of the treasury; and Aubrey W. Williams, assistant to Adminis trator Hopkins, have been given sole usibility for management of the latest alphabetical agency. The selection of Miss Roche was said by the dent to have been in recogn of her long service in the social field and her thorough understanding of problems of the growing generations, Notwithstanding the sincerity and the desires of the President to initiate a program that will be helpful, one hears much doubt expressed that success will be attained. In the minds of Washington.-It is slightly more there are thoughts fitting back and forth inquiring whether it is possible for a central group like the federal government to arrange satisfactory methods or occupations for a population so far flung as our own. It is further doubted that sufficient flexibility can be worked into any program to permit of any genuine good coming from the expenditure of even so vast a sum as fifty million dollars. Beyond that, I have heard it asked how the administration expects to find employment for unemployed youths in industry when late figures show, a larger list of unemployed adults than obtained at this time a year ago.

High schools and colleges, of course, are available to provide the educational requirements forming one idea in the general program. Those youths who desire to continue their education certainly are deserving of help and the NYA offers a means to that end. It is too early to forecast what the requirements will be or what sort of rules will be laid down respecting applicants for educational assistance. But even the administration's most vigorous critics have omitted throwing any barbs at this feature of the NYA.

TA

Almost simultaneously with the President's announcement of the NYA he made known that Non-Federal the way was clear for construction on Projects what he said was the first group of non-federal projects under the public works section of the five billion dollar fund. He gave his approval to 63 projects, the total cost of which was figured at approximately twenty-one million dollars. Each of the loans made in this allocation of funds was based on a grant of 45 per cent of the cost of the particular project by the community where the work is to be done. The federal government loans the other 55 per cent. In this way the cost to the goverament in most instances is expected to be held within the limitation of

$1.143 per man per year. Some weeks ago the President figured out that the cost of no project in which the federal government put employment. But the rule thus far has been inoperative because not a single man has been put to work under any of these projects. In the meantime, numerous and sundry other proposals for expending parts of the federal money have either been thrown overboard or have been held in abeyance pending further consideration. This is true of a gigantic housing program worked out by Sacretary Ickes. It was planned there to spend $250,000,000 and when it was announced a press statement was forthcoming from the Public Works administration that hundreds of men would be offered jobs within a month, so far had the plans advanced, Also, since April 8, nothing whatsoever has been done toward elimination of dangerous railroad grade crossings. I was told at the Interstate Commerce commission and again at the bureau of public roads that their plans were all ready to proceed with reduction of these highway traffic hazards and eliminate potential death traps where highways cross railroads. Something has blocked the effort in this direction. however, and as far as present information goes actual work on grade crossing elimination will not be started for the next several months,

While the administration is seeking to develop new projects to aid unemployment and relieve Pet Scheme destitution, one of its Runs Amuck pet schemes appears to be running amuck. refer to the effort to transplant 200 Middle Western farm families to the Matanuska valley of Alaska. This colonization project was carried on with federal relief money and those families which were uprooted were taken to Alaska to find the end of the rainbow. According to activity around the Federal Relief administration here it is made to appear that the end of the rainbow was, as asual, some distance further on. Certainly it was not in the Matanuska valley because a number of the families already have determined to quit and return to their home communities in the states.

Members of congress who are acquainted with Alaskan conditions tellme that the Matanuska valley is probably the most fertile spot in continental United States. They hold to the conviction that almost any kind of food can be grown in the soil of that valley. But these men are under no illusions. They know the hardships that confront those settlers who were being planted there by the federal government in the hope of colonizing that area. Few of them, the house members assure me, can live there very long unless Uncle Sam is willing to spend millions in providing at least some of the modern conveniences of this day and age and supplying in addition means of transportation and communication. The word that comes direct from Matanuska colony to the Relief administration shows, in my opinion, that the project was conceived and executed without any thought having been given to the practical prob-

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, which names "Penelope," in a final effort solve his matrimental troubles. But this wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. Ten-year-old Penelope is given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin. At a baseball game a ball strikes Penelope on the mose. Mrs. Gatlin spirits the child to Europe. Gatlin retires from business, wills Pecelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for his daugh-ter when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimeny in court, Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Lanny visits her and Nance persuades her to smuggle out a letter which a confederate of Nance steals. Nance escapes, although shot, by swimming to a speed-boat manned by friends, and goes to Lanny's apartment. Lanny tells Chief McNamara, who orders her to bring Nance to his apartment.

-9-"Those cops at your house will stick around, Launy, and when you return they'll want to know where you've been. What are you going to tell them?" "Tell them nothing. Let those two cops sit in their car in front of my house all night and watch it. What do I care? At least they'll keep burglars away. And when finally they do round me up and waltz me down to central station to be questioned, you'll do the questioning, will you not?"

"Lanny," sald Dan McNamara, "if you were a man and on the force I'd make you a defective sergeant. You're a bear-cat, that's what you are. But you smuggled that letter out of San Quentin for Nance and turned it over to Sapphire Susie!"

"Indeed! Well, let me tell you, Dan McNamara, that I'm a respectable woman and I never associate, if I know it, with ladies known to the police by such names."

"Maybe you didn't know it, but you gave Sapphire Susie a lift in your car from the main gate at San Quentin down to Greenbrae. The guard re-members seeing her hanging around the main gate, as if she was waiting for somebody; later she got into a coupe with a middle-aged lady, who looked so respectable he took another look at the pass she had just surrendered to him and remembers that the name on the pass was yours. The pass entitled you to visit Nance Belden. Guards may not remember such ineldents until something happens. Then they're fast on their feet, Lanny." "And who, if you please, is Sapphire Susie?"

"She's did a stretch at San Quentin for blackmall. She was discharged a week before you visited Nance, and before Susie left the Big House, Nance fixed it with her to lend a helping hand. Apparently Nance didn't want to confide the minute details of her plan of escape to Susie. Susie's a swell looker but a little bit dumb-she levied blackmail through the mail, understand, and signed her name, instead of hiring a smart shyster lawyer. So Nance decided to send her written instructions out by you, and Susie agreed to pick you up, pinch the letter and deliver it."

"Dan, I assure you I wasn't in any plot to effect a prison delivery. If I'd thought for an instant I was doing anything wrong-why, Nance told me to read her letter and if I disapproved of its contents to destroy it. I didn't see any harm in that." "You violated the rules of the prison and you could be punished for it by a term in that same prison." "I'm a respectable woman-"

"That gets you nowhere, I was a respectable chief of police once and now look at me. If your part in this leaks out you can only be punishedand you can't be convicted unless you talk in your sleep. If my part in this should leak out I'll be punished and disgraced and thrown out of the best job I've ever had. However-" he raised his glass to her-"mud in your eye, Lanny."

"Happy days, Dan, you gorgeous

The doorbell rang, Dan opened it and-Doctor Burt stepped in. He paused in amazement at sight of Lanny, glass in hand; she motioned him with it down the hall. "First door at the end, Stevie. You'll find your patient there."

"That girl with the dissociated personality, Nance Belden, escaped from San Quentin late this afternoon, Chief," Stephen began, and handed the latter a newspaper. "Big story. First woman to escape from San Quentin." He gazed severely upon Lanny, "What are you doing here, Lanny?" "All h-l to pay, Stevie dear, and ae pitch hot. That Belden girl is here with a bullet hole in her shoulder : she's suffering from shock and submersion and chill and loss of blood and she's cold as a penguin's tail. I've given her a stiff neggin of Dan's terrible booze and a fortieth of a grain of strychnin and an alcohol rub, She's sleeping. Did you bring those hot-water bottles?"

"Yes," he said humbly, indicating a bag he carried. Lanny fell upon the bag, and retired to the kitchen to fill the hotwater bottles and tuck them in if she doesn't develop pneumonia,

She didn't go in to the dining hall for dinner with the other prisoners. Smart! Knew she couldn't make a fast swim on a full stomach. Smart enough to notice the warden's oversight in failing to fill in with barbed wire topping that eighteen-inch space at the top of his gate. Of course they figured they needn't bother with that, because no woman could climb a sixteen-foot wire mesh fence anyhow, and if she did she'd only drop down into the waitdigging her toes into the quarter-inch ing arms of the guard, who is never absent, night or day. But Nance Belden knew she could climb that fence barefoot; she knew she had thirty the outside of the gate when the guard in the tower on the hill saw her and seconds to do it and a drop on the other side from the top of the gate. Her job was to induce the guard to turn his back-and her friends in the boat did that!

Smart! Sank and swam under water-and then the zigzag course between the boats of the other fishermen, after they picked her up. Fine psychology-she engineered it all-and I know she's a nut! And then straight to Lanny for medical attentionstraight to the one human being she knew she could trust-no, I'll not send her back. And I don't particularly want to catch her friends either. I'll say they're friends! Wish I had a couple of friends that'd come on through machine-gun fire for me! I had thought the world was selfish and cruel and thieving and lying-but there's noblifty left in it after all." Stephen Burt came out of the bedroom and sat down and stared at the chief of police with grave interest. "Well, my good Javert," he said pres-"Your good what?"

"I called you Javert. Don't you rnow who Javert was?" Dan McNamara shook his head. "I never picked him up, Doc."

"You wouldn't. He was a character in 'Les Miserables,' a novel by Victor Hugo. He was a fly-cop in Paris, and he pursued an ex-convict named Jean Valjean for twenty years, because he believed the man was a crook. Once a crook, always a crook, was Javert's philosophy. And when he discovered at last he had the goods on Jean Vallean and it was his duty to arrest him, he discovered simultaneously that Jean Valjean was also a good and noble man, which proved extremely embarrassing to Javert."

"I understand how that could be, all right, Doc. What did Javert do then?" "He climbed up on the railing of a bridge ever the Seine, unpinned his shield, threw it into the river and jumped in after it."

"He committed suicide in order te give his man the breaks."

"Exactly." "Well," Dan McNamara decided after pondering this a half minute, "I wouldn't be boob enough to do that, He should have made a stool pigeon out of Jean Valjean and maybe he'd have gotten somewhere in his job." Stephen smiled. He liked this heavy man, with the Celtic face as in-scrutable as a Chinaman's. As a specialist in mental diseases he knew the part heredity plays in the formation of character, and one did not have to look at the chief twice to know that he came of courageous ancestry. No vague fears or anxieties in this fellow. Stephen thought. Courageous men are usually honest men; even when they are not honest they are sufficiently courageous to pay the price, no matter how high, for the things they do with their eyes open-to pay it cheerfully and refrain thereafter from whimper-

ing. "So you're going to protect this girl, are you, Chief?" TO BE CONTINUED.

I. Naomi's Sojourn in Moab (Ruth 1:1, 2).

On account of famine in the land of Judah, Naomi with her husband and two sons emigrated to the land of Moab. It is strangely inconsistent for a man whose name means "my God is King," who has a wife whose name is "the pleasant one," and who lives in a town which means "house of bread," to sojourn in the enemy's country on account of famine at home

II. Naomi's Bereavement (Ruth 1:3-

After the death of her husband, her two sons married Moabitish women. In a short time, her sons also died. This is a dreary picture—three widows in the same home in a short time. III. Her Return to Bethlehem (Ruth 1:6-22

Having heard that the Lord had visited his people in Judah in giving them bread, Naomi decided to return to her home land. After she had experienced chastisement she returned. 1. Ruth accompanies her. When the time came for Naomi to go from Moab, Ruth and Orpah accompanied her for a distance. She frankly placed before them the difficulties which would confront them, and repeatedly urged them to turn back. a. No chance to marry again. She reminded Ruth and Orpah that she had no more sons for whom they could wait.

b. Their heathen gods must be renounced (v. 15). She made it quite clear to them that idolatry could not be practiced in the land where God's people dwelt. c. Though Orpah went back, Ruth stood the test. Her mind was fully made up. She was willing to accept as her God the One who was able to produce in his subjects the nobility of character she observed in Naomi. 2 Naomi's reception. Her arrival made a stir in Bethlehem. The people recognized her and perceived a marked change wrought in her. Ten years of such trials would make a noticeable change even outwardly, but the change was mainly inward. She asked that her name he changed to Mara.

IV. Naomi's Gracious and Tactful Behavior (Ruth 2, 3).

1. She remembered her wealthy kinsman (ch. 2). In the case of a forfelted possession, it was incumbent upon the nearest kinsman to redeem tt. Boaz was a kinsman. It was necessary for both Naomi and Ruth to have food. Barley harvest afforded that opportunity. The divine provision was made for the poor when the harrest was gathered (Lev. 19:9, 10; 23:22: Deut. 21:19). The matter was talked over between Naomi and Bath, and arrangement was made for Ruth to glean in the field of Boaz.

2. Naomi seeking rest for Ruth (ch. 3). This rest was to be in the house of a husband. Other things being equal, such is the only real place of rest for a woman. Naomi instructed Ruth as to her toilet preparations so as to be attractive and then also as to presenting her claim upon Boaz to perform the duty of a kinsman in redeeming the forfeited estate because of the sojourn in Moab. The redemption of the estate involved not only the ability to pay the price of the forfelted possession, but also the marrying of the woman,

V. Naomi's Reward (4:14-17). 1. Blessed by the women of Bethlehem (vv. 14, 15). The birth of a son to Ruth was the occasion of this blessing. It meant the perpetuation of the line of kinship, and looked forward to the true Redeemer, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

2. She became the nurse for her grandson (v. 16). This not only provided her with a home and living, but with the opportunity of helping on the purpose of God in the coming redemption.

3. The baby given a name (v. 17). "Obed" means "servant of God." Ruth thus became a link in the ancestral chain of our Kinsman and Redeemer, Jesus Christ. The introduction of a Gentile into this line indicated the outreach of the redemptive purpose of God, which extends to the peoples of the whole world.

A marked characteristic of the progressive man is that he is always improving something somewhere. He has a horror of possible deterioration, and he knows the demoralizing, disin-

AN ANNUAL PICNIC FOR TAHOKA

We are wondering why Tahoka could not have some kind of a celebration or gathering annually—a county fair, a Fourth of July picnic, a rodeo, or an old settlers reunion. Some went to Lubbock, to Slaton, to Colorado, to Morton, to Sudan, or to the Palo Duro Canyon. Several hundred dollars went away from Tahoka never to return. But people

Time Changes!

The human race from the beginning of time has waged an unceasing battle against that destroyer of food, the microbe.

- Most of us have intimate knowledge of the spring houses where our mothers and grandmothers set pans of milk in the waters of underground springs, or in the deep, dirt floored cellars where the cream was stored until churning day.

Artificial ice played a noble part in the advancement of our civilization. It brought better food and better health to millions of people, and it enabled the white man to live in the tropics with a reasonable degree of comfort.

Just as artificial ice was a long step forward over natural means, so the electrical refrigerators of the present are a vast improvement over the type of refrigeration we knew of a short ten years

No matter what size family you have, or what your income, you can enjoy the many advantages and conveniences of electric refrigeration. A size to fit every need. Convenient terms.

Lady's Painful Trouble Helped By Cardui

Why do so many women take Cardui for the relief of functional pains at monthly times? The answer is that they want results such as Mrs. Herbert W. Hunt, of Hallsville, Texas, describes. She writes: "My health wasn't good. I suffered from cramping. My pain would be so intense it would nauseate me. I would just drag around, so sluggish and 'doless.' My mother decided to give me sluggish feeling was gone and the pains disappeared. I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me." . . . If Cardui does not help YOU, consult a physician.

Made Little Detours Into Almost Everybody's Yard on the Trip, and It Required the Assistance of the Families Owning the Yards to Get Her Out of Some of Them.

The Zebra

By James J. Montague

CHE was supposed to be partly Jersey and partly other things. I firmly believed, after the first time I drove her to pasture that she was at least half zebra. This opinion was based on her markings, which I afterward learned were called brindles These were darkish yellow stripes that extended from her spine down her sides, much as her ribs would have appeared had there been X-ray machines in those days, and if she would have submitted to any internal photographings, which, from what I know of her I know she would not.

My father proudly drove her home one night and committed her to my among them, and the other cows had care. He said that a boy of twelve ought to be able to take charge of a cow-especially such a nice gentle cow as this one. While he was saying this the animal turned her head slightly and glanced at me out of the corner of one eye. I knew from that time forward that we two were not soon to be friends. She proceeded to confirm that conviction the first time I attempted to milk her.

I approached her gingerly on the effort flattened me against its wall. I protected myself with my fist, the only weapon I had at hand. She braced her feet against the floor and pushed a little harder. My breath departed from my body, but I managed to worm my way out and dive underneath her to the other side of the stall, where there was more room. She split tacks and came after me again, but this time I had backed away to

What to do about it? I could not admit that an undersized cow, however ugly her disposition, could defeat me. I got a long pole that was formerly used to separate two horses in another stall. One end of this I braced against a cleat on the floor, the other I wedged into her ribs. Then I balanced myself on the pole and jumped as hard as my eighty pounds would permit. Taken by surprise she moved over. And for a time she remained so astonished that I was able to extract about a quart of milk from her. Then, she recovered from her astonishment, and with one swift motion of her off hind hoof scattered that quart of milk on the stable floor. I gave up and went into the house, declaring that I had not been trained in a zoo, and was wholly unfitted by size and craft to compete with a wild animal.

*Drive her out to pasture tomorrow, and you will get acquainted with her. But don't half-milk her any more. That's how cows go dry." My father was a man who expected to be obeyed. I went to bed and dreamed that I was flying over a fence with a pair of horns immediately behind me. When I woke up I was consoled by the fact that I felt little pain, and then I thought of driving that cow to pas-

Practically nothing can spoil a boy's breakfast, but my mother observed that I ate only three waffles and was alarmed. "I think your father should have driven the cow to the pasture the first day, anyway," she said. "But never mind. She is only a cow. She won't hurt you."

Completely convinced of the error of this statement, and of woman's native inability to understand animals, I went grudgingly to the barn. My charge was sleeping placidly and when I prodded her indicated by a snort that she did not wast her beauty nap disturbed. I insisted-with the stick, and she rose and looked at me.

It was a look of unfriendliness, I might say of positive dislike. But she was a little more patient about suffering the loss of her milk. I had the bucket a quarter full before she kicked it over. That I recognized as a victory, and proudly bore the milk into the house. My mother looked at it disdainfully. "I thought John said she was an eight quart cow," she said. "You better go back and see if she hasn't been holding out."

I went back, but I postponed any argument about holding out till evening. The cow was glad errough to get out of the stable, but she was under a misapprehension as to where the pasture was. She thought it was out on the front lawn, which my father | dinner.

watched and tended as if it were a park. Three times the two of us made a circuit of this before I could persuade her to go out through the gate.

The pasture was half a mile away, but we covered three times that distance on the journey. We made little detours into almost everybody's yard on the trip, and it required the assistance of the families owning the yards to get her out of some of them. But she finally reached the pasture, and with a sigh of triumph I put up the bars and bid her au revoir.

When I returned at night our cow was on one side of the pasture, and the others were huddled together, regarding her affrightedly from a distance. I learned from one of the other boys that there had been trouble decided to allow our cow to go her way while they went theirs. Several of the owners of these cows came to our house that night and sarcastically inquired when my father was going to buy a tiger to herd with their cattle. He only laughed, and said he guessed cows would be cows. He was one of the supposedly rich men of the town, and he could get away with a good

I did that by She moved over gently toward the side | slipping rope nooses around the creaof her stall, and without any apparent | ture's neck and hind feet, so that her radius of action was considerably limited. My father congratulated me on my ability to get along with her. "At this rate," said he, "she'll soon be giving as much milk as a yearling helfer. Keep up the good work."

Between the constable's bull dog and myself there existed an old feud. It began when I was borrowing some apples from the constable's tree, and the dog came around to object. I remained in the tree while he was expressing his discontentment with my behavior. I remained there out of prudence till my parents missed me at supper and turned out to hunt me. When I was discovered there was an argument between the families, and an alarming threat on the part of the constable to put me into the lock up. But he didn't, and I thought the trouble was forgotten.

And it was forgotten by everybody except the dog. It appears that he had borne it in mind steadily, and was only looking for an opportunity. He thought he had found it one morning when, the cow and I having become resigned to each other, she and I were taking our way to the pasture. To do this we had to pass through the alley behind the constable's house, and there the dog had entrenched himself and lay in wait for the enemy.

Ignoring the cow, he leaped lightly over the fence and started for me. do not think the cow would have picked a quarrel with him over me, but the dog caromed off her as he was darting for me, and she was annoyed. She backed around in front of him, her horns close to the ground. The dog dodged to one side, and she followed him. This continued for a few seconds till the dog decided to make an end of it. He backed off a few paces, and then made a rush, snarling. Down came the cow's horns and when they went up again the dog was having a nice free ride on them. An instant later he landed on the other side of the high board fence behind the doctor's house. The cow walked up to the fence, butted it down -for it was a flimsy affair-and chased the dog up on the back porch.

There was trouble about that, but it was finally settled. The cow and were soon little buddles togetherand for the first time since I was a baby, I was not afraid of being picked on by any bully in school. "Lay off him," the other boys would say to the mean ones. "You don't want to come home hangin' onto ole Zebra's horns, do you?" And none of them appeared to have any such desire.

Soup His Downfall Almost to the time of the Civil war, Americans considered soup an effeminate dish and no "red-blooded" mar would be caught eating it, writes Cameron Koppenhoefer, Ray Brook, N. Y., in Collier's Weekly. Gen. Winfield Scott, one of our greatest soldiers and Indian fighters, covered himself with ridicule and contributed materially to his defeat in the Presidential campaign of 1852 by admitting, in an unguarded moment, that he was to have soup for

White Sheers Keynote Summer Chic

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HE forthstanding note in summer I fashions is the increased interest in femininity. Wherefore the glory of diaphanous materials of rapturous loveliness once more, as in the picturesque days of old, hold sway in the realm of pretty summery apparel. Everywhere dotted swisses, embroidered or plain organdies and nets, chiffons and dainty sheers of multi-type flatter the summer landscape. The call for white is insistent in these weaves of elusive ethereal beauty with new and delectable colors putting forth rival

First and foremost among the new sheers is mousseline de sole. The important message about these voguish mousselines is that modern science has succeeded in producing a washable type-comes from a tubbing as fresh and lovely as ever was. Every woman who heretofore lamented the fact of the un-washability of the exquisite mousselines which are so dear to her heart will rejoice at the good tidings that there is a new mousseline de sole which actually can be laundered. And here's some more good news-a mousseline de sole which is shadowpatterned in self-color. You'll love it! Makes up adorably over a taffeta foundation. Comes in white or pastels, with first honors going, however, to white, since white keynotes to summer chic. For that "one more" party frock to add to your summer collection, why not choose plain or shadow-patterned mousseline de soie?

FROG FASTENINGS USED EXTENSIVELY

Frogs have hopped into the middle of the fashion swim this season. Frog fastenings are used on everything from evening gowns to summer suits, and lend an opportunity for original color contrasts and a new casual air for more or less formal costumes. Time was when the field of the frog fastening was limited to pajamas, but that time is no more. You'll be seeing them on the newest shirtwaist frocks this season, on suits of wool and linen, on blouses and summer coats, on beach frocks and evening gowns. Schlaparelli uses gold frog fastenings down the front of a green dinner gown, in a manner both decorative and military. Evening gowns often employ one huge frog fastening at the neckline, and lightweight woolen coats for summer are shown with frogs all the way down the front.

Madness of Anarchism Seems to Be Passing

In the '60s, '70s and '80s, in Italy, Spain and, above all, Russia, the mad wisdom of the anarchist gospel had a strong hold on many people, and the history of the Nineteenth century is full of their bloody deeds. Now only small factions of the party still remain in Italy and Spain.

The real anarchist sees the only way to happiness through the destruction of all kinds of governments. To an anarchist a Bolshevist government is just as bad as a monarchy. If he could, he would gladly kill any high official who represented the principles of ordered government.

A real anarchist should not be confused with those sporadic madmen whose deeds we have witnessed in recent years. The murderer of Mayor Cermak of Chicago, Zangara, who confessed that he had an inner urge to kill the President, was not an anarchist but just criminally insane. So was the slayer of President McKinley or the wretch who killed Empress Elizabeth in Switzer land two generations ago.

The real anarchist is mostly a wide-eyed idealist who has acquired a queer little twist in some corner of his brain. Behind the explosions of bombs and the scattered remains of his victims he sees a new and better world rising. Fortunately for us; this strange specimen of humanity seems to be disappearing.-Harry Soderman in the Forum and Century.

The ditch was about six feet deep and the car was almost totally demolished.

Guy Bulman's arm was severely cut just below the elbow, one knee was badly injured, and three upper teeth were knockd out. Robert Maddox received a cut over the right eye that required sixteen stitches to close. Charles Townes, James Minor and A. J. Thompson sustained only minor injuries. Eighteen months ago, we started anew in the produce business, announcing that we would operate INDEPENDENTLY paying CASH for your produce. Because you have been loyal to us, we have been able to maintain that policy. Your fine cooperation has enabled us to take a step forward, and we are going to offer you something different from anything you have ever had in a produce house, a place where you will be glad to meet your neighbor, where the ladies may sit down and rest, a place that is clean and sanitary, free from offensive odors.

Invite you to bring your cream and poultry troubles to us. We do not know it all, but there are many things about them that we do know and we will be glad to assist you in any way that we can.

You sell to us, we pay you the CASH. Also, we give you an itemized record, showing how your produce is graded and paid for. If you are not satisfied, we want you to TELL US. We are always glad to correct an error.
