AAA BENEFITS LYNN FARMERS

County Agent V. F. Jones Points Out Profit To Local Farmers From Set-Up

While the cotton income of Lynn County Farmers was much less in 1934 than in 1933, and even less than the disastrous year of 1932, it was more than fifty per cent larger than it would have been had there been no adjustment program. It was announced by V. F. Jones, County Agent. The statement is based on official three-year county cotton figures just received from the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Lynn County last year received a total of $1,063,072.44 for their cotton of which only $726,961.92 came from the market value. Benefit payments which are designed to help bridge the gap between market price and parity price in normal years, served as crop insurance to Lynn county farmers in 1934. They received in this way a total of $336,110.52 through April 30th last.

These cotton income figures do not include the value of unsold Bankhead certificates of which about nine million dollars' worth are held by Texas farmers.

Lynn county cotton was valued on the farm at $2,277,133.33 in 1932. It increased sharply in 1933, he plow up year, to $4,743,445.17 including benefit payments. These values are based on yields and prices as furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture. The benefit payments include all those to April 30th to 1935.

Commenting on Lynn county cotton income for the last three years as revealed in these official figures, Mr. Jones points out that crop insurance benefit payments for 1934-35 enabled farmers to survive a bad crop year. More than a third of a million dollars as benefit payments and more than two hundred thousand dollars from the sale of pooled cotton certificates was put into local circulation that would not have been possible without a program. It is difficult to see how farmers could have maintained their farms and homes and remained customers of merchants last year without the program, he concludes.

Drilling Well On Court House Lawn

A well is being drilled hard by the tool house on the extreme east portion of the court house lawn to supply water to be used in irrigating the lawn. L. M. Nordyke is drilling the well for a consideration, we understand, of forty dollars.

Recently, the city water supply has been insufficient, and the trees have suffered from the drought. The grass, too, is brown and sere. The commissioners court decided that a well on the lawn would be worth many times the cost.

Run Electric Line To New City Well

Texas Utilities Company linemen are busy this week stringing an electric power line to the new city water well on the Park's farm a mile northeast of town.

City officials had not yet made a deal for water piping for the line from the well to the city standpipe Thursday, Mayor Jim Dye stated, but were expected to buy this necessary equipment soon.

The new water well flowed 300 gallons per minute under test, which is about ten times that of the best well the city now has.

HOOVER IS IN HOSPITAL WITH HEAD DISORDER

R. A. Hoover, manager of Jones Dry Goods, who several days ago went to St. Louis to buy fall and winter merchandise, is in a hospital in that city suffering with some head disorder, according to word received Thursday morning by Mrs. Hoover.

His condition is not thought to be critical but if his condition does not improve, she expects to leave soon for his bedside. Mr. Hoover underwent treatment last spring for mastoid and sinus troubles.

Methodist Church Being Renovated

Work of renovating the Methodist Church is in progress this week preparatory to the formal dedication of the building this fall, when the church expects to be free of debt.

Woodwork, outside and inside, is being re-painted, the walls calcimined, and other repairs made in order to put the building in first class shape.

Start Football Training Monday

Coach Prentice Walker announces that he will begin fall football training at the high school Monday of next week. All boys who are not working are urged by him to 'come out' and get this pre-season conditioning. Intensive training will not start until the opening of school, however.

Supt. W. G. Barrett this week bought considerable new football equipment, including twenty new jerseys, eleven pair of pants, balls, etc.

With the prospective enrollment of a number of new students from the rural schools, Coach Walker hopes to have a better football team this year than last.

Tahoka Loses Baseball Game

Tahoka lost her baseball game to Lubbock on that city's diamond Sunday afternoon in a thrilling exhibition in which three homers were hit, one by the local boys and two by the city sluggers. The score was 4 to 2.

Tahoka had defeated Lubbock the previous Sunday here, and the city diamond-artists were really out for revenge with everything they had, the locals report.

New Lynn School Opened Monday

Monday, August 12, the New Lynn School opened with an enrollment of 101 pupils.

The Reverend Mr. Robinson who has just closed a successful meeting at the New Lynn Baptist Church gave an address which was well worth hearing, as all who have heard him can say.

The community showed much interest and enthusiasm by being present in a large number. Many of the patrons expressed themselves as looking forward to a profitable and pleasant year of work. Each of the members of the school board was present and in fine spirits. They are working hard for the school and need the cooperation of the community.

Superintendent J. B. Bolin has been in the community for several days and has already established himself as an up and going school man. The class rooms have been reworked and now have a clean, tidy appearance which means much to children who are to work in them.

Mr. Bolin and Mr. Williams have cleaned the grounds and are planning many improvements in the way of tennis courts, volley ball courts and playing space for other games.

Other members of the faculty are Mrs. Bolin and Miss Marie Barton. They are contributing their part toward the building of a successful school year. Cooperation of the patrons with the school board and the faculty will bring the desired results. So, let's go, folks! Meet your teachers. They want to know you. They want to serve you.—Contributed.

Mr. and Mrs. Kary Mathis returned Friday from a pleasure trip of a few days to the Carlsbad Cavern and to Ruidosa. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Fetherree of Abilene. Mr. Fetherree has been a teacher in the Abilene schools for a number of years and is a long-time friend of Mr. Mathis.

Early Monday morning a fine rain fell in the Grassland, Redwine, Magnolia, New Lynn and other communities in the eastern portion of the county, ranging from a half inch to more than an inch, according to reports given the News. Nice showers fell in other communities. The precipitation in Tahoka amounted to only .11 of an inch. Some portions of the county received no rain at all and it was very light in most of the county.

In the favored sections, crop prospects are just as fine as could be wished. The condition of cotton remains fairly good throughout the county, but feed in large areas is suffering from the drought.

Free Trip Offered Confederate Vets

If there are any ex-Confederate veterans in Lynn county who wish to attend the Confederate Reunion to be held in Amarillo on September 3-6, they will be given free transportation by Bill Watson of the South Plains Coaches, a coach driver told a News representative Monday night.

This will be the last Confederate Reunion to be held. Only a few veterans are left but a few will doubtless be there from every state in the South.

There are only a very few ex-Confederates in Lynn county, of course, and some of these are too feeble to attend the Reunion, but it may be that there are a few who will be able to accept Mr. Watson's proposition. He can be seen at the Coach station in Lubbock.

Return From Trip To Old Kentucky

Mr. and Mrs. John Beard and children, Mrs. M. L. Denton, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Chancey, returned Tuesday from a trip of three weeks' duration back to old Kentucky.

Mrs. Denton visited her parents at Gradville, whom she had not seen since she was married 28 years ago. While there they attended a family reunion with 45 relations present.

John declares that if the people in this country would raise "eating stuff" here like they do there, Lynn county would not know there was a depression. He says at the family reunion they attended all the products served on the table were raised at home. They didn't even have to go to town for groceries of any kind.

Leta Tarrance And Burton Hackney Wed

The marriage of Miss Leta Tarrance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Tarrance, 2113 Fifteenth street, to Burton G. Hackney, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hackney of Pickton, took place Saturday evening at 7 o'clock at the bride's home with Dr. Jack M. Lewis, First Presbyterian minister, reading the simple ring ceremony.

The rites were read as the couple stood before a background of fern, roses and gladioli.

The bride wore a traveling suit of navy blue sheer crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Immediately after the service, the couple left for a wedding trip to Ruidosa, N. M., and later will be at home in Brownfield, where Mr. Hackney is an attorney.

Mrs. Hackney, former student of Texas Technological college, is a charter member of Ko-Shari social club. She taught school at Grassland for the last two years.

Mr. Hackney is also a former Tech student.

The immediate family and Judge and Mrs. G. H. Nelson and Fred Barker of Tahoka were wedding guests.—Lubbock Journal.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Callaway returned the first of the week from their camp on the Colorado River near San Saba, where they spent about three weeks.

Our good friend Harry Woods brought us a sack of corn Saturday, which we have been greatly enjoying—a sack of corn, we said, not a jug.

Tom Garrard Is Speaker At Club

The entertainment program at the luncheon club Tuesday was under the direction of Miss O'Bera Forrester and consisted of a brief reading by little Bitsey Haney, tap dancing by Eloise and Betty Sue Roberts, and piano selections by Miss Marjory Wells.

The principal talk of the day was made by Hon. Tom Garrard, who called attention to the fact that Tahoka is soon to have an abundance of good water produced by the new well recently drilled, and he suggested that the luncheon club take up the matter of establishing a municipal swimming pool and beautifying the city park. He spoke at considerable length in favor of each of these proposed projects and was heartily applauded at the close of his discussion.

Frank Hill made a brief statement setting out the fact that there will be a number of new students in the high school this year from neighboring districts and that there are others who would come if they could be given jobs or could be given places in homes here where they could work and earn their expenses. He also called attention to the fact that the addition of these pupils would furnish material for the building of a better football team and asked the assistance and cooperation of the business-men of Tahoka in making it possible for these boys to come to school. In this connection he mentioned the fact that Tahoka has a coach of recognized ability in Prentice Walker, who was assistant coach at the North Texas State Teachers College before coming to Tahoka and was recently offered the position of assistant coach of the Galveston High School.

Mr. Walker was called on for a few remarks, and he emphasized the fact that there are a number of fine youths who desire to attend the Tahoka High School the coming year but will probably be unable to do so unless they can find work to pay their expenses. He stated that his chief aim was not merely to add good football material to the school but was to furnish an opportunity to worthy boys who desire an education. He stated that he had promised to help these boys in every way possible and desired the cooperation of the business men of Tahoka in this matter.

G. H. Nelson briefly called the attention of the club to the dire needs of a family who are in distress. The mother and children were deserted by the father two or three years ago and are now without food and practically without clothing. Members of the club made donations amounting to a little more than fourteen dollars and more was promised if needed.

BOY SCOUTS PLAN TO GO SWIMMING THIS AFTERNOON

The Boy Scouts of Tahoka will leave here Friday evening at five o'clock for Lubbock where they will go swimming and spend the remainder of the afternoon there.

All Boy Scouts must meet at the Court House lawn at five o'clock Friday evening.—Reporter.

Smith Is Back For Sunday Services

Having been out of my pulpit for some time, I am sending this invitation to all who are interested in the services of the Methodist Church to be with us next Sunday morning and evening.

I have recently closed a successful revival campaign at Wheeler, Texas. There were seventeen conversions and twenty-four additions to the Church. I am very glad to be back with my own people and shall be very happy to greet a large congregation Sunday morning. Pray that we may have a great service.—H. C. Smith.

Mrs. R. C. Forrester and her mother, Mrs. A. N. Hughes, and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Scott of Lubbock left Tuesday morning for a week's visit with relatives at Greenville and Quinlan.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Davis, Mrs. J. O. Tinsley and baby, and Mrs. Daniel Davis attended the reunion of old settlers at Desdemonia Friday.

Oil Test Passes 4,000 Foot Mark

The oil test of the Wanete Oil Company on the T-Bar ranch, ten miles west of Tahoka, was down to a depth of 4,000 feet late Wednesday.

Anhydrite was reported to be the formation in which the drill bit was boring.

Fireboys Win In Softball Series

The softball season is over and the Fireboys are the champions—even members of the Bankers' team admit they lost to superior artists of the diamond.

The Bankers, winners of the second half of the split-season, which ended last week, lost three straight games of a scheduled best three out of five series Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to the Fireboys, winners of the first half season. The scores, respectively, were 5-3, 7-0, and 7-3.

Softball has for two summers now furnished recreation to the business men of Tahoka, drawing large crowds at the games five evenings a week. Never has any one sport developed as much interest and wholesome entertainment and recreation here as this one, and it is expected that the game will be resumed next summer.

Attend Reunion At Old Hankins College

C. O. Carmack and Mrs. A. B. Swan of Tahoka, Dr. J. C. Carmack of San Bernardino, California, and their mother, Mrs. C. F. Carmack of Lamesa, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Anglin and their two children, Lenore and Roy, attended a reunion of the ex-students of the Hankins Normal College at Gorman Monday.

The reunion was held under a big tabernacle and about three hundred people were present.

The Hankins Normal College was operated at Gorman from 1902 to 1912 by J. H. and J. F. Hankins, twin brothers, who now reside in Lubbock. Three or four hundred pupils are said to have attended the school annually. Among these were most of the Tahoka people above mentioned.

Burleson-Milam Reunion August 18

A reunion of former Burleson and Milam county residents now living on the South Plains will be conducted Aug. 18 at the home of Fritz Speckman seven miles west of New Home.

Picnic baskets will be carried, it is announced.

FAMILIES MOVING

C. E. Woodworth moved Tuesday into his newly constructed five-room stucco home, located about three blocks east of the high school building. County Agent V. F. Jones moved Wednesday into the residence vacated by Mr. Woodworth and the new superintendent of schools, W. G. Barrett, and his family are moving into the residence heretofore occupied by Mr. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Thomas and Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Thomas returned Sunday from a pleasure trip to Southwest Texas. They spent much of the time at old Fort Davis in the Davis Mountains, a place of scenic beauty and great historic interest. A. I. brought back many interesting pictures and a part of an old rusty pistol recently found on the site of the old fort. It evidently had been lost or discarded there many years ago.

Mrs. Belton Howell, who has been ill for several days, was carried to the hospital at Lubbock early Thursday morning. Word was received later in the day that her condition was critical and that the surgeons were preparing to operate.

FACULTY NOT YET COMPLETE

Board Expects To Elect Two Or Three More Teachers; Aggie Teacher Named

Tahoka public schools will open the 1935-'36 term Thursday, September 5, members of the school board have decided. Enrollment will likely require Thursday and Friday, with classroom work beginning on Monday.

On last Friday night at a special meeting of the school board, W. F. Stubbs of Lubbock was elected teacher of vocational agriculture in the high school here, succeeding J. D. Strickland, who resigned to accept a similar position at Olton. Mr. Stubbs is a graduate of the Texas Technological College.

Two and possibly three teachers are yet to be elected in order to complete the faculty for the coming year. A teacher of science, who will probably conduct a band, is to be elected for work in the high school. With the expected increase in enrollment, the board intends to elect one more teacher, and in all probability two, for work in the grades at Central Wrd.

Supt. W. G. Barrett arrived with his family Wednesday night, and is completing final arrangements for opening of the term.

Sanders Filling Station Burns

The filling station operated by Carl Sanders on the highway six miles east of town was completely destroyed by fire last Friday night.

Lee Sanders was overcome by the heat and collapsed while fighting the fire. The youth was brought to town in an unconscious condition, where he received medical attention. He has entirely recovered, we understand, from the injury. He is a younger brother of Carl Sanders.

The fire originated when an attendant at the station detected a leak of gas at the pump. He took a lantern out to the pump to make a more minute investigation, when the fumes ignited. Fire flashed through the building almost instantly and it was impossible to extinguish the flames.

The building belonged to H. B. McCord and was insured for only about one-third of its value. It was totally destroyed. Mr. Sanders lived in a room in the rear end of the building and had a stock of groceries in the front end. He and others managed to save about three-fourths of his groceries and household goods. He carried no insurance.

The construction of a new building was begun Wednesday. The new structure will be of stucco finish and will be a somewhat better building than the one destroyed. Mr. Sanders will continue to operate the station and store in the new building.

Baby Of Former Myrtle Hill Dies

A baby boy born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rochelle in Breckenridge Hospital Friday died at 9:30 Wednesday night, according to a message received here. Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Hill and Berta Hill left immediately for Breckenridge to attend the funeral Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Rochelle is the former Miss Myrtle Hill.

BUILDS ADOBE

L. F. Craft has a new double garage with an upstairs apartment under construction in the northwest part of town. In the excavation of the building will be room for storage of two cars, while a good-sized apartment is built above from adobe construction, plastered and stuccoed.

NEW AWNING IS BUILT

A new awning was built this week on the building occupied by Jane's Beauty Shoppe.

Share-the-Wealth Measure Is Passed by the House

Violently attacked from all sides and nowhere defended with enthusiasm, the President's new share-the-wealth tax bill nevertheless was put through the house because of the great administration majority and also because the congressmen are tired out and eager to go home.

Sen. Barbour

As passed by the house, the bill is not quite what the President asked for. Briefly summarized, it increases taxes on individual incomes over $50,000, substitutes a graduated corporation-income tax for the present flat levy, puts new taxes on inheritances and gifts in addition to those already borne by estates and gifts, imposes new taxes of 5 to 20 per cent on "excess" profits of corporations.

It is designed to raise revenue estimated at between $250,000,000 and $270,000,000. Its warmest friends couldn't explain how this would do much in the way of bringing about what the President calls "wider distribution of wealth," or in the way of balancing the budget.

The measure was handed on to the senate with dubious prospects. It was expected the senate finance committee would study it for about a week, and in the meanwhile the conservative Republicans and not a few Democrats were preparing to fight it.

Declaring the bill "has no relation to making income meet out, but is intended to accomplish some weird social objective," Barbour continued: "What this bill actually attempts is to climb upon that hard-riden steed, 'Share-the-Wealth,' and ride him away while the demagogues who have pressed him sorely in the past are looking in the other direction."

"The bill should be laid away until the next session of congress when the budget for the ensuing year will be presented. Then, in the light of carefully appropriated federal moneys, we can determine how much revenue will be needed to operate."

"Taxes can be levied deliberately as a true revenue measure. Any other program is not good business and is not good government."

One change made by the house against the President's wishes involved corporations' gifts to charities. Mr. Roosevelt was firmly against letting corporations deduct from their taxable income any gifts to charity. Just as firmly the house voted to let them deduct up to 5 per cent of their incomes.

O'Mahoney Has a Scheme to Revive Objectives of NRA NOT to be dismayed by the death of NRA, Senator J. C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming thinks the objectives of that contraption, high labor standards and fair competition, can be realized, and for that purpose he has drawn up a measure for the regulation of all national commerce by licensing business.

The senator, who is a lawyer, carefully avoided the phrase "interstate commerce." He proposed to define "commerce among the states" in the language of the leading decisions of the Supreme court.

Japanese Emperor "Insulted" By an American Caricature

JAPANESE consider their emperor a sacred personage, and consequently there was deep resentment in the island empire when Vanity Fair, an American magazine, printed a caricature of Hirohito. That issue of the magazine was banned in Japan because the picture was "considered insulting to the Japanese imperial house and if circulated in Japan might disturb public peace."

More than that, Ambassador Hiroshi Saito interrupted his vacation in New England and hurried to Washington to prepare a report on the affair and receive instructions from Tokyo. There was uncertainty as to whether he would make a formal protest or merely take up the matter directly with the magazine's editors.

One State department spokesman said Japanese officials realized that the American government had no control over the press, but cable dispatches said Japanese newspapers criticized their embassy here for alleged failure to see that "such indignities" were not published. The dispatches also reported that the Japanese home and foreign office officials characterized the caricature as "terrible." It showed the emperor pulling an old-fashioned jinriksha in which reposed the Nobel peace prize.

Frank Crowninshield, editor of Vanity Fair, said this caricature, like the many others run in the magazine, was meant to be merely jocose.

Huge Sum Is Allotted for American Business Census

NEARLY $8,000,000—$7,784,000, to be exact—has been allotted from the work relief funds by President Roosevelt for a census of American business. The census bureau asked and received this after it had been allotted $293,000 for a survey of retail trade. The business work is to begin at once, and the canvass will start on January 2. According to the official announcement, it will cover "all business activities with the exception of agriculture and manufacturing industries, and will furnish information of importance to the federal government, to business and to labor."

The headquarters will be in Philadelphia. The aim of the census, the officials said, "is to secure basic information relating to the number of operating units, employment, pay rolls, receipts and other business data for all business enterprises."

Necessarily, the census will give temporary employment to a large number of canvassers. Rexford G. Tugwell, head of the re-employment administration, asked for a second allotment to develop unproductive land withdrawn from cultivation. He wanted $10,381,510 for eight tracts in seven states, and estimated that their development as hunting, fishing and camping preserves would provide 6,731 jobs lasting from 15 to 23 days. These projects are in Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, New York, Georgia and Connecticut.

League Delays Settlement of Italo-Ethiopian Quarrel CAPT. ANTHONY EDEN, British minister for League of Nations affairs, was exceedingly busy in Geneva trying to find a way to avert war between Italy and Ethiopia. He was aided and abetted by Premier Laval of France and together they evolved a plan for procedure by the league council which appeared promising, until it was communicated to Premier Mussolini. Then Baron Aloisi, Italian delegate, announced the Eden-Laval formula was "entirely unacceptable."

However, hope was not abandoned for there was a chance that modifications could be made that would satisfy the demands of the Italians.

The league council finally, in a brief public session, set aside Ethiopia's demand for immediate action and agreed to undertake a general examination of the whole matter a month hence. It provided for resumption of arbitration of the clash at Udmal, stipulating that the arbitrators should not attempt to pass on the ownership of the territory on which the clash occurred—which is the root of the matter.

The arbitrators must finish their work or abandon it before September 1. The two disputants are to report the result to the council by September 4.

Emperor Haile Selassie met his chiefs in council at Addis Ababa and they told him it might be now too late to prevent war for their tens of thousands of fighters were eager for hostilities to begin and could hardly be restrained. The emperor, however, sought to hold the chiefs back.

British Parliament Gives India a New Government

GREATER freedom for the 350,000,000 inhabitants of India under a new form of government is provided by the India bill finally enacted by the British parliament and approved by the king. The measure was the boldest ever passed by parliament, and its preparation took eight years.

The law sets up an all-India federated parliament, linked with eleven British Indian states with their own subordinate legislatures and such native states as decide to come in. It separates Burma and Assam from India and gives them also a large measure of self-government.

Pensions of Spanish War Veterans Are Now Restored

PASSAGE of the bill to restore $46,000,000 of Spanish war veterans' pensions was completed when the senate accepted the house measure, the only opposing vote being cast by Senator Hagging of Delaware. This nullifies the various adjustments made by the President for the purpose of economy to carry out the party pledge of a reduction of at least 25 per cent in the cost of administration of the federal government.

Germany As's Pun's ment of Attackers on the Bremen

GERMANY'S diplomatic note concerning the Communist attack on the liner Bremen in the port of New York took the form of a request that the offenders be punished but asked for no apology. Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, in his reply handed to the German charge d'Affaires, Dr. Rudolf Leitner, told briefly the efforts of the New York police to guard the vessel and to subdue the mob, and pointed out that some of those who took part in the attack were arrested. The German note said the incident constituted an insult to Germany.

In his press conference President Roosevelt declined to comment on the affair. Asked about the protest of Jewish organizations against the German government's religious attitude, the President intimated that the administration's view was fully expressed by Mr. Phillips' reply in which he expressed sympathy for anyone who was denied religious liberty.

Goebbels Insists on War on All "Enemies" of Nazidom

NOTWITHSTANDING warnings by Dr. Hjalmar Schacht and other sane Germans, some of the Nazi leaders insist on pushing to further extremes the war on Jews and Catholics. For instance, Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, in a speech at Essen announced drastic action against all "enemies" of the Nazi state—Jews, Catholics, the foreign press and the Stahlhelm war veterans. He predicted these important developments:

- 1. Suppression of the Catholic press and intensification of the Nazi campaign against all Catholic opponents of the third reich.
2. Nationwide dissolution of the Stahlhelm.
3. An official ban in near future on marriages between Jews and Aryans.

Death of Frederick Gillette, Former Speaker of the House

FREDERICK H. GILLETTE, who represented Massachusetts in the house for many years, for six years was speaker, and thereafter served as United States senator, died in Springfield, Mass., at the age of eighty-three. Able, dignified and unflinchingly courteous, Mr. Gillette was highly esteemed by his fellow congressmen, whatever their party affiliation. In his home town he was known as a politician who said little and did much.

Frank H. Hitchcock, publisher of the Daily Citizen of Tucson, Ariz., succumbed to pneumonia after several months of ill health. Prominent in Republican party politics all his mature life, Mr. Hitchcock managed Taft's Presidential campaign in 1908 both before and after the convention and was postmaster general in the Taft cabinet. For years he was actively interested in the progress of aviation.

Secretary Swanson Tells Plans for New Naval Bases

JAPAN will probably have another cause for complaint against the United States. Secretary of the Navy Swanson has announced that strongly fortified naval bases will be established in the Pacific ocean upon the expiration of the naval limitation treaties on January 1, 1937. He said he considered the creation of naval stepping stones in the Pacific an inevitable result of the treaties' expiration. He revealed that the navy long has given consideration to Pacific fortification problems and that impetus had been given to the study since Japan's abrogation of the naval treaties.

The necessity for adequate bases in the Pacific was demonstrated forcibly last May during the annual fleet maneuvers off Hawaii and the Aleutian Islands. According to reports, the navy high command in a report of the lessons learned in the exercises strongly recommended an Aleutian Islands base.

The United States naval bases are few and far between as against those of Japan and Great Britain, which lie along the principal courses of English and Japanese traffic lines.

Law Is Enacted That Insures Promotion for Many Officers

CONGRESS has passed and the President has signed a bill which assures promotion in the near future for about 5,000 army officers. It accelerates the advancement of commissioned officers below the grade of colonel and takes effect September 1. The act increases the number of colonels by 158, the number of lieutenant colonels by 304, and the number of majors by 800. More than 1,000 second lieutenants will be advanced immediately to the rank of first lieutenant, and 1,700 first lieutenants will become captains. In all 4,918 officers will receive immediate promotion.

Why So Many Men? Bitterness in Berlin Frank H. Hitchcock Dead The Snake Has Rights

Why does Mussolini need so many men for little Abyssinia? If he attacks, he will go through the air with bombs, poison gas or both. He certainly will not march hundreds of thousands of men through swamps and over hot sand. He now has 925,000 men under arms, with 340,000 Fascist militia ready to be called, plus 200,000 others, born two years before the big war started.

Arthur Brisbane

Is something else present or expected, back of all this man power? Even if Japan should come in, that would only mean a more complicated air war.

Berlin reports increased bitterness in the war against the Catholic church, with official posters, eight feet high, printed in red, scattered through the city, attacking alleged Catholic opposition to Nazi rule.

The posters speak of the "grafting Center (Catholic) party, working hand in hand with Bolshevism," and declare that Catholics, "the eternal enemies of the reich, wish to destroy the unity of Germany." The posters are believed to indicate new and more bitter attacks on Catholic organizations.

Many Americans will learn with sincere regret of the death of Frank H. Hitchcock, postmaster general in President's Taft's cabinet and at the time of his death publisher of the Tucson Daily Citizen.

Frank Hitchcock, typical, intelligent American, will be remembered as first to appreciate the airplane's importance in connection with distribution of mail. Twenty-four years ago, when flying was new, he flew, taking a pouch of mail with him, and advocated immediate use of planes over "impassable stretches of country."

At Thomaston, N. C., Rev. Campbell Holmes, "Holy Roller" preacher, slithered a rattlesnake to bite him as he preached, "Just to show you that God will take care of me." There was excitement and admiration in the congregation. Next day his arm was badly swollen, he was violently ill, death threatened, but the "Holy Roller" preacher refused medical attention. The reverend gentleman perhaps forgot that the same great Power that gave him his beautiful faith also gave the rattlesnake its powerful poison. Each creature has its gifts, not safely ignored.

Did you buy bonds in the big war excitement, when little ladies, seated on elephants, sang patriotic songs and begged you to give "till it hurts"?

One hundred and eighty-five million dollars' worth of government bonds are mislaid somewhere, perhaps hidden in old trunks, in desks, safe-deposit boxes, by those now dead. The government would like to get these past-due bonds and pay for them.

On the edge of the Sacramento river in California, a lady, thirty years old, appeared with a suitcase. While eight dances looked on, she undressed, then danced for some time on the edge of the water, finally plunged in, crying "I'm not coming back," and sank in midstream. That death-preceding dance is new in suicide.

One out of every three married couples in the United States is childless, news not complimentary to the childless families. Exceptions are cases in which nature refuses to send children.

You would not value a chain of steel with every third link broken, or a chain of heredity with every third link missing. This "childless family" news should make this country revise stupid laws against immigration, shutting out men and women willing to have children, and work for them.

Madame Evelyn, who reads the stars, the future, the crystal globe and the lines in your hand on the New Jersey beach, read the "lines" for a 200-pound customer, then sighed and said: "I see only trouble ahead of you."

The client also sighed, and he, says Madame Evelyn, stood up and said: "You are an excellent fortune teller, and here's the beginning of the trouble," and socked me on the jaw, knocking me out of my chair."

Americans interested in cotton production and wondering how long our export figures will stand up will want to know that Japanese cotton buyers have "folded up," as one Texas cotton grower put it; having moved out of Texas, apparently giving up all idea of buying cotton there.

The late Nathan Straus used to say: "If a German loses one of his relatives, he feels badly. If he loses money, he goes to bed sick."

German trade and industry will "go to bed sick" if it persists in its present attitude toward those that promote business and prosperity in every country where Jews are treated fairly.

WASHINGTON DIGEST

National Topics Interpreted by WILLIAM BRUCKART NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington.—One of the oldest and perhaps the most constant of all complaints about the federal government has been the tendency toward bureaucratic control. Bureaucratic control, simmered down, is red tape; it is attempted management of even personal affairs by a governmental agency and it is naturally and obviously repulsive to the average American. It was a condition thoroughly to be criticized in Mr. Hoover's administration when there were boards, bureaus, and commissions everywhere. It is even worse now, I believe, with all of the New Deal's alphabetic soup agencies scattered hither and yon in execution of various New Deal experiments and theories.

All of this constitutes a prelude to what appears to me to be a most flagrant attempt by bureaucrats to manage private affairs. I refer to an order issued the other day by the federal communications commission under which I cannot believe congress ever intended it should have. Further, the asserted jurisdiction which the commission is seeking to exercise goes far beyond anything which might be made the basis of complaint solely because it is bureaucratic. It has reached into the field of commercial enterprise in a manner which, without a doubt, will have the effect of covering invention and experiment in industry with a destructive frost bite—if the commission is allowed to get away with it.

The facts involved are these: The American Telephone and Telegraph company, which is spending millions of dollars annually in scientific research to improve our system of communications such as the telephone, the telegraph, and the radio, lately has perfected what is technically known as the coaxial cable. This cable is revolutionary. It holds the possibility of transmission of 240 telephonic conversations simultaneously over a single pair of wires. It is not commercially complete in all of its phases. Like every organization of sound judgment, the A. T. & T. wants to iron out weaknesses and imperfections through a period of experimental operation.

Here is where the federal communications commission enters the picture. As a courtesy, purely, the A. T. & T. submitted its plan for experimentation to the communications agency, saying as it did so that the commission did not have jurisdiction but that in the development of such a revolutionary invention the corporation was advising the commission of its plans and suggested that if the commission thought it had jurisdiction it could issue an experimental license covering the work. In all of this it is to be remembered that the communications commission has jurisdiction over rates, regulations, and practices of the wire, telephone and radio companies.

It seems that some bright young men in the communications commission immediately conceived the idea of having that gross take jurisdiction when legal authorities tell me there is nothing in the law giving them that authority. The story I get around the commission lobby is that the A. T. & T. would not have objected to having the commission exercise what it believed its right to be in granting a license for the experiment but when the order emerged from the secret chamber of the commission, it carried in it a provision which said that the commission could withdraw its approval and nullify the permission granted on 10 days' notice as it saw fit.

Suffice to say that this provision together with several other technical phases of the circumstances was enough to arouse the ire of the business men concerned. They are downright disgusted. They are downright sore. It is one of those things that politicians, undertrained in science, attempt to do that cause practical people to lose faith in their government.

If it were simply a fight between the A. T. & T. and the commission that is involved, the situation would hold no interest at all for me as a Washington writer. But, as I said above, it goes much further. I am told that some officials of the A. T. & T. are so dissatisfied with the attitude of the commission in this instance that they are ready, even anxious, to withdraw their application—and decline to proceed with this experiment which ultimately is going to mean enormous change in telephonic and telegraphic contact between cities located great distances apart. The A. T. & T. engineers have been working on this problem some six or seven years. They proposed to build 100 miles of cable by connecting New York and Philadelphia. It had very little of the commercial in it. They wanted to try out transmission of television images for rebroadcast by radio. They wanted to perfect further the transmission of photographs, by wire and they were desirous as well of determining whether they had discovered all of the potentialities of the new invention. All of the expenses—some six hundred thousand dollars—was to be paid from surplus funds of the corporation.

It takes no stretch of the imagination to realize that if the A. T. & T. backed away from the program it has laid out and refused to spend more money in perfecting its invention and declined to attempt to put it into commercial use for the benefit of the country as a whole, the country, that is you and I, would suffer. We would be denied advantages developed by science and made available virtually as a national benefit.

I do not know what the end will be. It is not at a stage wherein a forecast is possible. But the principle of the commission's action, whether it be put forward under Democratic or Republican administration, remains exactly the same. It should not be tolerated and if the communications commission persists in its efforts to expand its control, its usefulness certainly is at an end. Hitherto, the communications commission has had a very satisfactory relationship with business. I have heard dozens of executives from communications corporations say they were willing to forgive and generally overlook ignorance piled up in the commission by political appointments in several spots. They wanted to cooperate but it is the opinion of more than just myself among Washington observers that this sort of thing does not contribute to good government.

Duck hunters will have only 30 days for shooting this fall in accordance with the most rigid regulations in the history of American game hunting. This is the result of a determination by the federal government under an act of congress to give migratory wild fowl an opportunity to increase in numbers. In explaining the government's action which was made the subject of a proclamation by President Roosevelt, J. N. (Ding) Durling, chief of the biological survey and an internationally known cartoonist, declared that unless the shooting of ducks and other wild fowl is restricted it is only a question of time until none of them remain.

It is assumed that hunters will be interested first in the period during which they may shoot ducks, geese, brant, or Jacksnipe. The season will open in northern states October 21 and will close November 19. In the southern states the season will run from November 20 to December 19.

For the information of hunters there is set out below the states included in the northern area where hunting may be done between October 21 and November 19: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Idaho, Utah, Washington, Oregon, and Nevada.

The southern states listed and in which hunting may occur from November to December 19 follows: New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and California.

Regulations issued by the biological survey, according to Mr. Durling, are based on the necessity of having a net annual increase of migratory birds left over at the end of each shooting season until the present depleted population of waterfowl is restored to something like normal. This year's rigid restrictions, he explained, follow a period of approximately thirty-five years during which the kill of wild fowl has exceeded the increase from breeding.

To give an idea of how thoroughly the wild fowl are to be protected, the new regulations prohibit shooting over what is known as baited water or land—that is, land or water on which feed has been scattered as an inducement for the birds to stop their flight. Another thing ruled out in this effort to protect the water fowl is the live decoy. This has always been the most effective method for luring wild fowl from the air. None will be allowed hereafter.

The regulations restrict shooting to the hours between 7 a. m. and 4 p. m., a course taken in order to permit birds in flight an opportunity to feed without being subjected to pot shots. Automatic and repeating shot guns will be restricted to a limit of three shells for their chambers and no shot guns larger than a No. 10 gauge will be permitted.

Mr. Durling who has gained a reputation as an enthusiast for game conservation, relinquished his work as a cartoonist in order to carry out his ideals. It has taken him some months to work out a program but he feels his efforts have been worth while.

SYNOPSIS

Theodore Gatlin adopts a baby, "Penelope," in an effort to solve his marital troubles. But his wife has never wanted her, and their affairs end in the divorce court. At a baseball game a ball strikes ten-year-old Penelope on the nose. Mrs. Gatlin splits the child to Europe. Gatlin wills Penelope all his money, and is about to begin a search for her when a motor accident ends his life. Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, rising young psychiatrist, is presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" is in part responsible. McNamara does not think she is a criminal and obtains Burt's testimony in court. Lanny, the doctor's office nurse, is also won over. Nance's criminal record outweighs Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and she is sent to San Quentin penitentiary. Nance escapes, although shot, and goes to McNamara's apartment, from which, by McNamara's orders, she is removed to the chief's home. From one of the men in the boat on which the girl escaped McNamara learns that Nance's real name is Penelope Gatlin. He also discovers that she is heirless to $750,000.

Angelotti was a resourceful fellow. "Let's call on that Lanning woman, apologize for our rough work last night, and maybe she'll slip us some of that pre-war Bourbon again." Flynn nodded, and they drove to Lanny's house. Lanny received them coldly. "Have you come to search my house again?" she demanded irritably. "No man's face could possibly have been longer and sadder than P. Flynn's. 'We didn't come to annoy you, Miss Lanning. The chief's give us the inside story. We just called to apologize for even suspecting you.'"

"An officer," Angelotti explained, "has got to do a lot of things he don't like to do in the discharge of his duty. The apology goes double, Miss Lanning."

"It's accepted." Then they shook hands. "How about a shot in the arm?" Lanny, the worldling, suggested, much mollified. Angelotti shrugged expressively. "Well, gee, as how," P. Flynn murmured. So they had three drinks and spent a very pleasant evening with Lanny and she was loath to see them depart.

Now, Lanny was aware that Stephen had planned to visit his queer patients after dinner that night. So she telephoned—and Dan McNamara answered. "I shouldn't ring you up this late and get you out of bed."

"Not at all. Just got in this minute."

"I'm glad. How's everything, Dan?" "I haven't seen the patients, but my chief of staff was up waiting for me, and reports everything jake."

"That's all I wanted to know. Thanks, Dan. Oh, by the way, Flynn and Angelotti called on me again, tonight."

"What's that?" The chief's voice was a roar. "What are those two eggs up to? I told them to lay off you."

"They're doing that, Dan. They just called to apologize. They spent the evening with me. They left a moment ago."

"The liquor must have run out."

"Oh, Dan?" "I know those two. It would never occur to them to apologize to anybody if they didn't have a reason. It's just as I suspected, Lanny. They're going to hang on to this case on the quiet and trail you around."

An anguished thought popped into Lanny's agile brain. "Oh, Dan, suppose they took a notion to trail Steve!" "Hush! You don't have to paint me any picture, Lanny. When did these two busybodies call at your house?" "At nine-fifteen."

had done, but the dicks are watching this house. They trailed the doctor last night, but a friend of ours trailed them. Forgive us if we just can't trust any cop. Anyhow, it would be embarrassing for you if your men found us here. Good-by and good luck."

McNamara sat down. He was suddenly weak. So he hadn't fooled Flynn and Angelotti after all. The smart devil! Well, they might suspect all they pleased, but unless they had seen his guests and recognized Nance they could never prove anything.

He realized now that his act in sending them out of the state would clinch their suspicions; they would be sure to have somebody in their confidence keep the house under constant surveillance until they got back. Evidently they had sent a bungler and the ex-soldier had spotted the fellow—he wondered if Nance and her loyal friends had made a clean getaway.

The front doorbell rang and he went to answer it. A thin, bent man stood in the entrance, and even in the dim light from the hall McNamara knew him for an ex-convict in his prison suit of civilian clothes.

"Chief McNamara?" he queried huskily. "Yes, I'm the chief."

"I got out of San Quentin this morning. I had a message for you, but I didn't want to come to headquarters to deliver it. Benny the Beetle told me to tell you to rest easy."

"Thanks, friend. Come in and rest easy yourself. Let's get acquainted." McNamara invited hospitably. In the clearer light of the living room he saw his visitor was far from being a well man. "What is it, kid?" he demanded. "Hop—or T. R.?"

"The old coughin' sickness, chief. The prison directors shortened my term to let me out for treatment. As if I can get treatment anywhere," he added bitterly.

"Oh, yes, you can. I'm living alone here for the next thirty days, so I'll get a nurse in to take care of you, and you stay here."

The man looked at him suspiciously. "You mean it, chief?" "What did Benny tell you about me?" McNamara asked.

"He told me to trust you. He said you was one human being, even if you was a chief of police."

He changed the linen on Nance's bed, put the room in order, laid out a suit of pajamas and ordered his guest to bed.

"And now, me bold buckos," he reflected, "keep on trailing Doctor Burt for my house, if you feel like it."

He waited up until Stephen Burt arrived, and explained the situation to him.

"Hello, Stevie, Old Darling."

him. Stephen considered it a tremendous joke but commended his line of attack on Flynn and Angelotti.

"The man does need treatment very badly," he told the chief. "I'll send around a practical nurse early tomorrow morning to look after him, and I'll continue to call upon the poor devil nightly until further orders. We're both involved in a tricky game now and must play the hand through."

Doctor Burt was suddenly serious. "I do hope we haven't lost Nance, Dan. She's the most interesting psychological case I've ever seen."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. F. D. STEWART, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. ©. W. C. T. U. Newspaper Union.

Lesson for August 18

MARTHA LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:38-42; John 11:17-23. GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus.—John 11:5. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Home Jesus Loved. JUNIOR TOPIC—A Home Jesus Visited. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Can I Help at Home? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Home That Attracts Jesus.

The lesson committee designated Martha as a home-maker. That she was a home-maker is to be conceded, but to view this lesson only in that light is to miss its vital point, for Christ's teachings here are equally appropriate to male and female, in the home, office, shop, schoolroom, farm, etc.

1. Jesus Revealing to Martha Her Supreme Need (Luke 10:38-42). 1. Jesus welcomed into her home (v. 38). Though Jesus had no home of his own, he could come into this home at any time and throw off the restraints incident to public ministry. What a blessed thing it would be if all homes were open to receive Jesus.

2. Mary sitting at Jesus' feet (v. 39). While this was Martha's home, Mary seemed to have lived with her. Mary had a peculiar spiritual insight which prompted her to sit at Jesus' feet and listen to his words. The real place to hear Jesus' words is "at his feet." Let no one imagine that Mary did not render any service for the ill; the word "also" indicates that she had been serving with Martha.

3. Martha's complaint (v. 40). She was so bent on providing a good meal for Jesus that she was on the verge of distraction. Her many assumed duties had so got on her nerves that she had only found fault with Mary but even censured Jesus for allowing Mary to sit at his feet while dinner was being finished. She even assumed the authority to command Jesus to send Mary back to help her. The sure way to serve without distraction is to first sit at Jesus' feet and listen to his words.

4. Jesus' reply (v. 41, 42). This rebuke he administered most tenderly, for he knew that Martha loved him sincerely. Those who are supremely occupied with Jesus are anxious for nothing (Phil. 4:6).

5. He defended Mary (v. 42). In this defense he declared that there was but one thing needful and that Mary had chosen that good part which could not be taken from her. Those who choose this good part cannot be robbed of it by friends, foes, or circumstances.

6. A Revelation of Christ's Love (John 11:35). 1. The sickness of Lazarus (v. 1, 2). Even those who are in close fellowship with the Lord are not immune from sickness. Sorrow comes even to the homes where Jesus is loved.

2. Martha and Mary send for Jesus (v. 3). Because they had come to know Jesus as more than a mere man they instinctively turned to him when their shadow fell across their home.

3. Jesus' strange delay (v. 4-6). They sent for Jesus because he loved Lazarus. They said, "He whom thou lovest is sick." Jesus abode in the same place because he loved Lazarus and his sisters (v. 5). This mystery is to be explained by the fact that Jesus was divine and knew all things.

4. Jesus goes to the Bethany home (v. 7-17). His mission in going into this home was twofold; to minister to the sisters and brother and to strengthen the faith of the disciples (vv. 11-15).

5. Jesus teaching Martha (v. 18-27). As he was nearing the village, Martha met him with a complaint because of his delay. He ignored her complaint and taught her concerning the resurrection and the life.

a. "Thy brother shall rise again" (v. 23). He is saying these words to every sorrowing sister, brother, wife, husband, child, and parent. b. "I am—the resurrection, and the life" (v. 25, 26). He is the source of life, and all who are joined to him by a living faith are in such vital fellowship as to be unaffected by bodily change.

6. Jesus weeping with Mary (v. 28-35). In response to the Master's call Mary fell at his feet, uttering the same words used by Martha, but, no doubt, in a different tone of voice and attitude. Her words were responded to with tears. "Jesus wept."

His great sympathy now expressed itself in supernatural power. Sympathy would be valueless without this connection with divine power.

Music Music, like a true coin, rings best on the domestic hearthstone. The essence of it no more belongs to the concert room than reverently let it be said—does religion to the church. It must needs be an everyday matter, entering the hearts and homes of the people, otherwise its true functions remain unfulfilled.

Repentance Repentance is a goddess and the preserver of those who have erred.—Julian.

PREHISTORIC "FACTORY"

A site where prehistoric man played on the beach perhaps 100,000 years or more ago has been discovered by C. van Riet Lowe, the South African archeologist. Between great clumps of rock, which were evidently washed by the sea countless years ago, although now they stand half a mile inland, is a vast sand dune which has hardened with the passing of time. This dune has been scored by rain water running down the hillside and is crumbling away, exposing valuable evidence of how man lived in the Stone Age days. Mr. Van Riet Lowe picked up dozens of unflaked stone axes. He believes this was a factory site of prehistoric man. Here, apparently, he came to the beach for his waterworn stones, knocked them into some semblance of the shape he desired and discarded those which chipped badly. The site was littered with imperfect specimens of the stones.

leaves it up to the legislature to define the term "open saloon".

Who knows what the definition will be? Some will doubtless seek to make the definition strict and others liberal. But however strict it may be made, the legislature will not have power to prohibit the sale of liquor. It can only pass laws to "regulate" the sale.

The old-time open saloon was a "regulated" institution. The saloon keeper was required to give bond and numerous regulations of his business were imposed by state law.
But did he observe them? No.
Most saloon keepers threw these regulations to the winds. They were a mighty political power in this state and they observed no law that did not suit them. They ignored or defied the laws until they became so notorious as law-breakers that an outraged public wiped their business off the map.

Now this same diabolical liquor monster is undertaking to stage a come-back. The liquor interests are fighting for repeal today for the money they hope to make out of the legalized traffic. Their lugubrious howls about the activities of the boot-legger are mere sham and pretense.
Their hue and cry about the revenues that the legalized liquor business will bring in is for campaign purposes only. The roseate pictures they paint as to the beauties and virtues of the "local option" system are designed merely to camouflage their true purpose and intent.

If the great liquor interests of this country, the distillers of the North and East, shall again become entrenched in power in this state, they will at once begin laying their plans to make every county in the state as wet as the Atlantic Ocean. They care nothing about the revenues, except to induce the state to make them as light as practicable. They are not for "local option". They will fight local prohibition every time it may be proposed, just as they always did in the old days. They would like to see a saloon —or some kind of a liquor establishment—in every town in Texas.
For political purposes they may seek to camouflage the business and try to make it seem respectable by "prohibiting the saloon" and establishing their liquor palaces in the hotels and their liquor dives in some so-called restaurants and cafes.
But the old leopard will have the same spots that he had twenty-five years ago.

Now, folks, do you want to see a half dozen liquor establishments here in Tahoka, and in O'Donnell, and in Wilson? If not, keep the devilish legalized liquor traffic out of this state.

The wets tell us that Texas should abolish prohibition because it is a failure. They say that it is not being enforced and can not be enforced. Yet, in the next breath they tell us that if we will junk statewide prohibition than any county that desires prohibition can have it. Great consistency, this! If a statewide law can not be enforced, how can a mere county-wide law be enforced? Legalize whiskey in the cities and prohibition will be harder to enforce in the near-by dry counties. Put legal whiskey in Dallas and Fort Worth and Wichita Falls and Amarillo, and then the wets will want it in Lubbock and Abilene and Big Spring. Put it in these places and then they will want it in Tahoka and O'Donnell, and every other town in this section. Surrender one mile to the wets and they will take two. Better keep that dry amendment in the constitution and the Dean law on our statute books. A majority in favor of prohibition in Texas on August 24 will be a fresh mandate to our officers to enforce the law.
We don't need repeal but better enforcement.

There wasn't a very large crowd out for Sunday School last Sunday morning on account of sickness and some people being on vacations but we are expecting a larger crowd next Sunday. So, come early and let's make South Ward a place of interest.

We are going to have Singing

ed Singing from second and fourth Sunday afternoons to each first and third Sunday nights. Let's everybody be out next Sunday for the first singing night. We are planning to get new song books so every one come out and get acquainted while we are getting fixed for some real singing.

Everyone was glad to have Mr.
and Mrs. Albert Bostick and family

Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Bostick is one of the teachers this year and we are always glad to have them down anytime.

son Eldon and Mr. Willie Champion are visiting at Cottonwood. We received the news that Eldon was operated on for appendicitis Saturday after arriving there Friday. We are wishing Eldon a speedy recovery so he may return home soon.

Mr. C. B. Evans who has been ill for some time with appendicitis was carried to the Lubbock Sanitanight it was not known whether an operation would be necessary. We surely hope Mr. Evans will soon be well.

Willkens at New Home. Verna Lee returned home with her Saturday

JOAN CRAWFORD & ROBERT MONTGOMERY PLAY NEWLY-WEDS IN "NO MORE LADIES"

Charlie Ruggles, Franchot Tone and Edna Mae Oliver Also Members of Star-Studded Cast in Eagerly Awaited Filmization of New York's Most Sparkling Comedy Hit

An array of stars, plus a sophisticated story triumphantly tested first on Broadway, plus the important factors covered by "production value" equals "No More Ladies." Irving Thalberg's new production for Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer, opening Sunday at the English Theatre and running three days.

Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery are co-starred, heading a cast which includes Charlie Ruggles, Franchot Tone and Edna Mae Oliver.

The co-stars were last seen together in "Porsaking All Others" and in "Letty Lynton" before that.
"Ruggles of Red Gap" was Ruggles' latest. Miss Oliver played Betsey Trotwood in "David Copperfield," and Tone scored in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer."

The new Crawford-Montgomery vehicle is based on the stage hit by A. E. Thomas, which completed a long run on Broadway and was hall-ed by critics and public alike as the most sparkling romantic comedy of recent seasons. The screen story stays close to the original, retaining all the comedy situations and bright dialogue that characterized the play.

In keeping with the aristocratic character she plays in the new picture, Miss Crawford wears Adrian-designed gowns of chic simplicity and tailored smartness. There are twelve of these glamorous ensembles in all.

The picture opens with a whirlwind romance between Marcia (Joan Crawford) and Sherry (Robert Montgomery), and maintains a rapid-moving tempo until the final fadeout. Marcia is a light-hearted but level-headed society girl whose love for Sherry, an incorrigible heart-breaker, is such that she submits to wedding bells within the first reel.

It is then that the picture settles down to revealing the problems that accumulate behind the glamorous exterior of the too-popular Park Avenue couple.

Meantime, into the story have walked such true-life characters as Fanny, Marcia's salty maiden aunt (Edna Mae Oliver); Jim, who wants to save her from her husband (Franchot Tone); Edgar, a thorn in the side of organized society (Charlie Ruggles); and Therese, the night club singer (Gail Patrick).

The final scene comes when Marcia, in revolt against Sherry who has neglected her, invites all Sherry's former women friends with their ill-assorted husbands, to their country home. The ensuing party, with its surprising consequences, carries the story to a triumphant finale.

Every scene of "No More Ladies" bears the mark of Irving Thalberg's astute showmanship.

Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Bray of Longview were here the first of the week visiting friends and looking after their property interests. They indicated that they might move back to Tahoka some time soon.

Trio Of South Plains' History Spots

Tahoka Lake, Double Lakes and Mooar's Draw, All Were Welcome Oases When Coronado Was Seeing Texas For First Time

(Ed. Note: The following article appeared in the August number of West Texas Today, official magazine of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.)

By Frank P. Hill

Tahoka Lake, Double Lakes, and Mooar's Draw, all in Lynn county and known to the Anglo-American scarcely more than sixty years, remind one that the South Plains of Texas has an interesting history. For four hundred years—no one knows how much longer—each site, with its fresh-water springs, has been an oasis in the desert of waterless plains for man and beast.

Tahoka Lake

Tahoka Lake, seven miles northeast of Tahoka town, is possibly the most noted of the three landmarks, and soon will take its place among the better-known visiting spots of West Texas. Bonds for $6,160 were recently voted by Lynn county for purchase of a site at the lake for a state park. The money will pay 560 acres for the state and federal park board to develop.

Just what "Tahoka" means is not definitely known. Oldtimers say it means "clear", "clear water", "deep", "deep water", and even "alkali water", but from whence these definitions came they cannot explain. Many tribes of Indians consulted at Haskell Institute and at Oklahoma agencies deny knowledge of the word or its meaning. Edmond J. Gardner of Valliant, Oklahoma, suggests that the name is a combination of two Choctaw words "Taha" and "Oka", meaning "the water is all gone". Once there was a Choctaw chief named Tahoka, and the lake was named either for him, or by combining the two words, it seems.

At Tahoka Lake, the Indian camped, first as a hunter, and later as a fugitive from the white settler down state. Here the Spaniard found water for a dry throat. Here the New Mexico Indian herded his sheep. Here the U. S. soldier, the Texas Ranger, and the buffalo hunter made "wet" camp. Here the pioneer cattlemen, opening up the country to settlement, found water for his stock. And, here the trail driver and the freighter found a convenient stopping place.

Graves on the hilltops, arrowheads and broken pottery indicate a favorite Indian camping ground. Nobody knows how long since the Indian discovered this retreat. It is known that the Comanche trail from the Canadian river country to the Mexican border passed the lake. The Apache of the West received his last Plains water here before going down the caprock. A well-beaten Indian trail was recognizable in the '70's from Yellowhouse River to Tahoka Lake, west to Double Lakes, Sulphur Draw, and across the Texas border to Ranger Lake, Four Lakes, Mesalero Springs, and on to the Peecos. Tahoka Lake was a favorite meeting place of the Comanche and the New Mexico traders and other Indians from that territory following the raids made on Texas settlements by Comanches, who graded their loot beside the cool waters of the springs to the New Mexicans. Who knows what thievery and murder was the result of plans laid around the shores of this historic lake?

A number of historians claim that Coronado, who crossed over into Texas in 1541 in his search for Quivira, went down the Brazos, possibly as far as the Double Mountain region. Here Coronado sent his main army, under Captain Arellano, back to New Mexico. They took a directly westward course across the Plains; and, no doubt, being guided by Indians, they followed the old Indian trail by the Tahoka and Double Lakes.

Nearly a hundred years later, the Spanish were getting well established in New Mexico—opening up missions and carrying on trade with the Indians. Down on the headwaters of the Colorado, in Texas, the Spanish found the friendly Jumano Indians. In 1629, Fathers Salas and Lopez, with a few soldiers, left the Santa Fe country for the Colorado to work among these Jumanos. Historians differ on the route taken by these Spaniards, but at least two old maps show their trail across the Plains from the Peecos at about Fort Sumner by way of Fortes Lake, down the Yellowhouse draw to the Lubbock area, south across the plains to Tahoka Lake, and on to the Colorado River headwaters in Borden county. Again in 1632, other friars made the same trip; and for the next fifty years, until the Pueblo Rebellion in 1680, New Mexican traders visited this region regularly. In 1650 and again in 1654, important military and trading expeditions from Santa Fe, the first under Captains Hermando Martin and Diego del Guadalupe, the latter under Diego del Guadalupe, visited the Jumanos and went down the Colorado to the land of the Tejas Indians.

For the next two hundred years we find little account of white man's visitation to this section of the Plains. Old timers tell us New Mexican shepherders frequented Tahoka Lake with their herds in the 1860's.

During the '70's numerous scouting expeditions by Texas Rangers on the Indian trail came to Tahoka Lake, several being from Camp Cooper, six miles above Fort Griffin. Soldiers from both Fort Griffin and Fort Concho likewise followed the depredesting Indians to the springs.

Just when the Fort Concho-Fort Sumner military trail by Tahoka Lake was established, this writer does not know; but for years, possibly as far back as the Civil War, soldiers traveled almost the identical route followed by the Spanish over two hundred years previously. Because of its abundant spring water, Tahoka Lake was a favorite buffalo hunting ground in the '70's, such hunters as John and Wright Mooar, Jim Harvey, the Causey brothers, John R. Cook and our own F. M. Sherrod of Tahoka, hunting it its surrounding territory.

The first ranch on the lower South Plains was located at Tahoka Lake in 1879 or 1880 by Shaw and McDonald, sheepraisers. Ruins of their old dugout and rock corrals may be detected now at the north springs. They were followed in a few years by F. G. Oxshire, cattle ranchman, and later by Col. C. C. Slaughter, who at one time controlled more than two million acres of land in this section. The old house at the north springs was built by him as his north headquarters, known as Tahoka Lake ranch.

When the railroad was built to Colorado in 1863, the main freight road to the North Plains came by Tahoka Lake. Supplies for the Capital Syndicate's 3,000,000-acre CIT were hauled by here, as were those for Col. Charles Goodnight and the Adairs, the T-Ancor, the LIT, and other famous large ranches to the north. After establishment of Lubbock, freight and hack lines went by Tahoka Lake to Gall and on to Colorado, and later from Tahoka to Big Spring.

Today only a few sections of grass remain around this lake, the bed of which covers nearly two sections of land.

Too, the lake is interesting geologically—formed as the result of some great sinking-in of the earth's surface long ago. Evidence of the great Cretaceous sea which covered Texas millions of years ago may be seen. Though fed by constantly running fresh water springs, the bed of the lake remains dry a greater portion of the time. The white sand of its bed is potash, common salt, epsom salt, mica, and a number of other salts and minerals to be found in several plains lakes.

Double Lakes

Many things that have been said of Tahoka Lake, historically, likewise apply to Double Lakes, similar twin lakes about ten miles to the west of Tahoka Lake and just south of T-Bar ranch headquarters.

Just who originally named these lakes is not known, but Col. Jasper Hayes and his party, who made the first surveys in this section in 1878, gave first official recognition to the landmark.

Though the fresh water supply at Double Lakes was not so generous, the springs afforded some water for Indians, hunters, early ranchmen, and even for the Spanish, possibly, though there seems to be no definite proof of Spanish visitation. Possibly the Mexican shepherders and hunters visited the spot frequently. In the '70's thousands of buffalo were killed around its shores by the previously mentioned hunters, as well as by many minor hunting outfits.

Of some historical significance, however, is the expedition of Company "A", 10th U. S. Colored Cavalry, under the command of Capt. Nicholas Nolan and Lieutenant Chas. L. Cooper, both white, composed of forty men and officers and accompanied by twenty-one buffalo hunters, which experienced trying hardships near the Double Lakes springs during the hot, dry summer of 1877.

Indians had been giving considerable trouble among the settlements, and orders were issued from Washington for forces from Fort Concho to take up the Indian trail. Hence, Company "A", joined on Bull Creek by the party of buffalo hunters, who had lost stock to the Indians, followed a band of renegades to Double Lakes. The trail led off to the west and northwest. After resting at the lakes a day or two, the expedition forces filled their canteens with water, mounted their horses in high spirits, and again took the trail, little realizing what hardships were in wait for them.

The first day they consumed what water they had brought and began looking for other lake springs. For 96 hours the party wandered over the plains of Lynn, Terry, Hockley and Cochran counties, without water, mad and famishing from thirst, before again finding their way back to Double Lakes. Four soldiers and a hunter died of thirst. Their mounts, fine cavalry horses, died, as did many of the pack mules; and the men, crazed by the suffocating heat and dry throats, cut the arteries of dying horses and drank with relish the rapidly coagulating blood. "I know but two other places (in history) where accounts as vivid as those you recount are to be found," writes J. Frank Doble, noted Texas writer, author of "Coronado's Children" and other books on the Southwest, in regard to an article on the expedition by this writer.

The haggard party quenched its thirst at Double Lakes and was administered to by a relief expedition which had been sent out from Fort Concho headed by Capt. Lee. Here the party remained five or six days to recuperate before returning to the Fort, not a single Indian having been killed or captured.

It was also from Double Lakes that the last Indian fight on the Plains originated. That was in 1879.

A bunch of Comanche Indians escaped from the reservation at Fort Sill and came down into Texas on a raiding expedition. In Crosby county they stole some horses from John and Will Slaughter, ranchers. Slaughters gathered up a bunch of ranchmen and cowhands and hit the Indian trail. In the mouth of Yellowhouse Canyon the Indians killed two men who were driving a herd of burros to Colorado, then took out across the Plains by Tahoka Lake to Double Lakes. Here the posse found them, after a hunt of a few days, filling up their buffalo skin water bags and preparing to make camp. The cowboys attacked. The Indians grabbed their equipment and headed south. The running fight lasted for several hours in the sandhills to the south, and then the cowboys were forced to return to Double Lakes for water and the Indians escaped. None of the white men were killed. Jack Alley, one of the founders of Tahoka town, and a pioneer Plains ranchman, was in the party that fought the Indians.

The next winter Double Lakes was visited by Capt. G. W. Arrington and his Texas Rangers from Camp Roberts on the trail of Indians. In 1883, Boyd and Frank Porter drove a small herd of cattle from Parker county out to Double Lakes to establish one of the very first cattle ranches located entirely on the Plains. The next year they were bought out by the Tahoka Cattle Co., controlled by Cass O. Edwards, better known as the T-Bar. Mr. Edwards still owns this 110 section ranch, which has been under the same management for fifty-two years, and is probably the oldest ranch on the Plains controlled by one man so long. Headquarters of the ranch are to the north end of the lakes, near the historic upprings.

The University of Texas made a geological survey of Double Lakes, in 1921, the results of which form Bulletin No. 2234, Sept. 8, 1922, of the U. of T., in which it is stated: "We believe this source is the most promising potash supply in the United States so far reported". Several hundred test wells were put down in the lake, and the brine was found to contain potassium chloride, magnesium chloride, calcium sulphate, and sodium sulphate.

Mooars Draw

Double Mountain Canyon, known locally as Mooar's Draw, has its head in the southeast portion of Lynn county and proceeds eastward through Garza county, water having eaten out this chasm back nearly twenty miles from the edge of the caprock. This is one of the heads of the great Brazos.

North of the canyon is Grassland, Lynn county's first postoffice established in about 1890 and named by Enos L. Seeds, now a millionaire Philadelphia building contractor, who was a surveyor under Capt. Hayes when working in this county in 1878. When these surveyors started upon the Plains, they met John and Wright Mooar, deans of Texas Plains buffalo hunting, camped on this headwater of Texas' biggest river. The surveyors officially named the headwaters Mooar's Draw.

It is not unlikely that this was another watering place on the Spanish trail from New Mexico to the headwaters of the Colorado. Just a few miles south of here rain-water drains to Bull Creek, Indian Canyon, and Wet and Dry Tobaccos, all headwaters of the Colorado. Mooar's Draw was likewise a favorite Indian camping ground. Many teepee poles, pottery, corn grinders, etc., found here are proof the territory was more or less permanent residence of the Redman.

The head of Mooar's Draw was included in the old Square and Compass ranch, established in about 1880 by the Nave-McCord Cattle company and run by John and Nick Beal. This ranch was bought by John Slaughter in 1900. When C. W. Post set out to form his ideal farming community in 1907, he bought much of this land up on the Plains, including the head of the Draw. The Post estate operates a ranch in these "breaks" known as the Double-U Cattle Co.

Of added interest is the fact that Mooar's Draw is one of the richest of fossil fields. Expeditions sent out by several big museums visit this area almost annually. Geo. Doughty of Post, amateur paleontologist and an honorary member of the American Museum of Natural History, has uncovered much prehistoric remains in the canyon. Among other things he has uncovered is a 13-foot mastadon tusk, with at least three more feet missing, which weighed 700 pounds. The writer has found teeth of the Pleistocene horse, forerunner of our modern animal, teeth and vertebra of the Phytosaur, a cousin of the popularly known dinosaur, and other fossil remains.

These three landmarks are but reminders of the South Plains past—reminders that these great plains, if they could speak, would whisper as interesting tales as any that could be told during our first centennial celebration.

Crane Writes On Tahoka Indian Trail

The historical article which was prepared by Frank P. Hill of Tahoka some time ago for the Texas Centennial Committee and published in the August number of WEST TEXAS TODAY brought a letter Tuesday from Judge R. C. Crane of Sweetwater, President of the West Texas Historical Association, confirming some of the facts and conclusions set forth in the above mentioned story. Judge Crane's letter follows:

"I have just read with interest your article in the August number of WEST TEXAS TODAY, entitled: 'Trio of South Plains History Spots', which reminded me of a few facts which I developed some years since with some degree of connecting interest.

"In 1928 I got in touch with Mr. Sam L. Chalk, whom I had known in years gone by. I knew that he had been an early surveyor in this region.

"I received from him several interesting, illuminating, and historical letters touching his early experiences, etc. in this region, which were published at the time in one of our annuals. What had the more direct connection with your article, though, was the map which he sent me and his explanation of the old Indian trail running from Tahoka Lake diagonally southeastward, past Sandrock Springs on the line of Scurry and Fisher counties to the southeast corner of Taylor county.

"He found it first in 1877 and says that it was well marked and for years could have been easily traced on the ground, and convinced him that it had long been used. He ventured the opinion that even in 1928 he could have retraced it where it had not been obliterated.

"He said: 'You will notice the frequent and convenient watering places. You will also find on all high points stone monuments marking its course. I will also show you that on three different occasions the Indians were using it, etc.'"

Chester Connolly and family and Mrs. Lois McMahon and little daughter left Sunday for an outing of a week or ten days at Ruidoso, New Mexico.

Should Use Care In Milk Production

Austin, August 15.—In view of the fact that Governor Allred has proclaimed the week beginning August 12 Dairy Week, Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, urges with this more extensive use of milk, that both producer and consumer be concerned as to its quality. The use of clean safe milk is a health measure.

Local interest in improved methods of producing wholesome milk has increased greatly in the past two decades and the striking advance in milk control has been responsible for the enormous saving of infant life.

Milk is perishable and especially during hot weather. To insure milk of good quality requires cleanliness, sterile utensils, protection against flies, careful bottling and maintenance at low temperature. The presence in fresh milk of large numbers of bacteria, due to unsanitary methods of production, is a health hazard.

Among the diseases which may be transmitted through milk are tuberculosis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diptheria, septic sore throat, and undulant fever. Numerous milk-borne outbreaks of disease occur every year in this country from the use of milk that might have been safe with proper care.

We should firmly insist that the milk we drink be carefully produced, so that we will have the maximum practicable protection along the line from the cow to the consumer.

W. L. Knight brought to the News office Tuesday some specimens of cantaloupe vines that had failed to produce any cantaloupes but had produced tubers similar to small potatoes on the roots. Just what caused this miscarriage on the part of Nature we are not sufficiently versed in the science of botany or agriculture to know. Maybe some of the students of agriculture in our high school could tell us.

A. C. Weaver and family attended a reunion of the Weaver families at Two Draw Lake near Post Monday night and Tuesday. About a dozen families were represented with more than fifty individuals present. Mr. Weaver reports that they had a wonderfully fine time in spite of the fact that it rained on them most of the night.

HISTORY OF HOME DEMONSTRATION WORK

(By Miss Mildred Horton, State Home Demonstration Agent)

The history of H. D. work is divided into three periods. The period of the individual from 1912 to 1918. There were sixteen agents in 1912 and they worked three months a year. They taught the women to can and most people thought of the H. D. Club as a canning club. One of these first agents is still working and she is Mrs. Edna Trigg, agent in Denton county. By 1914 the clubs were doing other things besides canning.

The periods of 1919 to 1929 is the period of the club. That was when the clubs were organized.

The period of 1919 to 1929 is the period of demonstration. During the first period, and to some extent during the second, the emphasis was on what the agent did, but in the third period the emphasis has been shifted to the demonstrations conducted by the women and girls.

During this latter period the thinking and the vision of the women has broadened and they have become more conscious of community, county, state and national problems.

They have reached a period of independence and of confidence in themselves and their ability that was lacking in the beginning. This is one of the greatest indications of their progress.

The club women in 1934 canned more than 400 carloads of food, planted 195,000 shrubs and trees, made 366,000 garments, refinished 15,000 pieces of furniture and made 15,000 comforts, they also found time to help 150,000 other farm women who were not members of the home demonstration club along the way to right living.

Today we have nineteen Home Agents in A. & M., one hundred and fifty-five county agents and twenty-six negro agents, a total of two hundred agents in all.

The present plan of county council is only ten years old.

We now have 67,869 club members in Texas.—Written by Mrs. M. W. Todd, Wilson Club.

For Bad Feeling Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lufe, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Theford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

ON TEXAS FARMS

About one out of every 12 cultivated acres was shifted from surplus basic crops this year in the United States.

A related fact, as Joseph F. Cox, chief of the replacement crops section of the AAA, sees it, is the largest increase in legume acreage ever reported in this country.

Alfalfa acreage went up from 11,482,000 acres in 1934 to 13,198,000 in 1935, a 14 per cent increase; soy bean acreage rose from 4,223,000 acres in 1934 to 5,463,000, an increase of over 29 per cent.

The significance of these figures will be felt by the children's children of the owners of this land. Soil erosion is checked and soil fertility built up by this type of crop.

More home raised meat will be served on the rural home makers' tables; more milk and butter and chickens and eggs will appear in the diet of rural people because of these crops.

Future generations will farm better land and enjoy better health because of today's agricultural program which conserves the soil and improves the food on the farms of today.

Troy and George T. Dale came out from Dallas this week and are visiting their mother, Mrs. Geo. A. Dale.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO "BREAK IN" THE FORD V-8

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

THE FORD V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.

That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip — to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. The Ford V-8 gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD

KEEPING WELL BETWEEN 48 AND 65

This age group is usually not bothered much with contagious diseases. If we except typhoid, in Illinois in 1930 there were 28,000 deaths in this age group from all causes.

Chronic kidney diseases headed the list with 2,094 deaths; chronic heart disease came next with 2,435 deaths; accidents, third, with 2,332 deaths; cancer of the digestive tract, fourth, with 1,919 deaths.

Old age, you see, is operating within this forty-five to sixty-five age group, with diseases of the kidney and of the heart and blood vessels causing most deaths.

The kidneys can be thought of as two organs, each about the size of a doubled-up fist, that are shaped like a kidney bean. In fact, it is because of this resemblance that the vegetable kidney bean gets its name.

The secreting units of the kidney are specialized small twists of capillaries that are like a small ball of yarn, and are located in the outer portion of the organ.

Now during childhood or adolescence, a person may have had an infectious disease common to young people, such as measles, diphtheria or scarlet fever.

Then when this individual reaches an age past forty, and the aging process of the body begin to take place in him he suddenly finds himself with a bankrupt excreting system.

Vaccinations against diphtheria, scarlet fever, and measles were not available forty years ago, and so heart and kidney disease patients in the over-forty age group can hardly blame any one if the damage to their heart or kidneys occurred from an infection due to one of their childhood diseases.

Science has not yet been able to vaccinate against the kidney or heart wearing out. The chances are it never will. The way to keep these organs functioning without impairment of reserve power is to keep infectious germ diseases out of the body.

But the person with an impaired heart or kidney will add years to his life, if he will learn how to live with this impaired heart or kidney.

Oriental Drape and Classic Pleat Uncommon Sense

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SEEKING a new fashion thrill? Here it is and a rather startling one when it comes to "something different."

For quite some time Paris designers have been giving these draped effects a good try-out in evening wraps and gowns.

The oriental influence which is being so dramatically exploited this season is shown in the costume to the right in the picture.

It is also significant that this stunning gown is made of chiffon, for the formal afternoon gown of slinky black is proving a favorite among best dressed women.

stone buttons add sparkle to the costume. The hat of dotted silk is very unusual—suggests Egyptian inspiration.

The other gown is likewise made of black-silk chiffon. The waist-length jacket is done in all-over exquisitely fine accordion pleating.

One outcome of Greek influence is the vogue which calls for fast-heeled Grecian sandals. The smartest Parisiennes are wearing them fashioned of gilt leather.

The Hindu turban which the lady to the left in the illustration is wearing is noteworthy in that advance millinery showings are placing particular stress on the importance of Hindu-draped turbans for immediate wear with one's midsummer frocks.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

Guessing is so general among humans before that the meaning of the word has been changed.

Don't Guess When a man says today: "I guess," he means, "I think or I believe."

Sometimes, if he comes from the West or the North he says "I reckon" but that form is not used much north and east of the Mississippi river.

I shall now turn to the word as a bad habit. For guessing is a bad habit. It means half baked information, a lazy spirit.

If you don't know, don't guess. Frankly admit that you don't know, and let it go at that.

Pretending that you know some fact that you don't know is proof of an ill mind.

I do not admit that one guess is as good as another. No guess is any good. If you haven't got the information you want, hunt for it.

Don't be content with guess work. Supporting the captain of a transatlantic liner, being the last to use his navigating instruments, guessed to which direction to steer the ship.

The passenger would be in for a disagreeable surprise before very long. It is so easy to guess, and so difficult to know that people acquire very foolish notions about matters on which they should be well informed.

A guess is a leap in the dark. It is a venture. And people who do things on ventures are not to be trusted.

If you are embarking on any enterprise, large or small, be sure where you are going, how long it will take you to get there, and what the difficulties in the way may be.

Even the Indians, who had no astronomical apparatus beside the sun, used that to make sure that they were on the right road. They didn't guess.

When you guess, you are merely mentally groping.

Begin early to get exact information. To know that you know, don't shoot an arrow in the air to fall to earth you know not where.

Put your mind on where you are going, and stick to the direction in which you are going.

Perhaps no information one can acquire can be absolutely exact. But if you eliminate the element of guesswork you will be far more likely to succeed in any undertaking on which you may embark than you would otherwise.

If guessing were absolutely impossible it would be better for all of us.

The title of this article is, I know, current slang.

It is used by young women to their less affectionate suitors as a reminder.

But before it sank to this level it was a pretty fair watch-word. For so many people are rarely themselves, but are always trying to act like others that presently they become practically nobody at all.

You are you. You can improve yourself, but will still have your own personality.

Stand by that. Don't be always sping other people. Make up your mind that you have a personality, which you can improve but cannot alter very much.

You may sometimes so greatly admire some other person that you fall into the habit of copying his dress and his traits and even his speech.

But don't do it. You must stand or fall by what you are, not by what somebody you admire may be.

I know a young man from the western part of the country who when he came to New York was so eager to appear cosmopolitan that he tried to get rid of his burring "r" and other tricks of speech which may have made his newly acquired eastern friends smile.

But he never persuaded any of them that he came from the Atlantic seaboard, and they smiled at him behind his back.

If he had just been himself and not attempted to be otherwise he would have made more friends and made them more rapidly.

We can't get rid of our own personalities. They go along with us where we go. They may be smothered for a while, but in times of stress they will come out and reveal themselves.

It is perfectly right that this should be so. If you are self confident and have no snobishness in your system you will be respected and respected by the people among whom you are thrown.

Be frank and open and unaffected. Look the people you meet in the eye. Speak the same tongue you were taught to speak in your youth. No body that is worth while will look down on you for doing that.

In dealings with people of other nations, you will find them more cosmopolitan than most Americans.

And if you see you are frank and unassuming you will have no trouble in getting along with them.

So, as I said in the beginning, don't be so sure that you are not, or what you are not.

We are courteous and polite in the eyes of a lot of people who are well respected and respected.

Can Years of Happy Married Companionship Wipe Out the Memory of Early Love "Slip"?

"When I was away visiting my sister-in-law in another city recently I had occasion to see a rather unusual little play that opened there. It was called 'The Perfect Marriage' and showed two people who had been married fifty years who were beloved by everybody and really believed themselves to be an example of a perfect marriage.

"Lovers over seventy, they were. And in reviewing the years they had spent together their second really to be an example of what all who start out on a honeymoon hope their marriage will be.

"And then, by one of those quirks of circumstances that take place in plays, like the one pulled stitch that starts to unravel a whole job of knitting, there is unraveled the story of an extra-marital affair on the part of both. Both the husband and the wife of this perfect marriage once had a lover. Neither had met until now, after fifty years of 'ideal' marriage. When they do the revelation nearly upsets their sturdy little diadems of love—but not quite. With the philosophy of their years they forgive each other, and—live happily ever afterward.

"Now we hear a good deal in real life, too, of forgiveness of infidelity, and at a more hot-blooded age than that of the golden-wedding couple. Can you understand it? I pride myself on being modern, and all that, but I think this is a question of human values that does not change with the age. What do you say?"

Broadminded, and with the understanding of human nature that is her marked characteristic, the famous writer to whom this query was addressed thus answers it:

"I say this—the old saying: 'You can forgive—but not forget.' Though marriage may, indeed many marriages have survived discovery of infidelity on one or both sides, in my opinion there is always something killed. The fabric of marriage may be patched up, but the warp and woof and soul of the thing most surely carry the mark.

"On the other hand, to my mind, it is not at all beyond understanding, as my correspondent suggests, how such a couple, or either one, can be willing to 'take back' the unfaithful one, or make the effort to forgive.

"While I certainly do not minimize the hurt, the wrench, the impulse to the contrary that would naturally be involved in continuing to live with a husband or wife who has been discovered unfaithful, the richer and the happier the marriage has been the more possible it is to understand such a forgiveness. For a really true marriage is a house of many mansions. Beside the physical love there is the understanding, the companionship, with which, as I like to say, one never walks alone.

It is that companionship there is mutual suffering, mutual struggle, mutual joy—mutual understanding. With people of quality—the human, not the social kind—those are things to make life rich indeed. With such people, you may say, infidelity does not happen. And yet, it has been known to. And in such a case forgiveness, while a bitter enough cup—and while the drink can never be the same as when it was taken at the spring of untroubled belief—is nevertheless, understandable." © Bill Synnolds.—WNU Service.

W. K. JOHNSTON SPOKE AT METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY

Rev. W. K. Johnston filled the pulpit at the eleven o'clock hour Sunday in the absence of Rev. H. C. Smith. Brother Johnston brought a powerful message from Acts 13:44.

We greatly appreciate Brother Johnston and his good people. They are always willing to cooperate in every way, which is one of the most profound marks of Christianity.

Those who did not see fit to be in this service surely missed something worth while.

Come and be in your place at the service Sunday. Brother Smith will be in his pulpit. You will help him in no small way if you will give him your presence and prayerful attention. We are very glad to have him home again and know that the work is going to move on nicely.

Come to choir rehearsal Friday evening, 8:30 o'clock.—Reporter.

INSPIRING OPPORTUNITIES

Lubbock, Texas, Aug. 13, 1935.—Many young people are now finding inspiring opportunities in banks, wholesale houses, with various government recovery agencies, and other big employers as a result of a few pleasant months spent in Draughton's Business College of this city, according to the Employment Report just released. In one PWA office alone a number of graduates have accepted excellent positions, with attractive beginning salaries, during the past few days; and hundreds of other office workers will be needed by this and other government agencies as projects develop.

With business and crop conditions the most promising in many years, young people with the foresight to prepare will find the opportunities of a life-time awaiting them through the far-reaching Draughton placement facilities.

Those who are interested in business careers are invited to write for Catalog C showing training and time required, low cost, methods of placing graduates, a long list of recent placements, and starting date of classes. A post-card will do. 52-2tp.

Mrs. Ingle was an assistant to Dr. K. R. Durham in his dental office here for many months before her marriage.
