CLUB PLANNING CIVIC PROGRAM

Committees Appointed For Tahoka Beautification Program By Luncheon Club

Discussion of a number of worthwhile projects consumed the Luncheon Club hour Tuesday noon, no musical program for the day having been prepared.

Vice-President Bill Sewell had charge, in the absence of the president, Rev. George A. Dale.

After briefly calling attention to the importance of the city beautification program recently launched by the club, Mr. Sewell announced the following committee to perfect plans and conduct the program: G. H. Nelson, chairman, Frank Hill, and V. F. Jones. The plans call for a home grounds beautification contest open to all citizens of the town.

Improvement of the city park also received consideration. Plans for raising the fund with which to effect this improvement were suggested by L. F. Craft, after which Mr. Sewell announced that the following committee had been appointed to take the matter in hand: Mayor Jim Dye, chairman, F. C. Stanley, and Wynne Collier.

J. K. Applwhite, representative of Tahoka on the board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, laid before the club a plan proposed by the W. T. C. C. whereby Tahoka and other towns and cities of West Texas may procure much publicity at nominal cost at the Frontier Centennial Celebration to be held in Fort Worth this summer and fall. The proposal is to take motion pictures and run the reels in a motion picture theatre to be operated on the exhibition grounds. The project was approved by the club and the personnel of the committee that will have the matter in charge will be announced later.

In the absence of an active local chamber of commerce, the Luncheon Club elected J. K. Applwhite as its representative on the board of directors of the W. T. C. C. for the ensuing year. Mr. Applwhite reports that a brief canvass of the business men of the town last week resulted in more than twenty memberships being taken out for next year.

Superintendent W. G. Barrett asked the club to pass on advisability of sponsoring a program of community visitation by the high school band and other high school pupils during the next few weeks. The proposal was approved, and the first visit will probably be made next week.

Farm Program Plans Progress

College Station—"The whole purpose of the new farm program is to help farmers plan their farming operations so as to conserve their soil and enable them to reap greater returns from their land in the long run," Jack Shelton, vice director and state agent of the Texas Extension Service, announced in reviewing some of the major problems of the new program.

He also pointed out that diverting crops of soil depleting nature into soil building and soil conserving crops would pay the larger cash grants under the ruling of the new farm program.

"For the most part, the common, well-established soil building improvement crops and practices already in use by Texas farmers will plan the program to fit Texas receive recognition throughout in farms," Shelton said.

The temporary State soil Conservation Domestic Allotment Board plans to apply the national farm program to Texas so that it will best meet the needs of the Texas farm people in carrying out their cropping systems.

Shelton also said: "Farmers must keep in mind that a separate base acreage will be established for each of the following crops: cotton, peanuts, rice, and sugar cane for sugar."

"The new farm program as applied to Texas is being pushed with all the resources of the Texas Extension Service to put it into the field as soon as possible," Shelton concluded.

Appeal Filed In Elmo Banks Case

Acting by appointment of the court, attorneys for Elmo Banks, the negro jail-breaker who shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Ed Redwine a few weeks ago and who was given the death sentence by a jury here for the murder, have perfected his appeal, and the transcript of the trial was forwarded to the Court of Criminal Appeals at Austin Tuesday.

It will probably be several months before the case is reached by the appellate court.

Small Decrease In Scholastics

There has been a slight decrease in the number of scholastics in the Tahoka Independent School District the past year, according to the census figures for the past two years on file with Carl Griffing, secretary of the board of trustees.

The census trustee this year found 664 scholastics in the district, the census being taken during the month of March. In the month of March last year, 678 scholastics were enumerated. The banner year during the history of the school was 1934, when a total of 743 scholastics were reported. This was an abnormal year, however, many cotton pickers who came the preceding fall having remained over, and many country folk having moved into town following the gathering of the crop.

The figures for the various school districts of the county are not yet available, but we understand there has been a decrease in the county.

O'Donnell, however, shows a decided increase over last year, the figures being 437 this year against 375 last year.

Zone Meeting At The Baptist Church

The zone meeting for Baptist Sunday Schools and the Baptist Training Union will convene at the Baptist Church here at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, April 19.

A good program has been planned, it is said, with R. A. Springer of Lubbock as the principal speaker. Mr. Springer is Educational Director of the First Baptist Church of Lubbock and is president of the State B. T. U.

All Baptist churches in this zone are urged to be well represented.

County Places At Dairy Show

Only three counties won higher honors in dairy products at the Dairy Show held in Plainview last week than Lynn county. Lubbock county was awarded first place, Hale county second, Randall county third, and Lynn county fourth.

In the judging contests, there were seventeen entries and five awards were made. Lynn county won two of the five, Mrs. H. O. Hargett winning third place and Mrs. Garland Pennington winning fourth. Other Lynn county women attending were Mrs. Gulon Cobb and Mrs. B. C. Aycox.

BOULLIOUN IMPROVES STORE

The front door of Boulliou's grocery store has been moved to the extreme north side of the front this week and a full plate glass front installed, greatly enhancing the attractiveness of this place of business.

Other internal improvements are also to be made.

Club Women Won Meat Show Prizes

At the Meat Show held in Lubbock two weeks ago, Lynn county H. D. club women won third place in the canned meats division. Lubbock county took first place and Hale county second.

Seventeen Lynn county women were present for the demonstration and fifteen attended the banquet given to visiting club women, according to Miss Sylvia Robb, county home demonstration agent.

5,173 DRIVERS ARE LICENSED

Two In Every Five People In Lynn County Can Drive Automobiles Records Show

Approximately two people out of every five residing in Lynn county are qualified to drive an automobile, according to driver's license figures furnished us this week by County Tax Collector and Assessor A. M. Cade.

A total of 5,173 driver's licenses had been issued up to Tuesday of this week. Since there was a population of 12,572 in Lynn county in 1930, according to the U. S. census, which has been only slightly increased, if increased at all, since that date; it becomes apparent that an average of two members of every family in the county have procured the necessary driver's license.

Records in Mr. Cade's office further disclose that up to the same date 2,151 car and truck number plates had been issued, approximately 120 of these being for trucks and something more than 2,000 being for cars. Thus it may also be seen that there are five legal drivers for every two cars, on an average.

Under the new law, driver's licenses may be forfeited for various kinds of infractions of traffic regulations. It remains to be seen how well these regulations are enforced and how often the revocation of the driver's license may be effected as a preventative of careless and reckless driving.

J. B. Ray Jr., 11, Buried Monday

Following an illness of three or four years, J. B. Ray Jr., 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ray of the Magnolia community, died at about 1 o'clock Monday morning and was buried here at about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Funeral services were conducted at the Church of Christ soon after 3 o'clock, with Elder R. P. Drennon in charge. Brief discourses were delivered by Rev. D. W. Reed of Garland, Baptist minister and an intimate friend of the family, and Elder Bill Garnett of the Church of Christ.

J. B. Ray Jr. was born June 18, 1924, in this county, and had spent his entire life here. He became seriously ill three or four years ago and had been confined to the home most of the time since. He bore his continued suffering with marvelous patience and with good cheer. He seemed to realize that his days were numbered and clearly indicated more than once that he was not afraid to die.

The family, physicians, and friends did everything possible to prolong his life and to alleviate his suffering, but they were unable to long stay the hand of death. He was almost idolized by the family and his passing was a great shock to them. They have the sincere sympathy of hosts of friends, a great concourse of whom attended the funeral services and followed the remains to the grave.

Ohio Citizen Likes Lynn County News

Adam J. Lattanner of Montpelier, Ohio, is a reader of the News. In renewing his subscription recently he handed us a nice bouquet, which we sincerely appreciate. Here it is.

"May I take this opportunity to congratulate you on the splendid newspaper you are publishing. In my opinion, it is far superior to any paper published in this country although we have several towns two or three times as large as Tahoka. I enjoy reading it each week and feel that Tahoka and Lynn County should be proud of having a paper with the high-grade syndicated items as well as the well written news items and editorials of its publisher.

Yours very truly
Adam J. Lattanner."

COUNTY FARM BOARD NAMED

Will Handle Soil Conservation Work In Lynn County, County Agent V. F. Jones Says

Lynn county has completed its organization for committeemen to handle the new Soil Conservation program, according to V. F. Jones, county agent.

The county was divided into five districts. Wilson, Morgan and Gordon constitute one district. The part of Tahoka east of Highway No. 9, New Lynn, Magnolia, Grassland, Edith and South Ward a second district. Midway, Redwine, Draw, Joe Bailey, and the part of O'Donnell east of Highway No. 9, third district. The southwest portion of the county, bounded on the east by Highway No. 9 and on the north by Highway No. 84, fourth district. The northwest portion of the county, bounded on the south by Highway No. 84 and on the east by Highway No. 9, is the fifth district.

The program in the county will be administered by three County Committeemen and fifteen Community committeemen, working through the County Agent's office. The County Committeemen are: Lamar McLaurin, R. M. Stewart and E. W. Holloway. The Community Committeemen are: John Heck, J. D. Hord, T. H. Basinger, J. W. Norman, John Link, R. W. Barton, J. M. Payne, Lonnie Williams, Albert Williams, P. O. Cabiness, J. Wright Edwards, E. A. Roberts, Fritz Speckman, Lee Cromer and Lynn West.

As soon as work sheet forms are received the committeemen will start work.

Dixie Gets Rain, Shower In Town

The lakes are brimming full out in the Dixie community, they say. A heavy rain Wednesday night did the work. The territory covered, however, was not large. At New Home only a shower fell, but at the Elton George farm two miles south of New Home there was a good rain. On highway No. 9, a pretty good rain fell all the way from the Cobb place seven miles north of Tahoka to Woodrow, a distance of about twelve miles. Only a sprinkle fell in Tahoka, but there was a brilliant electrical storm. We have not heard of any considerable rain in any other part of the county.

There was considerable hail also in some of the rain-belt. The rain fell in torrents for a short time and did not wet the ground as deep as it would have done had it fallen more slowly, but it will probably enable many farmers to plant their feed crops.

ERROR IN WATER STORY

A slight error was made last week in reporting the new water rates. After correctly stating the rate as $1.60 for the first 3,000 gallons, we stated: "For the next 7,000 gallons, 20 cents per 1,000." We should have said: "For the next 10,000 gallons, 20 cents per 1,000."

Miss Cora Lee Deaver of Lubbock is spending the week here with Miss Ruby Carpenter.

Republican County Convention Called

Mrs. Jack Alley, as Republican county chairman, has issued a call for a county convention to be held in the court house here on Tuesday, May 5, at 3 P. M., for the purpose of electing delegates to the Republican state convention which convenes in Fort Worth on Tuesday, May 26, which in turn will elect delegates to the Republican National convention.

Republican precinct chairmen in Lynn county are: D. A. Parkhurst, Tahoka; Mrs. Hal Singleton, O'Donnell; and Mrs. L. Lumsden, Wilson. The Republican county executive committee will meet here at 10 a. m. on May 5.

Prof. E. M. Hays, superintendent of the school at Whitharrell, spent Sunday here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albin Seth. Mr. Hays was formerly principal of the high school here.

Henry Reed Is Caught By 'Law'

Texarkana officers wired Sheriff B. L. Parker Tuesday that they had Henry Reed under arrest and in jail. Mr. Parker left Tuesday night to bring the accused man back to Tahoka. He is under indictment here for two cases of cow theft, and we understand that there are similar charges against him at Brownfield. Mr. Parker was expected back with his prisoner today.

Nelson Candidate For State Senate

G. H. Nelson of this city, who is serving out the unexpired term of Senator A. P. Duggan, deceased, having been elected to the position last fall, is a candidate for re-election to the place for the full term of four years beginning January 1, 1937, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries in July.

There are twenty-four or twenty-five counties in this senatorial district, in which are published many weekly and several daily newspapers. Mr. Nelson, therefore finds it too expensive to make formal announcement in the newspapers and must depend upon their generosity and their sense of right to inform the public of his candidacy.

Few men have ever served with greater fidelity or achieved greater distinction in so short a time as has Senator Nelson during the brief period that he has served in this body. He is a man of keen intellect, an inquisitive mind, broad information, a good knowledge of the law, a fine sense of justice, splendid moral character, and plenty of courage. We believe that he has a bright future in the politics of this state.

Farm Co-Op Will Hear Dr. Knapp

The members of the Farmers Cooperative-Association No. 1 will hold their annual all-day meeting here on Saturday, April 25, according to B. J. Emanuel, the president, and Claude Donaldson, the manager.

Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the Texas Technological College, has promised to be present and make an address. Dr. Knapp's addresses are always full of information and interest, and every member of the association will doubtless avail himself of the opportunity to hear this address and to enjoy the festivities of the occasion.

Carter Elected To New Home Job

Prof. J. T. Carter, principal of the high school here the past three or four years, has been elected superintendent of the New Home school, we are advised. In point of salary and possibly in other respects this means a promotion for Mr. Carter, which he richly deserves.

Mr. Carter has proven himself to be a capable and proficient teacher and school administrator here, and there is every reason to believe that he will achieve marked success in his new position.

"Hop" Halsey of Lubbock, candidate for Representative in the legislature for this district, was a brief visitor in Tahoka Tuesday afternoon. He was on his way to Lamesa to attend a Jefferson Day dinner.

NAME LEFT OUT

Last week, in listing the names of the hold-over trustees of the Tahoka Independent School District, we unintentionally omitted the name of Belton Howell. He was elected to the board a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. John Donaldson returned to their home here last week from an extended visit with their family in Houston, and with Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Thomas, the latter being their daughter, in Smithville.

Reid Townes was sick several days the first of the week with a mild flu case.

SING-SONG IS BIG SUCCESS

School Children Singers Heard In Program Held At Tahoka Sunday Afternoon

People from many school communities crowded into the Baptist Church here Sunday afternoon to hear the county-wide school children sing-song, which began soon after two o'clock and continued till four.

There were many special numbers that deserve praise, but possibly the feature of the program was the grand chorus which closed the program when approximately 250 children were crowded upon the platform to render a series of selections, including such fine numbers as "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah!", "Beautiful Texas," "Home, Sweet Home," "The Eyes of Texas," and "Rounded Up in Glory."

Previously, there had been some very fine numbers by the Junior Chorus and the Senior Chorus separately.

Pupils of individual schools also presented a number of selections, both vocal and instrumental.

Perhaps the most remarkable performance was that by little Joe Lane of Midway, violinist, who was accompanied on the piano by his teacher, Mrs. A. B. Griffith.

Prof. P. W. DuBose of Petty delivered a Texas Centennial address which was much enjoyed.

County Supt. H. P. Caveness was the general director of the affair. Mrs. Tombs, teacher at Redwine, led the singing, and Miss Jewell McIver of Petty was the piano accompanist.

Mr. Caveness announced that the district meet will be held in Lubbock May 1, when several thousand singers are expected to participate in the program, and that the state meet will be held in Dallas on June 13, when 15,000 to 20,000 singers are expected. The latter program will be given over a world-wide radio hookup and will probably be heard in all the principal nations of the world.

Farm Agents Met Here Tuesday

A sponsors' school of instruction was held in the Methodist Church here Tuesday, attended by the sponsors, county home demonstration agents, and county farm agents, and some of the assistants of Lynn, Terry, and Yoakum counties.

Miss Lida Cooper of College Station, district home demonstration agent for this district, and L. L. Johnson of College Station, state 4-H Club agent, were also present.

A picnic lunch was served in the church basement at the noon hour, and a recreation program was carried out in the afternoon under the direction of Mr. Johnson.

A total of seventeen were present.

Swan Announces For Justice Peace

If our readers will scan over the announcement column again this week they will find there the name of W. S. Swan as a candidate for Justice of the Peace, Precinct No. 1.

Mr. Swan is now holding this office by appointment, having been appointed by the commissioners court on October 4, 1935, to fill the unexpired term of B. F. (Uncle Ben) Rogers, who resigned on account of ill health. Mr. Swan is now asking that the voters elect him to the office for the full term beginning January 1, 1937.

Mr. Swan makes an ideal justice of the peace. While this is his first experience as a justice, yet he has had long years of experience as a sheriff and as a peace officer in other capacities, and has necessarily had much experience with the courts. As a layman, he is unusually well versed in the law, is possessed of a high degree of good common sense and sound judgment, and has no other occupation to make demands upon his time. His record thus far has been entirely satisfactory. He is thoroughly capable, and no better man for the place could be found. We do not anticipate that he will have an opponent.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

Ethiopia Rains Bombs Six Marriage Troubles Marilyn Miller Is Dead Another Big Question

Arthur Brisbane

Dr. Alice E. Johnson, psychiatrist of Philadelphia's Municipal court, gives six reasons for marriage failures. They are: Different family backgrounds of husband and wife; relatives interfering, especially mothers-in-law; infidelity; incompatibility; alcoholism; and a desire to "dominate." There is a seventh reason, to be found in the nature of man, who is still 98 per cent in the age of barbarism.

Marilyn Miller is dead, only thirty-eight years old. The little town of Findlay, Ohio, or the bigger town of New York, might well erect some monument to her memory. She contributed a great deal to human cheerfulness and happiness, and it may be said of her, as Samuel Johnson said, referring to the death of the great actor, Garrick, that her death "eclipsed the gaiety of nations and impoverished the public's stock of harmless pleasure."

A lady who signs "E. A. G." is interested in very serious things. She writes: "The more I hear of those big armies, the more I am reminded of the huge population of hell. What is your idea of hell?"

That big question may be answered later. An aged colored man once told his pastor: "I don't believe in hell, because I don't think any constitution could stand it."

"It worries me," says the lady, "that so many men are afraid of poverty here upon earth, and not afraid of hell." Miss E. A. G. is certain that hell is real, a belief that must be comforting to those anxious to have the wicked punished.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, head of the Chase National bank, biggest in America, knows about money, as did his father before him, the late senator from Rhode Island, who invented the Federal Reserve plan and put it through. Mr. Aldrich thinks it would not be a good idea to turn money loose and encourage a speculative, stock-gambling boom. He remembers 1929.

Under certain circumstances "the prospect of inflation is very grave indeed," says Mr. Aldrich and warns against "the erection of a top-heavy structure of credit again."

When a woman starts, she keeps going, nearly always. Nothing could stop Joan of Arc, Dr. Mary Walker, or Nellie Bly on her trip around the world. Now Amy Johnson, married name Millson, sets out alone in a streamlined monoplane to beat the record on a flight to Cape Town and back.

All alone, down to the other side of the world and back again, over ocean, forests, wild beasts and wilder men. And fools used to say women lacked courage!

An offensive and defensive treaty between Japan and Germany, like the one between France and Russia, is considered a certainty.

It should be possible for nations that want to survive and prosper to get together and let others that must fight kill each other off until they tire of it. This country, at least, should carry out that plan.

Japan and Russia have passed from the "warning" stage to border fighting on the Russian side. Planes, war tanks and heavy artillery are taken across the Manchukuo border by Russia, and that "looks like business."

Russia will soon know how much Mongolia will be worth as a protection against Japan, and Europe may soon know the value of Russia as a protection against Asia.

The Canadian Press news service says, Canada's wealth has shrunk almost six thousand million dollars since 1929. That will be only a temporary shrinkage.

You know that England is worried about something when you read that she now demands that the league establish an oil embargo against Italy. A little later, it is explained that England is outraged by Italy's use of poison gas against the Ethiopians. Mussolini used something worse than poison gas against England when he occupied the Lake Tana region.

Congressmen Hurrying With Tax and Relief Programs—Black's Committee Wins a Decision—Distracting Rivalries in European Diplomacy.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

CONGRESS settled down to earnest work that would clear the way for early adjournment, the two chief matters under consideration being taxes and relief.

Harry L. Hopkins

Democratic members of the house ways and means committee worked in executive session to draw up the new revenue measure which they expect will yield about $799,000,000 in additional taxes during the next year. The minority members stayed away, scornfully asserting their presence was useless because the preparation of the measure was utterly partisan.

Representative A. P. Lamneck of Ohio, Democrat, was insistent on his plan to raise $500,000,000 by a flat 20 to 22 per cent tax on corporation income. To produce $263,000,000 more and bring his plan nearly up to the money requirement outlined by President Roosevelt, Lamneck would repeal the present exemption of corporation dividends from the normal income tax rate. On that, he was in agreement with the committee program.

Harry L. Hopkins, head of the WPA, appeared before a subcommittee of the house appropriations committee, also in executive session, to urge compliance with President Roosevelt's request for an additional billion and a half to finance relief in the 1937 fiscal year. Various committee members at once demanded that Mr. Hopkins tell what had been done with the $4,800,000,000 granted last year. He was said to have promised to do his best to satisfy them, but Chairman J. P. Buchanan warned the minority members that "this is not to be made into an investigation."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, happy and well tanned, wound up his fishing cruise in the Bahamas and returned to Washington. He landed at Fort Lauderdale and boarded his special train at once, being accompanied for a time by Governor Sholtz of Florida and James A. Moffett who may be appointed assistant secretary of the navy to succeed the late Henry Roosevelt. Governor McNutt of Indiana, possible keynoter of the Democratic convention, went up from Miami to greet the President.

On the way to Washington Mr. Roosevelt stopped for half a day at Warm Springs, Ga., to look at his farm and take a swim in the resort pool. Passing through part of the region devastated by the recent tornadoes, he received reports from eyewitnesses along the route.

SENATOR BLACK'S lobby committee won a considerable victory in the District of Columbia Supreme court when Chief Justice Wheat refused to enjoin the committee from using the telegrams from and to William R. Hearst which had been seized. The court held that the judge had no jurisdiction over the committee, and said he could not see that the freedom of the press was in any way involved.

"I have not been informed yet of any case in which any court has assumed to dictate to a committee of the senate what it should do and what it should not do, and I do not feel that I have any right to inaugurate any such principle as that."

Elisha Hanson, counsel for Mr. Hearst, announced that he would appeal from the decision, and it was certain that the case would ultimately be taken before the United States Supreme court.

Continuing its investigation, the Black committee heard the testimony of Fred G. Clark of New York, national commander of the Crusaders. Mr. Clark denied that the organization had ever engaged in lobbying, and declared that it had assailed the methods of lobbyists in a national radio broadcast.

Senator Black endeavored to show that the Crusaders, the American Liberty league, the Sentinels of the Republic, the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, the American Taxpayers' league, the National Economy league, and similar organizations opposed to the New Deal were supported largely by the same small group of wealthy industrialists. One of his investigators put in a list of contributors to two or more of the groups named. Mr. Clark refused permission to include in the record a list of hundreds of small contributors, who sent in sums ranging from $1 up in response to the radio program.

MUSSOLINI'S African adventure and Hitler's Rhineland doings and future intentions, tangled together, have created a situation that seemed to imperil the formal friendship between Great Britain and France. The British were insisting that Italy be curbed, that her use of poison gas in Ethiopia be taken up by the League of Nations and that peace negotiations between Italy and Ethiopia be opened quickly to forestall any attempt by Premier Mussolini to sign a settlement which might rise from ruins of Haile Selassie's Ethiopian empire. Foreign Secretary Eden indicated the British were determined to make peace progress "before we leave Geneva." Britain reserving its decision as to what to do next if this conciliation effort failed.

The conciliation committee of the league was making little or no progress, and in Rome Mussolini told his cabinet that Ethiopia's armies should and would be "totally annihilated." His own forces, meanwhile, were moving rapidly toward Desaye and Addis Ababa.

France was reverting to her former policy of letting Italy go ahead with its African conquest, devoting her attention mainly to Germany and central Europe. The British continued to treat all that in a conciliatory way, which disgusted the French. Premier Sarraut handed in his government's reply to the Hitler settlement proposals, submitting in return its own plan. This demanded that Germany keep "hands off" the rest of Europe for 25 years, renouncing her apparent intentions of action against Austria, Danzig and Memel, and claims for colonies. It submitted a French peace plan based on "collective security" with regional mutual assistance pacts backed by an international army directed by a commission working through the league.

FEDERAL money totaling $976,000,000 will be spent in the next four years on low-cost rent and slum clearance construction projects, provided the administration's housing bill, introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, is passed by congress. Mr. Wagner hopes it will be put through during the present session.

The measure is a compromise of the many proposals made by the various relief and housing agencies of the New Deal and was drafted after a series of conferences with President Roosevelt. It would create another bureau, with five directors, including the secretary of the interior in his ex officio capacity, receiving $10,000 salaries.

The authority would be empowered to make grants not to exceed 45 per cent of the total cost and loans for the remainder to any public housing agency for the acquisition of land and the construction of "low-rent" housing projects. The loans would be repayable over a period not to exceed 60 years, at such rates of interest as the authority decreed.

FLYING through a fog on its way to Pittsburgh, a Transcontinental and Western Air liner went far out of its course, plowed through the forest seven miles southeast of Union City, Pa., and smashed into a granite wall on Chestnut Ridge. Nine passengers and the two pilots were killed. The stewardess, Miss Nellie Granger, managed to drag one man and the sole woman passenger from the flaming wreckage, bound up their wounds, ran four miles to a farmhouse from which she telephoned to Pittsburgh the news of the disaster, and then returned to the scene to care for the survivors until a rescue party could arrive. The pilots were flying on a radio beam, and it was believed their radio apparatus failed. At this writing there is no other explanation.

SOMETHING new in Spanish history took place in Madrid. The parliament by a vote of 238 to 5, ousted Niceto Alcalá Zamora from the office of president of the republic. This action, accomplished by a coalition of Socialists, Communists, Left Republicans and ten minor groups, was taken on a Socialist motion that the president had acted illegally in dissolving the last parliament before the elections and that therefore he should be expelled from office. Back of this motion, however, lay radical sentiment that Zamora, in using his power according to personal whim, has hampered the progress of the "republican revolution."

Diego Martinez Barrio, speaker of parliament, was made temporary president to serve until elections are held.

RUSSIA has rejected China's protest against the soviet-Outer Mongolian mutual assistance pact, but asserted the treaty does not signify any territorial claim by the Soviet union over China or Outer Mongolia. The Russians believe that Japan plans to set up puppet states in North China and Inner Mongolia and then to seize Outer Mongolia.

The Manchukuo government gave out details of a bloody battle between Manchukuoans and Outer Mongolians in which the latter were repulsed, losing six bombing planes and some tanks.

SENATOR NORRIS' bill creating a Mississippi Valley authority to apply the TVA experiment to 22 states is not approved by the National Grange, which thinks it would be absurd to bring new land into cultivation by irrigation while farmers are being paid for letting their land lie fallow. Fred H. Breckenman, legislative representative of the Grange, appeared before a senate agriculture subcommittee and said the organization also objected to the proposal to construct huge dams throughout the Mississippi valley for the production of hydro-electric power. He favored a scientific program of soil conservation but insisted upon a distinction between conservation and reclamation. He also advocated a scientific flood control program, but distinguished between flood control and hydro-electric power development.

Like previous witnesses, including electrical engineers and Morris L. Cooke, the New Deal's rural electrification administrator, Mr. Breckenman informed the committee that flood control can be accomplished only by constructing little dams far up in the headwaters.

FIVE hundred members of the Workers' Alliance, in convention in Washington, marched to the White House to demand continuation of the Works Progress administration, but neither President Roosevelt nor any of his secretaries was there to receive their petition. The men were orderly and the police did not molest them. WPA Administrator Hopkins also was absent from his office, but his assistant, Aubrey Williams, received the delegation.

David Lasser, national chairman of the organization, told Williams the group had been promised food and shelter during their stay in Washington and transportation to their homes. Williams said that under a regular program promulgated February 2 no federal funds could be donated for conventions of the unemployed unless congress made a specific appropriation for that purpose.

DUE to the insistence of Senator Vandenberg for publicity on large AAA benefit payments, Secretary Wallace has begun telling about them. He made a partial report, withholding the names of recipients with three exceptions. This revealed that the largest cotton rental benefit payment, $123,747 for 1934, went to a Mississippi company headed by Oscar Johnston, an AAA official. Among the largest cotton payment recipients in 1935 were the Mississippi state penitentiary, which received $43,200 for controlling production on its cotton acreage, and $25,500 to the Arkansas state prison.

RESOLVING itself into a court, the senate began the impeachment trial of Federal Judge Hailed, L. Ritter of Florida—the twelfth such case in 137 years. It was believed the trial would last at least one week.

The defendant was represented by Carl F. Hoffman of Miami and Frank R. Walsh of Washington and New York. The prosecution was in charge of Representatives Summers of Texas, Hobbs of Alabama and Perkins of New Jersey, who presented the charges.

Originally approximately 90 witnesses were summoned for the trial, but 29 were excused because of withdrawal by the prosecution of two specifications in article seven charging Judge Ritter acted improperly in electric rate and banking proceedings.

Judge Ritter is charged in seven impeachment articles voted by the house with allowing A. L. Rankin, a former law partner, exorbitant receivership fees, with "corruptly" receiving $4,500 from Rankin, with violating the judicial code in practicing law while on the bench, and with evasion of taxes on part of his 1929 and 1930 incomes.

In a 12,000-word reply, Ritter denied all of the charges. He asserted none of the actions cited had "brought his court into scandal and disrepute" or "destroyed public confidence in the administration of justice" in that court.

TORNADOES tore across Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas, and Tennessee, leaving death and destruction in their wake. About 400 persons were killed and hundreds of others injured, and the property losses ran up into the millions. The little city of Tupelo, Miss., suffered the most, with nearly 200 on the death list and more than a hundred homes smashed into kindling wood.

A few hours later another tornado struck Gainesville, Ga., and in three minutes had nearly ruined the business section of the town and killed more than 150 persons. In fires that followed the storm the bodies of many victims were burned beyond recognition.

The mining communities near Columbia, Tenn., to the north and east of Tupelo, counted seven dead. Red Bay, eastward in Alabama, lost five lives to the merciless wind. Near-by Booneville, Miss., had four killed and Batesville, Ark., suffered one death.

IN A decision concerning a specific action of the Securities Exchange commission the United States Supreme court ruled against the SEC, and in its pronouncement it uttered a significant warning against the exercise of arbitrary power by governmental agencies. Especially censured were the "fishing excursions," often undertaken by commissions and congressional committees.

GOD, THE FORGIVING FATHER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:11-24. GOLDEN TEXT—Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him.—Psalm 103:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy's Good Father. JUNIOR TOPIC—Welcome Home. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What is God Like? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Forgiving Love.

The center of interest in this parable is not the prodigal nor his brother, but the "certain man who had two sons." In this parable, in a most picturesque and dramatic manner, the history of man is portrayed from his fall to his reconciliation with God. The whole orbit of revelation is swept as it pertains to a sinning race and a pardoning God. He who fails to see the heart of our Father God will miss the purpose of the parable. It should be understood and taught not as a piece of far-off ancient history, but as a portrayal of modern conditions.

I. The Son's Insubordination (v. 12). There is every indication that this was a happy home, but a devil entered it and stirred up discontent in the heart of the younger son. He became tired of the restraints of home. His desire for freedom moved him willfully to choose to leave home to throw off the constraints of a father's rule. Sin is the desire to be free from the restraints of rightful authority and is selfish indulgence. It starts out with wrong thoughts about God.

II. The Son's Departure (v. 13). Having made the fatal decision, he went posthaste to the enjoyment of his cherished vision. He, therefore, got his goods in portable shape and withdrew from his father's presence. Adam and Eve, after they had sinned, hid themselves. The son could not stand the presence of his father, so he hastened away. When the sinner casts off allegiance to God, he takes all that he has with him.

III. The Son's Degeneration (vv. 13, 14). He had his good time while his money lasted, but the end came quickly. Indications are that his course was soon run. From plenty in his father's house to destitution in the far country was a short journey. The sinner comes to realize the "famine" when the very powers which ministered to his pleasure are burned out.

IV. The Son's Degradation (vv. 15, 16). His friends lasted only while he had money. When his money was all gone he was driven to hire out to a citizen to feed swine. It was indeed a change from a son in his father's house to feeding swine in a far country. It is ever so that those who will not serve God are made slaves to the Devil (Rom. 6:16). This vividly portrays the story of many men and women about us, and is a picture of the inevitable consequences of sin.

V. The Son's Restoration (vv. 17-24). 1. He "came to himself" (v. 17). When he reflected a bit he was made conscious that though he had wronged his father and ruined himself, yet he was a son of his father. In the days of his sinning he was beside himself. The sinner continues in sin because he is insane. The world calls the sinner who leaves off his evil ways crazy, but in reality he has just become sane. If sinners could be induced to think seriously of their condition, it would be easy to get them to turn from their sins.

2. His resolution (v. 18). His reflection ripened into resolution. The picture of his home, where even the hired servants had a superabundance, moved him to make a decision to leave the far country and go home.

3. His confession (vv. 18, 19). He acknowledged that his sin was against heaven and his father, that he had forfeited his rights to be called a son, and begged to be given a place as a hired servant.

4. His action (v. 20). Resolution will not avail unless accompanied with action. When the confession is genuine, action will follow.

5. His reception by his father (vv. 20-24). The father had not forgotten his son. No doubt during these years he longed for the son's return. He must often have looked for him, for he beheld him when he was a great way off. So anxious was he for him that he ran to meet him and fell upon his neck and kissed him. So glad was the father that he even did not hear the son's confession through, but ordered the tokens of honor to be placed upon him, receiving him back into a son's position. They the feast was made, expressive of the joy of his heart. God is love; Jesus came to reveal God. This parable lays bare God's heart.

A Good Heart

A good heart, a tender disposition, a charity that shuns the day, a modesty that blushes at its own excellence, an impulse toward something more divine than mammon; such are the accomplishments that preserve beauty forever young.—Lord Lytton.

Virtues Great souls are not those which have fewer passions and more virtue than common ones, but those only which have greater aims.—La Rochefoucauld.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Tomatoes will keep for three or four days in a mechanical refrigerator if placed stems down in a shallow pan.

If your floors are worn and will not hold wax, try touching up the worn places with white shellac and then wax. The floors will be much improved by this treatment.

If the pan in which chocolate is melted is lightly buttered, it will pour more easily.

House plants will have to be watered more often now than they were during early winter months. A warmer temperature and brighter sunshine will dry the pots out much more rapidly.

Grated orange rind and two teaspoonfuls of orange juice added to fudge while cooking gives it a delicious flavor.

String and butter beans will cook more quickly if salt is not added to the water in which they are boiled until a few minutes before removing from the fire.

"Direct From the Field of Glory!"

On the 21st of April, the Texans, under Houston, and 600 strong, had maneuvered so as to get above and within some two miles and in sight of the Mexicans, under Santa Ana, who were 1,270 strong, and near down to the fork of the two rivers, the Brazos and Sabine. Houston, having the enemy thus snugly hemmed in, had his little army drawn up for the purpose of addressing it in person. "Soldiers," said he, "there is the enemy—do you want to fight?" "Yes!" was the universal shout. "Well, then," said he, "let us eat our dinner, and then I will lead you into battle!" They obeyed the order to eat, and immediately thereafter, at about 4 o'clock P. M. were marched to the attack. They bore down upon the Mexicans at the top of their speed, reserving their fire until near enough to have every shot tell. A hot engagement was kept up about twenty minutes, when the Mexicans began to break and retreat in great disorder and confusion. The Texans carried all before them. Although they had but half the number of the Mexicans, and but two pieces of cannon of four pounds each, while the enemy had a six and a nine pounder, yet in fifteen minutes after the engagement commenced, many of the Mexicans called loudly for quarter. After the rout of the Mexicans, Houston's men continued to follow up and pour in upon them for about two hours. Upwards of six hundred and fifty Mexicans were killed, and about six hundred taken prisoners. There were six or seven Texans killed and about twenty wounded. Generals Cos and Almonte were among the first prisoners taken. The former was pale and greatly agitated, but the latter displayed, as he had done during the fight, great coolness and courage.

Santa Ana fled among the earliest who retreated. He was seen by two boys, one about 15 and the other about 17 years of age, to go into a thicket of woods. They kept watch of the place during the night, and the next morning a man came out dressed like a common Mexican soldier. Not suspecting him to be Santa Ana, they took him prisoner. He offered no resistance, but wished to be taken to General Houston. He was conducted to that officer, when he made himself known as Santa Ana, asked the respect due officers of rank, and made the offer for his liberty which had been published.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

DIRECT From the Field of Glory! Such was the headline under which the Mobile (Ala.) Mercantile Advertiser carried the news story quoted in part above. (This excerpt is taken from the book, "America Goes to Press—The News of Yesterday," written by Laurence Greene and published recently by the Bobbs-Merrill company). The "field of glory" to which it refers was that of San Jacinto, the one hundredth anniversary of which is being observed this month as a part of the Texas centennial celebration. During that time the name of Sam Houston again will be "fung against the stars." Orators again will heap praises upon him as the "Hero of San Jacinto" and the "Savior of Texas." They will tell again how he vanquished Santa Ana, the Mexican dictator, as though it adds to the stature of their hero by calling him the conqueror of that self-styled "Napoleon of the West" (which he wasn't). Much better might they call Houston the "Washington of the West" (which he was). To do that, of course, would involve recognition of the unpleasant fact that this Virginian, like his great predecessor, was successful in a fight for liberty almost as much DESPITE his patriotism as he was BECAUSE of them. If you doubt that statement, read the biography of Houston, "The Raven" (also published by the Bobbs-Merrill company) which won for its author, Marquis James, a Pulitzer prize in 1930.

In it you will learn that Houston, commander-in-chief of an army of liberation in 1836, had to contend with the same difficulties which constantly harassed George Washington, commander-in-chief of the forces fighting for American liberty in 1776. Jealousy, bickering, lack of co-operation, indecision, inadequate supplies, divided authority, an untrained and undisciplined army—he struggled against all of these handicaps just as Washington had. That he was able to overcome them all and against a superior force to win the overwhelming victory that he did adds to the brilliance of his achievement and makes San Jacinto a "field of glory" indeed.

Houston first went to Texas in 1832. In that year Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna overthrew the government of President Bustamante and on April 1, 1833, the American settlers in Texas held a convention at San Felipe to propose to the new president of Mexico that Texas be made a separate state. But when Stephen F. Austin, the "Father of Texas," went to Mexico City to lay the convention's request before the new president, he immediately threw Austin in jail and made clear his hostility toward the idea of Texan autonomy.

The imprisonment of Austin and the attitude of the Mexican dictator toward his American subjects in Texas soon fanned their resentment into a determination to revolt. Talk of independence was in the air but Houston, who had played a leading part in the San Felipe convention, joined Austin in his counsel to "keep quiet, discountenance all revolutionary measures or men" because, as he declared, "they would be likely to plunge Texas into a bloody struggle with Mexico before she was prepared for it."

But the pressure was too strong upon him and late in 1835 when the Committee of Vigilance and Safety commissioned him "commander-in-chief of the forces of the department of Nacogdoches," he issued a call for recruits in Texas to "join our ranks with a good rifle and 100 rounds of ammunition."

He next went to Washington-on-the-Brazos where a convention was held on November 3, 1835. It elected Houston commander-in-chief of the Texas armies. Having no confidence in raw volunteers, hastily assembled as an army, he immediately began making plans for a well-drilled body of troops before attempting a test of strength with the forces which Santa Anna would soon be leading into Texas.

San Antonio de Bexar was held by General Cos with a force of 1,400 Mexicans. At Concepcion were less than 500 Texans commanded nominally by Edward Burleson but actually under the joint command of James Bowie and James W. Fannin. Despite Houston's recommendation to Fannin that he wait until artillery were available, Fannin declared that with 250 men he could take the place by storm. His "army" shared that belief, too. So when a veteran plainsman raised the cry of "Who'll go into Bexar with old Ben Milam?" 300 men volunteered and stormed the town in face of artillery fire. Milam was killed and the command passed to Francis W. Johnson. Five days later, Cos surrendered. "Texas went wild over the victor and said that the war was over. Burleson, who had said that Bexar could not be taken without artillery, resigned and went home. . . . Johnson was elected commander. . . . The recruits flocked to the leaders who had covered themselves with glory at San Antonio de Bexar. That victory had been a blow to Houston's prestige and a movement to displace him as commander-in-chief took form."

Fortunately that movement did not succeed, although Houston soon found himself in the position of being commander of an army that did not seem much as it pleased. Urged thereto by James Grant, a Scottish surgeon-whose mines south of the

SANTA ANNA

Rio Grande had been seized by the Mexicans, plans were made for two detachments to march south to attack Matamoros, a Mexican town on the south bank of the Rio Grande. The theory was that by doing so they could turn the flank of Santa Anna's army when it invaded Texas but the proponents of the scheme failed to realize that their force was totally inadequate, both in numbers and training, for such a job.

Houston protested strenuously against such a foolish move, even though the provisional council of Texas approved it. Two terrible disasters later were the direct result of his ignoring his advice.

Santa Anna was not expected to invade Texas until spring but in January Houston learned that the Mexican dictator had already crossed the Rio Grande and was advancing rapidly toward San Antonio de Bexar. He sent James Bowie, who was at Goliad with a small force, to Bexar with instructions to "demolish the fortifications, remove all the cannon, blow up the Alamo and abandon the place."

Bowie started to do this but soon afterwards Houston, through the intrigues of Johnson and Grant, was deposed as commander-in-chief and James W. Fannin made head of the army. Realizing the futility of struggling against this military cabal Houston set out for Washington-on-the-Brazos and when the Texas Declaration of Independence was signed on March 2, 1836, "Sam Houston was the John Hancock of the occasion, his flowing autograph as bold as ever." On March 4 the convention again elected Houston commander-in-chief of its armies.

In the meantime events were marching to a tragic conclusion at San Antonio. Goliad, instead of obeying Houston's orders to blow up the Alamo and abandon the place, had chosen to remain there with Lieut. Col. William B. Travis who commanded a detachment of 150 men. On February 24 Santa Anna's army appeared and laid siege to the place. The rest is history—how Travis, Bowie, Bonham, Davy Crockett and the rest fought against overwhelming odds until March 6 when the end came, for "Thermopylae had its messenger of defeat—the Alamo had none."

By that time Houston had started for Gonzales and had sent word to Fannin, who had built "Fort Defiance" at Goliad, to join him. Arriving in Gonzales on March 11, Houston found himself in command of an army of only 374 men with only two cannon that would shoot. He immediately started drilling the men but was interrupted by the arrival of two Mexicans with the story of the Alamo. Keeping the news from his men, the commander busied himself with recruiting until his army had grown to 500 men. Again he sent orders to Fannin to blow up his useless fort and retreat.

Then the news of the Alamo disaster leaked out and panic spread through the town and the army. Moreover, word came from Santa Anna that the fate of the men in the Alamo would be the fate of all Texans found in arms against his authority. For the first time they realized that theirs was a fight to the death.

With only the small force at his disposal, Houston knew that any attempt to stand his ground and await Santa Anna's onslaught would be fatal. There was only one thing to do and he resolved to do it. He would retire to East Texas, gathering men as he went, and try to lure the enemy into dividing his forces in pursuit. Then he might have a chance to beat them in detail before they could concentrate against him. It was the old Napoleonic strategy which he was proposing to use against this "Napoleon of the West."

So that retreat, which has become one of the epics of American history, began. To read the story of it is to recall some of the campaigns of Washington in the Revolution. The resemblance is striking and gives further point to calling Sam Houston the "Washington of the West."

During that retreat Houston dictated to his aide, Maj. George W. Hockley, an order to Maj. William T. Austin to hasten to the coast, find some artillery and rejoin the army on the Colorado in twelve days' time. "Houston meant to fight"—and the fight would be on ground of his own choosing. But the retreat did not end at the Colorado. For the panic which had started among the people of Texas as Santa Anna advanced spread to the newly elected government officials. They hastily abandoned Washington and established the seat of government at Harrisburg. Despite the discouraging moral effect of this action Houston managed to hold his army together and even gain recruits until his army numbered some 1,400 men, poorly equipped, without artillery, but eager for battle.

Then came more disheartening news—Fannin had been attacked at Goliad, defeated and most of his men slaughtered after they had surrendered. Enraged by this news Houston's men demanded that they be led against General Sesma's detachment of Santa Anna's army which was camped across the Colorado river. Houston not only refused but ordered the retreat continued. By now there was mutinous talk in the army and a growing demand that Houston be deposed from command.

"For three terrible days Houston drove the stumbling column through the unrelenting rain, advancing only 18 miles. On March 31, 1836, he halted in a 'bottom' by the Brazos with 900 demoralized and mutinous men remaining of the 1,300 he had led from the Colorado five days before. . . . Sam Houston's rain-soaked and rebellious mob was the republic's solitary hope—menaced by four Mexican columns sweeping forward to enclose its front, flanks and rear."

However, the rain which soaked the Texans also delayed the Mexicans and gave Houston the time he needed to whip his "mob" into some semblance of an army. In the meantime his long-awaited guns had arrived—two six-pounders, the gift of friends in Cincinnati. With Santa Anna in pursuit, he continued to fall back until at last his mastery retreat ended on the banks of the San Jacinto river. Then when Santa Anna divided his forces, Houston's great opportunity came. The result was that "field of glory"—the Battle of San Jacinto.

She was red-headed, so the traffic cop's remonstrance was couched in dulcet tones after he untangled the traffic snarl.

"But you should have held out your hand to indicate you were going to turn," he murmured.

"Yes, ma'am," said the cop meekly.

PIERCED SKULLS OF DEAD INDIANS PUZZLE SCIENCE

Why certain Indians of Michigan bored near holes in the skull and leg bones of some of their dead is a problem still without a good clew to the answer, Dr. W. D. Hinsdale, Museum of Anthropology, told the Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters. He reported on several such skeletons found near Flat Rock and Farmington.

The leg bones from near Farmington are the first to be found showing this peculiarity having small holes bored near the joints. This gives some plausibility to the theory that skeletons of the dead were strung together like jointed dolls and used in some ceremonial fashion at feasts of the dead. Some tribes, especially the Hurons, are known to have held such religious or magical ceremonies, Doctor Hinsdale states.

The skull holes, which have been found from time to time, were obviously bored after death. The holes average about a half inch at the surface and usually taper neatly inward. Apparently they were drilled with a stone instrument similar to an arrow head. They occur in the skulls of men, women and children, Doctor Hinsdale reports.

The skull openings were definitely not trepannings, which is a surgical process ordinarily performed on living persons and involving the sawing out of a circle or "button" of bone, either for medical reasons or to secure a magical amulet. Trepanning was done by the Indians, however, and Doctor Hinsdale has one such skull which shows that healing and progressed after the operation.

Various theories have been advanced to explain the strange skull borings. One is that the holes were intended for strings or thongs, by which the skull could be carried about, but none of the openings show signs of wear to support this, while the holes are often in inconvenient places for such a purpose.

Onion Sold as a Lily Bulb Legally in New York City

An onion is a lily, not only botanically but legally.

A seed merchant tells that some time ago a bright young man loaded a pushcart with crimson bulbs, wheeled them to a New York ferry station, and did a lively business selling "allium cepa lilies" to home-going commuters, relates the Milwaukee Journal.

Somebody had him arrested; said he was peddling ordinary red onions. He admitted that, but the judge discharged him. An allium cepa lily, declared the court, is an onion.

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dosing at the fire-side, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he meets Judge Hambridge and his daughter, Patricia, whose car had broken down. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday. Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer.

He caught Mr. Crowell inspecting the tag sewn onto the back of his waistcoat. Well, that was all right, and, of course, nothing could be wrong when the trousers were to be sent by parcel post to "John Clarke Ridder, Jr." at Southampton. Before the Duke departed Mr. Crowell had secured orders for a sack suit and evening clothes. "Charge me to my father," the Duke said, and Mr. Crowell answered, "Certainly, and I'll let you know when we're ready to try on."

This procedure, and those following at the haberdasher's and the shoemaker's, ruffled the Duke's conscience far less than the hundred-dollar bill had done. "I'll pay it all back some day," he thought, without asking himself how.

On the return trip to Southampton, it struck him that he'd got a pretty extensive wardrobe for one dinner party. "Well," he argued, "suppose I do stay a month. I might as well be hanged for a sheep as for a lamb, and nothing much can happen before my father's return—unless the real John Clarke Junior changes his mind about writing to Bad Nauheim."

Of course, the Duke might write to felicitate the old man on having made it up with his boy. What then? That wouldn't tell them that this wasn't the same boy. Still it might be safer to hint to the Hambridges that the Ridders were going to wander about a bit before arriving at their destination.

The Duke leaned back in the Long Island Railway's best parlor car, and opened a newspaper he had bought at the station. Almost instantly, he saw his new friend's name again. "Jefferson Street Condominium Just Another Grab," the headline ran. "Civic Association Brands Proceedings Before Judge Hambridge as Bare-faced Loot of City Treasury."

"They're certainly making it hot for him," Barry mused.

He wouldn't have read the story, but for its reference to the Judge. Even so, he read it very casually. Somebody wanted to turn a side street into a boulevard. That involved buying a lot of property. And the property owners weren't willing to sell for what the city was willing to pay, so "condemnation proceedings had been instituted"—whatever they might be—and Judge Hambridge was to fix the value of the ground and houses.

"Who really owns this property?" the Civic association asked. The corporation that held title was an obnoxious stalking-horse. It had been formed, and had purchased the land, and buildings, only a few months before the beginning of municipal interest in Jefferson street. And it was demanding a million and a half for a few relics of a better day in this neighborhood that would have been dear at half a million. Tammany's paw was visible in the whole transaction, according to the Civic association, and the impending decision called for prompt action from individuals and organizations aware that Judge Hambridge was a Tammany judge.

"Prompt action?" Swell chance! Who cared? Plainly, the tax-payers didn't, and Barry wasn't even a taxpayer. As a couple of million other citizens were to do that evening, he dismissed the whole matter from his mind, and turned the page, looking for a good murder.

Reaching home, he went straight to the library.

The winter covers had been removed from the furniture now, and the place was bright and shining. The Italian box had been filled with cigars. Bending over to get one, the Duke's gaze fell upon an envelope addressed to his other self.

A radio message! His fingers stiffened.

The Judge hadn't waited to write. Damn Marconi! Feverishly, he tore open the wrapper.

"Just to let you know that I am very happy stop couldn't sleep last night for thinking of you home at last please please try to spend summer in such a way as to make reconciliation possible stop praying for word on arrival stop God bless you and love."

"Mother."

For once, the Duke didn't grin. "She didn't care what it cost," he said, but there was no humor in that comment. He was picturing a hurried, heart-hungry woman, slipping furtively up to the wireless room, and handing in this message herself, so that no steward should unwittingly betray her. The first word she had been able to smuggle to the boy in years. "It's been killing your mother," the Judge had said.

The Duke touched a button, and Willetts came.

"Where's Evans?"

"In the garage, sir. With his wife."

"Ask him to run me down to the village. I want to send a telegram to my mother."

"I can telephone it, sir."

"Thanks; I'd rather hand it in."

"Very good, sir. The car'll be here in a minute or two, sir. And I'll hold dinner."

Barry never thought any harder than he did during that short ride. What could he say that would make his mother still happier, and yet mean nothing if the message fell into the hands of that hard, old man?

In all probability, his father knew the house had been opened. Must know, since he had forbidden Evans to bring his wife. Well, then, suppose the telegram were signed "Willetts," but contained a reference that would identify the real sender—to her, and to no one else?

"Radio received," he wireless at last. "Will do my best. Writing. Willetts."

She would understand.

The reaction came after dinner. "Mandlin, that's what I am," thought the Duke. "Just because I get a message signed 'Mother.' The first one I ever got."

"Damn fool trick—sending that wireless. Sooner or later, she's going to find out it was fake, and then what good will I have done?"

Thursday's dinner started off on the wrong foot.

The Duke wore his new flannels and his old gray coat. It was not a warm evening, but he had nothing else to wear. His father's apparel was much too tight.

He could see Patricia taking him in. She was lovely in cherry-colored crepe de chine, and the Judge immaculate in black tie and dinner jacket. "You said we could fight things out on the tennis court," the Duke apologized, "and I'm afraid that stuck in my mind. The truth is my luggage hasn't turned up, and I had to wear anything I could find."

"You should have worn a strip of bunting, and brought boxing gloves," the Judge laughed. "If you and Pat are going at it as you did at the club."

"What would happen if we agreed about anything?" asked Patricia.

"I'd be wrong," Miss Hambridge; I'd be wrong!"

The retort was no more his own than the shirt on his back, but he was rewarded for it by an appreciative flash in the girl's eyes.

But they couldn't agree.

How was it possible, the Duke asked himself afterward, to be so fascinated by a young woman who opposed his every idea and utterance? And so well, so cockily. As though it amused her to be irritating.

The girl chattered about everything. Hard-boiled. A modern, and proud of it. Why should people be proud of being "modern"; a state, like kingship, that you achieved merely by being born? And, so far as modernity was a point of view, why preen yourself because you didn't believe in anything except your own right to be happy?

This girl had had no contact with life. Walled about in a pleasant garden, she delivered herself of smart, brittle opinions of conditions she had never experienced, people she had never seen. But you couldn't help liking her. And it began to be evident that she liked him. "You're different, at least," she said. "Different from any other man I know. Really not a bit like a rich man's son."

"I've been on my own a good while," he reminded her.

"Yes," she answered. "You've something to talk about. When my set's through with golf, bridge, the stock market, and the night clubs, it's through!"

Barry learned a good deal about his adopted father that night. And, when Patricia left them for a few minutes, the Judge repeated, "He's certainly no sentimentalist—that gentleman. We're supposed to be friends, and his paper goes on attacking me. The Civic association—that's nothing on earth but The Globe. And now they're all at it. Talking about my taking orders from Tammany. Generally, it wouldn't matter, but this Jefferson street business has got everybody so worked up, it's all a man's career's worth just to be caught nodding to a District Leader."

Barry nodded. "Did you ever speak to the old man?"

"Just a few days before he left. I'm running my newspaper for the public," he said.

"Who's the use of stopping one paper?" Patricia inquired, entering the room. "The others would keep right on. Did you ever read any of the things they wrote about Abraham Lincoln? Be a brave old gentleman, and don't let it bother you."

She laughed, but her eyes were very tender as she laid her hands on the Duke's shoulders.

"That's why I like her," thought the Duke. "Because I see what she'd be if somebody scraped off the enamel. She's got the makings of some girl!"

It was after midnight when Barry climbed into his car, calling back, "Remember, you're dining with me next Thursday!"

"You certainly took father out of himself," the girl had remarked to him. "He's been frightfully depressed."

"Let's see a lot of one another," the Duke had rejoined. "I'm lonely as an oyster in a church steeple. Why not come to my place next Thursday?"

"All right. And we're having house guests over the following week-end. The Winslows. My mother was Mrs. Winslow's sister. Peter's a prominent lawyer, and it won't hurt you to know him. And I've got an old school friend coming from Boston.—Will you dine with us again that Friday?"

"I'll board with you, if you ask me!" Barry replied exuberantly. "But that lets me out," he vowed, on the way home. "This can't go on forever. Something's sure to break, and I don't want it to break anywhere near that girl. What she learns when I'm gone won't hurt either of us, but—Gosh—I'd have having to face her after she'd found out the truth!"

However, Southampton was not only ruining his "appetite for baked beans"; it was ruining his taste for the open road, and rough-roads.

Standing before the mirror, in faultless evening dress, on Thursday, he thought the thing out. "If I can't get a white-collar job with these clothes, and the new feeling this thing has given me, I'm a wash-out. I'd like to make good now. Darned if I know why, but I would!"

He made up his mind to go to town the next day, and have another try at it. "I'll take a shot at the movie studios," he said. "There ought to be something in heroes for a young fellow who looks like that."

He was still contemplating himself in the glass, with a view to his picture possibilities, when the Hambridges arrived.

On the whole, it was a very successful evening. The Judge seemed even more worried than he had been a week before, but Barry's good humor was irresistible. Patricia had asked about his experience in Florida, and he found himself combining purely imaginary adventures there with anecdotes of park benches and the top house in New York. He told of arriving penniless at Southampton and of the providential hundred-dollar bill that came addressed to his mother. Truth and fiction blended so wonderfully, and seemed so real.

The Hambridges went home early, but in much better spirits than they had brought with them, and Patricia paused at the door to remind him of their engagement for the following Friday. "You'll have to come the week after that, too," she said. "My Boston friend can't get here next week, and she's especially anxious to meet you."

Patricia must have written about him, then. By Golly, he would get that job—if only to show her that he could do something better than dance.

It was twenty minutes later before the Duke realized suddenly that the exigencies of the situation weren't going to allow his showing Pat anything but a clean pair of heels.

Barry's first two days in town were fruitless. There weren't many studios in New York, and they didn't seem to be doing much. "Acting isn't a man's job, anyway," said the Duke. "Painting your face, and putting a feather in your hat! I'm going to look over the 'Business Opportunities' in the newspapers."

Most of them were opportunities to part with a little money. But Barry didn't give up hope.

The "Laughing Jackass" Strangers to Australia may hear what sounds like the braying of a jackass in the woods. Investigation, however, will disclose a saucy-looking, colorful bird on the order of the Kingfisher, but much larger. It is the kookaburra, native to Australia, one of the brightest and most mischievous birds living. It is known as the "laughing jackass," because of its braying note, and as the "settler's clock," because it utters its peculiar cry regularly at dawn and at dusk. It eats insects, snakes and small mammals, killing the larger prey by flying high with its victim in its beak and dropping it to destruction.

Monkey Is Able to Reason, Says New York Scientist

Can monkeys reason? Without taking sides in the man-monkey hypothesis, Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles and mammals at the New York Zoological park, offers this story in "Strange Animals I Have Known" about a small ring-tailed monkey from South America who shared a cage with a young Brazilian wild dog and a coat, which is a cousin of the raccoon:

An old lady visitor to the Bronx zoo used to feed the trio lumps of sugar daily. The wild dog and the coat, with their strong teeth, could cut a lump three times as fast as the monkey. In this way they got by far the largest share of the sugar.

The monkey got mad. But before long and by his own quick wits, he solved the problem. He dipped his sugar lump in the water trough, then swallowed it with a few slurrp-macks of his tongue, and was back at the wire asking for more long before his two rivals had been able to down their dry morsels!

Car That Launches Airplane Employed by Oregon Police

Oregon state police have purchased a surprising weapon. It is a motor car equipped to launch an airplane and the small plane so to be used. When the car attains speeds in excess of 25 miles an hour, it is said, the pilot of the plane accelerates his motor and takes off from the platform above the car's top on which the plane is carried.

Married Women Know Constipation Danger

After childbirth, women often suffer with constipation. That is why Peen-a-mint, the delightful chewing gum laxative, is so ideal. As soon as you start chewing it, the stomach-settling mint brings a clean, fresh taste to the mouth. As you chew out the laxative ingredient, which is absolutely tasteless, the flow of digestive juices is increased. The laxative is mixed with them and carried into the system evenly and gently. Without causing upset, it passes through the stomach and into the bowels so scientifically that your action is wonderfully easy and thorough. Doctors prescribe Peen-a-mint's laxative ingredient for both children and adults. It is non-habit-forming. Sold on money-back guarantee. Generous family size package 15c and 25c.

Post Man Visits Office Of News

W. L. Underwood of Post, one of the rural mail carriers out of that little city, was a visitor in the News office last Saturday, renewing his subscription to the paper, and incidentally he paid the editor a high compliment as to the kind of paper we are issuing.

Mr. Underwood has been in the rural mail service since 1919, and he states that he has attended every state convention of the Texas Rural Letter Carriers since that date. He has also attended nine national conventions. He has served as secretary for the Texas R. L. C. and also as advertising manager for the Texas Carrier, the official organ of the state organization.

Mr. Underwood is a splendid citizen and we'll be he does a good job as mail carrier out on his route.

Editor Makes Trip To Central Texas

Called to Rogers in Bell county early last week by the death of a relative, the editor, though on a sad mission, had the pleasure of meeting many friends of other years, and we greatly enjoyed this feature of our visit. Many fine people live in and near Rogers and some of them used to vote for us when we entered politics in a small way in that county in early life. It was fine to meet these good friends.

Though we went to Rogers to attend the funeral of Mrs. Eubanks of Slaton, an aunt of Mrs. Hill, who died Monday afternoon of last week, we remained in Rogers to attend the funeral of a relative of Mrs. Eubanks and a long-time acquaintance and friend of ours, who died in Rogers the night of our arrival. He was 81 years old and had resided in Rogers and vicinity for 75 years. In these years he had accumulated considerable property and a great host of friends.

We also made pop calls on relatives in Breckenridge, Hamilton, and Moody, and spent one night with a brother in Eddy. Leaving Rogers, we came back by Taylor, Austin, San Antonio, and Fredericksburg. Thus we had opportunity to note crop conditions in many counties. Everywhere we found it very dry. In all the black land counties traversed, such as Coryell, McLennan, Bell, Milam, Williamson, Travis, Hays, and Comal, we found that most of the corn had come up but it was small and yellow, due to drouthy conditions and unseasonably cold weather. Farmers were crying for rain and warm weather. It had been almost as cold recently as it was on the plains. There had been ice since the first of April as far south as Temple.

We found that a real soil-conservation program was on in those black land counties. Much of the land had been terraced and contoured, concrete spillways installed, and provision made to drain off the excessive rainfall without washing the land. It is a program that should have been begun many years ago, but it is not too late yet to do much good.

We found most of the trees in full foliage from Dublin on south, and in many places they were entrancingly beautiful. The wild verbenas and in some places the bluebonnets and other flowers afforded a riot of color. We came back appreciating more than ever that fine new song, "Beautiful Texas."

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Griffin and daughter, Miss Nalta Payne, were guests of the H. J. Henderson family here recently. They had been to Slaton to attend the funeral of a little grandson, who was drowned in a bathtub. Mr. Griffin is county farm agent at Big Spring.

Lady Took Cardui When Weak, Nervous

"I can't say enough for Cardui if I talked all day," enthusiastically writes Mrs. L. H. Caldwell, of Statesville, N. C. "I have used Cardui at intervals for twenty-five years," she adds. "My trouble in the beginning was weakness and nervousness. I read of Cardui in a newspaper and decided right then to try it. It seemed before I had taken half a bottle of Cardui I was stronger and was soon up and around."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

There have been many light cases of flu in town recently.

Preacher Secured For Baptist Meeting

Announcement was made Sunday by Pastor George A. Dale of the Baptist Church that Rev. J. Frank Weeden, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Jacksonville, had consented to do the preaching in the revival meeting which is to begin at the Baptist Church here on Sunday, June 14. A director of the music for the meeting will also be procured. The services are expected to continue for a period of two weeks, embracing three Sundays.

Both the morning and the evening services last Sunday were unusually well attended, particularly the Easter services in the morning.

A splendid program of Easter music marked the occasion, followed by a most excellent sermon by the pastor on The Resurrection. At the evening service, the pastor delivered another of his discourses on the story of the Prodigal Son. His theme was the Significance of the Oriental Customs alluded to in the story. The pastor announced that he will probably speak next Sunday evening on The Elder Brother.

ning on The Elder Brother.

A brief Easter program of music was also rendered Sunday morning at the English Theatre, where the Men's Class meets. A trio composed of the three Snowden brothers, Harold, Hiram, and Rudolph, with their sister, Julia, presiding at the piano, presented the first number. A quartet was given by Mr. Simmons, Mrs. Caveness, and Mr. and Mrs. Skip Taylor, with Miss Goza Lee Thompson as pianist. Mr. Simmons announces that there will be special music again next Sunday morning. Fifty-five were present last Sunday morning. G. E. Hogan is the capable teacher.

There was a total of 264 present in the Baptist Sunday School last Sunday, the largest number, with one exception, this year.

Rev. and Mrs. George A. Dale left early Tuesday morning to attend the state Baptist Sunday School Convention in session at Mineral Wells on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of this week.

James Minor has been quite seriously sick of the flu this week.

Farm Program Is Explained

Plans for the new agricultural program to put into effect the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act have been received by V.F. Jones agricultural agent of Lynn county. State and district meetings have been held to acquaint all Extension agents with the substance of these plans, and meetings of farmers will be held all over Texas during the next few days Mr Jones said.

High points in the program are: Crops are all classified. Three classes have been set up. These are soil depleting crops, soil conserving crops, and soil building crops.

Two kinds of payments will be made to farmers for land use—soil conserving payments and soil building payments, but money for both will come in one check. And this money will come only after the farmers have actually put into effect certain practices which conserve the soil on his farm.

Bases established on old reduction contracts will be taken as a guide for establishing the base for 1936 on the soil conservation program, with, of course, due allowance for crops not included in former

Radio Studios Started at Texas Exposition

This is an architect's sketch of the Gulf Oil radio studios, being built at the Texas Centennial Exposition, the $25,000,000 World's Fair opening in Dallas June 6. Here all programs from the grounds will originate for chain and local broadcast. Glass-front studios line the contracts. Organization of farmers to administer the program will be under way in many counties before the end of April. The farm demonstration council or other key farmers will divide the counties up into "communities" of approximately 500 farmers. Each of these "communities" will elect three committeemen. These "community" committeemen constitute a County Soil Conservation and Allotment Board. The County Board will elect three of its members to serve as a County Committee. The County Agent will represent the Secretary of Agriculture in the county.

Since the entire acreage of every farm must be listed on the work sheet in planning for the soil conservation work a neutral classification has been set up as well as the three-crop classification.

In general it will be easy to remember that the soil depleting crops are mostly row crops, while the soil conserving and soil building crops are the legumes, grain and grasses that are used for cover crops and to turn under as green manure. The neutral classification includes idle land, fallow land, woodland, non crop land, pastures, yards, lanes, roadways, vineyards, and so forth.

About 20 percent of the base acreage in soil depleting crops must in 1936, be classified as soil conserving or soil building crops in order to qualify for participation in the program. The actual ratio will be determined by adding 20 percent of the cotton base acreage to 15 percent of the base acreage of other soil depleting crops. In other words, the required ratio of soil conserving and soil building crops to soil depleting crops on a strictly cotton farm would be 20 percent; on other farms it would probably be less than this figure.

The maximum cotton acreage on any one farm upon which soil conserving payment will be made is 35 percent of the cotton base.

No payment will be made for acreage taken out of food and feed crops unless the 1936 acreage in such crops is at least equal to the actual needs of the farm family and work stock.

Corn interplanted with peas will be considered as 50 percent corn and 50 percent peas in calculating bases and performance.

The soil conserving payments will be based on the productivity of the land; for cotton it will be five cents per pound; for peanuts 1 1/4 cents a pound; for rice it will be 20 cents for each 100 pounds of the producer's domestic consumption quota subject to certain specified agreements; and for the other soil depleting crops the rate per acre will vary among the states and counties, depending upon the productivity of the land.

The division of payment between landlord and tenant is arrived at in two ways. The division of the soil conserving payment is 37 1/2% to the producer who furnishes the land; 12 1/2% to the producer who furnishes the workstock and equipment; and 50% to be divided among the producers as the crop is divided.

The soil building payment will be made to the producer who has incurred the expense entailed in the soil building crops or practices.

With regard to wheat the situation is rather different, since wheat growers had signed applications for contracts with the Government for a 1936 wheat program. Congress has voted that existing applications are to be considered as obligations and are to be carried out and payments arranged their fall plantings in 1936 made on them. Wheat farmers may be included in the new program later.

Chester Connolly and Mr. and Mrs. Clay Bennett made a trip to Fort Worth and Whitney the first of the week. Mrs. Bennett remained in Whitney for a visit with relatives.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Callaway returned to Tahoka Monday, after having spent about three months in Fort Worth. Mrs. Callaway returns to Tahoka apparently much improved in health. They expect to remain here several weeks and possibly months before taking another trip.

Mrs. Luther Wynn of Littlefield, who recently underwent a major operation in the Lubbock Sanitarium, was able to leave the sanitarium Tuesday, coming direct to Tahoka for a few weeks visit with her sister, Mrs. Jim Dye.

Government by Law— or by Edict?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Dominant among the demands of men who fought the Revolution was the right to a voice in the making of laws under which they were governed.

By their victory our fathers won that right. Jealously they guarded it—in both Federal and State constitutions. Under the system thus established, the enactment of law was reserved to men chosen by the people and responsive to their will. It is the traditional American system.

But there is another type of legislation—known as Administrative Law. It is a system of edicts and decrees, handed down by rulers to subject populations. In its enactment the people have no voice.

That's one reason why so many thoughtful citizens are protesting against the flood of edicts pouring out of the offices of various boards and bureaus at Washington today.

They realize that a whole new body of Administrative Law is being forced on the people, not by their elected representatives, but by appointed chiefs of bureaus and commissions, in whose selection the voters had no choice and over whose actions they exercise no control.

In recent years those citizens have observed a constantly increasing number of examples of extravagance, arrogance and interference with individual rights on the part of Bureaucrats who assumed, or to whom Congress delegated, powers vested only in the people or their elected representatives.

Today they see the growing threat of Administrative Law supplanting, unless checked, our entire American system of legislation—and with it our constitutional form of government.

Bureaucracy and democracy cannot continue to exist side by side. One or the other must yield. Whether or not we shall surrender government by the people for government by Bureaucrats is for us to determine.

As heirs of the patriots who waged a long and bitter war for the right to make their own laws, our decision should not be a difficult one.

R. F. Barton and daughter, Mrs. Ross Connor, and son, Dewey, were here this week from Artesia, New Mexico, visiting and attending to business. Mr. Barton farmed near here for several years, but is now in business over at Artesia.

Under OUR Constitution

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

This is Constitution Week. Throughout our nation thousands of men and women who love America are paying grateful tribute to the Charter which is at once the soul and the substance of our freedom. In many communities great meetings are being held to observe with impressive exercises the anniversary of its signing.

This observance is more than a formal ceremony. It is a nation-wide tribute to the tremendous contribution which our Constitution has made to the rights and the happiness of humanity. And it is a tribute well earned. For—

Under Our Constitution:
The persecuted have found Refuge... the despairing, Faith... the oppressed, Liberty... the courageous, Opportunity.

Under Our Constitution:
All men have attained the highest human aspiration—the right to be free, in body and in spirit. All children are assured the richest heritage possible—the right to be educated. All citizens are guaranteed the greatest power known—the right to govern themselves.

Under Our Constitution:
The People rule. No man is King; no man a subject. Despotism is outlawed. The Will of the People is the Law of the Land.

Under Our Constitution:
The United States has achieved a growth in territory, in population, in resources and in influence unrivaled among nations.

The Constitution of the United States was made for us, the people. All power to change it or to weaken its safeguards rests finally in our hands. Today certain forces, greedy for power, threaten to wrest that control away. Don't let them succeed. Don't let Bureaucracy usurp the authority which, under the Constitution, is ours alone. Don't let the politicians destroy those rights which our fathers won and we must preserve.

Mrs. A. J. Kaddatz underwent a minor nose operation Saturday morning at the Lubbock Sanitarium. She is now at her home, and she is improving rapidly.

For Bad Feeling Due to Constipation

Get rid of constipation by taking Black-Draught as soon as you notice that bowel activity has slowed up or you begin to feel sluggish. Thousands prefer Black-Draught for the refreshing relief it has brought them. Mrs. Ray Mullins, of Lafa, Ark., writes: "My husband and I both take Theford's Black-Draught and find it splendid for constipation, biliousness, and the disagreeable, aching, tired feeling that comes from this condition." With reference to Syrup of Black-Draught, which this mother gives her children, she says: "They like the taste and it gave such good results."

Her "Big Moment"

This is the first time these new-lights are entertaining—and of course the bride is a bit nervous—but of one thing she is certain—she knows the meal will be a huge success. You see, she cooked it on her 1936 modern gas range. It's so efficient, it makes perfect meals a CINCH—IN A JIFFY, too—and what with the new low gas rate, it's so inexpensive in upkeep.

CLAUDE EDITOR DEFENDS GERMANY

Mr. Waggoner of the Claude News
defends Germany for making unrestricted submarine warfare on American ships and other merchant vessels carrying passengers on the high seas before the United States entered the World War, and he severely criticizes his own country for resenting this monstrous policy and entering the war. He argues that Germany had a right to sink these ships and destroy the lives of defenseless Americans—men, women, and children—on the grounds that
"most every ship sunk by German submarines," as he says, "were partially loaded with guns and ammunition with which to kill Germans."

We hesitate to suggest that Mr.
Waggoner is ignorant about anything, but he does not seem to know that there is such a thing as International Law, to which all civilized nations subscribe, and that in adopting this policy of submarine warfare on the vessels of neutral countries, Germany was flagrantly violating one of the best established rules of international law, to say nothing of justice, fair dealing, and humanitarian principles.

A few of these rules of international conduct in time of war, to which Germany and all other civilized nations had long given their assent and approval, as stated by high authority, are as follows:

1. Vessels owned by citizens of belligerent states are subject to capture as enemy property; the enemy's goods on an enemy's vessel are also subject to capture, but not enemy's goods on a neutral vessel.

2. Belligerent vessels of war have the right to visit and search all private vessels, belligerent or neutral, in order to determine whether they carry goods that are contraband of war.

3. Neutral states must not aid belligerents in their war-like operations, but a neutral state is not called upon to prevent the export or transport of arms, munitions of war, or, in general, of anything which can be of use to any army or fleet.

4. Since all nations have an equal right to the freedom of the seas,
no belligerent can interfere with,
interrupt, or render dangerous the operations of neutral trade on the high seas when carried on in accordance with international law.

Furthermore, treaties which had been signed by twenty-nine countries, including Germany, stipulated that merchant vessels, even of warring powers, carrying contraband of war, must be searched, and the safety of their passengers and crews provided for, before the vessels and cargoes were confiscated or sunk.

In the face of these treaties and of the above well-recognized rules of international law, Germany early in the war, began indiscriminate destruction of merchant vessels, their cargoes and crews, regardless of their mission or nationality.

Hundreds of American lives were taken and the United States strongly and repeatedly protested to Germany against her conduct. After much correspondence, Germany finally promised that American ships would not be sunk without warning and without an opportunity to save non-combatant lives; but on January 31, 1917, she withdrew the promise and announced that on the next day, February 1, she would resume unrestricted submarine warfare—that she would thereafter sink American vessels with their cargoes and their passengers, without warning, wherever they might be found on the high seas, permitting, however, "one passenger vessel to be sent from New York to England each week, provided it traversed an ocean lane prescribed by Germany and was painted in certain colors for identification by submarines." And thus Germany resumed her war upon us, upon our unarmed citizens and upon our defenseless women and children.

And that's when Uncle Sam got busy.

Mr. Waggoner can defend this diabolical conduct on the part of Germany all he wishes and he can abuse his own country for entering the war all he pleases, thanks to the Bill of Rights in the Constitution of the United States which guarantees freedom of speech and freedom of the press in this country, but if he had repeatedly and persistently expressed such sentiments during our prosecution of the war, he probably would have been jailed as a disloyal citizen; and if he were today a citizen of Germany and should publish such criticism of the German government as he has been publishing against our own government, Hitler would probably have him shot at sunrise for high treason.

EGGS-ACTLY

J. H. Trigg, Terry county farmer, brought in the Champion egg from the Champion hen this week. Mr.
Trigg didn't say, but it is supposed
it was laid by an ordinary farm hen, most of which are Reds or White Leghorns in this section. But the egg was near nine inches the long way in circumference and weighed 5½ ounces. An ordinary egg weighs 2 ounces.

Most of such eggs have two yolks,
but this one had only one and the ordinary amount of white or albumen—but it had another ordinary sized, full shelled egg inside to boot.

Let our boastful friend, E. I. Hill, of the Tahoka News try his hand on beating this egg. Why, man, if we had possessed a pint of Terry county "cawn lickah" we could have made a half gallon of eggnog out of it.—Terry County Herald.

To tell you the truth, Jack, we are not in the egg-beating business.
Neither are we given to eggs-age-ration. We are not the least bit boastful but try to be eggs-act in all our egg reports, and thus set a worthy eggs-ample to our fellow editors.

Furthermore, Lynn county poultry raisers have brought so many big eggs, little eggs, birth-marked eggs, lettered eggs, mis-shapen eggs and eggs-traordinary eggs in to this office, that these curious freaks of nature have ceased to be news.

Our Lynn county hens are not only noted for the great size and variety of eggs they lay but also for the astounding number of them. It was a Lynn county poultry-raising poet who wrote the following well-known and never-to-be-forgotten
little verse:

"O, once I had a speckled hen,
She laid behind the door;
And every day she laid two eggs
And Sundays she laid four."

By the way, Jack, with car-load after car-load of fine "cawn" going to waste in your county, how does it happen that you are out of good old Terry county "cawn lickah"?

Some of the candidates for governor and other state offices are favoring the amendment of the pension law passed at the recent session of the legislature so as to provide for the payment of pensions to all persons 65 years of age or older regardless of their financial condition. This would be foolish in the extreme. There is good reason and justice in the payment of pensions to aged persons who are in indigent or moderate circumstances, and we favor it. But what sense or justice is there in taxing the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, the day laborer, the small farmer, or the little business man, in order to pay a pension to the president of a big bank, the owner of a dozen good farms, the proprietor of a skyscraper, the head of an oil corporation or a utilities company, or other wealthy citizen? What sense or justice would there be in taxing a man 60 years of age drawing a salary of

Nervous, Weak Woman
Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon
I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

CARDUI

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, return it to your physician.

$100 a month in order to pay a pension to a man 65 years of age drawing an income of $10,000 or $100,- 000 a year? The man who advocates such a pension policy as this writes himself down as insincere. Either he thinks such a plank will get him votes or he hopes to bring the pension law into such disrepute as to bring about its repeal. The recently enacted pension law may not be perfect but it is a thousand times better than some of the amendments being proposed.

It seems to be hard for some of the candidates for governor to find a real issue on which to run against Allred. Some of them are having hydrophobia fits because the new pension law has not yet gone into effect and the aged people are not yet able to draw their pensions.
They are abusing Allred because he has not called a special session of the legislature to provide the necessary funds with which to pay the pensions. Some of those who are loudest in their abuse of the governor are themselves members of the legislature, and they had a chance to pass such a law at the last session of that body. At any rate, funds will probably be available by the time the law can be put into operation; so, why all this howl?
Politics.

Some real soil conservation work is now being done on the black lands of Central Texas under the supervision of the Federal Government. The hillsides have been terraced, the terraces so constructed as to convey the excess water to a given point on each terrace, where a concrete spill-way has been or is to be constructed, the series of spillways being in line up and down the hillside. In this way the excess water is carried off through a single channel and washing of the lands is prevented. There may be some washing, of course, when excessively

heavy rains fall, but this will probably be infrequent. We personally viewed many of these terraced fields last week, and this appears to us to be a real and effective system of soil conservation. We are for it.

Here is an Arabian proverb, or rather a number of related proverbs,
that we have been studying recently,
and we would respectfully commend them to our good friend Waggoner of the Claude News for his prayerful consideration. It might do him good to study them a bit and then undertake to classify himself.

He that knows, and knows not,
that he knows, is asleep; arouse him.

He that knows, and knows that he knows, is wise; follow him.

He that knows not, and knows not that he knows not, is stupid; shun
him.

He that knows not, and knows that he knows not, is good; teach
him.

In the course of time, no doubt,
huge plows drawn by monster tractors, will be used in the deep sands that cover portions of West Texas
turning up the subsoil and mixing it with the sand, so as to prevent soil erosion and to preserve the fertility of the land. This is being practiced already in the shallower sands with much success. We are for any soil-preservation program that will really get the job done.

Ford - FOR ECONOMY

"The Ford V-8 uses less fuel and oil for the power it gives than any other car we have ever made

AND ITS UP-KEEP COST IS THE LOWEST"

ENTHUSIASTIC sales talk often begins and ends with gasoline mileage. Some salesmen would like you to believe it is the whole story of automobile economy.
But drivers ought to know better. For,
the fact is, it's way down the list.

The big items of car economy are low first cost, low up-keep cost and low depreciation. Savings here can make a great deal of difference in cost per mile.
Gasoline mileage is more of a talking point than an economy factor.

Check up and you will find that the difference between 17 and 19 miles a gallon is less than $10 for a whole year's average driving (8400 miles at 18 cents a gallon). Here are the big items that make the Ford the most economical car:

- More value for every dollar you pay.
- Lower cost for repairs and service.
- Long life. Slow depreciation.
- Quality means economy and the 1936 Ford V-8 gives you more real quality than any other low-price car. No other car under $1645 has a V-8 engine. No other low-price car has Center-Poise Riding, safe, sure mechanical brakes and Safety Glass all around at no extra cost.

NEW HOME H. D. CLUB

"Make your kitchen window the center of interest in your kitchen," was a point brought out by Miss Sylvia Robb to the New Home H. D. Club on Friday, April 10, in the home of Mrs. Joe Poindexter.

The kitchen window may be made more attractive by adding a pot plant and gay curtains. Since so much time is spent in the kitchen and before the kitchen window, make the outdoor scene one of beauty. Trees or flowers make a scene which is attractive.

The members enjoyed a short recreational game after the regular program. They were: Mesdames G. N. McWhorter, Henry Heck, Joe Hilton, J. H. Izard, Joe Poindexter, J. R. Strain, Loyd R. McCormick, P. W. Goad, Charles Lee, and Boswell Edwards.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Gildersleeve and sons motored to Tulsa, Oklahoma, one day last week. En route home they spent the week end with Dr. and Mrs. K. Stacy at Chickasha and also attended the Wichita Mountain Easter Pageant.

CHURCH OF CHRIST NOTES

Fine services last Lord's Day, with many visitors present. The evening service was larger than usual, which made the preacher's heart glad.

A few pointed questions for church members: How are you treating your soul? What kind of training are you giving your children? How do you spend your Sundays? Is your preaching and practice alike? Who do you go to for advice when in trouble? What kind of literature do you buy and read? What kind of a church do you read about in the New Testament? What can the preacher honestly say at your funeral? Were you at prayer meeting last Wednesday night? Now, don't get mad, but think!

A few more inconsistencies: How church members can take God's name in vain and still claim to be Christians. How church members can criticize the preacher before their children and expect him to have any influence with them. How people will talk about sitting down with Jesus at "The Marriage Supper" and not dress for the occasion. Why people will board the gospel train and refuse to pay their fare. Why people will expect God to do for them what they should do for themselves.

Services next Lord's Day as usual. A welcome awaits you at the friendly church.—R. P. Drennon.

Talk Railroad For South Plains

W. O. Thomas, who is now down at Aransas Pass enjoying a vacation, wrote the News last week enclosing a clipping from the Corpus Christi Caller-Times of Sunday, April 5, giving an account of plans that have been formulated for the building of a new railway from Corpus Christi to Roswell, New Mexico. The purported route is via San Angelo, Big Spring, and Brownfield, passing through Howard, Lynn and Terry counties.

The promoter of the road is Captain Ed Kennedy, who will be remembered as the same man who was here several years ago promoting the building of such a road. The matter was dropped, however, when the depression came on, but it seems that it has been revived and that the promoter is receiving considerable encouragement. In fact, the clipping referred to states that work has already begun on one sector of the proposed line. Below we publish a few paragraphs from the clipping:

Actual work on the preliminary construction work of the Corpus Christi, San Angelo and Roswell Railway, which will shorten the distance between here and Roswell approximately 186 miles, is slated to start within the next few days, it was announced yesterday by Captain Ed. Kennedy, chairman of the board of directors.

A contract for the engineering work on the line between San Diego and Freer, a distance of about 30 miles, was awarded to V. L. Conrad of Brownsville and Cleveland, Ohio, the past week, Captain Kennedy said.

Work of running the survey lines between here and San Angelo also will be undertaken at once by the engineering firm.

The proposed railway will traverse a rich agricultural and oil area between here and Roswell, N. M., affording farmers and others to take advantage of the shorter distance to the deep water port here, with lower freight rates, Captain Kennedy pointed out.

The railroad company will use the tracks of the Tex-Mex from San Diego into Corpus Christi, but beyond San Diego to Roswell it will build its own line, by "units," the Captain said.

Among the counties to be served in Texas by the new railroad will be Nueces, McMullen, Rio, Uvalde, Real, Kimble, Menard, Tom Green, Duval, Lynn, Terry, Yoakum, Howard, Dimmitt and La Salle.

Federal Loans In County Are High

San Antonio, April 15—During the period from May 1, 1933, through December 31, 1935, 679 Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans, amounting to $1,662,800, were closed in Lynn County, according to an announcement made by H. P. Drought, State Director of the National Emergency Council for Texas. Of this number, 314 loans, amounting to $998,300 were made by the Federal Land Bank, and 365 loans, amounting to $664,500, were made by the Land Bank Commissioner.

The total amount of loans closed by the Federal Land Bank and Land Bank Commissioner in Texas during the above period was $139,850,750, representing 46,380 individual loans.

On December 31, 1935, Federal Land Bank loans and discounts outstanding in Texas amounted to $219,686,198, and Land Bank Commissioner loans and discounts outstanding amounted to $52,957,534. Outstanding loans and discounts of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank on December 31, 1935, amounted to $20,469,715. Production Credit Associations had loans and discounts outstanding in the amount of $3,471,478.

Loans and discounts of the different agencies of the Farm Credit Administration outstanding on December 31, 1935, throughout the United States were as follows: Federal Land Banks, $2,071,924,721; Land Bank Commissioner, $794,726,418; Federal Intermediate Credit Banks, $153,927,910; Production Credit Associations, $96,659,882; Regional Agricultural Credit Corporations $43,400,186; Emergency Crop Loans, $106,975,648; Drought Relief Loans, $65,513,583.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Soil erosion in Texas is serious, and soil conservation an urgent necessity, M. R. Bentley, Extension agricultural engineer, insists.

"Several thousands of acres of land were practically ruined for cropping purposes by erosion and many thousands more seriously depleted before soil conservation work was really started in Texas", Bentley says.

Conservation work by means of terracing started in Texas on the eastern side, but in a very limited way, some 50 years ago. It was about 1914 before any considerable acreage was terraced. During 1916 about 56,000 acres were terraced, and during the last ten years, from a half to three-fourths of a million acres have been protected with terraces each year.

From this it will be seen that there is a considerable momentum in Texas for soil conservation work to be undertaken under the new agricultural program.

As soil conservation work spread into West Texas it is found that the running of the lister furrows and the subsequent crop rows on the contour gave good results as a soil conservation measure, at least temporarily. Now, in West Texas thousands of acres of row crops are planted on contour lines in order to conserve the rainfall and soil.

For some one, every day, the biggest news is not on the front page. It's not even in the news columns.

There may be an earthquake in Italy or a revolution in Central America. There may be a hot election campaign or a million-dollar fire or a metropolitan crime wave. But for Jim Jones, who has decided to buy a new sedan, and for Mrs. Thompson, who needs some school dresses for little Mary Lou, the BIG news of the day is in the advertisements.

Even the doings of Congress and the big-league baseball results pale into insignificance beside the news of something you really want.

The advertising columns bring you much sound information about quality, style and price. They announce new products and new developments that save time, trouble or expense for millions of people. They point out healthful habits of eating, sleeping, exercising.

Consistently advertised goods are safe goods to buy. Behind them stand the manufacturer and the merchant, guaranteeing their uniform quality. Read the advertisements before you buy.

NEW TEXAS ALMANAC OF INTEREST TO ALL PEOPLE

The book of 100,000 facts—the 1936 edition of the Texas Almanac—is just off the press. It is the largest volume in the history of this publication—a total of 512 pages, on better grade paper and more profusely illustrated. The 1936 book although designated as the "Centennial Edition" and compiled in tribute to the grand celebration in Texas this year, misses only twenty-one years of reaching its own centennial year, having first been issued in 1857 by the Galveston News, the parent organization of The Dallas News, its present publishers.

While much new material of historical nature is included in the new issue, none of the chapters that has made The Texas Almanac the standard reference book of Texas in the past has been omitted. The names of several thousand individuals appear in its pages.

Features of the current issue include an extensive description of the Texas Centennial, including celebrations at Dallas and other points in the state, an outline of the history of Texas from its beginnings to the present, an illustrated chapter on the wild flowers of Texas, lists of the different kinds of trees and wild animals found in Texas, extensive lists of historic old towns and origins of names of Texas towns, a text of the State Constitution with all its amendments and brief account of submission of all adopted amendments since adoption of the Constitution, and the new farm census figures of 1935. There is much of interest for the coming political campaign, including the current poll tax payments by counties. All figures on State, county and city bonded debts are brought up to date. There are several chapters devoted to points of interest for the Centennial tourist in Texas, and a new map made in four colors especially for this edition of the Texas Almanac, entitled "Texas for Tourists," is folded between the leaves of each volume.

There are more than 100,000 facts about the history, natural resources, crops, livestock, industries, commerce, transportation, finance, government, politics, educational system, cultural institutions and other phases of Texas economic, political and social development.

The Texas Almanac, always in demand by business and professional men and women and students in the Lone Star State, will be more in demand this year than ever before. Texas history is more glamorous and richly appealing on the State's 100th birthday. Thousands of out-of-state visitors and newcomers will find this birthday edition particularly acceptable. No individual or organization is so thoroughly equipped to present in book form a compendium of Texas data. Facts and figures come from all parts of the State to find, in well edited form their niche in this widely demanded handbook on Texas—its past, present and future.

Change to the different oil... alloyed and be kind to your wallet

We'd rather see you change to any fresh oil, before we'd have you risk watery Winter dregs in your crankcase any longer. Any fresh oil is better for you than that. But when you change to Germ Processed, don't do it just to change your brand of oil; do it to change your whole brand of lubrication! That's how different this alloyed oil is. And here's why: the patented Germ Process of alloying oil gives it an "affinity" for metals... not only for steels and iron, but for every type of bearing metal now in use, no matter how carefully it must be lubricated. With alloyed oil actually merging into every inner engine surface, and with the high-durability Germ Processed oil-film also in between the moving parts, your engine is doubly summer-safe. You can streak along on days that shimmy with heat. But your heat indicator needn't jump, and your oil level needn't slump. Not with this different, alloyed oil... High time for you to say "Drain," but be selfish—say Conoco Germ Processed. Continental Oil Company.

A large crowd attended Sunday School Sunday. We are asking each and every one back each Sunday. Those present enjoyed the sermon, given by Bro. Mining of Gordon.

A group of both old and young people enjoyed singing Sunday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor. The school children enjoyed an Easter egg hunt Friday afternoon. Many of their parents were present. Miss Lola Smith was unable to teach school Thursday and Friday due to sickness, but she is back again this week.

Mrs. Woosley entertained a group of little boys and girls who are her pupils in her home Sunday. All of them reported a wonderful time. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bell, who live near Tahoka, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bell. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and family of Slaton visited Mr. and Mrs. Jim Taylor Sunday.

Mrs. Dudley Martin and babies of Draw spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Payne and family. Mr. Gordon Waldon of South Ward spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sanders.

Mrs. Jim Dyer is very sick. We hope she will soon regain her health. Several in this community attended the singing at Tahoka Sunday afternoon.

Jesse Eubanks Is In Accord With News

Lueders, Texas, April 4, 1936. Editor Lynn County News:

I have just finished reading with interest your editorial in this week's Lynn County News on "War". I wish to commend this editorial as being the most sensible and reasonable setting forth of the reasons why the United States entered the World War that I have ever read.

That the United States was forced by Germany to enter the War, there is not a doubt in my mind. And, furthermore, had we not entered the War, Germany would have whipped the allied nations, and sooner or later the United States would have had to meet Germany on the field of battle any way, not as an almost exhausted nation, but as a most invincible world power, who regards all treaties as merely scraps of paper.

We stayed out of the war as long as we could, but it was either to be branded as cowards, and without national honor, or else enter into the war and give Germany a set back in her mad rush for world power and dominion. This we did.

I wish to commend also your attitude on war itself. As you have stated, there are times when a nation is driven to defend itself, or to see that justice is done when a "big bully" is trampling under foot the rights of a weaker nation. Mr. Hill, I just wanted you to know I appreciate this editorial and the stand you take in this matter, and hence this letter.

I am mailing you under separate cover a copy of our new paper, "The Lueders Herald," which made its advent this week. It is a pretty fair sheet, and shows the development Lueders is undergoing now on account of the recent discovery of oil.

We are having some windy weather here now and need rain badly for stock water and grain. I suppose you are having lots of wind now on the Plains.

Success to you and the Lynn Co. News. Your friend,

JESSE C. EUBANKS.

P. S. Have you an organization of "Veterans of Future Wars" there yet? This organization is a disgrace to the men who fought in the World War to defend their country's honor and to all those who sacrificed in any way that the war might be won. It is an insult to the Gold Star Mothers who gave their sons in supreme sacrifice and have since mourned for them.—J. C. E.

The Spirit of Jefferson

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

"Since the days when Jefferson expounded his code of political philosophy, the whole world has become his pupil."

Many Americans undoubtedly recalled that tribute during the recent birthday honors to the author of our imperishable Declaration of Independence.

How well, one wonders, do those of his pupils who wield political power today, remember the teachings of the Sage of Monticello? How faithfully do they apply his principles? Let's recall—for them and for ourselves—some of the precepts that Thomas Jefferson left us as a guide. Here, in his own words, is a record of his answers to many of the problems which confront us today—

Our Constitution
"I do, with sincere zeal, wish an inviolable preservation of our present Federal Constitution according to the true sense in which it was adopted by the states."

"No Constitution was ever before so well calculated as ours for extensive empire and self-government."

Public Debt
"Taxation follows public debt, and in its train wretchedness and oppression."
Economy in Government
"I am for a government rigorously frugal and simple."

"We must make our election between economy and liberty, or profusion and servitude."

Centralization of Power
"It is not by the consolidation or centralization of powers, but by their distribution that good government is effected."

"Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread."

Personal Liberty
"A wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government."

Freedom of the Press
"Our liberty cannot be guarded but by the freedom of the press, nor that be limited without danger of losing it."

The People
"If we can prevent the government from wasting the labors of the people under the pretense of taking care of them, they must remain happy."

"So long as our public men—and we ourselves—remember those teachings, the spirit of Jefferson lives. When we forget them, that spirit dies—and with it the true spirit of America."

"ROSE MARIE" SETS NEW HIGH IN MOTION PICTURES

In a production sweeping with song and scented with romance, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, those celebrated co-stars come to the screen of the English Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in the well-known characters of the light opera, "Rose Marie."

Under their magic spell the full beauty of "The Indian Love Call," "Rose Marie, I Love You," "Song of the Mounties," and other classics from the Herbert-Strohart-Rudolf Friml score, live again.

Filed almost entirely out-of-doors, in the mountain-lake country of the Sierra Nevadas, the production is a pictorial sensation. Glimmering lakes, towering peaks, dangerous passes, all the beauty of nature, serves as background for the romantic saga of the Great Northwest.

"Rose Marie" is the story of a Canadian grand opera singer who travels incognito into the backwoods regions in search of her brother, a criminal from justice.

Also searching for the brother is Sergeant Bruce, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. They meet and fall in love, until she realizes the mission of the other.

The crashing climax and poignant ending of the story will be remembered long after most pictures are forgotten.

One of the outstanding sequences is the Totem Pole Indian Dance, the grotesque set mounted on a sand pit extending into a broad lake. Peopled by more than a thousand dancers, lavish in costume, with music thrillingly beautiful, it sets a new high for effect photography and spectacular direction.

A strong supporting cast assists Miss MacDonald and Eddy in "Rose Marie," among them being James Stewart as the "criminal" brother, Reginald Owen as the star's manager, Allan Jones, who scored so decisively in "A Night at the Opera," George Regas, Robert Greig, Una O'Connor and Lucien Littlefield. Also present is Gilda Gray of "Follies" fame, whose new version of her celebrated "Shimmy" dance is one of the highlights of a striking cafe scene.

Some terracing has been done in 220 of the 254 counties of the State, according to Bentley. The total for the last 20 years runs to about nine million acres. Checking out possible duplications due to the need of re-terracing considerable acreage, Bentley estimates conservatively that some seven million acres are either terraced or contoured or both, at this time.
