Roosevelt Winner In Presidential Race

LYNN COUNTY VOTING LIGHT

Huge Majority Given Roosevelt But Only 2,200 Voters Went To The Polls

Less than 2,200 votes were polled in Lynn county last Tuesday, which was more than 800 short of the July primary.

Complete returns from all of the 14 voting precincts in the county give the Democratic electors for President, 1936: Republican, 162; Socialist, 8; Union (Lemke) 11; and Prohibition party, 1. The Communist candidate did not get a single vote in Lynn county.

The vote by precincts for the Presidential candidates was as follows:

South Tahoka, Roosevelt 293, Landon 28, Thomas (Socialist) 1, Lemke (Union) 4.

North Tahoka, Roosevelt 346, Landon 21.

O'Donnell, Roosevelt 280, Landon 35, Lemke 5, Prohibitionist 1.

Wilson, Roosevelt 128, Landon 9, Thomas 2, Lemke 1.

New Home, Roosevelt 270, Landon 32, Thomas 2.

Draw, Roosevelt 133, Landon 7, Grassland, Roosevelt 59, Landon 9, Thomas 1.

New Moore, Roosevelt 77, Landon 2, Three Lakes, Roosevelt 30, Landon 3.

West Point, Roosevelt 38.

The returns for governor, U. S. senator, congressmen, and state offices were not quite complete, but as far as tabulated, Alfred had received 1850 votes, Morris Sheppard 1845, and George Mahon 1849. Watson, Republican, Sheppard's leading opponent, had 85; and Harris, Republican candidate for governor 88. Other candidates had only scattering votes.

Complete returns show the vote on the six constitutional amendments was as follows:

Liquor monopoly amendment — for 599, against 700.

Teacher retirement fund — for 483, against 778.

Workmen's compensation insurance — for 493, against 721.

Pardons and paroles — for 784, against 427.

Salary of state officials — for 473, against 743.

Limiting city representation — for 716, against 483.

Legislature Amends Old Age Pension Law And Passes An Omnibus Tax Bill

After having been in session 30 days, the constitutional limit, the third called session of the legislature adjourned Tuesday of last week, after having enacted the old-age pension deliberation act and the omnibus tax bill.

The pension deliberation act will reduce the number of persons eligible for pensions from an estimated 150,000 to about 80,000. The governor and members of the legislature, after hearing evidence on the matter, decided that some such act was imperative. The number of applicants who were eligible for pensions under the original law so far exceeded all expectations and was so great that it had become practically certain that unless the number were reduced the Federal Government would no longer undertake to match state funds. It practically demanded a deliberation of the law or else it would withhold any further old-age pension funds from Texas.

Some of those now drawing pensions, or old-age assistance, under the original law will doubtless become ineligible under the stricter regulations of the new measure and will accordingly be dropped from the rolls.

Fewer People Will Receive Pensions

Austin, Nov. 4.—The new assistance law, House Bill 8, will restrict the rolls of the Old Age Assistance Commission to between 70,000 and 80,000.

Basis of the new law is that applicants must be in necessitous circumstances to receive aid. Property, cash and income restrictions have been removed as has the standard of living provision of the old law.

Contest Increases P T A Membership

The membership committee of the Parent Teachers Association, with Mr. Kary Mathis as chairman, has just closed a very successful campaign in which eighty-five paid members were enrolled.

Elbert Bouillon Jr. won the individual prize for having enrolled the most members, and the room prize went to Mr. Kirkwood's room.

Funds obtained from this drive will be used to purchase equipment for the new school. An emergency kit has already been placed in the office at the Central Ward building.

Five Amendments Approved In State

O. C. Gray, Southland, Is Taken By Death

O. C. Gray, local telephone manager at Southland and brother of Mrs. George Knight of this city, died at 11:45 Sunday morning from a lingering illness which followed a stroke of paralysis which he suffered about two months ago.

Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist Church at Southland Monday afternoon.

Deceased was fifty-eight years of age and had been a resident of Southland about eighteen years. He was very popular there, and a great host of friends attended the funeral services.

Tahoka relatives and friends attending were Mr. and Mrs. George Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Winter Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Summer Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roy Knight, Mr. and Mrs. Ches. Connolly, Mrs. F. M. Sherrod, Mrs. J. H. Coltenback, and Mrs. Minnie Barker.

DEMOCRATS IN SWEEPING WIN

More Power In President Expected As Result Of Tuesday's Vote By The People

With 40,720,832 votes tabulated up to Thursday morning, President Roosevelt was leading his Republican opponent, Alf Landon, in 46 of the 48 states of the Union for the Presidency. It is estimated that there are about 10,000,000 votes to be tabulated, but Roosevelt's lead in each of the 4 states is so great that it is hardly possible that later returns will change the result. Only Maine and Vermont remain in the Landon column.

With 523 votes to only 8 for Landon, Roosevelt has won the most crushing victory since the days of James Monroe, when he received all the electoral votes but one. In 1932 he defeated President Hoover by a vote of 472 to 59. Four years prior to that time, Hoover defeated Al Smith by a vote of 444 to 136. La Follette receiving the 13 electoral votes of Wisconsin.

The popular vote in favor of Roosevelt was also overwhelming. Of the more than 40 million votes tabulated he had received 24,628,962 to 15,423,055 for Landon. If the same ratio is maintained in the votes yet to be reported his popular majority will exceed 12,000,000. The Union, Socialist, Communist, and Prohibition parties each received only an insignificant vote.

The result of the election is construed as popular approval of the New Deal, and Roosevelt is given a free hand to proceed with his program.

J. T. Elam's Mother Dies Near Seymour

J. T. Elam and family, who reside a few miles north of Tahoka, were called to Seymour last week by the illness of his mother, Mrs. J. F. Elam. BARBER SHOPS WILL CLOSE WEDNESDAY, ARMISTICE DAY

Jim Dye requests that we announce that all the barber shops here have agreed to close during the entire day on November 11, Armistice Day. Persons desiring the services of a barber, therefore, must look after this matter on the preceding day.

Some other business houses will also close probably a part of the day, though on account of the busy cotton-gathering season some will doubtless remain open throughout the day.

This will be the eighteenth anniversary of the signing of the armistice, which brought an end to the greatest war in history.

Miss Emily Davis, niece of J. K. Cethaway, visited the Texas Centennial at Dallas last week. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss Lillie Davis of Bakersfield, California, who had been here a week or two visiting.

Man Is Killed In Truck Accident

H. E. Harlock, 23, Wichita Falls flour salesman, was fatally injured about 4 o'clock Monday morning when a car which he was driving was struck by a truck driven by Cecil Gaines of Rogers, Bell county, on highway No. 7 near Southland.

Harlock was traveling southeast going from Lubbock to Sweetwater, and Gaines was going in the opposite direction, from Sweetwater to Lubbock. Harlock was picked up by another traveler on the highway and taken to the Mercy Hospital in Slaton, but he was found to be in a dying condition when he arrived.

Gaines during the day surrendered to the Slaton Chief of Police and was turned over to Sheriff B. L. Parker of this county, the accident having occurred in the extreme northeast corner of Lynn county.

After investigation by Sheriff Parker and County Attorney C. H. Cain, complaints were filed against Gaines in the court of W. S. Swan, justice of the peace, charging Gaines with negligent homicide and with driving an automobile without having first procured a driver's license. His bond in the negligent homicide case was set at $750.00, which he has given. This is a felony charge and will be investigated by the next grand jury. Driving without a license is a misdemeanor.

The truck belonged to G. W. Cox of Rogers. It is said. Whether Gaines had fallen asleep or was guilty of gross negligence in driving the truck, does not seem to be determined, but officers say that Harlock's car was on the right side of the highway and was very near the edge of the pavement if not partially off of it when struck by the truck.

Gaines has made no statement as to how the accident occurred.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill and daughter, Patricia, returned Saturday from Austin, where they had been residing during the special session of the

They both felt suddenly confused. He put down the pencil he had been playing with, and arose from the smooth-worn hickory chair. "It's a fine day," Reuben said. "Could we walk, or sit somewhere a while?" "Let's do," she said. They strolled across the yard to the path along Julia's garden fence. Julia was among her sweetpeas pulling off the faded blooms. "You certainly have a fine garden, Mrs. Pattern," Reuben said. "It's not quite so good this year," Julia replied. The soft part of the afternoon lay quiet over the valley. "We're going to sit a little while up there on the rock by the sycamore," Cynthia said. "Well, don't go far," Julia said, following them with her eyes to the shaded spot by the creek in full view of the house and garden. They felt strangely happy to be removed from all places where they had been in company with other people, and to be alone together in a new place whose only associations were those they were now making.

"We found some nice spots back in the woods," Reuben said. "I like the way the hollows fork off on each side of Wolfpen, like ribs on a wahoo leaf." "Some parts of the place I have never been to," she said. "I like best the Pinnacle and Cranesnest and the hollows here by the house. I don't know whether they're best when the ripewood begins to bud and the white dogwood blooms, or in September when the wild touch-me-nots are waist high with yellow and red-spotted bags and two red ears on each one, and humbees crowding down into them and shouldering the yellow dust." "That sounds the best," Reuben said. "It's right pretty when the creek freezes over and the bushes are glazed with ice and the snow hangs on the pine trees. I guess it is always a good place to be."

The white limbs of the sycamore tree caught in the light of the sun, and the ground and the creek were in movement with shadow splashes.

"You'll be getting the survey done soon now, I guess?"

"It won't be so very much longer now before it is finished, I'm afraid."

"Then what will you do?"

"I'll see if it closes on the map, and then I'll take it back home and my father will or maybe I will make the calculations and fix up the papers."

"Does that take a long time?"

"Not long like the field work."

"You don't have to come back any more after you've finished running it?"

"That depends. I might have to come back about the piece cut off for Shellenberger. There was a long pause. Then he added, "When do you go to Pikeville?"

"In September. Jesse's going too, but he hasn't told Daddy yet. He's to read law with Tandy Morgan."

"I think that will be fine."

"Are you going to follow surveying?"

"Yes. There's lots of work to do in this country. And the towns are growing, and the counties thinking about roads. I want to be the county surveyor some day."

"Oh, that would be a fine job for a man. As good as the law."

"I kind of hate to see a place like this go over to a man like Shellenberger to cut into. The Big Sandy slopes where the timber is cut off are awful-looking things."

"It's just the part down the creek and you won't see it from here. But sometimes at night I can hear the trees talking about what's about to happen to them and it goes from one to another all over the hills and dies away in a sigh on our creek. Still, I reckon people need timber."

"I reckon."

They sat in silence, listening to the life all about them.

"Isn't all this cooking and boarding so many too hard on just you and your mother?" It came so suddenly and without preparation that she was startled. She lifted her hand from the moss, and dropped it into her lap, clasping the other.

"Why, no, Reuben. A body just don't think much about it."

"Your mother looks a little worn out. Don't you think so?"

"I guess I just hadn't thought of it."

"It's after washing and ironing, or something. I've noticed. And she likes to be out in her garden."

"She told Daddy she didn't need extra help."

"Are Shellenberger and Mullens staying on here while they lumber?"

"I don't know," Cynthia said. "I reckon so."

He had surprised her again by this kind of observation which menfolk did not make. She turned and looked full at him.

"You're different, Reuben."

He smiled at her, a singularly rare and engaging smile.

"Different how and from what?"

"I don't know how to say it, but you are."

"Well, so then are you."

He felt the thrill of these advances which came unbidden into being, and then as curiously retreated.

"Is Doug Mason what you call different?" he asked.

"No. Why him?"

"Oh, I have seen him look at you and watched him when you are around. Do you . . . Are you old friends?"

"He's a good boy and runs the place since his Daddy died. He's a . . . he's just a good neighbor and his mother's not well."

That brought another silence. Reuben wondering just why he said anything about Doug Mason, who came sometimes in the evening to visit the Patterns but said very little and looked often at Reuben. Cynthia turned the name over in her mind and wondered what thing lay so powerfully in her heart that she had said he was just a good neighbor.

"He has a big 'seng' patch he's going to make a lot of money on." There was no way for Reuben to know that she was offering him the secret which Doug had laid with devotion before her. She glanced at him, her eyes turned down Wolfpen.

They had been led far deeper than the surface of their talk since the half-confused moment by the drawing table. Cynthia began to realize that they had both dressed Doug in a word and set him before them as a symbol of their new relationship. Nothing else seemed to exist except this entranced moment of creating a new experience with another human being. Her open hand lay along the delicate green moss covering of the stone dividing it into cool points with her fingers. Reuben dropped his long brown and briar-scared hand gently upon it. It was warm and alive among the moss fronds.

"I never even dreamed of finding anybody like you when I started up here. And I nearly didn't come, only another job came along that my Dad had to look after himself."

"Would you have minded that so much?" Cynthia asked.

"Yes," he answered.

There seemed to be nothing more to say aloud. She withdrew her hand and let it lie in her lap. It seemed different from the other one and in communion with all the rest of her being.

Julia was now at the gate of her garden. She stood looking at Cynthia and Reuben.

"We'd better go back now," Cynthia said.

The cows, heavy with the long day, were coming slowly in file around the hill toward the barn. Everything was stirring again into life for feeding-time.

"I like to come down this valley this time of day," Reuben finally said as they neared the yard. "It seems like everything is doing just what it is intended to do."

"If you look close you can see Sam climbing back to Cranesnest Shelf," Cynthia said.

"I see him," Reuben answered.

Abra was already in the yard. He smiled hesitantly, and when Cynthia had gone into the house, he said to Reuben, "Oh, you've been surveying."

Reuben smiled at Abra. He liked his spirit and his energy.

"Yes, Abra. There's a lot to be surveyed on this place."

CHAPTER XI

Near the end of an afternoon some days later into July Reuben Warren drove the iron spike of the Jacob's staff into the ground below the mill and brought to a close the uncertain line around the Pattern lands. Day after day from dawn to dusk they had pushed it through the ax-cleared way through the timber, climbing over the ridges that lay lifeless in the noonday heat, and down into cool damp hollows where the birds gathered in the afternoons. Then they had marked off the portion for Shellenberger, cutting across the place from the jutting point on the Big Sandy watershed overlooking the river where the long ridges rolled into form out of blue and indistinct space, to the rich earth at the foot of the Pinnacle on Gannon creek in view of Cranesnest.

Reuben peeped through the slit in the sights to the yellow point still catching the sun above the shadows in Wolfpen.

"Thence north eighty-three degrees thirty minutes east to the beginning," he said to Sparrel and the others and entered it in the note-book. "I guess that finishes it."

It was like saying good-by to one of the family.

Tomorrow Reuben would be leaving this place where he had lived through the days of spring and early summer. He would ride in silence behind Sparrel to Pikeville and then by boat down the Big Sandy, sitting on the prow to watch the Pattern lands he had surveyed come into view and recede and pass into the hands of Shellenberger.

It was the first time he had ever been sorry to complete a job in the hills and return home.

He had had enough experience in the changing world to foresee that the loveliness of Wolfpen could not survive the wave of development which would one day sweep over it. He was sorry.

He stood by the kitchen window, smelling the scent of poplars and pine trees on the light breeze from the hollow. Cynthia found him there for a minute alone. The note-books and the deeds were tied in a bundle on a table by the compass, ready for the journey. In the corner were the pins, the chain and the staff.

"I guess it's all finished," he smiled.

"I hate to see you go," she said.

"I'm sorry I can't make the job last any longer. It just seemed to get done."

"July seemed a long way off in April," Cynthia said.

"And September seems a long way off from July."

"It will be different tomorrow when you are gone," she said.

"It's been a good place to be in, and it will be a good place to come back to," he said. "But I suppose you'll soon be busy over at the Institute."

"I reckon so. Will you have any more to do here at our place?"

"It doesn't look like it now."

"Then you won't be coming back?" she said.

"I'll be coming back," he answered.

"It may be September and it may be spring and it may not be to survey. But I'll be coming back."

The spirit of the place changed abruptly after Reuben went away. Released from the survey, Jasper, Jesse and Abra were deep in the neglected corn and the ill-tended crops heretofore unknown on Wolfpen. Cynthia found the day very long and the work irksome when it was done for Shellenberger and Mullens.

"Those two seem to fill up the whole valley and take possession of the place now that Reuben is gone. And when I try to remember what we said before the month of August was going by on the rumor of these troubles at the camp. In other Augusts, the thought of disputes among men never came into Wolfpen or disturbed the head of Cynthia. The talk had always been of the growth the lambs had made, of the rams and ewes to be sold or slaughtered, of the thickness of the clover in Stack Bottom, of whether the time for the making of sorghum would be earlier or later this year than the one before, of the late corn in Julia's patch, of the progress of the drovers, of the potatoes where Julia had graveled, of the absence of sickness and the probable price of 'seng. And the words were framed at leisure a few at a time from day to day as one member or another of the family observed the course of life about them. These things were not mentioned this year because of Shellenberger and Dry Creek.

Cynthia felt the alteration in herself and noted it in the others and thought on it as she tried to finish the cloth that had been already too long in the loom. "I never in my life got such a little bit at a time done on a piece. Tears like a body's day is so tied up with other folks' doing I can't get any work done and out of the way. Part of it is the way nobody doesn't seem natural. Mother acts like she was tired all the time and she doesn't show off her flowers when Amy comes or offer her any seeds and she doesn't say much. I don't see when she's going to dry apples and make jelly and put things away. Daddy goes around like he had a trouble bound on his shoulders. He works down around the mill so much I don't know how he's ever going to get herbs for his medicine and the corn in the hills and made the sorghum. Jasper works in the fields with a sorry look on his face, and I reckon he wants to marry. And Abra is so excited about everything I can hear him flopping in his bed at night and ramming his knees with a bang into the wall. And there's Jesse working on through his big book and looking at his steer and I know he is right nervous about going off over to town with so much to do about the place before winter and all these strange men coming here from down-river, and the hard feelings about Grover Sims getting killed. And there's Cynthia. What about you? You think about him and his maps and papers he's working on, and about how you're to get over to the Institute for a winter and about silly things in the trees that you'd just better leave to old Mr. Stinky Shellenberger and his black man. But it's not nice to call even him bad names."

Clipping of Whiskers on Bust of Thackeray

One of the most curious events that ever occurred in England's famous Westminster Abbey was the clipping of the whiskers on the bust of Thackeray, in the Poet's Corner. Thackeray's daughter, Lady Ritchie, had objected for years that the whiskers on each side of the face were too long, and at last asked the dean to let her have them shortened.

The Dean consented reluctantly, and accompanied by a sculptor, Lady Ritchie arrived one morning for the work. The bust was taken to the crypt, where the whiskers were clipped to their proper length. Then the sculptor flicked off the statue with a cloth, just as a barber would have after shaving someone, and it was returned to its niche.

This general unrest culminated in the latter part of August. The occasion was the accident and first casualty on the job. They were chopping the greatest poplars in Dry Creek. Grover Sims was standing near by watching them bring down one of the finest of them all. Mullens happened to be there at the moment the tree began to lean. He grimaced. A few sharp slaps of an ax, the thin swish-swish of a saw, then a shout from the men, a slow groan rising to an explosion in the final crash and dying away to a whisper in the limbs waving through the air to the ground. Over and over through the weeks: the attack, the cry of surrender, the crash and sigh of the fall, spreading up the hollow.

The heavily timbered spot where Barton had caught possums, which always lay so silent and black in the mornings under the Pinnacle, became a thick grove of men in a settlement to themselves. And yet not to themselves. For these aliens seemed to press in upon Wolfpen itself and to swarm in a multitude beyond their appointed place even though they kept to their hollow, and the sound of their axes could not be heard over the back of the ridge between. Cynthia could see them sometimes pilfering about everywhere, and every rustle of the leaves in the trees by the house became a cry of panic spread through all the timber.

Then there was always Shellenberger bringing back the disturbance from Dry Creek, for he still ate at the house and made no mention of the money for his keep, which Cynthia carefully recorded on a piece of paper. There was Sparrel losing imperceptibly his first pleasure in the steam-mill, the survey of his lands and the new saw. He gave more time to the blacksmith shop, fashioning shoes for the mules and half shoes for the oxen, sharpening tools and welding chains, neglecting his medicines and his books. Cynthia missed his tall figure from the hollows speaking in low tones to his mule and greeting her when she came to the field with cold water from his filtered well.

Abra was now working for Shellenberger. Jasper was silent. Jesse was more than ever absorbed in his own plans. Julia was tired. Reuben was far off down the river in another world: it was no use making believe that the corn and sweet potatoes were the same as in other years, or that Julia's hollyhocks stood up in the same proud grandeur, or that the lumbering was isolated over the ridge. Dry Creek pressed ruthlessly in.

It grew more emphatic with the difficulties at the camp. They had come on gradually, intensifying a little from day to day before they came to a crisis. They were reflected in Sparrel's taciturnity and the troubled mood which followed him into the house, for there had never before been any ill feeling between men on Gannon creek. The mountain men could not adapt themselves to the discipline of a supervised lumbering operation.

It was partly Shellenberger's air of detached authority which they found barely tolerable. Not that he kept his own counsel and ate only at Sparrel's, but that he went among them as though they were trees or mules, and acted so superior by virtue of his ownership of Sparrel Pattern's timber and not by right of character, one man to another, as it was among the Big Sandy men.

It was more especially Mullens. He had his own superiorities as boss of the work. He said little to the men beyond a few terse orders. Moreover he had his own methods for felling trees, determining log lengths, constructing the dam, for every single detail of the logging. He insisted on telling these men who had lived their lives in the hills and swung axes since they were striplings, how to fell a tree, how far above the ground they should cut, and where to stand when it began to lean. Sometimes they would do as they were told; more often they would do as they liked and meet the sour looks of Mullens with a passive and child-like silence.

They were difficult and individual as children, and Mullens did not know what to do about it. So he swore at them and marked on each tree the exact spot where he wanted it cut. If he then stood by and watched, they would cut low; but when he turned away they would straighten their backs and cut high.

They were not happy at the camp. When they got homesick or took a fancy for home-cooked victuals, or a notion to leave the camp for a few days, they quietly shouldered their axes and went. They returned when they got ready and they did not expect any unfavorable notice to be taken of their going out or their coming in.

Abra said that the men were beginning to think it ought to be pay-day some time, but that neither Shellenberger nor Mullens had said anything about it yet.

And since they were not accustomed to hiring out for a wage, they did not know whether they should ask about the time of their pay or just wait until the job was finished up. Sparrel seemed to take it as being all right, so it must be, but a little ready money would come in handy.

This general unrest culminated in the latter part of August. The occasion was the accident and first casualty on the job. They were chopping the greatest poplars in Dry Creek. Grover Sims was standing near by watching them bring down one of the finest of them all. Mullens happened to be there at the moment the tree began to lean. He shouted sharply to Sims to jump up the hill out of the way. The boy was startled by the shouting of Mullens and the loud cracking of the giant bole breaking away from the stump and crashing through the smaller trees. In nervous confusion he sprang full into the path of the falling mass. It caught him squarely, knocking him down as though he were a reed, pinning him under the heavy trunk, and crushing in his lungs. Had he stayed where he was before Mullens shouted, he would have been safe. The moans had ceased by the time Sparrel got to him. It went quickly through Dry Creek that it was Mullens' fault, and if he had kept his mouth off of the boy it wouldn't have happened. And why, anyway, should they be down here in a lumber camp at the risk of their lives, working for a foreigner like Mullens when they might just as well be at home and their own bosses as they had always been?

They quit. They were quiet about it. Some of them told Mullens they allowed they'd better be getting back home now, what with the corn about ready to cut and things about the place to be attended to, and they'd just have their time. Mullens said he couldn't pay them until Shellenberger got the money. And they said that they reckoned if it wasn't handy they'd just wait around for it, and it better not be too long. So while they were burying Grover Sims on Big Brushy, Shellenberger took one of Sparrel's mules for two days and when he came back there was money to pay them.

The work was at a standstill. "So now what?" Shellenberger said to Mullens.

"Go down-river and get me some men who know how to be told what to do," Mullens said.

The month of August was going by on the rumor of these troubles at the camp. In other Augusts, the thought of disputes among men never came into Wolfpen or disturbed the head of Cynthia. The talk had always been of the growth the lambs had made, of the rams and ewes to be sold or slaughtered, of the thickness of the clover in Stack Bottom, of whether the time for the making of sorghum would be earlier or later this year than the one before, of the late corn in Julia's patch, of the progress of the drovers, of the potatoes where Julia had graveled, of the absence of sickness and the probable price of 'seng. And the words were framed at leisure a few at a time from day to day as one member or another of the family observed the course of life about them. These things were not mentioned this year because of Shellenberger and Dry Creek.

Cynthia felt the alteration in herself and noted it in the others and thought on it as she tried to finish the cloth that had been already too long in the loom. "I never in my life got such a little bit at a time done on a piece. Tears like a body's day is so tied up with other folks' doing I can't get any work done and out of the way. Part of it is the way nobody doesn't seem natural. Mother acts like she was tired all the time and she doesn't show off her flowers when Amy comes or offer her any seeds and she doesn't say much. I don't see when she's going to dry apples and make jelly and put things away. Daddy goes around like he had a trouble bound on his shoulders. He works down around the mill so much I don't know how he's ever going to get herbs for his medicine and the corn in the hills and made the sorghum. Jasper works in the fields with a sorry look on his face, and I reckon he wants to marry. And Abra is so excited about everything I can hear him flopping in his bed at night and ramming his knees with a bang into the wall. And there's Jesse working on through his big book and looking at his steer and I know he is right nervous about going off over to town with so much to do about the place before winter and all these strange men coming here from down-river, and the hard feelings about Grover Sims getting killed. And there's Cynthia. What about you? You think about him and his maps and papers he's working on, and about how you're to get over to the Institute for a winter and about silly things in the trees that you'd just better leave to old Mr. Stinky Shellenberger and his black man. But it's not nice to call even him bad names."

Clipping of Whiskers on Bust of Thackeray

One of the most curious events that ever occurred in England's famous Westminster Abbey was the clipping of the whiskers on the bust of Thackeray, in the Poet's Corner. Thackeray's daughter, Lady Ritchie, had objected for years that the whiskers on each side of the face were too long, and at last asked the dean to let her have them shortened.

The Dean consented reluctantly, and accompanied by a sculptor, Lady Ritchie arrived one morning for the work. The bust was taken to the crypt, where the whiskers were clipped to their proper length. Then the sculptor flicked off the statue with a cloth, just as a barber would have after shaving someone, and it was returned to its niche.

This general unrest culminated in the latter part of August. The occasion was the accident and first casualty on the job. They were chopping the greatest poplars in Dry Creek. Grover Sims was standing near by watching them bring down one of the finest of them all. Mullens happened to be there at the moment the tree began to lean. He grimaced. A few sharp slaps of an ax, the thin swish-swish of a saw, then a shout from the men, a slow groan rising to an explosion in the final crash and dying away to a whisper in the limbs waving through the air to the ground. Over and over through the weeks: the attack, the cry of surrender, the crash and sigh of the fall, spreading up the hollow.

The heavily timbered spot where Barton had caught possums, which always lay so silent and black in the mornings under the Pinnacle, became a thick grove of men in a settlement to themselves. And yet not to themselves. For these aliens seemed to press in upon Wolfpen itself and to swarm in a multitude beyond their appointed place even though they kept to their hollow, and the sound of their axes could not be heard over the back of the ridge between. Cynthia could see them sometimes pilfering about everywhere, and every rustle of the leaves in the trees by the house became a cry of panic spread through all the timber.

Then there was always Shellenberger bringing back the disturbance from Dry Creek, for he still ate at the house and made no mention of the money for his keep, which Cynthia carefully recorded on a piece of paper. There was Sparrel losing imperceptibly his first pleasure in the steam-mill, the survey of his lands and the new saw. He gave more time to the blacksmith shop, fashioning shoes for the mules and half shoes for the oxen, sharpening tools and welding chains, neglecting his medicines and his books. Cynthia missed his tall figure from the hollows speaking in low tones to his mule and greeting her when she came to the field with cold water from his filtered well.

Abra was now working for Shellenberger. Jasper was silent. Jesse was more than ever absorbed in his own plans. Julia was tired. Reuben was far off down the river in another world: it was no use making believe that the corn and sweet potatoes were the same as in other years, or that Julia's hollyhocks stood up in the same proud grandeur, or that the lumbering was isolated over the ridge. Dry Creek pressed ruthlessly in.

It grew more emphatic with the difficulties at the camp. They had come on gradually, intensifying a little from day to day before they came to a crisis. They were reflected in Sparrel's taciturnity and the troubled mood which followed him into the house, for there had never before been any ill feeling between men on Gannon creek. The mountain men could not adapt themselves to the discipline of a supervised lumbering operation.

It was partly Shellenberger's air of detached authority which they found barely tolerable. Not that he kept his own counsel and ate only at Sparrel's, but that he went among them as though they were trees or mules, and acted so superior by virtue of his ownership of Sparrel Pattern's timber and not by right of character, one man to another, as it was among the Big Sandy men.

It was more especially Mullens. He had his own superiorities as boss of the work. He said little to the men beyond a few terse orders. Moreover he had his own methods for felling trees, determining log lengths, constructing the dam, for every single detail of the logging. He insisted on telling these men who had lived their lives in the hills and swung axes since they were striplings, how to fell a tree, how far above the ground they should cut, and where to stand when it began to lean. Sometimes they would do as they were told; more often they would do as they liked and meet the sour looks of Mullens with a passive and child-like silence.

They were difficult and individual as children, and Mullens did not know what to do about it. So he swore at them and marked on each tree the exact spot where he wanted it cut. If he then stood by and watched, they would cut low; but when he turned away they would straighten their backs and cut high.

They were not happy at the camp. When they got homesick or took a fancy for home-cooked victuals, or a notion to leave the camp for a few days, they quietly shouldered their axes and went. They returned when they got ready and they did not expect any unfavorable notice to be taken of their going out or their coming in.

Abra said that the men were beginning to think it ought to be pay-day some time, but that neither Shellenberger nor Mullens had said anything about it yet.

And since they were not accustomed to hiring out for a wage, they did not know whether they should ask about the time of their pay or just wait until the job was finished up. Sparrel seemed to take it as being all right, so it must be, but a little ready money would come in handy.

This general unrest culminated in the latter part of August. The occasion was the accident and first casualty on the job. They were chopping the greatest poplars in Dry Creek. Grover Sims was standing near by watching them bring down one of the finest of them all. Mullens happened to be there at the moment the tree began to lean. He shouted sharply to Sims to jump up the hill out of the way. The boy was startled by the shouting of Mullens and the loud cracking of the giant bole breaking away from the stump and crashing through the smaller trees. In nervous confusion he sprang full into the path of the falling mass. It caught him squarely, knocking him down as though he were a reed, pinning him under the heavy trunk, and crushing in his lungs. Had he stayed where he was before Mullens shouted, he would have been safe. The moans had ceased by the time Sparrel got to him. It went quickly through Dry Creek that it was Mullens' fault, and if he had kept his mouth off of the boy it wouldn't have happened. And why, anyway, should they be down here in a lumber camp at the risk of their lives, working for a foreigner like Mullens when they might just as well be at home and their own bosses as they had always been?

They quit. They were quiet about it. Some of them told Mullens they allowed they'd better be getting back home now, what with the corn about ready to cut and things about the place to be attended to, and they'd just have their time. Mullens said he couldn't pay them until Shellenberger got the money. And they said that they reckoned if it wasn't handy they'd just wait around for it, and it better not be too long. So while they were burying Grover Sims on Big Brushy, Shellenberger took one of Sparrel's mules for two days and when he came back there was money to pay them.

The work was at a standstill. "So now what?" Shellenberger said to Mullens.

"Go down-river and get me some men who know how to be told what to do," Mullens said.

The month of August was going by on the rumor of these troubles at the camp. In other Augusts, the thought of disputes among men never came into Wolfpen or disturbed the head of Cynthia. Germany and Italy, meaning Hitler and Mussolini, are said to be working together closely. They are to control Austria, and Hitler's share in the control might not please that intensely Catholic country too well. Germany's influence will increase along the Danube. Germany and Italy combining make that possible, with nobody inclined to fight about it.

In return for recognizing Italian sovereignty in Ethiopia Hitler is to have important Ethiopian concessions.

A million years ago, when our ancestors went out seeking something to eat, preferably some feeble human being easily killed, everybody walked. Now nearly everybody rides. Across George Washington bridge over the Hudson river, opened five years ago, about 100,000 human beings have crossed in 31,000,000 automobiles, while fewer than 1,000,000 have crossed on foot. Busses alone carried 41,638,000 over the bridge.

How rapidly progress moves once it starts! Seventy-five years ago, both sides of our country were reached by telegraph for the first time. Now men talk around the world by radio. Seventy-five years ago they only talked across the continent, now they fly the continent and on beyond, across the Pacific ocean.

Those hostile to new ideas might remember that a little more than seventy-five years ago men were beaten for re-election to congress because, as the voters put it, "they were foolish enough to vote money to experiment talking over wires."

They were defeated for willingness to have the government try out Morse's electric telegraph idea.

Berlin reports that German book-sellers must sell, and Germans must read, only books that the government thinks they ought to sell and read.

The public will be compelled with "loving force" to read what is good for them.

That takes Germany back to the Seventeenth century, when the English government decided that the Englishmen must read only what the government thought was good for them.

All books must be submitted and wait for approval before printing. Along came a man named John Milton with his book the "Areopagitica," printed by him without anybody's permission, denouncing an infamous law that would control men's minds and freedom of thought. That settled it; the law died.

Sombody will kill it in Germany, in time.

In the Spanish civil war, hostages have been seized, on both sides, including many women, and are held with this threat: "If you kill hostages taken from my side, I'll kill yours."

England and other countries almost tearfully are begging both sides in Spain to exchange hostages instead of murdering them; the British government officially expresses the fear that women "are in danger of wholesale massacre." Nice civilization, is it not?

Dr. Bakst, young teacher of mathematics at Columbia university, thinks he has a sure formula for winning on horse races; "he tried it and won, 1,000 times, not with money, just mentally."

Anybody can win mentally, they do it constantly at Monte Carlo and elsewhere, but nobody can win money, except accidentally—never in the long run.

A brave truck driver, name unknown, saw a lady with a difficult name, Mrs. Anastasia Aduszkiewicz, hanging from the ledge of a second story in Jersey City. Rushing to help, he caught her in his arms as she fell, then left, wanting no praise.

An eighteen-year-old girl, alone and in agony, gave birth to a child; and, according to police, immediately killed it, dropping it from a roof. A jury convicted her of manslaughter, and the judge let her go on probation; she must report once a month to prove that she is behaving. Four jurors that helped convict her told the judge they regretted their verdict.

Every mother knows that the unfortunate girl, after her horrible experience and solitary agony, was at least as nearly insane as any shell-shocked soldier.

Trade Balance for Nine Months Is Unfavorable—Mrs. "Wally" Simpson Gets Divorce—Goering Launches Nazi Economic Plan.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

EXPORTS of manufactured goods and raw materials exceeded imports into the United States during September by more than four million dollars, according to a report released by Secretary of Commerce Roper.

But the flow the other way was so strong during the previous three months that the country suffered an unfavorable balance of trade during the first nine months of the year amounting to $33,138,000. This is in contrast with a favorable balance of $66,496,000 in the corresponding period of 1935.

Roper minimized the situation, declaring that heavy exports of raw cotton, tobacco and automobiles would probably bring the trade balance more into line with previous years. Pressed for further explanation Roper insisted that "our government as such does not compete with other governments in the selling of goods," and this was the province of private business. On reciprocal trade agreements he was mum.

"We'd like to end the year with a favorable trade balance, naturally," he said, "but we are going through a period of study and readjustment in world trade."

In fact, Roper found the increase in import trade to be "encouraging." He said that it showed our industries were buying raw materials abroad for expansion of their production in this country. Heavy increases in wheat and meats resulted from the drought, according to Roper, rather than from the killing of six million pigs and non-raising of grain under the AAA.

UNCLE SAM'S nephews and nieces now number 128,429,000, according to the estimate of Director William L. Austin of the bureau of census. The new figure, as of July 1, represented an increase of 908,000, or 0.71 per cent, since July 1, 1935. It was based on the number of births and deaths during the year ending June 30, 1936, and the excess of immigration over emigration.

The bureau of agricultural economics also has been doing some population estimating. It says the back to the farm movement of the depression years has halted and that the farm population remained practically stationary during 1935, being 31,809,000 at the end of that year. This figure, the bureau says, was only slightly greater than in 1920 and "somewhat less" than in 1910.

PROCEEDINGS lasting nineteen minutes in the court of assizes at Ipswich, England, sufficed to give marital freedom to Mrs. "Wally" Simpson.

Justice Sir Anthony Hawke heard neatly arranged evidence of the infidelity of Ernest Simpson, who was not represented; and gruffly gave a decree nisi to the attractive American woman who has been and is the close friend of King Edward VIII.

For six months she will be on probation, technically chaperoned at all times, and if her behavior satisfies the king's protector she will be unofficially free April 27 to marry again. Whether or not her new husband, if she takes one, will be King Edward is a question that only time and the two persons most directly concerned can determine.

Mrs. Simpson returned from Ipswich to her London residence on Cumberland terrace, Regents park, and there told interviewers that she was angered and humiliated by the international sensation her divorce has caused. She said she might go abroad for a time but that she would never return to the United States because of "all the nasty things" said of her here.

The week, a radical London weekly, was the first English newspaper to carry an open reference to Mrs. Simpson's friendship with King Edward. The article was at the same time a denunciation of the American press for giving the story such prominence and of the British press for suppressing it entirely. It also made it clear that there would be widespread opposition to a marriage between Edward and "Wally." Papers from Paris and elsewhere outside the United Kingdom have been in great demand in London, but of course the vast majority of the English people know nothing about the affair.

SECRETARY OF LABOR FRANCES PERKINS announced that the third national conference on labor legislation, designed to stimulate the raising of work standards through federal and state co-operative efforts, will be called into session in Washington on November 9, and will last three days.

SPURRED to quick action by the new accord between Germany and Italy, Leon Blum's popular front cabinet approved a large increase in France's military air force, already reputed to be one of the most powerful in the world. To modernize and build up the aerial squadrons the government will spend $230,000,000 at once. It was reported, too, that the cabinet decided to ask parliament to vote extraordinary funds for the fortification of the northern frontier because of Belgium's reversion to a policy of armed neutrality.

BENITO MUSSOLINI rattled his sword again on the occasion of the fourteenth anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. "The Italian people," he proclaimed, "today are ready and determined to defend as never before—with all their force right up to the last drop of blood—victory and empire."

As for Fascism, he said, "When it finds obstacles in its path, it throws itself against them and burns its bridges behind it."

NOT to be outdone in martial gestures by other nations, Japan trotted out her entire navy for review by Emperor Hirohito. It was the greatest fleet ever brought together in Asiatic waters, comprising 108 warships aggregating nearly 700,000 tons and manned by 40,000 men. Large numbers of aircraft also took part in the evolution in Osaka bay.

GEN. HERMANN WILHELM GOERING, German minister of air and now the director of the Nazi four-year economic scheme to make the reich independent of the rest of the world in raw materials, launched his program at a great Nazi rally in Berlin.

"We shall hack finger after finger off the foreign hand clutching at Germany's throat within the next four years," he declared.

Outlining his plans, Goering said no German had starved, nor would starve. The high seas fishing fleet will be increased, he asserted, so the people can eat fish when meat is not available. Whale fishing will be developed for the margarine it can produce, he promised.

Goering urged all Germans to follow the example of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler who, he said, eats neither meat nor butter. The audience yelled with delight when the robust Goering told them he had lost 22 pounds by eating less butter.

Germany would prefer the old system of international exchange of wares, but this now is impossible in a mad world, so Germany will build her factories, produce her own synthetic rubber and her own substitutes for cotton and other materials for which she now must spend millions of dollars yearly, the general declared.

THE DOG HAS RETURNED TO HIS VOMIT!

When the wet leaders were smearing prohibition and asking for a new lease of life for the liquor traffic, they assured the public that the legalized business would be a good little boy.

They went into hysterics about the bootleggers. They pretended to be terribly horrified at the manner in which the prohibition laws were being violated. They pleaded for a legalized traffic that could be regulated by law. They pictured the new little fellow that was to be as a handsome, harmless youngster. They even gave him a new name. They spurned the name "Saloon" and christened him Liquor Store.

They were liars and hypocrites.
We are talking about the leaders
now. They knew that the legalized liquor traffic always had been a law violator and always would be.

Those who expected to engage in the business, either as wholesalers or retailers, never intended to obey the law. They expected to violate it just as long as they might deem it reasonably safe to do so. They are doing it.

In Dallas and other cities where the traffic has been legalized and where liquor stores have been established, they are shamelessly and flagrantly violating the law. They are selling liquors by the drink. They are selling it to boys and girls. Beer joints that are licensed to sell beer only are selling strong liquors. The Liquor Store is only the old-time saloon in a new dress. The longer they operate the more arrogant and lawless will they become.

Truly the dog has returned to his vomit and the sow to her wallowing
in the mire.

THE FOOL BEHIND THE WHEEL

There are still entirely too many accidents on the highways as well as the streets of our cities. There are still too many people in too big hurry to get nowhere. There are still too many that will take a chance of passing another car on a hill. There are too many yet who take too much liberty on sharp curves. But most of the killed and injured happen on perfectly straight roads, and is generally caused by some simpleton that takes a chance of getting around a car in front of them, when they see another not 300 feet up the road that is coming meeting them at 90 to nothing.—
Terry County Herald.

Some very brainy men seem to become brainless fools the moment
they get behind the wheel of a car.
The biggest fool of all is the man who will go and tank up on liquor
just before starting somewhere in his automobile. Courts and juries can scarcely be too hard on the fellow that will do it.

Lust and liquor—a dance hall—
then murder and suicide. These are the last tragic chapters in the life of L. O. Cooper, a Cochran county farmer. The body of pretty Juanita Kelly, 21, who had been missing
since October 17, was found nine days later buried in a sudan field on the Cooper farm. It was terribly mutilated and bore mute evidence of a brutal murder. "He (Cooper) admitted being with the girl at the dance hall and that they had had several drinks of whiskey and wine
on the night of the disappearance," says the Hockley County Herald.
"On the last trip (from the Lubbock jail to Morton) he admitted being present when she was killed and located the knife with which her head was almost severed from her body, and the wine bottle with which she had been hit a terrific blow over the head, and stated that he himself had buried the body." Questioned further by officers that night, he promised to tell all the next morning. But the next morning when the jailer opened the prisoner's cell door, he found only Cooper's dead body. With a razor blade which he had concealed in the sole
of his shoe, he had cut an artery
and had bled to death. "From all indications, the suicide of the accused has closed the case so far as the law is concerned, and while all the details may never be known, it will probably be remembered as a result of a carousal in which liquor played a prominent part," says the Herald. Truly "Wine is a mocker," and "At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

Something must be done to keep our public grounds in better condition hereafter. Those old unsightly locusts on the courthouse lawn
should be replaced—with Chinese Elms and the new trees irrigated when needed. Plenty of water in the winter time and a little in the summer will do wonders. Likewise, our City Park should have more attention. Public interest in the matter,
however, is absolutely essential.
Some club or organization should take the matter in hand.

The wife of every farm owner in Lynn county should see to it that some trees and shrubbery are planted out on their premises this fall or next spring. A home without a shrub or a tree is a dreary-looking place. Shrubs and trees properly cared for make any residence look more home-like. Let's beautify our farm homes. It can be done at little cost.

In spite of the summer drouth,
the yard beautification contest here
this past summer was a decided success. While some who entered the contest were unable to get water in sufficient quantities to keep their premises irrigated for several weeks
this summer, yet there are many yards in Tahoka today that are much more beautiful by reason of this contest. It should be repeated next year.

A number of Lynn county farmers planted out Chinese Elms around their premises a few years ago as windbreaks. These trees have grown wonderfully and they are not only valuable today as windbreaks but they add much to the attractiveness of the farm home. Let's plant more trees, folks. The cost is negligible.

Laxative combination
folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Theodor's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup
of Black-Draught for their children.
The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets.
Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky.,
writes: "I have used Theodor's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness.
Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

Small towns are not dead towns
unless the people in them are satisfied to allow them to die. A good way to submerge the town into a graveyard is for the business interests to be armed with knives up their sleeves for the next door neighbor; balk at every move for advancement made by a competitor;
refuse a part in matters beneficial to the community's progress; and an hundred and one other things we might mention. Balled down in a nutshell—the failure of cooperation.

IT'S OIL-PLATED

"Morning Drag" is unknown in this heatless garage. The car inside has its engine Oil-Plated for Winter. The owner outside is still six strides away from the starter button. But already his Oil-Plated engine is oiled to the top by its slippery Oil-Plating.

No waiting!

The Oil-Plating was left on last night, all over each part, from bottom bearings to topmost piston. This complete oiling in ADVANCE that kills starting risk, comes only from the Germ Process—patented.

Quit believing that a process means nothing but refining or over-refining to make an oil winter-THIN. Although perfectly free-flowing, Conoco Germ Processed oil is not needlessly thin—and weak. For in addition to just enough of the most approved modern refining this oil is alloyed! Or speaking still more scientifically, a patented "hyper-oily essence" is added. Nothing else lets oil join up direct with metal, to Oil-Plate your engine,
pep your starter, and keep every quart hoarded.

CARPENTER-HARVICK

Many friends will be surprised to learn of the marriage of Miss Ruby Carpenter and Lawrence Harvick in Levelland on October 10. The couple had kept the wedding secret until Wednesday night, when they made the union known to parents and friends.

Mrs. Harvick is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Carpenter and is a graduate of the Tahoka High School, class of 1935.

Mr. Harvick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Harvick, residing three miles north of town. He is employed at the Paul Howell Filling Station.

The News joins many friends in wishing the couple the best that life affords.

CHURCH OF CHRIST NOTES

Services last Lord's day were fine
and gave evidence of good done in our meeting. We hope the interest and enthusiasm engendered in the meeting will not die out soon. Brother Wallace has promised to be with us again next July.

I am made to wonder why people will profess to love the church and yet not attend her services. Why they will claim to accept Jesus as Lord and not obey Him; say they believe in God and not respect and reverence His word.

Some things people do that I think is wrong: Talk too much.
Worry themselves and others with that which cannot be remedied.
Find fault with everything and then offer no remedy. Sleep too late on Lord's day morning to attend worship. See everybody's faults but their own.

The reasons I think many fail in life are: They forget, are selfish,
lack ambition, do not think, watch
the clock, cannot say no, and are quitters.

Don't forget God expects you at worship every Lord's day. Why not come to the friendly church for worship.—R. P. Drennon.

PRESBYTERIAN SERVICES

These months are gliding so swiftly, one into another, that it makes one feel as if the old year were trying to hurry out, and we are being rushed into old age more rapidly than we can realize it. Indeed, men do grow old fast, while woman proclaims from the house tops her perpetual youth.

We get in position as the years
pass to believe that it is an honor to grow older when we grow along with the years, in our spiritual understanding, experience, and usefulness. There must, or at least should,
be spiritual growth commensurate with our years. There is a spiritual youth and a spiritual manhood or maturity for all Christians. Each year tells how old and strong we are religiously. Time rightly used means growth. May this rapidly closing year mean growth to you.

Remember our preaching services
at the Presbyterian Church Sunday.
Glad to have all of our faithful group and others who have already been to the Centennial and are now back home for Sunday. Any new Presbyterians who have recently moved to Tahoka, we specially invite you out to our church on our preaching days, and we will be glad to have you work and worship with us. Come next Sunday.

Morning theme: "Our Presbyterian Camp"—where and what it is.
No evening services. Everybody invited to our gospel services.

BAPTIST W. M. S.

A unique and most interesting program in the form of an imaginary journey with the "Mission Envelop" was taken by the three circles of the Baptist W. M. S. in their monthly mission program Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. H. F.
St. Clair.

The program which was directed
by Mrs. H. P. Caveness, Missions
Chairman, was opened with a devotional by Mrs. A. J. Edwards and was interspersed with prayers, old fashioned hymns and reading of the 103rd Psalm.

This "trip" to our mission stations on the foreign fields brought clearly to our minds the past accomplishments and future needs of mission work growing out of the Lottie Moon Christmas offerings.
The envelop this year, as always,
invites us to share the blessings of those who "Keep Christmas for Christ".

Monday, November 9, will be Bible study day at the Church.

November 30 through December 4
the entire W. M. S. will study
"Palestinian Tapestries" and observe the world-wide season of prayer for Foreign Missions. Gifts to "The Lottie Moon Christmas Offering for Foreign Missions" will then be taken, and it is planned to give every resident woman member of Tahoka Baptist Church an opportunity to contribute to missions.

A humorous reading by Mrs. M.
L. Penn preceded a short business session presided over by the President, Mrs. J. B. Walker, after which the Lottie Moon Circle served refreshments to Mesdames Montgomery, Portenberry, Howell, Penn, Wyly, King, Dale, Pennington, Rogers, Caveness, Burleson, Goad, Walker,
Snowden, Stroud, Billman, Nevill,

and son Scotty.

WILSON H. D. CLUB

The Wilson H. D. Club met at the home of Mrs. L. Lumaden October 28 at noon for a covered dish luncheon. Recipes were exchanged by the club members. Names were drawn for the exchange of gifts at the Christmas party.

Mesdames Finley, Cook and Wilson were appointed as a social committee for the Christmas party.

Mesdames May, Lemon, and Lamb were appointed as a committee to make nominations for the new officers.

Visitors were: Flo Dickinson, Linda Franke, Mrs. Ione Green, Ruby Rue Anthony, Betty Brandon.

Members present were: Mesdames

P. T. A. HEARS TALKS

Mrs. H. C. Story was the principal speaker on the program of the Parent-Teacher Association at a meeting held at 3 o'clock Wednesday in the auditorium of the Central Ward school. She spoke on the subject "What the Modern Family Can Contribute to the Community."
The children of the second grade
under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Deck Dunagan, gave the feature numbers, songs and a little play, "Autumn Leaves".

Mrs. J. Fred Bucy read a letter from the National President of the Congress of Parents and Teachers urging all parents to observe National Education Week Nov. 9-13 by visiting their schools.

The attendance prize went to Mrs. Craft's and Mrs. Henderson's rooms for having the most mothers
present.

The next regular meeting will be held the first Wednesday in December. All parents and others interested in child welfare are invited.

SENIOR EPWORTH LEAGUE

The Senior Epworth League had its usual meeting Sunday evening at 7:30 with about twenty members
present.

An interesting program was presented by the leader, Louise Parks, assisted by Mr. Cecil Ayres, G. C.
Price, and Luda Strasser, who gave talks.

On Thursday evening, October 29,
the League members and about fifteen guests enjoyed a Halloween party. The basement of the church was decorated in spooky Halloween colors. A mysterious fortune telling booth was the scene of much hilarious fun and the crystal gazer being none other than Bro. Armstrong.
Peppy games were played throughout the evening and refreshments
of delicious sandwiches, potato chips
and cocoa were served to the happy crowd of young people.

ALL-SEW CLUB

The All-Sew Club met with Mrs.
A. L. Lockwood Thursday, October 25. A very pleasant afternoon was spent in sewing.

TWO FEATHER QUILTS MADE BY WILSON CLUB WOMAN

Two feather quilts will soon be

Mrs. Wilson displayed the ma-

and the small floral designs for the tops.

NEW LYNN WOMAN GATHERS 700 LBS. BLACKEYED PEAS

"We have gathered 700 pounds of

"We shall sell part of them and store the remainder for winter use.
To keep weevils out, "high-life"

MRS. OLLIE JOHNSON WRITES FROM WILLOWS, CALIFORNIA

The News has received a letter from Mrs. Ollie Johnson, who is in Willows, California, from which we take a few items.

Mrs. Johnson says that all the family there are enjoying good health. She is well pleased with California and does not want to come back to Texas yet. She appreciates the several letters she received from friends here soon after the publication of her other letter.

She says that a lot of Tahoka folks are there, or have been there. Mr. Maberry and family are there.

Raymond Griffin and Cecil Warren had been there but had left for Texas. Her daughter, Ethel May, she says is home-sick for Texas and J. T. says he is coming back some time this winter. Mrs. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Cloe, Charles Cloe, J. T. Johnson and Mrs. Ethel Mae Henderson had just attended a great rice festival at Colusa, Cal.

Mrs. Johnson says that several crops have been harvested around Willows during the short time she has lived there; first, the almonds and grapes; second, prunes, peaches and figs; third, English and black walnuts; fourth, rice; fifth, oranges, grape-fruit and quince. "Then the tractors begin to pull the plows," she says, "and the rains usually begin in October, but they have not yet begun."

"But the thing that looks funny to me is to see the folks at this time of the year cleaning the yards and pruning trees. It looks like spring, everything is so green, and lovely flowers are everywhere. Lovely oleanders in the hedges eight feet tall and roses everywhere! What could be prettier to look at through the winter months? Our church looks like a flower garden each time we meet."

"I did not find anything like some reported before I came, for the folks I have met are just folks. Of course they are not as smart as Texas folks, but I like them. We Baptists go to hear others preach and they come our way. Even the Catholic priest came to our church and made a talk about Roosevelt. He was for him."

"There was a Methodist Conference in session here last week, and our pastor asked a little red-headed Methodist preacher to preach in our church. So he did and he did fine. He was from Texas, see? And I believe I heard Brother Dale say, 'If we ever got a chance to hear Bob Shuler to hear him. So he talked at the Memorial Hall and he surely gave a fine lecture."

"There is one thing we miss out here, and that's the coyote, but we have deer and bear in the mountains. I live in the Sacramento Valley in Glenn county, and as I sit and listen to the radio I would enjoy tuning in on KPVO and hearing a program from Tahoka. I hope to hear from many of you soon.—Mrs. Ollie Johnson, 127 Vine St., Willows, Calif."

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Lindley are the parents of a little son, who was born in a Lamesa hospital Saturday night. The little fellow weighed 9½ pounds and was given the name of Herschel Randall. The mother and the babe were able to be removed to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Owens in the Edith community Tuesday. Both are doing well. Mr. Owens says this is his first grand-child, and his father's first great grand-child, and he was as happy as a jark in the springtime.

We really must get a new car, John.

"What—when we're still paying installments on the car I exchanged for the car I sold in part payment for the car we've got now?"

Uncle Ezekiel Harrison, old-time negro farmer, living east of Sulphur Springs, beat the drought to a fine stand of corn on three acres by planting early. One stalk in the field grew eight full size ears.

each ring, was sent away some three weeks ago. The Seniors hope to be wearing their rings within a month.

CIVICS CLASS

The students of the Civics class have been studying the processes of the nomination and election of the President. This has been exceptionally interesting as it comes just at the time of year when a President is being elected. The various campaigns have been followed with much interest. The class in now devoting much time to the study of the correct procedure in voting. Mr. Barrett has promised the class that he will obtain some unofficial ballots. The class will then learn the proper way of marking a ballot. Such training will prove very valuable in future years as well as very interesting at present.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics students met last Tuesday, October 27, for the purpose of organizing a Home Economics Club. A committee consisting of Mary Ellen Conway, Rudelle Prater, and Lorene Jones was appointed to select nominees for the various officers. A meeting is to be held on November 3 for the purpose of electing officers and further organizing the club. The girls and their sponsor, Miss Hazel Phipps, hope to have a very lively and interesting club.

TAHOKA VS. LAMESA

The Golden Tornado, football aggregation of Lamesa, invaded Tahoka last Friday afternoon and handed our Bulldogs the minor portion of a 26-6 score.

The visiting boys were given somewhat of a surprise, however, at least for the first half. It was rumored that Tahoka was a "pushover", but she held them to a single touchdown in the first two periods. Taking Hoover's initial kickoff, Lamesa steadily advanced to a goal early in the first period. The Bulldogs received the second kickoff; and the ball changed hands often and stayed in mid-field until the end of the second period.

Lamesa scored two more during the second half, then Travis McCord returned a kickoff about 65 or 70 yards to the enemy nine-yard line, from which point the Bulldogs drove over a score, but failed to convert. After one more Lamesa touchdown, the game ended thus: Lamesa 26, Tahoka 6.

A large following accompanied the visiting team, also a twenty-eight piece band, and a pep squad of about sixty girls. The pep squad gave a formation and a parade at the intermission between the halves. No game is scheduled for today, but the Bulldogs go to Brownfield on Wednesday, November 11.

SEVENTH GRADE PARTY

The Seventh Grade held their Halloween party last Friday night. It began at seven o'clock. Games were played until about nine o'clock when refreshments of popcorn balls, lemonade, and candy were served. After the refreshments were served, the party broke up.

IMPROVEMENTS IN THE TYPING ROOM

The boys of the Agriculture Department have been busy putting a coat of varnish on the tables in the typing room. They also made other minor changes which helped the appearance of the room greatly. The students of the typing classes appreciate these improvements very much.

JUNIOR NEWS

Vance and Dale Gildersleeve left last Sunday morning for a visit in Ft. Worth and Dallas and to see the Texas Centennial. They are expected to return sometime within the week.

BOOKS AS FRIENDS

Some wise person has said that a good book is man's best friend. Every person, who has learned to read appreciatively, knows the truth of this statement. When we see a person who does not like to read good literature, we may conclude that he has never learned to read with understanding and appreciation. The person, who has not learned to love good books should attempt to acquire that taste.

Just as there are several classes of literature, there are certain ways to read literature. In reading fiction, we may scan rapidly over it and get its meaning. When we read biographies, we should attempt to get lessons in living from the writer. Poetry is musical and we can not appreciate it unless we read aloud. In reading drama, we must attempt to see each scene as it should be enacted.

Besides developing appreciation for the contents of books, we should be schooled in their proper care. We must respect public property by preserving the books of our library for the pupils that are to use them in future years. We should remember that other people wish to use the books of our library, so we must return them promptly. If we only see the beautiful lessons, the diverting stories, and the exquisite gems of poetry, we will love and wish to preserve our books.

PHYSICS CLASS

The students of the Physics class have been devoting their time to the study of atmospheric pressure and the various things which it makes possible. They found that barometers depend entirely on the atmosphere for their working principle. Using the fact, that atmospheric pressure increases as altitude diminishes, the class calculated the approximate height of the High School building by the use of the barometer. The instructor explained the workings of a siphon, and illustrated by constructing one. The students are finding the science a very interesting study.

Pointers On Care Of Poultry

(By County Agent V. F. Jones)

It is about time of year to begin hearing complaints about the chickens having colds, sores on the head, and that the hens have quit laying. I have listed below a few important things that may be done to help prevent those things from happening.

I would suggest that first you go through the flock and remove and kill all the thin, weak birds, as they are a constant source of infection, and are not likely to be of any great value to the flock anyhow.

Then the hens should be made as comfortable in the house as possible. Do not over-crowd, and see that the house is properly ventilated and that there is not a draft through the house.

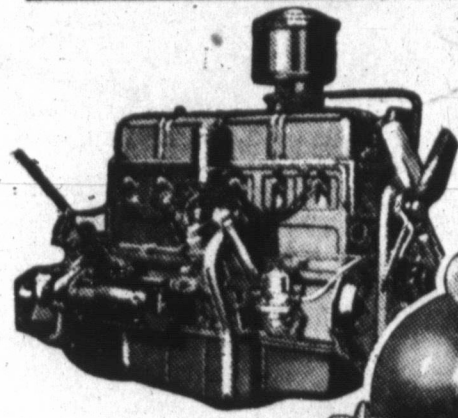

Clean the house, roosts and nests thoroughly and then disinfect the quarters with some good disinfectant. Cresote, or lube oil thinned with kerosene is a good disinfectant, or if you prefer something cleaner, a disinfectant whitewash may be used. It can be made by dissolving one pound of lye, and two and one-half pounds of lime in five and one-half gallons of water. If the whitewash disinfectant is used it should be sprayed on while it is freshly prepared.

Provide clean, fresh drinking water at all times. The water is just as important as the feed. Keep the water fountains clean. As the cold winter comes on, try to patch up your hen house and make it a little warmer. Pastebord boxes cut up and tacked on the inside wall will keep out a lot of cold wind and make the house warmer.

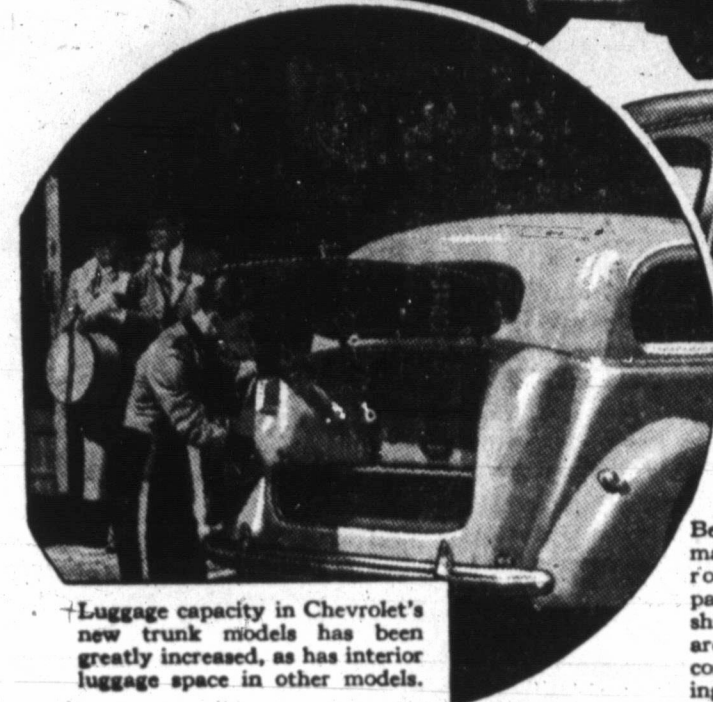

We often have lots of trouble in the early fall and winter especially in pullets with chickenpox and sore head. All pullets are susceptible and may take this disease. When they do take it you will find that they quit laying.

The outlook for egg prices this fall and winter is very favorable, and you can't well afford to have the hens quit laying when egg prices are good. Vaccination is the only reliable remedy to prevent pullets taking chickenpox. The expense of vaccination is not prohibitive, nor is it difficult to give. It is a good idea to give a flock a mild physic occasionally to help keep them in good condition. A pound of baking

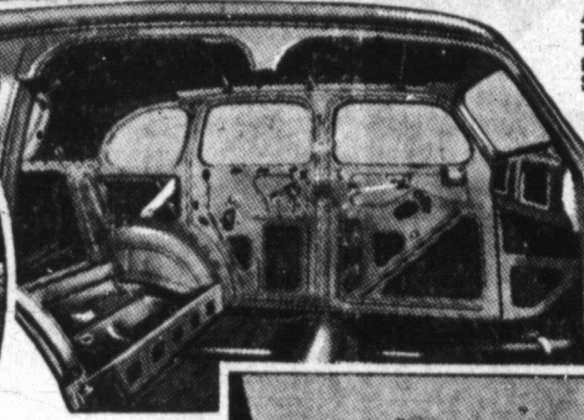

Performance, Beauty and Safety Mark Chevrolet's Completely New Cars

Chevrolet's 1937 engine is completely new, but adheres closely to time-proved Chevrolet engineering principles. It is of six-cylinder valve-in-head type, smoother, more powerful, more economical, and lighter.

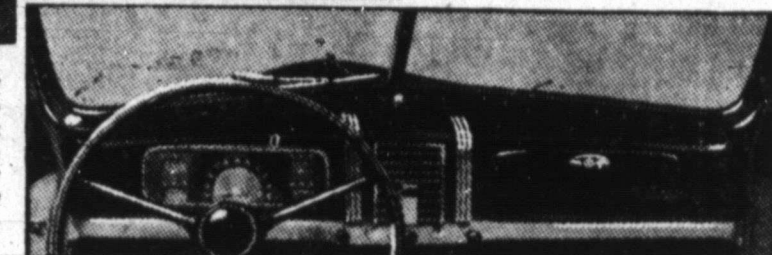

Luggage capacity in Chevrolet's new trunk models has been greatly increased, as has interior luggage space in other models.

A representative model from Chevrolet's new line, typifying its beauty and grace—the Master De Luxe Sport Sedan with trunk. Note the distinctive "speed line" extending back from the side of the hood.

Beauty and utility mark the new Chevrolet instrument panel. The windshield is of greater area, with narrow corner posts, affording better vision.

Unisteel construction joins the floor, cowl assembly, panels, and turret top of Chevrolet's all-silent, all-steel body, to form one integral structure, welded in all joints, and reinforced and braced for permanent silence and safety.

New power, economy, durability, safety and comfort, coupled with striking new beauty, characterize Chevrolet's new models for 1937. They are offered in two series, Master and Master De Luxe, virtually identical in appearance.

Chevrolet's fully-enclosed Knee-Action is furnished at no extra cost on the Master De Luxe models; and new Syncro-Mesh transmission, and safety plate glass all around at no extra cost, feature all models of both series.

FRED ASTAIRE AND GINGER ROGERS IN THEIR BIGGEST SHOW YET, "SWING TIME"

Those toe-tickling hum-provoking melodies you've been hearing over the radio for the last few weeks will be presented at the source of origin when Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, the ace dancing comedians of the screen, come to the English Theatre in their latest musical comedy singing-dancing fest, "Swing Time" Sunday, Monday, Tuesday.

"Swing Time" has left a trail of super-enthusiastic reviewers and audiences in its wake. It out-tunes and out-dances any of the Astaire-Rogers screen musical predecessors—and you know how mighty grand they were!

Set to music by Jerome Kern, of "Roberta" and "Show Boat" fame, with lyrics by Dorothy Fields, "Swing Time" brings to the screen two smart, spectacular dance sequences which are a feast for the eye and a thrill for the heart. One is a syncopated, "hot" waltz, "The Waltz in Spring Time," Fred and Ginger's big dance number. The other, titled "Bojangles of Harlem," brings you a pleasant surprise.

Fred Astaire in black-face, "Bojangles" in Fred's solo specialty, in which he is supported by a bevy of delectable septa gals, in which a novelty tap dance amid a myriad of surprise novelties against a sensational setting by John Harkrider.

The score is completed by "The Way You Look Tonight," "A Fine Romance," "Pick Yourself Up" and "Never Gonna Dance."

But wait—there's a cast in "Swing Time" which can be described by an overworked but appropriate word—colossal! Victor Moore, Helen Broderick, Eric Blore, Betty Furness, Georges Metaxa—all experts in comedy, melody and romance contribute to the zest and zip of the show with splendid performances.

Fred has already attained the acme in dance perfection, but he is better than ever in "Swing Time." And Ginger is as pert, effervescent and pretty as ever. Wait until you see this lovely creature swathed in those new gown sensations by Bernard Newman!

WPA Builds 8,233 Miles Of Highway

San Antonio, Nov. 4. — Works Progress Administration laborers have built and improved 8,233 miles of road in Texas during the past twelve months, State Administrator H. P. Drought has announced. Projects still in operation encompass the improvement of an additional 3,724 miles of roadway, he stated.

On the 9,957-mile network of Texas roads which have been included in the WPA program there has been employed a monthly average of 26,300 men. Reaching into 214 Texas counties, the program has been financed by sponsors' expenditures of $3,957,224 and federal allocations of $9,182,946.

Drought pointed out as significant the fact that 9,507 miles of the 9,957-mile road program are classified as farm-to-market roads. He said: "At the outset of this program we stressed the importance of lateral roads. Now at the end of twelve months of operation we note that approximately 41 per cent of the WPA expenditure in Texas has been on that type of improvement."

The $1,140,170 expended upon road work by sponsors and WPA in Texas has been divided as follows: for labor, $6,880,072; for materials, $2,015,306; for rental of equipment, $4,244,792. A substantial proportion of the funds expended for the rental of equipment was for wages. Many of those indirectly employed by this means would otherwise have had to seek relief, WPA officials declare.

DEPUTY JOHN JOHNSON III IN LUBBOCK SANITARIUM

Worn by fever and work, Deputy Sheriff John Johnson of O'Donnell early Tuesday afternoon was removed by ambulance to Lubbock sanitarium from Lubbock county jail, where he had collapsed when on duty.

A physician said he was suffering of pneumonia. The deputy had come here for two prisoners, said Deputy Sheriff Bedford F. Carpenter of Lubbock county. At the jail he told officers he was "very sick."

Placed in the hospital ward of the jail so he might rest, the deputy's condition became so acute a physician was called. The doctor ordered him taken to the sanitarium. It was discovered he was too weak to sit up, and the ambulance was summoned.

DALLAS SALOONS ARE GIVEN FLAT ULTIMATUM

(Dallas News, Oct. 31)
Dallas saloons Friday were given a flat ultimatum to quit illegal drink sales by midnight Saturday by Roscoe Wiley, newly appointed chief of the local Texas Liquor Control Board office, who succeeds Clyde Johnson. The latter has been recalled to Austin.

"The warning goes for all saloons, night clubs and places at the Texas Centennial which have been selling liquor by the drink in violation of the law," Mr. Wiley said.

"In view of the fact no recent attempts have been made to halt such sales we feel the dealers should be fairly warned before we go into action. They are getting that warning now."

"We don't want to get rough about it but we mean business. In addition to our Dallas staff we have several inspectors from Austin ready to aid us in a cleanup drive, if such a move is necessary. If conditions warrant, additional agents will be called from Austin."

The decision to renew the drive against illegal drink sales is part of a State-wide move to enforce the liquor law, Mr. Wiley said, and follows a recent resolution of the Liquor Control Board calling for such action.

With Mr. Wiley, Inspectors Dennis Cannon and J. E. Young, from the Austin office, have been making a thorough checkup of conditions here and they have found many instances of violations, they said. In some instances they have obtained evidence against downtown saloons which will be used in connection with charges to be filed next week unless the drink shops accept the ultimatum.

"We have found many instances of violations during a preliminary survey," Mr. Wiley said. "Many places are not only violating the drink sales statute but also the license law by selling liquor when they have only beer and wine permits."

"It may be a big job to stop these violations of the law but we are going to do it."

Co-operation of both Police Chief R. L. Jones and District Attorney R. L. Hurt will be asked in the clean up campaign, Mr. Wiley said.

Already scheduled for Thursday in County Criminal Court are a number of cases alleging illegal Sunday sales and sales in dry territory.

His entire staff will swing into action at midnight Saturday and places found violating the law will have their stocks seized and the sellers will be arrested, Mr. Wiley said.

In an effort to make enforcement easier amendments to the State law drawn under supervision of the Liquor Board will be presented to the regular session of the Legislature next January, he said.

Since 1916 a total of 9,065,857 acres of Texas land has been terraced or contoured, according to H. H. Williamson, director of the extension service.

Not satisfied with eating up the cotton stalks, leaf worms have invaded the flower beds of Nacogdoches county farmers.

Refreshing Relief
When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Robinson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes:

"I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

MRS. SUDDARTH'S FATHER REPORTED RECOVERING

Mrs. Rubie D. Suddarth was here Tuesday morning on her way to her home at O'Donnell from Butler, Missouri, to which place she had been called two weeks previously by the serious condition of her aged father, who had been injured in an automobile accident.

She reports that her father is recovering in a remarkable manner

considering his age and the seriousness of his injuries. Two or three of the vertebrae of his spinal column were dislocated at or near the neck. The injury was sustained when a car in which he was riding was side-swiped by a truck. He and others were returning from the funeral of a sister-in-law in Kansas City.

Mrs. Suddarth also visited in Kansas City, Missouri, and Topeka,

Kansas, passing the governor's mansion now occupied by Governor Alf Landon and family, while in Topeka.

Mrs. Suddarth says that as she returned to Texas Monday over the M. K. & T. Railway, she found all the streams in Southern Missouri and Eastern Kansas were full to overflowing and thousands of acres of crops were under water. Much damage to corn and other crops, she thought, had been done.

Clean System Clear Skin

You must be free from constipation to have a good, clear complexion. If not eliminated, the wastes of digestion produce poisons and the skin must do more than its share in helping to get rid of them.

So for a clear, healthy skin, remember the importance of bowel regularity. At the first sign of constipation, take Black-Draught—the purely vegetable laxative. It brings such refreshing relief, and tends to leave the bowels acting regularly until some future disturbance interferes.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for November 8 THE CHRISTIAN WARFARE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:8-12, 18-20; Ephesians 6:13-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Eph. 6:10.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Paul Preached in a Schoolhouse.
JUNIOR TOPIC—In a Schoolhouse in Ephesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Weapons of the Christian Soldier.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Facing the Forces of Evil.

War, war! The whole world is war-conscious in our day. Nations are watching one another with suspicion, and in the meantime arming themselves for conflict. Hatred and suspicion are rife, and as long as sin rules the hearts of men we long in vain for peace, which cannot come until that day when the Prince of Peace himself shall reign.

Yet every Christian hopes and works for the peaceful solution of the nations' problems. Right thinking men do not want war between the peoples of the earth. But there is one warfare that we do seek to foster and promote. We encourage it, and as Christians make a holy resolve to battle to the end. That is the warfare against Satan and his hosts. As long as he rules in the hearts of men, and sin and wickedness are here, we say, "Fight on, my soul."

Christian life and service are presented in Scripture as a fight, and we do well to learn the methods and the weapons of this great spiritual conflict, not stressing a belligerent note of strife against one another, and particularly not between the divisions of God's army in the earth, "but standing shoulder to shoulder in the battle against the Evil One."

Our lesson presents a picture of I. The Lord's Warrior (Acts 19:8-12).

Paul, who is now on his third missionary journey, comes again to Ephesus, the leading city of Asia Minor, and the center of the worship of the heathen goddess, Diana. He tarries there for about three years.

Like a good tactician he began his campaign at a strategic point, the synagogue. He brought forward his God-given weapons, "reasoning and persuading." Some he won, others disbelieved—the sad fact which even this greatest of all preachers had to meet.

God attested his work by miracles. The soldier of the Lord does not go into battle alone. Nor does he fight in his own power. God gave him

II. A Mighty Conquest (vv. 18-20).

When a man's profession of faith in Christ carries with it an open forsaking of his confessed misdeeds—a true change of life as well as a declaration of belief—there has been real dealing with God.

Notice, that they burned the bad books found in their homes, even though they were valued at thousands of dollars. Christian, how many books or magazines are there in your home now that minister only to the lowest in your nature? Oh, yes, they may be "literature," they may be in beautiful bindings; you may even read them "in the original," and regard the reading as cultural. But if they are bad books, are you ready to follow the Ephesians in destroying them?

Finally we have from Paul's letter to the Ephesians the glorious presentation of the Christian's

III. God-Given Weapons (Eph. 6:13-20).

This is a familiar, but none the less rich and instructive, passage. We have space to note only that there are (1) five weapons of defense; namely, the girdle of truth, the breastplate of righteousness, the shoes of peace, the shield of faith, and the helmet of salvation, and (2) one mighty weapon of offense, the sword of the Spirit—the Word of God. A glorious and impenetrable armor and equipment for battle!

But it will do us not the slightest good unless we obey Paul's admonition and put it on.

Christian, are you wearing and using "the whole armor of God?"

Judging From Appearance
Men in general judge more from appearance than from reality. All men have eyes, but few have the gift of penetration.—Machiavelli.

God's Way
The strength and the happiness of a man consists in finding out the way in which God is going, and going in that way, too.

Acts That Bring Results
No act falls fruitless; none can tell how vast its power may be; nor what results, enfolded, dwell within it silently.—Bulwer.

A Friend Indeed
Keep close to thy Best Friend, and He will refresh and cheer thee.—Spurgeon.

God's Holiness
We must not only bless God for all his benefits; we must rejoice in his holiness.—McIntyre.

Wives, Know Yourselves!

Accurate Analysis Will Do Much to Overcome Difficulty in Wedded Life

SPEAKING on the question of trial marriages, a well known writer said, "There should be no need for trial when two people know their own abilities and have measured themselves accurately. Two people who understand themselves will never, I believe, have any difficulty living happily together after marriage."

That is a new slant on the question of success in marriage, supplements a woman writer of national fame. Not "Know thy husband"—or "wife," but "know thyself!"

And, come to think of it, isn't most of the discontent and dissatisfaction in marriage traceable to ideas of ourselves—that may be misconceptions, no less than our illusions about the other person?

How many women's dissatisfaction with their husband has as its source the thought of all they gave up to marry him, all they "might have had" if they had married a certain other man?

How many women's discontent with the role of wife and mother springs from the thought of how much more fascinating pastimes they might have had if they had followed that career?

How many girls' impossible expectations of a fulltime lover and Prince Charming originates in an exaggerated notion of their own devastating beauty and charm?

If all discontented wives would look deeply into themselves, measure themselves, stop fooling themselves, many might discover that the other man they might have married is a self-nurtured illusion; that the career of their dreams is not a soft snap and a joy forever; but a grueling, exhausting job which might have worn them out if they had qualified for it, which they probably would have been unable to do; that they themselves are neither devastating beauties nor always charming, but women who are frequently disappointing and difficult to live with. They might discover and admit to themselves that they are greatly in debt to their husbands for many things that make life easier and better and more worthwhile—that they would not get along so well without them.

Then they might think more of doing their part of trying to make those husbands happy. And that effort on the part of one must inevitably go a long way toward a mutually happy and successful marriage.

ROOSEVELT GIVEN IMMENSE MAJORITY OVER LONDON

(Continued from Front Page) gram. It makes him complete master of the situation. Congress will continue to write his will into law, for few Democratic congressmen will dare to oppose the policies of the President.

The Democrats have also won additional strength in both Houses of Congress. They have 308 members in the present House of Representatives against 127 for the Republicans and Independents combined. In the next house they will have a substantial increase over the present number. Their overwhelming majority in the Senate will also be increased slightly.

State Elections

Democratic governors were also elected in most of the states holding gubernatorial elections this year. In Texas, less than two-thirds of the votes, probably, had been tabulated, with Roosevelt having a lead over London of more than 7 to 1. His vote was 420,484; London, 57,212; Lemke, 1,385; Thomas, socialist, 485.

The vote in Texas will probably run above 800,000. Senator Morris Sheppard, Governor Alfred, and the entire Democratic ticket for state offices and for Congress were elected. Sheppard and Alfred were elected by about the same smashing majorities as were given the President.

Five Amendments Adopted Five of the six proposed constitutional amendments in this state appear to have been adopted. The only one failing of approval was the proposed state liquor monopoly amendment, and the vote for it was surprisingly large.

The votes on the amendments as tabulated were given Thursday morning as follows:

State full control of liquor—for 135,772, against 174,872.
Teachers' retirement pensions—for 168,051, against 150,910.
Workmen's compensation for state employees—for 187,853, against 122,387.
Revision of pardoning system—for 225,387, against 88,767.
Salary increases for state officers—for 172,960, against 141,053.
Limitation to seven house members—for 187,766, against 115,255.

LEGISLATURE AMENDS PENSION LAW, PASSES TAX BILL

It is estimated that to pay pensions for the remainder of the fiscal year, or until August 31, 1937, the sum of $7,000,000 to $8,000,000 of state funds will be required. The new Omnibus bill just enacted is expected to bring into the pension fund about that amount.

The Omnibus Tax Law levies some new taxes and increases the taxes on some commodities being taxed already. It provides for an increase in the taxes on the manufacture and sale of beer, wines, and spirituous liquors.

It provides for a stamp tax on notes secured by a mortgage or lien; a license tax on all kinds of coin machines; a graduated tax on telephone companies; a tax on telegraph and commercial wireless telegraph stations; a tax on gas, electric light, electric power, and water-works plants, in towns of 2,500 population or more; a tax on crude oil produced in Texas; a tax on insurance companies; a tax on motion theatres, operas, etc.; a tax on bank night prizes, of 20 percent; a tax on horse racing wagers; a tax on horse, dog, automobile racing and like contests; a tax on dance halls, night clubs, skating rinks, etc.; a tax on sulphur; a tax on

Centennial Will Be Reopened In 1937

Dallas, Nov. 5.—Reopening of the Texas Centennial Exposition for a five months' period in 1937 was assured this week. The Exposition, through its president, Fred F. Florence, served formal notice on the City of Dallas it would exercise its option for the use of the Exposition grounds during the coming year.

Tentative plans for the 1937 World's Fair are for its opening June 12 with closing set for October 31.

The decision of the Board of Directors of the Texas Centennial Exposition to reopen next year is the result of a general demand by the business interests of Dallas and Texas that the Exposition should carry on during 1937.

It is the plan of the Exposition management to make many drastic changes at the Exposition grounds. Only in its general layout will the 1937 World's Fair resemble that of 1936. There will be new shows, new concessions, new exhibits and new buildings. A majority of the large exhibitors are anxious to con-carbon black; a tax on notes, marble, etc.; and others.

This law was passed with the emergency clause by a two-thirds majority and therefore went into effect immediately.

tinue through the coming year. They point out that during the year 1937 there will not be any major Exposition in the United States with the exception of the Exposition at Dallas.

"We are going to reopen in 1937 with a better and more extensive World's Fair," said Director General Harry Olmstead. "It will be an entirely new show, better and more smoothly run by virtue of experience gained through the operation of 1936. Immediately after the close of the Texas Centennial Exposition November 29 full plans for the 1937 World's Fair will be announced."

MRS. BARTON RETURNS FROM VISIT WITH SON IN NEW MEX.

Mrs. N. J. Barton returned Monday night from Artesia, New Mexico, where she had spent a month visiting a son and two daughters and their families. R. F. Barton, Mrs. R. E. Barnett, and Mrs. D. K. Poor, all of whom formerly lived in this county.

Artesia is situated in the Pecos Valley below Roswell and is in the midst of an irrigation district. Mrs. Barton says that the cotton there is making from a bale to three bales per acre. One man gathered two bales per acre the first picking. But the acreage of course is limited.

Rev. and Mrs. George A. Dale and Mrs. P. W. Goad attended the Baptist Workers' Conference at Plains Tuesday.
