TEACHERS MET HERE SATURDAY

One Hundred Attended Session Of County Teachers At Local High School

Almost a hundred Lynn county teachers attended the meeting at the high school building last Saturday, according to County Superintendent H. P. Cavness. Eighty-nine teachers registered, and it is believed that there were a few present who failed to register. Two schools in the county, New Lynn and Newmoore, with a total of eight teachers, have not opened since suspending several weeks ago for cotton picking, and some of the teachers in these schools were not present. A few of the Tahoka teachers were not present also, since they are not required to attend. There are 113 white teachers in the county, Mr. Cavness states.

One of the major items of business transacted at this meeting was the decision of the teachers to continue the practice of having an annual county teachers banquet, but the time and place for the banquet to be held this year was not definitely determined, but committees were appointed to work out plans. O'Donnell invited the teachers to have the banquet there.

The organization of the Lynn County Interscholastic League was also effected and directors of the various activities were elected.

The teachers met at 10 a. m. with County Superintendent H. P. Cavness presiding.

Greetings to the teachers were extended by Superintendent W. G. Barrett of the Tahoka schools in an opening inspirational address.

Superintendent S. G. Anthony of Wilson discussed The New Curriculum and the Tentative Course of Study plan for Texas schools.

Brief remarks of a general nature respecting school work throughout the district were made by Prof. G. D. Holbrook, Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Dr. Jackson of the Texas Technological College delivered an address on The Guiding Principles for the Teacher.

J. T. Carter, superintendent at New Home, former principal of the high school in Tahoka, was selected as general director for the Interscholastic League Meet.

Other directors were selected as follows:

Declaration—H. M. McEachern, superintendent at Grassland, post office address, Post.

Debate—J. B. Bolin, superintendent at New Lynn, postoffice address, Rt. 1, Tahoka.

Commissioner-Elect Building New Home

Tom Hale, who was recently elected county commissioner from precinct No. 4, is completing a modern new home out at his place twelve miles west of Tahoka, according to Sam Ramsey, one of the carpenters.

The building is 28 by 40 feet and consists of six rooms. It will be given a stucco finish outside and will be elegant inside. Gas pipes are being laid and all the modern conveniences will be installed.

Mr. Ramsey says it will be one of the most substantial and attractive country homes in the entire county.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

Walter Littlepage, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Littlepage of Midway and a student this year in the Texas Tech, underwent an operation for rupture in the West Texas Hospital in Lubbock Wednesday morning.

Reports from the hospital are to the effect that he is "just doing fine."

DRAW PLAYS O'DONNELL

Draw and O'Donnell wind up their 1936 football season with a game at O'Donnell today (Thursday). In a previous game this season, O'Donnell won 2 to 0.

Complete Topping Of Hwy. 84 Stretch

The topping of the five mile sector of highway No. 84 extending from Tahoka west was completed last Saturday afternoon, and this is now a beautiful piece of highway. The topping is of asphalt and gravel and makes a dandy surface over which to travel.

If it proves capable of standing up under the traffic without too much upkeep and if the remainder of the highway is finished in a similar manner, No. 84 in time should become one of the most popular east-and-west highways in Texas.

The work of finishing the eight mile gap in No. 9 north of Tahoka was also begun the first of this week.

"Jack" Hill Dies In Los Angeles

Leonard "Jack" Hill, 35 son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hill of this city, died in the Veteran's Hospital in Los Angeles, California, at 6:15 p. m. Tuesday according to a telegram received by his father Wednesday from his son's wife, Mrs. Beatrice Hill.

The body was being shipped here for burial. The telegram stated that it would arrive in Slaton at 5 o'clock this (Friday) afternoon, where it will be met by the ambulance of the Harris Funeral Home and brought to Tahoka. Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but it is expected that the funeral services will be held at the Harris Funeral Home here some time Saturday.

Having been suffering from a glandular trouble for several months, young Mr. Hill underwent an operation at Fort Baird, New Mexico, a few weeks ago.

His condition continuing to remain very unsatisfactory, he was sent to the Veterans Hospital in Los Angeles, where his case was pronounced hopeless.

His wife, of course, was almost frantic to go to his bedside, and friends here made up a purse Saturday to send her. She was taken to Big Spring Saturday night, where she boarded a bus for Los Angeles. She wired back Monday afternoon that her husband seemed just a bit better at that time.

Leonard J., better known as "Jack" Hill was born on March 12, 1901, near Rockdale in Milam county. The family moved to Coleman county while he was yet an infant and removed from there to Jones county near Anson a few years later.

At the age of 17, in the year 1918, he enlisted in the army and was at Fort Bliss, El Paso, when the armistice was signed.

In 1921 the family removed from Jones to Lynn county and have resided here since. Jack was married to Miss Beatrice Lindley of Lubbock in 1925. For the past three years they have resided in Tahoka.

Besides his wife and his parents he leaves three brothers and five sisters. The brothers are J. E., Vernon, and Robert, all of Tahoka. The sisters are: Mrs. Emma White of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Mary Wilson of Ralls, Mrs. Kate Gillespie and Mrs. Rose Gass of Tahoka, and Mrs. Tina Lee McNeely of Laredo.

It is expected that most if not all of the brothers and sisters will be here for the funeral.

"Jack" Hill had many friends here who are sincerely grieved at his untimely death.

SMALL'S NEPHEW DIES

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Small went to Plainview Monday and remained until Tuesday afternoon to attend the funeral of a nephew of Mr. Small's, Charley Burns, who died Sunday night at Borger. Mr. Burns was the son of Mr. Small's sister and was 36 years of age. Death resulted from pneumonia.

Mrs. Clarence Gausoin had her tonsils removed in a Lubbock sanitarium Tuesday.

TAHOKA GETS PENSION MAN

Sub-Office Of Big Spring District Is Located Here To Serve Four Northern Counties

George G. White of Big Spring, supervisor for district No. 18 comprising 13 counties, for the Old Age Assistance commission, was here Wednesday afternoon and made the announcement that a sub-office is being established in Tahoka with Carter-Thompson in charge.

This sub-office will be open at the court-house on Wednesday of each week. It has been located here for the benefit of the four northernmost counties of the district, namely, Garza, Lynn, Terry and Yoakum.

All applications for old age assistance, or "pensions", will hereafter be made to Mr. Thompson, Mr. White stated. Also, all complaints of every nature should be made to him. All blank applications which have heretofore been furnished the county judge and the county clerk have been called in and have been placed in the hands of Mr. Thompson. Applications for old age assistance can be made in no other way except through him.

All persons interested should see him at the court house here on Wednesdays. On other days he will be out on the field making inspections.

Club Reporters Study Writing

Lynn County Writers Association, composed of the reporters of the H. D. clubs and 4-H clubs, met in the county court room Saturday afternoon November 21, 1936.

Last January the H. D. Agent prepared a large poster on which every report published was placed each week. A gold star was given each reporter who furnished two re-

Geo. Mahon Sends An Interesting Book

The News editor is greatly indebted to Hon. George Mahon, member of Congress from the Nineteenth District, for a copy of The Democratic Register and Congressional Year Book for 1936.

This publication contains not only the photographs and brief sketches of each Democratic candidate for Congress in the United States in the recent campaign, but also much information as to the functions of each of the departments of government at Washington and much other valuable information.

By the way, the Texas delegation in Congress is a pretty fine looking bunch, among whom George Mahon already takes high rank.

A FRANK WORD TO DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBERS

Now that most of the cotton is gathered and people are winding up the year's work, we take it for granted that most of our delinquent subscribers will call within the next two or three weeks and pay up.

If they do not do so, we will assume that they do not want the paper and will drop their names from the mailing list. They may then renew their subscriptions by first paying all past due subscriptions.

Most of our subscribers have shown all due appreciation of our leniency in the matter of collections. There are just a few apparently who have been disposed to impose upon our good nature. As a whole, we are proud of our great family of readers and thoroughly appreciate their spirit of fairness and co-operation.

D. T. ROGERS CRITICAL

As we close our forms Wednesday night, we learn that the condition of D. T. Rogers is very critical. The family and friends are fearful that he can not survive but a short time.

CROP HARVEST NEARS FINISH

8,211 Bales Of Cotton Ginned In Tahoka; County Ginnings Are About 43,000 Bales

The gathering of the cotton crop of Lynn county is rapidly drawing to a close. At 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, 8,211 bales had been ginned in Tahoka, against 7,697 up to Thursday morning of the preceding week.

The number of bales ginned in the county has doubtless passed the 40,000 mark, though we have no definite information on that score. E. W. Holloway, who gathers reports for the Government, reported Wednesday morning, however, that up to November 14, a total of 36,517 bales had been ginned in the county. A previous report showed that 24,254 bales had been ginned in the county prior to November 1. In the two weeks period from November 1 to November 14, therefore, 12,263 bales were ginned. In the twelve days since November 14, it is believed that fully 7,000 bales were ginned. If this is an approximately correct estimate, fully 43,000 bales have been ginned up to this time.

The crop last year totaled more than 46,000 bales, but up to November 14 last year only 18,240 bales had been ginned.

Harp Singers Met In Tahoka Sunday

The Sacred Harp Singing Convention meeting in the high school auditorium here last Sunday was only fairly well attended. Those present report some very fine old-time music.

The next convention will be held at Grassland in March.

H. M. McEachern, superintendent of the Grassland public school, is the president of the organization.

Myrtle Cooper Was Married Recently

Members of the family and friends here learned late last week that Miss Myrtle Cooper, proprietor of the Co-Ed Beauty Shoppe, and Mr. Harold Doolin, cotton seed inspector and cleaner, had married on the preceding Sunday down about Coleman. The marriage did not become known here until after Mrs. Doolin's return to Tahoka on Wednesday.

Mr. Doolin came up Saturday afternoon and the couple left that night for Calvert, where Mr. Doolin is temporarily engaged in the pursuit of his vocation, which necessarily takes him from place to place. He was associated with J. B. Oliver in this business here recently.

The Co-Ed Beauty Shoppe is now being operated for Mrs. Doolin by Mrs. Cubana Wells.

LIT MOORE UNDERGOES MAJOR SURGERY

Lit Moore of the Lakeview community underwent a major operation on Wednesday of last week in a hospital in Wichita, Kansas, according to his son, Jay Moore, who was here Monday. He had written home that the operation seemed to have been entirely successful, but that it would be necessary for him to remain in the hospital a month.

Mr. Moore had not been well for two years and he went to the Wichita institution on Monday of last week for a diagnosis of his trouble. It was found that he was suffering from intestinal adhesions, his son Jay reports.

OPENS IMPLEMENT OFFICE

The Lagrone Implement Company opened its place of business in the Wells building here Wednesday. They will handle tractors principally.

H. T. "Bud" Ellis is in charge of the business here.

Mr. Lagrone resides at O'Donnell and has a business there also.

Annual Roll Call Goes Over Top

The Red Cross Roll Call is going over the top in a fine way, according to A. L. Lockwood, the chairman. There were three points in the county which he had not heard from Wednesday morning, but contributions from other places in the county had boosted the total almost up to the county's quota, which is $400.00.

Mr. Lockwood is anxious, however, that the county shall exceed its quota this year, since no roll call was conducted in this county last year.

Herman Turner Is Buried Here

Funeral services for Herman Turner of Lubbock, son of R. H. Turner of this city and himself a former citizen and business man here, were held at the Baptist Church last Friday afternoon. Rev. George A. Dale officiating. Burial was in the Tahoka cemetery under the direction of the Harris Funeral Home.

Herman died of acute indigestion very suddenly and unexpectedly in his room in a hotel in Lubbock between seven and eight o'clock Thursday night. About thirty minutes before his death he became ill at the Broadway Barber Shop of which he was one of the proprietors and where he was working. Stating that he was sick, he asked his brother Emory Turner, to finish shaving the man in his chair and went out and sat down on the running board of his car parked near by. It was soon discovered that he was very sick and he was taken hurriedly to his room and a physician summoned. He lived only a few moments after the physician arrived. In the meantime his fiancée had heard of his illness and arrived before the physician came. Other friends arrived about the time of his death.

Herman Turner was born at Kirk in Limestone county on October 23, 1899, and was therefore just a little more than 37 years old. While yet a small child, his parents removed to Taylor county, settling near Tye. Later they moved to Coke county, buying a farm near Bronte. For two or three years they resided in Brownwood, where Herman was a student in Howard Payne College. They came to Tahoka in 1920, where Herman engaged in the grocery business with his father. They continued to conduct this business until about 1929. Since that time Herman has been traveling for a barber supply house or has been engaged in the vocation of a barber himself.

His mother died in 1923 but he left surviving him his father and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Turner, one brother, Emory Turner of Lubbock, a half brother, Marvin Davis of Bronte, and a sister who is confined in the State Hospital at Wichita Falls.

He and his father having the same birthday, he had the habit of spending the day with his father and did so on the occasion of their last birthday a few weeks ago. He had many friends here who deeply deplore his unexpected and untimely death.

By invitation the ladies quartet of the Baptist Church here sang at regular service of the First Baptist Church in Lubbock Sunday night. The quartet is composed of Mmes. R. C. Wells, K. R. Durham, E. C. Rogers, and H. P. Cavness.

This quartet has won considerable renown and has been called upon to sing at many Baptist gatherings in this part of the state. They will sing at the state B.T.U. convention in Abilene this week.

The ladies were accompanied to Lubbock by their husbands and by Mrs. Wiley Fortenberry.

Now that Thanksgiving is past, Christmas is the next holiday station down the road. And it's just 28 days till Christmas!

SPRUIELLS ARE VICTIMS OF FIRE

Miss Madeline Stiles Of Southland Dies Following Burns Received Near Here Saturday

Victim of a gasoline stove explosion shortly before 11 o'clock last Saturday morning in the home of R. D. Spruiell two miles northwest of Tahoka, Miss Madeline Stiles of Southland, 17, who was visiting in the Spruiell home, died of her burns at about eight o'clock that night. Miss Geneva Spruiell, 18, sustained serious burns on the legs and has since been in a critical condition, though it is now believed that she will survive. Little Franklin D., nine months old, in his mother's arms, also suffered very severe burns about the head and hands, and Mrs. Spruiell, the mother, 41, was less seriously burned on the arms.

The four room house in which the family lived was completely destroyed by fire.

Immediately after the accident, the victims were rushed to Tahoka, where their wounds were treated by Dr. L. E. Turrentine, and were then taken to the Lubbock Sanitarium for further treatment.

It was in the sanitarium that Miss Stiles died that night. The remains were taken to the family home in the Hackberry community between Southland and Post and funeral services were held in the church there Sunday afternoon. Burial was at Southland. Miss Stiles was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Stiles, and the family is well known throughout the eastern part of this county.

The stove which exploded was a gasoline heater. It apparently had not been working just right and Mrs. Spruiell is said to have remarked a few moments before the fatal explosion, "If this thing was to explode, we would all burn up." Almost immediately afterwards, it did explode, hurling flaming gasoline in every direction. Mrs. Spruiell succeeded in smothering out the flames that had enveloped her and the baby, though her clothing was badly burned.

In the meantime, Miss Geneva Spruiell, her dress flaming, ran to a bed and succeeded in extinguishing the flames with a blanket, and then she threw a quilt about the body of Miss Stiles, whose clothing had been almost completely consumed by the fire.

A wave of horror and sympathy swept our entire town and community as news of the tragedy spread. Friends and neighbors have made a nice contribution for the benefit of the stricken family.

Issue Call For New C. C. C. Applicants

Additional CCC camp enrollees will be accepted for work on Federal projects in January. Mrs. Lois Daniel, Lynn county case worker, announces, and local men who can meet the requirements may procure this type of employment.

All who are interested should get in touch with the local relief office at an early date.

BAPTIST LADIES QUARTET SING IN LUBBOCK

By invitation the ladies quartet of the Baptist Church here sang at regular service of the First Baptist Church in Lubbock Sunday night. The quartet is composed of Mmes. R. C. Wells, K. R. Durham, E. C. Rogers, and H. P. Cavness.

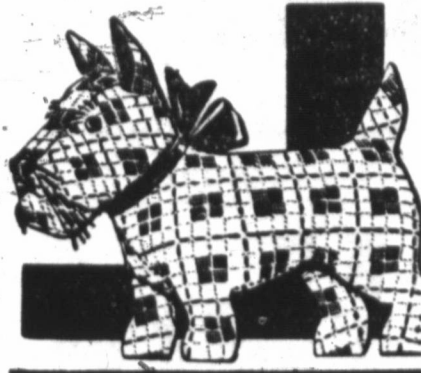

This quartet has won considerable renown and has been called upon to sing at many Baptist gatherings in this part of the state. They will sing at the state B.T.U. convention in Abilene this week.

Household Questions

If cinnamon toast is served frequently, it pays to mix some cinnamon and sugar and keep it in a shaker so that it can be used quickly.

To prevent the delivery boy from tracking dirt across the kitchen floor place a shelf at the back door on which he can place packages.

Before storing winter cabbage wrap each head in an old newspaper. This will keep the cabbage crisp and green much longer.

A teaspoon of granulated sugar added to the water in which turnips are boiled, removes the strong turnip taste some object to.

Now Ease Neuritis Pains Fast

For Amazingly Quick Relief
Get Genuine Bayer Aspirin

If you suffer from pains of neuritis what you want is quick relief. Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets give quick relief, for one reason, because they dissolve or disintegrate almost instantly they touch moisture. (Note illustration above.)

Hence—when you take a real Bayer Aspirin tablet it starts to dissolve almost as quickly as you swallow it. And thus is ready to start working almost instantly—headaches, neuralgia and neuritis pains start easing almost at once.

That's why millions never ask for aspirin by the name aspirin alone when they buy, but always say "BAYER ASPIRIN" and see that they get it.

Try it. You'll say it's marvelous.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Italy and Germany Recognize Insurgent Regime in Spain —Anti-Communist Pact Angers Russia—Tugwell Resigns—President on Unemployment.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

MUSSOLINI and Hitler threw Europe into spasms of alarm by suddenly calling into session the ministerial councils of Italy and Germany and causing them to recognize formally the Fascist government of Gen. Francisco Franco as the legal government of war-torn Spain. It was taken for granted that Austria and Hungary would follow suit. Maj. Ramon Franco, brother of the Spanish insurgent chieftain, had been in Rome and probably informed Il Duce that the general, whose attacks on Madrid were meeting with unexpected resistance, might lose the war unless he were given active support by the nations that sympathized with his cause. Mussolini and Hitler did not immediately announce that they would quit the international agreement for intervention in Spain, but it was believed they would soon be shipping munitions to Franco's armies. They withdrew their diplomatic representatives from Madrid and arranged to send others to the rebel government.

Gen. Franco

Great Britain and Russia were stunned by the action of the two dictators and cabinet meetings were hurriedly called. The British are determined not to be drawn into the Communist-Fascist conflict but they believe that Italy and Germany, especially the former, have designs in the Mediterranean that would peril Britain's seaway to the Orient and are preparing to meet any such threat. Russia's reaction was awaited breathlessly, and the soviet government was being provoked still further by the fact that General Franco declared a blockade of the port of Barcelona, capital of the almost independent province of Catalonia. This move certainly was made to stop the landing of munitions and food from Russia destined for the Spanish loyalist forces. England, France and other nations were greatly concerned over the blockade, for the port is largely used by their shipping. The Spanish rebels have created a strongly fortified port at Palma on the island of Mallorca that can be used as a base for bombardment of Barcelona from the sea. Blockading vessels may be supplied by Portugal, which warned neutral shipping to avoid the Barcelona port, though Lisbon had not yet formally recognized Franco's government.

An almost humorous note came from Geneva where League of Nations observers asserted that the Italo-German recognition of the Spanish insurgents violated Article 10 of the covenant which demands that league members respect "territorial integrity and the existing political independence of all members of the league." They seem to have forgotten how the league abandoned Manchuria to Japan and Ethiopia to Italy not so long ago.

The Italian grand council, with Mussolini presiding, voted to support the Duce's policies by giving him more airplanes, more guns, more warships and more men. It was frankly stated that the reason for this was the threatening international situation. Italian opinion was that if France joined Russia in aiding the formation of a radical Spanish government with its capital at Barcelona—in event that Madrid fell to the Fascists—there would be great danger of general war.

COMPLICATING the already complex European situation and directly threatening war is the alleged fact that Germany and Japan have united to fight the spread of communism, and that their pact is expected to be adhered to by Italy and perhaps various central European nations. This is of course directed mainly against soviet Russia, and Moscow is actively aware of the menace. It is understood that the agreement provides that Germany and Japan shall keep strong military forces in East Prussia and Manchukuo respectively; that the two nations shall exchange military information and orders, and that in certain contingencies Germany shall supply Japan with war materials.

An immediate source of friction between Germany and Russia is the arrest of 23 Germans in Moscow and Leningrad under charges of plotting to steal secret military information, to wreck industrial plants and to kill government leaders. Berlin protested the arrests but the soviet officials replied that all formalities governing such cases had been observed and that several of the prisoners had confessed their guilt. The German propaganda ministry said the story of the German-Japanese agreement, which came from Moscow, was a "periodic lie" which this time was intended to sidetrack German protests against the arrests.

THAT sea level ship canal across Florida from the Atlantic to the Gulf, condemned by the army engineers' board as not justified, started by the New Deal and stopped when congress refused to appropriate more funds, probably will now be pushed on to completion. The army engineers, having been asked by the President for a revision report, have submitted one holding that the project would be justified "in the public interest"—an absolute reversal of opinion. The board also found that the canal would cost only $162,985,000, instead of $223,440,000, as estimated on December 30, 1933, when material costs were substantially lower than they now are. So far the sum of $5,400,000 has been spent on the project.

REXFORD GUY TUGWELL, known as the No. 1 brain-truster, has resigned from his post as undersecretary of agriculture and resettlement administrator and accepted the executive vice presidency of the American Molasses company, of which another brain-truster, Charles W. Taussig, is president, and a third, A. A. Berle, Jr., is a director. In accepting the resignation the President wrote to Mr. Tugwell: "Later on I fully expect to ask you to come back to render additional service." Mr. Tugwell will serve on a special committee of 38 just appointed by the President to study the farm tenancy problem. The new resettlement administrator is W. W. Alexander, who has been first assistant.

R. G. Tugwell

John G. Winant, who resigned as head of the social security board to take part in the Presidential election campaign, has resumed that position at the urgent request of Mr. Roosevelt and is directing the big task of enrolling the future old age pensioners.

SAILING from Charleston aboard the cruiser Indianapolis for Buenos Aires and the Pan-American peace conference, President Roosevelt directed the release of a statement in which he announced that the government will continue to spend money on a work relief program until July 1, 1938 at least. It is estimated that congress will be asked to appropriate as much as $1,500,000,000 for relief in the next session.

Although he professed himself gratified at the foundation of the automobile business in these United States are the folks with less than $2,000 a year. Would you have thought it? This country makes most of the world's motor cars; we have several times as many cars as all the rest of the world together and last year the whole world turned out 5,100,000 cars and more than four-fifths of them. Three times as many automobiles here are owned by families under a thousand dollars a year income as those whose incomes goes over $3,000. We think of the big money folks having all the cars, but actually only ten per cent of America's motots are owned by families with more than $3,000 a year. These are facts from Secretary Roper's commerce department; and they are accurate. And that shows who pays the gasoline taxes, doesn't it? American car owners pay eight hundred million dollars a year in gas taxes, the biggest flood of sales taxes in the world. Actually, worked out to the limit every second of the day and night federal and state treasuries are getting $25.37 from gas taxes; a never ending stream of money from the lower income brackets. Out of every $3.50 paid to the average gas station a dollar is for taxes.

WHY OWN THE CARS?
Secretary of Commerce Roper tells me that the foundation of the automobile business in these United States are the folks with less than $2,000 a year. Would you have thought it? CUT OUT THE POMP
The city of Washington is in a state of excitement over President Roosevelt's apparent intention to do away with the pomp and pageantry of the inaugural ceremony and reduce the matter to Jeffersonian simplicity. There has been built up in this city an idea that a President cannot be inaugurated without an all-day parade and tremendous social events at night. The merchants reap a harvest; so also the hotels, especially those along the line of march. Faithful adherents of the President like to take part in the event and marching clubs are organized, coming here by expensive special trains from every state. The army contributes a regiment or two, the West Point and Annapolis cadets come along at great expense to the taxpayers and all in all inauguration bills mount to stupendous figures.

It was not always thus. Jefferson mounted a horse which loped up Pennsylvania avenue to the east front of the Capitol, where Jefferson tied it to a post, went in, took the oath of office from the Chief Justice and rode back again, which is about the simplest oath-taking by any President except the kerosene lamp oath by Coolidge—administered by his father when they heard of the death of Harding.

Business Opens Money Drawers

Wage Boosts and Extra Dividends Herald Opening of Era of Prosperity

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON.—Well, there was no more indication of this financial cloudburst than there was of the 29,000,000 Roosevelt popular vote. We all of us had an idea that big business would loosen up and spend its cash just as soon as it saw it was useless to try to put on a poor face and blame the New Deal for alleged hard times. In fact I gave you a hint of that in this column a few weeks ago—but did anybody dream that the leaders would open their cash drawers and scatter millions of extra dividends and increased wages as they have done?

This year will be the best dividend year the country has experienced since 1929, the boom year of the Hoover administration. Dividends this year will be approximately three billion dollars.

Wages have started upward in the steel and in many other industries and in certain specific corporations which refused any longer to keep down workmen's pay on the ground that "they didn't know what the government was doing to."

One of the most tremendous hand-outs is that of General Motors, whose head-man, Alfred Sloan, Jr., during the campaign, told his stockholders that Roosevelt "retarded recovery." Before the votes were all counted, Chairman Sloan announced an extra dividend to his stockholders and raised wages, declaring that the ten previous months were the best ever. Among those receiving this largess was one of the Dupont companies,—it got about $15,000,000 extra.

Probably the administration felt that this burst of news on industrial prosperity and cash distribution merited something agricultural. The Department of Agriculture has announced, therefore, that farm families will have more cash to spend on living costs next year. The smart boys in that department figure the American farmers' gross cash income from 1936 operations will be seven billion eight hundred fifty thousand dollars ($7,850,000,000). It would be interesting for farmers to check up and see what happens. The aforesaid smart economists say they believe farmers will have more cash for household operation, education, medical care, and clothes. Oddly enough, the upward trend in farm income which started in 1933, continued through this year in spite of the drouth. These things all go a long way to dispel the old Mark Hanna idea that prosperity and the Republican party go hand in hand.

Then what? Anything can happen. In a sense, the G. O. P. is better off than the Democratic party, because right now there really isn't any Democratic party. It is Roosevelt's Party,—Progressives, Liberals, youngsters, political adventurers, Crusaders, Good Neighbor Leaguers, and what not. They voted almost solidly in that 29,000,000 landslide for Roosevelt—not for the party. And there is no one right now who can carry on the Roosevelt idealism but Roosevelt. So, unless the Roosevelt party forces Roosevelt to do what even George Washington refused to do—accept a third term—there is going to be an interesting set of maneuvers by the second string Democrats to capture the next nomination.

Meantime, the Republicans have good leadership which they failed to utilize this time. They let political tricksters fool them into thinking they could pick an unknown and build him up by advertising. The Republicans have Senator McNary of Oregon; they have Vandenberg of Michigan. Both of these men lived through the Democratic landslide and anyone who can do that strikes me as being politically good.

I have heard that Henry Wallace, secretary of agriculture, is the administration's favorite. I do not know whether it is true or not—but if Henry Wallace is going to be put forward as a crown prince he will have his hands full, because if the next four years develops the same kind of political events that other second terms have developed, you will see the crown prince slaughtered by a field of ambitious contestants. Labor leaders are in for ambitious doings; you will see John Lewis, the shaggy haired leader of the Mine Workers pulling strings for bigger things than mere labor leadership. You will see, too, the LaFollette boys in Wisconsin strive for a place in national leadership; and there are leaders of a score of other elements in the Roosevelt army all of which will come rushing forward about two and a half years from now. Roosevelt will attend to his job as President; and I think it will be difficult to detect him doing a thing that will look like a political move. I imagine though, that his close associates will see to it that leadership does not go to any conservative Democrat—like Byrd of Virginia.

son tied it to a post, went in, took the oath of office from the Chief Justice and rode back again, which is about the simplest oath-taking by any President except the kerosene lamp oath by Coolidge—administered by his father when they heard of the death of Harding.

I have an idea that Roosevelt plans something just as simple as Jefferson's. It would be just like Roosevelt to go back to first principles and reduce the inaugural ceremony merely to a ride to the Capitol, to take the oath and inform the people of his program in a second inaugural address as epochal as the famous Lincoln second inaugural.

Yet millions of New Dealers want to be here to celebrate. It may be that there will be a civic celebration to give these enthusiasts their chance to take part in an event they brought about with all their hearts.

COOL TO AAA
There seems to be marked coolness on the part of the administration toward the outlawed AAA; yet representatives of several hundred thousand farmers demand a re-enactment of the production-control features of the Agricultural Adjustment Act which went out the window when the Supreme Court cracked down. I haven't a very clear idea just yet as to what the administration wants, except that it promises strong federal control of crops with the object of removing that always-troublesome surplus which keeps down prices. The administration hasn't yet recovered from the Supreme Court shock and just doesn't want to go marching up the court house door only to get its face pushed in all over again by the same set of judges. This crop insurance idea, while not quite as productive of checks, seems to be good enough for the administration at the present time—and yet, I wouldn't risk too large a wager on it.

G. O. P. NOT DEAD
I am not one of those who believes the Republican party is dead. No organization with 17,000,000 voters is dead. It is no deader than the Democratic party of the old days which was a minority affair continuously from the Civil war days to the time of Cleveland, and after that to Wilson (who was a minority President himself first term); and after that to Roosevelt.

But now the Democratic party is a tremendous majority; not only in the electoral college, but in the senate and house and in a smaller way among the governors. There will be seventy-five Democrats and seventeen Republicans in the senate. Nothing quite like it since the Grant administration when the majority was the other way: 69 Republicans and 11 Democrats. The next house has 334 Democrats and 89 Republicans, who have only two more than is necessary to force a roll call vote. In this tremendous majority, which I believe will be almost entirely a pro-Roosevelt Democratic body, the President will be able to enact his perfected reform measures in the first two years of his second term.

Then what? Anything can happen. In a sense, the G. O. P. is better off than the Democratic party, because right now there really isn't any Democratic party. It is Roosevelt's Party,—Progressives, Liberals, youngsters, political adventurers, Crusaders, Good Neighbor Leaguers, and what not. ## CHAPTER XIII—Continued

He paused, breaking the passion engendered by his hot words, and the heat went out of him before he said: "I ought not have done that. I reckon it just kind of did itself. But I meant my words."

He stepped down from the porch and walked with long fast strides across the yard to the paling fence where his mule was tied. He mounted in one long rhythmic leap, and loped down the creek out of sight while Cynthia stood with her stupefaction by the kitchen door whither she had retreated. Then she felt weak in an unfamiliar world, and she ran into the weaving-room and threw herself upon a pile of raw wool and for the second time in the same day she wept.

"Why did he have to come today?" When Sparrel came in late from the trip to town he found Cynthia waiting his supper as Julia had always done. He also observed that she looked weary and sad and that her eyes were red. He talked more than usual to her, complimenting her cooking, telling her of the journey, of Jesse's room. Then he went to his desk by the big fireplace, and took from his pocket a large envelope and began to study it. "Reuben's father, sent the deeds and the calculations," he said.

CHAPTER XIV

Cynthia had often in these months contrasted her father with Suelenberger. She never got it formulated into a neat and satisfactory proposition that could be tied up in a packet and laid away. It was elusive as human personality and subtle as the involuntary response of pleasure or distaste to another human being. Sparrel, honest in himself and generous in assuming the same qualities in other people, inspired instantly a sense of security and faith in the rightness of things; like the jutting Pinnacle on his place, Suelenberger, with all his good speech and manners, left an impression of uncertainty and suggested that things which should be assumed as ordered and fixed were precarious and sinister; like a pair of fox eyes discovered focused upon you in a clump of bushes.

So it was with a quickened sense that she heard Sparrel saying to Suelenberger that the surveyors had got the land mapped and calculated and the deeds made out ready to sign.

"So they're all done, are they? That's good." "All complete they are, except the place where the terms of sale are put down, it's left blank for us to fill in."

"All right. How much was there of it?" "They figured the whole place has six thousand two hundred and ten acres, more or less."

"How much in my part?" Suelenberger asked. "I haven't looked at that part yet," Sparrel said.

"Well, you give me the papers and I'll go over them today and we'll sign them up." Sparrel handed him the documents. In the evening after supper he sat with Sparrel in the big kitchen by the smoldering logs.

"They did a good piece of work, and clear and all there. He figures there are four thousand two hundred and fifty-one acres in the strip I bought," Suelenberger said.

"I calculated there'd be around four thousand acres more or less," Sparrel said. "It takes a sight of ground to fill up the space between Gannon, Wolfpen Ridge, and the Big Sandy, just on a surveyor's level measurement, and I reckon it'd about double if you measured the ground itself."

"You couldn't measure that way, and anyway the trees I am buying are perpendicular and you can't have any more of them on a hillside than in a flat, if as many."

"Yes, that's what Reuben Warren tried to explain. I don't see it, but it is a way of selling and it's all right." "Warren has left blank a space for writing in the contract, so I suppose we might as well begin to talk details of settlement," Suelenberger said.

"Yes," Sparrel said. "Four thousand two hundred and fifty-one acres at five dollars an acre would be, let's see, five ones are five, five fives are twenty-five . . . twenty thousand two hundred and fifty-five dollars, I make it."

"Twenty-one thousand two hundred and fifty-five dollars," Sparrel said. "one to carry."

"So it is. Twenty-one thousand two hundred and fifty-five dollars, but it's about four thousand too much. The surveyor's bill is five hundred and thirty dollars."

Sparrel offered no comment. "Now about the terms of the contract," Suelenberger said. "On sales like this it is customary to pay so much down and agree on a way of carrying the balance. I take it that is all right with you?" "I reckon that's all right," Sparrel said.

"I suppose then that we agree on this: I'll arrange to pay you, say, forty-five hundred dollars now, twenty-five hundred about the first of the year, and the balance when I get the logs down the river to the mills?" "I reckon if that's the way you do in big deals like this, it will be all right. We'll just write in that agreement," Sparrel said.

"I'll have to go down the river in a few days," Suelenberger said, "and if we could go over to Pikeville together we could have it witnessed and notarized, and I'll draw a check on the Catlettsburg bank for the amount. I'll pay Warren while I'm down there."

Cynthia had finished her work, and she stole quietly out of the kitchen and into Julia's room and sat down in Julia's chair by the window to look down the hollow in the dark as Julia had so often done, thinking "So the sale ends and all the months since April have gone by and the menfolk write what they're supposed to write to make it on paper. They're always putting things down on paper as if that made it any different, and then they forget about what it really is."

"And Mother lies there on the shelf with Saul and Barton and the rest; where the stars are dim tonight, and across the ridge are all the men for cutting down the trees to float away when spring comes, the way Reuben Wolfpen has just become a place for a body to float away from and not live in. Reuben and Jesse and Mother and the land and the trees, maybe me, I could float away now and not miss things so much."

At the end of the week, Sparrel rode with Suelenberger over to town to sign the papers and file them with the county recorder. He brought back word from Jesse. He was proud of his son in the law for he was doing well, his heart was in his work, and he was aglow with his young enthusiasm and there was an inspired look in his eyes. Tandy Morgan, large, jovial, easy-going Tandy had praised Jesse to Sparrel. "That boy of yours has got a head on him, Sparrel. He beats all I ever saw the way he takes to the law. I'm going to take him into court to help me with cases, come next term." Sparrel liked that, and told it to Cynthia when he returned.

"I always knew Jesse would do well at whatever he was minded to follow," Cynthia said.

"They say the school is doing right well this term under the new principal. I was just thinking," Sparrel said, "you might just as well as not go over and get in the second term."

"No, I can't this year now," Cynthia said. "We could get a woman to come in now," Sparrel said.

"I don't fancy a strange person taking over the house. There's always been a Pattern woman to do the woman's part of the house. I don't think Mother would want Amy Wooton or somebody messing around her closets and beds and kitchen and smoke-house and fruit shelves and milk cellar. It's too soon, yet. Maybe next year with Jasper getting married and all."

"You're the doctor," he said. "I read the books on the shelf and the papers that come. And, anyway, I am about of the mind that to run a house like this the way Mother did it is just as good as the book learning over at town."

"Unless you have a real turn for books." "It takes a real turn for a house, too."

Sparrel left it there, glad of her pride in the house. He took the bank book from his pocket and held it near the light for a long time. "That looks pretty good, I reckon."

Cynthia examined the single entry of $4,500 in the neat banker's hand. "Is that all there is to it?" she exclaimed.

"That's all." She could not somehow get used to it. Through the days it moved in and out of her thought.

"Four figures in a little thin scrap of a book. That's all there is to it. Four figures in ink. It don't seem right. The Pattern land sold a bunch of strange men from down the river in here chopping down the place, everything changed right around until a body don't know whether she is living on Wolfpen or in a lumber camp, and all it matters to the menfolk is some scratches on a thin little scrap of a book with a brown back to it."

Sparrel was not so busy at the mill after early November. He went less often to the logging camp and found more content in being near the house. He seemed to her more like the Sparrel of a year ago when the new mill was being planned, only he was graver now. He was doing things that gave a satisfaction deeper than the physical act of doing. He spent an entire day going over the loom, replacing and tightening loose threads, and greasing the threads. He pegged the boards in the floor which had come loose. He brought saved lumber from the mill and built the new row of shelves in the smoke-house. A little shyly he gathered up the seeds from Julia's flowers and put them in labeled jars as she had always done, saying to Cynthia:

"I reckon we'd better put these away for seed. It wouldn't seem natural not to have the flowers around the place."

Then he gave the garden its coat of cow dung and its fall plowing, turning it carefully in deep narrow furrows and harrowing it until it lay soft, mel low and without clods. And so he worked about the place for many days until Cynthia thought for a moment that past days of peace had returned to Wolfpen.

It was only for a moment. Then Abrial came at the end of a wet and misty afternoon, out of breath with running, hearing the news about Doug. Sparrel was in the medicine-room behind the chimney. Cynthia was in the kitchen listening.

The lumbering had moved relentlessly up the Dry Creek hollow. As the great trees fell, they were collected and dragged down to the creek by the mules and the yoked oxen. Now, at the end of November, they were far up into the narrow portion of the hollow and beyond the floating capacity of the creek. Millens constructed a narrow tram road around the rim of the hollow to carry the logs to the dam at Gannon Creek. They were sank down from the hill to the rude platform and there rolled onto the log trucks. The track sloped rather sharply down the hollow, giving to the trucks considerable speed under their own momentum. At the last bend opening into the mouth of the hollow at Gannon, the tracks curved abruptly and plunged down the slope to the dam. One man rode at the end of each truck to apply the brakes and bring the load of three logs to a halt at the collecting point. The men grew reckless and increased the speed. They drank. They laid bets against a record speed over the course. They boasted against one another of going around the curve and down the long last slope without touching the brakes.

Doug had grown rash in their company. He talked more and bolder. He drank with them from the jug behind the bushes. That afternoon he pushed the wood blocks from their place under the wheels of the loaded truck and gave it a sharp urge with the crowbar. Standing on the narrow platform by the brake, he waved his hat at the lumbermen, and as the load of logs gathered speed he shouted, "This'll be a record." The two logs on the bottom were thick and very heavy, the third and top one was thin, not ~~fitting~~ fit of little value. Doug held to it, letting the truck go its way untouched by the brake.

Abrial and the men at the dam heard the uncommon rumble of the truck. Doug came furiously into sight around the bend, preceded by the roar of the wheels on the infernal tracks.

"It's Doug Mason. He's gone plumb crazy," Abrial said. "While he was yet speaking, the heavy load struck a weak joint in the wooden rails in the middle of the curve and plunged down the foot of the hill to the creek bank."

They rolled the worthless log from his torn body and carried him bleeding to the camp. Sparrel must hurry. "There was nothing much Sparrel could do for the left hand, flattened and punctured, with the white broken bones, hanging by a single strip of skin at the wrist. The left eye was struck too hard by the heavy links of the log chain, and was no longer an eye."

Sparrel did well by him with his turpentine and salve and castile soap. When the worst of pain had passed they carried him out of the hunk in the lumber camp to his own house. A moan came sometimes from his lips out of his control. He would twitch the handless stump of his arm, his teeth grinding, and stare at the blank wall with a bitter eye.

His mother, hobbling about on her poor legs, and his sister Hessie did the weeping.

Cynthia, preparing things to bear to the Masons, riding down Wolfpen and Gannon Creek with them on the Finemore, kept thinking over and over "Worrying and regretting are what you can't help and they don't make things a bit different. But a body can't hardly see why things in the world can be the way they sometimes are. Seems like there has been a plague on this year that just hangs around Dry Creek Hollow waiting to reach out and do everybody an ill turn. Like the hills couldn't have all the fine trees cut down without cutting down people, too. Only why need it be poor Doug; if it had to be somebody, it might have been . . . but a body oughtn't to say that, I don't reckon, it being the Lord's business and not any mortal's. But a body can't hardly help thinking. I'm downright sorry about Doug. The selfish thoughts that keep bobbing up: being glad I told Doug I didn't love him to marry him or anything before this happened to him. I couldn't ever have him and he sure would have had it in his own mind that I wouldn't just because he was named so bad. But that's not so because if I would have had him before it wouldn't make a difference now. That's a selfish way to be thinking to be finding something to be glad for yourself for. It's an awful pity. It's that man and the lumbering and the bad reaching in. Like the trees were a family avenging itself for a hurt done to it."

She lifted her eyes from the road for one instant to see the dam at Dry Creek and the growing mountain of logs in the barren hollow waiting for the rains. December was dreary and full of heaviness. It was as if the sorrow for Doug Mason had taken visible form over the house. Day after day the thick clouds lay on the hills.

The bodies of the trees were cold and black with the damp, the upper branches absorbed in the low clouds. The wood-smoke from the chimney was pushed back into the yard with the smell of the wet wood-lot and the rotting leaves. At the barn the corn-crib smelled of damp cobs and the mice, and the ammoniac odor from the stable dung was bitter in the nose.

All day long the house was as quiet as death. Suelenberger was sitting down the river somewhere getting ready for the rafts in the spring. Jasper was busy in the hollows and at the barn. Abrial went each day to Dry Creek. Sparrel was at the mill grinding the cornmeal for the winter for himself and the families on the creek. Cynthia found herself some times tiptoeing lest she break the absolute stillness. Then she would become conscious of it and let her heels fall solidly against the floor, move the beds with a screech, and say in a loud voice, "There's nobody asleep here now that I should be sneaking around the place like a ghost. Nobody at least that I can wake with a noise."

She looked out over the barren apple trees watching the mist collect into large drops on the slender twigs and slide down in a slow procession to their tips and then in silver globules to the ground. "They are pretty that way," she thought. "But in December the snow would be better. Snow isn't sad like mist drops. You can hold your face up to the big flakes and watch them slide bumping each other down the sky. They are happy and wonderful where after all their journey they will light. They might fall right on the warm nose of a fox sticking his head to a hole under a rock in the woods. I would float down into the plume of a pine-cone on the hill where the clean smell is. It's not snow, it's nearly a rain, the sun hasn't been out for days and days, and I never saw the place so dreary. And Mother no place where I can see her, and Jesse over at town, and poor Doug! He talked about it being lonesome down there. It never was lonesome here before. The sorry troubles take hold of you like a burr and when I think of him getting into the ground that way under that man's old log truck I have to shudder for it hurts so. It cuts a body to the heart not to be able to do hardly anything for him and Sarah, and it's so dark and dreary in December. I can't even remember hardly how it was in the spring. And Daddy nearly every day down to see about him, and when I ask him how Doug is, always saying, 'Poorly, Cynthia, he's getting well, but he's in bad shape. And he's that proud he won't let anybody see him only me.' Maybe if I went down to the loom and wove a while in stead of looking at the drip, drip, drip in the orchard I could get my mind on something else. I'll think about the look of Reuben when he went away, the shine in his eyes, the . . ."

They were trying days, and they trailed one another through the gloom. Then Jesse came one warm week-end when the wind blew into the hollows and pressed the rain from the clouds, driving them from before the sun. The darkness lifted for a moment, the grass looked up wondering and the birds sang. Jesse was happy. He filled the house with his enthusiasm and good-will. He talked about the law and the lawsuits pending next term of court, of the people and the activity of Pikeville, feeling himself no longer a spectator but a part of it. He described the new brick jail to be built on the lower corner of the court house square, the new Baptist church by the Institute, the general store the George Brothers were putting up, the stone sidewalks being laid all throughout the town and the talk about even lighting up the streets at night. He could see all this progress from Tandy Morgan's office.

It was good to have Jesse come back, but it was somehow different from the way she had imagined it. He was changed and all this talk sounded strange from him. He was already more of the Pikeville lawyer, Cynthia thought, than the boy who set out the plants in the spring and read Black stone haltingly under the haycock. She realized with heartache that even the Jesse of those days existed no longer except in her memory and would return no more to Wolfpen. It was idle to think of it being other wise, and yet the thought of placing Jesse in the vault along with all the other treasured things that had died in that year was full of grief. And the days after he was gone were less happy than before.

Suelenberger and Dry Creek seemed to have conquered and possessed Wolfpen. Suelenberger returned, to his journey down the river. He was still talking about the progress of business minded men who were developing the country—for a profit. For the sensitive everything was going to come along very soon now. Just at the moment things were a little tight because it required a steady outlay of capital to get an operation going and a long time to get returns on it. Vision, cu operation, enterprise were the necessary qualities. A few days later he came up from Dry Creek to the mill where Sparrel was grinding.

"I was wondering whether you couldn't help me out for a few weeks," Suelenberger said in his pleasantest manner.

"What could I do to help you out, Mr. Suelenberger?" "Those fellows are grumbling for their pay again, and the God's truth of it is, Mr. Pattern, that I'm just a little short of cash right at this minute. I was wondering if I couldn't borrow a thousand dollars from you for a short time. I'll give you my personal note for it, and at the end of the month when I go down I'll have Judge Wade of the Catlettsburg bank endorse it if you wish."

"I don't hardly see . . ." "You ought to have interest at six per cent. Say fifteen dollars for the loan. That's the way you make money, by making it work. You let it idle in the bank and the bank ends it out and gets the interest. Just for ninety days and you'll do me a great favor and help my work along."

Sparrel thought it over; the end of May, a thousand dollars, fifteen dollars interest, enough cash for Jasper, a real favor to Suelenberger. "I guess I could spare that to help you out," he said. "And I don't see any cause to bother Judge Wade with it."

"I'm certainly much obliged to you, Mr. Pattern."

Dry Creek kept pushing in like its new owner. Abrial was much engrossed in the technique of lumbering and the prospect of driving a raft in the spring. He could even bring a fleeting moment of cheer into the house when he stood in the middle of the kitchen floor in Cynthia's way, with a broom locked in the back of a chair, swinging it like an oar blade and shouting to his imaginary helper on the raft to shove on the pole and keep the headlogs away from the bank. Then, the stiff curve cleared, he would relax while the raft rode safely on the current, and turn to Cynthia and say, "That's the way to take her around a sharp bend."

"I bet you run right into a sand-bar, Abrial."

"All right, I bet you. What'll you bet?" "Well, how many rafts have you ever run?" Cynthia asked.

"I can take one around any bend in Gannon Creek or the Big Sandy. I learned all about it from Mullens."

Cynthia would carry it on, or she would drop it and be happy for a time in the presence of his energy and his confidence. She lived in the rich world of her imagination, for the most part, above the routine of the house where Julia was not. Soft white fluffs of snow, small hard pellets of ice, the sun and the thaws carried away the colorless days of January. The wind and the rain, the steel freezing enamel on the pear tree, the sun cracking it and dropping it to the ground, brought in February.

In Dry Creek more and ever more logs were piling up, and the rough men were getting more restive in the looms and irritable with one another in the long isolation from a town with good drink and women.

Cynthia could know little about them, but Sparrel was concerned. He mentioned it to Suelenberger who dismissed it with a word. Sparrel said no more, except to himself. "A body hates to see that kind of life in here but it's just the men he brought up from down the river. I don't reckon a little drinking will hurt any man, except it's encouraging some pretty bad characters to make it. I'd hate like anything to see Gannon Creek get a bad name from it. Things are bad enough down below where they come from, killings and then more killings if somebody witnesses against them in court. These feuds already give a black name to a lot bigger country than has title to it. I wouldn't want any of that around here even on Suelenberger's land. Maybe it'll be all right and I'm just touchy about things."

Jewels Become Ill; Must Be Sent to a Gem Doctor

Jewels can become ill like people, but, states a writer in Pearson's Weekly, jewels that have lost their lustre or are otherwise "sick" are seldom discarded. They are sent to a gem doctor. Emeralds, onyx, diamonds and mineral stones in general suffer chiefly from slight surface wounds due to carelessness on the part of their owners. A repolishing is necessary. The doctor fixes the patient in a metal holder called a "dop." He then applies it gently to a rapidly rotating iron wheel or "lap," chared with diamond dust and the stone returns to its former radiance.

No jewels come oftener to the surger's hand than pearls. Lock a pearl away in a safe or deprive it of legitimate exercise, and it becomes sickly looking in no time. But the severest pearl casualties are, curiously enough, caused by diamonds. The Arabs have a legend that the diamond is an angry stone, not to be trusted with other stones, lest it scratch them.

Constipated 30 Years

"For thirty years I had stubborn constipation. Sometimes I did not go for four or five days. I also had awful gas bloating, headaches and pains in the back. Adierika helped right away. Now I eat sausages, bananas, etc., anything I want and never feel better. I sleep soundly all night and enjoy life."

"If you are suffering from constipation, flatulencies, sour stomach, and gas bloating, there is quick relief for you in Adierika. Many report action in thirty minutes after taking just one dose. Adierika gives complete action, cleaning your bowel tract where ordinary laxatives do not even reach."

Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and colic bacilli."

Give your bowels a real cleansing with Adierika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves gas and stubborn constipation. Leading Druggists.

Rotary Meeting Held Wednesday

At the Rotary Club luncheon Wednesday, Frank Hill gave a report of his observations and impressions gained at Austin during the recent called session of the legislature as secretary to Senator G. H. Nelson.

He gave a brief report of the "inside" workings of the legislature. His impressions as to the character and ability of the legislators as a whole was distinctly to their credit.

He also gave a word picture of the magnitude of the state government operating through the many departments there, and also pictured the growth and the present magnitude of the University of Texas.

This was the only talk of the day. Music was given by Miss Marjorie Wells, the Club sweetheart, and several congratulatory letters from other Rotarians in far-away states were read. One came from Mexico. The regular meeting will be on Thursday next week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Knight went up to Lamb county last Sunday to visit friends. They unexpectedly found a great concourse of people gathered in the home of their host, the Jones family, to honor the birthday of Mrs. W. T. Russell, an old-time friend of the Knights in Morris county. Mr. Knight says that it was a wonderfully happy occasion, and he and Mrs. Knight enjoyed the day very much.

Women Who Have Pains Try CARDUI Next Time!

On account of poor nourishment, many women suffer functional pains at certain times, and it is for these that Cardui is offered on the record of the safe relief it has brought and the good it has done in helping to overcome the cause of womanly discomfort. Mrs. Cole Young, of Leesville, La., writes: "I was suffering with irregular... I had quite a lot a pain which made me nervous. I took Cardui and found it helped me in every way, making me regular and stopping the pain. This quieted my nerves, making my health much better."... If Cardui does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

SNUFF!

First you pull that lower lip down, dump in a half can of snuff, and the trouble starts. In short that's the art of dipping. But in the long run there's more to it. The art of talking while dipping is the finest art of this nicotine habit. With the lower lip jammed, one's articulation is not so clear; sorta thick, in other words. Then the timing of talking and spitting is another technique to be looked into.—Jeane Suits in Lockney Beacon.

Hmph! If the Lockney columnist is an expert on snuff dipping, I'm Haille Selassie's bob-tailed lion! To closely observe these snuff dipping critters in their natural habitat, one should go down into the piney woods of East Texas in Henderson county and around Athens. Athens, by the way, is that place that sends so many "snuff and Georgia stock" tenant farmers into West Texas to make a failure of farming, and then go back to the plum thickets cussin' West Texas for being the Sahara of America. In the middle of the 1920's when Ma Ferguson and Dan Moody were running for Governor on the Klu Klux platform, Pa donned his overalls and straw hat and spoke from the town band stand located on the northeast corner of the court house lawn, right next to the municipal horse trough. Twenty thousand East Texas farm people got their bottles (not cans) of "Gal Tobacco" and headed for th' speakin'. As Pa warmed up to his job, the piney woods natives became more enthusiastic. After about an hour's oratin' freely interspersed with hill-country-coon-huntin' yells, mostly inspired by wash-tub "cawn." Jim drew to a close. As he lustily swung his straw hat on his closing phrase, twenty thousand mouths, all loaded with Mr. Garrett's product, opened for a mighty shout, and with the exhalation of 40 thousand lungs, a Gargantuan bellows seemed to raise a heavy dark screen between earth and sun, as the cheerers "phewed" the brown powder from their lower lips. The sun was blotted out for more than two hours, but hasty plying of twenty thousand blunt bladed knives replaced the lost Levi. That was the day that Widow Griggs, the near-sighted old lady who lived nine miles south of town, swore a miracle had come to pass when her white leghorn flock suddenly changed into "Domerneckers."

Post Wins Over Bulldogs, 12 To 0

The Tahoka Bulldogs were losers to Post in the Thanksgiving football game played here Wednesday afternoon. The score was 12 to 0. One touchdown was made by Post in the first quarter and one in the second. This is the last game of the season.

Preceding the game, Miss Doris Laverne Lawler was crowned football Queen of the Tahoka High School. Duchesses were Misses Lottie Jo Townes, Melba Evans, Mary Ellen Conway, and Jerry Jean Simmons.

A good-sized crowd witnessed the coronation and the game that followed.

Ethel Barrymore, veteran stage star who has retired to conduct a school for aspiring young actors, recently chose the Bible as the school's first textbook. The beauty and cadence of Biblical lines, she said, was an ideal test for voice and expression.

The Supreme Court of New York has been asked for a restraining order to prevent the board of education from using public school buses to give free transportation to crippled parochial school children. The order was asked in a suit filed by Joseph Lewis, president of the atheistic Freethinkers of America. Lewis said it violated the state constitution to use public school buses to carry children attending sectarian institutions.

When Michael Cardinal von Faulhaber, Catholic Church leader in Germany, preached in Munich the past fortnight, a great congregation filled the church and crowded the streets outside. They were preparing to demonstrate in honor of the cardinal. Through the crowds, however, went Adolf Hitler's Special Guards. "No ovations," they ordered. "Ovations are forbidden." Catholics and Nazis have been at odds.

Dr. H. L. Smith of the Mayo Clinic has just reported that many persons thought to be epileptics are suffering from nothing more serious than tight collars. Collars pressed tight against sensitive carotid arteries (the source of the head's blood supply) often induce spells of dizziness or unconsciousness, he said.

About 1790 a fan whose conscience troubled him sent the United States Treasury at Washington $5. Ever since then people who have stolen something, committed some crime or neglected to pay their income taxes, have continued to send in "conscience" money, and the so-called "Conscience Fund" has continued to grow. Treasury officials revealed the other day that their books show this fund now totals over $624,113.

STATE HEALTH OFFICER SAYS PREVENTION INTEREST GROWS

Austin, Nov. 25.—"A high standard of community health is the best asset that a state can possess," said Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, in speaking of the progress made in public health education since the first Thanksgiving Day was observed by our forefathers.

"The State of Texas has much to be thankful for in this Centennial Year," he said, "in the steadily increasing interest and cooperation of the people of the State in matters pertaining to sanitation and control of communicable diseases."

"The control of the water and milk supplies, sewage disposal, vaccination against smallpox, immunization against diphtheria, food inspection, housing regulations, and many other measures have been spectacularly successful in reducing the killing power of a number of maladies that formerly took a terrific annual toll."

"Responsibility for success and advancement of a public health program lies not with the health department primarily, but with the people who support and encourage the community effort put forth and who apply in their own individual lives the knowledge which they have acquired."

"It follows that the individual citizen, to reap the benefits of public health administration, must be more concerned about his well-being than he is today. His program should involve a conscientious effort to abide by the living rules prescribed by nature, as well as a clearer conception of the value of a physician's services from a disease prevention standpoint.

"In short, when the private citizen fully appreciates the benefit of public health administration and shows that appreciation by a reasonable personal concern for his own welfare, medicine, surgery, and science generally will be able to do their wonderful work with utmost efficiency."

Boy Scout Headquarters at Washington, D. C., announced last week that more than 25,000 Boy Scouts from all parts of the United States will attend the national jamboree to be held in the capital from June 30 to July 9.

Ralph R. Wechsler of the National Oil Products Company reported the past fortnight on the manufacture of a pure form of vitamin D worth four times its weight in gold. The vitamin is 85,000,000 times more potent than the one established by the U. S. pharmacopoeia, and 25 tons of raw oil are needed to produce one pound of it. One teaspoonful of it has the vitamin value of 210,000 quarts of milk.

THANKSGIVING

We all know the story of the Pilgrims' first Thanksgiving Day. We know that it is from that first festival that we have retained many of our present day Thanksgiving customs, such as that of serving roast turkey as the main dish of a Thanksgiving Day dinner. Even though we Americans have not given the fact much thought, the basis for this Autumn Ceremony came from the Harvest Festivals of old England. It is also known that the early American Indians, especially those inhabiting the Southwest, had their own Thanksgiving festivals and that the turkey occupied a prominent place on their bill of fare.

Although it is true that we have retained some of the customs of this older Thanksgiving Day, we have lost some of its true spirit. We have retained more of its material side than its spiritual aspect. We think of it, in some cases, as a time for family gatherings and these are appropriate Thanksgiving Day celebrations; these gatherings of people so closely bound together by love. There are, however, other ways in which the day is celebrated that are not quite so appropriate. The

LUBBOCK NURSERIES

It is no longer necessary for people living on the Plains of Texas and New Mexico to order fruit trees and ornamental nursery stock from Eastern or Northern states. In the Lubbock Nurseries nearly a quarter million plants were growing this past season. These included practically every variety of roses, flowering shrubs, evergreens, vines, and fruit trees that have proven successful in this high altitude.

In our test grounds we are continually trying out new varieties, many of which are not worth growing in this section. These are discarded and we propagate and grow only those varieties that are proving worth while.

Most people do not realize that only the hardest varieties of fruits and ornamentals will stand up under the rigorous conditions peculiar to our climate and altitude and as you must trust your lawyer or your doctor you must trust your nurseryman.

If you will entrust your order for any kind of nursery stock to us you may rest assured that you will receive only the best and hardest varieties and that while you might be able to buy trees or other stock cheaper from peddlers or Eastern concerns you will never be overcharged and you will always get more than your money's worth from a firm that will be here next year and next year.

We want you to have our price list, and invite you to take advantage of our GET ACQUAINTED OFFER. Send a post card for price list, or if you are a new customer send $1.00 and we will send you our price list and 10 well rooted, strong, everblooming roses, any color. ALL PREPAID.

Two Everblooming Roses FREE!

In Order To Introduce Our— Granular Ammo-Phos High Analysis FERTILIZER

We will send to any address in West Texas or New Mexico a 10 pound package of this lawn, flower and garden fertilizer at the regular price of $1.00, and in addition we will send FREE two well-rooted, two year, ever-blooming roses, any color. All prepaid.

Granular AMMO-PHOS High Analysis Fertilizers are especially prepared to correct the plant food deficiencies of the soils of the Western Plains, and when you apply this fertilizer you are giving your plants the foods which are deficient in your soil. In this manner you are insuring a maximum of growth and quality of plants.

As the name implies, Granular AMMO-PHOS Fertilizers are granular in structure and easy to apply. They contain a high percentage of plant food—two to four times as much as ordinary fertilizer—and sell at approximately the same price.

According to Bulletin No. 517 of the Texas A. & M. College, this fertilizer is valued at more than double ordinary 4-12-4 FERTILIZER.

Send $1.00 today for a regular 10 lb. package of AMMO-PHOS and receive FREE two strong, healthy ever-blooming roses, all prepaid to your P. O. State color desired.

true spirit of reverence and the custom of giving thanks to our Heavenly Father for the year's blessings seem to have been forgotten. The more worldly entertainments have taken the place of these things that should rightfully fill the day. It would be well if we would recapture some of the old-time Thanksgiving Spirit and make Thanksgiving Day a day of love, joy and happiness.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The first meeting of the Home Economics Club was held on last Friday, Nov. 20, at 7 o'clock. President Jo Alice Brooks presided over a group of fifteen girls. Plans were discussed for the affiliation of the Club with the State Home Economics Clubs. The program for the year was read and the state creed was set up for adoption. A committee consisting of Misses Altha Jennings, Flay Perkins, and Mary Bland Wells was selected to find a suitable name for the club.

By popular vote the Club chose to meet twice each month in the second and fourth weeks. These meetings will be held on Tuesday nights at 7 o'clock in the High School auditorium.

Another meeting will be held the second week in December.

SPORTS NEWS

After having on Wednesday, Nov. 18, defeated the Jackrabbits of Ralls by a 14-2 count, the Bulldogs will tangle with the Post Antelopes Wednesday of this week. This game marks the end as well as the climax of the football season. This last game was designated as Homecoming, and former lettermen were guests of Coach Walker.

The voting for Queen brought in $98.64, which will be used to buy sweaters for this year's lettermen.

SEVENTH GRADE REPORT

The Seventh Grade held a meeting last Friday morning, Nov. 20, at 8:30. Talks were given by Misses Hayes and Dockray. Business matters were discussed and plans were made for improvement of the class. Some interesting themes were written on class improvement.

CHAPEL PROGRAMS

As a reward for having won the election of their candidate for football Queen, the Sophomore Class is being allowed to give the Chapel Program on Wednesday, Nov. 25. According to their sponsor Mr. Ayers a Pep Rally is being planned. This will be a very appropriate antecedent for the other events of the day. It is hoped that all students will be present and get plenty of pep for the football game that is to be played Wednesday afternoon.

FRESHMAN REPORT

The Freshman Class is very glad to have more of the students back in school. Some of our students have been out on account of illness. We are expecting to have a very good time during the Holidays. Some of us plan to be out of town, while others are going to remain at home and have a "big" dinner.

The Chapel period on last Wednesday, Nov. 18, was devoted to pep and campaign speeches for the various candidates by the various campaign managers. The speeches and speakers proved to be both entertaining and interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Nance of Dallas are here spending the Thanksgiving holidays with Mrs. Nance's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Knight. They came Wednesday night.

Draw-Redwine SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY NEWS

Read Good Literature

Emerson said: "Many times the reading of a book has made the future of a man." Such a statement makes one wonder just what the type of men and women will be made in a land where a well-known "confession" magazine has one of the largest newstand circulations in the world. Influenced by this not very healthful or constructive reading, is it not true that there can be only one outcome, namely, men and women warped in sentiment and with the wrong concept of life in general?

Realizing this, we, the youth, should resolve to make the literature we read only that which is the best. In this age when the best literature can be had for very little, no one should be excused for reading cheap, low-classed magazines and books. Read the best!

Defeated By Anton

The Draw-Redwine Longhorns suffered their worst defeat of the season last Friday when they were defeated by the Anton Bulldogs. The team, accompanied by several pupils of Draw-Redwine, went to Anton in a school bus.

Draw Church News

There was a nice crowd at Draw Sunday school. There were several visitors whom we were glad to have. The Sunday school classes had an interesting lesson on "An Ambassador in Chains."

The League met Sunday evening and had a very interesting program. The program was as follows: Leader, Miss Eberhart, Subject, Widening the Circle. Song, Tell Me the Story of Jesus. Prayer, Etha Mae Sherrill. Scripture reading, I Timothy 4:12-5:2. Song. Talks were made by Miss Eberhart and Helen Williams. Plans were made for a social Thursday night.

Redwine Church News

There was an extra large crowd at Sunday school Sunday, and everyone seemed to have received a blessing from the lesson. We were very sorry that Brother Braswell was ill and could not be present. He has notified us that he will preach for us the next first Sunday. Let's have the determination that Paul had, and have even a larger crowd than last Sunday.

Society

Mr. and Mrs. Luttrell gave a turkey dinner last Sunday and invited several of their friends. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Nurdyke and daughter, Mr. Clayton Beard and children, Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Luttrell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Toombs, Mr. and Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Youngblood, Corbin and Gladys Douthit, Herschel Collins, Carol Holloway, and possibly others that the reporter is unable to give.

Miss Maturcy Giles is spending the week end in Lubbock with her friend, Miss Thelma Parker.

Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Glenn moved to Oklahoma last Sunday. We shall miss them from our community.

All of the teachers of the Draw-Redwine School attended the teachers' meeting in Tahoka Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Giles are planning to take two of their children to the Centennial during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mrs. Willis Pennington gave a birthday party Friday afternoon at her home from four to six honoring her two daughters, Billy Wayne and Nan Beth, on their eighth and fourth birthdays. Several Snappy games were played and lovely refreshments of ice cream, cake and candy were served to Norma Jean and Earline McDonald, Geneva Hale, Mamie John Florence, Don Holloway, Marshall Dubree, and Billie and Nan Pennington.

Mr. and Mrs. X. T. Sherrill and little son visited in the J. E. Sherrill home over the week end.

Mrs. Collins and son, Mr. Charles Childs, of Houston visited friends and relatives in this community this week.

Weldon McClinton and family left Tuesday for Karnes City to reside. He has been living west of Tahoka this year.

LET'S SAVE OUR SOIL.

"In the last sixty years 16,500,000 acres of land in Texas has been abandoned because of soil and wind erosion", declared Louis P. Merrell, conservator for Texas, Louisiana,
and Arkansas, at a meeting of business men and farmers at Garland recently, according to press reports.
This would be 25,781 square miles or the equivalent of a territory 100 miles wide and 257 miles long.

These figures are so staggering as to seem absurd, and it may be that Merrell was indulging in a bit of exaggeration, a habit which seems to have become common with many government officials.

But if the actual figures are one-fourth that large they reveal an alarming situation. Surely something must be done to curb the ravages of wind and water. Something is being done; but it would seem that a campaign against these destructive forces must be inaugurated on a much larger scale. In addition to the program of terracing, contouring, etc., thousands of dams across the headwaters and the tributaries of the larger streams should be built to somewhat curb the ravages of the flood waters when terrific rains fall.

Scientific methods of farming on these plains should be inaugurated as a means of conserving both water and soil. Much is being done already,
but we have in reality just scratched
the surface of the problem, especially in the sandy districts.

In promoting a movement for soil and water conservation, Uncle Sam has undertaken a mighty task, but it should be pushed to completion or as near completion as possible.

Last week we published a clipping from the "State Press" column of the Dallas Morning News and failed to give credit. "State Press" quoted a brief editorial from the Waco News-Tribune in which it referred to the Supreme Court's "authority to strike down statutes" and then proceeded to set forth very forcefully
a truth that should be brought home to all of our people. "The Supreme Court does not strike down statutes or erect them", says State Press. It is true. It merely passes on the constitutionality of a law when its constitutionality is attacked in a case brought before it. It declares that to be constitutional which is constitutional and that to be unconstitutional which is unconstitutional. It is possible for the court to be in error, of course in its interpretation of the constitution, but usually its reasoning is so clear and convincing that most lawyers agree that its conclusions are correct. Occasionally the members of the court disagree, just as other great lawyers disagree, but the justices respectively arrive at their conclusions by a course of reasoning which almost invariably commands the respect and admiration of the bar. This idea that the court is governed by prejudice, self interest, or a desire to favor some individual or some class of our people is all bunk. "State Press" has done a distinct service in gently rebuking

those who have fallen into the habit of referring to the Supreme Court as "striking down" a statute which it declares to be unconstitutional. It is not the Supreme Court but the framers of the constitution and the people who adopted it who "strike down" unconstitutional measures.

There is enough needed road building in the United States to put all able-bodied unemployed men to work and to keep them at work for many years, it seems to us. We heartily endorse the spending of federal money for public highways, but we believe that it ought to be done according to the same business-like methods as are employed by the States or as would be employed by a private business concern. Let all this pick-and-shovel business be dispensed with. Let the work be done by able-bodied men and teams and machinery. Let every needed highway in the country be built and paved, and let all the farm-to-market roads be graded and hard-surfaced.
Possibly it would be better for each job be done by contract in accordance with a scale of minimum wages prescribed by the Government. All the waste and extravagance and monkey business should be cut out.
Of course, many of the able-bodied unemployed men could be put to work on other public works, such as public buildings, dams for water conservation, irrigation plants, drainage systems, etc. Good wages should be paid but a day's work should be required for a day's pay. This is our idea of a New Deal program, and we believe that as the years come and go we will come around closer and closer to it.

We think much good is likely to come of President Roosevelt's visit to South America. It should tend to banish suspicion on the part of South American countries and result in stronger bonds of friendship between Uncle Sam and his South American neighbors. He picked a good time to go, too. Following closely upon the heels of an election that almost wiped the Republican party off the face of the earth, few will dare to criticize him for leaving his own domain in order to help out in other parts of the world. It was different in Woodrow Wilson's day.
He left Washington and went to France to help write the peace treaty and formulate the League of Nations at the close of the World War and every political foe in the country went to barking at his heels.

The name of Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, has not been in the headlines as much as the names of Wallace, Ickes, and possibly some others in the cabinet or other official position in Washington, but none of them has done a better or saner work than Cordell Hull. While others have been shooting the fireworks, Hull has been going quietly at the task of making tariff treaties with other countries that are helping us to win back our lost foreign markets and that promise to be of substantial benefit to us for many, many years. While we are singing the praises of Roosevelt, Wallace, Hopkins, et al., we should not forget that exceedingly sane and shrewd Tennessean, Cordell Hull.

Many believe that the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt will go down in history as one of the very greatest of our Presidents. There have been only three Democratic Presidents since the Civil War and all three of them have been men of outstanding character and dominating personality, Grover Cleveland, Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt.
All the others have been Republicans, but only one of them has been in a class with the Democrats, Theodore Roosevelt.

Here And There
On South Plains

An old livery stable built in Lamesa in 1910 was torn down last week. When built, it was one of the largest and best equipped livery stables on the plains. "At the time of its construction, the social life of the then struggling village of Lamesa centered around this huge structure", says the Lamesa Reporter.
"In those days the livery stable was the gathering place for the "dudes" of the town, who discussed their conquests of the fairer sex. Professional and business men were also patrons of this institution." But the coming of the automobile has relegated the once colorful livery stable to the limbo of forgotten things.

B. F. Gaultny, 54, a Morton painter, was treated at a Lubbock sanitarium
last week for injuries sustained Monday night when he leaped from a speeding automobile. Riding in a car with R. B. Grindstaff, who was returning from Lubbock, Gaultny suddenly looked at the speedometer,
and noting that it was registering 65 miles per hour he declared that he would not ride with a man driving that fast and leaped from the car. He sustained many severe bruises and lacerations and was rushed to the hospital for repairs.

A Mexican who was seriously injured in a car crash near Maple in Bailey county a couple of weeks ago died a few days later. M. D. Gaddy, driver of the car, was not seriously injured. M. F. Brandstatt of Morton, who was driving a car which collided with the Gaddy car, was arrested following the accident. J. F. Poff, who was riding with Brandstatt,
sustained serious injuries, his chest
being crushed and his back wrenched.

Fred Snider and Sons have recently opened up feeding pens at Brownfield. They are feeding approximately 1500 cattle, it is said.
The Babcoera Development Co., a Hearst owned interest, is also operating its pens there again and is feeding about 3,000 head of cattle.

The Dogget Grain Company with headquarters in Fort Worth and Dallas are erecting a small but modern grain elevator in Brownfield.
The storage capacity will be between 15,000 and 20,000 bushels of shelled grain.

Much interest is being taken in the prospective new oil field at Seminole. In addition to the Amarada-Averitt No. 1 two miles northwest of Seminole, which has been flowing oil and which it is believed will prove to be a good producer, another test known as Amarada Robbins No. 1 has just been started eight miles south of Seminole.

The new oil well in the southeast corner of Cochran county which was recently completed, marks the opening of another real oil field, according to the belief of Prentiss F.
Brown, Honolulu Oil geologist. Other test wells are to be drilled in that vicinity.

The Fox Rig and Lumber Co., is opening an oil field supply house in Seminole. This is a big company and has supply houses at Arp, Longview, Coyuga, and Tomball, Texas, and at Hobbs and Jal, New Mexico.

"THANKS A MILLION" FOR MORE THAN A MILLION

America has bought 1,130,000 Chevrolets during the past twelve months, thereby giving Chevrolet the greatest year in its history and the greatest measure of buyer preference it has ever enjoyed.

CHEVROLET The builders of Chevrolet are thankful for many things, but most of all for the warm
friendship of the American people.
And so again at this Thanksgiving season we say, "Thank you, America," for you have given Chevrolet a measure of good-will without parallel in the annals of modern industry.

Consider, for a moment, all that you have done to inspire Chevrolet's appreciation during the past twelve months:
You have purchased 1,130,000 Chevrolets; you have made Chevrolet your favorite car for the seventh time in the past ten years; you have given Chevrolet strong preference in every section of the country; you have conferred this same high honor upon Chevrolet trucks by purchasing more than 205,000 commercial units; you have made 1936 the most successful year in all Chevrolet history.

And now, to climax these expressions of friendship, you are displaying even more marked preference for the new Chevrolet for 1937.

It is difficult to express adequate appreciation for gifts so great and so generous as these.

All we can say is, "Thanks a million"
for more than a million cars in 1936; and all we can do is offer you the still finer Chevrolet of 1937 in return for the finest friendship ever bestowed upon any motor car manufacturer.

Ford V-8 de Luxe Touring Sedan for 1937

THE Ford V-8 de Luxe Fordor touring sedan pictured above is a roomy family type car especially suitable for touring. Baggage can be stowed away in the deep luggage compartment, leaving the interior of the car unobstructed. The new grille, new bar bumpers, headlamps recessed into fender aprons and slanting V-type windshield that opens, highlight the car's new lines. Seats are wide enough for three. The rear compartment is fitted with robe rail, foot rest and lar lights. The body type is available with the 65 horsepower engine, with or without de luxe appointments, or with the new 60 horsepower V-8 engine without de luxe appointments.

REPORTS FROM THE COUNTY CLUBS

Miss Lillian Boyd, H. D. Agent

DIXIE H. D. CLUB

"In preparing a Wash Day Dinner, I tried to use foods that could be made the day before or some that could be prepared quickly," said Mrs. Buel Draper, president of the Dixie Home Demonstration Club, at the Home Food Supply Achievement Day in Mrs. A. L. Dunagan's home. Mrs. Draper exhibited the following dinner:

Hard cooked eggs with parsley. Salad of beans, chow-chow, baked potatoes, corn, corn bread sticks, butter, milk, and apple pie.

Mrs. G. B. Sherrod, cooperater, displayed a Sunday Night Supper using the following menu:

Meat loaf, bread and butter sandwiches, fruit and vegetable salad, marshmallow pudding, vanilla wafers and hot chocolate.

Four other cooperators, Mrs. Gulon Cobb, Mrs. A. C. Aycox, Mrs. Lloyd Huffaker, and Mrs. Paul Johnson prepared a well balanced Breakfast, Dinner and Supper for one day:

Breakfast: Grapefruit, bacon and eggs, toast, cranberry jelly, butter, and milk.

Dinner: Fried chicken, gravy, baked potatoes, turnip greens, corn bread, onions, butter, baked apple, muffin, and buttermilk.

Supper: Vegetable soup, crackers and milk.

Mrs. A. L. Dunagan told her achievement story and exhibited her organized pantry which was in the basement.

DIXIE H. D. CLUB

"Since building my shelves in my basement pantry I have ample space for storing all my canned products," said Mrs. Dunagan, Dixie Home Foods demonstrator, as she directed us through a very nice pantry at a meeting at her home Wednesday, November 18th.

The following officers were elected:

for the coming year: Chairman, Mrs. G. B. Sherrod; Vice Chairman, Mrs. G. L. Cobb; Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. Marvin Berry; Reporter, Mrs. L. E. Huffaker; Council delegate, Mrs. A. L. Dunagan; Home Foods demonstrator, Mrs. Paul Johnson.

A report on council was given by Mrs. Dunagan, followed by a demonstration of Breakfast, Dinner and Supper, a wash day dinner and a Sunday Night supper. This was prepared by various members of the club and consisted of servings sufficient for one person. Miss Boyd scored these as well balanced meals.

Our next meeting will be with Mrs. F. E. House, December 2nd and at this meeting we will have our Christmas program, as this will be our only meeting in December. Members will exchange gifts that are home made.

Members present were: Mmes. A. C. Aycox, B. C. Aycox, H. Bearden, G. B. Sherrod, L. E. Huffaker, Buel Draper, F. E. House.

Visitors present were: Mmes. Alex Johnson, Bearden, and Watson and our agent Miss Boyd.

WOOL SUIT FOR 90c

Mrs. J. R. Strain, president of the New Home Home Demonstration Club, has a new wool suit that cost her 90c.

"Instead of using my husband's old suit in a quilt as I usually do, I turned it and made a suit for myself. I used the back of the coat and the sleeves for the back and sleeves in my coat. There were two pairs of trousers; the fronts of the trousers were used in the front of my coat. For the skirt, I used the backs of the two pairs of trousers, turning the cuff ends to the waist line," said Mrs. Strain.

She used one and one-half yards of material for the lining of the coat which cost 60c; the third cost 3c and the pattern 25c. She wears a wine taffeta blouse with this grayish brown suit.

PINEAPPLE BUTTER

"I cubed two big cushans and preserved them until they were soft. After mashing these with a potato masher, I added one gallon of pineapple and five or more pounds of sugar and cooked in an open kettle until thick and clear. This mixture has the appearance and flavor of pineapple butter," said Mrs. R. T. Cope, cooperater in the Midway Home Demonstration Club.

"I used this pineapple filling and malt-o-meal for a fruit pie covered with meringue," said Mrs. Cope.

ELECTRIFIED WIRE USED IN FENCING PASTURES

Stephenville—Designed to reduce cost of fence building 80 per cent, to make practical erection of temporary fences for grazing patches, and partially to eliminate danger of wire cuts to animals which try to go through ordinary barbed wire fence, a one-wire controlled electric fence has been installed at the John Tarleton Agricultural College farm near here.

Electrified wire has been used to fence temporary pasture, O. H. Frazier, head of the animal husbandry department at Tarleton, said. Frazier estimates cost of installation at about 8 cents per rod. An ordinary storage battery will supply power for from 4 to 6 miles of the fence for from three to five month.

G. E. Hogan returned Wednesday from Archer City, having gone down Monday to look after some matters of business.

HOWARD PAYNE COLLEGE TO HONOR FAMOUS PIONEER

(Lockney Beacon) Members of the Byars family students, and ex-students of Howard Payne College will leave next Tuesday, November 24th for Brownwood, Texas where they will attend the homecoming Centennial Celebration of that school and the Noah T Byars memorial exercises.

Members from Lockney and vicinity who will be present for the exercises dedicating a monument to the memory of N. T. Byars will be Mrs. and Mrs. N. T. A. Byars, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Byars, and daughter, Mrs. Payton Powers, and Mr. and Mrs. Baylor Byars, who are the grandchildren of the pioneer Baptist preacher.

The Rev. N. T. Byars whose memory will be honored at the Centennial Homecoming, was the first Baptist missionary in Texas and was instrumental in the organization of many Baptist educational activities, of which Howard Payne was one. It was in his blacksmith shop at Washington on the Brazos that the Declaration of Texas Independence was written and signed. He was a member of the Gen. Houston army and later was sergeant of arms of the Senate of the Republic of Texas.

On Thanksgiving Day a monument somewhat similar in design to the one erected last year in the state park at Washington for the famous pioneer, will be dedicated on the grounds of the Howard Payne College.

THREE MILES CALICHE BASE ON HIGHWAY 84

Lester McPherson, local maintenance superintendent of highway 51, 137 and 84 in Terry county, informed us this week, that 3 miles or more of caliche base had been finished on 84 as far out as the John Burnett place, that the work was progressing satisfactorily. It seems that they are putting two coatings on as they go, instead of putting one on and then later another.

Surveys have been made and grading and drainage made between here and Plains, but beyond Plains to Bronco, nothing but preliminary surveys have been made. However, we learn on good authority this week that the State Highway department had notified the Commissioners Court of Yoakum county, that if they will provide a right-of-way from Plains to Bronco, they will immediately start a permanent survey.

With 84 finished to the New Mexico state line, that, commonwealth promises to connect up with Texas at Bronco, and put in a surfaced road. When this is done, this route will rival the Bankhead from the east to the Pacific coast.—Terry County Herald.

Learn the amazing benefits of GULFPRIDE

THE WORLD'S FINEST MOTOR OIL

WHY is it that no other motor oil in all the world can deliver the performance of GULFPRIDE OIL?

Because only GULFPRIDE starts from the finest Pennsylvania crudes... is refined to the same point as other fine motor oils... and is then further refined by Gulf's exclusive Alchlor process!

This process is the most efficient ever developed—the fruit of 15 years' research by Gulf scientists—men who stand behind every Gulf product.

Read the facts on this page. Then drive into any Gulf dealer's—and replace your old summer-worn oil with GULFPRIDE now.

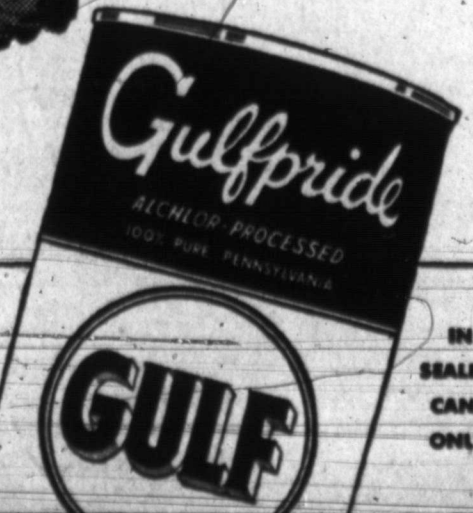

(Above)—MANY WORLD'S RECORDS on land, sea, and in the air have been set with GULFPRIDE OIL. Racing drivers, fliers, speedboat pilots swear by it. Proved in the toughest competition, GULFPRIDE will outwear, outlast, and outperform any oil you ever used in your car!

THE ALCHLOR PROCESS removes all sludge and residue. Proof: we took 6 of the finest Pennsylvania oils we could buy and put them through the Alchlor process. It removed 20% waste from already highly refined oils! Be wise—get GULFPRIDE—the only oil that has this head start.

(Left)—4 TIMES AROUND EARTH. A man drove his automobile on GULFPRIDE OIL 100,000 miles—without ever needing a repair, without ever having the head off the motor, without ever adding one drop of oil between drains. Expect great things of GULFPRIDE—you'll get them!

CROSBY CROONS TO BULL IN WESTERN TUNE FILM

Bing Crosby has crooned to blondes and brunettes, to red-heads and platinum-tops, to old and young women of every shade of coloring and every age. But in his new musical, "Rhythm on the Range," showing Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the English Theatre, he enters an entirely new field.

Crosby croons to a prize-winning bull; and the bull likes it.

"Rhythm on the Range" is the riotously mad tale of a cow hand who puts all the money he wins at a New York rodeo into the purchase of a bull, then rides back to the West in a box car with the bull—and a stowaway.

The stowaway is Frances Farmer, cast as an Eastern socialite who at the last minute runs away from the man she is about to marry and heads—by the Crosby box car—for her aunt's ranch.

Bob Burns, the bazooka-playing radio comedian who has told all the world about his Van Buren, Arkansas, relations, is Crosby's pal in the picture. He, too, gets involved in a transcontinental romance—with Martha Raye, new screen comed-enne who storms through her role with a dynamite delivery of lines and an endless contorting of her vastly flexible face.

"Rhythm on the Range" has music ranging from Burns' bazooka solos to swing numbers by Louis Prima's famous band, and Old West songs by stars of the guitar and banjo. It introduces six song hits, all of them now heard nightly on the air-waves.

Samuel S. Hinds, Warren Hymers, Lucille Webster Gleason, George E. Stone and a host of others complete the outstanding cast.

General Election Votes Canvassed

Change In Pardon System Got Most Votes Of The Six Amendments

Austin, Texas, Nov. 21.—Official returns from all but four counties show that Comptroller George H. Sheppard led the Democratic ticket at the general election Nov. 3 with 785,745 votes and that the change in the pardoning system was high in the six constitutional amendments. These positions were indicated in calculations made Friday by the State Canvassing Board which fixed Monday as the day to tabulate the returns for President and Vice-President. The counties missing were San Augustine, Montague, Shackelford and Upshur. The votes for Governor and Lieutenant Governor will be counted by the Legislature in January and will be sealed until then.

While the vote for the Republican candidate for Governor is not yet available, it is evident from the returns for other candidates that the G.O.P. will not reach the 100,000 votes necessary to force it to hold primaries to select its candidates in 1938. It will continue to use the convention system.

Attorney Gen. William McCraw ruled Friday that the constitutional amendment transferring clemency power from the Governor to a non-partisan board does not become effective until Feb. 1. Some thought it would be in effect when the vote was canvassed.

Canvass of Votes

The three members of the new Pardon Board have been appointed. Gov. James V. Allred named J. B. Keith, Presiding Judge W. C. Morrow of the Court of Criminal Appeals appointed T. C. Andrews and Chief Justice C. M. Cureton appointed Bruce W. Bryant.

Keith and Andrews are members of the present Board of Pardons and Paroles. Stanhope Henry, the third member of the board was not reappointed.

As officially canvassed the votes are as follows: Amendments: State liquor control, 247,198 for, 373,919 against.

Change of pardoning system, 422,224 for, 167,916 against. Salary raises, 216,856 for, 275,060 against.

Limit on House membership, 344,173 for 238,879 against. Workmen's compensation insurance, 358,611 for, 237,563 against.

United States Senator: Morris Sheppard, Democrat, 774,975; Carlos O. Watson, Republican, 59,491; W. B. Starr, Socialist, 958; Gertrude Wilson, Union, 1,836.

Comptroller: Sheppard, Democrat, 785,745; H. S. Frady, Republican, 54,907; P. L. Peterson, Socialist, 938. Railroad Commissioner, E. O. Thompson, Democrat, 785,361; J. W. Hembree, Socialist, 6,938; Mrs. Marie Harrison Pierce, Communist, 342; no Republican candidate.

Land Commissioner, W. H. McDonald, Democrat, 783,911; H. H. Smellage, Republican, 54,726; Ben O. Miller, Socialist, 986; Ben Lauderdale, Communist, 193. Treasurer, Charley Lockhart, Democrat, 784,355; Sam L. Gross, Republican, 54,487; John M. Killough, Socialist, 910.

Superintendent of Public Instruction, L. A. Woods, Democrat, 782,758; Mrs. George B. Jackson, Republican, 54,660; A. E. Gay, Socialist, 868; James Sager, Communist, 180.

Attorney General, William McCraw, Democrat, 783,047; S. D. Bennett, Republican, 56,060; Earl E. Miller, Socialist, 953. Commissioner of Agriculture, J. E. McDonald, Democrat, 783,621; A. W.

MRS. PHIPPS HONORED WITH BIRTHDAY DINNER

A surprise birthday dinner was given at the home of Mrs. G. K. Phipps of the Dixie community last Sunday, honoring her fifty-fifth birthday anniversary.

A large number of friends and relatives gathered and spread a dinner, and on her return from church she found her table overflowing with good things to eat.

A large white birthday cake with pink candles centered the table. In the afternoon pictures were taken, and other neighbors and friends called.

A number of presents were given and all wished her many more happy birthdays.

Those present were: Brother Liff Sanders of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Jones, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Perry and four children, Mrs. Emma Hatchel and son, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Moore and son, Mrs. Creed Clements, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Clements, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. ## CHURCH OF CHRIST NOTES

I was greeted with a splendid audience at O'Donnell last Lord's Day. The interest seems to be growing there as well as here. That is as it should be. If each member would do his or her duty, how the church would grow!

Thanksgiving day is here again! How thankful we should be! God has been so good to us. How sad that we let the day pass without a special Thanksgiving service. I am happy to have an invitation to a service at New Home that day. Let us show our gratitude by helping some one less fortunate than we. Jesus said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." The future holds something for the man who keeps faith in it.

It is the growing man who lives a dog's life.

Bad names are easy to call but hard to recall.

The Bible is God's guide book; follow it. The Church is God's missionary society; work in it.

The Gospel preacher is God's messenger; hear him.

A welcome awaits you at the friendly church.—R. P. Drennon.

M. P. CLINTONS OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Clinton observed their golden wedding anniversary with a dinner at their home in Tahoka, Monday, November 16. Invitations were extended to thirty guests.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Foreman, Lamesa; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Phipps, Dixie; Mr. and Mrs. Claud Grey, Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Russell and baby and Mrs. Doc. Littlepage of Joe Stokes; Grandma and Grandpa Parks, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. N. W. Allphin, Della Gaither, Misses Lina Evelyn and Dorothy Belle Morgan, all of Tahoka.

Children attending were: Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Clinton and son Billie of McGee, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Reese of Dixie; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clinton and three children of Tahoka. Children unable to attend: Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Clinton and three children, Mrs. L. B. Clinton and two children, two granddaughters Belle Claxton, all of Rosedale, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Johnson, at Cookeville, Tenn., Nov. 16, 1886, and resided at that place until December, 1904, when they moved to Pottawatomie county, Okla. They moved to Tahoka January 6, 1924, and have resided here ever since.

Mr. Clinton is 76 and Mrs. Clinton 70 years of age, and both are enjoying fairly good health.

The guests, having had a very enjoyable day and lots of good eats, showered the honorees with many nice gifts, wished them many more happy anniversaries, and departed.

C. F. Dyke sustained a severe injury to the right eye a few days ago while cutting a piece of lumber in two with an axe. One end of the piece flew up and struck him in the eye, leaving a large sliver of wood in the eyelid and severely bruising the flesh about the eye. No permanent injury was done to the sight, however.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Theoford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Theoford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children: I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

Cardui stimulates the appetite and improves digestion, helping women to get more strength from the food they eat. As nourishment is improved, strength is built up, certain functional pains go away and women praise Cardui for helping them back to good health. . . . Mrs. C. E. Ratliff, of Hinton, W. Va., writes: "After the birth of my last baby, I did not seem to get my strength back. I took Cardui again and was soon sound and well. I have given it to my daughters and recommend it to other ladies." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Lydia E. Pinkham's Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled.

YOU CAN THROW CARDS IN HIS FACE ONCE TOO OFTEN

WHEN you have those awful cramps which your nerves are all on edge—don't take it out on the man you love. Your husband can't possibly know how you feel for the simple reason that he is a man. A three-quarter wife may be no wife at all if she nags her husband seven days out of every month. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three decades of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

League Speeches

Speeches are translated at the League of Nations meetings in Geneva through the use of a speech translator. Wires connected with a microphone in front of the speaker carry his voice to expert translators, each of whom can translate the language used into a second language. These interpreters speak into telephones connected with earphones on delegates' desks. By turning a knob they can hear the language they understand.

BRISBANE THIS WEEK

End of the Treaty Millions for New Falls Too Many Apologies The Mirror Monocle

Chancellor Hitler has demolished the remaining fragments of the Versailles treaty, notifying the great powers that they may no longer control as they have done since 1918, the principal rivers of Germany.

Arthur Brisbane

The Rhine, Elbe, Oder and Danube rivers, within German territory, now return to German control and France is content to ask other powers to join a protest. Mere protests amount to little in European diplomacy, as the world learned from the Ethiopian war.

That settles, finally, the Versailles treaty, a foolish effort to enslave a nation that made the emergence of this, or some other, Hitler inevitable.

Mr. Tugwell seeks an appropriation of five hundred million dollars to provide poverty-stricken farmers, now on worthless farms, with other land that will support them; also barns, houses, out-buildings. He thinks $50,000,000 a year for ten years would do the work, and plans to vacate 9,000,000 "worthless acres."

Anything that will diminish human misery is desirable, even though incompetency may be in part responsible for the trouble.

In England, the government, guided by experts, is making excellent pasture lands of soil that was worthless. Our government might investigate that process.

General Markham, chief army engineer, advises putting an air base in the harbor of our Midway island, far away in the Pacific ocean. The War Department says, apologetically, that this would be a commercial development, although it might be useful for defense.

Why an apology? Nobody in Europe, Asia or Africa apologizes to us for building an air base, or asks our opinion about it.

The War department says there is no treaty obligation forbidding such an air base. If there were, what of it? Treaties can be cancelled, and should be when they are foolish or unjust—for further details, ask Hitler.

Germans are said to be wearing a new eyeglass called a "spy monocle." Arranged to look like the ordinary single eyeglass, the "spy monocle" is arranged with a mirror, permitting the wearer to look behind him and see if there is anybody listening to his conversation. German police eagerly discourage any one who suggests that the Nazi government is not perfect.

The opening of the Bay bridge, connecting San Francisco and Oakland, California, is important not only to California and the two united cities, but to the whole country.

This magnificent bridge, eliminating ferries on the bay that separates San Francisco and Oakland, is a magnificent accomplishment of engineering and public spirit.

Mr. Green's American Federation of Labor decides on a "fight to a showdown" with Mr. Lewis' "Committee for Industrial Organization," which wants to unionize all the 30,000,000 workers not yet organized, and seems to include taking over Mr. Green and his federation also.

Next on the program appears to be a big labor fight. Mr. Green is thoughtful, wise; Mr. Lewis is forceful, determined. The outcome cannot be predicted. The outside citizen will pray that there may not be too much interference with returning prosperity.

A greatly increased demand for tools shows that more men are getting jobs, and announcements of new wage increases, big and little, are many. Twenty-three more firms have announced better wages for 28,000 more workers.

An average increase of $130 a year, less than 50 cents a day, might seem unimportant, but it means one hundred and thirty million more dollars that 1,000,000 workers will have to spend, in a year. That is not unimportant.

England intends next time to devote her energy and strength to protecting herself.

Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the admiralty, says England has no "commitments" like those of 1914, that would compel her to send troops to the continent if war should start. She will do as she pleases, which means that she will probably stay at home, busy with enemy airplanes, perhaps helping to finance friends on the continent, as she did in the Napoleonic wars, as she did before and since.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for November 29 CHRISTIAN BROTHERHOOD

LESSON TEXT—Philemon 4-20. GOLDEN TEXT—There is neither bond nor free... for ye all are one in Christ Jesus. Galatians 3:28. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Shortest Letter. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Shortest Letter. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Slave Becomes a Brother. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ, Transforming Social Relationships.

Letters are always interesting, and especially so when they bring good news. The brief epistle to Philemon is one of unusual charm. Paul writes to Philemon, a Christian brother in Colosse, to inform him that he is sending back to him Onesimus, who was apparently Philemon's brother (v. 16) but who had through misfortune and sin (vv. 18, 19) become a slave. Evidently, he had stolen from Philemon what he needed to enable him to run away, and had ultimately come to Rome.

Having reached this great city he no doubt was satisfied that he had placed himself beyond the reach of anyone who knew him. But he had reckoned without God, who not only knew where he was (see Ps. 139:7-12) but also what he needed. He is brought into touch with the imprisoned apostle, Paul, and through his ministry the fugitive slave becomes a "brother beloved in the Lord" (v. 16). How marvelous is the grace of God, and how patiently he deals with those who attempt to flee even from his love!

Our study of this epistle centers around four great words:

I. Appreciation (vv. 4-8). After an introductory word Paul speaks of his love for Philemon, his appreciation of the latter's hospitality, his fellowship, and his faith.

Is Paul flattering his friend in order that he may grant his request? Certainly not, but he is expressing his true feelings toward a faithful brother. We need a revival of Christian courtesy and appreciation of one another.

The man who thinks that he must show that he is true to Christ by treating others with boorish rudeness needs to learn a new lesson from the Lord himself, and from his Word.

II. Consideration (vv. 9-14). Paul could have kept silent, and encouraged Onesimus to remain with him. He needed help (v. 13) but without the consent of Philemon he would not keep Onesimus (v. 14). At the same time he reminds Philemon very tactfully that he owes them both loving consideration.

We have here a striking illustration of the candor and consideration which should characterize the dealings of Christians with one another. We need to put away careless trampling upon the rights of others in order that our work may go forward.

III. Brotherhood (vv. 15-16). The fact of regeneration does not change a man's social status so far as the world is concerned, but within the circle of God's household he becomes a "brother beloved." Let us look less at the accidents of circumstance, education, or birth which differ and rather magnify the family relationship, for all who are born again are brethren.

IV. Partnership (vv. 17-20). Paul counted Philemon not only a benefactor and a brother, but a partner in the great enterprise of God on earth. Partners share both joys and sorrows, gains and losses. They stand by the hour of need, they plan and labor, weep and rejoice together. One wonders what might be accomplished for Christ if all Christians would accord one another even the ordinary considerations of partnership.

It should be noted in closing that verses 17 and 18 present an illustration of the great doctrine of imputation. The wrong of Onesimus was to be charged to Paul, and Paul's standing with Philemon is the basis of his acceptance of Onesimus. Even so the righteousness of Christ is imputed to the believer, because our sins have been laid upon him. What a wonderful Saviour!

A Mother's Love
No language can express the power and beauty and heroism and majesty of a mother's love. It shrinks not where man cowers, and grows stronger where man faints, and over the wastes of worldly fortune sends the radiance of its quenchless fidelity like a star in heaven.—E. H. Chapin.

Spare Hours
Bind together your spare hours by the cord of some definite purpose, and you know not how much you may accomplish. Gather up the fragments of time, that nothing may be lost.—W. A. Taylor.

Humble Deeds
The humblest deeds, prompted by a pure and unselfish motive, measure larger in God's sight than apparently much greater deeds which are done to be seen of men and for the aggrandizement of self.—Gunn.

Lovely and Inexpensive

AMONG other things to be thankful for in this land of peace and plenty, think how pleasant it is to be able to procure such lovely patterns so conveniently and so inexpensively. No longer is style the prerogative of wealth alone; every woman can look and be at her best in any capacity, thanks to Sewing Circle patterns.

Pattern 1981, a youthful lounging or sleeping pajama, features a nobby, cutaway peplum and comfortably cut trousers. There is an easy yoke, a cleverly cut collar, and a choice of long or short sleeves. Why not make them twice in alternate materials? The size range, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34 bust) requires 5 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1852 fashions into an adorable little frock which will make small eyes dance and sparkle. Just eight pieces to the pattern, including the band and facings, you can run it up in a jiffy and have a perfect gift for your daughter. Send for it in size 2, 4, 6, or 8 years. Material selection—dimity or swiss or voile or crepe or gingham. Size 4 requires just 2 1-8 yds. of 35 or 39 inch.

Pattern 1970 is a comely and graceful morning or daytime frock for matron sizes, the sort that goes on in a hurry and wears well without a lot of fuss and bother. The jabot is softly feminine and the panelled skirt is cut along lines every larger woman appreciates. The collar and cuffs are in contrast, if you wish, and the selection of materials is practically unlimited. This lovely pattern is available in all of the following sizes—36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, and 52. Size 40 requires 4 3-8 yards of 35 or 39 inch fabric plus 3-4 yd. contrast.

Send for the Barbara Bell Fall Pattern Book containing 100 well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Exclusive fashions for children, young women, and matrons. Send fifteen cents in coins for your copy. Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 367 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each. © Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

Movies Real to Savages
A dog actor made a hit with natives of Papua when they saw their first movie. It was a comedy and ended with a bull dog chasing a burglar all over the landscape. The natives, convinced the dog was real, promptly passed the hat and offered the cinema proprietor $25 for it.

Equanimity
TRY it for a day, I beseech you, to preserve yourself in an easy and cheerful frame of mind. Be but for one day, instead of a fire-worshiper of passion, the sun-worshiper of clear self possessions, and compare the day in which you have allowed it to grow up; and you will find your heart open to every good motive, your life strengthened, and your breast armed with a panoply against every trick of fate; truly you will wonder at your own improvement.—Richter.

Happiness should be shared.

Don't Try to "Save" on Home Remedies—Ask Your Doctor

There is one point, on which practically all doctors agree. That is: Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first.

All mothers know this. But sometimes the instinct to save a few pennies by buying "something just as good" overcomes caution.

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy—"milk of magnesia"—many doctors for over half a century have said "PHILLIPS." For Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is the standard of the world. Safe for children.

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Comes now, also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia." 25¢ for a big box of the tablets at drug stores.

The FARMALL Leads The Way To Profitable Farming

Economical, efficient power is always at the command of the Lynn County farmer who owns a McCormick-Deering Farmall tractor, whether his acreage is large or small. A FARMALL Tractor reduces production costs on every crop and takes the hard work out of farming. It provides power for row-crop work as well as all the other regular farming jobs.

No automobile owner would go back to the horse and buggy days; neither would any Farmall owner go back to the horse and mule days. Come in and investigate the Farmall for yourself.

There are three Farmall sizes—the Farmall 12, the Farmall 20, the 3-plow Farmall 30.
