Regulate Fire to Meet Changes in Temperature by Proper Use of Two Dampers.

IT'S easy to regulate a furnace fire to meet the requirements of daily temperature changes. All you need to do is understand the functioning of the check and ashpit dampers.

Check Damper—a flap-like damper, which should be located in the chimney pipe between the turn of the chimney and the damper. When it's open, it slows up the burning speed of the fire; closed, it quickens the speed.

Ashpit Damper—located below the grate and controls the amount of air supplied to the fire.

To produce the best results, these dampers should work together—when one is open the other should be closed, and vice versa. In mild weather, when a slow, lasting fire is needed, the check damper should be wide open and the ashpit damper closed. When more heat is needed, the check damper should be partly closed, the ashpit damper partly open. For extremely cold weather, the check damper should be closed tight, the ashpit damper wide open.

The proper use of these two dampers insures the proper degree of heat at all times on a minimum amount of fuel.

Clean System
Clear Skin

You must be free from constipation to have a good, clear complexion. If not eliminated, the wastes of digestion produce poisons and the skin must do more than its share in helping to get rid of them.

So for a clear, healthy skin, remember the importance of bowel regularity. At the first sign of constipation, take Black-Draught—the purely vegetable laxative. It brings such refreshing relief, and tends to leave the bowels acting regularly until some future disturbance interferes.

The Garden Murder Case

SYNOPSIS

Philo Vance, famous detective, and John F. X. Markham, district attorney for New York county are dining in Vance's apartment when Vance receives an anonymous telephone message informing him of a "disturbing psychological" tension at Professor Ephraim Garden's apartment, advising that he read up on radio-active sodium, consult a passage in the Aeneid and counseling that "Equanimity is essential." Professor Garden is famous in chemical research. The message, decoded by Vance, reminds him that Professor Garden's son Floyd and his puny cousin, Woody Swift, are addicted to horse-racing. Vance says that "Equanimity" is a horse running next day in the Rivermont handicap. Vance is convinced that the message was sent by Dr. Siefert, the Gardens' family physician. He arranges to have lunch next day at the Gardens' penhouse. Vance is greeted by Floyd Garden and meets Love Hamble, an elderly follower of horse racing. Floyd expresses concern over Swift's queer actions. Mrs. Garden, supposedly ill, comes downstairs and places a $100 bet on a horse. Gathered around an elaborate loud speaker service, listening to the racing are Cecil Kroon, Madge Weatherly and Zalia Graem, who bet varying amounts on the horses. There is tension under the surface gaiety. Zalia and Swift are not on speaking terms. Kroon leaves to keep an appointment before the race starts. Miss Beeton, a nurse, and Vance bet on "Azure Star." Swift recklessly bets $10,000 on "Equanimity" and goes to the roof garden to hear the results. Floyd follows Swift, remaining away several minutes. Zalia answers a phone call in the den. Soon after the announcement that "Azure Star" wins, the guests hear a shot.

CHAPTER III—Continued

Vance was the first on his feet. His face was grim as he moved rapidly toward the archway. I followed him, and just behind came Garden. As I turned into the hallway I saw the others in the drawing-room get up and move forward.

As we hurried down the hall Zalia Graem opened the den door.

"What was that?" she asked, her frightened eyes staring at us.

"We don't know yet," Vance told her.

In the bedroom door, at the lower end of the hall, stood the nurse, with a look of inquiring concern on her otherwise placid face.

"You'd better come along, Miss Beeton," Vance said, as he started up the stairs two at a time. "You may be needed."

Vance swung into the upper corridor and stopped momentarily at the door on the right, which led out upon the roof. This door was still propped open, and after a hasty preliminary survey through it, he stepped quickly out into the garden.

The sight that met our eyes was not wholly unexpected. There, in the low chair which he had pointed out to us earlier that afternoon, sat Woody Swift, slumped down, with his head thrown back at an unnatural angle against the rattan head-rest, and his legs straight out before him. He still wore the ear-phone. His eyes were open and staring; his lips were slightly parted; and his thick glasses were tilted forward on his nose.

In his right temple was a small ugly hole beneath which two or three drops of already coagulating blood had formed. His right arm hung limp over the side of the chair, and on the colored tiling just under his hand lay a small pearl-handled revolver.

Vance immediately approached the motionless figure, and the rest of us crowded about him. Zalia Graem, who had forced her way forward and was now standing beside Vance, swayed suddenly and caught at his arm. Her face had gone pale, and her eyes appeared glazed. Vance turned quickly and, putting his arm about her, half led and half carried her to a large wicker divan nearby. He made a beckoning motion of his head to Miss Beeton.

"Look after her for a moment," he requested. "And keep her head down." Then he returned to Swift. "Every one please keep back," he ordered. "No one is to touch him."

He took out his monocle and adjusted it carefully. Then he leaned over the crumpled figure in the chair. He cautiously scrutinized the wound, the top of the head, and the tilted glasses. When this examination was over he knelt down on the tiling and seemed to be searching for something. Apparently he did not find what he sought, for he stood up with a discouraged frown and faced the others.

"Dead," he announced, in an unwontedly sombre tone. "I'm taking charge of things temporarily."

Zalia Graem had risen from the divan, and the nurse was supporting her with a show of tenderness.

"Please, Miss Beeton," he said, "take the young lady downstairs immediately." Then he added, "I'm sure she'll be all right in a few minutes."

The nurse nodded, put her arm firmly about Miss Graem, and led her into the passageway.

Vance waited until the two young women were gone; then he turned to the others. "You will all be so good as to go downstairs and remain there until further orders."

"But what are you going to do, Mr. Vance?" asked Mrs. Garden in a frightened tone. "We must keep this thing as quiet as possible. . . . My poor Woody!"

"I'm afraid, madam, we shall not be able to keep it quiet at all," Vance spoke with earnest significance. "My first duty will be to telephone the district attorney and the homicide bureau."

"Rather Interesting, This Disarray," He Observed.

square jannped box on the upright between two sections of the bookshelves. "That's part of the intercommunicating system between this room and the den. I'll see that the den door is left open, so that I can hear the buzz wherever I am."

Vance nodded curtly, and Garden, after a momentary hesitation, turned and went from the room.

As soon as Garden could be heard making his way down the stairs, Vance closed the door and went immediately to the telephone. A moment later he was speaking to Markham.

"The galloping horses, old dear," he said. "The Trojans are riding roughshod. Equanimity was needed, but came in too far behind. Result, a murder. Young Swift is dead. And it was as clever a performance as I've yet seen. . . . No, Markham,—his voice suddenly became grave—"I'm not spoofing. I think you'd better come immediately. And notify Sergeant Heath, if you can reach him, and the medical examiner."

He replaced the receiver slowly. "This is a subtle crime, Van," he meditated. "Too subtle for my peace of mind. I don't like it—I don't at all like it. And I don't like this intrusion of horse-racing. Sheer expediency. . . ."

He went thoughtfully to the north window and looked out on the garden. The rattan chair with its gruesome occupant could not be seen from the study, as it was far to the left of the window, near the west balustrade.

"I wonder. . . ."

He turned from the window abruptly and came back to the desk. "A few words with the colorless Garden are indicated, before the minions of the law arrive."

He placed his finger on the white button in the buzzer box and depressed it for a second. Then he went to the door and opened it.

Several moments went by, but Garden did not appear, and Vance again pressed the button. After a full minute or two had passed without any response to his summons, Vance started down the passageway to the stairs, beckoning me to follow.

As he came to the vault door on the right, he halted abruptly. He scrutinized the heavy calamine door for a moment or two. At first glance it seemed to be closed tightly, but as I looked at it more closely, I noticed that it was open a fraction of an inch, as if the spring catch, which locked it automatically, had failed to snap when the door had last been shut. Vance pushed on the door gently with the tips of his fingers, and it swung inward slowly and ponderously.

"Deuced queer," he commented. "A vault for preserving valuable documents—and the door unlatched. I wonder. . . ."

CHAPTER IV

The lights from the halls shone into the dark recess of the vault, and as Vance pushed the door further inward a white-cord hanging from a ceiling light became visible. To the end of this cord was attached a miniature brass pestle which acted as a weight. Vance stepped immediately inside and jerked the cord, and the vault was flooded with light.

"Vault" hardly describes this small storeroom, except that the walls were unusually thick, and it had obviously been constructed to serve as a burglar proof repository. The room was about five by seven feet, and the ceiling was as high as that of the hallway. The walls were lined with deep shelves from floor to ceiling, and these were piled with all manner of papers, documents, pamphlets, filing cases, and racks of test-tubes and vials labeled with mysterious symbols. Three of the shelves were devoted to a series of sturdy steel cash and security boxes. The floor was overlaid with small squares of black and white ceramic tile.

Although there was ample room for us both inside the vault, I remained in the hallway, watching Vance as he looked about him.

Vance leaned over and picked up a batch of scattered typewritten papers which had evidently been brushed down from one of the shelves directly opposite the door. He glanced at them for a moment and carefully replaced them in the empty space on the shelf.

"Rather interestin'," this disarray, he observed.

"The professor was obviously not the last person in here, or he would certainly not have left his papers on the floor. . . . He wheeled about. "My word!" he exclaimed in a low tone. "These fallen papers and that unlatched door. . . . It could be, don't y' know." There was a suppressed excitement in his manner. "I say, Van, don't come in here; and, above all, don't touch this door-knob."

He knelt down on the tiled floor and began a close inspection of the small squares, as if he were counting them. His action reminded me of the way he had inspected the tiling on the roof near the chair in which we had found young Swift. It occurred to me that he was seeking here what he had failed to find in the garden.

"It should be here," he murmured. "It would explain many things—it would form the first vague outline of a workable pattern. . . ."

After searching about for a minute or two, he stopped abruptly and leaned forward eagerly. Then he took a small piece of paper from his pocket and adroitly flicked something onto it from the floor. Folding the paper carefully, he tucked it away in his waistcoat pocket. Although I was only a few feet from him and was looking directly at him, I could not see what it was that he had found.

"I think that will be all for the moment," he said, rising and pulling the cord to extinguish the light. Coming out into the hallway, he closed the vault door by carefully grasping the shank of the knob. Then he moved swiftly down the passageway, stepped through the door to the garden, and went directly to the dead man. Though his back was turned to me as he bent over the figure, I could see that he took the folded paper from his waistcoat pocket and opened it. He glanced repeatedly from the paper in his hand to the limp figure in the chair. At length he nodded his head emphatically, and rejoined me in the hallway. We descended the stairs to the apartment below.

Just as we reached the lower hall, the front door opened and Cecil Kroon entered. He seemed surprised to find us in the hall, and asked somewhat vaguely, as he threw his hat on a bench: "Anything the matter?"

Vance studied him sharply and made no answer; and Kroon went on: "I suppose the big race is over, damn it! Who won it—Equanimity?"

Vance shook his head slowly, his eyes fixed on the other.

"Azure Star won the race. I believe Equanimity came in fifth or sixth."

"And did Woody go in on him up to the hilt, as he threatened?"

Vance nodded. "I'm afraid he did."

"Good Gad!" Kroon caught his breath. "That's a blow for the chap. How's he taking it?"

He looked away from Vance as if he would rather not hear the answer. "He's not taking it," Vance returned quietly. "He's dead."

Offers New Opportunities

THE modern woman who sews is really an enviable person. She has at her finger-tips an endless array of fashions from which to choose for her own and her daughters' wardrobes. Today's trio affords her new opportunities in several size ranges; in fact, there's something here for the mature figure, size 42, right on down to the tiny tot who just manages to fill "age 4."

Pattern 1987—This diminutive frock is for Miss Four-to-Twelve. Its easy lines, flaring skirt, and pretty sleeves are perhaps second only to its thru-the-machine-aptness, so far as the woman who sews is concerned. But this is all too obvious to mention. Better cut this pattern twice for all 'round practical reasons. It's intriguing in taffeta—a winner in gingham and linen. It comes in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, and 12 years. Size 6 requires 1 1/2 yards of 39 inch material plus 3/4 yard contrasting.

Pattern 1211—It is a smart frock like this that will turn the most immune young lady into an ardent seamstress almost over night. And rightly so, for it's plain to see how becoming are its princess lines, how flattering the wide shoulders and slim waist, yes, and how spicy the swing skirt. A pretty and colorful motif can be had in the use of velvet for the buttons and belt. Monotone broadcloth, black or royal blue, with the collar and cuffs of white linen, is a startlingly chic material for this model. It is available in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 2 1/4 yards of 54 inch fabric plus 3/4 yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Pattern 1210—Which would you have, Madam, an artistic smock or a glamorous house coat? This pattern allows you to make this interesting choice and it has what

THE SUPREME COURT AND FREE SPEECH

Some time ago Oregon passed a law known as the "criminal syndicalism" law. Under it, a citizen of that state was convicted and sentenced to seven years' imprisonment for participation in a Communist meeting, and the state supreme court of Oregon sustained the law and affirmed the conviction. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States on the grounds that the law in question
infringed the right of free speech.
A couple of weeks ago, the Supreme Court sustained this contention and held the law invalid. The decision was unanimous.

A few months ago, following the supreme court decisions on the NRA
and the AAA, our friend Waggoner of the Claude News and numbers of other editors set up a howl accusing the Supreme Court justices as being tools of "big business" and special interests. We don't hear a whimper out of them about this decision.
They should be making the welkin ring with their accusations that the members of the court are a bunch of Communists.

The truth of the matter is that the Supreme Court of the United States is the greatest tribunal on the face of the earth. Its business is to render honest opinions as to legal and constitutional questions brought before it. This novel suggestion that it should be responsive to the will of the people, or in other words should be influenced by public opinion, would destroy the integrity and usefulness of the court.
In holding a law unconstitutional which would prohibit a citizen from participating in a Communist meeting, the Supreme Court did not itself down as being in sympathy with Communism any more than it indicated a partiality for the wealthy and the big manufacturing and commercial concerns when it invalidated the New Deal measures.
It was not a victory for Communism; it was a victory for Free

Speech. On this phase of the matter, we quote from a recent editorial in the Dallas News, which must meet the approbation of all liberty-loving,
thinking citizens:

"On the Pacific Coast, where class lines have tended to become sharply drawn, legislation against radicalism has sometimes reached the point of hysteria. Violations of constitutional guarantees of civil liberties have been common and sometimes have been upheld by local officials.
The Supreme Court's unanimous decision is a needed rebuke to this form of tyranny.

"As long as free speech and a free press are preserved, we need have little immediate fear of dictatorship. The imposition of gag laws on civil liberties is one of the first acts of an individual or a group wishing to rule without the consent of the governed. Freedom is as important an issue now as in the day of Patrick Henry, and it needs to be cherished
just as strongly."

Every step forward in the march of progress brings new problems. For instance, the tractor engine is revolutionizing the business of farming on these broad, level plains. No land owner can be blamed for discarding teams and substituting tractor power on his farm. But the coming of the tractor has resulted in many tenant farmers being evicted from the lands they have been cultivating.
The condition is aggravated by the fact that some progressive farmers have adopted the policy of leasing large bodies of land and farming it with tractors and cheap hired labor.
They can not be blamed for doing this either. But the condition that has arisen may require the attention of our legislative bodies. We think that our state rather than the Federal Government should undertake to correct the evil. It should be made easy and profitable for tenants to acquire homes of their own. But in order that this may be done, land must be made available.
How can this be done? It should be made unprofitable for any one individual to lease large tracts of land to cultivate. Home ownership should be encouraged and land monopoly discouraged in every legiti-mate manner possible. The remedy may seem drastic but it seems to us
fast becoming necessary.

Senator Nelson has introduced a bill to repeal horse-race gambling.
There is evidence that he will have much support for the measure. Not only the moral and religious forces of the state as a rule will line up behind him but also many of the business men of Dallas, Fort Worth, and Houston will support the measure tooth and toenail. They find that betting on the races hurts business. There is possibly no form of gambling that is more demoralizing
than race-horse gambling.

It looks as if the new Speaker of the House at Austin might be going places. Reared, or partly reared, in the State Orphans Home at Corsicana, he studied law after reaching maturity and was admitted to the bar. It was not long until he was elected as a Representative in the legislature from Hill county and rapidly gained front rank in that body.
When the legislature convened in January he was unanimously elected Speaker of the House, at the age of 31. He is reputed to be clean, brilliant, and affable, and he enjoys the high esteem of his associates. We predict that Robert W. Calvert of Hillsboro is going places in Texas politics.

We do not treat kidnapping with the exact persistence that will abolish it. The Mattson kidnapping again portrays America's penchant for this form of crime. It is true that during and after such kidnappings
we are filled with the terrible horror of the crime that has been committed, but this horror isn't lasting enough that it survives long. This is one instance when we should forget foreign peace conferences and declare war in earnest until justice is done. And when and if the kidnaper is finally caught we shouldn't let our sympathies run riot in favor of that kidnaper who has been publicized to the nth degree. As Editor
Hill of the Lynn County News says,
"There is no satisfaction in a life of crime," our task is to prove that there is no satisfaction.—Margaret Hage in Lockney Beacon.

We are not one of those who insist that our courts are inefficient or that our laws are just terrible,
but we do believe that some court
reform measures should be enacted
at the present session of the legislature. We would not give a district judge tyrannical power, but we would give him more power in the direction of his own court to the end that justice may be done in many instances in which it now miscarries. Just a few clear-cut amendments to our present laws and possibly a constitutional amendment or two would work wonders
in the interest of good government.

Already bills have been introduced
for the redistricting of this state.
Under the present law, which should have been replaced with a new one immediately after the 1930 census,
West Texas gets a raw deal. East Texas and some other sections of the state have about three representatives in the legislature to our one. This is no fault of the law, for it was right when it was enacted back in the '20's, but it is the fault of legislators who have refused to permit a new law to be enacted because in the enactment of any new law many of them will be legislated out of jobs. A fair and equitable redistricting law should now be passed.

It may require a long time, but our guess is that the G-men or state officers will finally catch the human beast who kidnaped and murdered the little Mattson boy. They have few clues as to the identity of the fiend as this is written but it is almost impossible for a criminal to cover up such a crime very long.
Murder will out; and this criminal will be caught.

Now comes Maury Maverick, congressman from San Antonio, and proposes that the authority to pass on the constitutionality of federal laws be taken away from the supreme court. If Congress alone is to be both judge and jury in passing on the constitutionality of its own acts, why have a constitution?

RUN-DOWN, anemic people should eat plenty of Bread and iron-rich foods. Scientists agree that, not only is the iron in Bread healthful, but Bread helps you to get the full benefit of the iron from the other foods you eat.

Actual laboratory research, conducted by leading scientists and food experts, proves this interesting fact about Bread. Everyone should eat Bread at every meal because it helps you get and utilize iron for building rich, red blood.

Remember—the iron in Bread is healthful—and that's one reason why Bread is your best and cheapest energy food!

MIDWAY H. D. CLUB
"If your child is not as healthy as he should be, perhaps he is not receiving a balanced diet," said Miss Lillith Boyd to the Midway H. D. Club at the home of Mrs. Howard Draper January 14.
During the business meeting, each member was given her part to be furnished for the teachers' banquet. Mrs. R. L. Littlepage was appointed chairman of the program committee. The treasurer made a financial report. Donations were made to the flower fund and collection made for year books.
Subject of the program as scheduled in the year book was "Planning Nutritional Meals." Miss Boyd exhibited several posters showing the effect of unbalanced diet, and asked each member present to plan meals for her family two successive days. She asked that all make daily meal plans for one week in the near future.
Mrs. Anderson was a visitor.
Members present were: Misses R. T. Cope, J. M. Draper, G. A. Edwards, Rufus Slover, Gladys Taylor, R. L. Littlepage, Pete Curry, Howard Draper, and R. E. Floyd.

BUILDS POULTRY HOUSE
"My new poultry house, which is 10 by 30 feet, faces the south," said Mary Stewart, poultry demonstrator in the Edith 4-H Club.
"My father used new material in constructing the house. He has spent $51.00 for material, including paint. When the weather permits, he will add a concrete floor. Eleven nests have been made and more will be added before it is completed," Mary stated.
The roost is placed at the back of the house away from the side opening. The roost is built to save labor in keeping the house sanitary by being attached to the wall at the back with hinges which permit it to be raised at the front with a small pulley. Mr. Stewart solid-shielded the roof with boxing planks and then covered it with galvanized iron to make it warmer.
The 300 feet of floor space gives ample room for Mary's flock, since the flock is not to be kept under close confinement. Mary has charge of the whole flock of chickens. She is keeping a record in her poultry calendar so she may know how much her profits amount to during the year.

EDITH 4-H CLUB
"I used a patch design for my potholder," said Mary Stewart, president of the Edith 4-H Club, to the members at a called meeting on January 20.
"I placed three thicknesses of an old blanket inside for padding," added Mary.
Four girls have their pot holders completed.
Eva Woods was elected clothing demonstrator.
New members were: Dorothy Jean Brown and Lamyrie Ramsey.
Members present: Juanda Taylor, Dorothy Kahl, Mary Stewart, Rebecca Jenkins, Silve Jenkins, Hazel Jenkins, and Eva Woods. Sponsor: Miss Marie Owens.

GRASSLAND 4-H CLUB
"French seams or flatfell seams may be used in finishing side seams of slips," said Miss Boyd at the meeting of the Grassland 4-H club Jan. 15 at 9 a. m. "Lace can be used if desired," she added.
Lois Dean Jester is a new member of the club.
Other members present were: Viola Roberts, Mary Ruth Edwards, Rubie Greer, Mona Laws, Neida Lois Moor, Marjorie Shepard, Doyce Chapman, Jo Ella Saunders, Mary Alice Norman, Oleta Saunders, Allen Williams, Jimmie Lou Thomas, Billie Williams, Lorene Norman, Faye Blasingame, Frances Allen, Rosalie Thompson, Joy Moore, Billie Greer, Beth Shepard, Jimmie Wheeler and Lois Jean Jesters.

PETTY 4-H CLUB
"Slips may be completely finished on the machine for the dress contest but they will have a neater appearance and possibly score some higher for the top and hem to be finished by hand," Miss Boyd told the Petty 4-H Club members at a regular meeting January 13.
Most of the members have their pot holders completed.
Members present were: Helen Leheu, Kathryn Osborn, Donnie Mae Porter, Veda Porter, Thelma Mae Watkins, Wanda Zell Hemmeline, Wanda Lou Rodgers, Wilma Doris Crews, Dorsene Rodgers, Elyna Cullins; sponsor, Mrs. J. W. Lowrey; teacher, Mrs. Lee Cromer.

Littlefield Citizens Praise Tahokaite
Last week we published a clipping from The Lamb County Leader commending to the people of Tahoka and Lynn county Mr. and Mrs. Roy Young, who recently removed to Tahoka from Littlefield to become managers of the Guarantee Food Market here.
But this week we have received a number of additional letters of commendation. We do not have space to publish these in full but gladly use excerpts from them.
J. C. Hildorn, President of The First National Bank, writes: "Mr. Roy Young has been employed by us in the bank in Littlefield continuously for the past seven years as bookkeeper and assistant cashier. It gives me great pleasure to recommend Mr. and Mrs. Young to the people of Tahoka and Lynn county as worthy of every confidence as to honesty, energy, integrity, dependability, and character. They are real honest-to-goodness people."
Pat Boone, president of the Littlefield Chamber of Commerce, writes: "Before leaving here Mr. Young was associated with the First National Bank as bookkeeper and in our years of dealing with him have found him to be of the type which would be a welcome addition to the business life of any town regardless of its size."
J. S. Hillard, secretary-treasurer of the Littlefield National Farm Loan Association, says: "As a resident of Littlefield for the past fifteen years I wish to state that we regret very much to lose this fine young couple, and I think the people of Tahoka are very fortunate indeed to have them among their number. I can not remember them too highly to your city and community."
Morley B. Drake, editor of the Lamb County Leader: "It gives us great pleasure to heartily recommend to you and your paper Mr. and Mrs. Roy Young, who have recently moved from Littlefield to your city. Our many dealings with both Mr. and Mrs. Young have been a genuine pleasure. We know that they will prove a valuable asset to your community."

State Social Security Office Given Abilene
Abilene, Jan. 21.—Thurmond Krueger, special representative of the Texas Unemployment Compensation Commission, will be stationed in Abilene to assist employers of the surrounding district during the next few weeks, Chairman Director R. B. Anderson announced today.
Krueger's headquarters will be in the Abilene Chamber of Commerce and all employers of that district are urged to go to Krueger for help on problems arising under the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act, Anderson stated.
The district for which Abilene will be headquarters includes Lynn county.
First contributions under the Texas Unemployment Compensation Act will be due January 25, and Krueger will be prepared to assist employers in filling out their contribution report forms and in determining their status under the law.

Son Praises Parents For His Own Success
Madison Yates, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Yates of this county, was installed as county judge of Dawson county on January 1. One of his first acts after taking the oath of office was to write his father and mother a letter, giving them credit for the success he had achieved and expressing his appreciation of their affection and helpfulness.
Not many men, even those occupying the highest positions, are so thoughtful of their parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Yates are rightfully very proud of their son.
Elder R. P. Drennon received word this week that his brother Charley had undergone an operation at San Antonio, Sunday for acute appendicitis. The patient was doing as well as could be expected.
W. A. Fisk, Amarillo, branch manager of the International Harvester company, and F. J. Johnson, Lubbock, blockman, were the guests of Jack Applewhite, the local dealer, Wednesday.

West Texas News

The work is being done by Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees.
An extensive program of bridge and road building is planned, and a combination building including rest rooms, lounges, kitchens, and service rooms, is to be built. Other improvements are being considered.
The biggest county attorney in Texas is Billy Hall of Littlefield, county attorney of Lamb county. Billy is a little less than 28 years old and weighs only 350 pounds. At one time he resided in Tahoka and attended the high school here. Many of his old school-mates here remember him as a unique character.
The school board at Post has re-elected City Superintendent Hayes Holman for a term of three years at an increase in salary each year. Mr. Holman is serving his first year as superintendent of the Post city schools.
The Texas Highway Commission has allocated an additional sum of $50,000 for the paving of Highway No. 15 from Seminole to the New Mexico state line. This is popularly known as the Dal-Paso highway, extending from Dallas to El Paso, passing through Snyder, Lamesa, and Seminole. The new road is to have an asphalt seal coat over the original soil treated with asphaltic oil, it is said.
Taylor county last year paid out $1,625.38 as bounty on rattlesnakes killed in the county. This exceeds the amount paid out the preceding year by $363.79. Persons receiving the bounty get 3 cents per snake up to the first five killed and 2 cents per snake thereafter.

Mrs. J. S. Wells is reported to be much improved after a severe attack of indigestion.
Mrs. Cubana Wells is sick of the flu this week.
Lukewarm warm water, lukewarm rinse water and a moderately warm place for drying are best for washing woollens.
Peroxide of hydrogen will remove perfume stains from linen bureau scarfs.
Equal parts of white vinegar and soft water and a few drops of perfume make a good astringent.
Add two tablespoons of shortening to the griddle cake batter and it will not be necessary to grease the griddle.

ON TO OUR GOAL

With the new semester before us, we see a long period of uninterrupted work. We students should be planning our work for this semester so that we may gain the most by it. Our thoughts should be centered on ending our year's work in a creditable manner. The student body should resolve to make this part of the year better in both the scholastic and disciplinary phases. The loyalty of the students to their school should be stronger and truer than ever before. We should try to make our school a place to which we enjoy going. This spirit can be developed to its fullest extent only if the students all work to make our Tahoka High School the best.

Besides the work and inspiration of our regular school routine, we will have other things to enjoy doing. We will begin spring sports in a very short while. There is nothing that develops a true spirit of good fellowship so greatly as the working together of the students on the athletic fields and in the class rooms for the glory and honor of the school they love. There is a feeling of freedom and comradeship developed between teachers and pupils on the playground that can never quite be reached by the class room relationship. So let us all begin now and work together toward the goal of making our school and our work in it stand out as pleasant memories of our later years.

TAHOKA HIGH SCHOOL BAND

On last Wednesday, Jan. 13, the Tahoka High School band gave a concert at the chapel period. The members of the student body were very pleasantly surprised by the performance. The band now consists of eighteen members. Under the leadership of Mr. Carl Pratt, the boys have made remarkable progress in the last few months. A delightful surprise to the students was a vocal solo "Home on the Range" by Mr. M. L. Penn. The student body joined in singing the last selection played by the band which was "Onward Christian Soldiers." The period ended with a talk by Mr. Penn.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

The students of the English four classes have been spending most of their class periods studying the life of the poet John Milton and his "twin poems" "L'Allegro" and "Il Penseroso". They have greatly enjoyed the reading and interpretation of the poems under the direction of the instructor, Mrs. Lenore M. Tunnell.

PUBLIC SPEAKING CLASS

The last class periods of last week were spent by the students of the Public Speaking class in making talks on "The Value of a Speech Arts Course." Every student took part in the talks. They greatly enjoyed the exchange of ideas.

Mrs. Tunnell tells the students of this class that they will be expected to furnish the material for the speaking events of the Interscholastic League Meet.

SPANISH 2 MEETS

Last week the students of the Spanish 2 Class studied the old Spanish legend of the sun-flower. They found it to be a very beautiful little story. The pupils of the class believe that the study of the Spanish background and history adds much interest to the course.

Mrs. Tunnell suffered from shock last week when Joy Edwin Brown, Robert Maddox and Delton Pemberton all arrived at school one whole minute before the tardy bell rang.

The Puppy's Whine

Patricia Hill, Editor; Wanda Lee Tinsley and Billye Margaret Riddle, Sixth Grade Reporters; Myrna Dean Gaignat and Peggy Fenton, Fifth; Dorothy Gean Applewhite, Grace Jones, Fourth Grade. Teachers report First, Second and Third grades.

The mothers of the P. T. A. are practicing basketball against the teachers.

A very fine poem was written for The Puppy's Whine this week, but the editors of The News say it is against their rules to print amateurs' poems and compositions. La Voyle Richardson is going to make a poet though, we think.

First Grade

We have had an unusual thing to happen in the First Grade. Two little Mexican boys, who cannot speak English, started to school. They are Damacia Hernandez and Bernar Lopez.

Second Grade

We have had some children to enroll. They are: Joe Hernandez, Bently Gaither, and Gwendolyn Gaither.

Third Grade

New pupils in Miss Tippit's room are: Phillip Lopez, Leon Rogers, H. L. McMillan and Kate McMillan. Luis Hernandez is a new pupil in Mrs. Smith's room.

The rooms are decorated with spelling, language, and arithmetic booklets ready for inspection.

Fourth Grade

Miss Williams' room put on a play at chapel Friday entitled "How the Star-Spangled Banner Was Written." Miss Douthit's room presented a play, the title of which was

"The Ostrich Hostess."

Fifth Grade
The Fifth Grade presented a play Friday. It was about "The Pioneers". There were old men and Indians. We hope it was enjoyed very much.

Sixth Grade
We are having exams this week, and we are studying very hard. Both of our rooms are decorating the boards with pictures of Texas heroes, dogs, cats, and flowers.

We are very proud of the way the children are acting in the lunch room at noon. We have appointed some patrolmen to direct us to our seats.

Newmoore

Erms Jean Brandon, Reporter

Miss Evelyn Brandon was married to Mr. Bill Batie of Lamesa, Jan. 16. They will make their home in Lamesa. They will return Saturday from their honeymoon in New Mexico.

Mrs. Winson Pollard, who was Miss Agnes Woods before her recent marriage, was the honoree Tuesday when Mrs. Joe Rogers entertained with a miscellaneous shower.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Moore of Lamesa have been visiting with Mrs. Moore's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hanes. They were entertained with a dance Monday night in Mr. Hanes home.

Mrs. A. G. Crutcher underwent a major operation at a sanitarium in Lamesa recently. She is doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Greys of Lamesa spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. C. King.

There will be a musical entertainment and slight-of-hand performance at the Newmoore school building Tuesday night, Jan. 19.

L. C. Sem and Miss Stella Neepfer of Rotva were guests of Mr. Senn's sister, Mrs. Edward Simpson last Sunday.

Strength During MIDDLE LIFE

Strength is extra-important for women going through the change of life. Then the body needs the very best nourishment to fortify it against the changes that are taking place.

In such cases, Cardui has proved helpful to many women. It increases the appetite and aids digestion, favoring more complete transformation of food into living tissue, resulting in improved nutrition and building up and strengthening of the whole system.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Items of Interest to the Housewife

A simple way to freshen white washing silk which has become yellow through constant washing is to add milk to the rinsing water and allow it to soak for a few minutes before squeezing out.

After putting water and soap in to washing machine let it run for a minute or two to dissolve soap before putting in clothes, if you wish the best results.

Wash chiffons in a soap solution. No rubbing will be required, just rinsing up and down. Don't have the water too hot.

Chairs and sofas upholstered in leather will last and retain their appearance much longer if you apply regularly a mixture of one part vinegar and two parts boiled linseed oil, well shaken together. It not only cleans the leather, but softens it and at the same time prevents its cracking. Apply a little on a soft rag and polish with a silk duster or piece of chamois.

A felt blackboard eraser is best in cleaning the top of the kitchen stove. If grease gets on the stove it should be rubbed over the top of the stove while it is still hot. The eraser is much more satisfactory than a cloth and it keeps the hands from getting soiled.

Chilled, diced oranges mixed with pineapple and sprinkled with coconut make a delicious dessert.

The best way to ventilate a room is to open a window at the top and bottom or one window at the top and another at the other side of the room at the bottom.

Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Cold

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed. How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins. Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds. Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)

Want Roosevelt to Stop Fight

Europe Believes He Can Prevent World War; No Meddling With Constitution

By EARL GODWIN.
WASHINGTON.—Europe wants President Roosevelt to step in and stop that row over there!

European dictators, arming themselves to the teeth on money they could better use to pay off their debt to us in the last war have blustered themselves to the point where they have just got to fight—and how they hate it!

Our State Department knows this from inside sources; and I understand our diplomats have been telling the President that Europe looks to him to prevent a World War which will drag this country into it. The stories we hear show that Europe is apparently scared of itself. Militaristic dictators of these increasingly warlike countries appear to be something like drunken rowdies who have forced themselves into a fight—and then look around for some friend to hold them back. Most of the European troubles can be traced back to the division of spoils at the Versailles treaty after the World War; Germany was stripped of its colonies, and there were other rearrangements of the map. Germany would like its colonies back and American information is that if a World War can be stopped by returning Germany its colonies—this could be accomplished if someone like Roosevelt would suggest it. What is needed is someone who can make these peaceful suggestions without interfering with the prestige of some of the European leaders.

Some time ago it was hinted broadly that the President planned to step in and suggest a friendly talk with Stalin of Russia, Hitler of Germany, Mussolini of Italy all present. At that time, early in the summer, the suggestion was met with varying reactions.

Mr. Roosevelt never completely denied the implications in the published news stories at the time I mentioned; for it involved tremendous and dangerous matters—but the situation has reached a point where Europe may make the suggestion. In which case everyone here believes the President would acquiesce and do what he could to bring peace to the Old World just as he has been working to insure peace in the western world.

CONSTITUTION IS O. K.
All thoughts of amending the Constitution to conform to New Deal ideas have been abandoned in administration ranks since the President himself has said there is nothing the matter with the Constitution—it's the courts that need attention! The President passes on what he has learned this past year—that there is general feeling that "there is little fault to be found with the Constitution."

Several Presidents have criticized the courts; among them was William Howard Taft, himself; who was later Chief Justice of the United States; but memory fails to recall one who, prior to Roosevelt, told congress that the election was a mandate for a legislative program—the reactionary members of the Supreme court, notwithstanding. Those crude words will not be found in the text of the President's first communication to the 75th congress—but they are to be found by those who know how to read between the lines.

The President actually never had any right to make such a statement before he went before congress, because the issue had not been decided by the voters; before election he had his own ideas on the subject, and his ideas became a part of the campaign issue—after election he appeared to have the people's backing to ask all three branches of government—executive, legislative and judicial to keep step in a liberal program.

The President took his text from the Constitution itself; the preamble which is the fountain source of all "general welfare" legislation and Article I which gives to the congress "all" legislative power. When he inferentially questioned the propriety of the Supreme court knocking out the laws made by a congress of peoples' representatives he was not introducing a new idea, for this has been a debated subject for many years. It is a red hot question whenever a law is rendered unconstitutional by a five to four vote, because that seems too close a margin, giving one man on the court too much fateful power. The President has had a long time in which to gauge the sentiment of the country since he told his newspaper friends that the court's narrow attitude toward NRA put us back to the horse and buggy days. The court, too, has had several experiences with other New Deal legislation and in the famous AAA case, the minority members of the court criticized the majority in a bitter opinion written by Justice Stone. In that, the minority, Justices Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo, reminded the rest of the court that there were other branches of the government capable of carrying on. At the time the President made his "horse and buggy" remark, I received the impression that he believed that sooner or later the people of the United States would demand a changed Constitution to guarantee the utilization of the full federal powers in social, economic and agricultural problems. That time may arrive; but apparently the President believes the first step should be a liberal view of the Constitution as it stands.

In other days Theodore Roosevelt was looked upon as a radical when he advocated popular recall of judicial decisions; and that first Roosevelt reminded the people that as radical as he might be he was not even abreast of Abraham Lincoln. The great war President, Theodore Roosevelt recalled, said in his inaugural message the first time that "the people will have ceased to be their rulers" if vital questions affecting all the people rested irrevocably on the Supreme court. In contrast, Franklin Roosevelt's suggestion that the courts have "an enlightened view" is straight and bold, but comparatively conservative.

STATES' RIGHTS.
There has grown up the idea that the founding fathers were completely states' rights men in the sense that they wanted to reduce the federal power to a mere trickle in contrast to the sweeping powers of the infant states. This has developed to the size of an overgrown political and legal fiction in the last two decades by the constant hammering of corporation lawyers who have fought against federal regulation of their clients' affairs. Many court opinions have strengthened this view, but despite all this, court opinions are not the Constitution. No interpretation can make it less powerful than it was held to be by the men who made it; and the debates of the constitutional convention have impressed those who think as Mr. Roosevelt thinks, that the founding fathers were strong for the states—but much stronger for the federal government. In those debates students of the Constitution are again finding that the powers of congress presented no problem to the founders. They believed that the Constitution—guaranteed economic justice and the rights of citizenship; they had no idea of a court that would deny these things after congress had found a way to spread them about.

ASKS FIREARMS LAW.
Homer Cummings, attorney general, believes that it will aid law enforcement if the government knows who owns every pistol and rifle in the country, and again asks congress for a law requiring the registration of every such weapon. Cummings puts up a good case for his idea; he has to deal with the kidnapers and other gangsters—but the previous congress was stopped from enacting a federal firearms law by protests from gun makers as well as hunters.

There is a law for the registration of machine guns; and the manufacturers thereof have an understanding that these weapons are for sale only to the government or to national guard organizations. Gangsters steal them from armories. But pistols and rifles can be freely sold practically without stint—except in such cases as that of New York state which has its Sullivan law prohibiting the ownership of a pistol by a citizen. Opponents of the law say it takes away from the decent citizens the right to arm themselves against the crooks who always manage to have a full arsenal.

JEALOUSY CROPS OUT.
Two sets of government sleuths are fighting for the honor of having put Al Karpis, notorious kidnaper and bandit, behind the bars of a federal penitentiary. The jealousy comes to light in the two separate annual reports of the Post Office and the Attorney General's office, and it is an indication of the reason why the President wants to reorganize the government and have fewer overlapping agencies and bureaus.

Karpis kidnaped E. G. Bremer and W. A. Hamm and immediately the famous G-Men of the Department of Justice were on the trail. Karpis disappeared and did not show a trace until one day the Postal Inspectors, sleuthing on the trail of a train robber, turned up evidence that Karpis had done the job and that he was accompanied by a gangster named Campbell also a kidnaper. Here, then, were the two crooks being chased for two different crimes by two different sets of government detectives.

Postal inspectors have been chasing bandits for years without the publicity which now attends the famous G-Men; and they have a stand-offish feeling about these kidnaper chasers. There was hard feeling in this instance—and some sharp words; but instead of co-operating, the two sets of sleuths pursued their quarry along different lines; and at one time both sets of detectives nearly smashed up the whole game; they almost let Karpis et al get away.

Finally the G-Men got both crooks—and they are both serving life sentences. Now the Post Office Department officially claims that its men picked up the scent which led to the eventual incarceration—while the Department of Justice in its annual report claims credit for the imprisonment of the two men.
