Mrs. P. F. Swan, 62, Highway Worker Drops Dead From Heart Ailment

Fomer Resident, Visiting Son At Wilson, Victim Of Sudden Death, Is Buried Here

Mrs. Lavenia E. Swan, wife of P. F. Swan of Portales, New Mexico, died suddenly Saturday evening at the home of her son, Pat Swann, in Wilson, death resulting from heart trouble.

Mrs. Swann had just come down from Portales in company with some of the family Saturday and had not been at her son's home but about thirty minutes when she was stricken, dying almost instantly. She was in the back yard and stooped to pick up something, when she toppled over, dead.

Funeral services were conducted at the Harris Funeral Home here Sunday afternoon and the remains were laid to rest in the Tahoka cemetery. Services were conducted by Rev. J. T. Howell, pastor of the Methodist Church at Wilson, assisted by Rev. McCasland, pastor of the Baptist Church at Wilson, and by Rev. Ben Hardy, pastor of the Tahoka Methodist Church. A large crowd of relatives and friends were in attendance.

Born in Hill county on July 9, 1874, deceased was married to P. F. Swann on February 12, 1893, at Osceola in Hill county. The family afterwards removed to Comanche county and on November 15, 1915, they arrived in Lynn county to make their home here. They continued to reside on their farm a few miles south of Tahoka until seven or eight years ago, when they re-

Engineering Show Is Held At Tech

The editor and wife had the pleasure Saturday of again attending the Texas Technological Engineering show and a luncheon given in the Lubbock Hotel by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce to visiting newspaper people. Transportation was furnished to the newspaper people from the hotel to the College, where they were chaperoned through the show.

The show was possibly the most elaborate yet given, and more than 7,200 visitors passed through the doors during the two days, Friday and Saturday.

The exhibits were similar to but different in many respects from previous shows. To any one who has not visited one of these shows and especially to any person interested in any branch of science, these are marvelous exhibitions. They cover all the fields of engineering taught at the Tech, civil, textile, electrical, chemical, industrial, geological, mechanical, architectural, etc. In this machine age, the Tech is offering to the young men of Texas and West Texas in particular instruction in all these branches of science that will fit them to hold the best positions in these respective fields.

Dr. Knapp, president of the College, was the principal speaker at the luncheon given at the Lubbock Hotel, and he told briefly of the successes which graduates of the engineering department are achieving.

It was also the pleasure of Mrs. Hill and the editor to visit the new Tech museum recently opened, and we found that it has already become a place of much interest.

The newspaper people who were present were shown every possible courtesy by Dr. Knapp, Chamber of Commerce officials, and the guides who conducted the visitors through the show.

Base Work Started East Of Post City

Gravel base-work on a 12-mile strip of Highway 84 from Yellow-house river to the Kent county line was started recently. The strip will connect the all-weather highway from Post to the river with the hard-surfaced highway that extends through Kent county.

Approximately 100 men are employed on the WPA project.—Post Dispatch.

Highway Worker Is Badly Burned

W. T. Johnson, one of the workmen on highway No. 9 north of town, was most painfully burned on the face and arm late Saturday afternoon when gasoline which he was pouring on a clutch exploded, throwing burning gasoline upon him. The explosion was caused from friction, it is said.

He was brought to Tahoka hurriedly, where Dr. Turrentine dressed and has been treating the burns. The injured man has a room at the Sunshine Inn.

Excellent Rains Cover Plains

The entire plains region of Texas was favored with refreshing rains on Monday and Tuesday of this week. The precipitation in Lynn county ranged probably from a half inch to two inches.

In Tahoka the Government rain gage showed a fall of .68 of an inch. In the New Lynn community and possibly some other localities the rainfall was probably a little less than that. In a large portion of the county, however, the fall was evidently much heavier than it was here. Most of the county was thoroughly soaked. There was already much moisture in the soil, and these rains have placed an unusually good season in the ground.

Some planting had been done last week, but planting is now beginning on a large scale. Both feed crops and cotton are being planted. Never did the county have better prospects at this time of the year than it has now. There is a larger wheat acreage in the county than usual, and the wheat is looking fine. There are some oats also, and they likewise are very promising. Lynn county relies chiefly on cotton and the grain sorghums, however, as its money crops.

Reports from over the North Plains and the Panhandle are to the effect that refreshing rains in varying amounts also visited that entire section of the state. The wheat in most of that territory, which is their principal crop, is said to be very promising. It will need more rain, however, to mature a bumper crop.

Women's Exhibit At Dairy Show

The Exhibit Committee of the County Council of Lynn County Home Demonstration Clubs has an educational exhibit in the Plainview Dairy Show, which opened Wednesday and continues through Saturday.

The purpose of the exhibit is to show the importance of milk in the diet, stressing the essentials of teeth building. Mrs. R. W. Bartoo of New Lynn and Mrs. Joe Poindexter of New Home are in charge of the exhibit.

Miss Lilith Boyd, county home demonstration agent, was a visitor at the show Wednesday and Thursday. The Three Lakes, Dixie, and Friendship (Edith) and possibly other clubs in the county were also represented at the show.

State Refinances O'Donnell Bonds

A project which has been under way for more than five years has at last been accomplished, and we are at liberty to announce the refinancing of $90,000 worth of bonds of the O'Donnell Independent School District. Official notification of the action of the State Board was received last week by W. E. Singleton, treasurer of the local board.—O'Donnell Index.

Dottie Turrentine Is Dairy Show Princess

Miss Dottie Turrentine represented Tahoka High School as princess at a tea given in honor of the queen and her princesses at the Plainview Dairy Show Wednesday. Miss Eloise Roberts attended. Miss Turrentine as duchess. Misses Turrentine and Roberts were accompanied by Nathan Woosley and James Thompson respectively.

Dallas Man Leases And Plans Reopening Of Keltner Hotel

The old Keltner Hotel, now the property of the Temple Trust Company, will be reopened today or tomorrow under the management of C. B. Jones, late of Dallas.

The building has been thoroughly renovated and redecored throughout. New mattresses and other furnishings have been installed, and the hotel with its 32 guest rooms, shower baths, tub baths, and other conveniences promises to be one of the best country hostleries in this part of the state.

Mr. C. B. Jones and wife have had much hotel experience and they say that it shall be their determination to make this hotel one of the best and most popular in this section.

VACATE ST. CLAIR HOTEL

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Henderson have vacated the St. Clair Hotel building and removed to their farm. The building is to be torn down and converted into an automobile tire store and service station at an early date, we understand. Oscar Roberts is now owner of the property.

Hobbs Pastor Will Conduct Revival

Announcement was made at the Baptist Church Sunday that Rev. John W. Williams, pastor of the Baptist Church at Hobbs, New Mexico, has been procured to do the preaching in the evangelistic campaign to be begun in the church here on June 20. Rev. George A. Dale asserts that the Hobbs man is one of the strongest preachers in this entire section of the country. Ira M. Powell, educational director of the First Baptist Church of Big Spring, will be in charge of the music.

The meeting will begin on the third Sunday in June and continue two weeks.

The Texas Almanac Supplement Out

The News has received a complimentary copy of the 1937 Supplement to the Centennial Edition of the Texas Almanac published by the Dallas News.

We find this supplement to be filled with valuable information and data concerning events which have transpired since the publication of the Centennial edition. It is invaluable to any professional or business man or to any person desiring to keep informed respecting the progress of our great state.

NOTARIES MUST HURRY

Senator G. H. Nelson requests that we announce that any one desiring to be appointed Notary Public should get in touch with him at once. Your application must be in his hands by May 1. Address Senator G. H. Nelson, Senate Chamber, Austin, Texas.

Thefts Of Cotton Seed Revealed

District Attorney Truett Smith reports that four young men of Dawson county were indicted by the grand jury in session in Lamesa last week for the alleged theft of large quantities of cotton seed from the oil mill at that place. From ten to twelve tons of seed were stolen at different times and there are three indictments for felony theft against each of the four men.

Two of the men are also under indictment for the theft of 57 cases of eggs from a produce house there. The eggs were taken to Wichita Falls and sold.

The cases will probably be tried at the present term of the court. Judge R. S. Garland was elected by the Lamesa bar to hold court during the enforced absence of the new district judge, Louis B. Reed, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Myrtle Rochell and children of Lubbock were visitors in the editor's home Saturday night and Sunday.

Harris Making Town Lot Improvements

W. M. Harris is constantly improving the lots lying across the street south of the funeral home with a view to building a new funeral home on this property a little later.

Some months ago he set out some trees and shrubbery on this property, and now he is preparing to lay some concrete sidewalks and possibly a concrete curb around the property. He has also had the street lying between this property and the funeral home treated to a layer of crushed rock, so as to greatly eliminate the mud nuisance when it rains and the dust when it doesn't.

We can not speak authoritatively, but it looks as if Mr. Harris were preparing to construct a new, beautiful and commodious funeral home on this property this fall or sooner.

Mrs. M. T. White spent last week in Amarillo visiting her brother and his family.

Music Teachers Attend Lectures

Mrs. J. K. Applewhite and Mrs. M. H. Edwards attended an all-day series of lectures for piano teachers given by John Thompson, director of the Kansas City Conservatory of Music, in San Angelo Monday.

Mmes. Applewhite and Edwards went down to Ballinger Sunday, accompanied by their little daughters, Dorothy Jean Applewhite and Joan Edwards. Mrs. Applewhite and Dorothy Jean spent Sunday night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Layne Moreland, former residents of Tahoka, and Mrs. Edwards and Joan visited her aunt, Mrs. G. B. Nixon, who also resided in Tahoka at one time.

Woodmen Circle Is Being Organized

Mrs. Kate Kidwell of Abilene, district manager of the Woodmen Circle, assisted by Mrs. Kate Jackson of Brownwood, is here this week undertaking to organize or reorganize the Woodmen Circle here. It is said that they are meeting with much encouragement. The Woodmen Circle is a ladies auxiliary of the Woodmen of the World.

Mrs. Jackson is the mother of Mrs. M. T. White of the Piggy-Wiggly store, and is here visiting her daughter.

SLUMP IN CRIME

The sheriff's office Monday reported that the population of the county jail had been reduced to three, the smallest number in jail here for months. Criminal activities in this county are delightfully quiet at this time.

Nevels Says Wool Crop Promising

W. D. Nevels is one cow-man who holds no prejudice against sheep and goat raisers. In fact, he has quite a herd of sheep and a few goats himself. He clipped his mohair a few weeks ago and received 60 cents per pound for it. He says the animals had shed much of their mohair, however, before he decided it was warm enough to shear them.

He will not shear his sheep until late in May, but he says the wool crop promises to be excellent. Wool is worth about 35 cents per pound. An average of eight or ten pounds of wool per sheep is pretty good production, though he has a few fine animals that promise to yield as much as 20 pounds of wool.

Mr. Nevels went into the sheep business in a small way several years ago and has gradually increased his flock until he now has about 500 head, including lambs. He has about 160 goats. Of course he has a bunch of fine whiteface cows too, for W. D. is an old-time cow man. But when the cattle business went on the bum a few years ago, he decided to try sheep, and now he is proud of his flock.

Operation Is Had By District Judge

Judge Louis B. Reed, new judge of the 106th judicial district, became suddenly ill while holding court in his home town, Lamesa, on Wednesday morning of last week, according to the Lamesa Reporter. At the noon hour a physician was summoned and the Judge was sent to a local hospital immediately for an operation for appendicitis.

At last reports the Judge's condition was satisfactory.

Sideswipes Truck, Assaults Driver

As Howard Wheeler was driving his truck leisurely along Main Street last Friday, along came another man in a car driving in the same general direction.

Main Street was so narrow, however, not being much more than a hundred feet wide, that the stranger didn't have sufficient room to pass the truck. So, he innocently sideswiped it, tearing away a fender, or part of it, and doing other damage. His own car sustained considerable damage also.

Both drivers alighted. The stranger seemed somewhat provoked because the truck had gotten in his way. When Wheeler suggested to him that he might drive more successfully if he would sober up, the fellow turned pugilist. He made a side-swipe at Wheeler in an apparent effort to reduce him to the same general condition as the truck, and there was nothing left for Wheeler to do but to exercise his constitutional right of self defence. City Marshal Mit Finch was near by, however, and promptly intervened in the combat. He took the gentleman of strong breath but wobbly legs to jail, where he remained till Sunday. He got out by paying a fine for drunkenness, another for fighting, and by making bond to appear at the next term of the district court to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

The gentleman is said to be a resident of Hale county.

Tahoka Couple Wed At Mt. Pleasant

Relatives and friends here have been advised of the marriage of Vance Tredway and Miss Bonnie Lee, which event took place one day last week at Mt. Pleasant, where the young man is employed.

The groom is the son of the late Purter Tredway and was practically reared in Tahoka. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lee and has resided here the past two or three years.

They are popular young people with many friends here who wish them the very richest joys that life can bring.

O'Donnell Graduate On School Board

H. C. Line of O'Donnell is enjoying a distinction which has come to few men in this section of the state, and so far as we can learn, the only man in this school district to achieve the honor of serving on the Board of Education for the school from which he graduated. He was a member of the graduating class of 1925, when Mrs. Line also graduated from the local high school.

C. E. Ray and W. E. Simmons were re-elected to serve as trustees.—O'Donnell Index.

Tankersleys Visit In Three States

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Tankersley and two children returned Friday night from a ten days visit with relatives at Bartlesville, Oklahoma, Rogers, Ark., and points in Missouri. Mrs. Tankersley says that the wheat in Oklahoma was fine and the fruit crop in Arkansas and Missouri promised to be immense. The Ozarks were very beautiful, and they went fishing and made a big catch while in that section. But after arriving home Friday night, Hubert awoke Saturday morning with the mumps. He has been in bed since.

Electrification Of Farms Possible On REA Plan

Meeting Is Called For Saturday To Discuss Plans For Lines To The Rural Sections

A group meeting of farmers is called for Friday afternoon at 3:00 p. m. in the district court room in Tahoka to hear a discussion of a Government Rural Electrification project for Lynn county, according to V. F. Jones, county agent.

A rural electrification engineer will be in Tahoka on that day to explain the set-up to farmers. Mr. Jorjes advises farmers of the county who are interested in such a project to be here for that meeting.

Interest in rural electrification is growing throughout the nation, and many such projects are being planned. Some are already under construction. Electricity can do more to bring city conveniences to the farm than almost any other agency.

For the benefit of those who may be interested, it should be stated that no farmer entering an REA cooperative is required to mortgage his property. No member of a cooperative is liable for debts of another member. There is no liability whatever on the part of the individual consumer except to pay for the current he uses.

It is hoped and expected that a large group of farmers will be in the meeting here this afternoon.

Beautifying Grade School Grounds

The yard beautification campaign that was waged in Tahoka last year is still bearing much good fruit. Not only are home owners already busy adorning their own premises, but the movement has spread so as to include our public buildings and grounds.

Recently the Parent-Teachers Association of Tahoka resolved to beautify the premises of the new grade school building, and when a group of public-spirited women undertake a thing they usually get the job done. These women have this week had a fine selection of shrubs planted out along the front of this building, and any one with a tiny bit of imagination can vision the beauty of these premises a few years hence.

Included in the selection are such shrubs as these: Lodense, pyracantha, eucynymus, nandina, column junipers, pitzer junipers, Dundee cedars, etc. They are planning to have Bermuda grass planted on the premises this summer so as to have a beautiful grassy lawn.

In order that these shrubs may be irrigated as economically as possible, the ladies have had a sub-irrigation system of hollow tile laid beneath the surface of the soil alongside the plants. This tile was made by the students of the vocational agriculture department of the Tahoka High School under the supervision of the teacher, Cecil Ayers. The beds for the plants and the ditches for the tile were dug by the NYA boys.

Mrs. Claude Donaldson is president of the Parent-Teachers Association, and the committee which has had charge of this beautification project consists of Mrs. L. C. Haney, chairman, Mrs. L. E. Turrentine, Mrs. Irvin Stewart, Mrs. V. F. Jones and Mrs. Sam Holland.

Red Cross Announces Training School

The American Red Cross will conduct a First Aid and Water Safety Training School at Brownwood on June 28 to July 3, to provide training for leadership in chapters' First Aid or Life Saving programs, according to a communication received Tuesday by Hon. Tom Gardner from the St. Louis office.

Any person interested in such a training course should consult Mr. Gardner or write the American Red Cross office at St. Louis.

SERVICES AT GORDON

Nasarene Services will be held at Gordon Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. J. C. Allen will preach and the Moore quartet will furnish music. Everybody invited.

Effect of Wagner Act Validation on National Labor Policy and Supreme Court Controversy—President Orders Curtailment of Expenditures.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

VALIDATION of the Wagner act brought the administration up against the necessity of formulating a new national labor policy to prevent strikes and to determine what course shall be followed when collective bargaining is unsuccessful. For this purpose Secretary of Labor Perkins invited 33 leaders of industry and labor to attend private meetings in Washington, stating they would be asked to discuss the need of new safeguards for industry to balance the gains achieved by labor under the Wagner act. Among those Madame Perkins invited were William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization; Myron C. Taylor, board chairman of United States Steel corporation; Gerard Swope, board chairman of General Electric corporation; Harper Sibley, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and government officials.

Certain of the President's advisers have told him a law requiring the incorporation of labor unions should be passed; or that at least there should be a law similar to the British trades union act which provides that all union funds must be accounted for to the government and that unions cannot participate in sympathy or general strikes. Organized labor always has opposed any such legislation and probably would continue to fight against it. John L. Lewis thinks one result of the Wagner act decision may be the abandonment of the sit-down strike, though this, he says, depends on the attitude taken by employers in the operation of the act. "Under the court's decision," says Lewis, "workers now have machinery for adjudication of disputes and the making of contracts with employers. Everything depends on the attitude of employers, who showed no disposition to be generous although the right of labor to gather together for its protection had been conceded for a lifetime."

HOW does the upholding of the Wagner labor relations act affect the battle over the President's plan to enlarge the Supreme court? That question arose at once on announcement of the decisions and received various answers. Opponents of the President's bill declared the necessity for such a measure, if it ever existed, was entirely removed by this showing of liberal tendencies by a majority of the court; and many supporters of Mr. Roosevelt admitted that some compromise such as the appointment of two new justices instead of six, might be advisable. But the President himself let it be known that he wished his program pushed through without modification. The favorable majority of one, created by the shift of Justice Roberts, did not seem to him safe enough.

This position of the President was taken also by some of his cabinet members. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace declared that agriculture could expect nothing from the Supreme court as now constituted, and urged American farmers to give the Roosevelt plan their earnest support. Attorney General Cummings declared that the four justices who dissented from the court's decision that the Wagner act is constitutional still constitute a "battalion of death" and will continue to oppose all major New Deal social legislation.

John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., asserted the Supreme court had demonstrated its "instability" anew and that the Wagner act decisions only made more imperative the need for enlarging the court. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, whip of the senate, predicted that the President's court plan would emerge from the judiciary committee "a much compromised, amended and generally transformed measure."

CHIEFS of executive departments, independent officers and other spending units of the government were called on by President Roosevelt to reduce expenditures up to the end of the fiscal year June 30. In his letter to them the President said: "It is apparent at this time that the revenues of the government for the present year will be materially less than the amount estimated in my budget message of last January; and, hence, the deficit will be far greater than was anticipated unless there is an immediate curtailment of expenditure."

"You will carefully examine the status of appropriations for your activity with a view to making a substantial saving by eliminating or deferring all expenditures which are not absolutely necessary at this time. You will report to me through the acting director of the budget not later than May 1, 1937, the steps which you are undertaking to reduce expenditures and the amount of the estimated saving resulting therefrom."

SOUTHERN congressmen found they were no longer in the saddle when the house by a vote of 276 to 119 passed the anti-lynching bill. The debate was furious and the representatives from the South were deeply resentful. "For more than 100 years the people of the South have kept life in the Democratic party," declared Representative E. E. Cox of Georgia, "and now that that party has grown powerful it turns upon the South and proposes to pass this wicked and cowardly law. This bill is directed just as much against the South as any reconstruction bill passed after the Civil war."

The bill was sponsored by Representative Joseph Gavagan of New York whose district includes the big negro city of Harlem. It provides that any state officer who surrenders a prisoner to a mob shall be guilty of a felony and subject to prosecution and severe penalties. In addition, the county in which a lynching occurs shall be liable for $2,000 to $10,000 damages, to be paid to the family of the lynched person. Proponents of the measure were greatly aided by a mob in Mississippi that took two negroes from a sheriff and tortured and burned them to death. The local authorities were supine and called the shocking affair a "closed incident."

MITCHELL HEPBURN, premier of Ontario, reiterating his determination not to permit C. I. O. representatives from the United States to take part in negotiations for settlement of the strike in the General Motors of Canada plant at Oshawa, promised to "call out an army if necessary" to protect the property of the corporation. Hugh Thompson, U. A. W. A. organizer, barred by Hepburn, threatened that every General Motors plant in America would be closed unless the Oshawa strike were settled soon with recognition of the union demands. Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W. A., called Hepburn a number of unpleasant names. The Toronto Trades and Labor Council pledged the support of its 40,000 members to the union's strike against General Motors.

Hepburn forced two of his ministers to resign, charging they were not supporting the government in its fight against the inroads of the Lewis organization and communism in general. They are David A. Croll, who held the labor, municipal affairs and public welfare portfolios, and Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck. Axel Hall, young mayor of Oshawa, who has been friendly to the strikers and critical of Hepburn's action, sent an "ultimatum" to President Martin of the Automobile Workers of America demanding that members of the union in the United States strike in support of the Oshawa local. The latter body adopted a resolution demanding that Premier Hepburn withdraw from the negotiations to make way for intervention by the dominion authorities.

In Montreal 5,508 women garment workers, members of the C. I. O. international union, employed in 72 plants, started a strike for higher wages; and in Fernie, B. C., 1,000 C. I. O. miners threatened to strike for union recognition.

WHEN George VI is crowned king of Great Britain on May 12, Robert Worth Bingham, our ambassador to London, and James W. Gerard, President Roosevelt's special ambassador to the coronation, will appear in Westminster abbey garbed in silk knee breeches and ordinary evening tailed dress coats. The State department in Washington consented to a modification of the ruling which bars American diplomats from wearing gala clothes at state functions. The costume decided upon is not full court dress but the duke of Norfolk, who is earl marshal, will let it go as such.

FOR the second time in two years the house passed the Pettingill bill to repeal the "long and short haul" clause of the interstate commerce act. This law prohibits railroads from charging lower rates for a long haul than for a shorter one on the same route in the same direction, and it hampers the roads greatly in their competition, with water and truck carriers for long distance traffic.

Some of the conditions commonly found in overweights are: heart disease; disorders of the kidneys; disorders of the blood-vessels, especially increased blood pressure and hardening of the arteries; gall bladder dyspepsia — gas pressure; diabetes; constipation; and dyspnea (getting out of breath easily). The heart, blood-vessel and kidney group of disorders are the commonest complications and occur in a large proportion of overweights. In the treatment of heart, blood-vessel and kidney ailments the amount of protein (meat, eggs, fish) in the diet must be reduced. And rest is absolutely necessary. The usual method of trying to reduce weight in an individual with heart, kidney or bloodvessel complication is not to cut out the proteins completely but to give just half the usual quantity. "The diet is necessarily composed largely of fruits and vegetables; hence, it also becomes a distinctly alkaline-ash diet."

Alkaline-Ash Diet

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

ONE of the discouraging conditions encountered by a physician who is endeavoring to reduce the weight of a patient is to find some organic ailment of the body present which interferes with the usual system of treatment — decreasing the amount of food eaten and increasing the amount of exercise.

Some of the conditions commonly found in overweights are: heart disease; disorders of the kidneys; disorders of the blood-vessels, especially increased blood pressure and hardening of the arteries; gall bladder dyspepsia — gas pressure; diabetes; constipation; and dyspnea (getting out of breath easily). Two Sample Diets. Dr. Harry Gauss, instructor in medicine, University of Colorado, school of medicine, in his book, "Clinical Diets" gives seven different daily diets of 1,200 calories two of which are given below. The amounts are put roughly in ounces instead of centimeters and grams. Breakfast: Orange juice 5 ounces; whole wheat cereal, cooked, 3 1/2 ounces; whole milk 2 ounces; sugar 1/2 ounce; whole wheat bread, toasted, 1/2 ounce; butter 1/4 ounce. Lunch: Vegetable soup 4 ounces; salad (apples, celery, walnuts) 2 1/2 ounces; asparagus 3 1/2 ounces; whole wheat bread 3/4 ounce; fresh peach 3 1/2 ounces; whole milk 7 ounces. Dinner: Sirloin steak 2 ounces; baked squash 3 1/2 ounces; salad (tomato and lettuce) 5 ounces; string beans 3 1/2 ounces; whole wheat bread 2 ounces; grapefruit 7 ounces. Breakfast: Grapefruit 7 ounces; whole wheat cereal, cooked 3 1/2 ounces; whole milk 2 ounces; rye toast 3/4 ounce; butter 1 ounce. Lunch: Salad (cottage cheese, fresh pineapple, lettuce) 3 1/2 ounces; stewed carrots 3 1/2 ounces; whole wheat bread 3/4 ounce; fresh sliced peach 4 ounces; lemonade, one glass, 8 ounces. Dinner: Vegetable soup 4 ounces; spinach 3 1/2 ounces; cole slaw 3 1/2 ounces; small baked potato 3 1/2 ounces; whole wheat bread 3/4 ounce; fresh grapes 3 1/2 ounces; orange juice 5 ounces.

Quinine Test for Goiter. When a patient shows an enlargement (slight or large) in the thyroid gland in the neck, together with a rapid heart, trembling of the limbs or general nervousness, the physician usually advises a metabolism test to find out whether or not the severe type of goitre is present. In this type all the processes including the heart beat are going too rapidly. The patient goes to the hospital or to the physician's office without breakfast some morning, rests for about an hour, and then the rate at which the body processes are working is measured by this "metabolism" test. Sometimes more than one examination is made if the patient seems much excited. It is interesting to read in the Journal of Clinical Medicine, St. Louis, of the observations of Dr. I. Bram, Philadelphia, who states that "from my observations in a series of more than 4,000 cases it appears that the quinine test for the severe form of goitre is a dependable guide; the chance or frequency of being wrong being only one in every twenty cases (5 per cent)."

The ability to take or withstand quinine appears to vary in different individuals but in exact ratio or proportion to the metabolism rate (rate at which the body processes work) so that the higher the rate the more quinine the individual can take without having any symptoms of quinine poisoning. These symptoms are fullness in the head, headache, a roaring sound in the ears which interferes slightly with the hearing. There may be also skin eruptions, dizziness, complete deafness and blindness for a while, nose bleeding and vomiting. This simple test—the more quinine the patient can stand the more serious the goitre condition—has the advantage of requiring no costly apparatus, no starving and no resting.

Too Much Sugar Irks Congress

Frets Over Necessity of Limiting Output; Navy Second to None Is Government Plan

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON. — Too much sugar! Too much sugar in the cane brakes and in the sugar beet areas; too much sugar produced in Java as well as in Cuba. New Orleans fighting against Denver—because sugar is a mainstay in each of these widely separated cities—and the whole business is concentrated at Washington where congress is now fretting over the necessity to establish limits on sugar production and importation and at the same time subsidize our domestic sugar cane and sugar beet growers.

President Roosevelt has sent a message to congress suggesting the necessity for new sugar quotas; it looks to me that as a result of his efforts to make everyone happy someone will have to be stung, and this year I think the sugar refiners are elected for that disappointment. Their hope is for a clear field—but I'll miss my guess if they don't have to suffer the competition of sugar from some of our wards and neighbors—Puerto Rico and Hawaii especially.

Congressmen and senators from beet and cane areas are waiting almost with clubs to repel the first sign of increased shipments from the various islands I mentioned—and yet those islands need sugar prosperity and need it badly. The Department of Agriculture has planned to put Hawaii and Puerto Rico on about the same level as our own domestic sugar. That permits raw sugar from those islands to compete with continental United States sugar—and what a row that is making in congress. Also, there's a word of caution from the Philippines. The wily Japanese are waiting to see whether we rebuff the Philippine sugar business. If so, Japan will open the door wide for Philippine sugar, sugar cane, molasses and so forth. Then the Japs would have a fine opportunity to make commonwealth on commercial terms.

Head men in the administration feel that a large part of the ill feeling in congress among representatives of various sugar interests has been fomented by strong sugar-refining lobbies. American sugar manufacturers, it is claimed (and the President is said to share this belief) have aroused an antagonism against Puerto Rico and Hawaii, which are looked upon by our government as a part of the American area under the stars and stripes. What the refiners and continental producers would like is a quota reducing the amount of sugar to come from Hawaii and Puerto Rico. The administration does not favor this reduction and the matter is being fought out in congressional committees—and it will be in the open soon.

Entering our twenty-first year after our declaration of war against Germany April 6, 1917, we recall President Wilson's dramatic appeal for arms "to make the world safe for democracy," and find that democracy seems to be concentrated in France, England, and a few minor Scandinavian countries, the United States—and South American governments which are democratic in name at least. The diplomatic effort of most of these countries is to cement an agreement which will bind us all together in case of a war in which democracy will be under fire again—from Fascism or Communism.

England and France are apparently building up some sort of a foundation on which they will be able to ask for credit or aid of some sort in the event they need it for war purposes. The constant procession of their best statesmen and diplomats over here has nothing else but that as an objective. Our present law prevents the outright loan of money to any country which has not made a "satisfactory" arrangement as to its war debts. This word "satisfactory" is the key to the whole business—anything our government says is "satisfactory" is legally an open door to more credit. We may sometime say that a mere token payment of a few dollars is a "satisfactory" settlement; and let England and France in again to use our goods and credit to help stave off the war which we presume will engulf Europe.

One fine thing we took to heart after the World war was the reduction of armaments. We actually sent our battleships to the scrap heap. Now we are building up our navy again simply because other navies, led by Japan, will not walk in the ways of peace. So, as we once led the world in reducing, we're out in front now in the way of building a navy that will be an adequate defense against the encroachments of a mad dog dynasty in Europe. It is difficult for the average peace-loving American to understand how a government can talk peace and expand navies; yet the sincere desire of this government is to maintain peace throughout the world. To the average peace-lover who does not believe in navies, all that can be said is that there is a difference of opinion as to the best means of guaranteeing peace.

Again, we are building on the idea of a "navy second to none," and if we are to have a navy, there is no use in having one that can be licked. As they say here "a second best navy is no better than a second best poker hand when called." And so, with reluctance, this summer we start building two battle-ships; the cost of which is now placed at $60,000,000 apiece. Already building or scheduled are 85 other war vessels. Three great ships to carry huge flocks of airplanes on smooth flat decks; 11 cruisers; 54 destroyers and 17 submarines. (Nine German submarines kept the world in terror during the World war). . . . Naval experts believe we can in five years rebuild our navy to adequate strength to protect our 21,000 mile coast line.

Hundreds of millions of dollars of the naval appropriation goes to the steel business, which now soars to 1929 figures—the best ever. With the navy buying, and with Great Britain and business buying steel again, no wonder the steel magnates are willing to increase wages. Yet their increased pay does not justify, the President thinks, the boost in the price of steel—an increase of about $6 a ton. But there is a huge boost in all the heavy goods industries, especially steel, and if there is too much bridge and building construction there is danger of another cessation in the immediate use of these products—and a consequent depression by reason of the lay-offs of labor.

Hence the government pipes down on heavy public works and determines that whatever relief work there is for the unemployed shall be largely labor. Building earthen dykes and dams in rural sections is a good example—most of that expense is payroll costs—money which goes into wages that immediately goes to the storekeeper for food and clothing. That kind of money keeps the "consumer goods" business rolling. The factories which supply our daily needs are stimulated and maintained through that sort of spending. This change of policy is going to cause many a heartache. More than three thousand public buildings, dams, power plants, etc., have been planned and pleaded for by the authorities of every county—but the chances are that for months to come there will be more channel dredging and dyke and dam building than schoolhouse construction with the public money from Washington.

We hear a lot of loose talk and read a lot of frenzied and emotional writing about Roosevelt becoming a "dictator," but he's a long way from dictatorship. In fact, the latest political maneuver was a slap in Roosevelt's face by congress which some of our truculent opposition speakers and editors refer to constantly as "the rubber stamp body." No sooner had Roosevelt sent congress a message on the subject of a reorganized and efficient government set-up manned by government employees chosen for merit and ability without regard to politics (the civil service rule), than congress set to work to frame a new government body devoid of up-to-date civil service principles, but offering a wide open pork barrel to the hungry politicians. In other words, the President asked congress to quit being merely political and do something constructive, and congress answers by going as far into the political muck as any spoilsman outfit of the old days.

The Guffey bill, just passed, establishes a new NRA for the bituminous coal business, and probably will smooth out the chaotic condition in that much distressed industry. There is need for such a stabilizer, but it will be administered at the price of merit in federal government. In the first place Joe Guffey, United States senator from Pennsylvania, saw to it that the head of this stabilizing process would be a body of eight men instead of merely one administrator. The eight are to draw ten thousand dollars a year apiece. That is nearly as many members as there are in the President's cabinet of ten, who run the regular federal government and are paid only $15,000 apiece.

Eight men at $10,000 apiece is a splendid bit of political pie right now; and the rest of the personnel story is almost unbelievable in the face of the President's vigorous plea to improve the government by civil service and merit methods. There will be about ten thousand employees needed for this coal commission; probably one half of whom will be clerks, stenographers, typists, etc. The rest will be "special agents" and so called "field men" and "attorneys" without end. The bill does not limit the number. They are not subject to civil service or any other test of merit—simply an army of deserving voters picked for their stalwart support of the prevailing United States senator or member of congress.

THE GARDEN MURDER CASE

By S.S. VAN DINE
COPYRIGHT S.S. VAN DINE W.N.U. SERVICE

CHAPTER XIII

Vance seemed profoundly puzzled and said nothing for some time. Then he glanced up suddenly. "How much light was there in the room?" he asked.

"Only a dim shaded night-light by my bed."

"In that case, you might conceivably have mistaken an empty bottle for one filled with a colorless fluid."

"Yes, of course," the nurse returned reluctantly. "That must have been the case. Unless . . . Her voice trailed off.

"Tell me, when did you discover that all the medicine was gone?" Vance asked.

"Shortly before Doctor Siefert arrived this morning. I moved the bottle when I was arranging the table, and realized it was empty."

"I think that will be all just now, Miss Beeton." Vance glanced at the girl sombrely and then turned away. "Really, y' know, I'm deuced sorry. But you'd better not plan on leaving here just yet. We will undoubtedly want to see you again today."

Heath, who had been waiting in the passageway for the girl's dismissal, came in to report that Siefert and Doremus had departed, and that Floyd Garden had made the arrangements for the removal of his mother's body.

"And what do we do now, Mr. Vance?" Heath asked.

"Oh, we carry on, Sergeant." Vance was unusually serious. "I want to talk to Floyd Garden first. Send him up. And call one of your men; but stay on the job downstairs yourself till he arrives. We may get this affair cleared up today."

Footsteps sounded in the passageway, and Floyd Garden entered the study. He appeared deeply shaken. "I can't stand much today. What do you want?"

"We understand just how you feel," Vance said. "It was not my intention to bother you unnecessarily. But if we are to get at the truth, we must have your co-operation."

"Go ahead, then," Garden murmured.

"We must have as many details as possible about last night. Did your expected guests come?"

Garden nodded cheerlessly. "Oh, yes. Zalia Graem, Madge Weatherby, and Kroon."

"Was there any one else here?"

"No, that was all."

"Which of your visitors arrived first?"

Garden took the pipe from his mouth and looked up swiftly.

"Zalia Graem. She came at half-past eight, I should say. Why?"

"Merely garnerin' facts," Vance replied indifferently. "And how long after Miss Graem came in did Miss Weatherby and Kroon arrive?"

"About half an hour. They came a few minutes after Miss Beeton had gone out."

Vance returned the man's steady scrutiny.

"What time did your guests depart?" he asked.

"A little after midnight. Sneed brought in sandwiches about half-past eleven. Then we had another round of highballs."

"Miss Beeton had returned by then, of course?"

"Yes, long before that. I heard her come in about eleven."

"And after your guests had gone, what did you do?"

"I sat up for half an hour or so, had another drink and a pipe; then I shut up the front of the house and turned in."

Vance lit another cigarette, took several deep inhalations on it, and settled himself deeper in the chair.

"To go back a bit," he said casually. "The sleeping medicine Doctor Siefert prescribed for your mother seems to constitute a somewhat crucial point in the situation. Did you have occasion to give her a dose of it while the nurse was out?"

Garden drew himself up sharply and set his jaw.

"No, I did not," he said through his teeth.

Vance took no notice of the change in the man's manner.

"The nurse, I understand, gave you explicit instructions about the medicine before she went out. Will you tell me exactly where this was?"

"In the hall," Garden answered with a puzzled frown. "Just outside the den door. I had left Zalia in the drawing-room and had gone to tell Miss Beeton she might go out for a while. I waited to help her on with her coat. It was then she told me what to do in case the mater woke up and was restless."

"And when she had gone you returned to the drawing-room?"

"Yes, immediately." Garden still looked puzzled. "That's exactly what I did. And a few minutes later Madge and Kroon arrived."

There was a short silence during which Vance smoked thoughtfully.

"Tell me, Garden," he said at length, "did any of your guests enter your mother's room last night?"

Garden's eyes opened wide; color came back into his face, and he sprang to his feet.

"Good God, Vance! Zalia was in mother's room!"

Vance nodded slowly. "Very interesting. Yes, quite . . . I say, do sit down. Light your beastly pipe, and tell us about it."

Garden hesitated a moment. He laughed harshly and resumed his seat.

"Damn it! You take it lightly enough," he complained. "That may be the whole explanation."

"One never knows, does one?" Vance returned indifferently. "Carry on."

Garden had some difficulty getting his pipe going again.

"It must have been about ten o'clock," he said at length. "The mater rang the little bell she keeps on the table beside her bed, and I was about to answer it when Zalia jumped up and said she would see what the mater wanted."

"And did you yourself go into your mother's room at any time during Miss Beeton's absence?"

"No, I did not!" Garden looked defiantly at Vance.

"And you're sure that no one else entered your mother's room during the nurse's absence?"

"Absolutely."

"And who was it," Vance went on, "that first suggested going home?"

Garden pondered the question.

"I believe it was Zalia."

"Vance got up.

"Awfully good of you, Garden, to let us bother you with these queries at such a time," he said kindly.

"We're deuced grateful. You won't be leaving the house today?"

Garden shook his head as he too stood up.

"Hardly," he said. "I'll stay in with father. He's pretty well broken up."

Garden went morosely from the room.

When he had gone Vance stood for a moment in front of Markham, eyeing him with cynical good-nature.

"Not a nice case, Markham. As I said."

He moved toward the window and looked out. "But I have things pretty well in hand. The pattern is shaping itself perfectly. I've fitted together all the pieces, Markham—all but one. And I hold that piece too, but I don't know where it goes, or how it fits into the ensemble."

Markham looked up. "What's the piece that's bothering you, Vance?"

"Those disconnected wires on the buzzer. They bother me frightfully. I know they have a bearing on the terrible things that have been going on here . . . He turned from the window and walked up and down the room several times, his head down, his hands thrust deep into his pockets. "Why should those wires have been disconnected?" he murmured, as if talking to himself. "How could they have been related to Swift's death or to the shot we heard? There was no mechanism. No, I'm convinced of that. After all, the wires merely connect two buzzers . . . a signal . . . a signal between upstairs and downstairs . . . a signal—a call—a line of communication . . ."

Suddenly he stopped his meditative pacing. He was now facing the door into the passageway and he stared at it as if it were something strange—as if he had never seen it before.

"Oh, my aunt!" he exclaimed. "My precious aunt! It was too obvious." He wheeled about to Markham, a look of self-reproach on his face. "The answer was here all the time," he said. "It was simple—and I was looking for complexities . . . The picture is complete now, Markham. Everything fits. Those disconnected wires mean that there's another murder contemplated."

He led the way downstairs. Heath was smoking gloomily in the lower hall.

"Sergeant," Vance said to him, "phone Miss Graem, Miss Weatherby, Kroon—and Hammie. Have them all here late this afternoon—say six o'clock."

"They'll be here, all right, Mr. Vance," Heath assured him.

"And Sergeant, as soon as you have taken care of this, telephone me. I want to see you this afternoon. I'll be at home. But wait here for Snitkin and leave him in charge. No one is to come here but those I've asked you to get, and no one is to leave the apartment. And, above all, no one is to be permitted to go upstairs either to the study or the garden . . . I'm staggerin' along now."

"I'll be phoning you by the time you get home, Mr. Vance."

Vance went to the front door, but paused with his hand on the knob. "I think I'd better speak to Garden about the gathering before I go. Where is he, Sergeant?"

"He went into the den when he came downstairs," Heath told him with a jerk of the head.

Vance walked up the hall and opened the den door. I was just behind him. As the door swung inward and Vance stepped over the threshold, we were confronted by an unexpected tableau. Miss Beeton and Garden were standing just in front of the desk, outlined against the background of the window. The nurse's hands were pressed to her face, and she was leaning against Garden, sobbing. His arms were about her.

At the sound of Vance's entry they drew away from each other quickly. The girl turned her head to us with a sudden motion, and I could see that her eyes were red and filled with tears. She caught her breath and, turning with a start, half ran through the connecting door into the adjoining bedroom.

"I'm frightfully sorry," Vance murmured. "Thought you were alone."

"Oh, that's all right," Garden returned, although it was painfully evident the man was embarrassed. "But I do hope, Vance, you won't misunderstand. Everything, you know, is in an emotional upheaval here. I imagine Miss Beeton had all she could stand yesterday and today, and when I found her in here she seemed to break down, and—put her head on my shoulder."

Vance raised his hand in good-natured indifference.

"Oh, quite, Garden. A harassed lady always welcomes a strong masculine shoulder to weep on. Most of them leave powder on one's lapel, don't y' know; but I'm sure Miss Beeton wouldn't be guilty of that . . . Dashed sorry to interrupt you, but I wanted to tell you before I went that I have instructed Sergeant Heath to have all your guests of yesterday here by six o'clock this afternoon. Of course, we'll want you and your father here, too. If you don't mind, you might help the sergeant with the phone numbers."

"I'll be glad to, Vance," Garden returned. "Anything special in mind?"

Vance turned toward the door.

"Yes, Oh, yes. Quite. I'm hopin' to clear this matter up later on. Meanwhile I'm running along. Cheerio." And he went out, closing the door.

As we walked down the outer hall to the elevator, Vance said to Markham somewhat sadly: "I hope my plan works out. I don't particularly like it. But I don't like injustice, either . . ."

We had been home but a very short time when Sergeant Heath telephoned as he had promised. Vance went into the anteroom to answer the call and closed the door after him. A few minutes later he rejoined us and, ringing for Currie, ordered his hat and stick.

"I'm running away for a while, old dear," he said to Markham. "In fact, I'm joining the doughy sergeant at the homicide bureau. But I shan't be very long. In the meantime, I've ordered lunch for us here."

"For Heaven's sake, Vance, what are you planning?"

"I'm plannin' to entice the murderer into making one more bet—a losing bet . . . Cheerio." And he was gone.

It was a little after half-past two when Vance returned to the apartment.

"Everything is in order," he announced as he came in. "There are no horses running today, of course, but nevertheless I'm looking forward to a big wager being laid this evening. If the bet isn't placed, we're in for it, Markham. Everyone will be present, however. The sergeant, with Garden's help, has got in touch with all those who were present yesterday, and they will foregather again in the Gardens' drawing-room at six o'clock . . . He glanced at his watch and, ringing for Currie, ordered our lunch.

"If we don't tarry too long at table," he said, "we'll be able to hear the second half of the Philharmonic programme. Melinoff is doing Grieg's piano concerto."

But Markham did not go with us to the concert. He pleaded an urgent political appointment at the Stuyvesant club, but promised to meet us at the Garden apartment at six o'clock.

Sergeant Heath was waiting for us when we reached the apartment. "Everything's set, sir," he said to Vance; "I got it here."

Vance smiled a little sadly. "Excellent, Sergeant. Come into the other room."

Heath picked up a small package wrapped in brown paper, which he had evidently brought with him, and followed Vance into the bedroom. Ten minutes later they both came back into the library.

"So long, Mr. Vance," Heath said, shaking hands. "Good luck to you." And he lumbered out.

We arrived at the Garden apartment a few minutes before six o'clock. Detectives Hennessey and Burke were in the front hall.

Vance nodded to them and started up the stairs.

"Wait down here for me, Van," he said over his shoulder. "I'll be back immediately."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, and Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for April 25

THE OBEDIENCE OF NOAH

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 8:20-22; 9:8-17. GOLDEN TEXT—By faith Noah, being warned of God concerning things not seen as yet, moved with godly fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house, Heb. 11:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Meaning of the Rainbow. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Rainbow's Message. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Following God's Plan. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Deliverance through Obedience.

The "book of beginnings" (Genesis) has already brought before us the creation of the world, the origin of man, the entrance of sin into the world, and God's judgment upon that sin. In chapter 4 we find the first murder. Cain, who brought an offering before God which was not acceptable, murdered his brother Abel, whose offering pleased God. Strange it is that man has it in his heart to hate those who expose his sin by their godly life.

God does not leave himself without a witness in the earth. The God-fearing line of Seth appears. There are always those who have not bowed the knee to the Adversary. Consider the astonishment of Soviet officials at the deep-seated and wide-spread faith in God revealed in their recent census.

But sin again lifts its ugly head and ere long God is driven to the necessity of judgment upon mankind. Read the terrific indictment of humanity in Genesis 6:5-7. It is still true that the heart of man apart from God's grace is "desperately wicked" (Jer. 17:9). Well does a contemporary writer say that even modern "psychology has unveiled the dismal and sinister depths in human nature. Man can no longer flee from reality into the romantic refuge of his own heart; for the human heart has become a house of horrors in whose murky recesses man cannot erect for his solace either a shrine or a citadel. Man is bad; he is a sinner. The depths of his meanness are being unveiled in a ghastly way in individual and social life in these times. What a contemporary ring there is about these old biblical judgments on mankind! (Gen. 6:5, 6; Isa. 1:6.) What a tremendous arraignment of sinful human nature is Paul's prologue in Romans 1" (Mackay).

So God sent a flood upon the earth. It used to be fashionable to doubt the story of the flood, but archaeology has joined hands with geology and history to agree with Scripture. The facts are available; let us use them.

"But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord" and prepared an ark at God's command. Here again it can be demonstrated that the ark was sufficiently large to meet the need of Noah and all his family, with the animals and their food, and with room to spare. It is significant that the proportions of the ark were those of a well-planned boat. God knows how to build, and man does well to obey his instructions.

The rain came; the fountains of the deep were opened, and all the living perished, except those within the ark. What an instructive type of our safety in Christ is the ark!

But our lesson concerns primarily what occurred after Noah came forth from the ark and presented himself before God.

I. An Obedient Man (8:20-22). To come before God with acceptable worship, man must come with clean hands. The question is not whether he is brilliant, learned, or of high position. The one thing that counts is obedience. When such a man offers the worship of his heart before God, it goes up to him like a sweet savor.

II. A Covenant-Keeping God (8:8-17). The beautiful rainbow in the cloud became a token of God's promise, and the visible assurance to "all flesh" that the judgment of the flood will not be repeated. Never again will seed time and harvest, nor any of the orderly processes of nature, fail throughout the whole earth.

What a gracious God we have! And what a pity that men presume upon his goodness. Because he "maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust" (Matt. 5:45), men not only forget that he is the giver of all things, but assume that they may sin against him with impunity. Let us remind them that it is the clear teaching of Scripture that "every one of us shall give account of himself to God" (Rom. 14:12).

Murmurings of Spring

"If you'd take a few steps, Sis, I believe I'd be inspired to answer that question, 'Did you ever see a dream walking?' You are nothing less than devastating—truly a menace!"

"You meow so sweetly, Connie. I'm a bit suspicious that this little peplum frock of mine has got you catty. Your eyes really aren't green by rights, you know."

Connie Sews Her Own.
"How could you? I think my dress looks as nice on me as yours does on you. Why practically all of the girls at the Laf-a-Lot last night wanted to know where I found such a lovely frock. Not one of them guessed that I made it myself. And did I feel elegant when I played Mendelssohn's Spring Song on Diane's new baby grand! The girls said I fit into the picture perfectly. I thought if only Dwight could see me now."

"I still say my two-piece with its piped peplum, cute little buttons and stream-lines is the No. 1 spring outfit in this woman's town."

Mother Happens Along.
"Girls, girls, if your talk were only half as pretty as your frocks you'd be better off. Sometimes I wonder if you wouldn't be more appropriately titled The Cheek Twins, rather than The Chic Twins."

"Okay, Mother, you win. Let's change the subject by changing clothes. We'll put on our culottes and join you in a round of golf, how's that? Gee, Mother, you never look sweeter than when you're wearing a casual young two-piece shirt dress. The plaid pique is just the thing for you, too. In fact, Mom, you're just about tops from any angle."

CHICKENS COMING HOME TO ROOST!

Lynching is a form of crime that should be entirely suppressed. Most lynchings are committed with a degree of brutality that is horrifying. We have outgrown mob law in this country, even though the provocation in most cases is very great.
But in the passage of the Gavagan anti-lynching bill by a vote of 276 to 119 last week the Lower House of Congress showed a reckless and brazen contempt for the Constitution such as has not been exhibited
since carpet-bag days.

Southern Democrats, be it said to their credit, stood almost solidly against the bill, not in defense or condemnation of lynching but on the grounds that the measure was flagrant unconstitutional and violative of state sovereignty. Hatton Summers of Dallas made a forceful and dramatic speech against the bill, which, by the way, brought him an ovation from friends and foes of the bill alike. On being asked if he had ever found anybody who claimed the bill to be constitutional, Summers replied "I heard of one,
but he is not a first-class lawyer."

Yet in spite of its manifest unconstitutionality, the Northern and Eastern Democrats, aided and abetted by the Republicans, rammed the bill through the House by an overwhelming majority. Thus we have witnessed the amazing spectacle of law-makers, sworn to protect and defend the Constitution, almost gleefully doing an unconstitutional and hence unlawful thing for the avowed purpose of stamping out lawlessness.

But there is more than a suspicion that they were actuated more by political expediency than by a desire to suppress crime. There are many Negro voters in the North, and Northern Democrats have been knowing to them in recent years in an effort to win them and to hold them in line for the Democratic party. The only Negro in Congress is a Democrat from Chicago. He likewise had introduced an anti-lynching bill, but Gavagan's bill was a more drastic measure, and hence they shelved the former in the interest of the latter. The Negro, Mitchell, himself made a fiery speech for the Gavagan bill.

Gavagan is a New York Democrat.

Not only is the Gavagan bill objectionable on the grounds that it is unconstitutional but also on account of its drastic and unreasonable provisions. It prescribes the penalty for any person found guilty of engaging in a lynching bee at 5 to 25 years in the federal peniten-entiary. It prescribes as high as five-year prison terms and $5,000 fines for sheriffs or other peace officers who permit prisoners to be taken from their possession by a mob and lynched. It makes the county in which a lynching occurs liable in damages ranging from $2,000 to $10,000 payable to the victim's family. "This bill," said Mr. Summers,
"would give the federal government power to prosecute a governor and send him to jail if he did not call out the militia in case of a lynching."

Furthermore Summers pointed out that the bill was unnecessary, that the states of the South had been making marvelous progress in stamping out this form of crime, having reduced it 5,000 percent in the last few years, and that there were only nine lynchings in the entire United States last year. The demand for the law, he said, resulted from "an acute attack of federalitis in this country—the people have a notion that if anything is wrong Uncle Sam will fix it up."

Congressman Luther Johnson of Corsicana also made an assault upon the bill. "The tragedy of the situation," he said, "is that the bill will pass, not because a majority believes it to be constitutional,
but because political expediency demands its passage." Even Senator Borah, independent Republican, denounced the bill as "unnecessary, unjust, unconstitutional, and in my opinion un-moral. The measure," he continued, "is a legitimate descendant of those Reconstruction measures that followed the Civil War. It is grounded in the belief that the people are unable and unwilling to cope with the internal affairs of the State. The measure is tainted with the un-American doctrine of punishing the innocent for the acts of the guilty."

Yet we find this measure being rammed through the Lower House of Congress by so-called Democrats, whose attitude seems to be "The Constitution be Damned."

Whence comes this disrespect and disregard for the Constitution? Are not we Southern Democrats partly to blame? Have we not been crying out for the passage of laws that the people want, constitution or no constitution? Have we not been demanding the re-enactment of laws that the Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional? Have we not been hooting and howling at members of the Supreme Court because they have been standing for a strict construction of the Constitution?
Have we not been clamoring for power to be given the President to so reconstruct the Supreme Court that it will construe the Constitution according to the notions of the President? In other words, though we may not admit it, have we not been demanding that the Constitution be regarded as a mere "scrap of paper" where it seemingly conflicts with our own pecuniary interests?

But chickens invariably come home to roost. We can not deliberately flout or belittle the Constitution but that sooner or later our folly will react upon us as a boom-crang. "Whatsoever we sow that shall we also reap." Unless Southern senators joined by a few men like Senator Borah succeed in stemming the tide and in defeating this unconstitutional legislation in the Senate, we will soon be reaping
the consequences of our own folly.
Only a great and independent Supreme Court will stand between us and a flare-back from Reconstruction days, a measure which Mr.
Summers denounced as the "most far-reaching attempt to invade the rights of the states that ever has been suggested."

Everybody in this section of the country is denouncing the "sit-down strikers." There is no justification for any class of workers to virtually take charge of other people's property. This form of strike doubtless had its origin in the un-American and communistic spirit that now seems to be dominating some of our labor leaders and organizations. We have no sympathy for them. On the other hand, we have no sympathy, either, for large manufacturing and industrial enterprises that employ unlawful, unjust, or oppressive tactics to control and exploit labor. Some of the concerns that pay good wages require their employees to purchase the necessities of life from Company stores or commissaries, we are informed, at excessive and unconscionable prices. Other concerns are allowed to exploit the labor of women and children. Therefore, while we unreservedly join in condemning the tactics of "sit-down strikers," we also insist that the states should compel the employers to "tote fair."
The federal government should do this with respect to companies actually engaged in interstate commerce.

The News believes in that phase of New Deal activities whereby public roads and highways are built,
needed public buildings constructed,
and other public improvements
made so long as the funds are expended economically and in a business-like manner. We even believe in the use of relief labor on such projects so long as waste and graft and favoritism are eliminated and so long as the authorities stay clearly within the law and the Constitution in these expenditures. We think that in spite of the waste and graft that has possibly characterized many federal projects or the expenditure of much federal funds, the program on the whole has been highly justifiable and worthwhile.
We are for public improvements
whenever and wherever needed.

The Parent-Teachers Club of Ta-hoka is engaged in the laudable task of beautifying the grounds of the new grade-school building. Some of the officials of that organization have recently complained that some people have been thoughtlessly parking their cars on the school property or driving across it. They insist that this practice be stopped.
We are sure that most people will heed their request and will desist
from offending in this respect.

It is to be hoped that the proposal recently made by a representative of the WPA office at Big Spring and accepted by our commissioners court and city council whereby the road to the cemetery from highway

No. 9 may be paved, may soon be under way. This is one enterprise that will benefit practically everybody in Lynn county.

WASTE

Eighteen years ago all the scrap iron was shipped out of this community and new stuff was bought and now it is worn out. That is a whole lot of waste per year. Just rusted out, worn out and thrown away. No wonder we are a bankrupt country. We don't take care of what we buy in the machinery line. Just pull it out in the corner of the field and let it rust out from year to year and crop to crop—Lockney Beacon.

Yes, and we are all guilty. There is none innocent, no not one! Visit any junk yard and take a "onceover" at the automobiles that have been wrecked or junked. Once they were valuable pieces of machinery—and it was not so long ago. An automobile that ought to last most of us ten years lasts about two or three. We run 'em to death. We abuse 'em. We are a wasteful people.

Jean Suits in her Chattergrams column in the Lockney Beacon remembers how she was regarded as unimportant, ignored, and spanked when she was "just a kid," and she doesn't like it yet. Jeane says some folks say they would like to be kids again, but she wouldn't. None of this "Backward, turn backward, O Time in your flight" for her. And she doesn't think kids are treated right yet. Maybe not. Most of us folks who raise kids don't know much about 'em. In fact, the more experience we have the less we know.

We hope that county and city officials who are working on the project may speedily make arrangements whereby a loop leading from highway No. 9 west to the high school building and thence south to highway No. 84 may be paved. It is believed that WPA funds may be procured with which to do the job.

We call attention to the excellent financial condition of Lynn county at this time as reflected in the statement of the First National Bank published in this paper last week. This statement shows total deposits amounting to $822,000, one of the highest on record at this sea-

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, rundown condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CAR-DUI, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength
from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods
when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated.
Cardui, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

son of the year. The loans are comparatively small, being only $220-000. This is due probably in large measure to the number of governmental and other loan agencies now engaged in the loan business in this county and throughout the nation.

Never have we seen as many buttercups and primroses in bloom at one time as have been in evidence in Lynn county the past two weeks.
In some places the landscape is almost perfectly white, like a cotton field, and in other places bright yellow because of the profusion of these flowers. This is a consequence, no doubt, of the abundant moisture that may be found deep down in the soil. Some say that it is prophetic of a good crop this year.
May it be so.

Barrett Rotary Club Speaker

Homer St. Clair had charge of the program at the Rotary Club luncheon Thursday and Supt. W. G. Barrett of the city schools made the principal address, his subject being Community Service.

A vocal solo and a novelty number were given by Miss Ola Lee Stevens with Miss Marjorie Wells as piano accompanist.

A contest in knot tying as taught to the Boy Scouts was conducted by Scoutmaster M. L. Penn, and a comical stunt or game was staged by V. F. Jones and others.

The club voted to sponsor sending of some young lady as a representative of Tahoka to the Coronation ceremonies at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention to be held in Brownwood in May.

A contest is to be staged to determine what young lady may go and to raise part of the funds to pay her expenses.

Roy Young of the Guarantee Food Market was a new member.

O'Donnell Doctor Dies Suddenly

Word reached Tahoka Thursday afternoon just as we were closing our forms that Dr. Thompson of O'Donnell had died at 1 o'clock of heart trouble.

Funeral services will be held in O'Donnell this (Friday) afternoon at 2:30. A number of Tahoka friends of the Doctor will doubtless attend. Dr. Thompson had been a prominent physician of O'Donnell almost since the birth of the town.

J. B. McPherson and family returned Wednesday from a visit with relatives at Fort Worth and Cleburne and he got back on the job in the store Thursday morning for the first time since he was taken to the hospital with pneumonia several weeks ago.

Miss Dorothy Blair, now employed in Lubbock, and Miss Eloise Clark, a student in Texas Tech, were the week end guests of Miss Aida Mae Aycox.

THE GROWL

The Yearbook
The last two weeks have seen some very hard work on the part of Mrs. Tunnell and the annual staff. The book is working up well and many of the pages have been finished. The contract specified some thirty-five pages in the book, but our plans call for seventy-five. There are to be eighteen group pictures including the four high school classes, Interscholastic League literary contestants, track men, football men, basketball team, annual staff, faculty, building, and other organizations. We are very proud of the way our book is looking and still hope to complete it by the first of next month.

District Meet
It seems the crowning event of the work of Tahoka students was the first place won by Charles Gaignat in boys' tennis singles. Winning is getting to be a habit with Charles, as he did the same thing last year.

We were very proud of our one-act play which was awarded second place. The play was "Neighbors," and the cast consisted of Mary M. Tunnell, Ola Lee Stevens, Ruth Hale, Jo Alice Brooks, Alpha Jennings, Hiram Snowden, Doris Connolly, and Delton Pemberton.

Contestants in debate, declamation, and extemporaneous speaking, as well as various track men went up for the contests.

Freshman News
The Freshman class is planning a picnic this week. The plans have been set for Wednesday afternoon. We are glad to have Earnestine Shiftet enroll in our class again.

Three Men Qualify For Regional Meet
As a result of their efforts and the efforts of their coaches, three members of the student body of Tahoka High will be representing our school in the Regional Meet at Canyon this week end. These boys are Charles Gaignat, who won first place in the District in tennis singles, Travis McCord, who won a place in the 440 yard dash, and Max Minor, who ran second in his heat of the 220 yard low hurdles. The boy who won this heat set a new district record for this event around a turn. Max was really about to pass him at the end of the race.

Dr. E. E. Callaway and A. L. Dungan are spending the week down at the Doctor's ranch on the Colorado in San Saba county. Think they expected to catch a few fish while down there.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Henderson are leaving this week expecting to spend some time at Christoval and possibly at Austin recuperating. Both have been suffering from after effects of the flu.

M. T. White, owner of the Piggy Wiggly store, made a business trip to Coleman the first of the week. He reports that it had rained none there when he left Monday.

Subscribe for the Lynn County News.

Mrs. Frank Richter became very seriously ill with pneumonia Saturday night but is now reported to be somewhat improved. Her husband died of tuberculosis a few months ago. Relatives have been here from a distance at her bedside.

Miss Irene Claborn of New Lynn, who recently underwent a major operation in a Lubbock sanitarium, is reported to be recovering satisfactorily.

REPORTS FROM THE COUNTY CLUBS

Miss Lilith Boyd, H. D. Agent

CAKE MEASUREMENTS SHOULD BE ACCURATE

"Accurate measurements are more dependable in cake-making than guessing," said Miss Boyd to the Wilson H. D. Club at the home of Mrs. Jack Miller April 7.

"Cake flours are preferred by many, but all-purpose flours may be used successfully. If using all-purpose flour decrease the measure one teaspoon to each cup of flour. Butter makes a better color and better flavor than vegetable shortenings."

Miss Boyd gave a demonstration on cake making. The cake was scored by the club members.

Mrs. Jock Miller was appointed as temporary secretary.

Miss Leona Crews was a visitor.

Members present were: Mesdames S. L. Alderson, D. A. Hill, Jack Miller, M. J. Scaer, P. D. Server, Howard Cook, Edwin May, W. H. May, M. C. Brandon, S. G. Anthony, and Miss Clara May.

MRS. CORLEY HOSTESS TO TAHOKA H. D. CLUB

The Tahoka Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Jack Corley April 14 at 3 p. m. Miss Boyd gave a demonstration on making butter cakes.

Refreshments were served to the following: Mmes. A. C. Weaver, Charles Nelms, W. S. Anglin, Mill Finch, B. H. Clark, Chester Connolly, James Connolly, J. K. Woosley, Clay Bennett, R. W. Fenton, P. W. Goad, Paul King, Oscar Roberts, G. C. Shaffer, Roy Cowan, and Misses Elolse Clark and Lilith Boyd.

MRS. SPARKS IS THREE LAKES CLUB HOSTESS

"Reading is a necessity, not a luxury," said Mrs. Fred McGinty to the Three Lakes ladies in the home of Mrs. A. C. Sparks last Thursday.

We should set aside part of every day for reading. Reading material should be selected with great care. Every home should have a good supply of reading matter. Magazines and papers afford a good source of reading and are quite inexpensive.

Ways of raising money for Short Course delegates were discussed and it was decided to have a "42" party every two weeks.

Members present were: Mmes. L. H. Johnson, I. L. Johnson, J. W. Edwards, Carroll Edwards, A. L. McMillan, Fred McGinty, C. F. Galyer, Mildred Cox, and the hostess.

DIXIE CLUB HOLDS CALLED MEETING

The Dixie Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. A. C. Aycox for a called meeting Wednesday April 14th.

A program of "Reading Material for the Home" was given by members of the club.

Ms. L. E. Huffaker was elected as a delegate to A. & M. Short Course.

Mrs. S. B. Francis came as a new member. Refreshing fruit punch and cookies were served to the following members: Mmes. G. B. Sherrod, S. B. Francis, V. H. Macha, Paul Johnson, R. F. Janak, L. E. Huffaker, F. E. House, Buel Draper, A. L. Dunagan, Hermon Bearden, B. C. Aycox. Visitors were: Mmes. Robert Spruelli, McCaskill, J. H. Cobb, Sue Robinson, Bearden, Misses Geneva Spruelli, Virgia Cobb, an our hostess, Mrs. Aycox.

Our next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Buel Draper on April 28th.

MRS. HAIRE HOSTESS TO HACKBERRY WOMEN

"Exact measuring helps much in good cake baking," said Miss Boyd Friday, April 16, when the Hackberry Club met in the home of Mrs. Houghton Haire.

The cake was sampled by each attendant and scored according to appearance, flavor, texture, color, grain, and icing.

Ice cream and cake was served to Fleming, Money, Herbert Haire, the following: Visitors—Mesdames and Ramsey, and Miss Chase; and members—Mesdames Bartlett, Rae Spence, Martin, C. A. Bloxom, Ed. Bethel Mathis of Garlyn was taken to a Lubbock sanitarium this week in a most serious condition. An examination disclosed that his appendix had ruptured and at last reports he was in a critical condition, according to his nephew, O. R. Ramsey, of the Central Church community.

Fred Smith left for his home at Ingram Thursday after a week's visit here with H. M. Larkin and the Houstons. He accompanied Mr. Larkin home last week when the latter returned from an extended visit in San Antonio and Ingram. Both report returning prosperity in that section, due to the high prices of wool and mohair.

Broiling
Gas gives you the intense heat needed to brown meats so fast that loss of juices is prevented. Full flavor is saved.

Roasting
Gas gives you the oven ventilation which produces crisp, juicy roasts. Excess moisture is allowed to escape preventing that flat "steamed flavor."

Baking
Baking requires even heat throughout the oven and unlimited range of baking temperatures, for light, evenly browned cakes, pies, breads. Gas gives both.

Frying
Perfect, speedy frying requires instant high heat—even spread of heat under the skillet—numberless heat variations. Gas gives all three!

PERTINENT COMMENTS
BY ELDER DRENNON

We were able to deliver only one lesson last Lord's Day. The subject was "Forgetfulness."

How many are prone to forget God? But it has ever been so since man had an advent into this world. God through the prophet Jeremiah said: "Can a maid forget her ornaments or a bride her attire? Yet my people have forgotten me days without number." Most of our troubles and disappointments come from forgetting God. The great need of the hour is to put God first in our thoughts and acts. Of course just thinking of God is not enough. We must heed and obey him to be well pleasing in his sight.

We not only forget God but history as well. Think of the saloon and its evil work. Yet some fairly good people are trying to bring them back to curse us. I hope the good people of Tahoka will not let the old serpent back into our midst.

We have in France today a scene that boldly tells us of the forgetfulness of man. As all know, along the northern and eastern borders of France is the greatest grave yard in the world. During the World War she was in sack cloth and her prayers ascended to God, and it looked like she would never forget. Now, along the borders of this great cemetery, where millions sleep who gave their lives for the liberty of the world, dives of all kinds have sprung up to catch the thousands of curious travelers who want to stand on this spot made red by blood. The thing has already got so disgraceful that the French government is said to be taking measures to stop it.

How we do forget! Remember God. Visit the friendly church, where they worship as it is written.—R. P. Drennon.

METHODIST MEMORIAL DINNER FRIDAY EVE

Our Memorial Dinner will be held in the basement of the Methodist Church Friday evening at 7:45. Dr. W. M. Pearce of Lubbock will be our guest speaker. There will be other interesting numbers on the program, including solos and quartet, a brief account of our first two missionaries, a 15-minute radio broadcast by Bishops Smith and Moore. Tickets are 50c.

The women are preparing the dinner. Proceeds will go to pay our missionary debt.

Every church in our connection is asked to celebrate this 89th anniversary of sending of our first missionaries. Come. You will enjoy the fellowship and the good program.

Several of our people attended District Conference April 19 and 20 at Slaton. They were: the pastor and wife, Rev. J. P. Calloway and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Donaldson, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thomas, Mrs. A. I. Thomas, Judge C. H. Cain, Rush Dudgeon, and perhaps others.

C. A. Thomas was elected delegate to the Annual Conference which meets at Quannah in November. Claude Donaldson was elected alternate delegate.

We want you next Sunday.

EDITOR AND WIFE ARE "SHOWERED"

Their arms full of gifts, their hearts full of good cheer, a group of neighbors and other friends "stormed" the Editor and family Monday evening while the clouds were pouring out showers of blessing upon the land. The "shower" brought by the visitors included a collection of choice canned fruits and juices, vegetables and meats, household linens and dishes.

We are truly grateful to each and every one of you for your visit, good wishes and gifts on this occasion, as well as for your many kindnesses while we were out of our home. We are glad to be at home again and assure you that our latch-string is always out—come to see us!

CENTRAL LADIES PAY VISIT TO SHUT-IN

Dear Editor: Here I come again to report another most pleasant surprise visit.

On Monday afternoon, April 12, a number of the W. M. S. of Central Baptist Church came to see me, bringing rays of sunshine and one of the sweetest of God's creations, a lovely flower. I want to thank each and every one of them for this pleasant visit and words of cheer to me—a shut-in.

May the Giver of All Good bless each and every one who has tried to make my life more pleasant, and I want them to come any time they wish to come, for they will always find a welcome in my home.—Mrs. W. J. Paires, Route 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlice Edwards returned Thursday of last week from Taft, California, where they had spent the past two months. Carlice is somewhat of an artist and revels in the beautiful. He says that in the vicinity of Bakersfield, California, the landscapes are simply gorgeous with lupines, which are about the same as our Texas Bluebonnets. Then between Benson and Lordsburg, New Mexico, they encountered fields of poppies that were marvelously beautiful. They hurried back to Lynn county to engage in the prosaic business of farming. We hope they make bushels of money.

THE CO-ED CHARM COLUMN

By Irene

I could corroborate on the merits of good posture for columns, but anyone knows it is a necessity to beauty. Poise comes from certainty. If you know you are right, you are a magnet for admiration.

So, take a deep breath, drawing your spine to your full height. Take one often; it gives you that old conquer-the-world feeling. Breathe with your chest and lungs, not with your abdomen.

Let your shoulders relax, back and down. Due to nervous strain, women of today are inclined to hunch their shoulders up and forward, which is detrimental to health.

Tuck in your tummy, bringing your hips well forward, to get rid of that rumble seat you wear around.

Now, you are straight as a flag pole, but you are hanging your head like a kid that just got his first licking. Hold that head up! Do you know that a large percentage of the people hold their heads too low? Up a little higher—there! Your chin is now level with the horizon. Peel snooty? Never mind. People may ask you if it feels cold up there, but never think they are not envious of your posture. So, go serenely on your way, holding your head like a queen. You might fool somebody. And with a well-balanced head you can think clearer, and have less pains in the neck.

There now, you ought to look positively regal, but you've gone and propped yourself on one foot, placing them wide apart. Wake up, those feet are to stand on, lady. Keep your feet together. You may relax one knee slightly, not resting your weight, but as though poised for a take-off.

It takes constant vigilance but the value received is far more than the value paid. Because, now you look like somebody that handsome man would like to meet or that husband would be proud to show off.

Whoops! Just as I was bragging on you, you put your hands in your pockets! This is positively forbidden in the best of circles. Let your arms relax at your sides, palms turned slightly outward. Keep them there. Do not raise them to point, place in pockets, or otherwise disturb your nonchalance.

Read "Hints on Walking" next week. (Adv.)

Don't Irritate Gas Bloating

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets." Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to indigestion, not to the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, numerous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable.

You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched, unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

Thousands of sufferers have found in Adierika the quick, scientific way to rid their systems of harmful bacteria. Adierika rids you of gas and cleans foul poisons out of BOTH upper and lower bowels. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierika. Get rid of GAS. Adierika does not gripe—a real habit forming. At Leading Drugists.

Hello Everybody!

"Warning in Russian"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

FEW bodies of men have ever attracted so much attention as the Canadian "Mounties" and few have ever had so much written about them. The Mounties have been the center of many a tale, both true and of the fictionalized variety. This one is true—told by a man who once was a Mountie himself. It's an actual page out of the Canadian Mounted's history, and the man who is telling us about it is Constable Walter D. Fast of Chicago.

Walt served for five years with the Mounties—from 1929 to 1935. And the events which make up this strange tale happened in 1935. Walt was stationed at St. Paul de Metis, in Alberta.

He was out on a routine patrol one July day, riding along a lonely trail, when he saw smoke rising from a clearing up ahead.

He put the spurs to his horse and headed for the clearing. As he came closer, he could see fire and suddenly a hoarse scream came to his ears over the still summer air.

Trapper's Cabin Was Blazing.

At a gallop, Walt pushed toward the blaze. The screams grew fainter as he approached. He dashed into the clearing to find a small trapper's cabin burning furiously.

Even as he approached, the cabin's walls began falling. The screams of the man inside, fading to a low moan, stopped abruptly as beams and timbers dropped on him.

By the time Walt got across the little clearing, the cabin was burned nearly to the ground. There was absolutely no hope for the man within. Walt began seeing to it that the fire didn't spread, and at the same time he began wondering why the man who had died in the ruins didn't get out of that cabin.

There was something strange about it. The cabin was a one story affair, and its occupant had only to step out of the door when it caught fire. If the fire started near the door and blocked his exit in that direction, he could easily have crawled out of a window.

True, the poor devil might have been so ill that he couldn't move, but if so, what was he doing alone in that condition in a lonely cabin in the woods? Walt rejected that theory. Darned few people get so sick they can't move when fire is bearing down on them.

Things Looked Very Suspicious.

Walt reported the fire and the man's death, and then waited for the embers to cool down. The Mounties went over the ruins of that cabin with a fine-toothed comb. The investigation disclosed some mighty suspicious facts.

The Victim's Charred Body Was Found.

The victim's charred body was found and examined. The poor fellow's hands had been tied behind his back with wire, and bound behind him to an iron bedstead!

There was evidence of foul play all right. But who had done it? The clues found in the cabin didn't help to answer that question. There wasn't a shred of evidence pointing to anyone in the neighborhood.

The Mounties made further investigations. They learned from folks in the vicinity that the dead man had quarreled with one of his neighbors—a Russian—who lived a short distance from his cabin.

Walt went to the Russian's home. The Russian came out in front of the house and Walt started asking him questions. It was just a routine questioning. There wasn't the slightest bit of evidence to link the Russian to the crime, and Walt had no hope of getting any results from his questioning.

The Russian answered questions readily enough. There was no sign of guilt in his face. As the questioning proceeded it seemed to Walt that the fellow had an air-tight alibi.

Sure, he had quarreled with the dead man. The Russian admitted that. But he hadn't been anywhere near the victim's home on the day it burned down, and he had his wife to prove it by.

She Said Something in Russian.

It all looked pretty hopeless, but Walt kept asking questions. And the more he asked the more he became convinced that the Russian was innocent of any connection with the hideous crime. No matter what Walt wanted to know, his suspect had a ready answer.

And then, as Walt was about to give up, the Russian's wife came out of the house and stood listening. Walt asked a couple more questions, and the woman moved closer. Suddenly she began talking to her husband in Russian.

As she began to talk, Walt gave a sudden start. Then he controlled himself and waited. He waited until the woman had finished talking—and then he walked over to the Russian and slipped the handcuffs on him. He knew then what had happened to the poor devil who had been burned alive in that blazing cabin!

Walt took his prisoner to headquarters, locked him up and charged him formally with the crime. Canadian justice moves rapidly, and it was not long before the Russian was brought up for trial.

At his trial Walt testified, and it was chiefly on the testimony he gave that the fellow was convicted, and sentenced to hang. And hang he did, too. Canadian justice is stern as well as swift, and there are mighty few pardons granted.

And what was the testimony which Walt gave and by which the murderer was convicted? The whole secret lay in the Russian's wife. She had come out of the house while Walt was questioning her husband and had spoken to him in Russian—without knowing that Walt spoke Russian too!

And what she had said was: "Don't tell the policeman you killed him. Say what we agreed to say and they will never be able to prove it on you."

Greyhound Speed

A greyhound can outrun a horse at short distances, and at top speed will hit about 45 miles an hour. Literary Digest says: "In top racing condition a dog should weigh approximately 60 pounds and stand from 26 to 28 inches at the shoulder. Whether chasing ostriches in South Africa, deer in South Wales or mechanical rabbits in Florida greyhounds run by sight, not by scent."

Memorial Tablet Below Sea

The only memorial tablet to be placed below the surface of the sea, it is believed, is the inscribed bronze plate that marks the spot, in Kealekua bay off the island of Hawaii, where Capt. James Cook, the English navigator and explorer, was killed by natives in 1779. Laid in 1928, says Collier's Weekly, the tablet is always covered with water, even at low tide.

AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Removing Stains on Hands—Vegetable stains can be removed from the hands by rubbing them with a slice of raw potato.

Frying Eggs—Eggs are less liable to break or stick to the pan if a little flour is added to the frying fat.

Care of Shoes—The preservation of patent leather shoes presents difficulties because, by the very nature of the hard finish, it will crack eventually. But the fateful day may be delayed by occasionally applying just the smallest touch of pure vaseline and rubbing it in well with a soft cloth. Patent leather shoes should be polished by rubbing with a soft cloth only.

New Hot-Water Bottles—Have a little glycerine added to the water with which hot-water bottles are filled for the first time. This will make the rubber supple, and the bottle will last longer.

Boiling Old Potatoes—Old potatoes sometimes turn black during boiling. To prevent this add a squeeze of lemon juice to the water in which they are boiled.

Protecting Buttonholes—A row of machine-sewing around button holes in knit underwear prevents stretching and makes them last longer.

Preparing Salted Nuts—Here is an ideal manner in which to prepare your salted nuts at home: Take blanched nuts, salt and oil. Sprinkle nuts very lightly with oil, using not more than one teaspoon to one cup of nuts. Spread in one layer in a baking pan and brovn delicately in a moderately hot oven—375 degrees—stirring occasionally that they may color evenly. Sprinkle with salt after removing from the oven, and spread on crumpled unglazed paper to absorb any surface oil.

For Good Gravy—Did you know that gravy, to be served with roast meat, will taste much nicer and contain more nutriment if it is made with the water in which the vegetables have been boiled?

For Steamed or Boiled Puddings—Puddings will not stick to the basin if two strips of grease-proof paper are put crosswise in the basin before the mixture is poured in.

The Great Kipling

Rudyard Kipling's devotion to his son is shown in a new anecdote, says the Boston Post. Soon after the death of Second Lieutenant John Kipling, at the front during the World war, an unknown admirer accosted the poet on a road near Burwash, England. "So you are the great Kipling?" he asked. "No, my son is," was the reply.

IF YOU KNOW THESE TWO FACTS ABOUT REFRIGERATION

FACT 1. The new Kelvinator is Plus-Powered. It has as much as double the cooling capacity of many other well-known refrigerators of equal size.

FACT 2. The new Kelvinator runs only half as many minutes per day—during the rest of the time it maintains low temperatures using no current at all.

ONCE you've really grasped the importance of the two facts displayed above, it's impossible for you to make a mistake in selecting a refrigerator. You'll want a PLUS-POWERED KELVINATOR, of course.

And then, what a satisfaction to know that you have a refrigerator that simply cannot fail, even on the hottest days or in the most over-heated kitchen. Foods are absolutely SAFE under all conditions.

Because these facts mean KELVINATOR will do more, save more. Save on current. Save in protection of foods. Save through longer years of trouble-free service. Weekly savings so great that they amount to more than the payments you make while you are buying your KELVINATOR.

Let us demonstrate this great refrigerator to you. You can buy a KELVINATOR for only a few cents a day. Come in and see it today.
