Noble has been enrolled in the Junior College of NMMI for two years and has done well. He was admitted upon certificate from the Brownfield High School. Noble is a Sergeant and is completing the Basic Course in the Senior Cavalry Unit of the R. O. T. C. His athletic participation has been in varsity football and polo.

Noble is among the 102 graduates who will receive diplomas at the graduation ceremonies which close the commencement activities. Twenty-two states are represented in the Class of 1937. Eighteen members of the class are from Texas and the total number of cadets from Texas is 116.

VISIT LAMESA LODGE

Judge C. H. Cain, Homer St. Clair and George Ingram attended a Masonic meeting in Lamesa Tuesday night, work being put on there on that occasion by past masters.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Aycox were Abilene visitors Sunday.

New Scoutmaster For Local Troop

G. G. Aycock and G. M. Reid have been selected by the local Boy Scout committee to serve as scoutmasters of the Tahoka Boy Scout troop, succeeding M. L. Penn, who is moving to Post soon after the closing of school. Mr. Penn has been serving as scoutmaster for the past year.

A number of new boys, particularly Cub Scouts, anticipate coming into the troop soon, it is said.

Man Wanted Here Caught By 'Law'

Sheriff B. L. Parker says they have two men in jail over in Ardmore, Oklahoma, that he would like to have here. They are said to have had in their possession when arrested a load of "hot oil".

They are charged with having broken into oil stations here and at O'Donnell. They are also wanted in Bailey and Crosby counties for like offenses, it is said, but Mr. Parker says that the Oklahoma officers refuse to surrender the men to Texas, as they are wanted there.

One of the men is reputed to have served a term in the New Mexico penitentiary.

Cattle Theft Case Is Affirmed

The case against Oscar Sumner, in which he was tried and convicted of the theft of a cow in the district court here last fall, was affirmed by the Court of Criminal Appeals recently, according to District Attorney Truett Smith.

Sumner was accused of having stolen a cow from C. O. Edwards. The jury found him guilty and assessed his punishment at two years in the penitentiary. He was also convicted on a similar charge in Terry county, but that case was reversed on a technical error.

Mr. Smith is now in court at Seminole. A cow theft case was to be tried there this week, and Dayton Moses, attorney for the Texas Cattle Raisers Association, was to assist in the prosecution.

In the recent term of court at Lamesa, there were quite a number of convictions. Four men have already accepted sentence and been sent to the penitentiary. One young man, whose residence was Big Spring, was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary for the theft of an automobile. Two young fellows, residents of Lamesa, were sentenced to the penitentiary for the theft of 57 cases of eggs, valued at almost $300.00. One of them was an ex-convict and he received a sentence of six years. The other was sent up for three years. The same two defendants got two and a half years each for stealing a quantity of cotton seed from an oil mill in Lamesa. A fourth man, more than 40 years of age and a former resident of Lynn county, was given a two years sentence on a charge of swindling a Lamesa bank by giving a mortgage on property which he did not own.

Judge R. S. Garland of Lamesa was elected by the bar to preside over the court there during the illness of Judge Louis B. Reed, who underwent an operation for appendicitis soon after his appointment recovered. Judge Klapproth of Midland presided during the last week to the position and who has not yet of the term. Judge Garland being disqualified in certain cases.

Following the close of the term at Seminole, there will be a two weeks' term at Plains, and court will then adjourn for the summer.

Soil Conservation Program Draws 1289 Signers

Is Big Decrease in Number Of Signers, But Acreage Nearly As Great As Previously

There was a considerable decrease in the number of farmers signing up the work sheets for the agriculture conservation program this year as compared with last year, according to C. A. Lawrence, assistant county agent. The number signing this year is 1289 as compared with about 1670 last year.

It is not believed that there has been a corresponding decrease in the acreage signed up, however, nor is it likely that there will be a corresponding decrease in the benefit payments, Mr. Lawrence thinks.

The total number of checks distributed among Lynn county farmers and land owners for the last year program was 1,823, representing 1,114 farms, and amounting to $289,936.07. The payments on this year's contracts will probably reach almost that amount it is thought. A lot of soil ought to be conserved for that sum of money.

A. M. Cade Attends State Convention

Aubra M. Cade returned Friday night from Waco where he attended the state tax assessors and collectors convention in session four days last week.

Mr. Cade says that there were more than two hundred officials and deputies present and that exactly one hundred counties were represented.

He reports that it was one of the best conventions he has ever attended. The program was most instructive and interesting. State Comptroller George H. Shepperd and several of his deputies were there to give information on different phases of the work. Mr. Shepperd praised the work of the assessors and collectors as a whole, commending the efficient manner in which they kept their accounts.

Hurley Carpenter of Lubbock was the retiring president of the association and was succeeded by the tax assessor and collector of Karnes county, San Antonio was chosen as the next convention city.

A big time is being planned for this year with a barbecue at noon, and a program during the afternoon.

Many old-timers from a distance are expected. The following committees will be in charge of arrangements: Entertainment: Charley Doak, Jim Weatherford, Jake Leedy, Miss O'Berger Forrester, and Mrs. Jewel Doak Rogers.

Court Upholds Social Security

The Supreme Court on Monday upheld the constitutionality of the federal social security act. In one case the constitutionality of that part of the act which provides for unemployment insurance was attacked, and in the other case that part of the act which provides for old age pensions was under fire. The former was upheld by a vote of five to four and the latter by a vote of 7 to 2. Associate Justice Cardozo wrote the majority opinion. Dissenting opinions in the unemployment insurance case were written by Justice McReynolds, who dissented from the majority on many grounds, Justice Sutherland for himself and Justice Van Devanter who dissented on one single point, and Justice Butler who announced his agreement with both the other dissenting opinions.

The majority opinion in these two cases establishes the right of the federal government to enter a vast field of social security legislation, powers which the writers of the constitution and the founders of this government doubtless never even dreamed of.

VAN ZANDERS MEET

A. F. Pitts of Dixie reports that a great crowd of ex-Van Zandt county residents met at Two Draw Lake Sunday for an all day picnic. Needless to say, a great time was had by all visiting and talking with old friends and neighbors. Especially were there many present from Hale and Lubbock counties, with only a few from Lynn.

BROTHER-IN-LAW DIES

E. I. Hill, editor of The News, was called to Hamilton Tuesday by the death of a brother-in-law, Cleveland Martin. Funeral services were held there Wednesday afternoon.

New Home School Closes Next Week

End-of-school programs will begin at New Home tonight and continue through Friday night of next week at the New Home school, according to Supt. J. T. Carter.

Tonight three one-act plays will be presented, to which a small admission charge will be made to help pay expenses of graduation.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock Dr. W. P. Fry of Texas Tech Baptist Bible Chair will deliver the class sermon. Tuesday night, the grade school will present a program, and Thursday night, County Superintendent H. P. Caveness will address the Seventh Grade graduating class, in which there are 22 students.

Diplomas will be presented eight High School graduates Friday night, when Geo. Dupree, prominent Lubbock attorney, will deliver the class address.

New Home this year has about 175 students, but next year it will be grouped with Joe Stokes and Pettey with an expected enrollment of about 335. Plans are to employ 12 teachers, and work will be offered in vocational agriculture and home economics, Mr. Carter says.

Moisture Varies From 1/2 Inch To 4 Inches

Many Must Replant Cotton And Feed; Top And Bottom Seasons Excellent.

Rains Sunday night, Monday and Tuesday night covering Lynn county and the South Plains have greatly added to the already bright prospects for a good crop year. Farmers and business men are almost jubilant over the prospects.

Where the rain was heaviest, replanting will be necessary in many cases. Also, in other parts of the county, where the top soil had dried out, many farmers must replant. However, possibly only a third of the land had been planted prior to the rains.

Sunday night the rain barely reached Tahoka, only .12 being received here, with no rain falling in the south and east portions, but to the west and north the downpour was heavy. Monday and Tuesday night additional rain fell, and no section in the county had less than half an inch. Some farmers particularly near West Point and Dixie, believe they received as much as four inches. A gage kept at Dixie showed 3.25 inches.

Tahoka received .12 of an inch on Sunday night, and 1.25 inches Monday and Tuesday night, a total of 1.37.

With an excellent underground season already, the rain, even in the east and southeast portions, is sufficient to bring up crops and hold them for some time.

Even up on the North Plains, heavy rains are reported. Dalhart had 2.64 inches, the heaviest in five years. The Dust Bowl is reported to again be a mud bowl.

56 Grade Students Receive Diplomas

Fifty-five Seventh Grade students last night received certificates of graduation from the Grade School, entitling them to enter High School. Elder R. P. Drennon of the local Church of Christ delivered the class address. Ida Christine Botkin gave the salutatory address, and valedictory addresses were by Lenore Anglin and Greta Joyce Applewhite, the two having tied for this high honor.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Van Devanter Quits Supreme Court and Robinson May Get Place—Cardinal Mundelein Enrages the Nazis—Windsor Marriage June 3.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE WILLIS VAN DEVANTER notified President Roosevelt that he would retire from the Supreme court bench immediately after the summer adjournment of the court on June 1, and there were rumors in Washington that his example would be followed by Chief Justice Hughes and associate Justices Sutherland and Brandeis when the contest over the President's court enlargement program is settled.

Senator Robinson

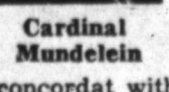

Speculation as to Justice Van Devanter's successor began at once and it was generally agreed that Joseph Robinson, Democratic leader of the senate, had the best chance for the appointment. It was believed he had been promised the place at the first opportunity some time ago, and his many friends in both parties were quick to extend their best wishes. Of course there was talk of his ineligibility because of the recently enacted statute permitting Supreme court justices to retire on full pay for life. The Constitution provides that "no senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time." But several authorities declared this would not apply in the present case. Some observers believed that Robinson was so useful to the administration in the senate that Mr. Roosevelt would seek to be relieved of his alleged promise to give him the appointment.

Senator Lewis of Illinois predicted that by mid-summer Justices McReynolds, Sutherland, Cardozo and Brandeis would resign.

BY THE expected vote of 10 to 8 the senate judiciary committee rejected the President's Supreme court bill. The line-up of committee members had been certain for many days. Supporters of the measure then turned to compromise, some of them backing the proposal of Senator Logan of Kentucky permitting the appointment of "temporary" justices at the rate of one a year for every sitting member over seventy-five. The opponents of the bill, however, rejected this and all other compromises, which was the only consistent course they could pursue. So the bill was reported adversely to the senate, and the battle will continue in that body.

It appeared that neither this setback nor the retirement of Justice Van Devanter had changed the determination of the President to insist upon the passage of his bill as originally submitted. Senator Wheeler said Mr. Roosevelt should now withdraw the measure. Senator Ashurst declared "everything that has happened since the bill was introduced has helped it" and predicted it certainly would be passed. Senator Borah asserted: "The Van Devanter retirement will have no effect on the court bill. The lines have already been drawn and will not change."

CARDINAL MUNDELEIN of Chicago, addressing five hundred priests of the archdiocese, hotly attacked the German government, its highest leaders and its propaganda methods which he said were directed against the Roman Catholic church and designed to "take the children away from us." He called Reichsfuehrer Hitler "an Austrian paper-hanger and a poor one at that," and charged the reich with breaking the concordat with the Holy See.

Cardinal Mundelein

He opened the speech by recalling that after the World war the German government complained of "atrocious propaganda" aimed at German troops by the allied nations. He continued:

"Now, the present German government is making use of this same kind of propaganda against the Catholic church."

"Through its crooked minister of propaganda it is giving out stories of wholesale immorality in religious institutions, in comparison to which the wartime propaganda is almost like bedtime stories for children."

"It will be not only unwise, but cowardly as well, if we take the thing lying down and do not fight back every time the subject is brought up outside."

The vials of Nazi wrath were immediately opened and its press called on the pope to rebuke the cardinal publicly. Der Angriff, personal organ of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi minister of propaganda, charged the cardinal "spoke in a tone heretofore reserved for the lowest brand of agitators."

The official news agency of the government alleged that "Mundelein defended the crimes of Catholic priests and laymen" on trial in German courts and called on Catholic Bishops in Germany to make a reply.

In Vatican City prominent churchmen said Cardinal Mundelein had every right to speak his mind and that the Vatican would not concern itself with the speech, either to defend or to repudiate it. The cardinal's attack seemed to meet with general approval of Catholics, Protestants and Jews in the United States.

Under instructions from Berlin, the counselor of the German embassy in Washington lodged with the United States government an informal protest against Cardinal Mundelein's speech.

HITLER returned to Berlin from his summer home in Bavaria and heard from industrialists gathered in extraordinary meeting that many of them would be unable to continue production satisfactorily because of the shortage of raw materials and skilled labor and the general financial situation. The bad conditions affect especially factories working with rubber, metals and foreign textiles.

WALLIS WARFIELD will become the duchess of Windsor when she is married to Edward, the duke, on June 3 at the Chateau de Candé, near Monts, France. But whether she will be "her royal highness" is at this writing still a disputed question. Edward, through his American friend Herman L. Rogers, has virtually told the world that she will, the New Yorker saying to correspondents: "I think she automatically would be called that." It was taken for granted that Mr. Rogers would not have said that without the approval of the duke.

Mrs. Warfield

This widens the breach between Edward on one side and the British cabinet and Anglican churchmen on the other. The duke's friends assert that Prime Minister Baldwin and his associates have broken a pre-abdication promise concerning the marriage, and they and the duke are angry because, at the best of the government, no member of the royal family will be present at the ceremony. The announcement of the marriage, issued from the Chateau de Candé, said there would be only a few guests in addition to the witnesses and the servants.

Though the entire controversy seems rather foolish, it appears to mean a lot to the British and it is interesting reading.

NEW YORK asked and obtained from congress an appropriation of $5,000,000 for its world's fair, with the provision that the money was to be spent by the fair commission. But President Roosevelt vetoed the measure; and in his message he rebuked congress for "an unconstitutional invasion of the province of the executive" in setting up a commission to direct the expenditure.

When the message was read in the house the Republicans roared with laughter and the Democrats, or some of them, raged. Sam McReynolds of Tennessee and John J. O'Connor of New York especially voiced their resentment, and open threats were made to cut down the relief appropriation demanded by Mr. Roosevelt.

The house killed a $1,250,000 appropriation for a naval air base on the Columbia river in Oregon; and the appropriation of $5,000,000 for the construction of a national highway through the Blue Ridge mountains in Virginia and North Carolina was attacked. But the latter was saved when Chairman Doughton of the ways and means committee said: "I have it on the highest authority that the President favors it." Incidentally, the highway will run near a large farm Mr. Doughton owns in North Carolina.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT sent to the senate a number of State department appointments. Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles was nominated for the post of undersecretary of state. Assistant Secretary R. Walton Moore, who vied with Welles for the post of undersecretary, was nominated for the newly created office of counselor of the Department of State.

John Cudahy, former ambassador to Poland, was nominated as minister to the Irish Free State; Alvin Mansfield Owsley of Texas as minister to Norway, and Edwin L. Neville of Ohio as minister to Siam.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

The Gabble of Tourists.

GRAND CANYON, ARIZ.—It gets on your nerves to stand on the rim of this scenic wonder and hear each successive tourist say, "Well, if any artist painted it just as it is nobody would believe it!"

After I heard 174 separate and distinct tourists repeat the above it got on my nerves and I sought surcease far from the maddening round-tripper, hoping to escape the commonplace babbling of eastern sight-seers and revel in the salty humor of the unspoiled West. And I ran into a native who said, with the cute air of having just thought it up, "Yes, sir, I never felt better or had less."

Irvin S. Cobb

And I encountered a gentleman who in parting called out, "Say, kid, don't take in any wooden nickels." And then, speaking of someone else, remarked, "If I never see that guy again it'll be too soon."

Renaming Hors d'Oeuvres. THE controversy over giving a more American name to hors d'oeuvres—which some cannot pronounce and none can digest—rages up and down the land. What Sam Blythe, that sterling eater, calls these alleged appetizers you couldn't print in a family newspaper. Sam's idea of a before-dinner nickname being a baked him. A sturdy Texas congressman calls them doo-dabs.

But if I were living abroad again, I know what I'd call them. When you behold the array of this and that, as served at the beginning of luncheon in the average table d'hote restaurant over there, and especially in France, you are gazing upon what discriminating customers left on their plates at supper the night before.

Scrambled Cooking. DOWN below Flagstaff, Ariz., but somewhat to the eastward, in a picturesque city which saddles the international boundary, I found a unique condition.

The best American food available is across the Mexican line at a restaurant owned by a Greek gentleman with a Chinese cook in the kitchen. But the best Mexican cookery is done well over on the American side by a German woman whose husband is an Italian.

So our own native-born citizens, when hungry for the typical dishes of New England or Dixie, journey beyond the border patrols, passing on their way many of their Spanish-speaking neighbors bound four miles northward for a bit of superior tamales and the more inflammatory brands of chili.

Duelling a la Europe UNTIL Dr. Franz Sarga, the dueling husband of Budapest, really serves one of his enemies on brochette, as it were, instead of just trimming off hangnails and side whiskers, I decline to get worked up. You remember the Doc? He set out to carve everybody in Hungary who'd snooted his lady wife and found himself booked to take on quite a large club membership. But so far he hasn't done much more damage than a careless chiropractor could.

Once, in Paris, I was invited to a duel. I couldn't go, having a prior engagement to attend the World war, which was going on at that time, so I sent a substitute.

He reported that after the principals exchanged shots without peril, except to some sparrows passing overhead, all hands rushed together, entwining in a sort of true-love knot.

The Forgotten Man. THOSE whose memories stretch that far back into political antiquity may recall the ancient days that seem so whimsically old-fashioned now, when our present President was running the first time on a platform which, by general consent, was laughed off immediately following election. He promised then to do something for the forgotten man. Remarks were also passed about balancing the budget right away. We needn't go into that.

But the forgotten man figured extensively in the campaign. Then, for awhile, popular interest in him seemed to languish. So many new issues came up suddenly, some, like dyspepsia symptoms, being but temporary annoyances, and some which lingered on and abide with us yet, including Mr. John L. Lewis, the well-known settler.

And now, after these five changeable, crowded years, we have solved the mystery—we know who the forgotten man is. The name is Tugwell, spelled as spoken, but you can pronounce it "Landon" and get practically the same general results.

FLOUDD GIBBONS FAMOUS HEADLINE HUNTER ADVENTURERS CLUB

Hello everybody "Spirit From the Stars" By FLOYD GIBBONS

"SPIRIT from the stars." That's the way Anna Nolan of Long Island City, N. Y., explains it. Anna thinks that the sign of Aquarius, under which she was born, gave her the courage to face the terrifying predicament she found herself in. I don't know whether she is right about that or not. Where courage comes from is a question that's a little bit out of my line, and I'll leave it to the doctors, or the astrologers, or whoever wants to try to answer the question.

But adventure IS in my line and I will go on record as saying that the one Anna Nolan had in August, 1914, in the town of Boyle, County Roscommon, Ireland, is a hair-raiser and no mistake.

August, 1914! That's a date that the world will long remember for it was in the early days of that month—and in that year—that the World war got under way. All England was in a turmoil, and that excitement reached clear over to Ireland on the other side of the Irish sea. England was calling out the Irish reservists—men who were called for six weeks training once a year—and a number of these reservists lived in the town of Boyle.

Neighbor Woman Fleeing From Her Cottage. Anna's husband was already in the army. He was a warrant officer at the barracks not far away. Anna had rented a house in town—a house that sat well back from the street with a garden in front of it. Across the street was a tiny cottage in which lived the wife of one of the reservists, an itinerant tinker who had just been called to the colors.

It was about eleven o'clock at night and Anna was sitting at her front window looking out on the garden. She had been there since early evening, just after she had tucked her children into bed. She was all alone. Her husband was at the barracks and too busy to come home. And Anna had been sitting there for hours on end, wondering about the war, and about her husband who was going to it soon, and about a hundred and one other things that women wonder and worry about when the war clouds begin gathering in the sky.

The streets of Boyle were deserted by this time. There wasn't a soul in sight. But suddenly, the door of the cottage across the way flew open and a woman, clad only in a white nightgown, came running out.

Anna sat bolt upright in her chair. The woman was running as if for her life. She was barefooted and her long, black hair was hanging down her back. She dashed across Anna's garden and took refuge in her doorway.

Husband Wanted to Kill Her and Baby. Anna knew the woman—knew that she had a new-born baby only two days old. Why was she running out of her house in the middle of the night like this? She ran down the stairs, threw open the hall door, and the woman, shivering and shaking, almost fell into her arms.

"I pulled her inside," says Anna, "wrapped a cloak around her, and asked her what the trouble was: It seemed that her husband got leave to come home from the barracks on account of her illness, and had celebrated by getting very drunk. In his cups he had become abusive, and finally decided to kill both his wife and the baby. She swore he meant it. In her fright she had fled, leaving the baby behind, and as he did not come after her she was sure he was killing the baby."

There was no telephone in the house, and just about all the men in town were at the barracks. The poor woman was begging Anna to do something, and though Anna was just a slip of a girl—weighing in the neighborhood of a hundred pounds, she was pretty indignant. She told the woman she'd tell that husband of hers a thing or two, and coaxed her into going along with her. With the terrified woman following, she started for the cottage.

She opened the door and walked in. There stood the husband, in uniform, in the middle of the room. "He was staring into space and didn't take the slightest notice of us," Anna says. "The baby was unharmed. I helped the woman into bed and was bending over to admire the baby, when suddenly I heard the bolt shot in the door. I looked around quickly. There stood the husband, opening a large knife of many blades, and staring straight at me with the wildest eyes I ever saw or ever want to see again!"

Army Discipline Saved Them All. For an instant the man stared at Anna, wild eyes ablaze, and then he said slowly: "I'll kill the two of you!" And right there, Anna began to wish she hadn't been so rash as to venture into this drink-crazed madman's house. "I had visions of my four children across the street all alone," she says. "I would be lying if I said I was not afraid. I was never so afraid in all my life."

The man must have sensed that she was afraid of him. With a wicked leer, he took a step forward. But it was then that courage came to Anna's rescue. Anna says she got it from the stars—from the sign of Aquarius which she was born under. As I said before, I don't pretend to know where people get courage from, but Anna certainly got a bunch of it from somewhere. She pulled herself together and took a step toward the drunken man herself. "My husband is Nolan, the warrant officer at the barracks," she said. "Do you know what he'd say if he knew you were acting like this? Do you know what they'd do to you if they knew that this was the way you used the leave they gave you to see your sick wife? You'd better get back to the barracks. If you don't you know what will happen to you."

Well, maybe the stars had something to do with it, but army discipline played its part too. The man closed his knife and turned toward the door. Anna never took her eyes off him until he was safe outside. But the fellow went back to the barracks and that's the last Anna ever saw of him.

Says she: "I had my husband see to it that he didn't have much time for visiting before going to France. And when he arrived at the front he was one of the first soldiers to be killed."

Pilgrims, Puritans Were Not Excessive in Dress For reasons of conscience and economy, the Pilgrims and Puritans frowned on extravagance in dress, according to a writer in the Indianapolis News. Massachusetts records show that each settler was provided with four pairs of shoes and stockings, two suits of doublet and hose, four shirts, one woolen suit (leather-lined) with extra breeches, two handkerchiefs, one cotton waistcoat, leather belt, black hat, three caps, a cloak and two pairs of gloves.

In 1634, laws passed by the Massachusetts general court forbade the use of silver and gold ornaments, lace, silk and ruffs. Young men who defied this law by wearing long hair and silk were arrested, and one Hannah Lyman, age sixteen, was haled into court for "wearing silk in a flaunting manner."

Before the arrival of the cavaliers in Virginia, the dress of southern colonists was not unlike that of the Puritan. As the colonists acquired wealth, they began to order wardrobes from London. In 1737 Col. John Lewis ordered for his ward "a cap ruffe and tucker, one pair white stays, eight pairs white kid gloves, two pairs colored kid gloves, two pairs worsted hose, three pairs thread hose, one pair silk shoes laced, one pair Morocco shoes, one hoop coat, one hat, four pairs Spanish shoes, two pairs calf shoes, one mask, one fan, one necklace, one girdle and buckle, one piece fashionable calico, four yards ribbon for knots, one and one-half yards cambric, one mantua and coat of white string."

Men among the earlier settlers wore their own hair, the cavaliers dressing theirs in elaborate styles, while the Puritans and Quakers wore theirs plain and long to the shoulders.

Ancients Knew Use of Plaster Plaster for building purposes has been used for centuries. Its insulating and sanitary properties were developed by the ancients and its decorative possibilities furthered by the Greeks and Romans. King John of England recognized its fire-resistive qualities after the great London fire. Sanitary laws in many states require all habitable rooms to be lathed and plastered. It insulates against cold and drafts as well as heat. Other materials give much less in service for the comparative outlay.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, a nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure on the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her.

CHAPTER I—Continued

"It's a fairy story brought up to date. Only, for the spell of a witch, substitute the broadcast of a girl's voice. The little schemer got not only the money but Mary Amanda's jewels, many of which were my grandmother's."

Brooke dropped her hands from her ears after what seemed hours. Still talking? Perhaps Jed Stewart was talking to the office boy. She heard him say:

"Your aunt said in her will, remember, that if she left the jewels to you, you might—well, that Miss Reyburn would appreciate them. She related toward you to the extent of naming you legatee should the girl die without children; she was canny enough to prevent her fortune from falling into the hands of her family. You wouldn't think Brooke Reyburn a schemer if you saw her; you'd know that she had a background of cultivated living. She has a vivid face with a deep dimple at one corner of her lovely mouth; her voice is sweet, spiced with daring. She came out of college to carry her whole darn family when her father died—he was one of the tragic twenty-niners whose investments were wiped out—now, I suppose, her brother, who is acting in a stock company, and her sister will chuck their jobs and settle down on her. Her hair is like copper with the sun on it; her eyes change from brown to amber, and when she smiles at me I feel as cocky as a drum major at the head of a regiment."

"Help! You're raving, Jed. Perhaps you're thinking of marrying her?"

"Marry her yourself, Mark, and keep the fortune in the family."

"I! Marry that girl who hypnotized an old woman into leaving her a fortune! You're crazy. Besides, I am married."

"You haven't caught your aunt's ideas on divorce, have you? You don't feel tied to that woman who ran away with that French count, do you? You divorced her, didn't you? You—"

"Hold everything! We were talking of the Reyburn girl. You have nerve to make the suggestion that I marry her. Men have been put on the spot for less. I wouldn't marry that schemer if—"

Brooke flung back the hanging in a passion of rage.

"Nobody asked you to!" She cleared her voice of hoarseness, and flamed:

"Has it never occurred to you, Mark Trent—? She stopped, her eyes wide with amazement. Was this really the man who had pulled her from in front of that speeding car? After the first flash there was no recognition in his eyes, nor any concern, rather a quiet mockery, which, she felt, at the first word of hers would turn into active dislike.

"You! You—" Her breath caught in a laugh that was half sob. "What a mean break for you that you didn't know who I was, that you didn't let that car hit me! Then you would have had the money."

She had never seen a face so colorless as Mark Trent's as his eyes met hers steadily.

"Lucky I didn't know who you were, wasn't it? I might have been tempted. Schemers somehow lead charmed lives."

For a split second Brooke thought that fury had paralyzed her tongue. She made two attempts to speak before she protested angrily:

"I'm not a schemer! I suppose it never has occurred to you that the 'Reyburn girl' may have loved Mary Amanda Dane? May have been glad to spend one evening a week in a homey old house away from her whole 'darn family' in a crowded city apartment?"

Failure of breath alone stopped Brooke's tirade. There was plenty more she could say, she was apt to be good when she started. A laugh twitched at her lips. The two men facing her couldn't have looked more stunned when she made her theatrical entrance had a hold-up man with leveled gun suddenly stepped from behind the hanging. So this was Mark Trent. She had been careful never to go to Lookout House when he was there, for fear that he might think she had planned to meet him. She had not realized that he would be so bronzed nor so tall, that his dark eyes were so uncompromising, nor that the set of his mouth and chin could be so indomitable. There was a fiery strong quality of life in him which sent prickles of excitement like red-hot silvers shooting through her veins. She knew now that she should have appeared from behind that hanging at Jed Stewart's first word.

"Stewart's always ruddy face was the color of a fully grown beet. He coughed apologetically."

"Sorry, Miss Reyburn. Didn't know you'd come. I'll slit the throat of that secretary of mine for not telling me. So you two have met before? That's a coincidence."

"No coincidence about it, Jed. Apparently we were both on the way to this office to keep an appointment with you, when we 'met' in the street almost in front of this building."

Brooke's anger flared again at Mark Trent's cool explanation. She met the terrier brightness of Jed Stewart's gray-green eyes. She had liked him when she had come to his office in response to the court's amazing notification that she was residuary legatee under the will of Mary Amanda Dane. The black and white check of his suit accentuated the roundness of his body. He puffed out his lips as he regarded her with boyish entreaty. She laughed.

"The present uncomfortable situation only goes to prove, doesn't it, Mr. Stewart, that listeners never hear any good of themselves? Though really I wasn't listening. I stepped behind the hanging to look at the marvelous view, and then—"

"You heard Jed say that your hair was like copper with the sun on it, and—"

"I stuffed my fingers in my ears for a while, but I heard a lot more, a whole lot more." Brooke cut in on Mark Trent's sarcastic reminder, "before I heard you refuse to marry me."

"But that was before I had seen you." The suavity of his voice brought hot tears of fury to her eyes. Before she could rally a caustic retort, he picked up his hat.

"That's a bully exit line. I'll be seeing you, Jed. Hope you'll enjoy the house and the fortune, Miss Reyburn. Happy landings!" He laughed. "I'd better say, 'Safe landings!' You're such a reckless person."

"Hi! Fella!"

With an impatient jerk, Mark Trent shook off the hand on his sleeve, rapped his soft hat over one eye, and closed the door smartly behind him. Stewart relieved his feelings in an explosive sigh and pulled forward a chair.

"That seems to be that. Sit down, Miss Reyburn, while I tell you about the allowance which will be made you while Mrs. Dane's estate is being settled."

CHAPTER II

From the lighted stage Brooke Reyburn looked into the auditorium of the department store in which she had worked for four years. She had begun by modeling sports clothes, and because she had loved her work and had given it all the enthusiasm and drive there was in her she had been promoted steadily. The first of this last year she had been made head fashion adviser and had been set to Paris. She had made frequent trips to New York, but never before had she been abroad. Now she was talking for the last time to a hall full of women, many of whom she had come to know by sight. She had given her last radio talk. It was the end of her business career.

As she stepped from the stage, Mme. Celeste, the autocratic head of the store's department of clothes for women, stopped her. A hint of emotion warmed the hard blue of her eyes as she caught Brooke's hands.

"Cherie," her French was slightly denatured by a down-east twang. "I shall lose my right hand when you go. Why did that meddlesome old party want to butt in and leave you money? You were on the way to making it here."

"I shall miss you, Mme. Celeste." Brooke's voice was none too steady. "Perhaps you won't have to long. In this here-today-and-gone-tomorrow age, money doesn't stay in one pocket. Remember, cherie, whenever you want a job, come to me. You'll be needing one. Au revoir!"

"Cheering thought that I may lose the fortune," Brooke reflected, as she approached her office across the hall. Suddenly the black letters:

on the ground-glass panel of the door jiggled fantastically.

She blinked moisture from her lashes—she hadn't supposed she would feel choky about leaving. She opened the door, closed it quickly behind her, and backed against it as a man slid to his feet from the corner of her desk. His black hair shone like the coat of a sleek well-brushed pony; his dark eyes were quizzically amused as they met hers; his teeth were beautifully white; he was correctly turned out in epic and span business clothes. He was likable, but there was something missing—rather curious that never before had she felt it.

"How's tricks?" he inquired gaily.

"How did you get in here, Jerry Field?"

"Easy as rolling off a log. A taxi, an elevator, a few strides on shanks mare, and here I am."

"I've told you time and again not to come to my office."

"While you were on the job, you said, sweet thing. I've stayed away and all the time the old wolf jealousy gnawed at my heart. I've imagined you here entertaining the male heads of departments and letting them, or stopping them, make love to you."

"You've been seeing too many movies. How you dramatize life. You have been miscast. Instead of being born a rich man's son and spending your days dabbling in paint and the stock market, you should be on the stage. With your flair for good theater, you'd be packing them in. Perhaps Sam can get you a chance in his company. Have you seen the play in which he is acting?" she asked with a quick change from lightness to gravity.

"Yes. Your brother's good."

"But you don't like the play?"

"I can't hand it much."

"Neither can I. It's a dummy with not a breath of life, not a drop of red blood, just clever epigrams and stuffed-shirt characters. I wish Sam hadn't been cast in it."

"Don't worry. It won't last long. What's the next play on the stock list?"

"The Tempest." The apartment rings with, 'Best! Best! Best! My hearts! Cheerily, cheerily my hearts!'"

"You're not bad yourself, Brooke. Why didn't you take to acting?"

"I ought to be good. We children were raised on dramatics and quotations. It was Father's habit to orate when he was shaving, and we could spout Shakespeare before we could spell. Besides being a publisher, he was a playwright for amateurs, but Sam is ambitious to write for the professional stage; he has one three-act comedy finished, that is, as finished as a play can be until it is put into rehearsal. That is why he is acting, that he may know all there is to know of stage technic. I've had theater enough in my late job. Late! I can't believe that I'm through. Come on, Jerry, before I sob on the shoulder of that display figure. I asked the girls not to come to say good-bye as if I were going away forever. They gave me a grand farewell party last night, and I have perfume, hosiery, and bags enough to last the rest of my natural life. Go ahead. I want to snap out the light myself."

As she stopped on the threshold, Jerry Field caught her arm.

"Hey, no looking back. Remember what happened to Lot's wife. I'd make a hit, wouldn't I, tugging a pillar of salt round the dance floor." He shut the door smartly behind them.

Brooke blinked and swallowed. "Okay, Jerry, from now on I go straight ahead like an army with banners, but straight ahead doesn't mean teeing and dancing with you tonight."

When they reached the already darkening street, Jerry Field demanded:

"Won't you go stepping with me now?"

"No, thanks. I am going home to plan with the family about moving, and to plot the curve of our domestic future."

"Look here, Brooke, don't persist in that silly idea of living in the house Mrs. Dane left you. It's all right for spring and summer, but what will you do marooned on a rocky point of land almost entirely surrounded by water when the days get short, in a place where the residents dig in and nothing ever happens? If you were here in the city," he urged, "I could pick you up in a minute and we could go places. To date you've handed out the excuse that you were too busy. People are planning to winter there, are they? That's an idea. You won't lose the fortune if you don't live in the old place will you? It wasn't a condition?"

They were walking toward the crimson and jade sunset against which a huge electric clock seemed colorless.

"No. Mrs. Dane merely left a note with her lawyer, in which she wrote that she wished I would live there for two years, or at least until I had cleared the house of her belongings, that she knew that I would not laugh at her treasures, that I would understand, and that I would care for her parrot, Mr. Micawber. That parrot leaves me cold, Jerry. So you see, I must live in the house for a while—now that the lordly Mark Trent has given permission. I—"

"What has Mark Trent to say about it?"

Brooke looked up in surprise as they waited for the traffic light at the corner to change to red and yellow.

"Don't bite. Do you know him, Jerry?"

"Sure, I know him," he replied shortly.

Bedouins Hospitable

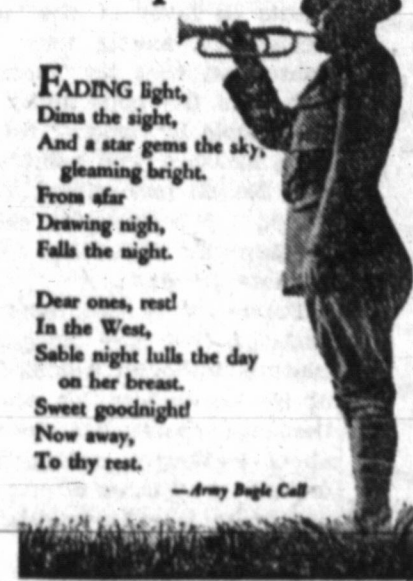

Besides being one of the picturesque nomads of the desert, the Bedouin is "most hospitable," says a writer. A Bedouin host thinks it humiliating to ask his guest his name, his destination, or the time of his departure. It is a recognized law of the desert that if a stranger appears at your tent and your sheep are grazing far away, you are entitled, in order to follow the ancient law of hospitality, to steal a neighbor's sheep and to slay it in honor of your guest. This is a sort of borrowing and not literally stealing as the law is observed by all neighbors. Hospitality is not limited to food and drink, but includes affording the guest protection should his life be threatened. If a guest's belongings are stolen, the host will make every effort to have them restored.

"With Charity to All—"

Thomas Nast, who drew this cartoon, wrote on the bottom of it: With Charity to All, With Malice Toward None.—Abraham Lincoln.

Taps

FADING light,
Dims the sight,
And a star gems the sky,
gleaming bright.
From afar
Drawing nigh,
Falls the night.

Dear ones, rest
In the West,
Sable night lulls the day
on her breast.
Sweet goodnight
Now away,
To thy rest.

—Army Bugle Call

Girl Served Three Years With Continental Army

DEBORAH SAMPSON was born in Plympton, Mass., 18 years before she cut off her hair, put on men's clothes, took the name of Robert Shurtliff and succeeded in enlisting in the Continental army as a common soldier. A sabre cut in the forehead and a shot in the shoulder did not take her out of action and it was three years before an attack of brain fever, while she was serving with Washington gave her a discharge and his thanks. Congress voted her a grant of lands and a pension. She married Benjamin Gannett, a farmer, near Sharon, Mass., and settled down to being a good wife and mother.

Selective Service Law Brought Out 24 Million

THE first selective service or draft law of the World War was passed May 18, 1917. It applied to all men of the ages of twenty-one to thirty, inclusive, and was later amended to provide for two supplementary drafts (June 5, 1918, and August 24, 1918) in addition to the original draft of June 5, 1917. By a still later enactment in August, 1918, the draft ages were extended to include eighteen to forty-five years, and the first registration thereunder, held on September 12, 1918, produced about 13,000 registrants. The first registration, June 5, 1917, brought out nearly 10,000,000 young men, the second, on June 5, 1918, brought 744,865, and the third August 24, 1918, 157,963—a total of nearly 24,000,000 Americans of military age. The administration of the law was in the hands of the war department, under the supervision of the President, and with the assistance of local draft boards, with appeal boards for each congressional district. The President issued his first instructions to the exemption boards July 2, 1917; and the first men drafted were called to service September 3, 1917. The order in which the registrants were to be called to determine their availability for military service was settled by a drawing of numbers at Washington, in the senate office building, on July 20. Quotas were apportioned to each of the states and territories and the District of Columbia.

This Memorial Day

by Lois G. Ruffley

THERE is something in the air on Memorial day that grips the heart. With lumps in our throats, we see the time-scarred Civil war veterans ride by, and wonder how many will be left in the ranks for another year. With our tears, we water the flowers on the graves of our soldier dead on Memorial day. We think of those who fell in the fray of all wars and are infinitely sad.

But, while we muse, a band sweeps down the street to a stirring martial air. The glorious stars and stripes float before our eyes. Our pulses quicken and we thrill through and through with patriotism. For the moment, we forget the sorrow and futility of war and the pitiful mounds in which our soldier boys are sleeping.

Truly, our emotions are at war on Memorial day. Then, as at no other time, we realize that our intellect is a mere atom afloat on a sea of feeling. Intelligence tells us that war never settled anything. Emotion tells us that when the band plays and the flag floats by, we can do no less than join in the parade and be the first to step forth for our country when we are challenged.

While we stand beside the heroes' graves and reflect, we should make a solemn resolve that, inasmuch as we are able, we shall see that "these dead shall not have died in vain." The lad in blue or olive drab would have fallen joyfully if he could have gone with the assurance that he was giving up his life that those at home would have their future safely assured, and that boys to be born after him would be spared the horror he had known on the battlefield.

They, dying, threw the torch to us. This Memorial day, let us resolve anew to hold it high and work for abiding peace in all nations.

In 1812 America was young, cocky and had a chip on its shoulder. It defied the greatest seapower on earth. Men like this one helped make the defiance good. Statue by Lee Lawrie at New Haven, Conn.

Memorial Day Not Same Date in All the States

WHILE May 30, Memorial day, is a legal holiday in most of the states, there are ten in which it is not, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. With the exception of New Mexico, where the day is nevertheless observed, these states are all in the old South. Most of them have memorial days of their own.

The date most commonly observed as Confederate Memorial day is April 26, a holiday in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi. May 10 is the Confederate Memorial day in North Carolina and Kentucky, the latter observing May 30 also. June 3, Jefferson Davis' birthday, is the Tennessee Memorial day, besides being observed for its own sake in the other southern states.

O mores! O tempora! In other words, what are we coming to? Never before in our lives have we witnessed so much immorality as is being paraded before our eyes today. Pictures of practically nude women, unashamed, are being flaunted on the pages of almost every newspaper and magazine, every billboard and movie screen. Practically nude women, unabashed and unashamed, appear in the flesh before the gaze of men in many public places. Never before in the history of our country was there so much drinking and drunkenness among women and girls. And never before was there as much infamous crime as is being committed today—youths men killing their sweethearts, girls killing their boy friends; husbands killing their wives and wives killing their husbands; children murdering their parents and parents murdering their children; even mothers, so steeped in immorality, as to be able to murder their own offspring with no apparent compunctions of conscience. There has never before been anything like it in the history of our country. We need to get back to the cardinal virtues. We need to become God-conscious. We need to study anew the Ten Commandments and the teachings of Jesus. Were it not for the fact that in spite of all this maelstrom of immorality we still have a great body of noble men and women and the finest set of young people the world has ever known, the situation would indeed seem hopeless. But we have the faith to believe that the forces of righteousness and virtue will prevail, that Christian principles will continue to spread, and that the world will continue its struggle upward toward the light.

Another regular session of the legislature has gone by and nothing has been done about redistricting the state into new Representative districts. Bills for that purpose always get pigeon-holed and then forgotten. East Texas now holds and for a long time has held the whip hand. Any fair redistricting bill would cost it several representatives and would add several from the west. And yet West Texas continues to be used as a cat's paw to pull East Texas chestnuts out of the fire. Last year all West Texas joined with East Texas in voting for the undemocratic amendment limiting representation from the cities. And now West Texas naturally has the help of neither the cities nor East Texas in getting a redistricting bill through. We repeatedly forecast just such a situation last year when the campaign for this amendment was being waged, but our warnings fell on unheeding ears. Now, it seems, we must continue to get along with about one Representative for every three that East Texas has on a basis of population. That being the case, we should quit sending just anybody to the legislature. We should draft the very strongest men that we have.

Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas is being urged by his colleagues for appointment as associate justice of the Supreme Court to succeed Justice Willis Van Devanter, who has tendered his resignation. Senator Robinson is reputed to be one of the best lawyers in the Senate and is doubtless much better qualified and fitted for the position than most others whose names are being mentioned in this connection—Frankfurter, Richburg, Gov-nor Frank Murphy of Michigan, Pecora, etc., etc. Of the whole bunch only one is from the South and that is Joe Robinson. There are doubtless many other Southern men better qualified though less eminent than Robinson. We believe a Southern man should be appointed. There is only one Southern man on the Court now, Justice McReynolds of Tennessee. The South has been scantily represented on this great tribunal since the Civil War. It is time for it to be given proper recognition again, for there are just as able lawyers in the South as there are in any other part of the nation. No Texan has ever sat on the Supreme Court. We should like to see some good Texas man appointed at no distant date.

Jack Stricklin, editor of the Terry County Herald, has had his share of misfortune recently. Not long ago his health became so bad that he decided to go down to Marlin and try the virtues of hot water baths.
He came back much better but just recently his daughter became seriously ill of pneumonia and was taken to a Lubbock sanitarium for treatment. Finally she had to undergo an operation in which a portion of one rib was removed. Here is hoping that the good lady speedily recovers and that Jack and family have smooth sailing in point of health from here on out.

At last the Texas Tech is to have a much needed library building. The sum of $275,000 was appropriated for that purpose by the legislature just before it adjourned. Heretofore the college with an enrollment reaching more than 3,000 this year has had library facilities for only about 300, according to Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the institution. We are hopeful that our East Texas legislature will continue to show a more liberal spirit toward our West Texas institutions.

FOR BETTER LAWMAKING

An issue that will return in Texas is State Senator G. H. Nelson's proposal for a unicameral Legislature, a more compact body designed to be more efficient than the present unwieldy House and Senate. The proposal is for a constitutional amendment on which the people would vote. Both House and Senate in effect killed the measure for the regular session.

In advocating the unicameral body, with 62 members from the senatorial districts, Senator Nelson cited the increasing cost to the taxpayers of the present Legislature, which has risen from $312,747 for the Thirty-ninth to $1,109,000 for the Forty-third. To the charge that a smaller single body would be subject more to corruption and control, Senator Nelson replied that at present most major legislation is done by free conference committees, selected by the two presiding officers of Senate and House.

His suggestion that a legislator under the unicameral plan be paid adequately with a prohibition against other employment would eliminate the slightest suspicion of evil. Wisdom would dictate against a legislator serving the people in Austin and other interests at home.
Such interests served, say, by a lawyer who is also a legislator, often are vitally concerned in legislation.
There arises the lash of two loyalties, added to which is the human trait that honest convictions often are founded unconsciously on personal gain or advantage.

Senator Nelson raised other arguments in favor of the unicameral Legislature, among them being the contention that its members will not have the opportunity to fool the people by dodging responsibility on a measure. The point is that Senator Nelson has offered a plan designed for permanent reform, just as Governor Allred has for the immediate present.

Before the Senate, Senator Nelson declared that the unicameral Legislature, although ridiculed by some of his co-workers, "is coming" and that the people will do something about legislative machinery sooner or later if all other efforts fail. That prediction is not unjustified.—Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

UNICAMERAL PLAN

The indirect vote of the Texa.
Senate in killing the Nelson unicameral plan for the present was in line with an earlier action of the House and was not unexpected.
Proponents of this drastic proposal for reducing the Texas Legislature to a single body of forty-two members realize that their fight is not of a kind that can be won quickly.

Widespread interest in the working of Nebraska's new unicameral Legislature, however, indicates a growing popular concern in increasing legislative efficiency. The balki-ness of the Texas Senate in the present session, especially in regard to the gambling bill, has been irritating to many voters; and reports of successful operation of the unicameral legislature at Lincoln point to a possible remedy.

Under the Nelson plan, two legislators would be elected from each Texas congressional district. These lawmakers would be on annual salary and would remain in session almost the year around. In Nebraska, the unicameral legislators do not represent political parties. Both the number of committees and the size of committees have been drastically cut. Mornings are used for legislation and afternoons for committee hearings, which are open to the public.

Judged from a point of view of money alone, the Nelson plan would result in a vast saving to taxpayers.
Legislative expense has risen from $312,747 for the Thirty-ninth session to $1,109,000 for the Forty-third. The improvement the plan promises in efficiency is even more important.—Dallas News.

West Texas is to have a hospital

cently passed and Governor Allred

Health-Wrecking Functional

PAINS

Severe functional pains of menstruation, cramping spells and jangled nerves soon rob a woman of her natural, youthful freshness. PAIN lines in a woman's face too often grow into AGE lines!

Thousands of women have found it helpful to take Cardul. They say it seemed to ease their pains and they noticed an increase in their appetites and finally a strengthened resistance to the discomfort of monthly periods.

Try Cardul. Of course if it doesn't help, you, see your doctor.

tion of $817,000 for that purpose
Our East Texas legislature could not stand it for West Texas to get even an insane asylum without voting one for themselves also. But Governor Allred vetoed the appropriation for the East Texas ins-tution. The State has long had such institutions at Terrell, Austin, and Wichita Falls. But Terrell is not large enough to hold all the crazy folks in East Texas and Austin and Wichita Falls are entirely too far west for them. The board of control, we understand, will decide upon the location for the new West Texas institution.

All the court reform measures that were pending in the legislature got caught in the legislative traffic jam and failed to get through. Some of these were important. It is regrettable that even a comparatively small minority in either house of the legislature, by filibustering or other dilatory tactics, can defeat almost any piece of proposed legislation to which it is opposed. If the rules of procedure in the legislature are not amended so that a majority can, with reasonable promptness, write its will into law, there is going to be a rapidly growing demand in this state for the unicameral form of legislature.

REPORTS FROM THE COUNTY CLUBS

Miss Lilith Boyd, H. D. Agent

WILSON H. D. CLUB STUDIES POSTURE

"The importance of Good Posture" was the subject of a paper given by Mrs. B. W. Baker to the Wilson Home Demonstration Club at the home of Mrs. S. A. Cummings May 19th.

Health and confidence are gained by good posture. Children should be taught to carry themselves well early in life. The organs of the body can function properly with less effort if one has correct posture. The feet play an important part in posture.

Mrs. Jackson West told of the importance of correct exercises. One should take exercises that tend toward flexibility. A clean body comfortable shoes, and well-fitting appropriate clothing add to cheerfulness and self-confidence.

MIDWAY CLUB MEETS WITH SPONSOR

"When snaps are button-hole stitched on they do not come off easily," Miss Boyd said, in a demonstration to the Midway 4-H club members Monday, May 17, at 9 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. R. L. Littlepage, sponsor.

Mrs. Littlepage has found a new method of making hat racks. She has saved an old knob off the gear shift of a car to attach at the top a stiff wire eight inches tall with a base in circle form.

Members present were: Nieto, Teapene and Marciene Stephens, Mary and Evelyn McDonald, Mary Louise and Bessie Rainey, Irene and Ruth Grider, Opal and Letha Pearl Johnson, Clovis Stephens, and Clara Lee Henry.

HACKBERRY CLUB IN HOME OF MRS. CORBELL

"Make your kitchen a life saver," said Miss Boyd Friday, May 21, when the Hackberry Club met in the home of Mrs. L. L. Corbell. "To make a kitchen life-saving you must be able to save steps, save time, and save energy."

An expansion report was made out by Mrs. Clyde Haire. Mrs. Ed Denton and Mrs. Howton Haire gave reports on the Canyon trip.

Members present at the meeting were: Mmes. M. E. Morris, B. Spence W. C. Oats, Hubert Taylor, Clyde Haire, W. P. Lester, C. A. Bloxom, Ed Denton, Howton Haire, B. Jones, R. W. Saunders, J. R. Kiker, and Misses Sybil Taylor and Virginia Corbell.

Visitors were: Mmes. A. M. Jackson, J. E. Mayo, and L. L. Corbell.

THREE LAKES CLUB AT MRS. McMILLAN'S

Labor saving devices was the theme of the lesson directed by Miss Lilith Boyd, county home demonstration agent, with the Three Lakes Club in the home of Mrs. E. McMillan on Tuesday, May 5.

Three things to be considered in arranging a kitchen are: save steps, time, and energy. If we are tired after doing a normal amount of housework, we should do something to make our work easier.

If we have no refrigerator, a trough should be fixed at the well to keep our milk and butter. This causes extra steps, but it is worth our trouble.

Owing to the muddy roads only four members were present.

Refreshments of cake and lemonade were served to Mesdames Jarrell Cox and McMillan, Misses Mildred Cox, Lilith Boyd, and the hostess.

DIXIE HEARS OF THE IDEAL PANTRY

A well ventilated pantry is the ideal pantry, Miss Lilith Boyd, home demonstration agent, told the women of the Dixie Home Demonstration Club at their meeting May 19 in the home of Mrs. V. H. Mascha.

It is well to have this pantry built so that it can be opened in the summer and closed during the cold period of the year. The shelves should be built in to allow the cool air to circulate around the containers of food.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following members: Mmes. B. C. Aycox, Herman Bearden, H. A. Macha, Marvin Berry, G. B. Sherrod, G. L. Cobb, Buel Draper, R. F. Janak, L. E. Huffaker, Miss Lilith Boyd, and our hostess.

MAKES DRESS FROM SALT SACKING

From three 100-pound salt sacks, Miss Mildred Cox, cooperator in the Three Lakes Home Demonstration Club, made a sport dress for herself.

"The sacks did not have brands stamped on them because my aunt sent them to me from the salt mills. After dyeing them dark red, I made the dress with a round yoke, kimono sleeves, sun-tan back and gored skirt. For trimming I used some buttons I cut from an old suit of mother's and made the belt of the material. Since it has been laundered, it has the appearance of linen," said Mildred.

The expense of the dress included the dye and the spool of thread.

EDITH 4-H CLUB MEETS WITH MARY STEWART

The Edith 4-H Club met in the home of Mary Stewart at 9:00 o'clock May 21.

Construction of the School Dress was the demonstration given by Miss Boyd.

Dorothy Kahl was unanimously elected by the club as a delegate to the Farmer's Short Course which begins August 16.

Refreshments were served to the following: Eva Woods, Juanda Taylor, Dorothy Kahl, Dorothy Jean Brown, Lamyrie Ramsey, Juanell Taylor, Mary Stewart, Miss Marie

TAHOKA H. D. CLUB IN ALL DAY MEETING

The Tahoka Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. A. C. Weaver Wednesday for all day meeting and quilted a quilt for the hostess. Piano solos were given by Mmes. R. L. Richardson and J. K. Woosley.

Our next meeting will be at Mrs. Jewell Wells' with Mrs. Claud Wells as hostess, Wednesday, June 9.

Mrs. James Connolly, our president, was elected delegate to the A. & M. Short Course.

Our meeting Wednesday was opened by our club song, "Beautiful Texas," after which talks were given.

"Begin to teacher the children while young to have a good posture," said Mrs. R. W. Fenton.

"Standing and sitting erect will make you healthy," said Mrs. Mill Finch.

"You should have plenty of fresh air, drink plenty of fresh water, and get plenty of sunshine," said Mrs. H. O. Patterson. Mrs. Claud Wells gave a good talk on "A Million Dollar Figure."

Delicious refreshments were served to Miss Dama Anglin and Mrs. H. B. Howell, visitors, and the following members: Mmes. R. L. Richardson, R. W. Fenton, J. K. Woosley, Chas. Nelms, W. S. Tahoka Citizens Kin To Notables

Did you know that former Governor Dan Moody has a kinsman who resides in Tahoka?

Well, by the merest accident, we discovered a few days ago that Dan has the honor of being a third cousin of W.O. Robertson of this city. Mr. Robertson is a member of that Williamson county family of Robertsons of which Dan Moody's mother was also a member. He is a funeral director, but he takes no stock in burying those who are merely politically dead. He hasn't been here very long, but already he is recognized as one of our very best citizens.

But Dan Moody is not the only ex-governor who enjoys a distinction of this kind. As is well known here, Judge Brice Ferguson of the lower Rio Grande valley, a nephew of former Governor James E. Ferguson, came to Tahoka a few years ago to get his wife. He married the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Hogan. And by the way, Mr. Hogan is not only one of our most prominent business men, but he is the best lay Bible teacher in West Texas, and that means he is the best anywhere. We have often thought that, when a young man, Mr. Hogan should have prepared himself to teach Bible in some great university or seminary. He couldn't have been beat.

But that is not all. When the people of the state of Oklahoma last year got ready to elect a United States Senator, they chose the brilliant and eloquent Josh Lee, who is a cousin of Mrs. B. P. Maddox of this city. Judge Maddox has enjoyed political honors himself, having been one of the most active and influential members of the legislature of this state at one time, and Mrs.

Maddox is one of the most accomplished women of Tahoka. It is a far cry from Galveston to Tahoka, but one of the most prominent leaders of that city, Senator T. J. Holbrook, who for many years has helped to fashion the laws of this state, also claims the distinction of being related to a Tahoka citizen. He is a cousin of our own George Knight, who has sold enough Fords and Chevrolets in this town to move the whole population of the county at a single trip.

Probably old Quannah Parker, neap big Injun chief, and son of Cynthia Ann, never dreamed that some day a relative of his would be the chief law officer of Lynn county; but our own sheriff, B. L. Parker, is a distant relative of Quannah's.

There may be a lot of other distinguished characters, living or dead, whose relatives are citizens of our town; but this is enough for this time. Adios.

SOCIETY

Club and Church News

METHODIST WOMEN MEET AT MRS. BUCY'S

Mrs. Bucy opened her home Monday afternoon in a social meeting for the Society, but the splendid rain just at the time interfered with the attendance.

The Bake Sale at Boullouin's netted a nice sum. Next Saturday Mack's Food Store will continue the Buy or Bake Sale. Dressed chickens, pies, cakes, etc., will be offered by members of the church. Every family of the church is going to be asked sooner or later to join in making this fund for the organization. No one will be asked to contribute more than one.

Regular meeting at church at 3 o'clock Monday.

In cleaning out your closets of winter wear, please store the things not wanted for another season, that they may be had for a Rummage Sale in the fall. It will help to clothe some needy ones and the small price received will be added to the Society's treasury.

Mrs. Randall of Seymour, President of the Conference Society, visited relatives over the week end.

Phone 187 for dinner rolls for either Saturday or Sunday. One cent each, and you bake them.—Reporter.

KITCHEN SHOULD HAVE ADEQUATE SHELF SPACE

"One of the greatest handicaps in the average kitchen is lack of shelf space for dishes." This was stressed by Miss Boyd at the meeting of the Friendship Home Demonstration Club which met with Mrs. H. O. Hargett on May 20. She added that by replacing shelves or by adding new ones in such a closet, a great many more dishes can be stored conveniently.

A report was given by the members of the club on what they had done to help non-club members.

Those present were: Mesdames Readus Bishop, Sam Holland, T. I. Tippitt, J. W. Taylor, Roy Poer, M. O. Canaday, Lloyd Edwards, Garland Pennington, Ernest Brown, T. J. Owens, W. H. Kahl, E. S. Tippitt, A. J. Bell, H. O. Hargett, S. H. Woods, Weldon Jones, Miss Marie Owens, and two visitors, Mrs. C. G. Ingle and Mrs. Z. R. Ingle.

A MEDLEY BY ELDER DRENNON

We were greeted by fair crowds at O'Donnell last Lord's Day. Some of the best people to be found anywhere are in the congregation at O'Donnell and it is a joy to preach to them. The ladies at O'Donnell and Tahoka took my wife to Lubbock last week and bought her a beautiful silk dress, for which she is thankful.

As I think of the graduation exercises and the giving of diplomas, my mind runs to the great day when Jesus shall return and examinations shall begin. Oh, how few are going to receive their diploma which shall read: "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy lord." Matthew 25: 23. How hard it is to get people to prepare for that great day.

I want to urge every member to keep in mind our meeting which begins July 25th and runs over the first Sunday in August. We are very fortunate in having a man of Bro. Wallace's ability and should do all in our power to make the meeting a success.

I want to commend the Editor's stand on the Supreme Court question. We need to safeguard our liberty and the dignity of our highest tribunal. To my mind our children need to be taught to have more respect for law and order.

The Old Devil is giving the Legislature a big scare on the horse race betting bill. How sad to see such a fine bunch of men afraid to do their duty.

I will fill the pulpit at O'Donnell next Lord's Day, the Lord willing. Services here, Bible study 10 A. M. Communion 11 A. M. Visit the friendly church where the Bible is supreme.—R. P. Drennon.

SHOWER IS GIVEN MRS. JOHN ROGERS

Mrs. Edd Cobb was hostess to a shower given in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Letha Rogers, whose home was destroyed by a tornado Saturday afternoon near South Ward.

Many useful gifts were received. A talk of appreciation and thanks was made by the honoree. The guests were dismissed in prayer by Mrs. Atkinson.

Ice cream cones were served the following guests: Mesdames Rogers, Scott, Duckett, Adams, Warren, Harwick, Richards, Millman, Norris, Marlin, Burroughs, Rea, Tuttle, Atkinson, Coughran, Young; Misses Bobbie Scott, Ethel Norris, and Allene Warren.

BONNIE KING MARRIES O'DONNELL GIRL

Bonnie King, formerly of Tahoka but now a Lamesa citizen, and Miss Laynette Smith, O'Donnell, were married in the study of the Presbyterian church at Lamesa Tuesday of last week.

Bonnie is a graduate of Tahoka High School and is now employed by Higginbotham-Bartlett. His bride is a daughter of the late W. J. and Mrs. Smith of O'Donnell.

Many friends over the county wish them much success and happiness together.

Mrs. Clyde Hartman returned Wednesday from a week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Brasfield, at Andrews.

Frank Larkin of Elizabethton Tenn., is here this week visiting his father, H. M. Larkin, and sister, Mrs. Arnold Houston.

LEGION WILL OBSERVE POPPY WEEK

A poppy in memory of the disabled veteran and the Dead! May is poppy month. This week is Poppy Week with the American Legion and Auxiliary.

The poppy was adopted by the Legion in 1920 as the Legion flower. The Auxiliary in 1921 also adopted it. Each little red poppy is made by a disabled veteran who is not physically able to be away from a hospital, and he gets one penny for each poppy that he makes to send his family. The rest of the fund goes into a child welfare and rehabilitation fund for our home Legion Post use for all poppies sold here this week. Saturday will be devoted to the sales, and the Girl Scouts have volunteered to help put this work over.

The Legion and Auxiliary enjoyed a chicken dinner at the Legion Home Tuesday evening. Twenty-five were present for the dinner, after which each organization went into business meeting.

MARTHA S. S. CLASS GIVES PARTY

The Marthas of the Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. A. M. Daniels in south Tahoka Thursday afternoon. After a very interesting program, refreshments of frozen punch and cookies were served. Corsages of phlox and baby's breath were given the guests.

Those present were: Mesdames W. E. Smith, V. F. Jones, F. E. Calvery, Ben Hardy, Travis Davis, Ott Patterson, Johnson, Hick Gibson, T. J. Bovell, S. E. Reid, Charles Nelms, Weaver, Homer Maxey, Mill Finch, Rafe Richardson, Bill Darby, N. M. Wyatt, Harley Wells, A. M. Daniels and Ira B. Krebbs.

METHODISTS REPORT GROWING INTEREST

Our school was good last Sunday. It is growing a bunch of real live teachers and heads of departments.

Glad to hear that Miss Helen Parks, who has been assistant secretary, is better. Hope she will be back again completely well.

We are thankful for the very fine rain.

We miss the Lockwoods, but hope for them a restful vacation.

We will be expecting you next Sunday.

They left immediately after the ceremony for Santa Fe to make their home.

Jno. D. Rockefeller Died Sunday

John D. Rockefeller, for many years rated America's richest man, died at his winter home at Ormand Beach, Florida, at a few minutes after 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Had he lived until July 8, he would have been 98 years old.

Rockefeller was one of the greatest of geniuses of all time in the business world, a veritable Napoleon of Finance. Born in the state of New York, he removed with his parents to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1853, when he was fourteen years of age. After attending high school a year and a half he took a business course and then set out to find a job. After a long search he found a job of book-keeping at $4.50 per week. He was then 16 years old. For the first three months he drew $50, and for the next year he received $25 per month. The following year he got $50 per month. At the age of 18 he had saved up $1,000. He borrowed another $1,000 from his father and embarked in the commission business with a partner, on his own hook. The business prospered.

When he was 20 years of age, oil was struck at Drake, Pennsylvania. For two years he investigated and studied the situation and then he and his partner, Maurice B. Clark, and a third man, Samuel Andrews, organized a company and built a small oil refinery near Cleveland, Ohio. That was Rockefeller's beginning in the oil business. This concern in a few years grew into the Standard Oil Company of Ohio. Later the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was organized and numerous subsidiary companies. The Rockefeller fortune has been variously estimated at one billion to two billion four hundred million dollars. Rockefeller has given away more than a half billion dollars, consisting of many large gifts and innumerable small ones.

His tastes have always been simple and his life clean.

He married in 1864 at Akron, Ohio. His wife died in 1915. His son John D. Rockefeller Jr., has long been the active manager of the Rockefeller properties and is himself one of the richest men of America.

Electrification Is Rotary Subject

H. M. Roberts of Lubbock was the principal speaker at the Rotary Club Thursday noon, speaking on rural electrification. This government project is now being placed before the farmers, and much interest was shown in his talk.

Miss Marjory Wells, on motion of Tom Garrard, was elected Tahoka's sponsor in the Texas Cowboy Reunion, at Stamford in July. She is the Tahoka Rotary Club—"sweet-heart."

Perry Goad and Frank Hill were appointed to prepare material for a radio program over Station WBAP of Fort Worth, sponsored by the Hawk and Buck Company honoring Tahoka.

Wade Howell, who will represent the local Boy Scout troop at the National Jamboree in Washington next month, was a guest of President Mack Penn.

Visiting Rotarians were present from Fort Worth, Lubbock, and Post.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."
—Mrs. Jack Miller.

Adierka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels with ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowels only. Adierka gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. E. Shank, New York, reports "in addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka greatly reduces bacteria and toxin loads." Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all leading Druggists.

June Bridal Party in Summer Velvet

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SUMMER velvet is important fashion news for the bride-to-be who is seeking a radiantly beautiful and out of the ordinary material for the making of her own gown as well as those for her attendants.

No word picturing can do justice to this enchanting fabric, for the loveliness of summer velvet cannot be visualized by the mere telling. Unless you have seen summer velvet you are due for a surprise for it is not all-velvet by any means. Imagine, if you can, a sheer filmy mousseline de soie or chiffon or dainty organza background strewn with exquisitely delicate interwoven velvet designs or motifs, well that's summer velvet.

The idea of costuming the bride and her attendants in summer velvet becomes the more intriguing in that a most fascinating play on color is made possible for the velvet motifs can be any color you choose.

The scheme is worked out in this manner for the gowns pictured. White mousseline de soie patterned with tiny winged motifs of white velvet is used for the youthful wedding gown as here shown. The bride wears pearls and a diamond clip at the low V-shape décolletage. Her bouquet is the new idea—pale lavender orchids carried in a handle of carved crystal, forming a fan effect.

The matron of honor to the right in the picture also wears summer velvet—white mousseline de soie with green velvet motifs posed over a matching green slip. The sash is of bands of matching green velvet and pale yellow. The hat, a new version of the poke bonnet, is in the same green shade with a huge bow and long streamers of wide green velvet ribbon. The matron of honor's bouquet is of palest yellow and white freesias. Her Aris gloves are white lace kid with delicate embroidery in gold thread. Emeralds are set in necklace and clip. White and yellow are worn by each of the other bridesmaids with jewelry tuned to correspond. These frocks can be worn all summer.

Completing the scheme for this summer wedding the bride's mother, pictured to the left, wears the same summer velvet fabric but in a patterning of delphinium blue bow-knots on a silk sheer with tiny flowers of delphinium, with a velvet sash of matching color. When the sash is removed the dress has a low formal neckline. Her hat is a smart new tricorne of navy straw with tiny flowers of delphinium. The dainty corsage is of lilies of the valley in the center of which are a few delphinium blossoms.

For that "something different" look that brides covet for their wedding party here are a few suggestions. If the bridesmaids have long streamers to their hats a clever touch is to snap one of the streamers about the right wrist under a bracelet bouquet. Then there is the idea of veils for the bridesmaids. These are of tulle in colors related to each costume. They are waist depth and fall gracefully about the shoulders.

SHORT DANCE FROCK

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

When the new short-length dance frock first made its appearance it created quite a sensation. However, it did not take long for it to become a general favorite. The dress pictured is of lovely printed silk chiffon. It accents the slender waistline such as fashion demands—a return to the silhouettes of the long ago. The gown was worn by a prominent society debutante at "The Silk Parade to Waltz Time," a benefit affair recently taking place in New York.

Lanvin Jackets Are Made of Silver or Gold Kid

Silver or gold kid is used over and over again for evening at Lanvin's where flowing robes are trimmed with oriental applications of leather. At the same house are separate jackets entirely of stitched kid which is so soft and fine that it looks like lacquered satin.

LACE FOR SUMMER BRIDE NEW STYLE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The June bride will be fashionably attired this season when she chooses lace for her gowns. With the present vogue for lace for daytime wear, for evening gowns, and for the highly popular house coats and delicate negligees, the romantic appeal of this material makes it a favorite for wedding gowns and bridesmaids' dresses.

Cut on classic lines, the beautiful lace patterns of this season allow for exquisite details of workmanship for the bridal gown. One lovely gown seen recently is perfectly simple in line but has fine details of applique-seamings at the point below the hips where the slight fullness starts. The very full train, and the skirt and neck edges likewise, have an applique scalloped edge of lace. This intricate treatment shows to advantage particularly as the veil is quite short and does not fall to the train. In general these lace wedding gowns have shorter veils so that their delicate patterns are not obscured.

Wedding Parties Dressed All in Lace Is Fashion

Wedding parties dressed entirely in lace are in the fashion picture this year. One of the best we have seen is of all-white peau d'ange in a Chantilly pattern for the bride. There were no seams in the dress, avoiding an unnecessary line that might interfere with the beautiful pattern of the lace, and the edges throughout were entirely hand-appliqued. A matching mantilla head-dress was worn with this wedding gown.

The wedding party, all in lace, made a charming and appropriate setting for the bride. The bridesmaids' dresses were of novelty all-over lace, in pastel shades. The headresses, in contrast with the mantilla of the bride, were formed like a hood, from the collar at the back.

Hints on Tints
Capucine colors will be among the new color accents during the coming season. They have their origin in the various shades of the popular nasturtium.

Lesson for May 30

THE REMAKING OF JACOB

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 28:16-22, 32:24-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind. Romans 12:2.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jacob's Great Discovery.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What Changed Jacob.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding One's Better Self.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Face to Face With God.

Front Page News! "Well-Known Crook Converted!" After years of deception, thievery, and all kinds of wickedness, Jacob, "the supplanter," had a transforming experience of the grace and power of God and became Israel—"a prince of God." That is indeed front-page news and the marvel of it all is that we may today proclaim the redemption of every one that believeth.

Memorial day is a most appropriate one for our lesson, for the first portion tells us of a memorial stone, and the last section tells of a great victory. We do well on this day to remember the days that are gone, to recall the heroic deeds of our valiant dead. It is right that we should honor them for victories rightly won and for a noble cause. But let us not fail to recognize that the great battles of life are those fought in the realm of the spirit and that the victories won there endure for all eternity. Every teacher of a class in the Bible school should with God's help endeavor to make this a day of blessed memory and victory in Christ for the boys and girls, or men and women of the class.

We consider today two experiences in the life of Jacob, both of which have their counterpart in the lives of many of God's children in our day.

I. A Vision and a Vow (Gen. 28:16-22)

Jacob met God. Have you met Him face to face? Have you had "such a revolutionary experience in some unexpected spot?" What a sacred place it has become in your life. Perhaps it was at mother's knee, or in a little crossroad's church, or on a busy city street. God was there—you dealt with him—he blessed your soul—life was changed. Such may be the experience of each one of us. The place where Jacob had this experience had been known only as Luz. Now it became Bethel—"the house of God."

Spiritual experiences are not simply for our pleasure; they carry a real responsibility. Jacob recognized this and set up a memorial and made a vow. The depth of his purpose is revealed by the fact that it touched his earthly possessions.

The pledge of one-tenth to God is in accord with the Old Testament principle of the tithe. Many earnest believers regard the tithe as equally obligatory in our day. Others contend that it is an Old Testament principle only. Well, there is no need to differ too sharply on that point, for is it not clear that as children of God all that we have belongs to Him? Surely then we would not wish shamefacedly to admit that we give less than the Old Testament tithe. All that we have comes from His bountiful hand. He it is that gives "bread to eat and raiment to put on." Let us be cheerful (hilarious) givers of what he has entrusted to us, that his work on earth may be put forward.

II. A Struggle and a Victory (Gen. 32:24-30)

After varied experiences of both victory and defeat Jacob turns back to his own land. He hears of the approach of his brother Esau with 400 men. Before he meets him he spends a night alone. Whether it was in fear or in trust that he approached God on that night, we do not know. But we do read of the great struggle. It was more than a physical battle—real as that was—for here we have God wrestling with a weak and defeated, but proud man, seeking to bring him to the place where he will once for all "let go and let God" have his way with his life.

Into the night of struggle at Peniel have gone God's people in all the centuries, and lo, those who have submitted themselves to the mighty hand of God have come out as those that have "power with God and with men" (v. 28). Such an experience is the key to successful living and fruitful service for God. It is still true that "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble." (Jas. 4:6).

A Strong Arm

Give me the pure heart, O Lord, to feel Thy presence near me. Give me the clear mind that understands. Give me the stainless soul that shall return to Thee fearless when my time shall come. And give me the strong arm to defend, with all my heart, with all my mind, with all my soul, the glory of Thy kingdom.

Doing Right

Do right and God's recompense to you will be the power to do more right.

News Editor Has An Interesting Visitor

Uncle Charley Miller, now nearly 82 years of age, who is here visiting his nephew, D. A. Stevens, called around at the News office a few days ago just to meet the editor.

He had lived in the community where we were born before that event occurred. He had known both our parents from his infancy. He had known our maternal grandparents. More than that, he had known one set of our great grandparents. He had known all these ancestors of ours not just casually but intimately. He was born in Alabama in the same community where they all resided before they came to Texas in the early 70's. He came in the same company with some of them to Texas. He lived in the same community with many of them in Texas. He not only knew them but all the collateral kin who were then living. Not only that, but he knew nearly everybody that we knew as a child. Yet we had never met before, not unless when the editor was a mere infant. But all our life we had heard of him and about him, and he knew of our existence.

So, a week or more ago, he came here to visit his nephew, Dave Stevens, and came around to meet the editor. This is a strange world. Mr. Miller now visits around with his children and other near relatives, his temporary home now being at Abernathy.

Miss O'Berger Forrester and Mrs. A. M. Cade attended a district school of instruction of the Eastern Star in Littlefield on Thursday of last week. They were accompanied to Littlefield by Mrs. J. E. Dye who visited her sister there.

Pheasant Raising Is Being Tried Here

Alton Cain over at the Gaignat Hardware has a new sideline. He has gone into the pheasant business. A few days ago he procured four hens and two roosters, belonging either to the Japanese or Chinese variety of pheasants, from his father at Canyon, and he made a deal with W. A. Hardt of New Lynn to care for them and raise the young on the shares. So, Mr. Hardt took them out to his place and is having a lot of fun taking care of them.

He has two pens for them, a rooster and two hens occupying each pen. The pheasant seems to practice bigamy but not polygamy. The hens lay at frequent intervals but their value does not lie in their egg-producing ability; it lies in the palatableness of their flesh.

Alton says that pheasant meat is much better than chicken; almost as good as quail, and the birds are three or four times as large as quail. He and Mr. Hardt hope to be able to increase their flock to 30 or 40 birds this year.

The pheasant is not easily domesticated. A person may succeed in taming one, but let a stranger approach and the bird immediately becomes alarmed and takes flight. He is a graceful fowl, the male of some species being rather gaudy of color and almost as proud in his bearing as a peacock.

We hope to have an invitation to dinner some time when Alton and Mrs. Cain have baked pheasant on the table.

Mrs. N. J. Barton returned last Friday from a three weeks' visit with her daughters, Mrs. R. E. Barnett and Mrs. D. K. Coor, and her son, Frank Barton, of Artesia, N. M. Mrs. Barton also visited her nephew, W. T. Russell on his ranch in the mountains thirty miles west of Carlsbad. There she saw lots of beautiful scenery, and saw them branding calves. Her niece, Miss Rachel Wood, of El Paso, whom she had not seen for forty years, visited her at the ranch. Mrs. Frank Barton and daughter Hazel Jean and son Dewey came back with her and are visiting another daughter, Mrs. Wrigler of the Joe Stokes community.

Mrs. J. R. Butler and two grand-daughter of the Edith community and Mrs. H. H. Barnes and Miss Payne Davis of Lubbock recently returned from a visit with relatives in Kansas and Nebraska. They report an exceedingly enjoyable trip. They saw thousands and thousands of acres of very fine wheat, they say, and passed through numbers of beautiful cities and towns.

Mrs. Temple Brashear and little son Billy Joe of Tucumcari, N. M., came last week to visit her mother, Mrs. J. A. South. They were accompanied by Miss Mary Squires, who has been visiting in Tucumcari. Temple arrived Monday night and left Wednesday for Ozona, where he will spend a few days with his father before coming back here.

Mrs. T. C. Stevens of Flagstaff, Arizona, is here this week visiting her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Stevens, and family, and her aunt, Mrs. John Berry of Draw.

Mr. and Mrs. Spence Kendrick and son Herbie of Bronfield visited here Sunday and attended the Bacalaureate services. Mrs. Kendrick is the former Miss Elsie Woosley.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Fenton Jr., Peggy and Mary Beth, left Thursday for San Antonio, to attend an insurance convention. They expect to return Sunday.

C. R. Rogers, new radio and refrigeration man at Tahoka Appliance Co., has rented Mrs. Hans Tunnell's home and expects to move his family here next Monday.
