Safety Lane Will Be Maintained Saturday

Free Inspection Will Be Given All Automobiles By Texas Highway Patrol

A Safety Lane is to be held here Saturday by members of the Texas Highway Patrol.

Automobiles will be checked for defective lights, brakes, horns, steering gears, windshield wipers, and other defects. Inspections are free of charge.

This is part of the state-wide campaign launched by the Department of Public Safety. Its purpose is to educate the people to the necessity of keeping their cars in perfect order and thus minimize the danger of accidents.

All car owners in the county are invited and urged to drive their cars through the lane so that defects, if any, may be pointed out. The lane will probably be conducted along that section of highway No. 9 which passes through the courthouse lawn.

A safety lane was conducted here last year and hundreds of cars were inspected. Some were found to have defects and the owners of many of these had the defects remedied.

Safety lanes are being conducted in all the county seat towns in this part of the state this week and next.

Ginners Lead In Softball Chase

The Carmack Ginners are still batting 1,000 in the softball tournament being conducted here. Out of eight games played, they have won eight. In the game Tuesday night, they defeated the Cleaners by a score of 7 to 6.

The standing of all the teams up to and including the games Tuesday night was as follows:

Team	P	W	L	Pct.
Ginners	8	8	0	1.000
Cleaners	9	6	3	.667
Others	9	6	3	.667
Bankers	7	4	3	.571

Short, In Cavalry, Writes Poetry

The News, like many other newspapers, has a rule against printing poetry except in rare cases, because of the fact that if one piece of poetry is printed we have a jillion requests to print so-called poetry by local would-be poets, some even going to the extent of asking us to buy their verse. A few times we have almost made enemies by the refusal to accept such gems of literature.

But, if it were not for the condition described above, and if it were not so long, we would jar loose and print a bit of epic verse shown us the other day by Mrs. H. D. Short, who lives four miles north of town on Highway No. 9.

The verse was written by Medford H. Short, former Tahoka high school student, who is now in Troop A, 8th Cavalry, stationed at Fort Bliss, El Paso. The very interesting verse describes life in the cavalry. Incidentally, Medford is pitching baseball for an El Paso team and is soon to be given a chance with one of the league teams. Mrs. Short says.

Holt Is Preaching At Baptist Church

Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Holt of Plainview are occupying the Baptist parsonage here while he is supplying for the pastor during the latter's absence.

He filled the pulpit at both services last Sunday and will do so again next Sunday.

Rev. Dale writes that he is having a great revival meeting in Fountain City, a suburb of Knoxville, Tennessee. Professions of faith were being made at almost every service. He spoke to the pastors of the city at their regular weekly conference on Monday. He expects to be back home some time next week.

Aggie Teacher Elected Here

Chester Hufstедler, Seymour, has been elected vocational agriculture teacher in Tahoka High School, succeeding Cecil Ayers, resigned. Mr. Hufstедler holds a B. A. degree from Texas Tech and is now doing work there toward his M. A. degree. He has had three years teaching experience in Central Texas. Mr. Hufstедler and wife expect to move to Tahoka late in the summer.

Mr. Ayers, who recently resigned after being reelected, will accept a similar position in the Spur High School on the completion of his year's work here July 1.

Rotary Club Is Firemen's Host

A dozen or more members of the Tahoka Fire Department were guests of the Rotarians at their luncheon Thursday.

The appreciation of the club for the efficient and unselfish services of the fire boys was expressed in a few words by Rotarian E. I. Hill, and W. T. Bovell made the response for the fire boys.

The hope was expressed that the City may soon be able to furnish the fire department with new and up-to-date fire-fighting equipment. A plea for less criticism and more commendation of the fire-fighters was made. Attention was called to the fact that the fire boys stand between the property owners and the possible destruction of their homes and places of business by fire, and that they answer every call that is made upon them, in every kind of weather, giving their services absolutely free of charge. Surely they should hear words of commendation now and then and surely the city should provide them with better equipment at the earliest date possible.

Three or four members of the department were not able, for one reason or another, to be present.

Jim Wetsel Reports Real Estate Sales

Jim Wetsel says that there has been something of a revival this spring of the realty business. Just recently he effected sales of two tracts of land.

He sold a 240-acre tract of land lying a few miles south of Tahoka to Mr. McAuley of Draw. W. B. Croslin of Lubbock was the owner of the tract. Mr. McAuley and family will move upon the place and make it their home.

Also, he sold to Mr. Croslin a 320-acre tract of land lying in Lubbock county.

English Installs Cooling System

D. B. English has just completed the installation of a new cooling system at the English Theatre, and patrons of his shows may hereafter enjoy the cool, clean, invigorating washed air that will flow gently through the building throughout each performance. The equipment is the latest and most modern on the market. Mr. English says, just the identical equipment that is used by the finest theatres in all the big cities.

He expects to install the same kind of equipment in the Ada Theatre next week.

HEN LAYS FREAKISH EGGS

Freakish eggs are not uncommon, but E. E. Perry, who farms the J. W. Elliott place one mile north of Dixie, has a Black Langshang hen that makes a habit of laying freakish eggs. This particular hen lays two eggs in one, and Mr. Perry says the inner egg has a hard shell each time.

Lawrence Evans, who is in charge of the market in Boullouin's store, was a patient a day or two this week in the Mercy Hospital in Slaton, where he had his tonsils removed.

Mrs. R. S. Morrison of Archer City is here to spend a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. George Hogan, and the family.

500 Farmers For Rural Electric Service

V. F. Jones Reports Progress On The REA Project In Lynn County

Approximately 500 farmers of Lynn county have signed preliminary survey sheets in connection with the Rural Electrification project in Lynn county, according to V. F. Jones, county agent.

It is the plan of the county committee on Rural Electrification that every person who wants electric service to sign a survey sheet by June 15th. At that date the survey sheets will be worked up and submitted to the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington for approval.

Mr. Jones states that the more signers for electric service, the more favorable will be the chances for approval of the project. Those who have not signed, and would like to have electric service, see your local school district committee, or call at the county agent's office.

Miss Phipps Goes To Levelland

Miss Hazel Phipps, teacher of here the past year, has accepted Home Economics in the high school the position of county home demonstration agent of Hockley county. She left for Levelland immediately following the close of school here and is already at work in her new position.

Miss Nannie Hill, who has been county home demonstration agent of Hockley county since January, 1932, has been transferred to Wilbarger county.

Mrs. Pete Hegi, former home demonstration agent of Dawson county, will succeed Miss Phipps as teacher of home economics here.

Tahoka's Name Travels Afar

Tahoka's name is heard around the world.

Up and down the Atlantic coast sails the 54-foot pleasure yacht, "Tahoka," so-named by its owner, Enos L. Seeds, founder of Grassland postoffice in 1892, who is now a multi-millionaire Philadelphian.

Over in Germany, in England, and particularly in the New England states a little flower, the Tahoka Daisy, is growing.

Rotary, which is international, has given further publicity to the city, as this club has received letters of congratulation from clubs in South America, Europe, Asia—around the world.

Now comes "Rotary Norden," official magazine of Norway, Sweden, Finland, and Denmark, published at Norge, Danmark, with the following story (accompanied with a picture of the First National Bank) on Tahoka and the Tahoka Club:

"TAHOKA er en liten by med 1800 mennesker i den vestlige del av Texas, U.S.A. I 3100 fots hoider og 600 miles i landet fra den Mexikanske Golf. Omkring byen dyrkes der bomull og drives der kvægavl, og byens velferd beror helt og holdent på distriktets jordbruksnaering. En del av bondene er av tysk og bohmsk avstammning. Rotaryklubben ha 31 medlemmer, og vi foler oss likefrem smigret over, at De vil ha oplysninger om vor lille by, skriver sekretæren Kenneth R. Durham."

Thank you, boys, thank you!

Sam Singleton was out on the Pecos near Roswell when the heavy rains came that flooded that city. Finally making his way into Roswell he left his car there and went to Ruidoso to visit with relatives. He was expected back in Tahoka by the end of the week.

Robert Drennon, who has been a student in Abilene Christian College the past nine months, is home for the summer vacation.

Mrs. J. H. Vinson has been visiting Mrs. J. B. Vinson of Brownfield the past two weeks.

Diplomas Given 33 Graduates Last Week

Dr. W. A. Jackson, Texas Tech, Delivered Address Here Friday Night

Dr. W. A. Jackson, head of the department of government in the Texas Technological College, was heard by an auditorium full of Lynn county people in an address to the graduating class at Tahoka High School last Friday night. His address was declared one of the best heard here.

Diplomas were presented thirty-three members of the Senior class. Miss Lois Montgomery, having made the highest grade of any member of her class, gave the valedictory address, following the salutatory address by J. W. Alexander. Each received scholarships to various Texas colleges. A scholarship in a San Antonio business college was also presented to Miss Luda Stranzer.

Other numbers on the program included a violin solo by Charles Gaignat, a piano solo by Miss Valerie Wells, and a vocal solo by Miss Lottie Jo Townes.

15 Graduates Started Here

Mrs. L. F. Craft, who has been primary teacher in the Tahoka public schools for many years, says that she got quite a thrill out of reading the list of the members of the graduating class of the Texas Technological College this week. Six of these graduates received their first lessons from her.

Also, she says that fifteen of the members of the Senior Class of the Tahoka High School who received their diplomas last Friday night started to school to her, as did also 22 of the members of the seventh grade, who received their certificates of graduation Thursday night.

Instructions Given On Life Saving

Austin, Texas, June 3—"No elaborate equipment is needed to save a life from drowning," is the opinion of Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health officer. "In fact, actual harm has been done by the misuse of so-called lung motors. Modern resuscitation apparatus has been perfected so that oxygen and carbon dioxide can be used without inflicting more damage to cases of asphyxiation and drowning. It is tragic enough to have drowning accidents, but it is far more tragic if no one present at the time knows how to save a life by artificial respiration.

"The prompt application of artificial respiration is of primary importance, and for this purpose the prone pressure method is the easiest, simplest and most effective. This should begin at once and continue rhythmically until natural breathing is established, this may take four or five hours. Procedure:

First: Kneel, and straddle the patient below the hips placing hands on small of the back with fingers over the lowest ribs, tips of fingers just out of sight.

Second: With arms straight, while counting one, two, swing forward bearing weight on body firmly but not violently.

Third: Swing backward while counting one, straightening up and thus relieving pressure, this allows air to be drawn into the lungs.

Fourth: Rest in this position for two counts.

Fifth: Repeat these movements, rhythmically, forward and backward, without interruption, about twelve to fifteen a minute, until natural breathing is restored.

Sixth: Meanwhile, if assistance is at hand, a physician should be sent for, the patient's tight clothing should be loosened at neck, chest, waist and he should be kept warm.

The patient should not be moved until he is breathing normally and then should not be allowed to get up but be carried in a lying position to a place where he can be kept warm and receive medical attention.

Cyanide Plant May Locate In County

Bewley's Chuck Wagon Coming

Bewley's Best Chuck Wagon Gang will be at the Guarantee Food Store next Saturday afternoon from 2 till 6 o'clock to entertain the customers and visitors at the store with a series of musical programs, according to Roy Young, the local manager.

The Chuck Wagon Gang is famed for the fine music they make with their stringed instruments.

County Soaked By Heavy Rainfall

Heavy rains have visited Lynn county since the News came off the press last week.

On Friday night, the entire county was covered by a good rain. The fall in Tahoka amounted to 1.13 inches. On Monday night there was a shower amounting to .38 of an inch in Tahoka and Tuesday eve .11 of an inch more. The total precipitation in Tahoka last week and this week up to Thursday noon amounted to almost exactly three inches.

In some parts of the county the rainfall has been much heavier than it has been in Tahoka, some localities reporting as much as 5 or 6 inches. In some other localities, however, the precipitation has not been as heavy as it has been here.

Much of the cotton in the county will have to be planted over, but thus far very few farmers have been able to get back into their fields. Some of the cotton is up and growing off nicely.

Great floods have visited sections of this and adjoining states during the past few days.

Earl Grider Is Hurt When Horse Falls

Earl Grider, one of the cow-punchers out on the T-Bar, has been limping around the past few days as the result of a near-serious accident Saturday at the ranch.

Earl was breaking a horse in the headquarters corral, and had succeeded in staying with the animal until he reared up, slipped on the muddy ground, and fell on top of the bronc-keeper. The saddle-horn caught Earl in the side, but fortunately the injury does not seem to be serious.

Making Repairs On Highway 84

They are making a real highway of No. 84 west of Tahoka but little has been done for it in several months east of town. In fact, it has been allowed to get into a horrible mess in places. The rains last week developed some wonderful mud holes.

This week the State Highway Department is having some repair work done. Dumps are being built across some of the fish ponds.

The only effective remedy for No. 84 east is paving. Here's hoping our efficient and fair-minded highway commission may be able to get around to the job within the next few months.

GRADUATE AT TECH

Misses Grace and Marietta Montgomery, honor graduates of Tahoka high school, received Bachelor of Business Administration degrees at Texas Tech Monday of this week. The local young ladies have made enviable records at Tech. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Will Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. English returned Sunday from points in north and central Texas. Mrs. English attended a family reunion at Frost in Navarro county and visited other relatives in that part of the state, being gone about two weeks. Mr. English went to Dallas on business last week and then went to Corsicana for Mrs. English.

Tests Completed On Deposits West Of O'Donnell

The American Cyanide Company of New York is contemplating the establishment of a plant for the mining of cyanide on the line of Lynn and Dawson counties eight miles west of O'Donnell, according to County Judge P. W. Goad, who has been corresponding with the Company with respect to the matter.

This is a project that Charley Doak of O'Donnell has been working on for years, and he has spent much time and money in impressing the possibilities of the enterprise upon financial leaders in the North and East.

After much correspondence with Mr. Doak and with Judge Goad, an engineer of the American Cyanide Company visited Tahoka last week and had a conference with Judge Goad. The occasion for their correspondence and consultation with Judge Goad is the imperative necessity of a hard-surfaced road connecting the proposed plant with a highway and a railway line.

Most of the cyanide, it is said, is situated just over the line in Dawson county, but a portion of the section on which it is situated lies in Lynn county. There is already a fairly good dirt road passing along this section of land into O'Donnell.

The company is interested in getting this or some other road hard-surfaced from the plant to highway No. 9, and Lynn County is interested in inducing the Company to build its plant in Lynn rather than Dawson county, since the plant, it is claimed, will represent an investment of about $250,000. The Judge is hoping that a plan may be worked out whereby the taxes derived from the properties of the Company might offset the cost of building the road. The road can be hard-surfaced at an estimated cost of $30,000.

Other salts than cyanide are also said to exist in the lake in large and paying quantities, and it is believed by many that the possibilities of the project are great.

If the plant is established, the Company contemplates the operation of four 20-ton trucks and the possible employment of as many as 135 men working in three shifts of 45 men each, Judge Goad says.

The matter was discussed at some length at a meeting of the commissioners court Monday with special reference to the matter of taxes and the building of the road from the highway to the plant. The road if built by this county would be entirely in this county, of course. Further negotiations are expected to bring about important developments soon.

Jeff Connolly's Wild Car Throws Him

Jeff Connolly left Tahoka Thursday of last week to visit relatives and presumably a lady friend at Whitney.

The further he proceeded down the highway the more enthusiastic he became, and finally he grew so ecstatic—or something—that he began to see double. Near Gorman, so the boys at the Chevrolet shop say, he imagined that he saw two or three curves in the highway just ahead, and he missed all of them. His car turned a complete somersault and was considerably bungled up, but being a 1937 model Chevrolet it was not badly damaged. His only injury was a severe shock. He managed to drive on to Whitney, where he must have had a terrible time explaining things since his Chevy bore many evidences of having been in a wreck. Monday night he slipped back into Tahoka, after dark, and he has been as meek as a lamb all this week. Nobody knows exactly what happened down at Whitney.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Chloe left Thursday morning for Fort Worth to make their home. Tom has a job driving a truck between Fort Worth and Big Spring. He has been working here for Boullouin's.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

President Still Insists on Supreme Court Bill, Which Raymond Moley Scores—Disturbing Developments in the Field of Organized Labor.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

VALIDATION of the social security act by the Supreme court was most pleasing to President Roosevelt, but he did not agree with the general opinion that this would put a stop to his program for enlargement of the highest tribunal. He more than intimated in a press conference that the fight for his court bill would be fought to a finish and that he was not satisfied with the apparently slender "liberal" majority in the court, since a number of important administration policies are still to be passed upon by the Supreme court. He cited four issues raised by the new wages and hours bill, namely, child labor, minimum wages, maximum hours, and the question whether goods produced under unfair practices can be regulated by the government. He also mentioned TVA, the problems of flood control on the Ohio watershed, the right of municipalities to borrow federal funds to construct electric light plants, and whether the government can condemn property for a housing program.

Raymond Moley

One of those who believe the President's court plan is doomed to defeat is Raymond Moley, former head of the "brain trust." Addressing the Illinois Bankers' convention in Chicago, Dr. Moley scathingly attacked the scheme. "The President," he said, "has spoken of the dangers of a government of men. Well, there is something worse than a government of men; it is a government by a man. Most law and all constitutional government down the ages are really halters and check-reins upon this unlovely tendency in rulers to lose their heads in the intoxication of power. There are incidental factors that have contributed to the defeat of the President's proposal to violate in this way the spirit of the constitution. The change in the philosophy dominating the majority opinion of the court has helped. The scattering of the attorney general's insinuations, insubstantial statistics by the chief justice is another. The retirement of Justice Van Devanter has helped, too. "But behind all this has been a slow and powerful surge of public opinion. The people prefer the stability of constitutional institutions as against the unpredictable will of leaders, even very popular leaders."

FINAL passage of the $1,500,000,000 work relief bill by the house was delayed by rebellion against the practice of "writing blank checks" which give the President and Harry Hopkins power to spend relief funds as they deem fit. The opponents of this policy found in the revolt a chance to obtain a lot of "pork" by the earmarking of more than half a billion from the total appropriation for projects that would get votes. In a day of wild debate these major changes in the bill were voted: $55,000,000 to be set aside for flood control and water conservation work. $300,000,000 to be "earmarked" for PWA projects. $150,000,000 to be spent on highway and grade crossing elimination projects. Authority to use work-relief money for construction of power lines into rural sections for non-profit and co-operative utility groups. Unskilled and agricultural workers who refuse private jobs will be ineligible for work-relief as long as a private job is available.

CONTINUING its vigorous campaign to organize the steel industry, the C. I. O. called out on strike the employees of the independent companies that refused to sign contracts for collective bargaining. These companies were Inland Steel, Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube. More than 20 plants employing about 25,000 men were involved. Philip Murray, chairman of the organizing committee, said it was the purpose of the committee to conduct the strike peacefully. In the Chicago district police arrested a number of men for violating the rule against mass picketing and for other offenses, and there was some trouble in Buffalo. Employees of the Sharon Steel corporation followed the example of those of the Jones & Laughlin concern and voted in favor of the S. W. O. C. by a large majority, so the C. I. O. gets contracts from those companies. Operations in the huge Pittsburgh plant of the H. J. Heinz company were interrupted by a strike of the Canning and Pickle Workers' union. The strikers demanded a 10 per cent wage increase and recognition of the union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, as sole bargaining agency.

FORD employees at the Rouge plant, Detroit, took matters into their own hands and severely punished a number of U. A. W. A. men who undertook to distribute at the plant gates handbills designed to offset the "Fordisms" card that had been given Henry's workers. Among the union men beaten up were Walter Reuther, R. T. Frankenstein, J. J. Kennedy and Robert Canter. Frankenstein telegraphed John Brophy, director of the Committee for Industrial Organization, at Washington, asking: "Will the C. I. O. co-operate in simultaneous nationwide demonstration before Ford salesrooms to protest brutality at Ford's today and establish the right to organize?" At the same time a strike of C. I. O. men closed the Ford assembly plant at Richmond, Calif., forcing 1,800 workers into idleness. The local union head there predicted strikes might spread rapidly from that beginning, possibly to all the Ford plants.

HEADS of unions affiliated with the A. F. of L., meeting in Cincinnati with President William Green and the executive council, went ahead with the plans to combat Lewis and the C. I. O. One of their first steps, it was indicated, is to be an invasion of Lewis' own union, the United Mine Workers of America, through the granting of a charter to its rival, the Progressive Miners' union in Illinois. Drives are expected in the anthracite fields of Pennsylvania and the soft coal fields of Virginia, where there is considerable opposition to Lewis. The United Garment Workers also declared war on the Amalgamated Clothing Workers whose chief is Sidney Hillman, first lieutenant of Lewis in the C. I. O.

William Green

In the Cincinnati conference John P. Frey, veteran president of the federation's metal trades department, accused the C. I. O. and the communist party of "sleeping in the same bed and under the same tent." Communists had obtained such a grip on the Lewis movement that C. I. O. leaders could not shake them off if they wanted to, Frey said. He contended the C. I. O. had sixty Communist organizers on its payroll and that C. I. O. tactics were discussed in Moscow long before they were discussed in Lewis' office.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT in a special message asked congress to enact a new law for the benefit of workers in interstate industries, regulating the hours of work, the wages and the employment of children. Immediately after it was read, Chairman Hugo L. Black of the senate labor committee and Chairman William R. Connery of the house labor committee introduced identical bills designed to carry out the proposals of the President. The measure had been agreed upon in conferences at the White House and was promptly referred to committees with prospect of quick action. It had been approved by John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., but since laws setting minimum wages for men have always been opposed by leaders of the American Federation of Labor, it was considered probable that organization would not like the bill. The twin bills originally had proposed a forty hour maximum week and a 40 cents an hour minimum wage. But, at the last moment, these limits were eliminated and spaces in the measures left blank for congress to fill.

Senator Black

STANLEY BALDWIN, prime minister of Great Britain, entertained the king and queen at dinner and then retired from his high office. He is succeeded as head of the government by Neville Chamberlain, who has been chancellor of the exchequer, and a few other changes in the cabinet were made. If another war comes, the British empire will not be caught unprepared. The imperial conference in London turned its attention to this matter and a special committee was formed to organize all the empire's resources for an instant shift to war footing if that becomes necessary. A subcommittee studied the problem of American competition with British shipping in the Pacific. British ship owners charge that the Americans are driving them out of business there because the latter are heavily subsidized.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field

Washington.—J. P. Morgan and company and other great banking firms, which in the past have marketed huge amounts of foreign bonds to American investors, may never see the return of the "good old days." The business hasn't been so good for some years, now—not since the depression began, and defaulting by so many foreign governments developed. Also it has been handicapped sharply by the Hiram Johnson law, which prevents marketing in this country of bonds of any government that has defaulted on its debts to the United States government.

But—many bankers have thought all this would pass. It was just temporary. Some day something would be done about the war debts. There would be "settlements" or forgiveness, or both. Whereupon the business would go back to normal.

But for some time the securities and exchange commission has had a fishy eye on these prospects for another day of foreign bond selling, and an even fishier eye is being cast by many members of the house and senate.

The most recent gesture in this direction was made by Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana, who introduced a bill which is receiving so much quiet support that it seems a practical certainty something like it will be passed, sooner or later. There is no hurry. Americans have not quite recovered from the burning they took on the defaulted foreign bonds. As a matter of fact, the average investor thinks that particular debacle was worse than it was, which attitude is most discouraging to would-be bond salesmen for foreign issues.

The Ellender bill would add a new section to the securities act making it unlawful to sell in the United States securities issued by a foreign government unless the net proceeds derived from such securities by the issuing government are equal to the par value of the securities, except that the securities commission may allow a service charge of not to exceed two per cent of the par value to be deducted from the proceeds to be received by the government selling the bonds.

Enormous Profits "The purpose of the bill," Mr. Ellender explains, "is to reduce the spread between the price paid to foreign governments for their bonds and the price at which such bonds are offered to the public. A foreign bond for which the issuing government receives eighty-eight per cent of its face value may now be sold on the American market for ninety-nine. The investing public is led to believe that it is getting a bargain since the sale price is still below par. The underwriters receive enormous profits. It is believed that such a situation leads to an unwarranted amount of foreign financing in this country and encourages unhealthy practices in the conduct of such financing.

"Under the proposed bill the government would receive face value for its bonds, less the service charge allowed by the commission, which could not for this purpose exceed two per cent. Thus the profits of the underwriters could be excessive only if the bonds were offered to the public at a price above par. It is felt that this fact would tend to reduce the large price spread now possible and lead to more careful consideration of the value of such bonds by the investing public."

No allowance is permitted in the bill "for the assumption of risks or for the value of the trade name or good will of the persons rendering such service"—which seems rather unnecessary in view of the fact that the total "service charge" permitted is to be two per cent. The bond salesman seems to qualify as the Vanishing American!

Irks Air Officials The race between bigger and heavier airplanes and the larger, better, surfaced airports that the new planes require is bringing gray hairs to aviation officials. It seems a natural enough development, but it has plenty of complications. It is somewhat like the older story of the production of armor which will resist a shell from any existing gun, then a bigger gun that will pierce it, and then thicker and tougher armor—and then repeat!

Perhaps an apter comparison is whether to build bigger locks at the Panama canal, or build the big new ships according to freak specifications so they may still go through. The difficulty in this race between airplanes and airports lies in the answer to the question: Who will finance the bigger airports? American cities have already invested more than $400,000,000 in airports. They have about got to the end of their willingness to spend, it appears, and many are threatening to stop paying the bills.

Both airplanes and airports must be approved for interstate commerce by the bureau of air commerce. This body now approves some planes which could not, with its approval, land at many airports. So there is serious discussion of an idea to regulate for two or three years the size and design of certain classes of airplanes while the airports catch up to requirements.

Naturally this results in loud wails from the airplane manufacturers. Also from many operating companies. The proposed action, both say, would place them in a strait-jacket, arrest their development, hold America back while the rest of the world marches on to new efficiency in aviation.

So Fred Fagg, new director of the re-organized bureau of air commerce, discovers that his predecessor, Gene Vida, did not have such a bed of roses. Airport Needs Most airports need longer runways for heavy ships that fly faster and at flatter angles in the approach and takeoff. They need hard surfaces for increasing loads, especially as all weather schedules increase with better aids to flight. And equally costly is the purchase of additional land to clear obstacles around the edges of the fields, and to provide radio beam approach lanes. The American Municipal Association has taken up the cudgels in defense of the 200 odd cities which maintain established air route terminals, claiming the expense for the needed improvements is not justified, for the traffic is mostly interstate commerce. The operators not only resent the proposed limitation on airplane design, but state emphatically that they will not pay for airport improvements. Their mail income has been cut, they point out, and their passenger rates have been forced down. So Uncle Sam is to be called on to foot the bill, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., to the contrary notwithstanding. Already about $75,000,000 has come out of the federal treasury as a contribution to the country's 2,700 airports, through C. W. A., F. E. R. A., W. P. A. and a little through P. W. A. But that is only a fraction of the investment by the individual cities, which the air bureau calculates at nearly half a billion dollars. Half a dozen cities have spent more than $5,000,000 each for their airports. Whereas much of the federal contribution, due to the fact that the chief goal was job making, was very inefficiently expended.

President Wins If President Roosevelt wins on his idea of having congress grant the Chief Executive the right to cut fifteen per cent from any appropriation—instead of the ten per cent horizontal cut favored by many senators—his hold on congress through the remainder of this session and for the next year will not only be continued, but strengthened. The point is that the President will then have the discretionary power to cut or pare appropriations which vitally affect every state and every congressional district in the United States—in short, to help or hurt every individual senator and representative in the one argument each likes most to make—that he "brings home the bacon" for his constituents. This is vital in view of the probability that the President will suffer severe reverses in two of his important fights—for Supreme court enlargement and for government reorganization. The tide of battle ebbs and flows on the court proposition, but it is almost a certainty as this is written that the President will not get the six additional justices he has asked for, and which he has repeatedly indicated he will insist upon. As it looks now he will be lucky to get two additional justices. It is just possible he will not get any. This does not mean that his main objective will not be achieved, for there is practically no doubt that the majority of the high court will be "liberalized" within a year. But it will be "liberalized" in part by retirements. It will not be liberalized by enlargement to as many as fifteen justices.

Would Mean Loss of Face But the question of presidential prestige is something else again. If the President does not get six additional justices, it will mean a certain loss of face. It will be the first severe defeat he has taken since he was elected governor of New York in 1928. Critics may point to his defeat by the senate on the St. Lawrence seaway, but neither of these was considered an important reversal for the President on Capitol Hill. Congressmen are perfectly aware of the special conditions applying to those fights. And they did not regard overriding his veto of the bonus bill as a sign of weakness at the White House. In fact, most of them think he could have changed that result if he had applied sufficient pressure. On the theory that insurgency is like a snowball—tends to grow with advancement—it is rather important, therefore, for the President to have some increase in his ability to put pressure on congress should he suffer reverses in the Supreme court and the government re-organization battles. That is why it is so important to the White House to gain this discretionary power.

First Before British Royalty Born in 1744, Abigail Smith became the wife of a young Massachusetts lawyer, John Adams, when she was twenty. Acknowledged as one of those who helped shape a new nation, John Adams was rewarded with the appointment of first United States minister to Great Britain in 1784, and his wife and eighteen-year-old daughter Abby joined him in London. The following summer they curtsied, as the first bona fide Americans, before British royalty—thereby leading off a picturesque procession which a favored few of their sisters have continued for years.

Blondes and Brunettes The brunette is thoughtful, imaginative, serious and tenacious. When they start anything they see it through. They are conservative and more stable than blondes, declares a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. They are emotional and it is remarkable that many of the great religious cults have been founded by brunettes. The brunette is slower than the blonde, not so brilliant, but sometimes more sure of "getting there" in the end. The blonde is the builder, the go-getter, seeker after fresh fields and pastures new. They are the explorers and inventors, the civil engineers.

The Chaldeans The Chaldeans were not Egyptians but were a Semitic tribe, similar to the Babylonians, who probably migrated from Arabia into lower Mesopotamia about 700 B. C. They were absorbed in the great Persian empire and some of their descendants probably remain in that part of Asia. They were polytheists and noted for their knowledge of astrology and occult science. It appears quite likely that the Wise Men from the East were Chaldeans or Babylonians.

Claims First Sleeping Car That the first sleeping car to be built and placed in actual service on this continent was designed and made in Canada is stated in an article in the Canadian National Railway Magazine. The plan for a sleeping car was prepared in 1859 in preparation for the visit of the then Prince of Wales, later to become Edward VII, and the actual construction was carried out at Brantford, Ont., in a plant later used for reliable iron castings for passenger and freight cars.

Hello Everybody!

"Murder on Sochow Creek" By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HERE'S a tale from China, where life is cheap. They'll kill you for your shoes in that desperate, over-crowded, half-starved country. Or they'll kill you for nothing at all. I've seen Chinese killed by the dozen over there for no reason, as far as I could see, but just for the sake of killing. In no country in the world, except possibly revolutionary Spain, is death spread with such a careless hand.

Yes, life is cheap over there in China. Many a man has been killed for something that wasn't worth a Chinese dollar. But our Distinguished Adventurer of the day—Milton Weaver of New York City—saw the time once when his life wasn't worth two cents.

That was in February, 1932. Milt Weaver was in the United States Marine corps then, and the Marines were stationed in Shanghai protecting our nationals and the International Settlement during the fighting that went on between the Chinese and the Japanese.

Along the Shores of Sochow Creek. Says Milt: "You probably remember the little dug-out we Marines built and all the warlike atmosphere that surrounded us along Sochow creek?" And Milt is right about that. I sure do. I spent a lot of time down there when the fighting was going on over in the Native City, and if I saw Milt I'd probably remember him, too, for I talked with a lot of those boys who garrisoned that dug-out and stood guard along the creek. Milt's adventure, though, is one thing I missed, and I'm glad Milt has given me a second chance at it—a second chance to put in on the wire and tell it to the world.

It was a cold morning—that one in February—and Milt was patrolling his post along Sochow creek. Outside the walls of the International Settlement a furious battle was going on between Japanese troops and Chinese soldiers. Refugees were seeking safety in the Settlement by the thousand, but they weren't allowed to enter at night. The patrols along the boundaries had strict orders not to let anyone enter before six a. m., but all night long terror-stricken Chinese refugees—many of whom couldn't pass the inspection at the bridges—kept trying to force their way through the patrols and get in behind Settlement walls.

At the Mercy of the Chinese. It was about five in the morning when Milt saw a sampan, loaded with Chinese, making its way across the creek. Immediately Milt shouted to them to go back, but when they came until the nose of the boat touched the shore. Then Milt saw he was in for an argument—maybe even a little trouble. But if he'd known how much trouble it was going to be, he'd have sounded the alarm and called out the guard before he tried to do anything else about it.

The boat touched shore Milt stepped aboard and began telling the coolie who ran it to turn around and go back. "I had to do this in sign language," Milt says, "because the coolie, apparently, didn't understand English. The coolie appeared to be doing what I told him. He was trying to swing the boat around when a small tugboat came along and rammed into his sampan. At the same time it pushed the sampan out into the middle of the stream, making it impossible for me to jump ashore again."

And then, all of a sudden, the demeanor of the Chinese in the boat changed. A few seconds before Milt had represented authority, with a guard of soldiers at his call. Now, out there in the middle of the stream he was alone—helpless—and darned well those Chinese knew it. They began swarming toward him, babbling, gesticulating, threatening. Milt saw what was coming—saw that he had one chance to get away, and that was to jump aboard the tugboat. He turned toward it, and then a thing happened that put him completely at the mercy of the occupants of the sampan.

As he turned toward the tug, a puff of smoke, full of fine bits of coal flew straight in his eyes. He was blinded! It was only for a few moments, but during those few moments of blindness Milt experienced the worst fear of his whole life. The natives, seeing him helpless, rushed him—and a man that gets mobbed by a crowd of Chinese natives has darned little chance of getting out alive.

Desperate Fight on the Sampan. "They came at me with bamboo sticks," says Milt, "trying to push me overboard into the filthy waters of the creek. I knew I was doomed if I let them get me into the water, for once I was in it they would push me under and hold me there until I drowned. I blew my whistle for help. I had a pistol in a holster at my hip, but I couldn't see to shoot it. But I also carried a baton my head as best I could."

Milt says he doesn't know how he managed to stay on his feet all through the hullabaloo. He could feel bamboo poles poking at him, and he could feel that his own stick was doing some damage, too, for every once in a while it came in contact with something that felt like a coolie's head. But little by little he was being forced back toward the edge of the sampan.

Milt was getting desperate. Another step or two and he'd be overboard. He was thinking of drawing his pistol and firing blindly into the mob, when suddenly he heard English voices on the bank, mixed in with the native shouting and cursing. That stopped the coolies. A minute before, Milt had been a lone, hated foreign devil. Now he was backed by authority again. They put the boat back to shore, and Milt was helped ashore by English policemen and a few of his own pals, the American Marines. They gave Milt first aid treatment for his eyes, and for the cuts and bruises he had received, and Milt says he was mighty doggone glad to get his feet back on the ground of the International Settlement where good old American, British and French law and order were in force and life was worth more than a couple of plugged Chinese pennies.

WITH BANNERS

By Emilie Loring

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overheard Jed talking to Mark Trent, a nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure on the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "dub-in" hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark disclosed that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lois, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her.

"Do you dislike Mark Trent?"

"Don't dislike him. Just don't want to think about the man, that's all. My sister Daphne went cock-eyed about him and he turned her down hard. Like a perfect gentleman, of course, but it got my goat."

"Are you sure he turned her down?"

"Sure. I'm not blaming him, I'm ashamed for her, that's all. He was probably fed up with her type. His ex-wife was never quite sober, I've heard. Daphne fell for him the minute she saw him, she had worried me by her crazy ideas of freedom for a girl, she'd picked up a post-war germ somewhere—all talk of course—and when Trent came along, she stopped drinking and staying out till morning at night clubs. I was relieved. Then he side-stepped. Forget it. I don't know why I told you. Nice street this, isn't it?"

Brooke nodded assent as they passed houses whose polished windows, violet-paned some of them, screened by laces of unbelievable fineness, regarded her with inscrutable calm. Thoroughbred dogs, proudly conscious of their gay collars and smart breast-straps, decorously escorted their young masters. Shining limousines waited before charming old doors. In the distance rose the faint, far sound of traffic, murmurous as a mighty flood which never rolled nearer.

"Here we are at your door. Sure you won't change your mind and go stepping?" The boyish quality was back in Field's voice. "Grand old house. Pity it was turned into apartments. Do you realize that you never have invited me to meet the family? What's wrong? Ashamed of your home—or me?"

"Neither. What a beastly suggestion, Jerry. If you must know, I haven't told them about our friendship. I have the finest family in the world, but their bump of humor is over-developed, it isn't a bump, it's a coconut."

"What is there about me that's a joke?"

"Nothing; don't be so touchy. I decided to be a little mysterious, that's all. Sam resents it if I ask him a question about his friends, thinks I am treating him like a boy when he is almost two years older than I; and since I got Lucette the chance to model and she is financially independent, she scorns my interest."

"Is your mother like that?"

"No, Mother's a dear, but she is so bound up in her children that she has no real life of her own. It's a pity because she is a comparatively young woman."

"She sounds old-fashioned and motherly to me. Grade A in mothers. I like that kind. Can't I come in and meet her? I had planned to celebrate with you. Now that you've turned me down, I haven't any place to go."

"You carry off that aggrieved, little-boy pose well, Jerry, but it leaves me cold. You, with your Crowd-capital C, having nowhere to go! That's the funniest thing I ever heard. I intend to devote the next two hours to making plans with the family. But when we're settled, I'll invite you to Lookout House. Good night. Sorry."

The front door slammed with a force which shook the house. Sam, of course. The atmosphere tingled when he appeared. He was whistling as usual. Good-looking boy! His horn-rimmed spectacles added a touch of distinction. She patted his sleeve as he stopped beside her.

"Had a nice day, Sammy?"

"Not too good. They're taking off the play tomorrow. Our dear public wouldn't see it."

He pulled open the elevator door. "Hop in." As it clanged shut, he asked:

"All through being a working girl?"

Brooke swallowed a lump in her throat and nodded.

"It will seem queer being a lady of leisure."

"Leisure! You don't know the first letter of the word. I can see you wondering what you'll do next. Leisure isn't your line. You'll plunge into classes and sports. There won't be hours enough in a day for you."

The elevator stopped. A voice seeped through the cracks around the apartment door. Sam Reyburn grinned.

"Say, listen! Lucette's on the air—down how."

"Oh dear, what's her grievance now?" Brooke whispered, and put her key into the lock.

She tried to appraise with the eyes of a stranger the high-ceilinged, large living-room she entered. A connoisseur of portraits would know that Grandfather Reyburn over the mantel had been painted by a great artist; that the portrait of his daughter on the opposite wall was a choice bit of work; that the duchess of Argyle in her sables, green satin, and emeralds was a masterpiece. Always she had wanted to decorate a room as a background for the picture. Now she could. The duchess was hers. The mahogany and maple was sadly in need of rubbing up, but no amount of wear and tear could disguise its period and value.

Her eyes lingered on her mother perched on the arm of a couch. She did young things like that. Her hair was a sheeny platinum; her eyes were dark; her skin was clear and smooth; her figure in the armethyst crepe frock was round without in the least suggesting fat. There was a quizzical twist to her lovely mouth as she looked at her younger daughter, who, with legs thrust straight out before her, was slumped in a chair. Her red beret, which matched the belt of her slim green plain frock, was on the floor. Her hair was black and wavy; her eyes were brilliantly dark; her painted lips drooped at the corners. Brooke recognized the symptoms. Sam had been right, Lucette was on the air. She said as she slipped out of her lapin coat:

"In the Valley of Despond again, Lucette? Had a nice day, Mother?"

Mrs. Reyburn smiled and nodded. She would make her home-coming children think she had had a nice day, if the heavens had fallen. She was like that. Lucette answered her question.

"You'd be in the Valley of Despond, if you had had the day I've had, Brooke Reyburn. I'm dead to the world. A woman came into the sports shop with three daughters, and kept me showing clothes all the afternoon. Gosh! My feet ache like teeth gone nery."

"Did she buy much?"

"Not that baby. She bought that little blue number only. For Pete's sake, why does Sam have to whistle when he's under the shower? The walls of this apartment are regular sounding boards."

"Bear up, Lucette, you will be out of it soon. If we can't sublet this apartment, we'll shut it up."

"Spoken like a lady and a multi, Brooke darling. And after that what?"

"You won't have to model for fussy women and you'll have a dressing room of your very own. Mr. Stewart has told me that I may take possession of Lookout House as soon as I like. Mark the Magnificent has given the Jovian nod. He won't contest the will. I'm going there tomorrow with a plumber. A bath for every bed will be my battle-cry."

Silence followed her words, a silence fraught with significance. Brooke caught her sister's look at her mother before she sat up straight and tense. She knew that posture, she was preparing for a skirmish. Lucette said defiantly:

"Glad you brought up that subject, Brooke. News flash! I'm not going to the sticks with you, not if you offer me a gold tub with diamond settings. I spent one night at the home of the late Mary Amanda Dane, and so far as I am concerned, the name means look out and not go there again. That sealed door in her living-room gave me the creeps. Sam isn't."

She dashed to the hall as the telephone rang.

"Lucette Reyburn speaking," she answered eagerly.

"Yes—yes—he is. I'll call him." Her voice was as flat as de-bubbled champagne. She pounded on the bath-room door.

"Phone for you, Sam—How do I know? It's the girl who always calls just as you've stepped under the shower.—All right."

She returned to the phone. "Hold the line. He'll be here in a minute."

Back in the living-room she dropped into a chair. With elbows propped on her knees, chin in her palms, she stared at the floor.

In bathrobe and slippers, Sam answered the phone.

"Can't make it—No. It's not another girl, it's a family confab. Sam Reyburn signing off. Good-by!"

He slammed down the receiver. "And I know of no reason why I should explain to you what I'm doing," he growled under his breath.

"Hi! Sammy! What's the show—dame's name?" Lucette called.

Her brother scowled at her. "There's about as much privacy in this apartment as there is in the bandstand on the Common."

"Cheerio, darling. You'll have privacy, and how, if you live with Brooke. She's going house-owner in a big way. If there's to be a bath for every bed, of course there will be a sound-proof telephone booth with every room. What did you say the girl friend's name was?"

"It's none of your business, kiddo, who calls me." Hands deep in the pockets of his hectic bathrobe, Sam paced the living-room floor.

His mother laughed softly. She patted the couch.

"Stop walking the floor like a hungry lion and sit down, Sam. Lucette started something just before the phone rang. She should have known better than to start anything in the Reyburn family before it has been fed, but now that she has, you'd better finish it."

"What'd you mean by started, Mother?"

Brooke perched on the arm of a chair at the desk. She faced them all. Most of the time she could tell quite well what they were thinking. She answered her brother's question before her mother could.

"She means that Lucette announced that she did not intend to live at Lookout House with me, and that you—"

"Were not going either, Sam," Lucette finished triumphantly.

"Aren't you, Sam?"

"Say listen, Brooke. Don't you see how it is? I have to be at the theater early; I'm late when I get through; rehearsing all the morning. Twenty miles is a long way to commute."

"I had planned to buy you the snappiest convertible coupe on the market."

"Don't make me feel like a brute. Don't you see—"

"Of course I see, Sammy. You want to be on your own. I do understand."

"Don't worry about his being on his own, darling," Lucette cut in bitterly. "No one can be on his-own in this family. The Great Adviser intends to stay right here to look after his little sister."

Brooke's eyes met her brother's; he nodded. Lucette flamed on:

"And Mother's going to stay to look after both of us."

"Mother!" Brooke echoed the word with shocked incredulity. "But I've planned the most wonderful things for Mother. Is it true?"

Celia Reyburn's eyes shone through a mist as they met her elder daughter's. Her lips curved in a lovely, tremulous smile.

"When you say Mother, Brooke, I think it the most beautiful word in the world. But I will not make my home with you—at present. First, because Lookout House is yours and you should assume the responsibility and direction of it. You will do it more easily if I am not there. Second, I want to stay in the city, not so much because of the children, but because now that your financial future is assured, I shall feel that I may use a little of the money your father left me. I want to want to be in the heart of things. I'll have an experienced maid, I'll have the right clothes, and—and I'll go places, I'm dying to go places."

Her impassioned voice broke.

"Perhaps I'm selfish, perhaps you children think I'm a silly old woman."

Sam flung his arm about his mother's neck. "Hooray for the Spirit of '36! Sorry, I shouldn't have mentioned your age, Celia Reyburn. Don't worry that you won't get enough of your family, Brooke. I'll have to drag these two giddy girls off to the country for rest occasionally. Aren't you at us, are you, Brooke? Don't feel that we have let you down to go on alone?"

"Of course I don't, you old dear. Why shouldn't each one of us do as we like, now that there is some money back of us? Because I feel that I must carry out Mrs. Dane's wishes in no reason for dragging the rest of you into the country. Let's get busy planning. If you are all sold on staying in the city, we'll have a bigger apartment. I may want to spend a week-end away from the sticks myself."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for June 6

JOSEPH'S READINESS FOR SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 41:33-44. GOLDEN TEXT—See thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings. Proverbs 22:29. PRIMARY TOPIC—Joseph's Errand. JUNIOR TOPIC—Joseph Goes Before the King. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Ready to Serve. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Preparation for Public Service.

Public service—that position of opportunity and responsibility—merits far better treatment than is commonly accorded to it, for we know only too well how often it is nothing but a political football carried hither and yon as the dictates of partisan purposes may indicate.

Scripture holds a very exalted view of the public servant. Paul tells us to "be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God" (Rom. 13:1). The Bible clearly teaches that every governmental agency and every public servant from the policeman on the beat to the President in the White House, is only permitted to exercise authority over his fellow-men because God has ordained that there should be such government. Clear it is that every right-thinking official of state and nation should be humble, teachable, discreet, and wise in the exercise of his power, and God-fearing in the discharge of his responsibility.

Joseph, the one in the procession of the patriarchs of Genesis who passes before us in the lesson today is interesting from many angles. His personal history is charmingly written and a model of appealing biography. He is a marvelous type of Christ, and one could devote hours to such a study of his life. But our lesson subject presents him as one ready for public service, and we may well profit by the lesson. He is an example of what men who serve their country should be.

I. Before God—Humble and Teachable (vv. 33-36).

The background of our lesson is found in the four preceding chapters. Joseph, the boy with dreams and aspirations, has learned obedience, humility, purity, and many other useful lessons in the hard school of experience. It has well been said that the tuition of that school is high, but the lessons are well learned.

Now he stands before the king to interpret a double dream, sent as a warning to the nation. The wise men who knew not the true God had vainly sought to answer the king's questions. Joseph sets them and us an example—he receives instructions and guidance from God, and speaks wise words because taught of him. Would that all those who stand as counsellors before kings and presidents in our day would listen for the voice of God before they speak.

II. Before Men—Spiritual, Discreet, and Wise (vv. 37-39).

Pharaoh recognized that the Spirit of God was in Joseph. That is a great testimony for Joseph, and at the same time it reflects credit upon the king. Who can say what would be the result if our government officials were chosen for their spirituality?

Spirituality is not the only qualification, however, for such service. The Christian who expects men to favor him because he is a Christian, even though he be careless and incompetent, finds no comfort in the study of Joseph. He was discreet and wise. The follower of Christ should distinguish himself by diligent and intelligent application of all his powers to his work. Then men will honor both him and his God.

III. In Service—Responsible and Powerful (vv. 40-44).

He who had humbled himself under the mighty hand of God was exalted in due time. (See I Peter 5:6.) Joseph was willing to abide God's time, and did not run ahead of him as did his father, Jacob.

The record shows that he used his place of honor and privilege to perform a difficult and arduous task and to do it well. Right-spirited men do not glory in position or power, but use the opportunity to give themselves in sacrificial service to God and their fellow-men. Someone has aptly said that a politician is one who has his eye on the next election while a statesman has his eye on the next generation and its welfare. God give us more statesmen!

Never Despair

Let no man despair of himself. We may be seculchurs full of dead powers; but Christ is the resurrection and the life, to make us shrines full of living, seeing, soaring, rejoicing thoughts and passions.—Dr. W. L. Watkinson.

"HI THERE, Mrs. Astorbilt, where are you going, in that lovely summer gown?"

"Not very far, Miss Junior Deb, just down to the store to buy material for a play suit like yours."

"Well, Ma-mah, if you must copy my style, you couldn't find a better model because these shorts really fit, and the whole thing is a tailored job."

A Stylist Speaks.

"May I as Susie Sew-Your-Own interrupt you two with the latest word from my class in dress design? You, Sis, are a pre-vee of Miss America in proper sports wear while Ma-mah is modern to the minute with her raised waist-line and fluted bodice. I, in this morning frock, have what the book calls classic simplicity. Be that as it may, I couldn't get along without it, because it's so cool and comfortable."

"Thanks for the approval, Susie. Your clever dress would be a bright spot in anybody's kitchen, and now that you've got the swing of this sewing business there will be no stopping you. But even so, I must admit I'm a proud mother. You can go just as far as you like with this new hobby."

"Gee, Ma-mah, isn't it swell to be on such friendly terms with Fashion? I think good old Sew-Your-Own deserves most of the credit for arranging the introduction. Spring means so much more when one's clothes look the part."

"You're quite right, dear, but now let's run along. We have work to do."

Any erroneous reflection upon the reputation or standing of any individual firm or corporation, that may appear in the columns of The News, will be gladly corrected when called to our attention.

From this distance it looks as if John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., were a rank communist. It is being freely charged that his great and growing labor organization is impregnated with communism, and his methods would seem to bear out the charge. He makes no distinction between the good and the bad, the just and the unjust, among the employers of labor. He wars upon all of them alike, with or without provocation. He seeks to compel them all to eat out of his hand. He apparently aspires to become a ruthless industrial dictator. If all great industrial organizations engaged in interstate commerce are to be regulated and controlled by Federal law—and we believe they should be—then it seems to us to be high time for our President and the Congress to be taking effective means to prevent strikes on the part of those employed by concerns engaged in interstate commerce. Especially should the sit-down strike be outlawed. We have no place in this country for this type of outlawry.

The rains have come, and they now claim that even Potter county will make some wheat. If that Potter county wheat which we saw a couple of months ago makes a bushel to a thousand acres then we may expect to hear any time of cotton growing on blue weeds. But other counties on the Plains and in the Panhandle will turn out bumper crops—no foolin'.

At the time this is written the fate of the race track repeal bill seems very uncertain, but Bradbury in the House and Nelson in the Senate are leading a brilliant fight for the measure. Back of them stands Governor Allred, who called the legislature in special session to act on this measure. In the regular session, a reputed minority of the Senate succeeded, by the employment of dilatory tactics, in preventing the bill from coming to a final vote. Some of those who at first were listed as friends of repeal are now proving to be its enemies. Nearly all the senators from districts in which the race tracks are situated together with most of those from South Texas are opposing repeal. San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, and other cities which are supposed to reap profits from race track gambling are in the thick of the fight. Even our Panhandle senator, Clint Small of Amarillo, has lined up with the opposition. Race track gambling is one of the greatest grafts and one of the most hurtful types of gambling that afflicts this or any other state. The honest elements in the citizenship of this state should line up solidly against the financial buccaners who are effectually cultivating the gambling spirit and are robbing the unwary of thousands and thousands of hard-earned dollars each year. Pari-mutuel gambling should be outlawed.

Recently we have heard much of the profusion and beauty of the wild flowers "down state". Last week we took a trip down into that country. The roadsides and the prairies, sure enough, were a-glow with beauty. On almost every mile of the route we were greeted with a great variety and countless numbers of lovely wild flowers. But almost in vain we looked for beautiful lawns. Even in the larger towns, a surprisingly small percent of the homes had attractive lawns. It was really refreshing to come back to Tahoka and behold the ravishing beauty of many of the lawns here. Now, if we could find some practical way to eliminate the unsightliness of our vacant lots and if the premises surrounding all our residences could be beautified, Tahoka would look like a miniature Paradise. Let's do our best to make it so, folks. Let's cut the weeds and plant grass. Let's grow beautiful flowers and shrubs and trees. Though most of our homes are mere cottages, let's give them a setting that will make them the most attractive in Texas. Let's tidy up the business section, too, and make Tahoka famous for its beauty.

Roosevelt's court reform bill seems to be peacefully sleeping just now. There are those who are predicting that it will never be awakened. Three or four court decisions favorable to the New Deal and the voluntary retirement of Justice Van Devanter seem to have had a powerful narcotic effect. May it rest in peace.

The dust bowl, they say, has received rain at last. Just a few days ago they had another terrific dust-storm up there and the next day they had a downpour of water that drowned all the bullfrogs. Maybe Nature has undertaken to help the rehabilitation experts out.

A JOINT RESOLUTION
Proposing an amendment to Article III, Section 52, of the Constitution of the State of Texas by adding thereto a new section to be known as Section 52d; providing that the Legislature may authorize by law, after a majority vote of the resident qualified electors owning taxable property therein, the adoption of a plan for the construction of paved roads and bridges or both in Harris County and in road districts therein; providing for the levy of a tax to pay for such construction; providing for the necessary proclamation; and appropriating funds to defray the expenses of the proclamation, publication, and election.

Be it resolved by the Legislature of the State of Texas:
Section 1. That Article III, Section 52, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, be amended by adding thereto another section to be known as Section 52d, which shall

THE FOUNTAINS OF JUSTICE SHOULD BE KEPT PURE

One of the proposed constitutional amendments submitted to the people at an election to be held in August would provide for the return to the fee system of paying county and precinct officials. The fee system was abolished two years ago, in part, and most officials placed on a salary.

The people voted to abolish the fee system because of the temptations to graft that it placed before peace officers. Under the fee system peace officers have a financial interest in every misdemeanor case that is filed. If there is a conviction, the officers get their fees. If not, the officers get nothing. This places a constant temptation before officers to use high pressure methods to bring about convictions or pleas of guilty in misdemeanor cases. They sometimes yielded to the temptation. Many of them were often accused of filing complaints in trivial matters just to bring about pleas of guilty and get their fees.

But most of these officers do not receive as much remuneration in salaries as they did in fees. Therefore most of them naturally desire a return to the fee system. While a majority of our peace officers are doubtless honest and would do no man the slightest injustice for the sake of a fee, yet there are many who will do so. Besides, in some of the cities, under the fee system, many of the counties and precinct officials received, several times as much remuneration annually as the governor of the state.

In many of the smaller counties, on the other hand, commissioners courts have found the salary system burdensome. The fees which are now collected go into the county treasury, but it is claimed they are not sufficient to pay the salaries of the officers. In spite of this objection, however, we believe that the people should hesitate a long time before they decide to return to the fee system. The fountains of justice should remain pure. It is better that a dozen misdemeanors should go free than that one innocent man should be railroaded into a conviction.

They are now manufacturing agrol, which is just another name for alcohol, to mix with gasoline as a motor fuel. The new mixture will not only conserve the gasoline supply but it will give better motor performance, it is said. For a long time some drivers have been mixing gasoline and alcohol by placing the former in the gasoline tank and pouring the latter down their own gullets. This mixture has not proven to be an entire success.

Meat Cuts and How to Cook Them PORK CHART

Pork is a universal favorite. It appears more frequently on the American table than any other meat dish, but there are a good many attractive pork cuts which are passed over by the average homemaker, because she is not acquainted with the possibilities they offer for new and attractive main dishes. The pork chart shown above, deserves a place in the household files because it shows at a glance the variety of pork cuts and how to cook them.

TOWNS SELECT SPONSORS TO COWBOY REUNION

Stamford, June 2.—Eight towns have selected cowgirl sponsors to represent them in the Texas Cowboy Reunion to be held in Stamford July 1, 2 and 3. The number is expected to reach fifty before the opening date of the cowboy meeting. The cowgirls will ride in the parades, be presented in the big cowboy rodeo arena and compete for the special made saddle and other prizes offered in the sponsors' contest.

Sponsors announced thus far are: Benjamin, Miss Caroline Bateman; Old Glory, Miss Mildred Davis; Aspermont, Miss Ann Elizabeth Smith; Graham, Miss Ann Carlton; Coleman, Mrs. Patsy Morris Blair; Tahoka, Miss Marjorie Wells; Waco, Miss Ida Marie Crews; and Stamford, Miss Margaret Upshaw. Mrs. Hugh Astin of Stamford has been appointed hostess to the sponsors.

The cowboy rodeo is the central feature of the Cowboy Reunion program of entertainment. Daily parades, the old fiddlers contest, square dances, sponsors' dances and the annual meeting and election of officers by the oldtime cowboys are other features.

Higher Taxes— Or True Economy?

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

During the past few weeks there have been increasing demands on Congress for curtailment of reckless spending. From official sources have come warnings that the choice lies between a program of reasonable economy and a series of fresh additions to the already heavy burden of taxes.

Which of these two courses will Congress follow?

Each has its advocates.

To bureaucrats and politicians who must depend for their jobs and their popularity on a continued program of public spending, the decision will seem an easy one. Naturally they would have Congress oppose any program of economy.

To the average citizen who, either directly or indirectly, pays the taxes which officialdom spends, the answer will be similarly obvious. He wants to see his Congressman reduce, rather than increase, the steady drain on earnings and savings which now consumes so large a part of his income.

Unlike the bureaucrat and the politician he believes that the way to balance budgets is not by raising his taxes, but by cutting down the bills which he must pay.

By his decision Congress can demonstrate whose voice registers stronger at Washington—the politician's or the constituent's.

And in that demonstration the voters and taxpayers of America can find effective guidance when they are called upon to decide at the polls who shall represent their interests in Washington.

SOCIETY AND ARCHITECTURE

Communal life decayed during the Nineteenth Century with the decay of institutions that had produced its traditional forms. But no community can remain healthy without communal life; and it must be the task of the immediate future to build up new forms more in harmony with the age. And in building up these forms, architecture must play an essential part.—Bertrand Russell, English philosopher and author, in the Rotarian Magazine.

BEFORE AND AFTER FORTY

To live happily, when retired, we must develop earlier in life an avocation, to maintain our interest in life. Such outside lines of thought and diversion are the more successful when they bring us in contact with nature—birds, gardens, geology, and the like.—Charles H. Mayo, M. D., in the Rotarian Magazine.

LYNN COUNTY IN NEW WPA DISTRICT

As a result of a consolidation of Works Progress Administration districts over Texas, Lynn, along with a number of other counties, has been transferred to the Lubbock district. This county has in the past been a part of the Big Spring district, which headquarters is being abolished.

Counties added to the Lubbock district are: Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Scurry, Fisher, Jones, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Garza, Kent, Stonewall, King, and Cottle.

District headquarters of the state are now located at Marshall, Dallas, Houston, Waco, Austin, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Laredo, Amarillo, Lubbock, San Angelo, and El Paso.

Officials declare approximately $30,000 per month will be saved in WPA administration expense by the consolidation of twenty Texas districts into twelve. The consolidation order was issued by State Administrator H. P. Drought, San Antonio.

COSDEN RADIO SHOW—WEDNESDAYS, 10-10:30 P. M.—WBAP

Editor Visits In Central Texas

After attending the funeral of a relative in Hamilton last week, the editor and Mrs. Hill decided to do some visiting in central Texas. So, we visited not only many relatives and friends but some places of interest.

The most important of these is the Buchanan Dam, being constructed across the Colorado River thirteen miles west of Burnet. As is well known, this is a Government project. The purpose is flood control, irrigation, and the generation of electric power. The project is now apparently 75 percent completed.

The height of the structure, we were told, is 137 feet above the river bed. The dam will back water more than thirty miles up stream. It will impound a sea of water. It is being constructed, of course, according to the very best engineering plans and will probably stand until Gabriel blows his horn, but personally, we would not like to have our home down in the valley below the dam. We would rather have it out on the hills.

Less than two miles below the Buchanan Dam, a second dam is being constructed. It is the Ink dam. It is much smaller and less important than the Buchanan but is an immense structure itself.

Much granite and marble may be seen protruding from the surface of the earth in that section of the country. Marble Falls is fifteen miles south of Burnet on the Colorado. The name is significant. It was out of Burnet granite that the magnificent state Capitol was constructed. Burnet county itself has just completed the construction of a rather unique and most elegant court house out of her own native granite.

From Burnet, we drove over to Georgetown, county seat of Williamson county, and also the site of Southwestern University, which, for long years, was the leading Methodist educational institution in Texas. There, hundreds of the leading educators, ministers, lawyers, and many of the political leaders of this state were educated. But we had only a few minutes to tarry at Georgetown; for only 23 miles to the north was old Salado, now a dilapidated village that has almost disappeared from the maps but which for many years was an important college town and which in those days wore the sobriquet, "The Athens of Texas".

It was founded in about 1850, chiefly by E. S. C. Robertson, whose father was one of the signers of the Texas Declaration of Independence. A few years later, Robertson and others founded old Salado College. There the sons and daughters of the pioneers of Texas were educated. There, many of the aristocracy of Texas made their homes. The school at one time had an enrollment of more than 300, it is said. But evil days came, and in the early eighties the school suspended. Then in about 1889, Dr. S. J. Jones and Prof. T. J. Witt founded a private high school or academy there. They named it

These Texas Gals, Sighs Andy-'Oh, Me'

When oil business brought Charles Correll flying to Texas, a welcoming Texanita of the Pan American Exposition prompted him to repeat the sigh that, as Andy, of Amos and Andy, he has given on the radio networks many nights lately—"These Texas gals, Oh, me!" Victim of a "Texas gal" and her father in an oil promotion in the radio skit continuity, "Andy" gave out no details of reason for his hasty trip. He was greeted at Dallas airport by Eleanor Akers, pretty hostess of the International Fair opening June 12, in Dallas.

The Thomas Arnold High School in honor of the great educator of Rugby, "the man who made the men who made England." They used the building of the old Salado College. This school continued for many years.

Both the editor and Mrs. Hill were students at different times in this institution—and the other day we stood upon the ruins of the old building, the mass of stone that had made up its strong and sturdy walls. Proud we were of the fact that we were alumni of this old defunct institution, from whose walls had gone forth many of the boys and girls who today hold prominent positions or in recent years have held prominent positions in the political, educational, civic, and religious life of this state. But it made us a bit sad to see these walls now a mass of ruins.

In Bell county, too, we saw some of the newly-constructed rural electrification lines, a fore-runner of what seems to be in prospect for every nook and cranny of our country at no distant day. But not only the handiwork of man but the handiwork of Nature also enthralled us. The fine springs and the limpid waters of the Salado, the magnificent drive up the Miller Springs road along the banks of the Leon near Belton, the perpendicular bluffs and wooded hills near Moffat, and numerous other masterpieces of Nature's skillful hand at many, many other places in Central Texas, are all too wonderful for us to undertake to describe.

At Stephenville, we visited the office building of the Wolfe Nursery. This building is constructed of petrified rocks and curious fossils, some of which, the scientists tell us, are many millions of years old. This building and the wealth of curios on the premises is itself almost equal to a good museum. It was a nice little outing we had. If we had the time and money, we might put in the next thirty or forty years of our life seeing Texas—and the rest of the world.

Mrs. J. E. Nance and little daughter, Nancy Lee, are here for a few weeks visit with Mrs. Nance's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Knight. Mr. Nance is in the Government HOLC service and was recently transferred from Dallas to Omaha, Nebraska. At the conclusion of her visit here Mrs. Nance will join her husband in Omaha.

Mrs. J. L. Reese returned Sunday night from a three weeks visit with relatives in Coryell county. She went down with Mrs. E. I. Hill early in the month, who went to visit her father, Mr. Hop Halsey, who resides in Milam county, near Rogers. She returned with Mrs. Hill and the editor, the latter having been called to Hamilton early last week by the death of a brother-in-law.

Mr. and Mrs. Major H. Rodgers and children of Levelland and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Line of O'Donnell spent Sunday in the N. M. Wyatt home.

Miss Irma Williams of Bartlesville, Okla., is visiting in the homes of Mrs. G. W. Williams and Mrs. J. P. Hank.

Our Graduates—And the Road Ahead

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

As this is written thousands of young Americans—sturdy descendants of the hardiest breed of pioneers and nation-builders the world has ever seen—are being graduated from high schools, colleges and universities throughout the country.

What awaits them in the years ahead? There are critics who will say that the road to opportunity is blocked; that the world no longer has room or need for the personal courage and initiative which carried our fathers across a continent; that certain tired and crowded and despairing populations of the Old World have charted a better course—the surrender of all rights, all opinions to dictators, in return for promises of economic and political guardianship. To such cynics, the energy and the enthusiasm of youth merit only a sneer.

But there are others who will tell them that the real joy of life is in achievement, that the American ideal still remains one of self-rule, self-reliance, open opportunity, and full freedom of religion, of speech and of thought.

The first idea is foreign both in spirit and in origin. The second is outstandingly American. Here is how one great American, Theodore Roosevelt, expressed it:

"It is not the critic who counts, nor the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done better. The credit belongs to the man who strikes valiantly, who errs and may fall again and again, because there is no effort without error or shortcoming, but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows the great enthusiasm, the great devotion; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory or defeat."

There is a message spoken for an earlier generation of young Americans. It remains a ringing message to youth today.

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUI, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated.

Cardui, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.

MRS. COBB HONORED ON HER BIRTHDAY

As a surprise birthday courtesy to their mother, Mrs. J. H. Cobb, Mrs. Sue Roberson and Miss Virgie Cobb entertained with a party on Tuesday evening, May 25, in the home of Mrs. Cobb.

After a series of games directed by Mrs. G. B. Sherrod, a contest was entered into by each person guessing at the number of peas a pint jar contained. The prize, a lovely tea pot, was presented to Mrs. P. R. Johnson for having guessed nearest to the number.

A gift shower of friendship quilt, books and handkerchiefs was then presented to the honoree.

The hostess served fruit punch, birthday cake, and cookies to the following guests: Mmes. T. M. Brown and I. E. Brown, Lubbock, G. B. Sherrod, Buel Draper, P. R. Johnson, Jim Dye, L. E. Huffaker, Russell Vernon, G. A. Carter, Emma Hatchell, O. A. Corley, Chas. Lichey, Lackey, N. J. Barton, M. B. Cope, Boyd Coleman, Lige Holley, Lee Holley, John King, Charlie Lichey, Jess Tabor, G. M. Murrah, George Bovell, C. C. Jones, Perry, B. C. Aycox, A. C. Aycox, Egbert Evans, E. R. Tunnell, Miss Frieda Lichey, Ellen King, and the honoree.

METHODIST CHURCH SCHOOL GROWING

Our Church School continues to grow. A vacation Bible School is in session this week and next from 4 to 6 each afternoon except Saturdays and Sundays, Mrs. R. B. Jones is dean assisted by a corps of competent helpers:

Preaching hours at 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. Sunday.

A good laymen's meeting was held in O'Donnell last Sunday afternoon for this part of the Lubbock district. Claude Donaldson presided and quite a few were there from this church. Luda Strasser and G. C. Price are at the summer assembly for Young People at McMurry College this week.

PHEBE K. WARNER CLUB HAS INFORMAL TEA

A lovely informal tea given in the home of Ms. E. E. Callaway May 28 marked the close of activities of the Phebe K. Warner Club for the summer.

After an informal program and games, Mrs. H. C. Story, in behalf of the club, made a beautiful talk in honor and appreciation of Mrs. L. E. Weathers, the retiring club president. She was presented with a rose corsage and the club pin, which she graciously accepted.

There were a number of musical selections by Marjorie Wells and a violin selection by Greta Joyce Applewhite, accompanied by her mother at the piano. Mrs. Pete Hegi gave a humorous reading. Balloon contests were enjoyed by all.

The tea table was covered with a handsome lace cloth. The centerpiece of pink rose buds was flanked on either side with numerous pink tapers. An ice course was served by Mrs. A. P. Edwards, while Mrs. Truett Smith poured tea. They were assisted by Mrs. Pete Hegi and Mrs. Carl Griffin.

Those present were: Mesdames L. C. Haney, Hegi, W. K. Mathis, R. L. Richardson, W. B. Slaton, Smith, W. G. Barrett, Callaway, Edwards, R. W. Fenton Sr., R. W. Fenton Jr., Griffing, G. M. Stewart, Story, Turrentine, Weathers, L. F. Craft, W. O. Henderson, Applewhite, Hafer, E. S. Evans, Hardy, and H. G. Maxey, and Misses Applewhite and Wells.

CROWD AT GRASSLAND CHURCH OF NAZARENE

We appreciate the capacity crowd that came last Sunday to the N. Y. P. S. rally. We could hardly expect that many next Sunday but we hope to see many of the local people with us in our regular Sunday School and preaching services. Come and be with us. We assure you that we are interested in your spiritual welfare and will try to make you feel at home.—Eugene Wood, Pastor.

METHODIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY IS ACTIVE

A resume of the conference held in Stamford in April was given in a study of the minutes, Monday afternoon. Interesting items as well as plans of the year were discussed.

Monday at church at 4 o'clock, will be held the first session of Bible study. "Studying Genesis" is the text to be used. All who want to study in this group (any and all denominations will be welcomed) please read the first eleven chapters of Genesis at least three times noting the most significant fact in them.

This period is two thousand years of our first history "The beginning of everything". The book sale continues at Guarantee Food Store next Saturday, both morning and afternoon. The members of the church are responding nicely in the call for "buying and baking," enabling the payment of some necessary obligations. Don't fail to assume your part.

The Vacation Bible School for children will start this Wednesday at 4 o'clock and continue eight days, excepting Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Jones is dean of the school, with a group of helpers. Parents are invited to send their children from 4 to 6. Any child will be gladly received in this school of Bible Study (not a word of sectarianism), Story Hour, Devotional, and Recreation. A splendid opportunity for child development, physically, mentally and spiritually.

Don't let your child miss a single period of the school.—Reporter.

A FEW WORDS FROM THE NAZARENES

Since coming to our little city of Tahoka, we have had the privilege of meeting a host of new friends, who have been very kind and friendly to us. We have also met a number of our old friends whom we have known better than twenty years. Time changes things. Some of these, our good friends were twenty years ago in the prime of life. Now, their hair is white, their steps are slower, their children have grown into manhood and womanhood. While time has changed some things, we find that same old disposition among them to be kind and friendly. If we would seek friends, let us first show ourselves friendly.

We are having a friendly Sunday

School Rally beginning this coming Friday night, June 4. With Brother and Sister McMahon from Post as our special workers. They will be with us Friday and Saturday night and Sunday and Sunday night. Please don't fail to hear them, they are Sunday school minded. Read the friendly Lynn County News.

We hope to see you Friday night, come.

Jno. R. Ferguson, Pastor

SOME THINGS TO THINK ON

Oh, the fine showers, how they remind us that God is good and how dependent we are upon Him. We should be very thankful for the provision God has made in the spiritual realm as well as in the physical. There is not a need we have that God has not provided for. When we look at the beautiful flowers, hear the sweet song of the birds, and taste the delicious fruit, I think of God's unstinted love; but when I look into the starry heavens at night, read God's beautiful love story (the Bible) and think of Jesus and his sacrifice for men I am amazed at God's bountiful love—and yet with all this I am prone to murmur and complain. There is one look we need above all others, that is the up look. In these perilous times as the editor mentioned last week there is just one anchor for us and that is "The Gospel of Christ" and it is the only remedy when applied.

We talk of the stock market and the possibility of a crash again. There is one stock that never goes below par, that is spiritual stock. If we would take out more of that, we would not be so bothered about the rise and fall of the other kind.

We hear much these days about the united states of Europe, of North and South America united but what about unity among God's people. How can we face the Devil and his forces divided like we are and expect to gain victory? Religious neighbors please read John 17-21-23 and then let's help to answer it.

I will fill the pulpit here next Lord's day. Morning sermon 11 a. m. evening 8:30 p. m. Visit the friendly church that worships like they did in the first century. We'll be looking for you.

R. P. Drennon.

The Earliest Diamonds Grew Up in Early Tl.

In the Thirteenth and Fourteenth centuries the three main courts of English law grew up. They were the Court of the Exchequer, which settled tax disputes; the Court of Common Pleas, which heard civil cases, and the Court of King's Bench, which heard criminal cases and also had a measure of appellate jurisdiction over the other two courts.

A system of prerogative courts was developed later by the Tudors. These courts, observes a writer in the Chicago Tribune, were especially dependent on the royal will and precedent did not count in their decisions. The star chamber was a form of prerogative court. In these courts—which could inflict punishment up to life imprisonment—the doctrine of "will of the prince" was supreme. Defendants were tortured and forced to testify against themselves; they were guilty until proved innocent.

In the prerogative and the other three courts the sovereign wished they could be appointed and dismissed at his pleasure. The theory was that the sovereign owned the courts and could sell justice.

There were occasional protests at arbitrary royal action. Queen Elizabeth had given monopolies to several favorites, granting them sole rights to the manufacture and sale of certain goods. The judges held such monopolies violated the common law. Elizabeth gladly took advantage of this ruling—it saved her face—and she revoked the monopolies.

Colorado's No-Man's Land

No-Man's Land in Colorado is a tract of about 1,300 square miles in the north central part of the state, about 50 miles from Denver. Lying between lands included in the Louisiana Purchase and in the Texas Panhandle purchase, it is not part of either, but was obtained in the cession of the Ute Indians under the treaty of March 2, 1868. It was included within the boundaries of Colorado when that state was admitted to the Union in 1876. On August 9, 1936, at Breckenridge, Colo., Gov. E. C. Johnson proclaimed American sovereignty over this land.

Hairless Squirrels

Hairless fox squirrels are not unusual, although they are not common. Generally they are alone while feeding or resting. Others of their family seem to shun them. They are not as active as squirrels in good fur and are constantly scratching themselves. Some have been found even with their tails devoid of hair and they appear more like a light brown rat than a squirrel.

Here are real friends whose life's business is making you happy!

FRIENDS who never fail to make you laugh can always make you forget the painful pressure of your corns or taxes. On the Funny Page of this newspaper are a group of friends whose riotous antics shoo the blues away week after week.

For instance, there are Gene Byrnes' "Reg'lar Fellers," as likely a band of youngsters as ever busted a schoolhouse window. Jimmie Dugan, Aggie Riley, Pudd'n'head and Pinhead, Bump Hudson and the dog Bullseye are worth a chuckle in every line.

DESPERATE Ambrose, who becomes doubly dangerous when donning his vendetta hat, Pop Wimpus and Old Timer have become national institutions in the uproarious strip, "S'Matter Pop?" by C. M. Payne. One of the wildest, craziest comics in the world, this is still as true to life as cold oatmeal or corned beef hash.

SLIGHTLY daffy, of course, are "The Featherheads," but only daffy enough to do the things that all of us do that are good for a million laughs in our daily lives. Cartoonist Osborne's funny folk also come to you every week in this paper. AND Finney, "Finney of the Force" is the answer to the charge that nobody loves a policeman. This genial flatfoot's humorous adventures, as portrayed by the young artist, Ted O'Loughlin, are a lot of fun for him and even more for you as you watch him walk his beat.

"MESCAL IKE" by M. S. L. Huntley brings you Mescal himself, Pa Piffle, Miss Sally Price, Dirty Shirt Mulloney, Muley Bates and the other salty citizens of Caefus Center. This hilarious strip has the excitement of a diamond-back's rattle, a kick like an untamed mustang and all the dry humor of a desert mule.

UNUSUAL insight into human nature and a keen sense of humor are the stock in trade of Magnus G. Kettner, who ranks among the truly great cartoonists of the day. In "Our Pet Peeve," "Along the Concrete," and his other cartoons, there is always a chuckle, often a real, constructive thought, but never a sting. Especially has Kettner caught the warm humor of small town and rural life.

Follow the doings of these friends of yours. They'll make your life gay, your lot easier and your digestion better.

You'd think my living depends on your getting mileage

IT DOES

I'm no big company myself, just because I sell a good big company's oil, etc. This business is mine, and their oil has to show my customers a heap longer mileage and cool smooth operation, or I wouldn't make near as safe a living. I'd rather have my good trade on Conoco Germ Processed oil, than just getting people to change here once, and always be worried about new ones showing up. A lot of my trade comes from clear out around, because nothing but my Germ Processed oil will Oil-Plate their engines. You see, the patent Germ Process gets this oil to form a strong slippery Plating on every working surface. Mind you, Oil-Plating can't drain down while your car is parked. So it can't let your engine start up "dry," which engineers say is the greatest danger. And the way it's Plated on, Conoco Germ Processed oil isn't using up in a hurry. Then that's getting more mileage out of both your oil and engine—coming here to me for Oil-Plating.

Fancy Now Turns to Exotic Cottons

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Oh, OH, OH! Did you ever see anything in the way of fabric so dazzling to the eye, so daringly designful, so altogether fascinating as the new cotton weaves that are dancing so madly, so merrily, so fashionably into the current style picture?

How perfectly they tune into the costume needs of carefree summer-time activities! It is no wild statement to say that an entire wardrobe can be successfully fashioned of cotton materials that will carry merrily through active sports and morning dress hours, that will answer to the call for voguish afternoon costumes, climaxing the around-the-clock program with evening formals that are just too lovely for words.

Cottons for formal wear? Yes, indeed! The next time you go to a dance or nighttime society event, count for your own satisfaction, the dresses fashioned of "one" type of cotton or another. You will see glamorous printed piques, the flattering and filmy cotton voiles so in demand at the present moment, dotted swisses, shadow printed organdies, superfine seersucker sheers and other entrancing cotton weaves too numerous to mention.

Perhaps after all has been said and done it is the amazing cotton prints that are of outstanding style significance. For excitement at high pitch, watch the procession of exotics in cotton that are that authentically oriental and superbly colorful you feel that they must have hailed direct from ports in far Persia, or East India, perhaps Java or China, or from Hungary or some other central-Europe country, or just as likely the print that holds you spellbound may be of South American origin, for the latter rank high in style prestige this season.

Do these foreign-looking American-made prints make up effectively in dance frocks? Find the answer in the charming dress pictured to the right in the illustration. This sleeveless evening gown with graceful skirt and with halter-type bodice is made of one of the new Hungarian cotton prints which reproduce old-world textiles. The colors are rich and glowing and there is a gypsy flavor about them and the beads and the bracelets worn are in definite keeping with the trend in the summer mode. Needless to say that the colors of the print are fast to both sun and washing.

Take the thought of the perfectly gorgeous new cotton prints and the thought of the stunning new house coats, such as are proving the big sensation in fashion realms, put the two together and the duo-theme is enough to tempt any home-sewing woman into action. Which is exactly what is happening.

She who loves to go nautical will enjoy making up the beach coat to the left in the picture, which may be smartly used later on as an evening coat or as a house coat. The material, patterned with anchors and other seafaring themes, being properly pre-shrunk will not lose its perfect lines or fit from laundering, neither will the colors lose out in tubbing.

A cool competent play outfit of colorful early American print centers the trio. Being dependably pre-shrunk it is able to take its tubbing cheerfully without tendency to lose shape. The shirt and shorts are in one. The skirt whisks on and off at will.

WITH LACE JACKET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This lovely lace gown has a matching jacket, which it should have according to all the laws of fashion. The idea of topping each dress with a related cape or jacket runs throughout the entire style program until now it has become a widespread accepted fact. Norman Hartnell, especially prominent for his coronation gowns, designed this very lovely evening ensemble. Both in London and Paris the flair for lace is at a high point of enthusiasm.

Romantic Jewelry

Massive bracelets and clips set with "sentimental stones" such as turquoise, corals, garnets, topazes and seed pearls are going to be worn this summer.

Tassels for Accent

Lavin is successful with a white suit with a swing jacket featuring square box pockets. The armholes are outlined in gay woolen tassels.

SEPARATE BOLERO IN LACE IS SMART

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

One of the many reasons for the great popularity of the becoming bolero is its ability to dress up a costume, or to vary it for you. You have only to slip one on over a simple crepe dress to achieve the effect that is especially attractive this year. Boleros are particularly prominent in starched cotton lace, in pastel shades and white. Several of these, in different colors, will enable you to get different effects with a single frock.

The simple, brief bolero would probably be most practical, for the lace pattern gives a dressy effect in itself, and the tailored pattern of the bolero makes it adaptable to all types of costumes. One very attractive design has short puff sleeves, and wide revers, with the short jacket slightly flared. If you can sew at all, it is the easiest thing to make, of little more than a yard of lace. Such a bolero shows off to best advantage over a dress that is fairly simple, whether it be an afternoon frock, or a gown for evening.

Renaissance of Interest in the "Polka Dot" Theme

There is a renaissance of interest in the polka dot theme. There are enormous plate-sized dots with smaller dots scattered around them, all sprinkled with tiny confetti dots in contrasting colors. There are zig-zag polka dot arrangements, irregular spacings. The classic polka dot takes on a new look in strange and "dizzy" color combinations for sportswear, such as queer reds combined with strong blues. Silk crepes, silk sheers and silk taffetas are favorite grounds for dot patterns, the companion idea often being carried out in a silk crepe with a silk sheer.

Reducing in Hospital

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

A MAN, thirty-two years of age, height 5 feet 11 inches, weighing 310 pounds, consulted his physician in an effort to rid himself of his excess weight. He was carefully examined and found to be in good health although his blood pressure was above normal, a common condition in overweight.

A metabolism test was made—rate at which the body processes work—and it was found that they were about the normal rate. In many cases of overweight the body processes work too slowly and do not burn up the excess food or fat. Such was not the condition in this case.

As there was thus no reason to use thyroid extract, the patient was given the new weight reducing drug dinitrophenol and in a period of ten weeks he lost 30 pounds. Naturally he was pleased with this satisfactory loss of weight but at this time proven cases of cataract due to the use of dinitrophenol were being reported in the medical journals. It was estimated that 1 in 1,000, perhaps even 1 in 100 users of this drug to reduce weight were being afflicted with cataract. The physician promptly stopped using the drug.

The physician then used thyroid extract but it had little or no effect upon the excess weight and caused the heart, already a fast heart, to beat much faster.

The physician then discussed the case with an authority on weight reducing, giving him a full history of the case to date. This authority made two suggestions. The first suggestion was that the use of anterior pituitary extract might be helpful, which would depend of course on whether the individual was or was not the pituitary type of overweight. When the pituitary gland, lying on the floor of the skull, is not sending enough juice into the blood, not only are the starch foods not used or burned completely but the fat that accumulates is not spread equally over the whole body as when the proper amount of thyroid juice is lacking.

Put Him in Hospital. The second suggestion was that the physician should place this overweight in a hospital; that is, treat him as a patient. For, after all, he really was a patient—fast heart, high blood pressure and excessive overweight, easily tired and got out of breath on slight exertion.

As treatment by dinitrophenol might lead to serious results, even death, and thyroid extract had no effect except to increase the rate of his heart beat and increase his blood pressure, the only treatment that remained was to cut down on his food intake.

A useful procedure in such cases, when the patient is able to afford it (and can withdraw himself from home, business and social life, is to administer the prescribed diet under supervision in a hospital for a week or two.

I believe the suggestions for treatment of the above case will appeal to our common sense. Excess weight can be due to only one cause—the eating of too much food for the requirements of the body.

Starch Foods for Diabetics. Before the discovery of insulin, the lives of diabetics were prolonged by feeding them just enough starch foods—sugar, bread, potatoes—to maintain life. They were thus very weak.

When insulin was discovered by Dr. Fred Banting it was found that diabetics could eat more starch foods as the insulin enabled the blood to carry and use the starch foods for the work of the body instead of having it thrown out of the body in the urine.

Now insulin is expensive, and must be administered by the hypodermic needle which, of course, the patient learns to do for himself. Therefore research men have been trying to increase the amount of starch food the patient's body can use so that less insulin will be necessary.

Dr. J. M. Rabinowitch, Montreal, in the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association records his experiences in lessening the total amount of food eaten but giving a large percentage of starch foods so as to enable the blood to hold and use more of these starch foods.

There were 50 cases and the patients followed the treatment carefully for five years. The records show that this diet leads, in the majority of cases, to marked improvement in the amount of starch foods which the body is enabled to use. Further, the daily doses of insulin finally needed in these cases were found to be less than with all other diets that have been used heretofore in the treatment of advanced cases of diabetes. In 12 cases the patients were able to do without the insulin entirely.

Glazing Liquid for Cookies—A mixture of two tablespoons of sugar syrup and one-fourth cup of milk makes a good glazing liquid for cookies. Apply on the surface of the dough with a pastry brush before baking the cookies.

Season Lightly—Be careful when doubling a recipe not to double the seasoning. Use it sparingly at first, then add more if needed.

Unwrap Food—Food should not be stored in the refrigerator while wrapped in paper because the paper prevents the cold air from circulating freely over it.

Shaping Knitting Needle—Before using a circular knitting needle, immerse it in hot water for a few minutes to make it pliable. Before it cools, and hardens, hold it in knitting position, and make any desired adjustments such as straightening the ends. This dispenses with a long breaking-in period.

Hole in Tablecloth—If a small hole is burnt or worn in an otherwise good white tablecloth, it can be "mended" most effectively by stitching a motif in fine crochet over it and cutting away the spoiled fabric underneath. Add one or two more motifs so that the necessary one does not look odd. This is certainly more decorative than an obvious darn!

Keeps Cauliflower White—A tablespoon of sugar in the water in which cauliflower is cooked will keep it white.

To Keep Frosting From Running—A half teaspoonful of baking soda added to boiling frosting will keep it from running.

Eggs in Potatoes—Bake potatoes. Cut off tops, scoop out centers and season with butter, salt and a little pepper, mashing thoroughly. Half fill shells with potato mixture and drop a raw egg, salt, pepper, a little grated cheese and one teaspoon butter in each. Put back in hot oven for four minutes to set egg.

Rhubarb and Figs—To one pound rhubarb, after peeling and cutting, add half pound good figs, cut into smallish pieces. Place in a saucepan with a very little water and about a dessertspoon golden syrup or sugar and gently stew till tender. Serve with a rice or sago mold or hot milk pudding.

Eliminating Food Odors—A small quantity of charcoal in a container on the top shelf will help eliminate food odors from the refrigerator. WNU Service.

Messages by Kite The Chinese are much given to the pastime of kite flying and some of the constructions are marvelous to behold. The Chinese kites often have two strings and these enable the operator to make the kite do some wonderful things. It becomes an aerial messenger, as it is possible to make the kite form letters and characters by which messages may be exchanged.

Conoco Dealers Here Expect Profit From Big Tourist Season

Local merchants, and particularly the Conoco dealers, are looking forward to substantial profits this summer, as a result of the largest tourist season in history, according to H. G. Maxey, manager here for the Conoco Travel Bureau for Continental Oil Company.

"Early summer requests received touring information indicates that 1937 will surpass even last year's travel business," he said. "Naturally all merchants will profit, but the Conoco dealers have an additional reason for optimism.

"Under Continental's new policy all of its products are sold through independent dealers—which means that every Conoco dealer either owns or leases his station, is in business for himself. He doesn't work for a weekly or monthly pay envelope; so naturally he gets out and hustles for that extra profit. And when he gets that profit, it stays in town, as he spends his money with the local merchants.

"Furthermore, Continental Oil Company is giving its dealers some fine cooperation. They are taking newspaper space to advertise the dealer's station as well as their own products. In this advertising Conoco dealers are known as 'mileage merchants' and, actually that's just what they are."

THE EDITOR GETS EVEN

An editor and a merchant were discussing the virtues of billboard and newspaper advertising. The merchant maintained that more people read billboards than newspapers.

A week later the merchant came tearing into the newspaper office to learn why his wife's mother's obituary had not appeared in the paper, especially after he wrote it out and brought it in himself.

"I knew you wanted it read by the people," said the editor, "so I took it out and nailed it to one of your billboards."—Sedan (Kans.) Journal.

Eskimos Know Their Ice

Primitive Eskimos have long known ice forms a barrier through which no wind can penetrate. That's why they live in igloos, or ice houses, states a writer in the Washington Post. Such a dwelling is built of solid blocks of snow, plastered together with soft snow. Water is then poured over the completed hut and freezes immediately. When summer comes, the house melts and the Eskimo again takes to his skin tent. In constructing his igloo, the canny Eskimo avoids a pitfall of many Arctic explorers. Knowing the house will be heated by an open fire, the builder leaves a hole in the roof so smoke and deadly carbon monoxide fumes can escape.

Baby Kangaroo Very Small

The young of the kangaroo at birth is smaller in proportion to the size of the parents than the young of any other animal. Some of the larger species of kangaroo stand about eight feet in height and have a head as large as that of a sheep. The young at birth are about an inch in length and weigh only about twenty grains, which is 1/300 of a pound. By means of their perfectly formed front legs the young propel themselves to the pouch on the mother's abdomen, where they are nourished and sheltered for several months.

The Birth of Our Constitution

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
 National Chairman
 Sentinels of the Republic

America at this time begins a significant celebration—significant not only to her own people, but to all the world.

It is the 150th anniversary of the Federal Convention of 1787, which planned and wrote our Constitution.

From late in May until mid-September of that historic year, delegates from 12 of the original states met regularly in Philadelphia's famed Independence Hall to produce an historic document now known and honored wherever democracy lives.

What the men who wrote our great Constitution, and later its Bill of Rights, achieved, was important not alone to their own troubled period of history. It is profoundly important today.

By placing the power of government firmly and permanently in the hands of the people; by assuring political and religious freedom to all citizens, they established a form of government which still stands as a model.

In many other lands, kingdoms and empires have fallen. In certain other lands, Communism and Dictatorship—the twin foes of democracy—work their harsh tyrannies. But for generation after generation, under the safeguard of our Constitution, America has grown in size, in prestige and in strength, and has offered its people standards of liberty, security and well-being equalled by no other nation on earth.

That safeguard must be preserved. The nation-wide observance which extends through the summer should be more than a formal ceremony. It should be a national dedication to the principles of liberty immortalized by the Founders in the historic Charter that has borne America to greatness.

James Minor, who has been a student in Howard Payne College the past year and who was severely injured several weeks ago when struck by an automobile, was brought home Thursday. His skull was fractured in the accident and he has been in the hospital in Brownwood since. His many friends here hope that he may continue to improve until a complete recovery is effected.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Tetteller of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Veteto of Abilene left here Saturday for a few days visit with two sisters of Mmes. Tetteller and Veteto residing in Los Angeles, California. All these ladies are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Simmons of the Jones Dry Goods Company here.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire to acknowledge with sincere thanks, each one who so thoughtfully remembered me with flowers, cards, and words of encouragement during my illness. Your little deeds of kindness have made it lots easier for me and I shall always remember and love you for them.—Mrs. W. M. Harris.

Joe Gill, who has been a student in Howard Payne College at Brownwood the past session, returned to his home here Wednesday. He will be employed at the Texas Service Station this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bacon and children, Joe D., Billie Jean, and Dan, of Skidmore, Bee county, are here visiting C. W. Conway and family. Mrs. Bacon and Mrs. Conway are sisters.
