"I wholly disapprove of what you say but will defend to the death your right to say it."—Voltaire.

Volume XXXIII

Tahoka, Lynn County, Texas, Friday, June 18, 1937.

Number 44

Pioneers Making Reunion Plans For June 24

Parade, And Public Program Of Fiddlers, Jiggers, And Liars Contests Are Added

Pioneers of Lynn county will hold their annual meeting in Tahoka at the gymnasium of the new school building Thursday, June 24.

The Lynn County Pioneer Association will open its meeting at 10:30 a. m. for business meeting, election of officers for the ensuing year, and other matters proper to come before the Association.

An address will be given by the Hon. Tom Garrard, after which the oldtimers will be at liberty for hand shaking and talking of the by-gone days until dinner is announced.

All citizens who resided in Lynn county thirty years ago or more, together with their children and grandchildren are eligible to membership in the Association, and are urged to attend and renew old acquaintances and friendships and eat a good old fashioned picnic and barbecue dinner.

The women of the Association are requested to furnish cakes and pies as they did in olden days.

At 2 p. m. there will be a parade through the business district of Tahoka. Immediately following the parade a program will be rendered in the gymnasium. The program is sponsored by the Association and arranged by two of the pioneer daughters, Miss Obara Forrester and Mrs. M. H. Edwards.

To the afternoon program, all friends of the Association and the public in general are invited to attend.

The program will consist of contests, namely, Liars, Jiggers, and Fiddlers. All contests will be confined to members of the Association. Old time songs will be rendered by a quartette.

A pageant will be staged featuring the customs from 1876 to 1937, inclusive.

There will be a booth of relics. Please leave all relics with Collier Drug Store or Mr. C. H. Doak of O'Donnell.

A square dance will be held at the American Legion Hall, the time to be announced at close of the program.

Wade Howell Goes To Washington

Wade Howell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Belton Howell, will leave Sunday for the Boy Scout camp near Post for a three day stay, at the end of which he will leave with another Boy Scouts of this section for the big Boy Scout Jamboree in Washington.

Wade will be the only representative of Lynn county at the big meet in the capital city, though more than sixty boys from the South Plains Area Council will be there. Many hundreds of Texas boys will be there and several thousand from the entire country.

The boys will be accompanied by many scout executives and leaders and will be carefully looked after. In Washington, they will not only have many inspiring scout meetings but they will be given an opportunity to see all the interesting points in the city.

From Washington, they will go over to New York, thence across the state to Niagara Falls, over into Canada on their way to Chicago, and from Chicago via Kansas City and Amarillo back home. Their trip to Washington will take them through St. Louis.

The trip for Wade is being sponsored in part by the Rotary Club of this city.

Oldtimers Put To Bed By The Mumps

The mumps seem to be no respecter of persons. Some of our oldest citizens in point of residence here have recently fallen victims to this old-fashioned disease.

H. M. Larkin is in bed with a swollen jaw this week. S. H. Howell was recently confined to his bed with both jaws swollen.

Many of our citizens, aged and otherwise, have recently had unpleasant experiences with mumps.

New Heads Of Rotary International ...

Maurice Duperrey

Will R. Manier, Jr.

Maurice Duperrey, Paris, France, (above) and Will R. Manier, Jr., Nashville, Tenn., (below), are president and past president of Rotary International which closed its 28th annual convention at Nice, France, last Friday. 7,500 Rotarians from sixty countries attended the convention.

Hospital Prospect For Tahoka

For several weeks negotiations have been pending for the establishment of a hospital here.

Local physicians have been giving the matter consideration but the project has not yet advanced to the point where anything definite can be said concerning the matter.

Many people here believe that a good local hospital would mean a great saving for the people of Tahoka and surrounding territory.

Will Begin Work On Sinclair Building

Winter Knight has been furnished the blue print of the new service station to be erected on the Oscar Roberts corner, site of the old St. Clair Hotel, and says that it is possible that work on the structure will begin next week.

A photograph of a replica of the building shows it to be an elegant structure. Its dimensions are to be 60 by 100 feet, 60 feet fronting on highway No. 9 and 100 feet on highway No. 84.

Jess Lockhart will be in charge of the new station.

H. B. McCord has leased the building now occupied by Mr. Lockhart diagonally across the street and will install a Phillips 66 service station there.

Snowdens On Visit To Mississippi

H. M. Snowden and family left Thursday morning for a three weeks visit with relatives at Union, Meridian, Hickory, Wacatur and other points in the old state of Mississippi.

Mr. Snowden and some of the children are natives of that state but they have not been back there in several years. They have relatives in all these places and they are anticipating a wonderful visit.

The News will go to their address during their visit.

Harris Is Starting Construction On Funeral Home

Building Will Be 50x90 Feet In Size; New Ambulance Also Bought By Harris

W. M. Harris is constantly collecting and preparing material to go into the construction of the new funeral home to be erected on the block immediately south of the present home, and he hopes to be able to begin work on the foundation next week.

It will probably require several months for him to complete the building, however. When completed it will be one of the most convenient and attractive funeral homes on the South Plains.

The dimensions of the building will be 50 by 90 feet, with a ten-foot porch across the entire front.

The chapel proper will be 18 by 36 feet, with French doors and open passageways into the spacious hall permitting its enlargement on occasions when needed to practically twice that size. Adjacent to the auditorium will be the family room and the music room.

Other rooms in the building will be a storage room, a preparation room, display rooms, a bed room, and other necessary small rooms, together with the garage.

The structure will be built of solid cement blocks with black mortar between and will be covered with a red tile roof. It will face the east, sitting back ten feet from the

Bank Night Prize Is Discontinued

On Wednesday night of last week immediately following the decision of the court of criminal appeals at Austin, D. B. English, proprietor of the English and Ada Theatres here, announced to his audiences that he would immediately discontinue bank nights, stating that it was not his desire to violate the law in any way. His remarks were greeted with applause by the audience.

In conversation with a representative of the News this week, Mr. English called attention to the fact that he was one of the last show men in this part of the state to adopt the bank night practice, being compelled to do so by competition, and that he was the first one last week to discontinue the practice.

His course in this matter doubtless meets with the entire approbation of the great body of our citizenship. Mr. English further states that the installation of washed air cooling systems in both of the theatres here has been completed, and patrons of either of these theatres may find them to be delightfully pleasant regardless of the temperature outside.

M. L. Penns Move To Post City

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Penn removed Tuesday to Post, where Mr. Penn will serve as principal of the Post High School during the next session.

Tahoka suffers a distinct loss in the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Penn. He has not only done a splendid work as principal of the high school here but he has made his life count in other worth-while fields of activity. As a friend of boys and as a Boy Scout leader, he has helped to direct many of our boys along right paths. Since his organization he has been president of the Tahoka Rotary Club and has taken an active interest in other civic affairs. Mrs. Penn has been active in church work and in civic enterprises and she will be greatly missed here. Post gains much by the acquisition of Mr. and Mrs. Penn as citizens of their town.

Mrs. Travis Davis, who was reported to be seriously ill last week, is now well on the way to recovery. The News is informed. Many friends hope she will soon be completely recovered.

Blocking Leases For Test Well Near Draw

Contract Already Let, Provided Lease-Block Is Completed; Terry Test Starts

Prospects are good for another oil test to be made in Lynn county at an early date.

Leases are being procured in the vicinity of Draw in the southeastern portion of the county on which an oil test is to be made as soon as sufficient acreage can be blocked up. A contract for the drilling of a well has already been let, the contractor being C. O. (Ted) Collins of Fort Worth.

This is a project on which the persistent, untiring oil scout, J. B. Nance, has been working for several weeks. He is being assisted in the procuring of the leases by H. W. Calaway of Draw. Mr. Calaway states that most of the resident land owners have already signed lease contracts, but very few of the non-residents have been interviewed yet.

Of course the drilling of a well depends on whether or not a solid block of leases covering sufficient acreage can be procured. One stubborn land owner by refusing to sign a lease may block the whole project. It is hoped, however, that all the land owners will sign readily.

It is expected that drilling will begin on a well on Section 28, Block A-1, situated about eight miles almost due west of Three Lakes about a mile over the line in Terry county, some time next week.

C. E. Short Home Burned Monday

The handsome farm home of C. E. Short about a half mile east of Grassland, was practically destroyed by fire Monday afternoon.

The fire started while Mr. Short was in the field and Mrs. Short was away from home. An oil-burning refrigerator is blamed as the cause of the fire.

The refrigerator and an expensive dining room suite were totally destroyed. Most of the other furniture was saved.

Neighbors seeing the fire gathered in great numbers and fought the flames with buckets of water, and they actually succeeded in bringing the fire under control before the building was totally destroyed.

Mr. Short began repairs almost immediately and a new roof has already been placed on the building. Much interior work is yet to be done, the greatest damage having been done in the interior of the building.

The loss was only partially covered by insurance.

935 Farmers Sign For Electric Lights

A rural electrification project for this county seems assured, if such an enterprise is to be assured by the number of subscribers.

County Agent V. F. Jones took his list to Lubbock and turned it over to H. N. Roberts, electrical engineer. Wednesday afternoon. The list bore the names of 935 subscribers.

"Those who have not signed up as subscribers may do so yet," Mr. Jones stated to the News, "and the list of such subscribers will be sent in as a supplementary project. All lists must be in Washington on or before July 1.

Mr. Jones and Mr. Roberts are hopeful of securing approval for approximately 200 miles of rural electric lines in this county.

LOCKWOODS RETURN

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Lockwood returned Friday from a month's visit with Mrs. Lockwood's sister and her husband in Washington. They also visited in Richmond, Indiana, on the return trip. Mr. Lockwood said he took a meal on Congressman George Mahon while in Washington, met some of the notables there, and had everything running smoothly when he left.

Evolution of a Smile

These camera studies might be termed the evolution of a smile. The beautiful girl is Miss Grey Downs of Temple, who is Texas Sweetheart No. 1 and will be featured all summer in Billy Rose's Casa Manana Revue at the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta.

Court Will Secure 84 Right-Of-Way

The commissioners court met Monday and promptly passed an order giving assurance to the state highway commission that right-of-way 100 feet wide will be procured for highway No. 84 east of Tahoka. It is believed that surveying will begin at no distant date.

Mother Of Mrs. John Stokes Is Dead

Mrs. Gladys Stokes received a telegram from Mrs. John Stokes Tuesday morning advising of the death of the latter's mother, Mrs. J. C. Allcorn, at Bangs, Brown county, at 10 o'clock Monday night. Burial was at Bangs Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Allcorn was 84 years of age and had been in failing health for several years. Mrs. Stokes has been at Bangs caring for her the past three or four years.

New Gas Company Manager Is Here

C. M. Walden and family arrived from Quitaque Wednesday night, Mr. Walden succeeding Roy Leslie as local manager for the West Texas Gas Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie left for Quitaque Wednesday morning, where Mr. Leslie will serve as manager for the gas company in that territory.

Mr. Walden's family consists of a wife, a son, Charles, and a daughter, Miss Laruth. They come recommended as a fine family and we are sure they will be cordially welcomed to Tahoka.

GHEAT SANDERFORD HERE

Ghent Sanderford of Austin, president of the State Board of Education, was here last Friday afternoon interviewing Hon. Tom Garrard, vice president. Ghent and the editor are friends of long standing, and he dropped around to the News office for a friendly chat, but we happened to be out. Ghent is one of the many capable Bell county men who hold prominent positions in Austin.

Rain, Hail, Wind Damage Crops In County

Farmers Must Replant In Some Sections. Small Twister Hits East Of Tahoka

Rain, wind, and hail storms visited most of the Plains Monday afternoon and night, although the hail was confined to comparatively small areas.

The rainfall in Lynn county was not heavy except in two or three small localities. Only .47 of an inch fell in Tahoka. Many places in the county received not more than a quarter inch, and some localities none at all. Heavy rainfalls were reported from a portion of the South Ward and Edith communities, from Draw, and New Lynn. Practically no rain fell at O'Donnell.

Hail which destroyed or greatly damaged crops fell over a territory embracing several sections of land at Grassland. Another hail district embraces several farms lying east of New Lynn, some crops being totally destroyed. The Jack Edwards and Burton Edwards crops southwest of Tahoka and some others in the Three Lakes and Wells communities were also destroyed. Many farmers in the county are this week replanting their cotton crops, some for the third and fourth times.

On Saturday morning, a rather ominous twister swept over a path two or three miles long out in the Edith community. A big feed bin belonging to H. O. Hargett was demolished. A shed on the D. A. Parkhurst farm was picked up and turned over as if it had been a basket of chips. The place is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Jenkins, and Mrs. Jenkins had just come out of the shed a few moments before the twister struck. Tom Dikes was plowing near the path of the little tornado. His team became frightened and unmanageable but no serious damage was done, except to the crop. A narrow strip of cotton in the path of the storm was destroyed.

In spite of excessive rainfall and hail storms, Lynn county yet has a good chance to make a bumper cotton crop. Most of the cotton is late and some of it yet very weedy, but a few days sunshine will enable farmers to finish working it out and will bring up the recently planted crop. Feed generally is fine.

Tahoka Ball Team Is Reorganized

Tahoka's baseball team has been resurrected and reorganized with Frank Larkin as captain.

The first game of the season will be played with Hobbs in that city Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Larkin was unable to give us the exact line-up of the team, as this had not been completed.

Volunteer Wheat Turns Out Well

Claude Thomas is just now harvesting a good wheat crop from a field which he expected to harvest a crop from a year ago.

He planted the wheat in the fall of 1935. But a dry winter and spring caused the crop to be a failure. He did not even harvest the crop. But last fall he turned the scattering grain under. It sprouted and came up and thrived through the winter and this spring. This week he began harvesting the 250-acre crop with a combine which he had purchased, and the crop is yielding more than 15 bushels per acre.

Since this county is not situated in the wheat belt proper, this is probably the largest field of wheat in the county.

LAMESA COUPLE WEDS

J. W. Meador and Miss Dorothy Smith of Lamesa were married here Monday by Judge W. S. Swan, Justice of the Peace, and left soon thereafter for San Antonio.

Mr. Meador is a brother of Mrs. W. S. (Skip) Taylor of this city. The bride was reared in Lamesa.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Haney of Roscoe were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Haney. The two gentlemen are brothers.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Refusal of Postal Employees to Deliver Mail to Stricken Plants Stirs Row—Labor Flare-Ups Continue—Britain Blames Franco for Naval Blast.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union

AS a senate committee pondered the advisability of an investigation into the attitude of the post office department with respect to deliveries of mail to strike-crippled industrial plants, new incidents among employers, loyal employees and strikers flared up on half a dozen fronts.

When John L. Lewis gave the order throwing 70,000 men out of work in the plants of Republic Steel, Inland Steel and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, hard-boiled Tom Girdler, president of the American Steel and Iron institute and chairman of the board of the Republic Steel corporation, kept loyal workers housed in the Republic plants in Ohio and Illinois, so that despite the strike Republic was still turning out steel.

In Warren and Niles, Ohio, postal authorities refused to deliver parcel post packages containing food and clothing to workers inside the plants. This action brought from Republic a protest to Postmaster General Farley, requesting that he issue orders to postmasters to see that all legally presented and post paid mail be delivered regardless of picket lines.

"Unless you see fit to comply with this request, which we believe to be entirely within our legal rights," the message said, "we shall feel compelled to take such legal steps as may be available to us in the premises."

Capitalizing on the action of local postmasters, Ohio pickets issued a printed ultimatum to loyal steel employees. "Four departments of the United States government are fighting on our side," it said, and added: "Extra precautions will be taken throughout the next 12 hours to guarantee your safety in leaving the plant. After that time your safety will be your own responsibility."

The four departments of the government believed to have been referred to are the post office, labor department, labor relations board and interstate commerce commission.

It was Sen. E. Styles Bridges (Rep., N. H.) who presented the case for an investigation to the senate committee on post offices. He was reported to have enlisted the support of Democratic Sen. Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina.

REPUBLIC'S plants continued to be besieged by excitement. At Youngstown there was a pitched battle between pickets and police after a company truck carrying food for the employees in the plant had successfully run through the picket lines, accompanied by a column of police. As shots were exchanged one man was wounded. A dozen others received cracked skulls. Fifty strikers, many of them suffering from tear gas, were taken to jail.

In Chicago State's Attorney Courtney continued investigations of the recent riot in which C. I. O. strikers attacked police at the Republic Steel plant in South Chicago, resulting in seven deaths. Here, also, the company was housing loyal employees who remained at their work in its plant. Mayor Kelly ordered them removed on the grounds that such housing violated the city sanitation code. Republic countered by having Pullman cars moved into its plant yards and housing the employees in them. The mayor admitted he couldn't see anything wrong in that.

FOUR hundred C. I. O. power company strikers taught the 400,000 inhabitants of the Saginaw valley in Michigan what it is like to feel the power of organized labor when they shut down at their jobs for 15 hours. Electricity was shut off from 200 communities, hospitals as well as factories were without current before an agreement was reached and the strikers went back to work. It was a day's pay lost for 100,000 workers whose employers' plants depended on "juice" for life. General Motors employees alone lost $454,000.

Mayor Daniel A. Knapp of Monroe, Mich., called for 100 war veterans as volunteer police to aid his force of 20 in preserving the peace as 700 strikers at the Norton Steel company returned to work. The C. I. O. had threatened to send 1,000 to 10,000 members from Detroit to enforce the employer's demands.

In Detroit, the Ford Brotherhood of America, Inc., was organized with 2 separated 7,000 members signed in two days, as an answer to attempts of C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers' Union to unionize Ford. Byrd W. Scott, a Ford machinist, for 20 years, explained: "The F. B. A. was started by myself, John B. McDowell, Benjamin Love and a number of Ford employees who have worked for the company from ten to twenty years. The organization was formed because we wanted an independent labor organization, not one affiliated with any national union."

READING the election returns of an overwhelming Democratic landslide last November, Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic national committee, said: "We will regret this." The great party majorities in both houses now show signs of splitting into regional and economic blocs, which is exactly what he was afraid of. Biggest wedge in forcing the split among the party ranks was, of course, the President's bill for the reorganization of the Supreme court. This led a long list of bills, many of them expected to evoke heated controversies in congress, which threatened to postpone adjournment to mid-winter. Indeed, it was believed by some that if part of the program were not postponed, this session would run continuously into the next, beginning in January.

Besides the Court bill, there are to be acted upon measures for the establishment of wage and hour standards for interstate industries, the curtailment of tax dodging, reorganization of the executive branch of the government, helping farm tenants, conservation of soil, water power resources and housing.

"IS THE Democratic party going Fascist?" asked Samuel B. Pennington, (Dem., Ind.) on the floor of the house, in upbraiding Gov. Frank B. Murphy of Michigan for his sponsorship of a law in that state which would authorize him to take over industrial plants and operate them when they have been closed by labor troubles.

"Let the historian note that this is the way Fascism made its start in Italy," he said. "If the state takes over the factories, who will fix wages then, who will fix hours then?" After the state takes over a factory, will it permit its workers to strike? The state then has the opportunity of operating the plant at a profit, without turning up a deficit for the taxpayers to absorb. Will the state then permit an interruption of operations?"

AS THE American Federation of Labor began its "purge" to eliminate member locals suspected of dealings with the C. I. O. from its membership, John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization showed signs of retaliation other than snorts of disgust and derisive laughter.

The Chicago Federation of Labor began it when, acting on the suggestion of President William Green, it ousted 27 local unions, comprising 20,000 to 30,000 members, charging that they had been active in behalf of C. I. O. A day or so later Lewis admitted in Washington that his organization may enter the field of civil service. The move, which had been discussed by Lewis and his associates for several weeks, would be a direct opposition of two established A. F. of L. unions.

IN a scorching protest to Gen. Francisco Franco, Great Britain blamed the rebel regime for the death of eight and the wounds of 26 sailors when the destroyer Blücher ran into a mine off Almeria, Southern Spain, May 11. The protest called the affair an accident, but reserved the right to claim damages of $100,000.

Meanwhile rains were bogging down the rebel's northern offensive against Bilbao, but the Fascists launched a violent new offensive in the Puzosillanca sector about midway between Toledo and Seville in southern Spain, aiming for the rich mercury mines near Almaden.

ASTRONOMERS were treated to the feast of a lifetime in the South Seas as they were permitted by almost perfect weather conditions to photograph the largest total eclipse of the sun in 1,200 years. On Canton Island the United States Navy and the National Geographic society, with eleven tons of equipment, took unusual pictures and radioed a description of the magnificent scene to millions of listeners back in the states. The scholars of the American Museum of Natural History viewed the eclipse from an airplane 25,000 feet above Lima, Peru. Other scientists made observations from ships in the Pacific. The time of the total eclipse at the various place of observation ranged from three and one-half minutes to seven minutes. It was a short show for which to travel thousands of miles with costly, cumbersome equipment, but, measured by scientific standards, it was worth the cost and the trouble.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field

Washington.—The good old days of 1929 are not coming back—are not on cruise—are not even desired by the New Deal. This has been said by President Roosevelt many times, but its present importance lies in some figures recently submitted to a group of economists by Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution.

Dr. Moulton made some very interesting comparisons with 1929 employment and production figures. Some construed the chief thought to be that the country has not arrived yet at a situation where enough of everything for everybody can be produced by people working only forty hours a week.

But more significant, in the view of some of the New Dealers who have been studying his attitude, is that the doctor made a liberal estimate about the number of men who could be employed—in addition to those working at present—in what are classed as the durable goods industries—primarily industries which produce machinery and other things which are not used up, but generally add to the country's productive capacity. As for example, a new blast furnace, a new newspaper press, new casting or textile machinery—in fact, machinery of any sort.

Dr. Moulton estimated that more than eight million more men would be employed in the durable goods industry if 1929 conditions were to be equalled. This does not mean that precisely that number less are employed now in the durable goods industries than were in 1929. Allowances are made for increase in population and other factors.

But the chief point here made by the New Deal economists is this huge number of persons employed in the durable goods industries was one of the really vital things wrong with the then situation—one of the important factors which resulted in the collapse—one of the contributing causes to the situation which the New Deal is seeking to correct.

Logic Is Simple

President Roosevelt does not believe such a large proportion of the country's labor should be used in the durable goods industries as was employed in 1929. His logic is simple though not very widely understood.

His point is that too much of the earnings of the big corporations in the good years preceding the crash was plowed back into the business. Too many units in the various industries, he points out in conversations, decided that business was good, they could sell more goods than they could make—as they built an additional plant.

The result was that instead of these earnings being distributed, whether to labor, to stockholders, or by reduced prices, into creating a larger purchasing power which would absorb more goods, they were frozen into plants for the products of which the day came when there was no market.

Immediately the situation spread, lack of confidence was inspired, people began to save and hoard money, and the factories stood, as he likes to say, "stark and idle."

So the New Deal economists would dread the day when Dr. Moulton's estimate of how many more men could be employed in the durable goods industries might be realized in actual employment. They would figure another 1929 crash would follow very speedily.

Popularity Declines

Probably the decline of President Roosevelt's popularity is much more real—certainly it is much more obvious—on Capitol Hill than it is out in the country. Senators and representatives in private conversations admit that they believe the President has lost only a fraction of his following in the country.

Proof of that pudding will not be evident until there are some significant primaries, in which some anti-New Deal Democrat puts up a real battle.

But in Capitol Hill there are a surprising number of Democrats who seem anxious that the President's feet should slip a little. It is one of the reasons why the fight against enlargement of the Supreme court has become so important—and so bitter.

Most of the insurgents do not explain why they are insuring—they claim that in each particular case, be it the court, or the reorganization, or federal economy, or the PWA, or what not, much to their regret they have been forced to oppose the President.

It is perfectly true that they, in most instances at least, are really opposed to the President on these issues. But there is an underlying motive which has not come out in the open.

This is a burning desire that when the Democratic national convention meets three years hence, it will be dominated by what they like to call "Regular Democrats," and it will positively and adamantly

New Dealer to succeed Mr. Roosevelt. Third Term Up Again

They are assuming—and it seems to many observers to be a violent assumption—that the President will not seek a third term. Strangely enough their very course of action, if sufficiently successful, may force the President to take another nomination. It may turn out, if what he will regard as the reactionaries in the Democratic party are apparently in control and purpose to name some man he will not believe will carry out his policies, that Mr. Roosevelt will conceive it his patriotic duty to run for a third term.

This possibility, however, does not seem to enter at all into the logic of the insuring Democrats. They are frankly hostile to the nomination of any of the men who they feel sure would win Roosevelt's approval. It is not so much Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace or any other of the half dozen New Dealers who have frequently been mentioned for the White House in the recent past.

Being politicians themselves, the senators and representatives who hope to regain control of their party at the next convention and put a man more satisfactory to them in the White House, realize that anything may happen in the three long years to come to trip any particular candidate. So it is not individuals they are planning to beat—it is really, in essence, the New Deal itself.

It is not so much that they want to make any move that Mr. Roosevelt would regard as a backward step. But they just do not seem to go any further forward. They think they have gone plenty far already in revamping the country's economic structure. They want a "breathing spell."

The same logic spells plenty of trouble for Mr. Roosevelt next session unless there should be some convincing demonstration that the country is behind the President, and the insurgents.

Labor Bill Hits Snag

The whole trouble about the maximum hours and minimum wages bill, so far as getting it through congress is concerned, lies in that differential between wages in the North and wages in the South.

In one way or another the government has always avoided making any move, which would interfere with the generally accepted idea that the wage scale in the South should not be as high as it is in the North.

The South has drawn many industries from the North as a result of this differential, plus certain other advantages, such as smaller cost for heating plants due to warmer climate, etc. It has been justified by the slightly lower cost of living in the South for the workers. For instance, many southern mills, located in small communities, are worked by people who live on tiny farms, which, through the labor of their wives and children—their own when unemployed—provide them with vegetables, chickens and sometimes even a little pork.

The movement of the textile industry to the South is a good illustration.

But naturally the employers of the North, and the labor union leaders, and those who agree with President Roosevelt and John L. Lewis about building up buying power among the classes of labor now unable to buy luxuries, dissent violently.

It so happens that Chairman William F. Connery, of the house labor committee, comes from Massachusetts, which has been hard hit for many years by this idea of a wage differential in favor of the South. Naturally he is vigorously against making any exceptions which would discriminate against New England in the new wages and hours bill he has introduced at the President's request.

But just as naturally southern senators and representatives are not anxious to see anything done by the federal government, that would have the effect of removing this differential, which for some years now has been building up southern industry.

Question of Politics

At the same time the southern senators and representatives are politicians, and the workers have more votes than the employers—or even the chambers of commerce. And it might be assumed that the local stockholders would be in sympathy with the workers. So it is just possible there may be more votes in eliminating the differential than in keeping it—even for the southerners.

That is just speculation, of course, for there is no indication yet that it is working in that direction. The indications are that the southern legislators regard the differential as an advantage, and will fight to keep it.

All of which points to labor troubles in the South sooner or later, for John L. Lewis is very set on the idea of building up buying power, and not purely from an altruistic standpoint at all. The C. I. O. has two objections to groups of underpaid labor. One is that they are probably competing with labor the wages and hours of which the union is trying to improve. The other is that it wants more people buying automobiles, electric refrigerators, radios, etc., which are produced by comparatively well paid labor. The more buying the more jobs, the more jobs the more union dues.

So the more union dues, the more jobs, the more union dues, and it will positively and adamantly

WITH BANNERS

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwittingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, a nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure on the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "dust-in," hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark disposes that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city. Jed and Mark are astounded when they hear from Mrs. Gregory, a family friend, that she had witnessed the death of Mrs. Dane. Henri and Clotilde two weeks before Mrs. Dane died. Brooke had arrived just as she was leaving.

"Destroyed it? But how could Brooke Reyburn have known what was in the first will? Perhaps your aunt had told her that she was to be residuary legatee—it doesn't seem probable, but women do fool things." He grinned. "Of course men never do. We've got to get busy. If it isn't destroyed, that will may be at Lookout House; you've never liked the Jacques and you say that they hate you. I have an idea. Open your house. Live there. Get friendly with the girl."

"I would feel like a sneak to go there to spy on her."

"You suspect that she may have influenced your aunt to make a will in her favor, don't you?"

"I do."

"Then give her a chance to prove that she didn't. Take a couple of Japs and go down and live next door."

"I won't commit myself to that proposition in a hurry. If I decide to do it, will you come with me?"

"Sure, I've been hoping you'd ask me. Philo Vance is my middle name." Stewart picked up the note lying on the desk. "You'd better open the investigation by accepting this."

"The Reyburn girl's invitation to dine on Thanksgiving day? I would feel like a spy, a traitor. The turkey would choke me."

"Do you want the truth about this will?"

"You bet I do."

"Then go. Don't write. We never send a letter when we can send a man. Phone the night before that you are coming. She'll have less time in which to think why you are accepting."

Brooke Reyburn stood in the doorway of the living-room at Lookout House. Behind her in the hall a graceful circular stairway wound up and up. She nodded approval. The room was the perfect setting she had visualized for the duchess of Argyle since the day she had known that her father had willed her the portrait. The green of the walls and trim repeated the color of the satin gown of the woman in the dull gold frame which hung above the mantel of carved black Italian marble, repeated also the shade of the feathers of the dozing parrot in a gilded cage, threw into relief dark polished surfaces of mahogany.

She had had everything that she thought belonged to his family stored in the apartment over the garage. Curious that she had found so little silver.

She looked at the door which Mary Amanda Dane had told her opened into the twin house. Something uncanny about it. Whenever she was in the room it drew her eyes like a magnet. Mark Trent's house was on the other side. It had not been lived in for years. What a waste. Had his wife refused to live there? His wife? She couldn't think of him as having had a wife. Why think of him at all?

She resolutely switched her thoughts to her surroundings. This was the same room in which she had first seen Mrs. Dane in her wheel chair, but how different. Then it had been drab and heavy; now it glowed with soft color. She would never forget the pathos in the woman's eyes as they had met hers, nor the eagerness of her greeting. She had registered a passionate vow to make her lovely and attractive in appropriate clothes. That had been her job—then—and a thrilling job, too, to help women make the most of their good points.

How Mary Amanda Dane had fooled her about money. The crippled woman had kept her feet firmly on the ground when it came to spending. Planning inexpensive, attractive clothes for her had been an exciting challenge. She had succeeded. The frocks had been charming, and with her drab wardrobe the invalid had shed much of her crabbedness. Lovely clothes did that for a woman. Pity that more husbands didn't realize the fact. Now she was gone and had left a small fortune behind her. Why had she denied herself so many of the luxuries of life? Brooke blinked long wet lashes and said aloud, as she had said many times since she had come to live at Lookout House:

"Thank you for everything, Mrs. Mary Amanda. Thanks billions." She swallowed the lump which rose in her throat whenever she thought of the woman's incredible kindness. Hardly the time to go sentimental when at any moment the family might burst in on her. They were on their way to spend Thanksgiving. For the first time they would see the changes in the house; she had postponed their coming until it should be in perfect order.

The honk-honk of an automobile horn outside was followed by voices singing lustily:

"Over the river and through the wood,

Trot fast, my dapple-gray!

Spring over the ground.

Like a hunting hound.

For this is Thanksgiving day."

The gay chorus was followed by laughter and vociferous cries:

"Whoa there! Stand still, Lightning! Whoa!"

Laughing, Brooke dashed for the front door. It was so like the Reyburn family to dramatize its arrival. In a rush of cold air and excited greetings she piloted her mother and sister to the library. The startled parrot shrieked, "Stop! Look! Listen!"

"Boy, you don't need a burglar alarm with that announcer. You ought to loan him to a bank."

Lucette made a gamin face at the parrot as she slipped out of her ocelot coat. She dragged off her hat and patted the swirl of her dark hair.

Brooke hugged her mother. "It's wonderful to have you here, Celia Reyburn, and aren't you devastating in that eel-gray ensemble!"

"Not as devastating as you are in that shimmery white, daughter. It brings out the copper lights in your hair."

Brooke laughed. "We are like two diplomats exchanging compliments, the difference is that ours come from the heart. Where's Sam? Don't tell me Sam isn't coming!"

Lucette held a lighter to a cigarette with a faint hint of bravado. "Don't cry, darling. Sam came. Didn't you recognize his voice singing as if his little heart would burst from joy as we approached this baronial hall? Doubtless he is kissing his peachy convertible good-night in your garage. He's crazy about that coupe you gave him, Brooke. He has named it Lightning. And can it go! Who's the tall gent with the undertaker expression who pulled our bags from the car as if he were extracting upper and lower molars?"

"Henri. He and his wife, Clotilde, worked for years for Mrs. Dane. I kept them on to help me settle. They take a lot of handling, believe it or not."

"I believe it. This room looks like part of a House Beautiful exhibit. It's corking."

"Wait till you see the rest of the house, Lucette. Here's Sam. I would recognize his bang of a door if I heard it in Timbuctoo. Welcome to Lookout House, Sammy! It's wonderful that the theater closed just at this time."

"Yeah! It's all in the point of view. There are them who think otherwise. However, I'm not kicking."

He caught Brooke in a bearlike hug. He kept his arm about her as he looked around the room. "Swell joint you've got here. I like the greenhousey smell from those plants. Say listen, we've missed you like the dickens, haven't we, Mother?"

"We have, Sam." Celia Reyburn staid her voice. "We'd better stop emotionalizing and get ready for dinner. I have kept house years enough to know that promptness at meals helps to keep the home-maker's life a walk easy."

"You would think of that, Mother. It isn't dinner to night. I planned a buffet supper, not being sure at what time my relatives from the big town would arrive. Come upstairs and I'll show you your rooms."

A family might get on each other's nerves, as of course it did at times, but there was nothing like it, Brooke concluded fervently, as after supper on a floor cushion in front of the library fire she leaned against her mother's knees.

Lucette burst out nervously: "If Sam can stop that nut-munching marathon, perhaps he'll announce the latest Reyburn news flash."

Brooke sat erect. "What news?" Sam took careful aim at the parrot's perch. The nutshell struck its bullseye and roused the dozing bird.

"Hell's bells!" he croaked, and ruffled his feathers.

"Looks as if he were caught in a typhoon, doesn't he?" The laughter in Sam's voice vanished. "Mother has been invited to spend the winter in England with her friend Lady Jaffrey."

"Sam!" With the exclamation Brooke was on her feet. "Do you mean it? How perfectly grand! She lives in an old castle, doesn't she?"

"Hey, pipe down, Brooke. There's a nigger in the woodpile. Wait till you hear the condition."

"A condition in Lady Jaffrey's invitation, Sam? I can't believe it."

"Be quiet, children. Let me talk." Arms crossed on the back of the wing chair in which she had been sitting, Celia Reyburn faced her family. Her cheeks were pink; her eyes, as blue as her son's, were brilliant with excitement. She clasped her hands tightly as if to steady them.

"The chair recognizes the lady from the big city," Sam encouraged with a grin.

"What's the condition, Mother? Don't you want to go?"

"Very, very much, Brooke, but I shouldn't enjoy a moment of the visit if I left your brother and sister in that apartment alone. Perhaps I'm a selfish woman, but I would like to and will go, if my mind is perfectly at ease about Lucette and Sam. If they will come here to you, and if you will have them—"

"Have them! Mother, don't be foolish! I have been rattling around in this big house like a dried coconut in a shell. Of course I want them—but will they come?"

"Who's being foolish now?" Lucette flung her cigarette into the fire. Her cheeks were almost as red as her painted lips. "Of course we'll come, Brooke Reyburn. Of course we'll play ball Mother's way. Sam and I aren't cold-blooded fish. If taking to the sticks to be chaperoned by big sister will make Mother's visit happier, we'll settle down here with bells on. She's earned all the fun she can get. She'll have one grand time and most those stuff Britishers down in swaths and come home Countess Whoosit, or I miss my guess."

"Lucette!" Celia Reyburn protested indignantly. "Don't mind her Mother," Brooke reassured. "By the time you return your younger daughter will have acquired all the social graces—"

"Just a minute! Now I make a condition. I come only if I keep on with my job."

"It would mean early and late commuting, Lucette."

"I've thought that out. In Sam's convertible we can make it."

"But you and Sam won't be coming down at the same time, and—"

"Don't be so sure, Brooke." Sam aimed a nutshell at the parrot. "The theater has closed permanently and I'm up against one of those simple economic problems, where's the next job coming from? I'll go to New York to see off Mother and take my play. Now that producers have begun to sniff around for bargains, I may get my chance."

"Sam—dear—" Brooke attempted to lighten her dismayed voice. Bad enough for him to be out of work without having her turn sob-sister.

"You'll find something. I read the other day that the theater is on the up-grade. If you don't—oh, Sam, my, what a chance for you to write! Why not give your play a try-out here? We'll do it for the town's welfare fund, in the Club House theater. What a chance to try 'Islands Arise' on the dog!"

"News flash! The Reyburns stage a play!" Lucette cut in.

"Why not?" Brooke persisted eagerly. "Most of the summer homes are to be kept open during the winter and—Answer the phone, will you, Sam? Take the message for me. I've been pestered to death by tradespeople and insurance agents wanting to sell me something. Tell them I'm out of town for the evening—anything."

The silence of the room was broken only by the snap and hiss of the fire as Sam Reyburn put the receiver of the handset to his ear.

"Hulloa—Yes—Miss Reyburn is out of town for the evening—Sure, she'll be back tomorrow—Oh, it is!—Yes, I'll give her your message. She'll be pleased purple—I get you. I'll tell her. Bye!" He laid the phone on the stand.

"Who was it, Sam? What will please me purple?" Brooke demanded unasily.

"A party by the name of Trent."

"What did he want?"

"Not much. Only to say that he accepted your invitation for Thanksgiving dinner with pleasure."

Lesson for June 20

JOSEPH'S KINDNESS TO HIS KINDED

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 46:1-7, 28-30; 50: 24-26.

GOLDEN TEXT—And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you. Ephesians 4:32.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When Joseph Saw His Father Again.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Joseph Honoring His Father.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Kindness in the Family.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Mutual Helpfulness in the Family.

A happy ending—yes! Modern writers may look with disfavor on it (and perhaps rightly so, for most of them write about life apart from fellowship with God) but to those who trust God and who seek his will, the story of life has a bright and joyful conclusion.

But someone may object that the lesson for today closes with the last words of the book of Genesis, which are "a coffin in Egypt." Is that a happy ending? It is, because even that forbidding emblem of death pointed in faith toward the day when God was to keep his promise and bring his people into the promised land.

Our lesson centers around the last of our patriarchs, Joseph, and his kindness to his father and his family. The highest official in the land of Egypt (save for Pharaoh himself) proves his inherent greatness by forgetting position and power, except as they enable him to be a loving son and brother. We consider his kindness as it is centered in his devotion to God, shown forth in thoughtful provision for others, expressed in affectionate deeds, and as it imparted itself by faith to others.

I. Founded on Fellowship (Gen. 46:1-4).

Jacob, having heard from his sons that Joseph was in Egypt, and having thus learned of their treachery and deceit, came at last to realize that his beloved Joseph is alive. He has been urged to go to Egypt but he hesitates about leaving Canaan. How shall he know whether to believe in and respond to Joseph's invitation. He asks God, the One who is the joy and center of Joseph's life, and of Jacob's as well, and he has his answer.

Real family life and devotion center around a mutual fellowship with God. There may be little else to share, but "little is much when God is in it." Has God been honored in your home? Has He been made the center of family life? These are vital questions.

II. Evidenced by Thoughtfulness (vv. 5-7).

Joseph had arranged for Pharaoh to send wagons to bring his aged father, the women, and the little ones.

Many men in our day glory in being "hard-boiled." In their relentless pursuit of fame and riches they ignore and even trample on the members of their own families. They are ashamed of the broken bodies, the humble apparel, the uneducated speech of their parents, fearing lest their new-found friends in the circle of wealth and position may ridicule them. There is a crude but apt expression that describes such persons as "stuffed shirts."

III. Manifested in Love (vv. 28-30).

Joseph kissed his father whom he had gone out to meet, and held him close and wept for joy. Again he showed his true greatness by being his natural self.

We are not all demonstrative in showing our affection. Furthermore, we would not plead for more of that sham public expression of affection which is so distasteful to right-thinking people. But may we not suggest that there is room for improvement in our loving consideration for our kindred. Let us ask ourselves how long it is since we did something to show that we really love our mother, our father, or a faithful wife, son, or daughter? How long is it since you wrote home to mother, or went home to visit?

IV. Imparted by Faith (50:24-26).

Jacob had been gathered to his fathers; time had gone on its relentless way, and Joseph is about to die. What shall be the heritage to his family? Money, property, position? No; he leaves them something infinitely more valuable—a forward-looking faith that will keep alive in their hearts the expectation that God will in due season bring them into their own land. Joseph had spent most of his years in Egypt, he had attained high position and great honor, but he never lost his vision of the promised land. He imparts to them by faith that hope

Hope

Ah, what thoughtful, loving provision God hath made for us in the gift of the angel of Hope! There is no path so dark but we may see the glimmer of her shining wings, no misfortune so heavy but her helpful hand is outstretched to us, and her smile still ready to cheer and encourage us.

The Natural Tone

Peace is the natural tone of a well-regulated mind at one with itself.—Humboldt.

Women on Juries

Twenty-one states and the District of Columbia now call women for jury service. In nine states, California, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin, the duty is compulsory, and women render service on the same terms as men. In ten states, Arkansas, Delaware, Kansas, Louisiana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, and Washington, and in the District of Columbia, their service is permissive.

Purpose of Education

ONE must realize that the main purpose and benefit of education is first the mental and moral betterment of himself, and only secondly a qualification.

The leading positions are few, and do not of necessity bring happiness. The subordinate positions are many, and the man who cheerfully and contentedly does his duty in the ordinary routine of life need never regret that leadership has not come his way. A nation composed of citizens who are doing their best will never become decadent.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE—BUT NOT FOR THE GANDER

Warfare between employers and employees in the big industrial plants continually grows more fierce. Antagonisms grow more bitter. Violence grows more frequent.

One strike is scarcely settled till another breaks out.

Employers in some instances no doubt have been brutal. They are mere exploiters of the brawn and toil of other men.

In some instances, it seems, they have elected, bought, intimidated, or otherwise controlled the officers of the law, and have used these officers to enforce their unholy and diabolical demands. They have resorted to bloodshed and murder on occasion to hold their employees in subjection.

This has been the case particularly in the coal mining industry, at least in some of the coal mining districts, according to credible testimony recently given before a committee of the Senate.

In some of the factories, particularly in the cotton and woolen mills in some sections of the country,

H. B. McCORD, Agent
TAHOKA, TEXAS

according to general report, women and children have been employed at strenuous labor for starvation wages.

These are evils that certainly call for correction by some governmental authority.

On the other hand, there are labor leaders who seem to be unfair and unscrupulous in their demands upon employers in some of the industries. They are constantly fomenting trouble and instigating strikes by employees who have no real grievance as to wages, hours of employment, or working conditions. They pretend to be fighting for a principle, but in fact they are fighting for power. Although employees have been vouchsafed the right of collective bargaining by federal law and by decisions of the courts, these leaders have undertaken to compel employers to bargain with them and their particular organizations alone. Employers must employ members of their organizations or nobody.

To enforce their demands they have resorted to the sit-down strike. They have used intimidation and even violence to prevent other men from working at the jobs at which they themselves refuse to work. Taking advantage of the law which prohibits their employers from discharging them summarily, they have staged sit-down strikes, which amounts to temporary confiscation of their employers' property, and have stopped the wheels of industry until their demands, righteous or unrighteous, may be heeded. They have utterly disregarded the personal and property rights of their employees and the rights and convenience of the general public.

This situation has continued and has increased in intensity until it has become well-nigh unbearable.

Congress is ostensibly undertaking to remedy the situation. It has already passed the Wagner Bill, which has been upheld by the Supreme Court, and now it has before it the Black-Connelly bill.

The trouble with these measures is that they strike at only one side of the trouble. They prohibit evil-doing on the part of employers but make practically no demands upon the employees.

The Black-Connelly bill prohibits the employment of strike-breakers but it does not prohibit strikes, nor even sit-down strikes.

It hedges employers about with a long string of prohibitions and regulations but it is absolutely silent as to the conduct or the activities of employees.

If industrial labor disputes are to be eliminated by law, it must be a fair law. A one-sided law will not do the job. Not only must unfair and oppressive practices on the part of employers be prohibited, but unfair and unjust practices on the part of employees must also be prohibited.

If minimum wages, maximum hours, and working conditions are to be prescribed in detail, then strikes on the part of employees should be made unlawful. Employers and employees should be compelled to submit all disputes to the Labor-Standards Board which the Black-Connelly Act proposes to set up. Certainly it should be made an offense for strikers to use intimidation, threats, or other means to prevent other men from working when they themselves choose to strike.

If the right of private contract is to be limited and hedged about by law, then the limitations and regulations should apply to both sides. Sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander.

Properly amended, the Black-Connelly bill should be enacted into law.

The Lawn Echo, of which Emmett Whitaker, former Representative in the legislature from this district, is editor and publisher, in its issue of last week highly commends Senator O. H. Nelson for his work in the senate. Says the Echo: "He has been boomed upon several occasions for Attorney General. Should he run for the office, we are, for him, but we think there is another place of service he should not neglect to consider." The Echo thinks that he should remain in the Senate until the Unicameral Legislature idea is put over. It believes that as lieutenant governor and presiding officer of the Senate Nelson could do much to accomplish this end and suggests Nelson for that high position. The editorial closes with this paragraph: "We are for him as senator, lieutenant governor, attorney general or as governor, according as his decision may be, but we hope that he finishes the task of fostering the unicameral legislature before he breaks his contact with the state senate."

LET'S AMEND IT, NOT MUTILATE IT

Our Constitution should be amended so as to give the Federal Government broader powers in the regulation of commerce and industry. We have run it ragged trying to make it cover everything.

There is a twilight zone of doubt respecting the powers of the Federal Government pertaining to these activities, but the Government has pre-empted most of the zone, and the Supreme Court has gone a long way in sustaining the pre-emption. Now, the Government is seeking to greatly expand its field of activities, but a strict construction of the Constitution will not permit it to do so.

The Fathers who wrote the Constitution recognized the fact that it would be necessary to amend it from time to time to meet new conditions that might arise.

Therefore, they wrote into the instrument itself adequate and ample provision for its amendment. Instead of availing ourselves of this provision, we have been stretching the Constitution to the tearing point and threatening members of the Supreme Court if they refuse to stretch it further, giving the lame excuse that it would take too long to amend it.

We have also been hearing much, of late, of the new doctrine that the Constitution is a growing, expanding, pliable thing designed to meet any situation that may arise. This is a strange doctrine. It is not true.

The Constitution is a yard-stick, by which our laws are to be measured. It is a standard, by which our laws are to be tested. It can not be made to mean one thing today and another thing tomorrow, just to meet changing conditions.

Just as well say that a law of Congress changes from time to time to meet changing conditions.

The Constitution really means today just exactly what it meant the day it was written except as it has been amended since.

Its meaning can not be changed one iota by changing conditions.

It can not be changed by the dictum of a President.

It can not be changed by an Act of Congress.

It can not be changed by popular opinion or by the will of the people, except through the adoption of amendments in the manner prescribed by that instrument.

If and when our law-making bodies and our courts come to regard the Constitution as an automatically growing, expanding, changing thing, as a pliable thing that may be bent and twisted about in any way at any old time just to meet the desires of the people, or the will of the President, at that particular time, then it becomes a mere dish rag, a mere scrap of paper, a mere nothing.

We need to amend the Constitution—not mutilate it.

It has been raining floods in the dust bowl, and word comes from Dalhart that the terraces and dams thrown up in that vicinity to obstruct and impound the water did the work. They held. We think this is the finest way possible to conserve our water supply, reduce damage by floods, and conserve the soil. Practically every field on the Plains and elsewhere should be terraced and the rows contoured. Dams should be built across the gullies and draws that feed the larger streams. The head waters should be impounded, and the damage by overflows in the main streams below will thereby be greatly reduced.

Mrs. E. N. Weathers went to Abilene Saturday with her son S. N. to visit the latter's family and came back with him Monday.

When You Need a Laxative

Thousands of men and women know how wise it is to take Black-Draught at the first sign of constipation. They like the refreshing relief it brings. They know its timely use may save them from feeling badly and possibly losing time at work from sickness brought on by constipation.

I WILL OIL-PLATE YOUR ENGINE

in next to no time

And even quicker I can plainly state how it saves your oil and your engine to change to Oil-Plating. After I put in Conoco Germ Processed Oil, which is the only oil that forms Oil-Plating, let's say you run a bit and then want to park—a few minutes or maybe hours. But every drop of Germ Processed oil will not drain back down into your crankcase like an everyday oil. Instead of that, a definite amount of this oil is always left closely plated all over the pistons, cylinders, bearings and other parts, from the bottom clear to the top of your engine. You'd say that the oil is united for good, to every working surface. I don't know of anything that will make Oil-Plating let go, no matter if you want to stop and start at every doorway, or make 500 miles a day across the mountains. Staying in place and not just splashing on and off, Oil-Plating can't leave the usual openings for friction and wear. Your smooth, quiet, cool-running engine will certainly make you notice that, and of course, your own eyes will see Conoco Germ Processed oil staying up around full.

NOTES FROM CHURCH OF CHRIST PASTOR

We had a good day at O'Donnell last Lord's day with fair crowds and two were added to the congregation by membership. But we were grieved at seeing so many at work in their fields on Sunday. If Sunday is the Lord's day, and it is, see Revelation 1-10, how careful we ought to be how we use it. To the man that is not a Christian it is not so bad, but to one who professes to love God it is a tragedy to fail to use the day for worship and I am made to wonder if God will not punish those who neglect to use the day right, even in this life, if not, I am sure he will in the life to come.

We want to thank the baseball boys for the kind treatment accorded us last Friday night when the singers from the Tipton Orphans Home were here. The lights were not turned on until after the program.

The time for the singers from Boles Orphans Home has been changed from Monday night, June 28, to Tuesday morning, June 29, 10:30 a. m. until noon, at which time 22 singers from the Home will render a fine program of songs. The public is invited.

Hurray for the horse race betting bill that passed both the House and Senate and will soon become a law! Our hats are off to Jimmie Allred and Senator Nelson for their good work! Also, all God's people ought to rejoice at the bank night decision.

Gambling is wrong, if it is women playing for a cut-glass bowl in the parlor or boys playing for a jack-pot in the alley.

God has shown Washington that the Dust Bowl can become a Mud Bowl without their help.

I will fill the pulpit here next Lord's day, with the Lord willing. The subject for morning and evening will be "Whom Does God Call Fools." Time 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m.

Visit the church with a New Testament name.—R. P. Drennon.

Amarillo, June 17.—After a second day of resting and "just visiting around," Vice-President and Mrs. John N. Garner planned to get a day-light start Friday for Uvalde, where they expect to remain several weeks on vacation.

Accompanied by their son Tully Garner and family, the vice presidential party will "make no stops" on the way home, it was announced. The party will go by way of Lubbock, Big Spring and San Angelo.

EMPTY FAME

Abraham Lincoln possessed that rare faculty of being able to appreciate a joke, even though it happened to be on him. One which he used to tell with great relish was concerning an incident during the Civil War.

The President had been stopped by a sentry who did not know him, and as Lincoln did not know the password, his passage was barred.

"Don't you know who I am?" he asked.

"No," replied the soldier. "I am the President of the United States," he said.

The sentry looked searchingly at him, and then made the unflattering reply, "Pass on. You do look like a used postage stamp."

Collier Is President Of Rotary Club

In the absence of M. L. Penn, who removed to Post this week, Wynne Collier assumed his duties Thursday as president of the Rotary Club.

Rev. George A. Dale was the speaker of the occasion, giving a most interesting account of his recent visit to East Tennessee.

Visitors present were Supt. J. T. Carter of New Home and "Stony" Wall of Lubbock.

Early Day Residence Being Remodeled

The old Clayton home, built thirty years ago this spring, is undergoing a remodeling this week.

Miss Meda Clayton, now owner of the home, located across the street east of the Legion Hall, says the house was built by her father, G. M. Clayton, in 1907. Dee Rogers assisted in the construction. This is one of the few remaining older home places here.

Mr. Clayton, who died in 1917, and Mrs. Clayton, who died in 1925, came here from Haskell in 1907, when Tahoka consisted of just a few homes scattered over the prairie and possibly a score of frame buildings around the square. A few farmers had just begun raising cotton, and nearly all the land was still in grass.

Ben Moore and John Johnson of O'Donnell were here a few days ago and Ben said he and Dr. O. H. Shepard of that city had just returned recently from a fishing trip to the Devil's River and the Rio Grande. At Del Rio they crossed over into Villa Acuna, and Ben admits that on the other side of the Rio Grande he really got scared. The town, he says was made up of poor dogs and gambling dens. Sombreros and brown skins and gambling dens and drinking dives didn't look good to him, and so he kept to the middle of the street and got back onto American soil at the first opportunity. "And the best fishing I found on the whole trip," he said, "was in the Concho at San Angelo."

Mrs. E. I. Hill had the novel and unexpected experience last Sunday of meeting a cousin 57 years of age whom she had never seen. Just that afternoon, while preparing to visit a cousin in Slaton, she remarked about having cousins in Arkansas whom she had never seen. After the visit to Slaton, she and the editor decided to drive on across the Draw, and then we kept going till we reached Ralls. There we stopped to make a brief call on another cousin of hers, and when we did so, to her great surprise, she found the Arkansas cousin, who had come in the day before and was preparing to start on her way home the next day.

COUNTY CLUBS

Miss Lilith Boyd, H. D. Agent

TAKE CARE IN SELECTION OF KITCHEN UTENSILS

Points to consider in selecting kitchen utensils was the topic of a discussion by Miss Lilith Boyd, home demonstration agent, with the Three Lakes Club ladies in the home of Mrs. Jarrell Cox June 3rd.

The first thing to do in selecting utensils is to decide definitely just what is needed. An over-supply of utensils may cause just as much confusion as an under-supply. In buying pans, be sure there are no rims that might easily catch grease and dirt. Knives should have substantial handles that are screwed to the blade. A wooden spoon is almost essential in a well-stocked kitchen.

Three visitors were present, Mrs. T. R. Park, Mrs. J. H. Bulman and Miss Johnnie McClintock.

Candy was served to the following: Mesdames Carroll Edwards, C. F. Galven, A. L. McMillan, I. L. Johnson, Elzo McMillan, J. H. Bulman, T. R. Park, and Misses Johnnie McClintock, Mildred Cox, Lilith Boyd, and the hostess.

COUNTY H. D. COUNCIL MET HERE SATURDAY

The Lynn County Home Demonstration Council met in regular session in the county court room Saturday, June 12.

In the absence of the chairman, Mrs. M. O. Canaday, Mrs. G. B. Sherrod, president of the Dixie club, presided.

The expansion chairman reported 323 non-members reached this year. The recreation chairman reported five clubs had organized choruses. These combined form the county chorus.

The writers' chairman reported a profitable meeting. Mrs. Ferrell Farrington, editor of the O'Donnell Index, gave the reporters much worth-while information. Miss Geneva Meadows, County Home Demonstration Agent from Cochran county, with five of the reporters from that county visited the meeting.

It was voted at council to have a home demonstration club picnic in Lubbock July 22. Also, council decided to send a delegate to the Farmer's Short Course, August 18-19, to be elected in July.

CLUB GIRL TELLS OF BABY CHICK CARE

"I bought a new metal waterer for my 75 White Wyandotte baby chickens; I wash it every day and refill it sometimes as many as three times each day," said Mary Alice Norman, poultry demonstrator in the Grassland 4-H Club.

"I keep feeders filled during the day and the house is cleaned once each week. My father made a roost for the chickens which swings from the ceiling. I brought my chickens home April 15 and they are large enough now to get on the roost with little trouble to me. I am keeping a record of the expenses of my chickens," said Mary Alice.

Mary Alice feels that her success with her chickens is due to sanitary conditions and healthy chickens to begin with. After she was elected poultry demonstrator in her club, her mother gave her one of the poultry houses for her flock.

DEMONSTRATES COOKING AT NEW HOME 4-H CLUB

"Egg Cookery" was demonstrated by Miss Lilith Boyd to the New Home 4-H club Friday, June 11th. When beating egg white if you want them to stand up better and be fluffy, use a whip beater. A rotary beater doesn't make egg whites as bulky. Eggs are necessary in a person's diet. They are next to milk in food value.

The club had a slumber party at the home of Mrs. Boswell Edwards Tuesday night.

All of the girls are urged to come to the next meeting June 25th at the school house at 2 p. m.

The Style Show and Poultry Exhibit will be held in Tahoka July 10.

DEMONSTRATE EGG DISHES AT GRASSLAND

Egg Macaroons, poached eggs, eggs on toast, and scrambled eggs with cheese were demonstrated at a meeting of the Grassland 4-H Club at the home of Mrs. A. L. Shepherd June 15.

Faye Blasingame was elected delegate to the Short Course.

Members present were: Mary Alice Norman, Lorene Norman, Ruby Greer, Billie Greer, Margie Shepherd, Faye Blasingame, and sponsor, Miss Bell Stewart.

The next meeting will be at Mrs. C. M. Greer's.

MIDWAY CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. SLOVER

Mrs. Rufus Slover was hostess to the Midway Home Demonstration Club June 10 at 2:30 p. m. in the home of Mrs. R. B. Floyd. Miss Lilith Boyd, home demonstration agent, showed the women many useful kitchen utensils and told them points to consider in selecting utensils were: that they be substantial, easily cleaned, absorb heat for baking service; for example, tin and aluminum are best for cakes.

Many changes have been made in the materials utensils are made from. The first were made of stone, then bronze, later cast iron, and now we may select from tin, aluminum, granite, pyrex, and copper.

Visitors present were: Misses Maxine Floyd and Margaret Sue Goddard, Mrs. John W. Slover and daughters, Jean, Joan, and Emily Lou.

NEW LYNN CLUB MEETS WITH MRS. FLEMING

The New Lynn H. D. Club met Tuesday, June 15, with Mrs. Alton Fleming. Mrs. C. C. Coffey read a paper on working around the home and teaching the children to assume the responsibility of certain tasks.

There was a round table discussion on the subject by the ladies. Mrs. Busby said it was a lot easier to do the work oneself but for the children's sake they must be taught to do certain tasks at certain times and to feel responsible for that job.

Mrs. Doyle Terry was elected delegate to the A. & M. Short Course. The club meets with Mrs. Doyle Terry Tuesday, July 6.

Visitors were: Grandma Lyles and Grandma Fleming.

Members present were: Mesdames J. A. Jaynes, Newman Bartley, R. W. Barton, P. K. Flemming, E. B. Terry, H. A. Winkler, Susie Bartley, Vivian Craig, A. R. Cooper, J. B. Hoskins, Alton Fleming, John Meeks, Doyle Terry, Grady Meeks, and T. D. Lishman.

MRS. HECK HOSTESS TO NEW HOME CLUB

Points to be considered in selecting kitchen utensils were given by Miss Lilith Boyd to the New Home Home Demonstration Club Friday, June 11, in the home of Mrs. Henry Heck.

A well equipped kitchen is necessary for a convenient workshop. In selecting utensils, select those of good quality. A few carefully selected utensils are more useful than a number of cheap, non-essential vessels.

Mrs. Mack Alderson came as a new member. Mrs. P. W. Goad of Tahoka and Mrs. J. C. Veach were visitors.

Members present were: Mesdames J. T. Carter, G. N. McWhorter, W. G. Minton, Joe Poindexter, Boswell Edwards, Henry Newman, and Henry Heck.

MRS. BUSBY ENTERTAINS THE DRAW 4-H CLUB

"Eggs keep better without washing. To insure cleanliness, they should be washed before using," Miss Boyd told the members of the Draw 4-H club, which met in the home of Mrs. E. C. Busby.

"Eggs beat better when cold. A whip egg beater produces a larger volume than a rotary beater, added Miss Boyd.

Members present were: Sybil Busby, Billie Proctor, Oella Williams, Edna Ruth Stinnett, Lorene Dabney, and the sponsor, Mrs. E. P. Proctor. Others present were Mrs. S. D. Dabney and E. C. Busby.

MIDWAY GIRLS MEET WITH MRS. LITTLEPAGE

When eggs are used in the diet it is advisable that the diet contain also vegetables, fruit, and milk," said Miss Boyd to the Midway 4-H Club Thursday, June 10, at 9 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Littlepage.

"An egg a day for each girl is a good rule to follow," Miss Boyd said. Miss Boyd prepared eggs many ways.

All members but two have their dresses finished.

Members present were: Nieto, Ica-phene and Marlene Stephens, Evelyn and Mary Louise McDonald, Irene and Ruth Grider, Letha Pearl Johnson, Reba Phillips, Clara Lee Hensy, and Clovis Stephens.

WILL DEMONSTRATE MUFFIN MAKING

Mrs. F. P. Taylor will demonstrate the making of muffins to the Midway Home Demonstration Club August 15. The meeting will be with Mrs. I. M. Draper.

Baptist Revival Begins Sunday

Revival services will begin at the Baptist Church Sunday morning to continue two weeks.

Rev. J. W. Williams of Hobbs will do the preaching.

Ira M. Powell of Big Spring will direct the music.

Services have been announced for 10 o'clock each week day morning and 8:30 each evening.

Everybody is cordially invited.

Mrs. J. B. Walker and daughters, Pollyanna and Mrs. Jansy O'Neal and the latter's two children, went down to Aspermont Saturday to visit Mrs. Walker's sister, Miss Jo Bulloch. All came back Monday except Pollyanna, who remained for a longer visit.

SEPTUAGENARIAN

Village Postmistress: "Old-age pensions, Mrs. Brown? Why, you don't look a day over 60."

Old Lady: "Ah, time was when I'd have been pleased with the compliment, but now I'm glad enough to own up to being a septic geranium."

VALUE OF EGGS, SUBJECT OF PETTY 4-H CLUB

"Nine eggs are equal in protein to about three-fourth pound of lean meat or two quarts of milk," said Miss Lilith Boyd to the members of the Petty 4-H Club which met in the home of Mrs. F. M. Middleton June 9.

"Minerals found in eggs are iron, calcium, and phosphorus," she added.

The next club meeting will be with Wilma Doris Crews June 23.

New Commemorative Postage Stamp

Postmaster General James A. Farley announced recently that on July 13, 1937, a special commemorative postage stamp will be issued in connection with the 150th anniversary of the Adoption of the Ordinance of 1787 and the establishing of the Northern Territory.

The new stamp will be of the three-cent denomination. Further details as to design, color and size will be announced later by the Department.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life—constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feeling tired, nervous, all worn out.
Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.
The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste, the Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are Doan's Sold at all drug stores.

Hello Everybody!

"Death Over Miami"
By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HERE'S a tale of the high seas, of "Sparks," as the seamen call the radio operator who sits day and night over his set, picking up messages that may mean life or death to some hapless souls.

In this case, thanks to Ray Hutchens of Long Island City, N. Y., it meant life to the victims of a hurricane which had just swept a path of death and destruction over Florida!

Ray tells me the Ward Line passenger ship Siboney, with him on board as chief wireless operator, and a chap named Milton Kitchen as junior, pulled out of Havana, bound for New York, on September 18, 1928. Just before they left the dock at noon, they received a hurricane warning from a station in New Orleans whose call letters were WNU.

Now Ray says such warnings were a dime a dozen, and most of them came to exactly nothing. So when they ran into a gale with moderate sea on passing Morro Castle, they thought little of it. All unsuspecting they turned toward Key West.

Somebody Called the Siboney.

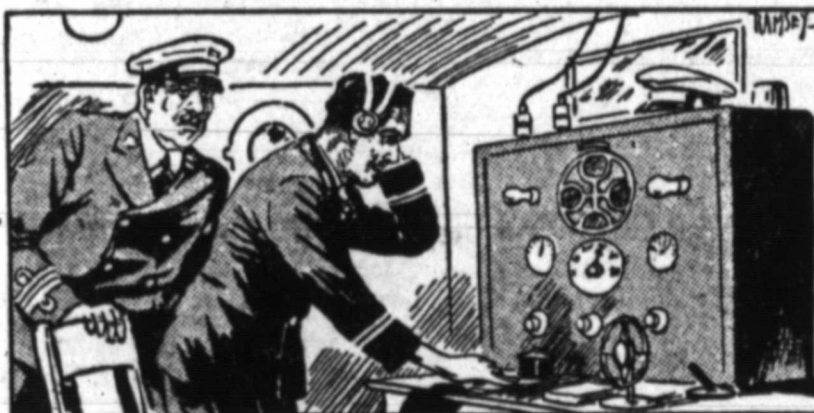

Ray tells us that at 10 p. m. that night he was on watch. Static was bad, the sea was running a bit more heavily, and the wind at gale force threw clusters of spray against the radio-room ports so forcibly it sounded like hail. The passengers, their vacations over, were asleep or preparing for bed, secure in the thought of the trained men in whose hands they had entrusted their welfare. Ray, watching with anxious eyes the rising storm, could think only of the helplessness of even these trained men when Nature goes on a rampage.

Idly running through the 600-meter band, Ray found things dull, with little traffic. At ten-thirty, against a rasping background of static, some fellow called WRN (the Siboney, Ray's vessel) slowly and repeatedly.

"Shucks," Ray thought to himself. "This'll be some two-by-four tanker about to ask for a relay."

Unable to send their messages the full distance because of lack of power, the smaller ships occasionally asked help from a ship with better equipment. Ray was certainly justified in jumping to this conclusion, for what else would be sending a signal that was not the clear, musical note of the shore stations, but a weak, straggling sputter, "like someone shaking a bucket of pebbles," as Ray puts it.

But when this puny station signed WAX, which was the shore station at Miami, Florida, Ray was shocked into action! Miami, whose high, clear note always rang with ample volume through the thirty miles of static that separated them. Something was radically wrong, Ray was sure of that. Hurriedly he snapped back a brief "Go ahead." Ray knew the shore station must be able to hear the Siboney much better than Ray could catch the thin signal that trickled in from Miami.

"Ham" Told of Miami Hurricane.

And WAX, Miami, came back with the hottest row of dots and dashes Ray ever had directed toward him in his life! A pitiful appeal for food, clothing and medical supplies for the victims of the Miami hurricane, which had just swept a path of death and destruction across Florida!

There was not a second to be lost! Out there in those waste stretches, battered and swept clean by the force of a Nature gone mad, were helpless men, women, and little children, their homes destroyed, their last link with the world this little ship's radio room, where a horrified man sat over a delicate instrument and relayed the tale of their disaster to the world.

Ray jumped to his feet, ran into their quarters, slapped his junior, Milton, on the stomach. For the next twelve hours, while Kitchen stood by and tended the arc and spark transmitters, Ray alternately received from Miami and sent to WSA, in East Moriches, Long Island. A pal of Ray's, Al Kahn, who was on the Orizaba, near Hatteras, helped to keep other ships' signals off the air while Ray was slowly trying to pound through the thousand miles between the Siboney and WSA.

Static Made It Almost Impossible.

You fellow-adventurers who are "hams," as the radio amateurs call themselves, will know what Ray was up against trying to pick up the faint code of WAX with static buzzing, sputtering, crackling, crashing, drowning out the almost inaudible signal that meant aid and succor to thousands of souls. Ray sat there glued to his chair for twelve hours, straining his ears to catch the pitiful appeal, receiving under almost superhuman conditions. "So bad was the static," Ray tells me, "that each dot was a drop of sweat and each dash a moan."

Captain F. L. Miller hove the ship so as to keep the operators within range of WAX's low-power transmitter. He had been asked to bring his ship into the harbor with food and medicine, but the ship's draft would not allow it even in calm weather.

And all the time Ray was racking his brains wondering how the Miami operators, whose big station was obviously out of whack, were getting even this faint signal through. "Those boys certainly deserve credit," Ray says proudly, "all their towers were down; the roof was blown from their quarters, power and telegraph lines were all out; they were sheltering one hundred men, women and children in the control-room, and even then they rigged up an emergency transmitter, powered with batteries stolen from wrecked cars, to get the first word of the hurricane to the outside world! "So far as I know," Ray says, "it was the first time a land station ever sent an SOS to a ship!"

I guess we can sympathize with Ray when we imagine the feelings of that operator at WAX, who called the ship so slowly and prayerfully with that pathetic little sending shebang, knowing that the Siboney was due to pass and had continuous watch. Those boys got very little credit in the papers at the time, but Ray will always remember them with pride in his profession.

Ruins of Cuzco

In Cuzco, Peru, once the metropolis of the Incas, are massive ruins on a par with those found in Egypt. When the city was captured by Pizarro its temples were marvels of magnificence, says the Washington Post. The Temple of the Sun was covered with a roof of gold. The railroad to Cuzco skirts Lake Titicaca, an inland sea, 161 miles long, 60 miles wide and 12,500 feet above the level of the sea. The water never freezes, even when the temperature drops to 30 degrees, and steel knives thrown into it do not rust.

Varnish, Paint, Different

What is the difference between paint and varnish? If you get paint on your hands it will be soft and oily—easy to remove with turpentine or gasoline; the varnish will require more scrubbing. Paint is made by grinding pigments (colors) in drying oils. Varnish is made by melting transparent gums and mixing the melted gums with similar drying oils. After these oils have been raised to a high temperature, paint is opaque and is intended to hide surfaces. Varnish is usually transparent and is intended to reveal surfaces.

sidewalk along Main Street, which is traversed by highway No. 9.

The foundation will be built of stone, the foundation extending two feet below and one foot above the surface of the earth. Much of the stone has already been purchased and is on the ground, as is also much sand and gravel and some of the cement blocks. The blocks are being made here in Tahoka by Fred Chancey.

Mr. Harris also recently purchased a new ambulance and it was delivered Monday. This ambulance is the latest word in that character of motor vehicle. In addition to an electric fan and front and rear heaters, it has a built-in first-aid compartment, with cabinets and shelves for the necessary equipment and supplies.

In appearance, it is a handsome vehicle that would do credit to a much larger town than Tahoka.

Mr. Harris and Mr. Robertson are to be congratulated upon their progressiveness and their determination to provide the people of Tahoka and Lynn county with the best service possible in caring for their dead.

Tom Garrard Calls Farmer Meeting

Hon. Tom Garrard, chairman of the Lynn County Agricultural association, has called a mass meeting of farmers to be held in the courthouse here Saturday, afternoon June 19. His call follows:

To all members of the Agricultural Association and those interested in agricultural problems: A mass meeting of the farmers of Lynn county is hereby called to meet at the court house in Tahoka at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 19, to discuss contemplated agricultural legislation now pending in Congress and other matters of vital importance to agriculture.—Tom Garrard, Chm. Lynn County Agricultural Association.

John Brower of Newmode was a business visitor in Tahoka Wednesday. He had been employed the past few weeks in Odessa. While he was there, his wife wrote him to come home, saying high winds had covered up and destroyed his cotton crop. He resigned his job and hastened home. Upon his arrival he found that another high wind had blown in the opposite direction and uncovered the crop. So, he is yet expecting a good crop in spite of some damage by hail and heavy rains.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Wyatt and children and Fountain Wyatt have had as their guests the past few days Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wyatt and daughter, Emma Jean, from Port Arthur; Miss Madeline Wyatt of Albuquerque; and Mrs. James G. Carr from Denver, Colorado. All of the Wyatt children were at home except Miss Elizabeth, who is working in Albuquerque and couldn't attend the reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray T. Smith and two children of Baytown and Mrs. Hussey of Lubbock visited Mr. and Mrs. Howard Henderson, Miss Meda Clayton and Mr. and Mrs. Duell Cheatham of O'Donnell last week end. Mrs. Smith is the former Miss Marguerite Hessey of Lubbock. Mr. Smith is secretary and treasurer of the Humble Oil Co. of Baytown.

Jim D. Woods, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Woods, of the Edith community, recently graduated from the Capital Hill High School, Oklahoma City, with a class of 327. Jim is now working in that city but plans to enter Oklahoma A. & M. at Stillwater this fall.

Frank Larkin Buys Sharp's Laundry

Frank Larkin has purchased from M. W. Sharp the Sharp Steam Laundry situated in the Larkin building at the southwest corner of the square and took charge of the business Monday morning.

Frank was reared in Tahoka and formerly was associated with his father, H. M. Larkin, in business here, but has been residing at Elizabethton, Tennessee, the past few years. He has many friends here who will wish him success in his new enterprise.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharp have been residents of Tahoka about six months, having purchased this laundry from Mr. and Mrs. Johnson. They have made many friends and done a good business here. They expect to remain here for some time at any rate.

Mr. Sharp expressed his appreciation of the patronage that has been given him by the people of Tahoka and vicinity and of the many courtesies extended him and Mrs. Sharp and further expressed the hope that his patrons will be no less generous in their patronage of the new proprietor.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Knight and their daughter, Mrs. J. E. Nance, went to Amarillo Thursday to visit Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Boyd. Mr. and Mrs. Knight expected to return to Tahoka this week but Mrs. Nance will remain for a longer visit, after which she expects to return to her former home in Dallas. Her husband, who is employed in the government HOLC work, was recently transferred to the Omaha office. Mrs. Nance will join him there soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Collins, an account of whose wedding appeared in this paper last week, were Tahoka visitors Monday. They are now residing in Lubbock. Mr. Collins is associated with the firm of D. R. Ferguson & Co., accountants and auditors. Mrs. Collins is taking some work in the Texas Tech and will teach in the Draw-Redwine High School again next year. She is the former Miss Gladys Douthett.

Ed Cook, prince of agriculture in the Wells community, was a business visitor in Tahoka Tuesday. He says that excessive rains and some hail have made it necessary for some of the people in that community to plant their cotton crops three or four times this year. With a period of fair weather now, he thinks crops should grow rapidly. He and his boys have about 600 acres in cotton and about the same amount of feed crops. He farms on a big scale and usually makes it pay.

Mrs. H. C. Lewis, who was reported last week to be in a most serious condition, has been released from the hospital in Lubbock and is being treated in the home of her brother-in-law in that city. Her condition has improved so much that it was expected that she would be brought home this week.

Rev. B. M. Dennis, pastor of the Methodist Church at Vaughn, New Mexico, was here last week visiting his uncle, W. S. Anglin, and family. Rev. Dennis is a young preacher and just recently received his degree at the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bouillon and son, Elbert Jr., are spending the week in El Paso.

Mares Are Killed By Lightning Flash

Sailor Williams of Lakeview was in Tahoka Wednesday and reported the loss of two fine mares and serious injury to a third one in the terrific electrical storm which visited Lynn county Monday night. The animals were struck by lightning.

A colt, the foal of one of the mares, which was standing near by, was unharmed.

The three mares, huddled together in the middle of the pasture during the storm, appeared to have fallen in their tracks. Two were evidently killed instantly. The other one was unable to get up until the next morning. She was still apparently unable Wednesday to lie down and was scarcely able to walk.
